Miscreants Switch Heavy Current to the Car Lines.

Fireworks of Electricity Cause Consternation Among People.

Switchboards Explode, But Fortunately No One is Killed.

San Francisco, May 22.—All the United Railroad's trolley lines north of Market street were put out of commission last night by miscreants who managed by means of a wire or chain to connect a high power transmission wire with the trolley wire on Church street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets. The instant effect of diverting the 13,200 volts of electrical current to the trolley wire was a frightful explosion in the Turk and Filmore substation.

The switchboard, which is connected with all of the trolley lines operated by the company north of Market street, burned out, and the attending electrical display struck consternation and fear to the hearts of hundreds of people in the neighborhood.

It is remarkable that the trouble was not attended by loss of life. It will take some time to get the wires in working order.

ELECTION OF MODERATOR

Pittsburg, May 22.—When the general synod of the Reformed Presbyterian church convened in Allegheny today the 185 delegates were at sea over the question of the election of a moderator. Thomas McPaul of Nova Scotia, but the contest was so close that it was thought a deadlock would result.

The convention was opened by the Rev. J. R. Wylie of New Galilee, Pa., the moderator of the last synod.

NEW POSTMASTER.

Washington, May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aibert E. Henney has been appointed postmaster at Little Sauk, Tod county, vice Prosper Henry, dead.

President Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, New York; secretary to the conference, Clinton R. Woodruff, Philadelphia; permanent corresponding secretary, H. C. Phillips, Mohonk Lake, N. Y.; treasurer, C. Wood, Camden, N. J.; auditors, Dexter Hunter, Jacksonville, Fla.; Eugene Levering, Baltimore; business committee, Samuel J. Barrows, New York, chairman; Dr. Lyman Abott, New York; Samuel P. Capen, Boston; Prof. Samuel T. Dutton, New York; Dr. Charles W. Eliot, Cambridge, Mass.; Rear Admiral C. F. Goodrich, U. S. N.; David P. Jones, Minneapolis; John D. Long, Boston; H. D. Woodruff, Philadelphia; finance committee, William Christie Herren, Cincinnati, chairman.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university, delivered an address in opening the conference in which he advocated that the question of disarmament be avoided at this conference, but the restriction of further growth of great armies and navies be urged. He also suggested some recommendations for the coming conference at The Hague.

The present statutes of the international arbitration movement was the subject of an address delivered by James Benjamin F. Trueblood, secretary of the American peace society, Boston.

The questions to be considered by this conference were outlined in an apening address by Albert K. Smiley.

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, Elected President of the Lake Mohonk Arbitration Conference.

SAY THE AIR IS POISONED

Farmers Complain That Great Damage is Done Them.

St. Paul, May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The United States circuit court of appeals, now sitting in this city, composed of Judges Vandeventer, Adams and Ryner, will hear the arguments on the merits of the case of the United States Smelting company, appellenats, against James Godfrey and others. James Godfrey and several other residents and farmers of the Salt Lake, Utah, valley, obtained in the United States district court of Utah a permanent injunction against the United States Smelting company, enjoining it and other smelting companies from operating their smelters. Godfrey et al alleged that the ores melted contained a large amount of sulphur, which, in the smelting, became converted into sulphur dioxide, and this dioxide, when mixed with the moisture of the air, forms sulphuric acid. The sulphuric acid falling on the vegetation of the surrounding country, destroyed it; cattle and horses breathing the air became emaciated, and some died. Milch cows failed to give their usual quantity of milk, and human beings were made short of breath by breathing this alleged poison-laden air.

On the other hand the smelting companies set up the fact that the persons who were so short of breath because of breathing this air would have been short of breath anyway, because of their advanced age. They claim that farmers who claimed their cows gave short measure at milking time, seemed to have plenty of milk when selling time came; that vegetation did not suffer from the fumes from the smelter and they laid special strees on the immense amount of money which would be lost to that section from a stoppage of smelting operations. The appelants claim they have over $10,000,000 invested and that they pay out large amounts in wages to men employed. They cite the testimony of physicians to show that the air is not poisoned by the fumes and in general argue that if the permanent injunction is not set aside, great loss will result, while it cannot be specifically shown what the pecuniary loss has been to those who have brought this action and secured the injunction.

The arguments of which the above is the gist were scheduled to be made before the court this afternoon, providing another case which was occupying the attention of the court, would be concluded in time, otherwise the arguments will go over until tomorrow.

COREY BUYS A STEAM YACHT

Bigelow. The Pantooset will sail immediately for Europe, where Mr. and Mrs. Corey, who was formerly Miss Mabelle Gilman, the actress, will cruise in European waters. Mr. Corey is said to have paid $195,000 for the Pantooset, which was built at Bath, Me., in 1902. The Pantooset is 211 feet long.

GRADING FOR THE NEW WISCONSIN CENTRAL TERMINALS HAS BEGUN

Crew of Men and Several Teams on the Job.

Greater Part of Work Will be Done by Contract.

No Letup Until Trains Are Running Into Duluth.

The Wisconsin Central has begun work in Duluth.

A crew of men with several teams commenced work this morning on the Ramsey street intersection of the Central's right of way in West Duluth grading the roadway, and Col. Gillis, who is at present in charge of the work, says that there will be no let up from now on until the road is ready for trains running into Duluth.

"We expect to let most of this work by contract," said Col. Gillis this morning," and as soon as the contracts are fixed up work will begin in earnest. We were obliged to commence work in the city before May 29, according to the terms of the franchise granted us, and we saw a chance to commence work out there, and did so."

Under the provisions of the ordinance granting the Wisconsin Central the right to utilize certain streets and avenues in the city of Duluth for their line, the railroad company had sixty days to consider its acceptance and thirty days after its acceptance to begin work within the city limits. They did not avail themselves of all the sixty days for consideration, but the thirty days are now almost up as the formal acceptance was filed with city clerk on April 29, last and submitted to the council at its meeting that evening. This would fix Wednesday, May 29, a week from today as the date for the expiration of the month of grace.

While the filing of the acceptance of the ordinance practically settled the long dispute between the city and the railroad company on the ordinance question, the knowledge that work has actually been begun and that the tremendous job of installing the $1,000,000 terminals in this city is really under way at last, will be most gratifying to Duluthians.

Col. Gillis' assurance that "there will be no let up in the work from now on" is an additional source of gratification.

Washington, May 22.—The comptroller of the currency today issued a call for a statement of the condition of National banks at the close of business on Monday, May 20.

LONGSHOREMEN ATTACK NEGROES

New York, May 22.—One hundred negroes who were engaged to take the places made vacant by striking longshoremen at the Atlantic docks, in Brooklyn, were attocked by about an equal humber of strikers or sympathizers, including a number of Italians, when the strike-breakers reported for work in a body today. The strikers at first attempted to persuade the negroes to keep off the docks, but in the argument that ensued, some of the members of the opposing forces became involved in a fight, which quickly included the whole number on both sides. During the first fighting which followed, one of the negroes used his revolver, without injury to the strikers. The police dispersed the rioters, and arrested the negro who did the shooting.

BURNED TO WATER'S EDGE.

Gallipolis, Ohio, May 22.—The Ohio river packet Chevalier and transfer steamer City of Huntington were burned to the water's edge, near Huntington, early today. The loss is $19,000. The crew narrowly escaped with their lives.

TRAIN WRECKERS ATTACH WIRES TO RAILS AND PULL TRACK FROM UNDER ENGINE

One Passenger Killed and Twenty-Two Persons Injured.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 22.—Train No. 20, one of the Southern Pacific's coast line flyers, was wrecked at West Glendale, ten miles north of here at 12:30 this morning. The wreck was the deliberate work of train wreckers. One man was killed and twenty-two persons injured, three probably fatally.

In accomplishing the wreck of the train a devilish ingenuity had been exercised. At a point on a trestle over the Arroyo Seco, the fishplates and bolts of two connecting rails on the northbound track had been removed, and in the apertures whence the bolts were taken strands of heavy wire were fastened at the end of each rail. From the appearance of the track after the wreck it was evident that some person hidden, on a hillside close to the trestle, had pulled the wire as the train approached and spread the rails outward toward the edge of the trestle.

The train, three hours late, was traveling at a rate of between thirty-five or forty miles an hour. The engine wheels were first to leave the rails and the engine took to the ties, traveling nearly 100 yards before it was brought to a standstill. The tender, the diner, two Pullmans, the buffet, mail and baggage cars plunged over the edge of the trestle, falling a distance of sixteen feet. The buffet car, the express car and one of the Pullmans were turned completely upsidedown and the others landed on their sides. All were badly crushed and splintered.

The man killed was T. J. MacMahon of Santa Barbara, a member of the Electrical Workers' union. He is believed to have been stealing a ride on the baggage car and had as his companion Frank Naylor, a 15-

CONFUSION PROBABLE

Hard to Tell Who Will be Mayor of Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., May 22.—The Courier-Journal says: The court of appeals has voted, four to two, to reverse the decision of Judges Kirkby and Miller of the Jefferson circuit court, in the contest of the Fusionists to oust the Democratic office holders of Louisville and Jefferson county, who were declared elected in the fall of 1905. The decision will have the effect of turning out all city and county officials. The Democratic officials have thirty judicial days in which to enter a motion for a rehearing.

When the mandate of the court is sent to Louisville, it is likely that considerable confusion will follow in determining just who is to succeed to the office made vacant by the decision. It is understood that the friends of Former Mayor Granger, who was succeeded by Mayor Barth, are having the law locked up under the impression that the right of succession is his. It is said that the contention of the Democrats is that the law says a mayor is elected for a term of four years, or until his successor is elected, and qualified. If the court of appeals holds that there was no election, Mr. Granger's successor was not elected. Under this contention it is held by some of the Democrats that Mr. Grainger shall has been elected, although illegally, general election.

The Fusionists, on the other hand, maintain the governor under the law, will have the right to appoint a mayor, because, while Mr. Barth was elected and did qualify, such election is null and void and Mr. Grainger's successor has been elected, although illegally and having qualified, although without authority, Mr. Grainger's term has expired both by lapse of tenure and also because of the qualification of his successor.

TO MEET AT ATLANTA.

Minneapolis, May 22.—The 1907 convention of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers came to a close yesterday afternoon, after being in session nearly a week. The last matter of business before the convention before the adjournment was taken was the selection of a place of meeting for the next convention, and, after a brisk fight in which New York and Atlanta figured as the leading rivals, the Southern city was chosen.

HEGEMAN INDICTED

Seven Charges of Forgery and Three of Perjury Returned.

New York, May 22.—John R. Hegeman, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, appeared before Justice Greenbaum, in the criminal branch of the supreme court today, and pleaded not guilty to the ten indictments returned against him yesterday, charging perjury and forgery. Bail was fixed at $10,000 on one of the indictments for perjury. It was furnished.

Mr. Hegeman's plea was made with the reservation that he may withdraw it by June 1, and make such other motions as his counsel would then see fit. His counsel, De Lancey Nicoll, then applied for permission to inspect the minutes of the grand jury which returned the indictments. District Attorney Jerome said he would consent to the inspection, in view of the precedent established in the Perkins' insurance case. Justice Greenbaum said that in view of the consent of the district attorney, he would not interfere, but he did not want to go on record as either assenting or denying a motion.

New York, May 22.—The special grand jury that has concerned itself with the conduct of the insurance business in New York county, has concluded its investigation of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, and yesterday returned ten

Proprietor of Restaurant in Portland Shot in the Back.

Portland, Mich., May 22.—Edward Manning, aged 60 years, proprietor of a restaurant here, was murdered last night while on his way home from his establishment. He was shot in the back. Robbery was evidently the motive of the crime, as a large sack of silver that he usually carried was missing. He leaves a widow and several children.

QUEER FREAKS OF LIGHTNING

Many Houses Are Struck by Different Strokes of Fluid.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, May 22.—Lightning played queer freaks in Western Iowa Tuesday afternoon. At Loveland, a church, two stores, and one residence were burned by four different strokes of lightning. At Hastings, C. H. Baxter's house was struck and burned. At Moorhead, three different strokes burned three houses. William Townley's house was struck and a bed, in which two girls were sleeping, destroyed. The girls were uninjured. At Plummer settlement a house and barn were destroyed.

One of the most important matters to be considered is the proposed reunion of the branches of the Presbyterian churches.

EXPLORERS TO TRY TO FIND ESQUIMAUX.

Copenhagen, May 22.—Two youthful explorers, Knud Rassuen and his sister, the latter 20 years old, have started on a perilous trip. The couple are students of ethnography. They are going to Smiths' Sounds to find an Esquimau tribe, which is reputed to have never come in contact with civilization.

Their only attendant is an Esquimau. They will travel in dog sledges and will depend for food upon shooting. They hope to reach the Canadian mainland some time in 1908.

District Attorney Jerome said he would consent to the inspection, in view of the precedent established in the Perkins' insurance case. Justice Greenbaum said that in view of the consent of the district attorney, he would not interfere, but he did not want to go on record as either assenting or denying a motion.

New York, May 22.—The special grand jury that has concerned itself with the conduct of the insurance business in New York county, has concluded its investigation of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, and yesterday returned ten

TO RACE TO JAMESTOWN

Two St. Lonis Pedestrians Start on a Long Walk.

St. Louis, May 22.—William A. Smith and Richard C. Belle, who have accomplished several feats of pedestrianism, today started to walk from St. Louis to the Jamestown exposition, which they expect to reach Aug. 19. The distance is about 2,680 miles. The walk is in the nature of a race, each man now saying he will leave the other behind in less than a week. Railroad tracks will be followed to avoid the hills.

The race will end at Jamestown in a six-day race at the exposition. Several years ago Belle accomplished a cross-country walk from St. Louis to New York.

MICHIGAN MAN IS MURDERED

Proprietor of Restaurant in Portland Shot in the Back.

Portland, Mich., May 22.—Edward Manning, aged 60 years, proprietor of a restaurant here, was murdered last night while on his way home from his establishment. He was shot in the back. Robbery was evidently the motive of the crime, as a large sack of silver that he usually carried was missing. He leaves a widow and several children.

Many Houses Are Struck by Different Strokes of Fluid.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, May 22.—Lightning played queer freaks in Western Iowa Tuesday afternoon. At Loveland, a church, two stores, and one residence were burned by four different strokes of lightning. At Hastings, C. H. Baxter's house was struck and burned. At Moorhead, three different strokes burned three houses. William Townley's house was struck and a bed, in which two girls were sleeping, destroyed. The girls were uninjured. At Plummer settlement a house and barn were destroyed.

THREE HUNDRED COMMISSIONERS

Denver, Colo., May 22. — Delegates from Europe, Asia and Africa, with over 300 commissioners from all parts of this country, are in attendance at the general assembly of the United Presbyterian church which will be opened here this afternoon with a sermon by Rev. J. R. McClurkin of Pittsburg, Pa., the retiring moderator. The sessions will continue till May 30. Among the missionaries who will attend are Rev. E. L. Porter of Gujarawala, India, president of the largest college in India teaching the American language and ideas; Dr. Samuel Martin of Sialkot, India, and Dr. J. S. Barr of Garaspur, India.

One of the most important matters to be considered is the proposed reunion of the branches of the Presbyterian churches.

EXPLORERS TO TRY TO FIND ESQUIMAUX.

Copenhagen, May 22.—Two youthful explorers, Knud Rassuen and his sister, the latter 20 years old, have started on a perilous trip. The couple are students of ethnography. They are going to Smiths' Sounds to find an Esquimau tribe, which is reputed to have never come in contact with civilization.

Their only attendant is an Esquimau. They will travel in dog sledges and will depend for food upon shooting. They hope to reach the Canadian mainland some time in 1908.

AS TO BLIZZARD.

New York Press: Some philologists were wrangling over the origin of some commonly accepted words. "Blizzard" came up, and was explained in several ingenious ways. Bartlett's dictionary of Americanisms was consulted, and this definition found: "Blizzard—a poser; not known in the Eastern States." Albert Matthews, of Boston, a learned philologist and word analyst, found "blizzard" in the Virginia Literary Museum of 1829, where it was defined as a "violent blow." Murray's English Dictionary, the latest out in the lexicographical line, says: "Blizzard—U. S.: a modern word." Then follows the usual sonk and dance. Blizzard is in reality English. "May I be blizzard" is a common oath in the Midland counties. In Pennsylvania it has been in common use for nearly three-quarters of a century, being used to designate force, sudden violence, spitefulness, or vindictiveness.

HUGHES GETS BILL THROUGH

Provides a Commission to Control Public Corporations.

Albany, N. Y., May 22.—The senate this afternoon passed the so-called public utilities bill by a vote of 41 to 6, after the defeat of several amendments proposed by Democratic senators.

The bill was sent at once to the assembly for concurrence in the senate amendments. A little later the assembly voted concurrence in the measure.

This bill is one of Governor Hughes' measures. It creates a commission, the members of which shall be appointed by the governor, with power to supervise and regulate the operation of public corporations, both in the city and the state of New York, and separate bodies for each.

In the city of New York, the commission supercedes the old Rapid Transit commission, appointment to which was by the mayor, and for the reason that in this respect it touches the New York city government, it must, before it becomes a law, be submitted for the mayor's approval, but as only a majority vote is required to pass a measure over the mayor's veto, and as it is in all respects an administration bill, it cannot fail to become a law.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Detroit, May 22.—Joseph H. Berry, one of the city's leading capitalist and a well known varnish manufacturer, died early today at his residence at Gosse Point. He was 67 years old and had been ill seven weeks, suffering from a complication of diseases.

London, May 22.—George Henry Finch, known as the "Father of the House of Commons" having represented Rutland in the house for forty years, died today. He was born in 1835, and in politics was a Conservative in favor of the removal of all burdens on agriculture.

RUNAWAY BOYS ARE CAUGHT

Said to Have Been Traveling About With Hypnotists.

Lloyd Campbell and George Addison, two runaway Stillwater boys, who are claimed to have been touring the country with Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Flint, the hypnotists, were arrested here by the police this morning on a request by the Stillwater police, who say their parents are anxious for their return to their homes.

The boys, according to the telegram received from the Stillwater police, left for Duluth to attend the Flint performances here, and to subject themselves to the hypnotic suggestions.

They appeared on the stage in Duluth, and were recognized with ease by the police from the description furnished. Officer Mason picked them a little after 10 o'clock this morning on the Bowery.

Prof. Flint, when seen today in Superior, said he did not know the boys.

HEAVY FINE FOR SPEEDING AUTO

L. B. Muntor, chauffeur for Mary Gaines, was arraigned in municipal court this afternoon, on a charge of speeding an auto. He was racing on London road and, it is claimed, he was sending the machine along at a rate of between thirty and thirty-five miles an hour. It was his second offence within two weeks, and the judge assessed a fine of $50 and costs, the largest penalty in the history of the municipal court for a case of this kind.

RAILROADS

"PINK" SERVICE RESUMED.

Northern Pacific Again Making Fast Time With Coast Freight.

Local officials of the Northern Pacific have been notified that "pink" train service has been re-established between Duluth and the Twin Cities and North Pacific coast points, after having been suspended all winter, owing to the car shortage and freight congestion.

"Pink" trains, are, to use a term more easily understood by the general public, fast trains that are given precedence over everything else except passenger trains. Their regular time between here and Seattle and Portland is between six and seven days. As evidence of how traffic conditions have been cleared up within the last few weeks, it may be said that the first of these pink trains, which arrived at their destination this week, were five to ten hours ahead of their schedule time.

After the car shortage and congestion of traffic that has existed all winter, local business interests are greatly relieved at the new order of things. Business coming east will be moved in an equally rapid manner.

Excursion Rates.

Spring and summer excursion rates to Eastern points, via the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway and the D. C. line of steamers, will be in effect this summer, although fears to the contrary have been expressed locally, since the passage of various anti-railroad bills by different state legislatures. The South Shore passenger department is now making preparations for the annual spring and summer excursions. Rates will be the same as last year to Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and Buffalo. Tickets will be good leaving Duluth June 11, 14, 19 and 21, with a twenty-day return limit. The route will be by train to St. Ignace, Mich., and thence by boat to the lower lake ports.

SWITCHMEN PROTEST

Detroit, May 22.—At the biennial convention of the Switchmen's Union of North America, a resolution was adopted today, protesting against the "kidnaping" of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, and requesting President Roosevelt to use all legal means in his power to secure a reversal of the recent decision "legalizing the kidnaping." The resolution was adopted unanimously by the 250 delegates, who are present from every state in the Union, and are representing a total membership of 23,000 men.

The resolution declares that "all laws relative to the protection and liberty of all American citizens in procuring defense were denied these brothers by the governors of Colorado and Idaho," and that their removal to the scene of the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg constitutes a "pure and simple case of kidnaping."

There is no want ad. printed in The Herald to-day which does not strongly interest at least ten people—and there are some that will strongly interest thousands.

PE-RU-NA AS A LAST RESORT

MR. WM. F. VAHLBERG.

Mr. William F. Vahlberg, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes:

"One bottle of Peruna which I have taken did more toward relieving me of an aggravated case of catarrh of the stomach, than years of treatment with the best physicians.

"I had given up hopes of relief, and only tried Peruna as a last resort.

"I shall continue using it, as I feel satisfied it will effect an entire and permanent cure.

"I most cheerfully recommend Peruna to all who may read this."

Peruna is usually taken as a last resort. Doctors have been tried and failed. Other remedies have been used. Sanitariums have been visited. Travel has been resorted to.

This history is repeated over and over again, every day in the year. It is such results as this that gives Peruna its unassailable hold upon the people. We could say nothing that would add force to such testimonials as the above. That people who have had catarrh and have tried every other remedy available, find relief in Peruna, constitutes the best argument that could be made.

WILL CONDEMN RIGHT OF WAY IN DULUTH ALSO

Proceedings Are Begun in the District Court Here.

Condemnation proceedings were begun in district court today by the Duluth-Thunder Bay Railroad company to secure a right-of-way from the interstate bridge to Fifteenth avenue west and Railroad street, ground thus condemned to be used for warehouses, docks, etc., according to the papers as filed by H. B. Fryberger.

As announced in The Herald yesterday, the Duluth & Thunder Bay railway is closely allied with the Wisconsin & Northern Minnesota railway, which yesterday began condemnation proceedings in Superior to secure a right-of-way from South Superior to the interstate bridge. They are one and the same company, in fact, with the same set of officers. The new line, according to the officers, will extend through St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties, to Fort William and Port Arthur, located at the Canadian Head of the Lakes. Just when actual construction work will start has not been decided upon as yet.

Charles E. Wales, vice president of the Pittsburg Coal company, is president of the Duluth-Thunder Bay Railway company, and he and James A. Ferguson and H. B. Fryberger of Duluth are the incorporators. The first board of directors is made up of these three men. James A. Ferguson is vice president, and H. B. Fryberger is secretary and treasurer. Mr. Wales and Mr. Ferguson are also president and vice president of the Wisconsin company, respectively.

The Land Condemned.

Condemnation proceedings begun today are to secure a right-of-way northward from the east side of the Minnesota approach to the interstate bridge. All the land between Arthur and Culpepper streets, as far as Lynn avenue, a distance of about five blocks will be condemned. The condemnation proceedings include all of Culpepper street, as well as the alleys in the district, and such portions of Spruce, Pine, Ole, Maple and Lynn avenues as shall be crossed.

The right of way will extend across blocks 10 and 6, Munger-Peck Rearrangement, tunneling northwesterly and extends across the corner of the Northwestern Fuel company's property. First subdivision, thence in a northely direction through block F, on the east side of Garfield avenue, making a turn through block E, Second division, to Railroad street, in lot 5, terminating just west of slip G, or at Fifteenth avenue west and Railroad street.

"We have made arrangement for the use of terminals of another road east of Fifteenth avenue west," said Mr. Wales today.

The condemnation proceedings cut off the western end of elevators I. and G.

President Charles E. Wales, together with Judge M. B. Koon and Judge W. A. Lancaster of Minneapolis, is registered at the Spalding Messrs. Koon and Lancaster are general counsel and Mr. Fryberger is associate counsel.

The following written statement was given out by Mr. Wales yesterday afternoon:

"The Duluth-Thunder Bay Railway company, in connection with the Wisconsin & Northern Minnesota Railway company, was organized with the belief that the development now going on and projected in the northern part of Minnesota will fully justify such an undertaking, and will also, by connections with Canadian lines, put Port Arthur and Fort William, with their tributaries, in close touch with Duluth, and at the same time afford those cities a more direct line to Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago. In discussing this matter recently with the Soo railway people, in connection with the matter of terminal facilities at Duluth and Superior, they indicated, what seems to be a general belief, that the situation at Duluth and Superior was such as to make it impracticable, if not impossible, for additional railway companies to secure independent terminal facilities, and stated that it was their opinion that the Soo would be obliged to acquire outside terminals, and to depend upon connecting lines to reach passenger stations, freight houses and the various industries in both Superior and Duluth. In view of the admitted necessities by the most prominent railway officials, and shippers who require the use of many cars in conducting their various lines of business, and with some knowledge of the situation, I expressed the belief that through the foresight of the officials of these cities the doors of this port could still be opened to all railroad companies seeking an entrance, and suggested that I would be glad to confer with some of the property owners and with others who were in position to render valuable assistance and report later and definitely as to the opportunities. My investigations soon satisfied me that the belief I had expressed was fully justified, and I have joined others in undertaking the project and have organized the above named railway companies in furtherance thereof, and with full confidence that the people here at the Head of the Lakes, through their officials and otherwise, will appreciate the advantages of the opportunity, and that the railroad companies now here which do not seem to be able to give assurance of their ability to promptly furnish adequate facilities, will doubtless co-operate in any rearrangement of terminals which will enable them to better serve the business interests and permit of advantageously providing for future requirements.

"In this connection the feasibility of a tunnel between Duluth and Superior to accommodate all roads is suggested, and it seems to me should be properly investigated and considered. The difficulties which have been overcome in providing tunnels at Detroit and Port Huron were probably much greater than exist here at Duluth and Superior. While the use of car ferry lines has been demonstrated as feasible in many harbors, some doubts are entertained as to the practicability of the use of such transports during the entire year at the Head of the Lakes, but it is the intention of the Duluth-Thunder Bay Railway company, among other things, to make practical tests the coming winter and to determine the extent to which such transportation is feasible in the winter time. In any event, the use of ferries for the transportation of cars, package freight and passengers to and from congested centers during the most of the year is admitted to be practicable, and the use of such transportation to some outside point or center for all railroads is looked upon with much favor. As is well known, most large cities have failed to make suitable provisions in the matter of accommodations for railway companies, with the result that the entrance of new roads is very expensive in original cost as well as in the matter of operation. While it is generally understood that Duluth and Superior are not exceptions and are particularly unfortunate in not having terminals to offer, my investigation satisfies me that it is not too late to make adequate provisions for the future, but to accomplish this, immediate and close co-operation among property owners interested is absolutely necessary, in order that railway companies may be advised and make their plans to conform to probable necessities.

Terminal Question.

"Unsatisfactory terminal facilities are generally due to the failure of property owners to act together in making representations as to their necessities. As a rule, the various industrial and mercantile organizations act independently of each other, with the result that it is impossible for the railway companies to serve each to advantage. Conferences between unimproved property owners and the various industries now located on Connor's Point, Superior, and on Rice's Point, Duluth, have been proposed with the hope that they may be able to agree upon proper plans for submission to railway companies in such form as will enable the railway companies to act together and understandingly as to the manner of the service that will be demanded, keeping in view the probable requirements of new railroads desiring to build to these cities and which, unless some general and comprehensive plan is adopted will not so build, or will be obliged to force their way in at unnecessary expense to themselves and without being able satisfactorily to give the services required to the industries they are intended to serve. By earnest co-operation and united effort on the part of the property owners and others interested in the solution of this problem, I am satisfied a system of terminals can be constructed for Duluth and Superior which will be equal, if not superior, to those at present enjoyed by any other cities in the country, and which will prove of inestimable value, not only to the cities and their industries, but to all of the railway companies assenting to or co-operating in the plan.

Elevated Approach.

"The matter of a long elevated approach on the Superior side to the interstate bridge between Superior and Duluth for the accommodation of all roads, seems also worthy of consideration, as such an approach would permit of the very extensive industries now located and to be located there being served in the matter of switching without interference by through trains.

"Through the co-operation of the city officials and various property owners, a general plan, it is hoped, can soon be agreed upon for submission to all railway companies interested, in order that they may have an opportunity to criticise such plans and suggest such changes as to them may appear desirable, in the hope that they may co-operate in perfecting a plan which will be for the benefit of all."

HEAVY SELLING IN STOCK MARKET

New York, May 22.—Another heavy wave of liquidation on the stock market today sent prices tumbling from one to three points. The resumption of selling was accompanied by various reports of gold exports and crop damage. The downward course of the market was aided by operations for the short account. After a slightly higher opening the market hestitated and an outpour of stocks from unknown sources caused prices to rapidly crumble. Evident uncompleted liquidation was observed in Union Pacific, Steel common and Pennsylvania, but support was tendered those stocks and the bears scurried to cover their short contracts. The market began to turn after the first hour, when a subsidence of selling was observed. Traders began to take the long side, declaring that an unwieldly short interest had been created. The market rose a point on an average throughout the list on the closing of short contracts. The market was feverish and excited on the rally.

WON'T BE MONEY MAKER.

Punxsutawney Spirit: A Blair county man has invented a machine for cutting and cleaning fish. He si Edward G. Deloe of Roaring Springs, and his invention is patented. The machine is said to be a success and cuts from 200 to 300 fish a minute. At this rate it would clean more trout in an hour than Tyrone fishermen could catch in a season.

A MOUNTAIN CLIMBER

Gains 12 lbs. on Change of Food.

When a change in food can rebuild a man 77 years of age, it is evidence that there is some value in a knowledge that can discriminate in the selection of proper food to rebuild the body. A few months ago the physician attending a man 77 years old, told him that death from old age would soon claim him. He suffered from general weakness and debility.

An old lady advised him to quit coffee, drink Postum Food Coffee and eat Grape-Nuts food every morning. He took the advice, and has gained 12 pounds. Says he is as well as he ever was, and can take long trips in the mountains, which he had been unable to do for a long time.

There is a reason for this; in the first place, coffee acts as a direct nerve destroyer on many highly organized people, both young and old, and many people haven't the knowledge to select nourishment, healthful, rebuilding food.

Both Postum Food Coffee and Grape-Nuts food are made from selected parts of the field grains that contain delicate particles of phosphate of potash and albumen. These two elements combine in the human body to quickly rebuild the gray matter in the brain and in the nerve centres throughout the body.

Direct, sure and certain results come from their use, and can be proven by any person that cares to make the trial. "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

THE POLICE COURT GRIST

Sullivan Must Pay Big Fine for Assault on Wife.

James F. Sullivan must pay a fine of $75 and costs, amounting to considerably over $80, for assaulting his wife and threatening to "cut her heart out" with a knife in their cottage on Park Point on the night of May 8 last. The jury before whom the case was tried took just fifteen minutes to find the defendant guilty yesterday afternoon and Judge Windom passed sentence this morning. Sullivan had not secured the money up to noon today, but thought he could do so without trouble.

Some time ago Mrs. Sullivan instituted divorce proceedings in the district court and procured an order enjoining her husband from staying in the house and from annoying her in any way.

Sullivan denied all the allegations of his wife, both as to threatening her and assaulting her, and says he had to go to his house to sleep because he had to cut down expenses so as to pay the large allimony which was granted his wife by the court.

Johnny Sundheim, the Houghton third baseman with the pugilistic tendencies, which put Umpire Nolan to the bad yesterday afternoon at the Athletic park by landing him on his face in the gravel by a well placed punch behind the left ear, was brought down to the police station after the game and put up $50 bail for his release.

He left with the team for Winnipeg last evening, after making arrangements with Capt. F. E. Resche to appear and enter a plea of not guilty for him this morning. This was done and Sundheim's case is set for Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the scrappy little ball player promising to be on hand at that time.

The series which is scheduled between Houghton and Winnipeg lasts over Tuesday and this would mean his absence from the last two games of the series. Should he fail to appear he would, however, be liable to re-arrest upon the complaint of any of the officials of the local club and they expressed themselves as very anxious that he should be punished to the full extent of the law, yesterday. Should Nolan get his threatened suspension working in time, Sundheim's presence may not be needed at Winnipeg at all.

Tit-Bits: When in June, next, the king and queen of Denmark pay their first state visit to England, we shall have an opportunity of seeing the wealthiest queen in her own right—and the tallest.

It will doubtless be remembered that Frederick VIII, succeeded to the throne of Denmark at the beginning of last year, after the sudden death of King Christian, the beloved father of Queen Alexandra. It is now thirty-eight years since King Frederick married Queen Louise, a daughter of Charles XV. of Sweden. From her maternal grandfather, Prince Frederick of the Netherlands, her majesty inherited $3,000,069, and she was also left a huge fortune by her father. Furthermore the wealth of Queen Louise has been considerably increased since her marriage by careful management and judicious investments.

GOOD BLOOD MEDICINE

This Splendid Prescription Should be Kept in Household.

A leading journal, in answering the question, "What is the best prescription to clean and purify the blood?" prints in a recent issue the following: Fluid Extract of Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

A well known local druggist, who is familiar with this prescription, states that it is harmless, being composed of vegetable ingredients which can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy.

It cleans the blood of all impurities and nourishes the blood. In just a few days the skin begins to clear of sores, boils and pimples. It puts vigor and energy into run down, debilitated men and women. For many years Sarsaparilla alone has been considered a good blood medicine. But, while it built up and made new blood, the impurities remained within and the good accomplished was only temporary. Sarsaparilla, however, when used in connection with Compound Kargon and Extract Dandelion, works wonders. This combination puts the kidneys to work to filter and sift out the waste matter, urie acid and other impurities that cause disease. It makes new blood and relieves rheumatism and lame back and bladder troubles.

This prescription is better than the usual patent medicines, which are, in the most part, alcoholic concoctions. The ingredients cost but little. They may be procured from any good pharmacist and mixed at home. Every man and woman here should make some up and try it if they feel their system requires a good blood medicine and tonic.

The Kargon to clean the kidneys and vitalize them so they can clean the blood, Sarsaparilla to make new, rich blood and Dandelion to tone the stomach, clean the liver and make it active and relieve constipation, is the way the prescription acts, and so mildly and gently that one does not consider they are taking a medicine.

TO PREVENT REPETITION

Of Railroad Manipulation Should be Aim of Government.

What Has Already Been Done Cannot be Corrected.

New York, May 22.—Charles Prouty, member of the Interstate commerce commission, addressing the National Manufacturers association today, said the government should exercise some direct control over the capital accounts of the railroads and that interstate railways should be valued by the government. Mr. Prouty said:

"Government regulation is itself on trial. Regulation must be sufficiently strong to choke the cry for national operation. I am not asking that additional powers be conferred upon the interstate commerce commission. We must create a department of railways which should be charged with that part of railway regulation which is properly administrative and executive. The railway company should not be deprived of its property by reduction in its rate until it has been given a fair hearing before some disinterested tribunal, but the duty of beginning a complaint rests upon the government and should not be cast upon private individuals.

"It is probable that interstate railways should be valued by the national government. The government should exercise some direct control over the capital accounts. It is not possible to fix rates so that a given per cent will be returned to stockholders. Mr. Harriman's operations in Chicago & Alton did not directly affect rates upon that railroad system, but they did create a condition which is for all time a perpetual inducement to the imposition of unjust charges. What has been done cannot be corrected. All that has become a vested interest would be both unjust and unwise to disturb, but with respect to the future we can prevent a repetition of the past. When Mr. Harriman, by dealings like those in Chicago & Alton, enriches himself to the extent of many millions he has not created that money; he has merely transferred it from the possession of some one else to himself.

"Railroad securities ought to be favorite investment for the savings of the small and great alike. It is not a feeling of apprehension that the people will confiscate railroads which prevent permanent investments in railroad stocks, but rather uncertainty as to the future of the stocks. When it once becomes certain that no railroad stock or bond can be issued without the consent of the government and that every dollar which comes from their sale shall be legitimately invested in the property, and when no interstate railroad can buy a dollar in the stock of any railroad, without the consent of the government, railroad securities will be much more likely to assume their proper place in public confidence.

"Any comprehensive scheme of legislation should give the railways the right to form and maintain traffic associations and to discuss and agree upon competitive rates."

The announcement of the result of the poll of the 3,000 members of the National Manufacturers' associations as to whether and how the tariff shall be revised is expected to be one of the most interesting features of the convention of manufacturers today.

The sessions of the association will close this evening with a banquet at the Waldorf Astoria hotel at which an address will be delivered by Oscar S. Strauss, secretary of commerce and labor.

New York, May 22.—The failure of E. B. Havens & Co., members of the New York stock exchange, was announced on the floor of the exchange at noon today. The firm is not a permanent one in stock trading.

Assignment for the benefit of creditors was made to Herbert L. Norton, an employe of the firm. Mr. Norton said the liabilities probably would be upwards of $100,000. Failure of customers to respond to calls for additional margins was given as the cause of the failure.

WAKING A SNORER.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "I guess the oldest job I ever had," said a man who in the course of his life thus far has had many curious employments, was waking a snorer.

"The man I had this job with was a man of a good deal more than comfortable means, and just about as nice a man as ever lived; but he certainly was a snorer. This didn't bother him any on his own account, but it did worry him because it disturbed other people, and he tried all manner of means to stop it.

"He tied up his head when he went to bed so that he couldn't open his mouth, and he tried sleeping on his right side and on his left and on his back, and lying straight and lying crooked and every way. But nothing doing. He would get to snoring, and finally he thought up the idea himself of having somebody to sit in his room nights and wake him up the minute his trombone started, and I was the man he got. He hired me through his physician. I'd done some little work at one time and another for the doctor, and he recommended me.

"And that looked like a good job to me at the start. He was a jolly, nice man, and he fixed me up very comfortably in a sort of alcove there was in his room, with a big easy chair alongside a table with a lot of books and magazines on it, and with a high screen between the chair and table and his bed to shut off the light from him.

"'Now, there you are, he says, the first night I sat in with him, 'books and papers and an easy chair, and you just make yourself comfortable, only don't rustle the leaves any more than you can help, and whatever else you do, don't upset this screen when you're hurrying to wake me up, because that would startle the folks more than my snoring.' And then he goes to bed.

"And he hadn't much more than got there before he began to snore, but I was on the job, standing at his side and waking him up in a minute, and he was a little bit surprised the first time I waked him, but he remembered in a minute and said: 'All right, son,' and smiled and went to sleep again.

"I had to wake him like that two or three or four times a night, irregular, sometimes more, sometimes less, but we got along all right. He sure was an able snorer, and sometimes he'd start right off full blast right from the jump, but usually I was able to get him before he'd begun to make the house tremble, and things went along that way, everything all right, for about seven weeks just as nice as could be, the scheme working as slick as you could imagine; and the boss was pleased, and I certainly was.

"It was night work, I know, but I didn't mind that; the pay was good and the work easy, and I thought I was fixed and settled in about as nice and easy a job as a man could have. And then all of a sudden one night this job went up the spout in a minute.

"That night, or along about 3:15 in the morning it was, while I was sitting there in the big arm chair for the boss to turn up, I felt somebody shaking my shoulders, and shaking hard enough, pretty near, to shake my head off, and then I wakes up and sees the boss standing over me.

"'Governor,' I says, 'what's the matter?' though I knew what was the matter well enough.

"'Matter?' he says; 'matter? Why, if I snore one-twenty-fifth as loud as you do, I wonder they didn't put me out of the house long ago.'

"And that's all there was to it; the governor had been a little quieter than usual that night, and not being called so often, I had fallen asleep on my post and gone to snoring myself, and I suppose the boss was right about how loud I was snoring, because, as a matter of fact, I am something of a snorer; if I could rely on my snoring regular and even, I could have made a fortune long ago hiring out as a foghorn anywhere on the coast.

"No wonder the governor was disturbed; I'd waked up not only him, but the whole family, and that was the last of my job there.

"He took it just as nice as could be; in fact, he was inclined to laugh over it and think it was sort of funny, but he said he couldn't take such a risk again, and he just gave me a month's pay in advance and let me go.

"And that was the only job of the kind I ever took. I had thought after I'd been with the governor there about a month, that I would make this my regular business; it was easy and good pay, and I could get plenty of other people to look after, just as I had this one, through my friend the doctor; but after this experience, when I came to consider what might happen if I should fall asleep myself, why, I didn't think it would be fair to my customers."

STEEL PAVEMENTS IN PARIS.

New York Sun: Paris is experimenting with the latest thing in pavement. They call it steel pavement, but it is really a concrete pavement re-enforced with a steel framework. The trial section of it has been laid on the Rue Saint-Martin, in front of the Conservatoire of Arts and Industries.

The metal part of the pavement is a plate of perforated steel with strong bolts of steel running through it between the perforations. Each section has some resemblance to a steel harrow, only the prongs project equally on each side and they are square and blunt.

The plates are arranged close together on a bed of rough concrete such as is used for wood block pavement. Then a specially prepared cement is shoveled upon them in a soft condition and rammed down until it makes a solid mass, with the steel frame just levelled off evenly with the upper tips of the prongs.

The steel prongs are so close together that the shoe of every horse and every wheel of any width must rest in part on them and in part on the cement. It is expected in this way to secure a highly durable but distinctly uneven surface, one on which horses will have sure footing in all weather and on which they can secure the necessary purchase to pull heavy loads.

It will be superior to asphalt in ultimate economy and to wood, both in the better footing that it affords to horses and in the fact that it will not admit of dangerous ruts developing. The sample laid cost $5.40 a square metre, a little more than a square yard, but when the work is done on a large scale it is believed the price can be cut to about $4.60. The life of such a pavement without serious repairs is estimated at ten years as a minimum.

LOOKING FOR FREE ADVICE.

British Medical Journal: Every doctor has had unpleasant experiences of the economical minded person who takes advantage of a casual meeting at the dinner table or elsewhere to importune him for counsel as to his ailments. It is not always easy to get rid of these pests.

Abernethy was, as we know, equal to the occasion when a wealthy alderman whom he met at a friend's house recited his catalogue of woes, ending up with the question: "What should I take?" The reply was: "Take advice."

A French doctor recently rid himself in an equally ingenious manner of a patient who sought to impose on his good nature. He was accosted one afternoon on a crowded boulevard by a lady notorious for this practice. She at once began to tell of her afflictions, making particular complaint of pain in her hypogastric region. To which the doctor gravely replied: "My dear madam, I must examine you. Be good enough to take off your things!"

STUB-ROO

REMEDIES

A New Theory of Absorption Introduced.

Made, Tried, Tested and Proven in Duluth by Duluth People.

A Remedy for Eczema and Kindred Diseases, Cuts, Burns, Bruises, Scalds and Running Sores.

These remedies are now at all the leading drug stores. Our notice appeared for the first time in last Sunday's News Tribune. Since then numerous testimonials have been sent in. One of the last ones received is the following:

"STUB-ROO REMEDIES CO., Duluth, Minn.

"Gentlemen.—I wish you to know that I am completely cured of my eczema, which I have been troubled with for many years. I have tried all remedies which I have seen advertised, together with physicians' prescriptions, but nothing seemed to help me. At times I have suffered terribly with it, as my skin would break open and bleed, when I moved my head or arms. I was under the care of a physician, who passed away last year, and was compelled to go elsewhere after his medicine failed to relieve me. I then went to another physician who frankly told me he could do nothing for me, but told me of the Stub-Roo Remedies, and accompanied me to their doctor. I am now 70 years old, and have lived in Duluth for the past 34 years, and wish to add my testimonial to the many others you have. You may use this in any manner you wish, as I am glad to be rid of that terrible eczema, and want others to know of the Stub-Roo Remedies. I will only be too glad to tell others of my complete cure if you care to send anyone to me. Yours Truly.

"MRS. G. M. ANDERSON.

"808 West Fifth Street, Duluth, Minn."

The remedies are placed with all leading druggists. If yours cannot supply you, send direct to the home office, mentioning the druggist's name. Consultation and advice free. Open evenings.

HONOR GRAND CHANCELLOR

Frank L. Young Receives Congratulations of Brother Knights of Pythias.

North Star lodge claims the distinction of Mr. Young's membership, and its members were instrumental in bringing the celebration about, but representatives of other lodges, local and outside were present to honor the new chief.

Mr. Young was kept busy during the celebration which was held behind closed doors, in trying to keep up with the congratulatory efforts of the knights. The program for the evening was as follows: Toastmaster, William H. Lamson; piano solo, Edgar Rowley; congratulatory address to the grand chancellor by James A. Wharton, who made the speech which nominated Mr. Young at St. Paul; response, Grand Chancellor Young; bass solo, Louis Dworshnk; recollections of the recent convention, George E. Storms; "Ambitious Duluth," Mayor Marcus B. Cullum; "What is Pythianism?" B. F. Fowler, Two Harbors; tenor solo, O. G Olson; recitation, W. S. McCormick.

Dancing Party.

The members of Covenant lodge, No. 563 entertained at a dancing party last evening at Steinway hall. La Brosse's orchestra played the program of dancing music and card tables were provided for the guests who did not dance. A delightful evening was enjoyed by a large number of guests.

FOR PERMANENT ORGANIZATION

Citizens' Auxiliary to G. A. R. Will Meet in Commercial Club.

A meeting of citizens interested in the formation of the Citizens' Staff Auxiliary of the G. A. R. has been called this evening in the Commercial club for the purpose of effecting a permanent organization. From the warm reception which the new auxiliary received at the mass meeting a week ago, its promoters feel confident that a large and enthusiastic attendance will be on hand.

The committee on permanent organization, consisting of C. S. Mitchell, Judge J. D. Ensign, T. W. Hugo, Judge Page Morris, and Mayor M. B. Cullum will report this evening and a most enthusiastic report is expected from the committee on membership of which George H. Crosby is president. The latter committee has met with most flattering success in their efforts to secure new members in the organization designed to perpetuate the work of the G. A. R., and a substantial addition to the rolls is expected tonight.

An opportunity will be given to all present this evening to get their names on the charter list of the organization and the committees in charge wish to extend a cordial invitation to the men of Duluth whose patriotism is sufficient to interest them in this project to be present this evening.

Plans for the celebration of Memorial day will also be discussed informally tonight.

A HARDSHIP ON FARMERS

Who May be Called for Jurymen in the Haywood Trial.

Boise, Idaho, May 22.—The Haywood trial is at a standstill today while Sheriff "Shad" Hodgin and almost his entire deputy force are in the county summoning the extra venire of sixty men ordered yesterday when the last special venire of 100 drawn for the case was exhausted. The sheriff expects to report after the completion of his task tomorrow morning and the trial will be resumed at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Jury service will come as a severe hardship on the farmers and ranchers, who are being called from their work in the field at a time of the year when irrigation ditches must be kept in order and the ground carefully attended to to insure the year's crop.

Late yesterday afternoon the attorneys for the state and defense were served with a list of names drawn on the new service and have been busily engaged ever since in examining into the qualifications or disqualification of the men composing the panel. Both sides have had agents in the country for several months past and actually every man who has expressed a decided opinion one way or the other as to the guilt or innocence of the accused miners is known.

This fact was illustrated on the part of the defense when on two occasions talesmen in the jury box were confronted by men with whom they were alleged to have discussed the case from a partisan standpoint.

This is the amount paid three months ago, and makes the total disbursements $8,000,000."

Aged Woman Breaks Fast Walking Record

MRS. JANE EDWARDS ROOT.

This proves what DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY, the great renewer of youth, will do if taken as prescribed.

In an interview, Mrs. Root said:

"I seldom take medicine, but last winter at my home in Cleveland I felt not very strong, so bought one quart bottle of DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY. I was benefited by it. I am 78 years old, and won the championship in the great walking contest for aged people in Cleveland. I came out winner of 28 contestants over 75 years of age (14 women and 14 men). I beat the world's record, and now hold the championship for the United States and Europe. I walked 2½ miles in 26 minutes, and was not at all tired; could have walked it right over again. One paper gave the record as two miles in 26 minutes; all the other papers were right. When I reached the end, not another walker was anywhere near me, and the enthusiasm was great. I have had an immense mail ever since from Professors in colleges and prominent men all over, wishing to know how I lived, what my diet was, what caused this wonderful strength and endurance at 78 years of age. I take good care of my health, have camped out every summer for the past 25 years, live well, and use as my only medicine Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey."—MRS. JANE EDWARDS ROOT, 1646 38th St., North East (Old Wason St.,) Cleveland, O., December 9, 1906.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is distilled wholly from malted grain by a most expensive method which has never been made public and this private process insures quality and flavor. Its age, softness, palatability and freedom from those injurious substances found in other whiskies make it acceptable to the most sensitive stomach.

It is an absolutely pure, gentle and invigorating stimulant and tonic. It acts as an antitoxin which destroys and drives out all disease germs, creates new nerve tissues, tones and strengthens the heart, gives power to the brain and elasticity to the muscles, enriches the blood and soothes and heals the mucous membranes. It brings into action all the vital forces. It makes digestion perfect, and enables you to get from the food you eat the nourishment it contains. It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate and sickly children. It strengthens the system, is a promotor of health and longevity, makes the old young and keeps the young strong. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is a form of food already digested and is recognized as a medicine everywhere.

Duluth Could Ship Cargoes to Europe Without Breaking Bulk.

New York, May 22.—The Sun says: The work of the Georgian bay canal commission is now nearing completion. A full report will be submitted to the Dominion parliament at its next session. The proposals of the comission are for a more elaborate and more extensive enterprise than was originally projected. The present scheme is of even greater concern than was the earlier plan. Its relation to the New York state $101,000,000 barge canal enterprise assumes a new importance.

Briefly, the report of the Canadian comission proposes an inland waterway twenty-two feet in depth from Georgian bay to Montreal by way of the French river, Lake Nipissing and the Ottawa river. The economic advantage of this route between the Great Lakes and Europe is evident. It can be appreciated by a glance at a map. The actual transportation distance from Sault Ste. Marie to New York by way of Huron, the St. Clair river, Lake Erie and the $101,000,000 New York State barge canal is about twice as great as that from the Soo to Montreal via the projected Georgian bay route. Such a canal would practically make ocean ports of Fort William, Duluth and even Chicago. That is, cargoes could be shipped from those points to Europe without breaking bulk. Freight carriers of considerable capacity could be loaded with wheat or iron or beef or other commodities at lake ports and unloaded at European ports. It is estimated that the cost of transporting wheat to tidewater would be reduced by at least 3½ cents a bushel.

Earlier estimates of the cost of this enterprise have varied from $35,000,000 to $85,000,000. Commenting on the commission's estimate of $105,000,000 for the plans which are to be submitted, an Ottawa dispatch to the Toronto Globe says that "in the present estimate allowance is made for a finer waterway in respect to easy navigation for large vessels and for a more thorough and permanent engineering work than was contemplated in the estimates made hitherto." The new scheme also involves a supply of 500,000 horse power, or nearly as much as is available at Niagara, which could be used for manufacturing purposes.

If Canada carries out this plan, as she is likely to do at no distant date, it will open direct and serious competition with the Erie barge canal route. Between this $105,000,000 route with its twenty-one feet of navigagble depth and the $101,000,000 gutter across New York state, the odds, as a business enterprise, are emphatically in favor of the Georgian Bay canal.

APPEALS TO GOV. JOHNSON

J. H. Grande Takes New Step in Fight Against Extradition.

The case of J. H. Grande, who is fighting extradition to California, where he is wanted to answer to a charge of forgery, has been taken up with Governor Johnson of Minnesota a second time. The governor, it is claimed, has consented to consider some papers that have been filed with him by W. E. Culkin, who is associated with Alexander Marshall in representing Grande, and the governor of California will be communicated with and requested to make an investigation of the charges against Grande.

The papers filed with Governor Johnson are said to review the case, and charge that the action was brought in good faith.

A few days ago the district court dismissed a writ of habeas corpus in the Grande case, and the latter secured a ten-days' stay to permit of an appeal to the supreme court from the order of the lower court. The notice of appeal has not yet been filed.

AUSTRIAN HELD FOR MURDER

Muk Podkolnak Bound Over to Next Grand Jury.

Muk Podkolank, an Austrian, who has been bound over to the grand jury on the charge of murdering Mike Standish and assaulting Aro Stavolch in a saloon at McKinley, last Sunday, was brought down from the range by Deputy Sheriff Sig Levy, yesterday afternoon, and lodged in the county jail.

Podkolank, it is said, admits that he did the shooting, but claims that Standish hit him in the face and made him fight. The accused is 21 years old, and has a wife and child in Austria. He has been working on a stock pile, near Sparta, and knew Standish only two days preceding the shooting.

Stavolch was not seriously wounded and will soon recover.

SAW NEGROES SHOOT NATOUS

Mexican Editor Gives Important Testimony in Brownsville Case.

Washington, May 22.—Paulino S. Preciado, editor of a Mexican newspaper in Brownsville, Tex., and an eye witness to the shooting of Frank Natous, the only man killed in the affray there, was on the stand yesterday before the senate committee on military affairs. Dramatically telling his story in Spanish and having it interpreted for the committee his testimony easily proved to be the most important during the present hearing.

When the shooting began Preciado was sitting in the court in the rear of Tillman's saloon. With him were two companions. According to his story, Mr. Crixell, who conducts a saloon across the street from Tillman's place, rushed in excitedly and reported that the "negroes were out." The doors to Tillman's saloon were immediately closed and barred, and Natous, the bartender, started across the court to bar the gate which connected the court with the alley. Preciado followed, but before he had emerged from the saloon into the court, he saw five or six negro soldiers in uniform enter the gate. They fired several shots and Natous threw up his arms and exclaiming in Spanish "Oh, God," fell on his back. He was killed instantly. Another bullet grazed Preciado's hand and it bled profusely. Still another bullet passed through Preciado's coat and vest near the left breast pocket and broke his glasses, which were in a case in the pocket.

The men immediately proceeded down the alley shooting as they went. Preciado said they were within three yards of the light at the gate and that the court yard also was lighted with several lamps. He swore positively that the men were negro soldiers. Continuing his story he corroborated the testimony given by other witnesses who were at the saloon.

HE DIED FROM EXCITEMENT

Pittsburg, Pa., May 22.—Excitement over an approaching social function which he had insisted on his children giving caused the death of Robert Jenkins, 80 years old. The deceased was the first coal operator in the Pittsburg district, and retired with a fortune of several million dollars.

With his son, Robert Jenkins, Jr., and two daughters, he lived at 4626 Center avenue. The younger mmebers of the family were prominent in Pittsburg society until four years ago, when the ill health of the father caused them to devote themselves to him.

This did not please the old man. He wanted to be shown that he was not in the way, and insisted that they hold a reception. Last week 400 invitations were sent out for a reception Wednesday afternoon.

When the acceptances began to pour in from fashionable people, Mr. Jenkins became so excited that he succumbed to an attack of heart disease.

MENAGERIE DOING WELL

Animals at White City Passed Winter Season Nicely.

The White City menagerie weathered the winter season in pretty good shape, with the loss of but one member. One of the four wolves died a few days ago after a short illness, the nature of which was not known.

The two black bears, which for two seasons have amused the children and many of the older folks by their funny antics, wintered in fine shape and seem to have grown a great deal in a year. They have been out of winter quarters for several weeks, and are fattening up in good shape.

The wolves have grown considerably since they were turned over to the White City management, last summer. They are as large as good-Osized dogs now, and display all the traits of the genus to which they belong. The keeper, when he feeds them, takes a stout cudgel inside the pe for protection, finding it necessary to keep the animals driven off until he deposits the food and gets outside again.

The big owl stood the winter in pretty good shape, although his temper has not seemed to improve a bit. "Jimmie," the prairie dog, is one of the best behaved of the whole menagerie. He has grown some this winter, and likes company, with the exception of dogs.

The fawn, which formed a center of attraction to many of the visitors at the park last summer, has been fast developing into a vigorous young buck, with substantial signs of sprouting horns. He looks a little ragged just now, by reason of his hanging coat, but will be in pretty good condition by the time the White City opens.

It is understood that the management has some negotiations under way for several other features in the way of additions to the menagerie, one of them being an alligator that a Duluth man brought back from Florida this spring.

Improvement work on the grounds and buildings is progressing nicely, and will be made more extensive as the time approaches for the opening of the park for the summer season.

PET BEAR HAS GOLD TOOTH

Swallowed Crown for It Once, But at Last Securely Set.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 22.—Pete, the 1½-year-old bear owned by William B. Tuttle, a druggist of Stratford, is now wearing a gold crown on the tearing tooth of the left side of his lower jaw.

The bear began ailing about a month ago. He lost his appetite, which had been the wonder of the citizens of Stratford ever since he came from Florida, where Trapper Austin captured him and sent him to Mr. Tuttle for a pet. The bear frequently stroked the side of his jaw. His owner made an examination and found that a tooth was decayed.

Mr. Tuttle was advised by a veterinary surgeon to have the incisor extracted, but he decided it must be saved and sent for a dentist. Pete was strapped on a table made like a big trough and gagged. Then the tooth was treated preparatory to killing the nerve, and an impression was taken from which to make a gold cap.

In about a week the bear's tooth was in condition to have the crown set. He was strapped on the table, gagged and the cap affixed. But in removing the gag the rubber covering came off, the crown was knocked loose and fell into the bear's throat. As he was still lying on his back he gulped down the gold cap.

Mr. Tuttle sent for a bottle of ipecac and gave Pete a big dose. In a few minutes the gold crown was recovered, but operations for the day were suspended.

The bear was again strapped to the operating table and the crown fastened on his tooth. He was kept on his back until the gold cap had securely set. Pete now is cheerful and his appetite has returned.

"It's Full of Chews"

Choose the Breakfast cereal that's "full of chews." You have to chew

Shredded Wheat

Biscuit—and the longer you chew it the better you will like it and the more nutriment you will get out of it. More easily digested than the mushy porridges that are "bolted down" without chewing.

For breakfast heat the Biscuit in oven to restore crispness, pour hot milk over it, add a little cream and a little salt; or, sweeten to taste. Shredded Wheat is also delicious and wholesome for any meal in combination with fresh or preserved fruits. At your grocers.

GAVE HORSE GOLDEN OATS.

New York, May 22.—Toodles, an aged roan gelding who used to draw a wagon for a feed store business of Israel Wishmosskie of 1823 First avenue, might under ordinary circumstances bring $17 at auction, but at the present time he is a very valuable piece of horseflesh. It is highly probably that if someone were to offer $140 for him it would be peremptorily declined. In fact, he is regarded by his owner and his three weeping daughters as a veritable gold mine and the old horse is the subject of the deepest solicitude on the part of the entire family and a veterinary surgeon.

Pauline, Rose and Yetta, the young daughters of the owner of the horse, take the greatest interest in the aged beast for the reason that they suspect that he is carrying in his interior $140 in gold coin they had been saving for years. Yetta, the eldest, who is 17 and works at cigar making, had saved $105 of the total and Rose, aged 13, and Paulina, aged 15, had put by the remaining $35.

They were in doubt about the best place in which to keep their hoard, and after a consultation decided that a bag of oats in the feed store would make an ideal hiding place for the gold. They went to the bag at intervals to count the coins and were horrified this morning to find that the bag had disappeared. The girls went to the stable hands, two Polish young men, who informed the girls that they had taken that particular bag of oats to feed Toodles and that a large part of it had gone toward his supper and his breakfast next morning.

Then a veterinary surgeon was called and the girls suggested that he cut Toodles open in order to get their gold. The veterinarian admitted that such an operation would effectively prove whether the old horse had subsisted on a golden diet, but added that Toodles would not take much interest in the subsequent proceedings. The father declared that he would not sacrifice the horse for the money and a less heroic method was tried, but without success.

Then the young women sought the aid of the police and went to the One Hundred and Fourth street station, where they wept copiously while telling the story to Capt. Corcoran. They wanted the two Poles arrested and this was done. The gave their names as Alexander Yesabitz and Rescio Zenkavach and when they were arraigned in the Harlem police court they were held in $500 bail each for trial in special session. They denied seeing any gold coins in the oat bag, the contents of which they said they poured into the feed box of Toodles.

Treasures Found in Our American Forests.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers of this and other countries. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., believes that our American forests abound in medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them, and, in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the most marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action.

The reason why "Golden Medical Discovery" cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

To aid in healing old sores, or ulcers, apply Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve to them while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" to purify and enrich the blood.

Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve is cleansing and pain relieving. It destroys the bad odors arising from suppurating, or running, sores and puts them in the best possible condition for healing.

The "All-Healing Salve" is a superior dressing for all open, running, or suppurating, Sores or Ulcers. For healing open wounds, cuts and scratches it is unsurpassed.

If your medicine dealer does not have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock mail 50 cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive it by return post.

In treating all open sores, or ulcers, boils, carbuncles and other swellings, it is important that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery be taken persistently to purify the blood and thereby remove the cause of the trouble. It is in the blood that the great battle of health has to be fought. The ulcer and the sore are simply the scarlet flowers of disease, with roots running down into the blood. These roots must be eradicated or the disease will break out afresh. "Golden Medical Discovery" cleanses the blood of all foul and poisonous accumulations, pushes out the dead and waste matter, and thus purifies the entire life current. Disease in the flesh must die out when it is no longer fed by foul blood. "Golden Medical Discovery" effectively cures disease in the flesh by curing its cause in the blood.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic drains, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements caused by weakness, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines and physicians had failed.

Nursing mothers and over-burdened women in all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by overwork, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating, restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable pelvic catarrhal drain, prolapsus, anteversion or retroversion or other displacements of womanly organs, from weakness of parts, will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully, and fairly persistently, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take as candy.

MARINE NEWS

OLD KEEPER IS THROUGH

Captain William Lambert Has Resigned From Lighthouse Service.

Kept Light at Chantry Island for Twenty-Seven Years.

Southampton, Ont., May 22.—After twenty-seven years of faithful service as lighthouse keeper on Chantry island, Capt. William Lambert has just tendered his resignation to the marine department. Although in excellent health, Capt. Lambert feels that he has earned a rest and retiring allowance, and all who know the arduous and oftimes perilous nature of his long service will agree with him.

It was in 1880 that he became keeper of the lighthouse, and for twenty-two years previously his father, Duncan Lambert, had tended the light, so that for half a century father and son have saved many a sailor from a watery grave.

The Chantry island lighthouse is probably the finest Canadian light on the lakes. It is a tower of solid stone over 100 feet in hight, its walls seven feet thick at the base, and tapering gracefully to a thickness of four feet at the top. The lamp itself, which is over fifteen feet in circumference, is valued at $7,000. The reports of the lighthouse inspectors say that the light is the best tended from Fort William to Montreal, a statement that has reflected great credit on Capt. Lambert.

During his service Capt. Lambert has been instrumental in saving many lives. As early as 1884 he saved one of the crew of the steamer Quebec during a terrible November storm. In 1869 he rescued a boy who was caught out on a raft. The next year he rescued three men and a woman cook from the scow Grace Amelia. In 1892 he rescued the three survivors of the schooner Nett Woodward, and in 1895 the crew and a woman passenger from the schooner Greyhound.

One of the most gallant rescues of his long list was performed on Sept. 1 of last year. During the night of Aug. 31 the schooner Cavalier, of Sarnia, was wrecked on the lake just opposite Southampton. The boat became waterlogged, and in the rough sea the crew, consisting of Capt. John Glass, four seamen, and the woman cook, were at the mercy of the waves.

The yawl boat was lost early in the evening and a little later about thirty feet of the stern was wrenched away. Under the direction of Capt. Glass (who was partially paralyzed) a raft was constructed and preparations made for the worst. The old boat held together, however, through the night, and at daylight Capt. Lambert discovered them from the lighthouse. He put out in a small boat through the heavy sea, and within an hour had them all in safety. It was a strange coincidence that Capt. Glass, who was rescued, did his first sailing with Capt. Lambert when the latter was on the lakes.

For his long service the government will grant a medal, and the presentation of this will doubtless take the form of a public testimonial from the town of Southampton.

VESSELS MUST NOT PASS

At Interstate Bridge While Span Is Being Raised.

In order to avoid collisions and the possibility of further damaging the interstate bridge, Maj. Graham D. Fitch, government engineer, has issued orders to vessel masters in which it is stated that no vessels may pass each other at the channel at the bridge while the south arm is being raised.

The work of raising the south arm will probably be going on for a couple of weeks. The notice to vesselmen, which was sent out yesterday by Maj. Fitch, is as follows:

"Vessels must not pass each other at the interstate bridge at Duluth during the raising of the south arm of the wrecked draw span, which is now in progress. It will probably be completed in about two weeks. Every vessel must be kept well under control when approaching this bridge and must not pass through unless the way is clear and no other vessel is approaching. This rule must be observed until further notice."

PASSENGER BOAT ARRIVES.

With the arrival of the passenger steamer Japan from Buffalo this morning, the passenger business on the Anchor line was opened at this end of the route. The Japan brought quite a list of passengers and will take about an equal number back when she departs for Buffalo tomorrow evening.

The steamer Juniata of the same line will arrive tomorrow and will make her departure on schedule Friday evening. She will take the Kismet special party of Shriners down the lakes on their way back from the meting at Los Angeles last week. Her total list of passengers will number about 135.

Ore Boats Are Scarce.

Cleveland, May 22.—Coal tonnage continues in good demand and a few more boats were placed yesterday for Milwaukee at 50 cents. To Fort William 35 cents was paid yesterday. The steamer W. S. Mack was chartered at the advance. Ore cargoes are offered freely, but boats are slow in getting around.

FEW BOATS WITH GRAIN

Grain Market is Quiet and Few Charters Are Made.

Coal and Ore Traffic Is as Lively as Ever.

So far this week there has not been much doing in the grain business on the lakes. The markets are quiet and few charters have been reported. The grain rate from the Head of the Lakes to Buffalo still remains the same at 2¼ cents on wheat. The cargoes are not offered very freely and the charters are not made frequently.

A good demand exists for ore and coal tonnage. The coal rate from Ohio ports to Milwaukee on small cargoes is 50 cents now which is an advance of 10 cents over the contract rate. The owners of small carriers refuse to tie up for the season at 40 cents and the shippers were forced to mark the rate up as there is a scarcity of vessels of that class. Few charters have been made at the new rate, however.

Coal for the Head of the Lakes is moving freely and the shippers say that the heavy movement cannot be kept up very long. Most of the leading vessel owners took big blocks of coal to run through the season and in the Lake Superior trade most of the business is being done by contract boats. The rate holds steady at 30 cents.

Ore is going forward in good shape this week and the vessels coming up light are being loaded at a rapid rate. There is now a big fleet of ore carriers at the lower end of the route, but it is reported that at most of the docks the vessels are getting good dispatch and there is a fair supply of cars.

OFFER REFUSED BY STRIKERS

Buffalo, May 22.—The striking lake and rail freight handlers last night refused an offer of 19 cents an hour made by one of the contractors. The men were getting 17 cents and struck for an advance of 3 cents an hour. The contractor who made the offer controls the freight carried by the New York Central lake lines.

Although there has been talk of a strike by the inside freight handlers in sympathy with the inside handlers now on strike on the docks here, it is not believed the trouble will spread, and it is now expected that the trouble will be settled amicably within a few days. About 300 men employed on the Western Transit docks are expected to return to work tomorrow morning, the contractor having granted the advance to 20 cents an hour asked by the men. The steamer Troy was unloaded last night and the Chicago loaded yesterday at the Lehigh Valley dock. The Mutual line is working with about half its force.

WANT EARLIER BOAT.

Citizens Want Independent Ferry Line to Run One.

The new passenger ferry steamer Crescent of the Independent line will go into commission today or tomorrow. She was brought up from the lower lakes and arrived here last week, since which time she has been undergoing repairs. This will give the company four regular boats and a twenty-minute schedule will be in effect. The new time table is now being prepared and will soon go in effect.

An earlier boat is at present being agitated by some Duluth and Superior people. At present the earliest boat leaves Superior for Duluth at 7:15 and some of the marine men at Superior are especially anxious to get an earlier boat in order that connections can be made with the Duluth & Iron Range road to Two Harbors.

The Independent officials did not know this morning whether or not an earlier boat would be operated, but one may be put on within a few weeks.

Riot at Cleveland Strike.

Cleveland, May 22.—An incipient riot was precipitated last night at the passenger docks of the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation company when 300 strike breakers were taken from the Globe yards of the American Shipbuilding company and transported to the steamer City of Detroit. The entire company was loaded on the boat after a brisk struggle with the strikers. When the barges were tied to the piers the strikers tried to board them, but were held back by the police.

The City of Detroit with her cargo is due to arrive at Detroit today. The strike breakers will be used in the yards of the American Shipbuilding company.

President Coulby in Duluth.

Harry Coulby of Cleveland is at the Head of the Lakes looking over the marine situation. He is president and general manager of the Pittsburg Steamship company. This afternoon Mr. Coulby and Local Agent Brown took a trip about the harbor and to the shipyard at Superior.

Will Not Be Abandoned.

It is claimed there is nothing in the report that came from Buffalo that the steamers Nottingham and Monroe C. Smith, which have been stranded since last January, were to be abandoned to the underwriters. A late dispatch from Buffalo states that the work of releasing the Nottingham is now progressing favorably and steam was gotten up in her boilers today. There is now eight feet of water under two-thirds the length of the steamer and it is believed the dredging will have progressed enough by the end of the week that the ship can be floated into deep water.

CHINESE SEVEN AGES.

A French officer, Louis de Chantilly, tells in Paris Gil Blas of his discovery in a Buddhist convent in the mountains of Tonkin of a dusty manuscript containing the Chinese version of the seven ages of man.

"At 10 years old," says the writer, whose name has long been forgotten, "the boy has a heart and a brain as soft as the tender shoots of a young bamboo. At 20 he is like a green banana; he is just beginning to ripen in warm rays of common sense.

"Thirty years sees him developed into a buffalo. He is strong and lusty, full of bodily and mental vigor. This is the true age of love; the age for him to marry at.

"At 40 years the prosperous man has grown to be a mandarin and wears a coral button. But it would be truly indecent to confide to him at this early age any functions calling for judicial intelligence or calm.

"When he reaches 50 years, however, although he has grown stout and fleshy, he is fit to hold any municipal or state office; he can administer a city or a province or perform any official duty.

"But at 60 years he is old. Handicrafts and all active bodily activities are beyond him. He gives his dependentst and clients advice. That is all he is fit for.

"At 70 he is just a dry rice straw. He has only one care; to husband the breath of life that is left to him, to preserve it, even by artificial means. His sons must assume the care of his estate and the performance of his duties."

ON THE IRON RANGES

MAKE LARGE IRON FIND

Rich Deposit Close to Kitto Pine Island Property.

Result of Last Winter's Work With Shot Drill.

Tower, Minn., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—A good find of iron ore has been reported from section 36-63-15, close to the Kitto Pine island property. This is a state lease owned by County Treasurer Holgate and Hutch Bevier of Duluth. Work on this property has been carried on all winter with a "shot" drill, the first of the kind ever used on the range. While the process of sinking is somewhat slow, it appears to have given satisfaction on account of cutting core four inches in diameter, which furnishes ample proof of the material cut in the hole.

The Biwabik Mining company has had diamond drills working for the past eight months on the Kitto property located in section 5-62-15. Just what the drills have disclosed appears to be known only to the parties interested and they are not talking.

The reports are, however, that they have a good body of ore, and that a mining shaft will be commenced in a short time. Supt. Lutes is an up-to-date mining man, and it is quite likely that, no matter what the drill work shows, he will profit by the experience that others have had with diamond drills on the range, and sink a shaft. A few drill holes, which are less than one inch in diameter, are not much proof as to whether an ore body exists on a large tract of land such as they have on Pine island, which is about eight miles long and four miles wide.

The surface outcrops on this property are among the best seen on the range. There are two separate formations, each over 100 feet wide, carrying from 40 to 50 per cent ore and of a good structure. The grade of ore, on the range, usually improves with depth. Yet should this not be the case in this instance, mining men claim that it could be mined and shipped at a good profit, to the Minnesota steel plant at Duluth. On account of its being a hard ore, it would make an excellent mixture for the Mesaba soft ores.

No information can be had from the McCarthy explorations on section 16-22-13. The work was commenced only a short time ago, and it is too soon for much showing being made. The formation is considered very promising, therefore likely results are looked for.

In sections 22 and 23-62-13, there has been considerable quiet work done by the Queen Iron company, which commenced over a year ago. It is believed by those who have investigated, that they have showed up a large body of ore. The best proof that they have is the fact that the New York Iron company his recently purchased outright, considerable fee land in these sections and a cash payment of $50,000 has been made. "The White Iron Iron company, who are operating in section 3-62-12, have their shaft down 75 feet. They encountered considerable ore while sinking the shaft, but do not expect to strike the main body until they get down at least 300 feet.

A great many options for mining leases have recently been made in the vicinity of both Tower and Ely, and between these places if the present demand for mining properties continue, the Vermilion range will be busier this summer than it has been for several years.

HIS BODY WOUND AROUND SHAFTING

Hibbing, Minn., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lifeless body of Joseph Pavovich, an engineer employed by the Stevenson Iron Mining company at Stevenson, was found wrapped around the shafting of his engine, yesterday afternoon. It is said that he had been drinking, and the presumption is he carelessly allowed his clothing to become caught in the gearing, and he was drawn around the shafting. He was last seen alive when returning to the enginehouse to work after dinner.

Pavovich was an Austrian, 24 years old, and a member of the Austrian society of Hibbing, which took charge of the funeral, held today. A half brother living here is, so far as known, the only relative of the dead man in this country.

NEW FRANCHISE TO BE PREPARED

Virginia Lawmakers Propose to Change Terms of Present One.

Virginia, Minn., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representatives of the Standard Oil company have been cited to appear before the city council Tuesday and show cause why the oil tanks of the company located near the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad passenger depot, should not be removed outside of the city limits. The matter was discussed at a meeting of the city council last evening resulting in a resolution being introduced calling attention to the possible menace to human life that might result from the present location of the tanks.

The council also decided to draw up a new franchise for an electric line between Virginia, Eveleth and Biwabik. It is expected that the clause in the old franchise requiring the Mesaba Traction company to furnish a $10,000 bond and calling for an hourly service between the range towns will be eliminated as being objectionable to the company.

This action of the council grew out of the recent visit of Mayor Eaton, City Attorney W. H. Shea, Jr., and Councilmen Kimball, Johnson and Owens to the home office of the Mesaba Traction company in St. Paul.

The contract for a stone crusher calculated to handle rock as large as 11x18 inches, was awarded the Austin Western company of Illinois. The same concern will furnish a steam roller. The cost of both will be $4,200. The purchase of the implements will be hailed with delight, as there are many street improvements needed.

ROADS ARE TO BE IMPROVED

Tower, Minn., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work on the Tower and Ely road will soon commence. The board of county commissioners at their last meeting voted several large appropriations out of the special road fund, among these, and the most important in this section being the $3,000 for the improvement of the road between here and Ely. No great amount of work has been done on this road in the past few years and the citizens of both places will be thankful to Commissioner McMahon for improvements made. The other appropriations to be used in our neighborhood are: Tower and Itasca road, $800; Tower and Hinsdale road, $500, Ashawa road, $300; White Iron Lake road, $600; Mesaba road, $400; Burnside road, $300; and Leander road, $300. These roads are all used by the numerous farmers in this vicinity. The farmers in this section are prosperous as well as numerous, and, while they are not the mainstay of the community, yet they add greatly to its support.

WITT'S SLAYER SEEKS RELEASE

Application is Made for a Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—George A. Spear, counsel for David Cochrane, the Deer River attorney, held on the charge of killing Allan Witte, a homesteader living a few miles from Deer River, has applied to the court for a writ of habeas corpus. The state will resist the writ. Cochrane's bail has been fixed at $5,000 and this has been furnished by A. E. Ingersoll, president of the village of Deer River and Frank S. Seaman of the same place.

Coroner Russell has decided an inquest is not necessary. Cochrane's preliminary hearing has been set for Friday morning.

BY HIBBING COUNCIL.

Citizens Must Procure a Permit Before Moving Their Houses.

Hibbing, Minn., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council, last night, passed an ordinance requiring all persons who desire to move their houses to first deposit $50 and secure a permit from the city. The deposit will be used in repairing damages that may result to electric light wires from moving the houses. The council took this action because of several complaints of late of damages to wires from moving houses. Hibbing will send the following firemen to the state convention at St. Cloud, June 4 and 5: Chief Thomas O'Connor, J. J. Cox and J. D. Connors.

The Duluth Corrugating & Roofing company was directed to further repair the roof of the power house. The company just finished putting a new roof on the building, for which it was to be paid $5,000. There still remains $1,200 to be paid, which the city will hold until the roof is in satisfactory condition.

The Zenith Furnace company of Duluth was awarded the contract to furnish the city 6,000 tons of screened lump coal, at $3.50 a ton. With the exception of the Itasca Mercantile company of this city, all of the bidders were Duluth firms.

TEACHERS ENGAGED.

McKinley, May 22.—The following teachers have been engaged by the McKinley-Elba school board:

C. D. Gray, principal; Miss Maud Jackson, Miss Ethel Corbin and Miss Elizabeth Ricker. The latter succeeds Miss Cecile Moody.

RANGES IN BRIEF

Biwabik—The village attorney has given it as his opinion that the council has the power to revoke the license of saloonkeepers accused of selling liquor to women and minors. This place has taken the lead in the crusade against the practice.

Aurora—It has been decided to locate the new cemetery three-fourths of a mile south of here, utilizing a 40-acre tract, which will be cleared and divided into plots.

Hibbing—Giovani Sasseti, an Italian, was fined $15 in municipal court for killing a robin, the dead bird being found in his possession. There have been numerous complaints of late of Italians killing song brids and a lesson was made of Sasseti.

Virginia—The merchants here have decided to modify the early closing agreement by changing the hour from 6:30 p. m. to 8 p. m.

Aurora—Bids will be opened June 5 for the laying of the water mains. A contract will be let as soon thereafter as possible. Three thousand and six hundred feet of piping will be laid at an estimated cost of 60 cents a foot.

MEASUREMENT.

London Globe: The standard yard prevails throughout the United Kingdom, but the length of the English, Scots and Irish mile is different in each, which is the more curious, seeing that the English and American miles are identical. But the occasional local variations in our English acre are even more remarkable. These were perhaps originally due to the inexactitudes of ancient land surveying, which was comparatively of such a free and easy description that the acres of neighboring counties, not to say adjacent parishes, sometimes varied.

A book published in the reign of Edward VI gives the following curiously naive instructions on the subject: "Stand at the door of a church on Sunday and bid sixteen men to stop, tall ones and small ones, as they happen to pass out. Then make them put their left feet one behind the other, and the length thus obtained shall be a right and lawful rood to measure the land with, and the sixteenth part of it shall be a right and lawful foot."

This is almost laughable; but we have only to apply to one of the older dictionaries to find that anything like exactness, whether of definition or of fact, is quite a modern scientific development. And the story of the acre is a case in point. It was supposed to have been reduced to a common standard in 1305, but it was not until 1824 that we enacted the statute acre of 4,840 square yards.

With the loose system of measurement prevailing for the greater part of that long interval, it is not surprising that the so-called "acre" was too often what the local wiseacres happened to make of it. By long use and wont it seems probable that the discrepancies thus arising occasionally crystalized into customs, of which some examples still survive. A Welsh acre was formerly twice as large as an English one, while a Scottish acre is larger than ours by more than 1,000 square yards.

According to authority, there are seven different measures still in use by which the acre may be variously defined. Lancashire has within her borders acres measured on a customary local scale, while the so-called Cheshire acre is even larger than that of its Welsh neighbor.

DRUNKENNESS CURED.

It will be gratifying to all lovers of intemperance and a happy home to know that a simple and a scientific cure for the whiskey and beer habit has been discovered. Orrine never fails to cure drunkenness if it is used in accordance with the simple directions in the package, and the discoverer has so much confidence in the treatment that we are authorized to sell it with an absolute guarantee to effect a cure or the money will be refunded.

It is in two forms: No. 1 to be given secretly, and No. 2 for those who wish to be cured, $1 each. Mothers and sisters have told us of husbands and brothers who since they were given Orrine, in many cases without their knowledge, have lost all desire for drink, and we are glad to recommend the remedy. NEW RAILROAD LINES.

Nowadays it is difficult to go about in the outskirts of Duluth without walking over the proposed right of way of a new railroad line which is seeking entry to the city.

It is a very pleasant and promising condition, indeed. Railroads are extended where the officials think the business is going to be, and the springing into existence of new lines touching this city shows that the railroad officials of the Northwest have about as rosy a view of Duluth's immediate future as the most sanguine Duluthian can possibly have.

The latest is the line told about today in the local columns of The Herald, which is said to be not only seeking to establish facilities in this city for the entrance of the Soo road, but which proposes to run an extension on along the north shore of Lake Superior to Port Arthur, there connecting with the Canadian Pacific. Of course there is much of surmise in the theories expressed, since those of the inner circle have not taken the public into their confidence as to their real plans, but at any rate it is a new line of railroad, and Duluth can't have too many.

With vast schemes for manufacturing plants that will increase the industry and population of Duluth, and with large plans for new railroad facilities, Duluth is certainly coming into its own.

STATE DIVISION.

Recently the Cass Lake Times, because of the failure of the legislature to make a reapportionment of legislative representation that would give Northern Minnesota its rightful share of power in the legislature, and because its numerical inferiority in the legislature prevents Northern Minnesota from getting all that it should get from the lawmaking branch of the government, suggested state division, involving the creation of a North Minnesota with Duluth as its capital.

This suggestion has been taken up more or less seriously by several other newspapers in Northern Minnesota, and while some condemn it, others have approved it.

The Mankato Free Press, noticing this discussion, has undertaken to set Northern Minnesota right in its view of the sentiment of Southern Minnesota, and states that there is no jealousy in the southern part of the state, no desire to hamper the growth of the northern part, but that on the other hand, Southern Minnesota is glad Northern Minnesota is growing and that "her resources are developing far beyond the most sanguine expectations of those who are mostly interested in the progress of that vast empire which stretches from the lakes to the Red River valley." Says the Free Press:

> Northern Minnesota's needs should be attended to. There is not the slightest disposition on our part to lay a stone in the way of the forward march of that domain which assists in the enrichment of the state's resources. We favor extending to our northern fellow citizens all the help possible in their efforts to plant the splendid banner of civilization in every nook and cranny, and the wilderness shall be trimmed to meet the demands of the agriculturist, the schoolhouse shall supplant the haunt of the wild beast and if needs be another normal shall grace one of the fair cities in that most delightful of countries. What more could you ask of us?

Beyond question this is a fair presentation of the sentiment of the southern third of the state toward the northern two-thirds. The failure of the legislature to reapportion was not due to hostility to the proposition from Southern Minnesota, but to the rank selfishness of the senators, who refused to cut their terms in two. And there were senators from Northern Minnesota who were quite as set in their opposition to reapportionment as any from Southern Minnesota.

Aside from this, Northern Minnesota was treated with as much consideration as could have been expected, in view of her numerical weakness in the legislature. There were fairly liberal appropriations for drainage and immigration, and this end of the state will share in the appropriation for good roads.

Northern Minnesota, if it would gain its just deserts, must learn to stand together, in the legislature and outside of it, and must select for the legislature representatives who will play the game as it should be played, presenting a united front in behalf of matters tending to the development of this end of the state. Until it learns to do that, it should not accuse Southern Minnesota of impeding its progress, or talk of state division.

"HONEST GRAFT."

Kansas has a mayor who has been experimenting with what he called "honest graft," and doubtless he was in perfect good faith in his use of the adjective. But there can't be any such thing, possibly, for graft and honesty are like oil and water—they don't mix.

Kansas is a prohibition state, and this mayor, one Everhardy, presided over the destinies of Leavenworth. Everhardy collected a monthly toll from the saloonkeepers whom he allowed to flourish in his city, but instead of keeping it for himself, which he would have called plain or dishonest graft, he turned it all into the city's treasury, and called it "honest" graft. From this source the city was getting about $80,000 a year, which saved the taxpayers a share of the public expenses.

It is said that most of the citizens approved of this "honest" graft. They figured that liquor would be sold in their town anyway, and that they might as well save some money in taxes by making the saloonkeepers pay a share of the expense of running the community.

But the supreme court of Kansas, looking at the law and not at the adjective which the mayor affixed to his crime—for, excellent as were the intentions of the mayor, and sound as his reputation for integrity may be, it was a crime—has issued an ouster which deprives his honor of his job.

If the mayor had kept the money for his own use, he wouldn't have been able to use the term "honest," and instead of simply discharging him the courts would probably be sending him to jail. But he turned the money over to the city treasury, thereby attempting something that was as difficult as accomplishing an honest theft. The fact of the matter is that he violated his oath and was negligent in his duty, and that the supreme court had no course open except to issue its order punishing him for it.

If the mayor had taken for his own use the unlawful toll he collected from the saloon men, he would have been the only offender. As he turned it over to the city, he made the city and its citizens parties to his offense. Such action could not fail to lower the moral tone of the community, for nothing tends to lawlessness so certainly as the example of disregard for law when set by those whose duty it is to enforce the law.

There is always danger in a law that cannot be enforced, if there is such a law. It boots nothing to say that the prohibition law cannot be enforced. It can be, if the people want it enforced and elect officials who will enforce it. If they do not want it enforced, they have no business with such a law, and should repeal it, for its existence, unenforced and its violation openly sanctioned by officers of the law, gives encouragement to those who wish to violate other laws more serious and more vital, perhaps, to the peace and welfare of the community.

MISLEADING INSTANCES.

A brief dispatch from Wichita, Kan., tells of the good fortune of a telegraph operator named Arthur Paulline, who has risen from a salary of $100 a month to a position of affluence in five years. The story goes on to say that in one day last week this lucky operator made a "killing" in wheat which netted him $150,000.

This is the sort of story that encourages people to plunge in wheat with the hope that similar good fortune will attend their efforts.

The trouble is that while such stories are few, the stories of those that lose instead of winning are many but are seldom told.

For one outsider who breaks into the wheat or stock game and makes a big winning, there are hundreds who drag themselves painfully out again, leaving all their spare change and their savings behind them.

And then, again, the whole of it is seldom told. Most of those who do make a successful turn keep at it until they lose all their winnings and with them all they possess in the world.

Paulline's story will not be complete, and should not be permitted to serve as an example to the youth of the land, until it is known whether he quits the game winner, or stays by it until it gets all he has and sends him back to pounding the key again, at a lower salary than he had when he quit his position to enjoy his "affluence."

RUEF AND THE NEWSPAPERS.

Ruef, San Francisco's fallen boss, says that the newspapers are responsible for his downfall.

That's a very pretty compliment to the newspapers, and shows that some of them, at least, have been doing their duty in San Francisco.

But he did not mean it in quite that way. It is perfectly true that if certain San Francisco papers had not started in some time ago to expose the inquities of his administration—for it has been a Ruef administration, Schmitz being a weakling and a tool—it would be still triumphantly fattening upon the vices and immoralities of the city.

What he meant was that the newspapers talked so much about graft and corruption that business men got it into their heads that the only way to do business with public officers was by the use of money, and that acting under the misapprehension thus created by the newspapers, when these business men wanted anything from the public officials they brought their coin bags with them when they asked for it.

This is one of the most curious among the many curious lamentations of this fallen boss. Analyzed, it means that what the newspapers said wasn't true, and that if they hadn't said it these business men would have secured what they wanted without money.

Yet if it wasn't true, men seeking to bribe would have found it out when they approached public officials with their tainted money. They would have been repulsed with honest indignation, and would have been informed that the public officials of San Francisco were honest men and bent upon doing business in an honest way.

The fact that the money was accepted, therefore, goes a long way toward proving that the San Francisco newspapers knew what they were talking about. It is a pretty far-fetched defense, under these circumstances, for Ruef to say that the only reason there was graft in San Francisco was that the newspapers created it by advertising the fact that it existed.

It is as inconsistent and as ridiculous as his further statement that while he did connive at the crimes of others, he was not really guilty himself. He admits that he made it possible for others to be bribed, but denies that he was bribed himself. His denial of having accepted bribe money will be taken with more than a single grain of salt, but even if it is true, his guilt is hardly less.

He was the mainspring in a machine whose only end and object was graft. Whether or not he accepted a dishonest dollar himself, he manipulated this machine that corrupted a great city and made it a shameful thing, and his degree of guilt is as great as that of a man who induces others to murder, but does not stain his own hands with blood.

Several newspapers have discovered a more's nest in the law requiring the state public examiner to look into the affairs of local governments, professing to believe that it creates a political machine. They overlook the fact that the examination is only to be made at the request of the county boards.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"There is no more apt illustration of how people may be humbugged by false standards of excellence than the manner in which a portion of the prune product of the Pacific coast is manipulated year by year," said G. T. Hopkins of Portland, Or., at the Lenox. "Until the people realize the truth of what has been dinned into their ears for years, the swindle will go on.

"Western people generally know that the Oregon prune is the finest product the world can show, but there are some millions of people in the Eastern states who yield to the spell of European names and cannot help believe that the finest of everything comes from across the sea. They are willing to pay fancy prices for prunes packed in attractive cases and shipped form France or Italy, while an equally good article can be had for less money.

"But the funny part of the thing is that these Eastern consumers every year are eating Oregon and California prunes, all the while supposing the fruit on their tables is the finest of imported products. As in the case of California wines, resourceful traders have found it profitable to ship Oregon and California prunes to France, and there repack the product and send them back to the United States in fancy packages and under aluring labels.

"It is a fact that California prunes are the equal of any prunes grown anywhere on the other side of the Atlantic, and it is also a recognized fact that the Oregon prune is superior to that of California state, and is therefore the finest on earth. The prunes grown there are mostly Italian varieties, slightly tart, while California for the most part grows what is known as the Santa Clara prune, a sweet French variety."

"It is estimated that cotton factories and growers in the South lost between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000 during the past season on account of the shortage of cars," said D. R. Goodwin of New York at the Spalding. "Most of the loss was due to the exposure of cotton to the elements in the streets of cotton centers like Memphis, while awaiting transportation. The railroad situation the country over, especially in the East and Middle West, is blamed. Thousands and thousands of bales of cotton have lain in one place, after bills of lading were issued consigning them to all parts of the earth.

"All winter long cotton has been unsheltered in the streets of some of the Southern cities. Rain, hail and snow have fallen, literally soaking the product until it has rotted like a decayed apple. The ware houses were overcrowded. After the rush season this cotton has been spilled out and allowed to dry. The best that can be picked from it does not bring more than a cent a pound, and as low as half a cent is obtained in many cases.

"That figures $2.50 to $5 a bale, where ordinarily a bale should command $50, when the price is around 10 cents a pound. In Memphis alone it was estimated that 300,000 bales were ruined during the season. Yet the outside world has hardly heard a whimper from the South this season. There has been very few failures in any direction, thanks to the general prosperity of that section of the country. To avoid the possibility of another such season, the railroads and steamship companies have combined with the factories to build immense storage houses."

A Jamestown Retrospect.

O Pocahontas!
Gentle Indian maid, could you but live again
And behold the land of world's fairs,
Brainstorms,
Champion baseball matches and Automobiles!
For instance, take a look at the Smith family;
How it has grown till your Cap'n John would be lost
In the city directory!
Instead of saving vagrant white men from the Axe,
Behold how they learn hemstitched cooking, Ibsen,
And the art of wearing
Elbow gloves!
And take a look at their brothers, who are playing the Carlisle brand
Of football.
And acquire the art of rolling cigarettes with One hand!
In fact, fair Pocahontas, you must admit that Since your day
This little old freckled rnap known as the U. S.
Has made heap progress;
But perhaps 'twere better you remained in ignorance,
Gentle maid,
So we will just hunt up a nice quiet place on The Warpath,
Where they have a Vienna orchestra and waiters
Who speak high-school German,
And there we will drink a foaming beaker or two
To your ashes!

THE WEATHER.

Duluth got a pretty fair drenching last night through the showers that persisted off and on, though not a great deal of rain fell in the aggregate. The wind, though mild, was from the northeast most of the time, and the weather man expects it to continue in that quarter tonight and tomorrow. This morning it was cloudy and threatening, with some fog, more of which is expected tonight and tomorrow. The lowest temperature last night was 34 degs., and yesterday's highest was 46 degs. The weather man looks for more rain tonight and tomorrow.

A year ago today it was foggy and damp.

The sun rose at 4:24 this morning and sets at 7:34 tonight, making it 15 hours and 20 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "A disturbance central over Nevada and Utah caused light rains during Tuesday or last night over Eastern Montana, Alberta, Eastern Dakotas, Nebraska, the Upper Mississippi valley, Western lake region and Eastern Texas, and higher temperature in the Central valleys. Montana, Wyoming and Utah. The barometer is high in Eastern states and Alberta. Temperatures are cool throughout Canada and in Northern border states. Conditions favor continued showery weather and cool northeast winds in this section tonight and Thursday."

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Virginia Virginian: The Duluth Evening Herald contained a sensible article regarding forestry the other day, following sentiments long ago expressed by The Virginian, that land unfit for agriculture might better be used for the propagation of forests than to lie idle. There are many thousands of acres of such land in Northern Minnesota, much of it located on the ranges, and the legislature should devise some plan at an early date that these waste lands might be made to grow timber for use of future generations.

Stillwater Gazette: The latest in favor of the cigarette is that the smoke is a germ killer. The Duluth Herald adds that it is also a fool killer. Sure, but it occasionally removes one of the idiots to the land where cigarettes are unknown.

Mankato Free Press: The Duluth Herald is of the opinion that Governor Johnson as the Democratic presidential candidate would sweep the country. If Johnson should land in the presidential chair, Frank Day would have to be secretary of state.

Stillwater Gazette: Duluth people are becoming more or less metropolitan. Now, they are asking for owl cars.

Princeton Union: "Make your own sunshine by the exercise of a little cheerful philosophy," says the Duluth Herald. This advice is sound enough so far as it goes, but the sort of sunshine indicated has unfortunately no influence upon the garden seeds we have just planted.

Aitkin Republican: The Duluth Herald's industrial edition, which was published a couple of weeks ago, was one of the best ever printed in the state, and was a model typographically as well as in all other particulars. The Herald has a grasp on the situation in Northern Minnesota and its vigorous and progressive policy is doing much to keep Duluth and its tributary territory in the limelight of publicity. Covering its field as completely as it does, one wonders at the nerve of the company which is planning to start another afternoon daily in Duluth.

Fertile Journal: The Duluth Herald is one of the best daily newspapers in the state and, what's still better, never tires of telling of the great advantages and resources of the Northern half of the state.

Sleepy Eye Dispatch: The Duluth Herald admits that "Northern Minnesota did not fare so badly at the hands of the recent legislature." The general opinion is that Northern Minnesota, with the Twin Cities, got about all there was to get. They could not reasonably expect more.

Karlstad Advocate: We, of the north part of this great state are not feeling a least bit jealous of Duluth's industrial boom, for we are fully aware that while the Zenith City is partaking of a square meal from its great prosperity wave, we shall be able to get a lunch.

Deer River News: Duluth has again come to the front and shown the world the way it should go. The building trades strike has been settled satisfactorily to both sides without the vestige of rioting. This kind of fair dealing will go farther toward advancing the cause of the working men than a dozen strikes of the San Francisco variety.

The Fighter Is a Man of Peace!

Chicago Chronicle: It is absurd to say that this fighting spirit must necessarily be aggressive, always picking a quarrel. All the world knows and has always known that that is not true. The man who is as brave as Julius Caesar and will fight as strenuously as Phil Sheridan or Stonewall Jackson is always and everywhere the last man to inflict any wrong on his fellow-man.

Even Miracles Have Limitations.

Washington Star: The faith curists are after Mark Twain with old-fashioned outspoken enmity. Evidently his particular case is beyond the reach of psychic forces.

PRICE BAKING POWDER, CHICAGO.

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

St. Cloud Journal-Press: The Eastern Democrats are seriously considering Governor John A. Johnson as candidate for president. As a Republican paper the Journal-Press sees both advantage and the contrary with Johnson as the Democratic standard bearer. He would come dangerously near capturing the Minnesota electoral vote, and might indeed succeed if the G. O. P. candidate was not popular in the West. On the other hand, with the governor in national politics the Republicans could elect the next chief executive of the state. The Democrats of the North Star state should give Governor Johnson enthusiastic support as a matter of state pride. If we are to have a Democratic president—which is not impossible—let him be a native son of Minnesota, and one who could do credit to the state and nation. And that's John A. Johnson.

New Ulm Review: The press of the entire country is waking up to a realization of Governor Johnson's availability as a presidential candidate and many are the complimentary references made to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Le Sueur Sentinel: The Minneapolis Tribune says that Col. Watterson is looking for a "Moses" for the Democratic party and is taking Governor Johnson's measure with that in mind. Mr. Johnson has played the part of Moses very successfully before. Why not again?

Breckenridge Gazette: Bryan and Johnson for president and vice president on the Democratic ticket in 1908, begins to look like something more than a possibility.

Virginia Enterprise: John A. Johnson for president might make just as sensational a run as did John A. Johnson for governor. And if he made as good a president as he has a governor only the people would have but little cause for complaint—even though he is a Democrat.

Hinckley Enterprise: Governor Johnson will undoubtedly be the "favorite son" of Minnesota at the next national Democratic convention and may receive the nomination. Should he receive it he would probably corral as many votes as any candidate the convention could name. But the next president will be Taft, the recipient of the Roosevelt mantle and the man who will carry out the Roosevelt ideas.

Minnesota Mascot: An exchange says that Henry Watterson has spoken favorably of John A. Johnson as the Democratic presidential nominee for 1908. If this is true Mr. Johnson has the support of the brainiest old Democratic war horse in the country. But Watterson has not been a winner, politically, these last years.

Red Lake Falls Courier: Governor Johnson is just now receiving attention from Eastern newspapers, and it is generally acknowledged that he is in the presidential class and would make an exceptionally strong leader for Democracy. The Eastern papers all argue that Johnson's two magnificent victories in a strong Republican state show that he has the vote-getting propensities, and besides has a charm of manner and a record for honesty and integrity which brings him in the forefront of American statesmen. Henry Watterson has invoked the star-eyed goddess of the Louisville Courier-Journal and declares that Johnson is the most available of any of the prospective candidates so far brought forward.

GEORGIA TRAGEDY

Results in Death of Five and Injury to Seven.

Attempt to Capture a Negro Assailant Cause of Trouble.

Claxton, Ga., May 22.—Two negroes lynched, one white man and two negroes dead, and seven other persons injured, is the result of an attempt to capture a negro, who Wednesday night attempted a criminal assault upon Mrs. Laura Moore, a widow living near Manassas, Tattnall county.

The dead:

JOHN HARE, white farmer.

Samuel Padget, negro, and daughter.

Lynched: Padget's wife and son.

Injured: W. J. Pierson, shot in stomach and arm, probably fatally; James U. Daniels, shot in eye and may die; Dr. J. L. Kennedy, seriously; son of Padget, seriously: Flem Padget, colored; two daughters of Padget.

Fifteen persons early yesterday surrounded the house of Sam Padget, a negro, whom they suspected of harboring another negro, who had criminally assaulted Mrs. Moore, and demanded to be allowed to search the house. Permission was given, but when within thirty feet of the house, those inside the building opened fire on the posse, instantly killing John Hare and seriously wounding W. J. Pierson, James Daniels and Dr. Kennedy. The posse then returned the fire, killing Padget and one of his daughters, aged 10, and wounding two girls, aged 6 and 13, and two of Padget's sons, aged 20 and 22.

The posse then retired for reinforcements. The news spread rapidly, and by 10 o'clock 500 armed men were on the scene and started in pursuit of the negroes who had escaped. One of them was captured and taken before Mrs. Moore, but she failed to identify him. The negro, however, was identified as the man who shot Hare and he was started for Reidsville jail, together with Padget's wife and son.

On the way the officers were overtaken by about seventy-five men, who took the prisoners from them. The woman was told to run, and as she did so she was riddled with bullets, her son being shot to pieces where he stood.

The negro who attacked Mrs. Moore has not been captured, but it is reported that he is surrounded in a negro house, and that in all probability he has been killed.

Sheriff Edwards, with deputies, took all the prisoners from the jail at Reidsville and left with them to elude the mob, which, it is reported, will attack the jail.

SMALLPOX IN DULUTH

Duluth Telephone Operator Affected and Exchange is Fumigated.

That there is a mild epidemic of smallpox in Duluth at the present time is undoubtedly a fact, although it has not reached such proportions as to be alarming, and the disease itself seems to be of a mild type, hardly different from chickenpox.

At the present time there are seventeen cases of smallpox under quarantine in Duluth. Health Commissioner Murray stated this morning that this was not any larger number than is reported every spring, but the disease nevertheless is widespread enough to make strict observance of the quarantine regulations necessary.

A case was discovered yesterday afternoon in the Duluth Telephone office. One of the operators was found to have been afflicted with the disease, and it was only by an accident that it was discovered. The members of the girl's family had been afflicted for several weeks, but it was believed that it was nothing more than chickenpox, and the case was not reported. Yesterday the health commissioner, while investigating another case which was reported to him, found that it was traceable to this house, and on investigation found that the mother was recovering from smallpox, while one of the girls was affected. He promptly quarantined the house, and this morning ordered all of the girls in the telephone exchange to be vaccinated, and the exchange thoroughly fumigated.

J. H. Bennett of 1620 East Third street, is one of the victims of the disease. He has insisted that it was not smallpox, and the health authorities state that they have not been certain of their ground. They have had an inside quarantine on the house, and the rear door has been placarded to keep deliverymen out. The patient was kept confined to his room, and the door of his room was placarded.

"This inside quarantine is used wherever the house is large enough to permit one part of it being shut off," said Dr. Murray this morning. "It is permitted by the state law, and we use it whenever it is possible. It is just the same as if the patient were in the hospital, and the same rules are enforced. Right now the son of a very prominent East end man is suffering from scarlet fever, and is quarantined in one part of the house, a bedroom and a bathroom being shut off and placarded. When the house is too small to permit this, we have to placard the front door and quarantine the whole house. We did this with Mr. Bennett just as soon as we were certain that it was smallpox he had.

"We cannot force smallpox patients to go to the pesthouse unless they become city charges, and as long as they choose to remain under quarantine in their homes, they may do so, if they are not paupers."

THIRTY INJURED IN TRAIN COLLISION.

New York, May 22.—Thirty persons were injured, some seriously, in a collision between a three-car electric train bound for New York from Coney Island, and a trolley car of the Thirty-ninth street line at Bay, Nineteenth and Eighty-sixth streets, Bath Beach, last night. The collision occurred at a point where the two lines cross at right angles. The trolley car was struck by the electric train and almost everyone of its passengers suffered injuries. Thirty of the most severely injured were taken to hospitals. As far as the physicians in attendance could judge at a late hour, no fatalities will result.

The conductors and motormen of both the electric train and trolley car, and the flagman stationed at the crossing, were arrested.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A cablegram from President Zelaya of Nicaragua, stating that a revolution, Tuesday, broke out in Salvador was received at New Orleans by the Nicaraguan consul. The cable said that Prudencio Alfara leads the revolution. It contained no other information.

Charles W. Russell, assistant attorney general, will leave Washington on Saturday next for St. Paul, where he will appear for the government in an appeal to the court of appeals by the defendants in what are known as the Cape Girardeau peonage cases.

Louis V. Eytinge, who claims to be a nephew of the famous actress, Rose Eytinge, was Tuesday found guilty at Phoenix, Ariz., of the murder of John Leich of Sheboygan, Wis., and will be sentenced to life imprisonment. The jury was out all night and returned a verdict of murder in the first degree.

Word has reached Ashville of a dynamite explosion today, near Canton, N. C., in which five men—three white and two negroes—were seriously injured. One will die, but the others are expected to recover. The accident occurred at Hunt's camp, on the new railroad now being constructed from Canton to Sunburst.

Clyde Fitch, a negro, charged with assaulting a 10-year-old negro girl at Chickashtra, I. T., two weeks ago, was tried Tuesday afternoon by a jury, composed entirely of negroes, found guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

WILL HONOR GREAT SWEDE

Memorial Celebration Will be Given Thursday at Armory.

Preparations for the big Linneaus memorial celebration which will take place at the Armory tomorrow evening, are now complete. There will be a good list of speakers and an excellent program of music during the evening.

The celebration is being given under the auspices of the Svea Glee club and committees have been at work making the arrangements for several weeks. It will be given in honor of the 200th anniversary of Linneaus, the great botanist and naturalist of Sweden.

It is expected that there will be a large attendance of Duluthians and especially of the Swedish inhabitants of the city who are most interested in celebrating the memory of their great countryman.

Among the list of speakers which have been persuaded to address the meeting are J. S. Carlson, a member of the faculty of the University of Minnesota, and J. Adam Bede, congressman from this district. Besides these two the committee has obtained the promise of Rev. Rengnell, pastor of the Swedish-Episcopal church of this city, to deliver an address.

Several musical selections will be given by the members of the Svea Glee club and the program will be a most enjoyable one.

Mama, Be Warned! Protect the Little Ones!

MAMA! Don't be frightened—but be warned! Every Mother knows, or should know that the terrible Mortality among children is caused by Stomach and Bowel troubles. Colic, Sour Curd, Cholera Infantum, Summer Complaint, Measles, Rashes, Scarlet Fever—even Mumps—have their first cause in constipation.

The Delicate Tissues of a Baby's Bowels will not stand rough treatment. Salts are too violent, and Castor Oil will only grease the passages, but will not make and keep them Clean, Healthy and Strong.

There is no other medicine as safe for a child as Cascarets, the fragrant little Candy Tablet, that has saved thousands of families from unhappiness.

No other medicine has this remarkable and valuable quality. Mama takes the Cascaret, Baby gets the Benefit.

Cascarets act like strengthening Exercise on the weak little bowels of the growing babe, and make them able to get all the Nourishment out of Baby's Natural Food.

Larger children cannot always be watched, and will eat unreasonably. The Ready Remedy should ever be at hand—Cascarets—to take care of the trouble when it comes.

No need to Force or Bribe children to take Cascarets. They are always more than ready to eat the sweet little bit of Candy.

DULUTH BANKS NOT MENTIONED

To the Editor of The Herald:

In your edition of May 16 you put me in a false light before the people of Duluth and of the state. Your article reads in part as follows: "National banks fail to win out as active depositories for state funds at a meeting of the state board of investment yesterday on account of the opposition led by Public Examiner Shaefer. * * * A resolution was introduced that the number of active depositories be increased from two in St. Paul and one in Minneapolis to four in St. Paul, four in Minneapolis and three in Duluth. This resolution was presented by Secretary of State Schmahl. It had the endorsement of the state treasurer, but was at once opposed by Mr. Schaefer. He believed in the policy of the state board of deposit favoring state banks whenever possible. * * * Auditor Iverson is said to have sided with Schaefer. The attorney general was not personally present, being represented by one of his assistants, who did not want to cast a deciding vote in such an important issue."

Inasmuch as this matter has been made public before action had been decided upon, contrary to the usual custom of this board, I feel called upon in self-defense to explain the situation.

"Resolved, that the National German-American bank, the Second National bank, the Capital National bank and the American National bank, of St. Paul; the First National bank, the Northwestern National bank, the National Bank of Commerce and the Swedish-American bank, of Minneapolis, be and the same are hereby designated as additional depositaries where the active current state accounts may be kept, and the rate of interest to be paid by said depositaries shall be 2 per cent on daily balances."

You will observe that nothing is said of the three banks of Duluth. The banks named in the resolution are in addition to two already acting as active depositaries in St. Paul and one in Minneapolis, making a total of eleven banks in these two cities and none outside the two cities receiving money at 2 per cent. Before the board could decide upon this resolution, other matters came up and no action was taken. It is unjust to the assistant attorney general to say that he did not want to cast a deciding vote in such an important issue, because it is not true. I write this simply to explain the situation, so that the assistant attorney general, Mr. Iverson and myself may no be placed in a false ligh. I am satisfied, so far as I am concerned, that my action in opposing such a resolution was in the interests of all the people of the state of Minnesota, and am also satisfied that your paper and its readers will concur with me in that action.

Trusting that you will give this the same publicity that you did your original criticism, I am, yours very truly,

A. SCHAEFER,
Public Examiner.

The following committee was appointed to arrange for a permanent organization: J. C. Wesenberg, John Sundeen, Andrew Thompson, O. Rude and J. C. Koefod.

A number of short talks were given last evening and the outlook for the success of the club seemed bright. It was decided to hold another meeting Tuesday evening, June 4, when the permanent organization will be effected.

TIGHT SHOES CAUSE DEATH.

They Produce Blister and Girl Dies From Blood Poisoning.

Utica, N. Y., May 22.—Miss Margaret Kelly, aged 20, a school teacher at Hancock, bought a pair of low cut shoes a few weeks ago. They were tight and after wearing them several days she complained of a blister on the side and heel of one foot.

She treated the sore spots and continued to wear the shoes until a week ago, when she noticed the foot turning black. She immediately summoned a physician, who pronounced it a case of bloodpoisoning and directed the young woman to take to her bed.

Miss Kelly appeared to improve under the doctor's care until a few days since, when she suffered a relapse and died.

HEGEMAN INDICTED

indictments against the company's president, John R. Hegeman. Seven of the indictments charge forgery in the third degree, while the other three charge perjury.

All are based on what have come to be known as "year-end transactions." These consisted of certain changes in the company's books affected just prior to the submission of the annual report to the state insurance department, which it is alleged were designed to place the company in a more favorable light than the facts warranted.

Mr. Hegeman had been invited to appear before the grand jury during its deliberations, but upon the advice of counsel did not do so. He was not in court when the indictments were returned, but will be at the district attorney's office today to arrange for bail. Today the grand jury begins an inquiry into the affairs of the Equitable Life Assurance society.

In its investigation of the Metropolitan the grand jury went into the insurance company's dealings with the Mercantile Trust company, the Central Trust company and Brown Brothers, and the transfer of loans by the insurance people to Vermilye & Co. Out of these transactions grew the seven indictments for forgery, in which it is alleged the Metropolitan altered its books to cover up certain loans that it had made. The perjury charges were found upon statements made to the insurance department concerning the loans by the company, which statements it is charged, were false.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

There was a time when everybody wore sailor hats.

The time has returned.

If you haven't a brown suit or a black sailor hat or a mushroom millinery confection to wear on your head you might just as well retire from the scene of social activity. Some people avoid the brown or checked, because of a mottled complexion, but the only thing that can keep you from having a sailor hat, or one of the mushroom variety, is a strength of mind that is truly unladylike.

Those of the present generation who have lived during ten years of style can remember about that length of time ago when everybody wore a sailor hat. But the way they wore them! The front brim was worn parallel to one's nose, provided one's nose didn't lead heavenward. The result was that the young women of that not long distant period led with their chins when they walked. It was the only way they could see anything for the front edge of the crown of their hats rested on their eyebrows. It was wonderful. A protesting and sensible, and a too logical mother might protest, but she protested in vain. That was the way that the hat just naturally went, and one couldn't help it, and one hoped that one might keep the sun out of one's eyes and the freckles off of one's nose, and that was the only way one could do it.

That was ten years ago or thereabouts.

One wears a sailor hat again, but one has changed the angle. Now, with its broad brim, which as yet is only black, it forms a kind of halo for a bunch of loosely dressed hair. Nobody with a sailor hat thinks of putting it on in the rational and logical way on the top of their heads. It is pinned on the extreme rear and the front brim points inspiringly to the heavens. A fluffy pompadour in the front, loose effect at the sides and rather baggy bunch of hair in the back, is the proper accompaniment of a sailor hat this season.

Why, oh, why?

Why?

JUNE EXHIBIT

Will Be Held of Local Arts and Crafts.

An important meeting of the arts and crafts committee of the Women's Council was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. R. McGiffert, and the date of the exhibit was decided upon. The showing of the arts and crafts handiwork of Duluth and vicinity will be shown at the library the second week in June, the dates being June 13, 14 and 15. This department of the council work was inaugurated by Mrs. J. L. Washburn during her presidency of the council. Mrs. Washburn is most desirous that the work be established upon a working basis in Duluth and that what may be accomplished here may serve as an object lesson to the remainder of the state. The benefit that might result from the establishment of arts and crafts societies throughout the state is appreciated by many, and a large committee is working faithfully to make this first exhibit held in Duluth a most successful one, and valuable in an educational way.

The committee is one of several months' standing and widespread interest has been aroused in the various possibilities of arts and craft work. Much fine work in weaving and lace making and other handwork is done by different settlements of foreigners in Duluth, and these people have been reached as much as possible and induced to take an added interest in the work which they do so well. Complete exhibits in these lines have been obtained. Metal and leather workers, copper and silver smith of ability have been found, and hand work in all these lines will be shown. It is hoped to secure a lecturer prominent in the development of arts and crafs work to speak the first evening of the exhibit. During the intervening weeks every member of the committee will be busily engaged in the work to make the exhibit a success. In addition to the handicraft of local workers there will be several loan exhibits of fine craft work.

The committee interested in the exhibits consists of Mrs. J. R. McGiffert, Mrs. A. B. Siewert, Mrs. R. M. Seymour, Mrs. J. B. Weston, Miss Carey, Miss Everett, Miss Bainbridge, Miss Poirier, Miss Hopkins, Miss L. Ella Roe, Mrs. T. J. Davis, and Mrs. J. L. Washburn.

The exhibits may be sent to the library after Saturday of this week.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Minnesota pie plant, 6 cents a lb.
Illinois pit plant, 8 cents a lb.
Cucumbers, 15 cents each.
Spinach, 50 cents a peck.
Soft shell crabs, $1.50 a dozen.
Spare ribs, 12½ cents a lb.

When the brief season of soft shell crabs arrives, the barbarity of the age in which we live and move and have our being is thrust keenly upon every thinking person. The poor, little green things losing their winter overcoats are seized when they have not quite decided upon their spring suit. As it this were not cruelty enough, the tender and uncovered little animals are literally placed in a frying pan while alive, to make a dainty dish for the epicures who have cultivated their taste to that. The thoughts of a dying soft shell crab might be illuminating to the people who contribute money for the civilization of the heathen in the Western world. If, after that telling description of the brutalities that accompany the serving of soft shell crabs, you still long for them, a precious few are to be had at $1.50 per dozen.

Pie plant, short and kind of bow legged from Minnesota is 6 cents a lb., and slender and straight from Illinois is 8 cents a lb. Take your choice.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD

By L. M. Montgomery.

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Stephen Winslow backed his horses down to the brook to drink before turning in at his gate, as had been his lifelong custom. Today he felt tired, and even after the animals had lifted their heads from the water he still sat there, leaning back contentedly against the sacks of flour piled up behind him.

"I shouldn't wonder if I missed that brook," said Stephen, reflectively. "When you've heard a thing for sixty odd years, it's apt to ring in your dreams, maybe."

Stephen was a small, lean old man, half lost in loose clothes that seemed far too large for him. His white beard combed into straggling locks by his nervous fingers, flowed in a patriarchal fashion over his breast. Presently he chirruped to his horses and they lumbered along through the water and up the steep little rise to the turn. As he drove through the open gate a woman came out of the house.

She looked much younger than her husband, but there was really little difference in their ages.

When Priscilla carried some store parcels into the house, Stephen put away the flour and turned the horses' heads into a clover aftermath on the southern slope. Tea was ready in the kitchen when he came in.

"Well, everything is about wound up at last, Pris," he said, contentedly. "I went into Dan McCulloch's on my way to the mill and we made the dicker. He's rented the farm for a year. Lewis Pris, it makes me young again to think of it! Seems 'sif we were starting out in life all over again, don't it, now?"

Priscilla smiled.

"Maybe you'll be wanting to get back before you've lived long in Redmond," she said.

Stephen chuckled, as if at a joke.

"That was all the talk at the store, today. Peter Shackleford says says he: 'Winslow, you'll never be contented in city life. You'll be wild to get back here afore next spring,' says he, Shackleford-like, as if he knew it all."

"I don't know that I care a great deal myself," said Priscilla, placidly. "But I'm tired of this lonesome life, too, now that the children have all gone. I'm sure of myself, but I'm not so sure of you, father. You are as full of enthusiasm as a boy over moving to the city, but perhaps you won't find it all you expect, and you may feel discontented.

"No I won't, Pris," protested Stephen. "I've thought it all out, I tell you. There'll be no hankering for Rosenath on my part. You'll more likely be homesick yourself."

Stephen and Priscilla Winslow had decided to sell or rent their farm and move to Redmond for the remainder of their days. Their three children were settled there and they wished to be near them. Gordon, the oldest, was president of the university. Besides the natural tie, there was a bond of intellectual companionship between him and his mother, from whom he had inherited his most marked characteristics. Theodore, commonly called Ted, was a prominent Redmond lawyer, and Edith, who was the youngest, had recently been graduated from college and was the teacher of mathematics in the Redmond seminary.

By Christmas they were settled down.

"I'm glad it's finished," said Priscilla, "I've had enough of shopping and housekeeping. I must say that I enjoyed the horses' heads into a clover aftermath on the southern slope. Tea was ready in the kitchen when he came in.

"Well, everything is about wound up at last, Pris," he said, contentedly. "I went into Dan McCulloch's on my way to the mill and we made the dicker. He's rented the farm for a year. By Christmas they were settled down.

had been wont to laugh at them to Priscilla, but he had in reality enjoyed his simple pre-eminence among them. He had been looked up to as a clever, well-read man. Now he did not like being a nobody. Above all, Priscilla must never suspect it—Priscilla, who so evidently enjoyed the new life as fully as she had predicted.

Priscilla was now a very busy woman, brisk, alert, absorbed. Already she was a shining light in the Mothers' club which was dear to Mrs. Ted's heart, and in the charitable organization whereof Edith was secretary.

When April came his homesickness grew worse. The spring air wakened in him a keen desire to get back to the farm and its old, homely ways. One day it overpowered him.

"Things'll be wakening up in Rosenath by now," he thought. "These evenings the store'll be full. Wisht' I could drop in! S'pose Dan'll be getting ready to work the farm. Wonder what he'll put in the south hill field? 'T ought to be wheat, but like as not he'll sow it with oats. Wisht' I was there! Stephen, Stephen, did ye ever think ye'd come to this?"

Presently Priscilla came in, flushed and bright-eyed. "Father," she said, abruptly, "do you think you can get along without me for a couple of days next week? The—the Mothers' council meets in St. Andrew's then, and I've been appointed one of the delegates."

"Think of that, now!" said Stephen, admiringly. "Of course you must go. I'll be all right. I'll be as jolly as a sand-boy."

"If I go I will leave here Tuesday morning and not be back until Wednesday evening. Why, father, what's the matter?"

Stephen sat bolt upright with an exclamation.

"Nothing, nothing," he said hastily, as he subsided. "I just thought of something I'd—I'd forgotten—but it's of no importance. Yes, you were saying you'd go on Tuesday, Pris. Well, all right, all right."

"I'll do it," said Stephen, excitedly. "I'll do it! She'll never know. I'll come back Tuesday night."

He was silent for a minute, then added, explosively:

"I am dod-gasted sick of the town!"

Early Tuesday morning he went to the station with her and saw her off on the St. Andrew's flyer. His own train did not leave until later. It landed him at Roseneath station in the mid-forenoon.

Roseneath proper was three miles from the station, and Stephen started to walk it, over the long, moist road that wound and twisted up to the wooded hills, through the young green saplings.

He stood with his arms on the yard gate, feasting his eyes on the gray buildings and gardens. There was a lonely, deserted look about the place that hurt him, but it was home. He would spend the whole afternoon here. He would go over the farm in its length and breadth and visit every field and nook.

He was down on his knees by the daylily plot when he heard the Eastern gate swing back with its old peculiar creak. Stephen hastily got upon his feet. A woman was coming through it. "I'll be dod-gasted if it 'taint Priscilla," he said, helplessly.

Priscilla it was. She did not see Stephen until she came round the last cherry tree on the path.

"Father!" she exclaimed.

They stood and looked at each other in silence for a few moments. Stephen's brain worked in a succession of jerks. He had begun to understand things before Priscilla had recovered herself.

"Priscilla, Priscilla," he said, solemnly, but with a twinkle in his mild eyes. "Where are the mothers?"

Priscilla had to laugh.

"They're at St. Andrew's, no doubt, father. You know I didn't tell you I was going there. I just said the council met there and I was appointed one of the delegates. I never meant to go. I meant to come here, but I couldn't bear to admit to you that I was so crazy for Roseneath that I had to start off in mud and mire for it. And after all our talk last fall, too! How did you find out I came here?"

Her question showed Stephen that it was still possible to retreat with honor. But he did not mind Priscilla knowing the truth now, and she was the only one who really mattered.

"I didn't know you did come," he answered. "I thought you was safe in St. Andrew's. I came on my own account, because I was so homesick I couldn't stand it a day longer, and because I was literally trying to get out of sight and sound as an old fool for a day."

"Why, father," said Priscilla, in astonishement, "you don't mean to say that you are not contented in town! Why, you seemed so interested in everything. I thought you were just as happy as you expected to be!"

"All put on, Pris—all put on," said Stephen. "I've hated it—name o' goodness, what a relief it is to say it at last! But I wouldn't let on for the world for fear you'd laugh at me and say you told me so, for all my brag. I didn't think you were hankering for Roseneath. You seemed so taken up with everything in town and as busy and happy as if you were just in the place that fitted you."

"Oh, I just pretended to hide the truth from you," cried Priscilla. "I—I couldn't bear to admit how disappointed I was after being so sure of myself. I wanted to be back here. Why, father, I just wanted to feel lonely again, with all my heart. And the worst of it was, it came between us. I was determined you should not suspect what I felt like. I don't care now, when you're feeling the same way. So I came out today. I brought a lunch with me, and I meant to stay all night at the Hendersons. I've been all over the farm already. I wish we'd never left it—we were old fools to run after new things at our time of life. Good as they are, it's too late."

"We can come back, Pris," said Stephen, eagerly.

"Oh, if we only could!" cried Priscilla. "But the children—"

"Never mind the children! See here, Pris. It's not going to do them any good for us to be miserable. They'll be willing enough to let us come when they find out how we feel. And we'll come, whether or no. We're our own bosses yet, I guess, Pris. We'll move out as soon as come good roads. Won't them Shacklefords cackle with delight over my backdown! But I don't care a mite since you're in it, too. I can just snap my fingers at the whole world."

He laughed squeakily with joy. Priscilla smiled and drew a long breath.

CANADA SEEKS NEW HARBOR.

The Canadian government has published a description of the cruise of the Neptune in Hudson bay waters, the object of the cruise being to gain information as to the possibilities of a northern route as an outlet for the grain crop of the Northwest.

The conclusion, says Fur News, is that Hudson Strait is navigable for ordinary iron steamships from July 20 to Nov. 1, and this period may be increased, without much risk, by a week in the beginning of the season and by perhaps two weeks at the close. The same dates apply to the navigation of Hudson bay from the strait to Fort Churchill.

The approach to the harbor at Churchill, if aided by a few beacons, would be comparatively safe, as the channel is fairly deep and wide. Inside the mouth of the river there is a good harbor. North of Churchill harbor and along the west coast of Hudson bay the character of the coast is dangerous, and south of Churchill the mouths of all the large rivers are more or less blocked by deposits of sand, with the result that only small craft can enter the harbors.

This means that Fort Churchill is practically the only available harbor as a terminus for railways from the Northwest or from Ontario if the proposal to extend the government railways to tidewater is carried out. The Hudson bay route would save 1,000 miles in transportation, besides a considerable amount of delay and handling which now takes place in the transportation of grain from Fort William to the seaboard.

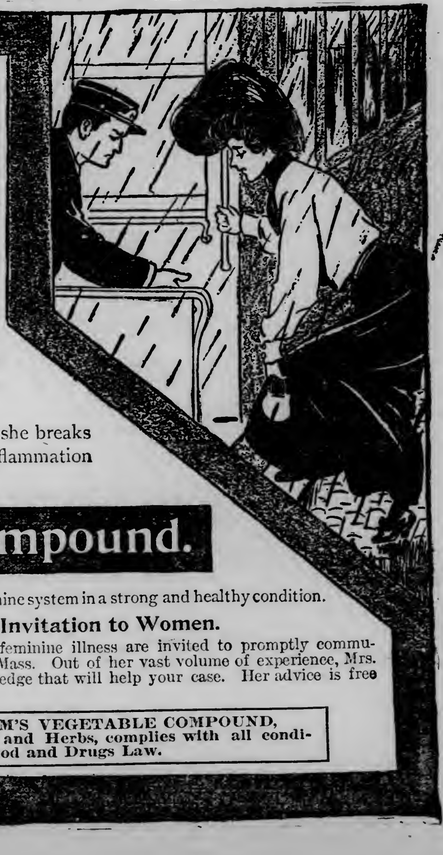
Overworked Women

The Suffering and Pain Endured By Many Working Women is Almost Beyond Belief.

THERE are thousands of American women whose duties call them out in all winds and weathers, many of whom sit with wet feet or stand all day, thus weakening and undermining their health. Women, however, for the most part, spend their lives at home, and these women are willing and ambitious that their homes shall be kept neat and pretty, their children well-dressed and tidy, and do their own cooking, sweeping and dusting, and often washing, ironing and sewing for the entire family. Both of these classes call for our sympathy.

Truly the work of such a woman is "never done," and is it any wonder that she breaks down at the end of a few years, the back begins to ache, there is a displacement, inflammation or ulceration of certain organs, and the struggle to continue her duties are pitiful.



Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Made from native roots and herbs, is the exact medicine a woman needs whose strength is overtaxed. It keeps the feminine system in a strong and healthy condition.

Mrs. Sadie Abbott, of Jeannette, Pa., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"I suffered severely with pain every month, and also a pain in my left side. My doctor prescribed for me but did me no good; a friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I wrote you in regard to my condition. I followed your advice and am a perfectly well woman. The pains have all disappeared, and I cannot recommend your medicine too highly."

Mrs. Lena Nagel, of 117 Morgan St., Buffalo, N.Y., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham;—"I was completely worn out and on the verge of nervous prostration. My back ached all the time. I had dreadful periods of pain, was subject to fits of crying and extreme nervousness, and was always weak and tired. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me."

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of feminine illness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of her vast volume of experience, Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND, made from Native Roots and Herbs, complies with all conditions of the new Pure Food and Drugs Law.

CLEANS YARD, IS WOUNDED

Akeley Youth May Lose Eye in an Unusual Manner.

Akeley, Minn., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—While assisting in cleaning the yard at his home Ray Martin, the 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Martin, was shot in the eye by a ball from a cartridge rifle lying in the burning debris which the fire exploded. The boy was raking the fire in the back yard when there was an explosion and he gave a cry and fell to the ground yelling that he had been shot in the eye. He was taken to the eye hospital at Wadena, but he is expected to lose the eye. Three other loaded shells, all rifle cartridges, were found in the neighbor's yard. It is not thought the boy will die, though the wound is serious, and may prove fatal.

The wheat acreage this year is greatly decreased because of the cold weather, but oats and corn will be sown in larger quantities and flax and much land will be put into hay meadows. Rain is falling and the weather is fair better for the farmers.

VERMIN SHOULD BE ELIMINATED

St. Paul, May 22.—In an investigation just made regarding complaints of ill-treatment and poor food filed by prisoners confined in the Itasca county jail the state board of control returns a clean bill of health for Sheriff Hoolihan, but it advises more beds for the prisoners and extra care as to the elimination of vermin. Otherwise the place is conducted properly.

Complaint was made to Governor Johnson by seven of the prisoners confined in the jail that they were poorly fed, denied medical attendance and mistreated generally. Often, they said, they were compelled to sleep on the stone floor of the jail and the sheriff in one instance was so unfeeling and cruel as to curse them roundly and threaten bodily punishment if they did not quit singing. And in this particular instance the prisoners declared they were singing a hymn.

"Do you mean to say you believe in killing presidents, kings and rulers with whom you are displeased?" pressed the judge. Once more came the grin, the nod, and the careless answer, "sure I do." Boris was promptly dismissed and will not vote at the next election.

Crookston, Minn., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—John A. Aamodt, a young man 22 years of age, whose home is at Kelliher, Minn., accidentally shot himself to death Sunday morning at 10 o'clock near that place. Aamodt was out hunting and after tramping about for some time he sat down on a log to read a letter. He rested the gun across his leg, with the muzzle pointing directly at the pit of his stomach. His foot evidently came in contact with the trigger of the gun and the load of heavy shot was discharged full into his stomach tearing a terrible gapping wound. A passer-by heard the shot and coming over to see what had happened was horrified to see Aamodt writhing on the ground. He immediately secured help and Aamodt was carried to Kelliher, where he was taken aboard a handcar and taken to Blackduck to the hospital at that place. Every medical attention possible was given the unfortunate man, but he died shortly after reaching Blackduck.

THEIR CASE IS PITIFUL

Rural Mail Carrier Makes a Very Distressing Discovery.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—It was a distressing discovery that Rural Mail Carrier Erickson made on his route near Caryville when he found the older children of William Phillips, a music teacher, crying inside their home and pointed to the dead body of a baby, their little brother, that had died during the night of pneumonia or lack of nourishment. The child lay on the floor, and nearby was a partly filled bottle of milk.

The children informed him the baby had died during the night. The older children are Ruth, aged 15, and Esther, aged 13. The mother had been recently sent to the asylum at Mendota, and the father is said to have proven a poor provider, leaving the family alone much of the time.

Efforts will be made to have the girls properly cared for. Both are bright girls, quite clever with pencil and paint brush.

The child was buried in the town of Brunswick cemetery, the father being present, and a number of neighbors.

UPPER MICHIGAN

WHITEFISH DECREASING

Ashes and Clinkers Kill Fishes' Feeding Ground.

Marquette, Mich., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The whitefish in Lake Superior are decreasing yearly, according to fishermen. It is claimed that the dumping of ashes and clinkers into the lake has killed off large areas of the grassy patches on the bottom of the lake where the whitefish have been wont to feed.

Between 1880 and 1905 the output of ashes, clinkers and furnace slag, not counting the sweepings of iron from the docks, has been 7,000,000 tons, which were dumped into Lake Superior. Fishermen all over Lake Superior tell the same story, that large clinkers come up in their gill nets when hauling in settings, indicating that the bottom of the lake is being covered with this manufactured scoria, the tendency of which is to destroy or burn up either by erosive action or chemical influences all the grass in which there lived the minute organisms upon which the whitefish subsisted.

"The United States government should make an appropriation for an exhaustive research in the waters of Lake Superior to discover if possible just what is causing the decrease in the number of the whitefish," said a Marquette man, who has made the subject a study. "The recommendations for legislative enactments could be made and these should be enforced without favoritism and without fear. Many million of whitefish fry have been planted in this vicinity yearly and but a small proportion of these evidently reached maturity."

WOULD CUT SALOONS.

Marquette Liquor Dealers Behind Movement to Limit Establishments.

Marquette, Mich., May 22.—In the interest of liquor dealers and at their request, Representative John R. Gordon of this city has introduced in the state legislature a bill regulating the saloon business in Marquette. The measure cuts the existing number of saloons almost in half. After May 1 next, it is provided, there cannot be more than twenty-five establishments of this kind until the population of the city reaches 13,000 when one additional liquor license may be granted for every additional 500 inhabitants.

HAD SAVED $10,000.

Finnish Laborer Dies Before He Could Enjoy Fruits of His Labor.

Munising, Mich., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Taken ill with an acute attack of intestinal trouble, and expiring while being conveyed to a Newberry hospital for treatment, not until the man was dead was it revealed that Matti Karkula, a Finnish laborer, was the possessor of a fortune of considerable proportions for one of his station in life. Bank books found on his person showed him to be possessed of nearly $10,000 in cash, most of which was on deposit in banks in Finland. The deceased had planned returning to his native land this summer, there to enjoy the fruits of his years of labor in America. Karkula was employed as a wood chopper in the camps of the Manistique Iron company, near Rexton. He was industrious and hard-working, and was known to possess a saving disposition, but that he had accumulated as much wealth as proved the case was not suspected by his fellow countrymen.

DAKOTAS

HUMOROUS INCIDENTS

Which Have Befallen the Masons Since Becoming Millionaires.

Will Leave Dakotas and Live in Smith's Tuxedo Home.

Aberdeen, S. D., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. G. G. Mason of this city, whose husband has just inherited about $12,000,000 from the late James (Silent) Smith, has returned from New York, where she has been with her husband since the first of the month. Since entering the millionaire class, Mrs. Mason says she has been endeavoring to adjust her ideas. However, as her friends expected, her very excellent self poise has prevented any change and she is, as always, charming to meet.

In speaking of the incidents which have befallen them since the news of the fortune has been heralded abroad, Mrs. Mason said:

"We have been annoyed at times, but for the most part have had a whole lot of fun out of the affair. We have been loaded down with begging letters from all kinds and conditions of people, and the most extravagant solicitation has been brought to bear upon us for loans and donations. Mr. Mason received a very urgent letter advising him to endow a college, which would be called Mason college in his honor. However, he has not yet decided to do this.

"He has been shown in letters, giving piles of figures, how he can double his fortune in no time by investing in steamship companies, air lines and every other imaginable scheme. He confesses that the figures are convincing, but thinks he'll wait awhile.

"Then we have been besieged by scores of people who are anxious to tell us what good private secretaries, social secretaries, confidential advisers they would be. One woman with a name which is enough has hounded Mr. Mason half to death for a job. She is persistent and will not be turned down.

"People are very anxious to find out what we intend doing. Only the other morning about 2 o'clock Mr. Mason was called out of bed to be asked over the telephone what he intends doing. It was somewhat provoking, and Mr. Mason replied: 'To go to sleep.' With that he hung up the receiver. There has been a lot of this.

"For the present we will move into the late Mr. Smith's country house at Tuxedo Park. It is a wonderful place and I am sure we will enjoy it. We will remain there until fall, and in the meantime decide upon what we will do in future. It will take some time to get matters adjusted and find out just where we are. I rather think that Mr. Mason will not remain inactive, for I don't think he could do that and be content, but I do not know. However, I don't believe he will ever return to railroading."

OLSEN IS HERO.

Saves a Finn Girl Suffocating During Hotel Fire.

Cando, N. D., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Olsen is in line for a Carnegie hero medal, as a reward for his bravery in rescuing a Finn girl during the fire in the Dacotah hotel.

While the structure was in flames and the hallways filled with smoke and fire, Olsen heard some one groaning and crawled on his hands and knees to the room of a Finn girl, who worked in the kitchen. She was just passing into unconsciousness when Olsen found her, and he half led, half carried her to safety. When the fire department arrived the room was a mass of flames.

STRUCK BY WINDMILL.

Farmer's Head Cut, But He Escapes Falling to the Ground.

Towner, N. D., May 22.—Frank Carpenter, while engaged in repairing a windmill, at a height of about fifty feet, was struck in the back of the head with one of the fans. A deep gash resulted, and the unfortunate man was stunned for a few minutes. In some manner he escaped falling from the platform, and a few minutes later was able to climb down and summon help.

ABSENCE OF BOOZE

Grand Forks, N. D., May 22.—A unique reason has been advanced by a prominent Grand Forks resident as to the cause for the shortage of labor in North Dakota.

He lays it to the activity of state's attorneys who, during the past few months have been very vigilant on matters pertaining to the enforcement of the prohibition laws of North Daokta. The result has been a big shortage of booze. The news of this drought has gone into the labor headquarters of Minnesota, where the largest number of men come from during the spring. The fact that there is no booze around, he claims, has resulted in these laborers going to Montana.

BELL HOP ACCIDENTALLY SHOT BY HIS COMPANION.

Fargo, N. D., May 22.—Edward Norson, a bell boy in the Metropole hotel was accidentally shot Monday morning while examining a new revolver. F. Murphy, another bell boy in the hotel, was holding the pistol when the accident took place. The injury is not serious, the bullet entering the fleshy part of the leg.

FIVE MEN DEAD IN EXPLOSION

Pittsburg, May 22.—American well known mill men and three foreigners were cremated and four foreigners were seriously burned last night, when an explosion occurred at the Eliza furnace of the Jone & Laughlin Steel company, limited, in the Hazelwood district of the city. Of a crew of ten men at the furnace when the accident happened, only one, a foreigner, escaped uninjured. The dead:

E. B. Willard, assistant furnace superintendent.

John A. West, head blower.

Three unknown foreigners.

The names of the four foreigners who were injured are not known. They were hurried to a hospital.

The men were about ready to draw off the molten metal, when the ore slipped, falling to the bottom of the furnace. The heavy weight of the ore forced the gas with terrific pressure through the first dust catcher, which was unable to stand the strain and burst and before the men could escape they were caught by the flames.

SUNDHEIM HIT UMPS

Houghton Player Slugged Nolan in Ninth Inning Yesterday.

Thanks to Pitcher Miller's wildness in the eighth inning and Umpire Nolan's poor powers of observation, especially in the ninth inning, the Sox made it two out of three from the Houghton Giants by winning yesterday's game by a score of 3 to 2. Nolan's work was away off color once again and in the ninth inning a most regrettable incident happened. After calling Solbraa out at first base on a palpably unfair decision, he called Sundheim out at the home plate on a close play. When the decision was given, the Houghton players rushed from the bench and surrounded the umpire. Sundheim rose and rushing through the crowd of players, hit Nolan a blow which sent the arbiter to the ground. Sundheim was immediately pulled off the diamond by the Houghton players, but the damage had been done. The Duluth management ordered the police to take him in charge and one of the officers took him down town to the station. The next man up in the ninth went out, so it did not affect the result of the game.

Sundheim's release was effected last night by the Houghton management and he accompanied the team to Winnipeg. After he had cooled down he expressed regret for his action. Nolan's work all through the series has been off and, although Duluth suffered also, the serious mistakes seemed to affect the Giants. Sundheim has been kicking strenuously all through the series, and yesterday when the tieing run was denied his team on what he thought was an unfair decision, he lost all control of himself. Duluth fans regret that anything of the kind happened, and they hope it will be guarded against in the future.

The game itself was a sort of a listless exhibition. Only about 100 fans gathered and the cold wind didn't serve to instil any ginger into the players. It was a closely contested game, at that. There was no brilliant work, but good consistent ball all the way through and, aside from the fracas in the final inning, there was nothing to mar the serenity of the play. Miller, the youth who pitched the tail end of two games last week, worked the whole game for Houghton. He only allowed the Sox six hits scattered through as many innings, but he walked four men and hit three, and hits and passes bunched gave the Sox just enough runs to win.

Al Cummings was the boy who turned the trick for the Sox. He was working finely, and Solbraa's double in the second and a couple of swats bunched in the sixth, were the only hits which did any damage. The Sox played good ball behind him through the greater part of th game. His control was excellent, considering the fact that it is so early in the season, for not a man walked to first base on the Giants' side.

Houghton started the scoring, as they did in every game of the series. In the second inning Solbraa started things with a smashing double to right. He moved up a base when Goldsmith muffed Meyers' fly, but Meyers was nailed trying to take second. Taylor hit a fast one at Tracey, which bounded off the big fellow, but was gathered in by Cummings, who pegged to first to get the runner, Solbraa scoring. The Sox evened things in their half. McCormick repeated Solbraa's trick, and was sacrificed to third by Leighty. While Miller was pitching to Smith, Gibson missed a ball and McCormick crossed the plate.

Houghton took the lead again in the sixth. Bitting opened with a single, but was caught at second on Olson's grounder. Olson went to second on Sundheim's grounder to Summers, and raced home when Solbraa poked out a long single. The Sox sent a man around to third with only one out in the seventh, but couldn't get him across.

Miller's wildness and Smiley Smith's timely single gave the Sox enough to win in the eighth. Summers, the first man up, was hit by a pitched ball. Tracey sacrificed and Summers tried to take third and was nabbed. Goldsmith hit one out to center field, which Olson muffed, the big fellow landing on second. Miller gave McCormick four wide ones without a strike, and filled the sacks by hitting Leighty. It was up to Smith. With three balls and two strikes on him, the manager popped one up to center field. Taylor, Olson and Gilmore all went after it and it dropped between them, Goldsmith and McCormick scoring.

Houghton took a last desperate stand in the ninth. Sundheim singled and went to second when Solbraa was called out on a bad decision at first. While Meyers was batting, he tried to steal third. Smith threw to head him off and McLaughlin let the ball go through him. McCormick fielded it in, and Nolan called Sundheim out. After matters had cooled down following the fracas, Meyers went out on a grounder to Leighty.

HIGH SCHOOL TRACK MEET

Both Schools to Have Strong Teams Entered for Events.

The annual interscholastic field and track meet between the high schools of Superior and Duluth will be held next Saturday afternoon at the driving park here, the Duluth Centrals and Blaine of Superior competing. Nelson Dewey of Superior has not entered a team. The meet promises to be warmly contested, as both schools have some good track and field men this year. The Duluth boys, at least, will be handicapped by lack of preparation, as they have been able to do but little work outside this year. In the interclass meet held last Saturday, some of the boys made a good showing and none would be surprised to see more records broken.

In last Saturday's meet, Capt. Ryan carried away the individual honors, and he depended upon as a point winner for Duluth in the dashes. McDevitt in the field events, is strong and will make the Blaine weight men work and Duluth also has some other stars, who are expected to do good work. Starkey, one of the dash men, will be unable to compete on account of conditions and his loss will be felt by Duluth.

220-yard low hurdle—B. Clark and H. Buchanan.

FINACUNE GOES DOWN AND OUT

Ogden, Utah, May 22.—"Dick" Hyland of San Francisco knocked out Billy Finacune of Chicago in the first half of the third round of what was scheduled as a twenty-round contest here last night. He landed a terrific blow on the Chicagoan's solar plexus that not only put him to the floor, but also brought several doctors from the auditorium to the ring. The injury was pronounced not serious.

Papka-Caponi Draw.

Davenport, Iowa, May 22.—Billy Papke, the Spring Valley, Ill., fighter, found his match in Tony Caponi of Milwaukee last evening in a fight before the Devenport Athletic club. Caponi slugged hard through fifteen rounds i na way that won him a draw.

Gardner Wins Decision.

Denver, May 22.—Jimmy Gardner of Lowell, Mass., won the decision from Harry Lewis of Philadelphia in a ten-round bout before the Coliseum Athletic club last night. Gardner outpointed Lewis in every round, the latter landing but a few clean blows. There were no knock downs and no blood drawn.

WINNIPEG WINS ANOTHER.

Winnipeg, Man., May 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Roy Newcombe took a flight in the eighth inning yesterday and before he came to himself again, the Maroons had scored seven runs and won the game. Up to the eighth, it was a pitchers' battle between Terry and Newcombe, Terry was steady at all times and the Aristocrats couldn't hit his floaters with men on bases. Score:

RULES FOR LAUNCHES

Regulations to be Followed by Owners of Small Boats.

Practically all Duluthians who own motor boats have either already placed their launches in commission for the season of 1907 or are now putting the finishing touches upon them preparatory to doing this. This year it is expected that there will be more launches and motor boats in the Duluth harbor than at any previous time and the value of these numerous little boats would make quite an item if figured up.

On account of the numerous boats this year there have been many inquiries of late at the office of the United States steamboat inspectors concerning the rules and regulations which apply to these little craft. The rules this year are not greatly changed from those of other years, but it will be well for motorists to keep well informed in regard to them, else they may have a federal official after them.

All of the rules relating to steam vessels in passing each other apply generally to the small boats and if the launches are not properly fitted out by their owners the latter are liable to arrest. Inspectors Monaghan and Chalk have prepared a review of the rules relating to small boats which is as follows:

"All the rules relating to steam vessels in passing each other, contained in the pilot rules, shall also apply to vessels propeled by gas, fluid, naptha, or electric motors, and other vessels propelled by machinery.

"Motor vessels of any tonnage shall be provided with an efficient whistle of such character as to be heard in ordinary weather at a distance of at least two miles, and with an efficient bell, of not less than eight (8) inches in diameter, constructed of bronze or brass, or other material equal thereto in tone and volume of sound.

"All such vessels of above fifteen gross tons, carrying freight or passengers for hire, must be inspected the same as steam vessels, and provided with a licensed pilot and a licensed engineer.

"None of the above mentioned motor vessels of less than fifteen gross tons are required by law to be inspected, whether they carry passengers or freight for hire or not, but such vessels that carry passengers for hire shall carry one life preserver, of the sort prescribed by the regulations of the board of supervising inspectors, for every passenger carried, and no such boat, while so carrying passengers, shall be operated or navigated except in charge of a person duly licensed for such service by the local board of inspectors. No examination shall be required as a condition of the obtaining of such license, and any such license shall be revoked or suspended by the local board of inspectors for misconduct, gross negligence, recklessness in navigation, intemperance, or violation of law on the part of the holder, and if revoked, the person holding such license shall be incapable of obtaining another license for one year from the date of revocation.

"Formal application for license shall be required to be made on the printed forms provided by the department.

"Every person so licensed shall be a citizen of the United States, and over 21 years of age.

"No visual or other examination shall be required, but no person shall be licensed whom the inspectors regard as incompetent. Applicants must appear in person at the office of the local inspectors, and they must see that the applicant is in possession of the senses of sight, hearing, etc., and that he has hands and legs with which to perform the duties required of him.

"A penalty of $500 is provided in Section 4500 of the revised statutes for violation of the law for not carrying life preservers as required in the act, and for navigating without having a duly licensed person in charge."

REVIVAL OF WRESTLING

Ishpeming, Mich., May 22.—A sweeping challenge to meet any wrestler of his weight in the country at the Cornish style has been issued by Eddie Blou of Escanaba. The place at which the contest is to take place and the date of the event are matters immaterial to Blou, who, however, announces his especial desire of arranging for a bout with Charles Coveau of Ishpeming, the Iron country champion. The Escanaba man will doubtless be accommodated, and he will in all likelihood not only hear from Coveau, but from Joe Ziehr, champion of the Copper country, and many other well known exponents of the game with the jackets.

It has been suggested that Blou can get all the sport he is looking for by participating in the big Cornish wrestling tournament that is to be the feature of the Sons of St. George celebration at Ishpeming in July. The best wrestlers in the entire Lake Superior region will take part in this, and the prizes will be well worth going after. Cornish wrestling has been on the decline since the days of Carkeek and King, but a noteworthy revival is expected at the Ishpeming meet.

New York, May 22.—The first game of the series between the New York and Chicago National league teams at the Polo grounds yesterday ended in almost a riot.

Chicago won by the score of 3 to 2, and is now tied with New York in the race for the pennant. Fast infield play and Bresnahan's errors were responsible for the downfall of the locals.

Immediately after the game was over, the crowd, maddened at what were considered unfair decisions, surged on the field and surrounded Umpires Emslie and O'Day. Cushions were thrown at Umpire Emslie and he was jostled by the mob. The officials ran for their dressing rooms, followed by hundreds of angry men. Two policemen entered the grounds and when several bottles were thrown by the crowd, they drew revolvers and one of them fired a shot in the air. This brought a mounted patrolman into the grounds, and the crowd was driven away from the umpires' room. No one was injured.

CULLED FROM THE SCORE BOOK.

Four out of five isn't bad to start on.

If Taylor can overcome their wildness, he has a good staff of pitchers. They are erratic yet, but will probably work better later.

Al Cummings made an exceptional record yesterday by not passing or hitting a man, considering the day was cold and the time so early in the season. He will do things in the league this year.

The knockers haven't had much of a chance at the team yet. They have made slips, but they are only natural for the opening series and they won the games at any rate. They may make as many slips as they want and the fans will be satisfied if they lead the league.

"Ducky" Stewart, who was with Hancock and Fargo last year, was expected to join the Giants here, his release having been secured from Madison. He didn't put in an appearance, but will join them at Winnipeg. Stewart is a heady catcher and will be an improvement on Gibson, who isn't the man for the place.

Jimmie Fagin is under suspension and McLaughlin held down the awkward corner yesterday. Fagin didn't go on the training trip and he wasn't in condition. He showed flashes of brilliant ball, but luck broke the wrong way. He didn't get a hit in four games. McLaughlin didn't have many chances in the field yesterday, but he cracked out a good single.

Sundheim's action in hitting Umpire Nolan in the ninth inning yesterday is to be regretted by all who have the success of the league at heart. Nolan had been in the wrong on some decisions, but evidently not on that at the home plate. It is too bad Sundheim lost his head, for every such incident hurts the game. They should be guarded against by managers. Spectators don't like such affairs and it wouldn't take many incidents of the kind to break up the league.

Nolan threatens to secure the suspension of Sundheim for the remainder of the season. It will be bad for the Houghton team if he does. Sundheim has been playing consistent ball during the series, and he hit at a higher figure than any other man on either team.

Goldsmith hasn't been living up to his reputation as a slugger. He evidently hasn't struck his stride yet, for he meets the ball like a slugger, and when it leaves his bat, it travels along some. He shows fair form in the field, although he dropped two balls yesterday.

Leighty is certainly doing great work in the shortstop position. In the series just closed, he had thirty chances without a slip up, a remarkable record for a shortstop. He has only made two hits in the five games, but while he is playing that kind of ball at short, the fans will not clamor for more than an occasional bingle from him.

Miller evidently didn't like McCormick's style yesterday. The big fellow took a smashing double in his first time at bat, and his other three times he walked. In the eighth, with a man on base, Miller wouldn't put a ball within reach, but intentionally threw four wides ones.

Mullane's Calumet Aristocrats open here tomorrow for six games. At Winnipeg the Michigan men could only get away with two games. They are evidently shy on pitchers, for Newcombe worked in three games. The Sox should take the big end of the series from Calumet, and if Houghton will obligingly put a couple over on the Canucks, we will all be happy.

Bob Emslie, the umpire who was chased by the crowd in New York yesterday and made the target for cushions and bottles, is remembered in Duluth as one of the umpires in the early days, when Duluth played with the Twin Cities, Oshkosh and other Wisconsin towns. Emslie was just starting on his career as an umpire at the time, and was one of the fairest men who ever handled an indicator in the Northwest.

Among the Amateurs.

The East End Juniors yesterday defeated the Lakesides by a score of 15 to 10. This makes the sixth consecutive victory for the East End Juniors.

Moose Lake, Minn., May 22.—The Thomson baseball team came to Moose Lake Sunday and played the local nine. Much to the disgust of the rooters, who accompanied the Thomson team from Thomson and Carleton, Moose Lake won out by a score of 11 to 1. The batteries were: Moose Lake, Dilloney and Rydeer; Thomson, Carlson and Eckland.

In the roots and barks of the different trees, and in the herbs and various shrubbery which Nature has placed at our disposal, are to be found healing, cleansing extracts and juices, which when properly mixed and compounded furnish to the blood and system the properties necessary to rid our bodies of disease and keep us strong, robust and healthy. In the time of our forefathers, when this land was little more than a wilderness, the forests and fields were the only laboratories from which they could procure their medicines and tonics. Their necessity has been our blessing, for they searched out and compounded these vegetable materials into teas, concoctions and medicines, many of which have been handed down to succeeding generations to bless them with their health-giving and health-sustaining qualities.

Among the very best of these preparations is S. S. S., a medicine made entirely from nature's roots, herbs and barks in such combination as to make it the best of all blood purifiers and the greatest of all tonics. We use annually nearly a million pounds of these roots, herbs and barks in the manufature of S. S. S. alone. These are not purchased indiscriminately, but are obtained from the woods and fields under the direct supervision of our own botauists, and when they reach our laboratory contain all their natural blood-purifying and tonic properties.

The absolute safety of S. S. S. has always been one of the greatest points in its favor. Being purely vegetable, it is the one medicine that may be used without harm by young or old, or those in any condition of health.

When the system is infected with the germs of disease, it needs every particle of its recuperative strength to assist in removing the poisons and impurities which are causing the trouble. It should not be dosed with strong mineral mixtures and concoctions, which further add to the burden by disagreeably affecting the stomach and bowels, impairing the digestion, or perhaps eating out the delicate tissues of some vital organ. The only safe course to pursue is to use a remedy of guaranteed vegetable purity, and such a medicine is S. S. S.

For Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Skin Diseases, and all other troubles caused by impure or poisoned blood, S. S. S. is a perfect remedy. It goes down into the circulation and removes all poisons, impurities, humors or waste matter, and makes this life stream pure and health-sustaining. Nothing reaches inherited blood troubles like S. S. S. It removes every particle of the taint, purifies and strengthens the weak, deteriorated blood, and establishes the foundation for good health. As a tonic S. S. S. has no equal, and it will be found especially adapted to weak, anaemic persons. This medicine is not an experiment but a successfully proven, prompt and gentle acting remedy which was used by our ancestors, and being made by the same formula now it is still giving satisfactory results in the cure of blood and skin diseases of every character. Book on the blood and any medical advice free of charge to all who write. S. S. S. is for sale at all first class drug stores.

S. S. S. TESTED BY CHEMIST.

A few years ago I was taken with Inflammatory Rheumatism, which, though mild at first, became gradually so intense that I was for weeks unable to walk. Upon the advice of a friend I decided to try S. S. S. Before allowing me to take it, however, my guardian, who was a chemist, analyzed the remedy, and pronounced it free of potash, mercury or any other mineral. I felt so much better after taking two bottles, that I continued the remedy, and in two months I was oured completely. The cure was permanent, for I have never since had a touch of Rheumatism, though many times exposed to damp and cold weather.

We continued this medicine until several bottles were used, when our boy was completely cured." Best of all blood medicines and body building health tonics. Guaranteed at all drug stores. 50c.

Lovers Elude Parents and Are Married After Three Attempts.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 22.—After making three attempts to elope to Youngstown, Ohio, without success during the last year, Miss Gertrude Pinner, aged 20, of the West end and James Kaltanborn, aged 22, eloped and were married at Youngstown.

Miss Pinner, who had been so closely watched, got away with her lover and had the knot tied in Youngstown before they could be stopped. She invited her mother and younger sister to attend a matinee with her, gave them the tickets and said she would meet them in the theater. Mrs. Pinner and her younger daughter took in the show, but Gertie came not.

When mother and daughter reached home, Mrs. Gertie Kaltanborn was calling on the 'phone from Youngstown, asking forgiveness.

ALONE AND DYING WITH FEET IN POOL OF WATER

One of the most pathetic cases on record is that of Charles Nelson, who died yesterday afternoon at St. Luke's hospital of typhoid fever.

Monday afternoon the police received a report that a man was lying dead in a room at 130 East First street. He had been there for three days, according to the report. When officers arrived on the scene a man was seen through the window lying, half naked on the bed with his feet in a pool of water beside him. A sharp kick broke the door open and the man was found to be still alive, but in the last stages of typhoid fever. Dr. Graham was at once sent for and he said at once that there was practically no chance for him to live, but sent for the ambulance and had him taken to the hospital.

The man was conscious when found and said that his name was Charles Nelson and that he had turned on the water because he was hot and wanted to cool off.

Nelson had been at St. Luke's before and had in fact been released but a few days previous as cured. He probably would have been all right if he had not gone to living in his unhealthful quarters alone, and without heat, but there he suffered a relapse, which carried him off.

He has evidently been in this country but a short time and in the pockets of his clothes and his trunk were found numerous letters from a sweetheart whom he had evidently left behind him in Norway, and whom he was planning to bring over here as his wife as soon as he earned money enough. Before he died he managed to make the authorities understand that he had a farm in North Dakota, but a diligent search so far has failed to bring to light any other evidence of this. He will be buried by the county as no trace of his having had friends in this part of the country can be found.

FREIGHT ON PETROLEUM

In Western Central Territory Subject of Investigation.

Shippers Claim Roads Aid Standard Oil by High Rates.

Washington, May 22.—Freight rates on petroleum and its products in the Central Western territory constituted the subject of further hearings today before the interstate commerce commission. The rates involved were those from Ohio and Pennsylvania points to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha, Sioux City and Sioux Falls, through Chicago.

The complaint does not hinge upon preferential rates given by the railroads, to the Standard Oil company, for it is admitted that the rates to all shippers are uniform; but the complaint is that the tariffs now in force are excessive and unreasonable.

Frank E. Fretter, secretary of the National Refining company of Cleveland, was the principal witness for the complainants, the National Petroleum association. He explained that the Standard Oil company shipped oil by barges from Whiting, Ind., to the Minneapolis and Duluth territory, taking advantage of the lower water rate to undermine competition in that territory. The all rail rate to that territory, he said, was kept up by the railroads at an excessive figure in order to enable the Standard Oil company to destroy competition. He maintained that it was to the interest of the Standard to have the high rail rate, because it did the great bulk of its shipping by water.

Mr. Fretter also complained of the rate from Ohio points to Omaha, which, he said, was the sum of the local rates through Chicago or 40½ cents per 100 pounds.

"When we complained to the railroads of this excessive rate," he declared, "all the satisfaction we got was that if we were not satisfied we might go to the interstate commerce commission and have the rate changed, if we could."

Witness explained that the Western field was controlled by the Standard Oil company from its Kansas territory. "In going with our products into this territory monopolized by the Standard," said Mr. Fretter, "the excessive rate which we are charged will show you how we are held up by the railroads."

On cross-examination Attorney Dawes of the Burlington line, asked Mr. Fretter how he was injured by the Cleveland-Omaha rate of 40½ cents. He said that the Standard people had a rate of 13 cents a hundred pounds from the Kansas field into Omaha and they could not compete with that.

"Hasn't the geographical position of the Standard in Kansas something to do with its lower rate?" inquired Mr. Dawes.

"Yes," replied the witness, "but our rate is excessively high and we are seeking a fair rate in order to be the better able to compete with the Standard."

Mr. Fretter explained further that the Eastern oil was of higher grade than that produced in the Kansas field and that he received a higher price for it in competition with the Kansas oil.

"How much higher?"

"Three of 4 cents a gallon."

According to calculations made by witness and counsel, a difference of 1 cents a gallon would make a difference in price of about 64 cents a hundred pounds.

"Then," suggested Attorney Dawes, "you get back your freight rate in this increase price at which you sell your product?"

Mr. Fretter thought a fair rate from Cleveland to Omaha in competition would be 22½ cents per hundred pounds.

"In other words," said Mr. Dawes, "you want to ship oil from Cleveland to Omaha in competition with the producers in the Kansas field?"

"Yes, that is it," replied the witness.

Mr. Dawes indicated that such an adjustment of freight rates would not be possible.

WATER AND GAS MAINS

Minneapolis Firm Begins Work on Extension of Systems.

The Residents in Thirteen Blocks Will be Supplied.

Fairbanks, Morse & Co. of Minneapolis have put a force of men at work on the extension of the water and gas mains in West Duluth, and good progress is being made with the work. Some time ago the company was awarded the contract to extend the mains from Sixty-third avenue west and Polk street to Seventy-first avenue west and Fairmount park. The distance to be covered is thirteen blocks, 6-inch water and 4-inch gas mains to be laid.

A large crew has been put at work on the trenches and, as the digging proceeds, the pipe layers and fillers are following closely, so that the work may be completed as soon as possible, with the least inconvenience to traffic.

Several hundred people living along the streets traversed by the extended mains will be supplied by the improvement. They have been clamoring for water and gas for a long time, and the starting of the work of extension is looked upon with considerable satisfaction by them.

LONGFELLOW ALUMNI.

Program Arranged for Annual Banquet Friday Evening.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the annual banquet of the Longfellow School Alumni association, which will be held at the school building, Sixtieth avenue west and Elinor street, next Friday evening, has about completed its work. An excellent program of toasts, vocal and instrumental numbers, has been prepared. A general invitation to the members of the association has been extended, and it is expected a large number of former Longfellow school students from West Duluth and surrounding places will be in attendance.

Following the spread, Mrs. Prosser, a former principal of the school, will act as toastmistress, and the program will be given. The musical numbers will include vocal solos by Miss Meinhardt and Miss Shannon, a piano solo by Miss Berenice Phelps and a mandolin solo by Miss Ethelwin Phelps. The program of toasts is as follows:

Address of welcome, Freeman Randall; "To West Duluth," Leland Hendricks; "Longfellow Baseball Nine," Samuel Abramson; "Proctorknott," Ellen Murray; "The High School and the Grades," Gordon Brooks; "The Teachers," Ethel Wright; "The Girls of the Alumni," James Kirkwood; "The Boys," Louana Phelps; "The Graduating Class," Miss McGuire; "The Class of 1903," Albert Johnson.

Following the banquet there will be dancing, and cards at several tables.

Funeral of Mrs. Merritt.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Emily Merritt, who died in Townsend, Mont., Sunday, will be held this afternoon from the Merritt Memorial church. Rev. Samuel G. Briggs, assisted by Rev. Richardson, will conduct the services, and interment will be in Oneota cemetery. The remains arrived in Duluth last evening, accompanied by Wilbur Merritt, a son.

May Go to Two Harbors.

There is a possibility that the Imperial Minstrels, who gave two performances in the Great Eastern hall last week, will go to Two Harbors some evening in the near future and repeat the performance for the benefit of the church there. The two entertainments last week were attended by packed houses, and should the members of the company decide to go to Two Harbors, the people there can be assured of a good performance.

West Duluth Briefs.

The remains of Carl Riska, who died in Colorado Springs, Colo., last Sunday, are expected to arrive in Duluth next Saturday morning, and they will be taken to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Riska, 5219 Wadena street. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon.

Old Hickory camp, M. W. A., will hold a social session this evening in connection with its meeting at Great Eastern hall. Several candidates will be initiated.

Mrs. A. Anderson is reported to be seriously ill at her home on the corner of Sixty-third avenue west and Greene street.

Dr. Jern returned this morning from Cotton, Minn., where he he was called yesterday.

John Schmauss has returned to West Duluth from Rockford, Ill., where he had been visiting for some time past.

Watch and jewelry repairing. Hurst.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Charrier of Two Harbors are visiting friends in West Duluth for a few days.

Gus Olson and T. Swanson have returned to West Duluth from Hibbing, where they spent the winter.

Rummage sale at 412 Central avenue.

The Woodmen team of the M. W. A. will entertain at Fairmount park tomorrow night with a dance in the Labor Union pavilion. The affair is the first of a series to be given in an effort to raise money to defray the expense of the team next month in a trip to Minneapolis, where it will enter a competitive drill with other teams from different parts of the state.

Next Sunday Rev. K. E. Forsell, pastor of the West Duluth Swedish Mission church, will preach his farewell sermon. Mr. Forsell will then remove with his family to his homestead at Knutsberg, where he will rest for about three months. He will again take up pastoral work, but has not yet decided upon a location.

This evening a bundle shower will be given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. George Little, 524 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, for Miss Mildred Cobb, who will be united in marriage next month to James Ritchie, a well known West Duluth young man.

The cars between Duluth and West Duluth do not stop under the Missabe ore docks at Thirty-third avenue west now, the company acceding to the request of the members of the West Duluth Commercial club, who thought the stopping of the cars directly under the docks dangerous. The westbound cars will stop west of the trestle and the eastbound cars on the east side. Some confusion will be occasioned for a time, but it is expected those having occasion to board the cars at that point will soon become accustomed to the change.

CHARACTER NOT SATISFACTORY.

San Francisco Argonaut: There is a story about a company promoter who advertised for an office boy. He received 100 replies. Out of the 100 he selected ten, and with the writers of these ten replies he had a personal interview. His final choice fell upon a bright youth, to whom he said: "My boy, I like your appearance and your manner very much. I think you may do. Did you bring a character?"

"No, sir," said the boy. "I can go home and get it."

"Very well, come back tomorrow morning with it, and if it is satisfactory I dare say I shall engage you." Late that same afternoon the financier was surprised by the return of the candidate.

"Well," he said, cheerily, "have you got your character?" "No," answered the boy, "but I've got yours—an' I ain't coming."

FATE OF HIS CASTLE.

Boston Herald: At a meeting of the Irish League an amusing story was told by Lord Shook, whose beautiful residence overlooks the Killarney lakes. His lordship's regiment was ordered to India, but before he left he gave a local contractor orders to build a wall around a certain castle on his estate which was being picked to pieces by excursionists.

Many years after he returned with the feeling that whatever had happened his ruin would at least be safe. He was shocked to find the wall enclosing a vacant space where the castle, the idol of his eye, had reposed when he last visited the spot.

"What," replied that worthy, "do ye mane that tumbledown shanty? Sure I pulled it down and built the wall wid the bricks."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

All Options in Wheat Make a New High Record.

Chicago, May 22.—The wheat market today opened with renewed excitement and strength, based on an advance at Liverpool and the dry spell in Kansas, for which the weather forecast offered no remedy. All options touched made new high records for the crop, going fractionally above previous top figures. July opened ⅝c to 1c over yesterday at $1.02 to $1.02⅝, touched $1.02¾ and dropped back to $1.01¾, where it steadied. September opened ⅝c to 1⅛c up at $1.04 to $1.04½, reacting to $1.03, and December started with an advance of 1c to 1⅛c at $1.05 to $1.05¼, touched $1.05⅜ and then dropped back under profit-taking to $1.05¼. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 294 cars against 372 last week and 131 a year ago.

Nervousness characterized the session and prices fluctuated violently. The net result for the day, however, showed little change from yesterday. July reached a new high mark by rallying from $1.01, the low point, to $1.03. July closed ⅛c up at $1.01⅝; September ⅛c lower at $1.03¾c and December ⅛c higher at $1.04¼c.

Corn opened easy on wet weather in Illinois and Iowa. July opened a shade to ½@⅝c down at 54c to 54½c, and held for a time within that range. Receipts were 72 cars, 9 of contract grade.

July corn later dropped to 53⅝@53¾c and closed ½c depressed at 54@54½c.

The oats trade opened active and firm, in sympathy with wheat; July 3⅜c to 3¾c over yesterday at 48¼c to 48⅝c. There was considerable selling in sympathy with the corn break, however, and July oats dropped back to 47⅜c. Receipts were 99 cars.

There was little business done in the provisions pit, and the tone was easy. July pork opened 20c under yesterday at $16.72½; July lard a shade down at $9.37½, and July ribs 5c depressed at $9.15.

Broomhall, Liverpool, on wheat: Strongly supported at the opening with prices showing advance of 1⅜c to 1½c from Saturday. During the early morning a further gain of ½c to ⅝c was made. Support was the result of the strong cables from America, reports of manipulation in Chicago and insufficient rains in the Southwest. Some realizing occurred on the advance and prices showed a slight reaction, but a gain at midday. The undertone was strong with values showing a full recovery, September advancing an additional ⅜c. This last advance was attributed to unfavorable reports from both Russia and Roumania.

Corn—Was firm at an early advance values ⅜c higher. Distant months continued dull while near months showed additional gain of ¼c. Strength was the result of the advance in wheat and higher Danubian offerings.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago, to Paine, Webber & Co.: Wheat closed practically at the same price as yesterday. Although the range of prices was narrower than on previous days there was at all times very liberal volume of trade. Perhaps there was more eastern buying of wheat in this market and less by the public generally. The local trade appeared to be somewhat against the market all day. The character of the news is not materially changed. Kansas City market was strong at 2c advance early, owing to the absence of rain over that territory. Dispatches claimed Kansas had temperatures of 90 with high winds and the situation for wheat is becoming critical. The market was far from showing the uniform strength of yesterday and realizing sales of long wheat might easily be started by rains over the West. On good break from whatever cause would buy wheat.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 22.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 1 to 4 points which was better than due on the cables in spite of continued favorable weather reports from the South. There was some Western buying at the initial decline, and very bad private crop accounts from Georgia where it was said some replanting would be necessary for the third time, helped to steady the market which rallied to a net advance of 2@4 points shortly after the opening. Trading was fairly active on the advance with offerings increasing somewhat on a scale up and fluctuations during the middle of the morning were irregular and a shade off from the best.

MAKE A CLEAN SWEEP.

Judge's Library: When the White River branch of the Missouri Pacific railroad was completed, the first regular scheduled train was widely advertised throughout the country which it traversed. Natives came for miles around and the day had been proclaimed by the town officials as one of "Cause for jollification, learning and also a barbecue." The heretofore inland town had turned out every man, woman and child within its borders, and the small station, with its curious attractiveness and narrow capacities, was overflowing. One elderly man and the "old woman" had traveled many miles to see this, their first railway train. Being skeptical at venturing too near the depot platform while the much advertised "Ozark Limited" was speeding its mightiest over the new roadbed, they had sought safety on the highest hill near by, where their position afforded an excellent view. All of a sudden the train came crashing around the closest curve, panting, snorting and puffing, and the whistle, bell and steam cocks were sending forth their weird sounds that brought fear to all who heard. Within a second it had passed the station and was hidden from view around the hill, leaving only a streak of smoke, dust and flying papers in the patch. The pair on the farthest hill were amazed, bewildered and dumfounded. Turning to the old man the woman asked: "Well, dad, what do you think of her?" "Well, mother, that's a blasted good invention s' long as she come through here head fo'most," replied the old man, "but," he added, "if she ever comes through sideways, it'll sweep the hull dum country."

NOT THE RIGHT MAN.

A large number of readers, including many clergymen from all over the country, have entered the clerical anecdotes competition of the Church Family newspaper. The first prize goes to the Rev. G. Emery, rector of Poumaer, S. O., Glamorgan, for this:

"At a village church a wedding was fixed for a certain date. The happy morn arrived and in due course a youthful swain and faire ladye presented themselves at the chancel steps.

"The service proceeded smoothly as far as the question, 'Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?' Whereupon the supposed bridegroom stammered blushingly, 'Please, sir, I'm not the right man.' 'Not the right man,' exclaimed the clergyman, aghast. 'Then where is the right man?'

"'He's down at the bottom of the church, sir. He's asheeamed to come up.'"

Vigorous Support Caused Rally Which Was Not Maintained.

New York, May 22.—The tone of the opening stock market was very irregular. There were sharp recoveries in some stocks from yesterday's acute depression and in others there were considerable further declines. Southern Pacific, Brooklyn Rapid Transit and National Lead fell a point and American Car 5⅛. North American gained 1, and American Smelting, Kansas and Texas and Ontario and Western large fractions.

The speculative tone was very feverish throughout the first hour. Sudden and violent declines in special stocks carried down the whole list, and there a swift rebound prompted a general covering movement by the shorts. New York Central was sold over in a rapid decline of 2⅜ to 198¾ and then rebounded 2 points. Reading, after touching par, broke by wide intervals to 98⅜c and then rallied to above par. American Smelting also broke 2¼ through yesterday's low level, and Union Pacific touched 132¾. Declines of 1 to 1½ were quite numerous and Colorado & Southern first preferred fell 4, Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis preferred 4, Sloss Sheffield Steel 2½, Tennessee Coal 2¼, National Lead 1⅜ and Amalgamated Copper 1⅝. These losses were substantially reduced but the tone continued much unsettled. Union Pacific preferred sold at an advance of 4, St. Louis and San Francisco first preferred 1⅜ and Interborough-Metropolitan preferred 1.

Bidding for stocks by the bears became more animated and prices recovered quite generally to above yesterday's level. Great Northern preferred and Republic Steel preferred established gains of 2, Canadian Pacific, Northern Pacific, American Smelting and Interborough-Metropolitan preferred 1⅛ to 1⅝, Pennsylvania 1, and Pressed Steel Car preferred 2. Adams Express fell 7 and Cotton Oil preferred 2. Bonds were irregular.

A brief selling movement depressed Union Pacific, Smelting and Amalgamated Copper below yesterday's closing again, and the rest of the market also became heavy for a time. Vigorous support then developed and there was a substantial rally. Top prices were not retained long, realizing in Union Pacific and Reading causing prices to yield again.

Prices fell back under free realizing, the reaction running to about 2 points in Union Pacific, Reading and Smelting. The market steadied again before the hour expired.

The market closed below the best, but fairly steady. The demand from the shorts became urgent again and lifted prices to a substantially higher level. The gains over last night were in the neighborhood of 2 points for the Pacifics, St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Pennsylvania, Delaware & Hudson and United States Steel, and a point or more for other active stocks. American Smelting's gain reached 3⅜ and Northern Pacific 2⅜.

Stock Gossip.

New York, Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Operations started with same heavy undertone and sagging tendency that marked the closing of yesterday's market. A few of the more pessimistic traders were prominent sellers early today. No; only did they sell out their holdings, but from all appearances quite a number went short. When the bag of shorts seemed filled to its utmost then the chase started. For a time it seemed that every stock on the list was being bid for. There was no news developments and the upturn was caused by the short interest being run in. We do not believe stocks will hold and advise selling on all bulges.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: For the first time in nine days the market has been two-sided, and actually closed with a good rally. There were several attempts made to raid it but on each raid there was good buying, which finally told. There are people waiting around to buy stocks, but they are very timid and are willing to pay higher prices and be sure of their position. If London takes on a hopeful view in the morning, we think it will have a good influence here.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The selling this morning was overdone and late in the day when the shorts tried to cover they had difficulty in getting stocks. The rally was sharp and may continue for a day or two. We strongly advise selling now as we see nothing in sight to put stocks up and plenty of bad news to put them lower. As soon as this covering movement is over they will sag back again.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market conditions up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers:

MANSFIELD ON STAND

Prosecution Claims Some of His Statements Do Not Tally.

Charles H. Mansfield, who is being on an indictment charging him with forgery, was on the witness stand in his own behalf yesterday afternoon and this morning. It is conceded by all those who have followed the trial from the spectator's point of view that Mansfield is about the most remarkable witness that has been before a jury in the district court for a long time.

Victim Offered Bail.

Mansfield's persuasive powers, even under adverse circumstances are shown in the fact that Philip Mahlberg, the Duluth man whom he attempted to swindle out of $448.87 on a scheme to manufacture an artificial albumen, is said to have visited the accused in the county jail, offered to put up bail, and begged Mansfield to forget their troubles and start in business anew.

When the noon adjournment was taken today Mansfield was under cross-examination by County Attorney Norton along a line that promised something interesting at the afternoon session, as the state claims Mansfield has perjured himself time and again, and it was expected that Mr. Norton would seek to tangle him up on some of the statements that the witness made this morning.

Mansfield is accused of having forged Mahlberg's name to a check and drawn $448.87 from the Mahlberg-Mansfield Manufacturing company's account in the American Exchange bank of this city, with the intent to defraud Mahlberg, who had put up the money for the proposed business enterprise.

Denies He Signed Check.

Mahlberg claims positively that he did not sign the check in question and Mansfield swears as positively that Mahlberg did sign it. The forgery, if it is one, is a very clever piece of business as the Mahlberg signature on the disputed check closely resembles the admitted signatures of Mahlberg.

Mansfield claims to have been born in New York forty-two years ago. He has lived in Chicago for the past few years and has a wife and family. He says he was employed as a hotel clerk in various hotels in Chicago and other Illinois and Indiana cities, and for several years was manager of the Bailey restaurant in New York city. Mansfield claims that while employed in the restaurant he heard of the albumen preparations that are said to be used by some of the large bakeries and considered the idea of manufacturing the substance in this country. He claims that he went to England last fall and, after investigating the matter, purchased from the inventor the right to manufacture an artificial albumen, made solely from vegetables, to be used as a substitute for eggs in baking.

Mansfield testified that he came to Duluth late in December last, to transact some bond business with his uncle, C. G. Mansfield, and then advertised for somebody with small capital to go into the manufacturing business with himself.

Mansfield says Mahlberg answered the advertisement and they reached an agreement about a partnership enterprise. Mahlberg depositing $500 in the bank and Mansfield depositing a $500 draft on the Webster, Doan & Co., of New York city. Mansfield claims that the draft was good, that the concern named owed him $700 in commissions for bond sales and that he had notified them to be in readiness to protect his $500 draft. The police claim Webster, Doan & Co., to be a fictitious concern.

The greater part of Mansfield's testimony was given in narrative style. He explained his transactions with Mahlberg; it was agreed that all checks should be signed by Mahlberg and countersigned by Mansfield. He claimed that they both signed up two unnumbered checks in the back of the book, the amount not given, the intention being to fill them in later, when it was known what the materials would cost. Mansfield claims that as soon as he learned that the goods would cost $448.87, he filled in one of the checks, and drew the money with the intention of forwarding it in payment for goods ordered. He claimed that he sent a note to Mahlberg, stating that he, Mansfield, had been called to Ashland, on business, and would return the next day, and detailed his indignation and surprise when he found Mahlberg and an officer at the depot in Superior.

Mansfield testified that Detective Terry told him he was charged with forgery, but on cross-examination he denied that the question of forgery was raised until he was questioned in Chief Troyer's office.

Mansfield also denied that his wife knows anything about his arrest, but the state claims to have a letter that he wrote to her, telling about his trouble, and asking her to bail him out of jail.

SAW NEGROES FIRE SHOTS

Washington, May 22.—Herbert Elkins of Brownsville, Tex., a clerk in a confectionery store there, testified today before the senate committee on military affairs, which is investigating the shooting affray in the Texas town. From a room in the Leahy hotel he saw two negro soldiers come up the alley from the garrison and fire two or three shots each into the Cowan house. A group of about eight men followed and from that party he saw the flashes and heard the reports of two or three additional shots. As the men passed up the alley he said he saw shooting from the garrison and it appeared to come from the barrack of Company B. He claimed to have distinctly seen the flashes of the guns. After the bugle call had sounded at the fort he saw a group of five or six soldiers returning down the alley to the garrison. The witness told also of seeing a company of soldiers patrol the town after the shooting and as they were halted in front of the Leahy hotel he heard one of the negroes at the foot of the company remark that they would come out the next night and finish the town. He said Mrs. Leahy also heard the remark. On several important points Elkins corroborated the testimony given by other witnesses.

THE ACTOR AND ROYALTY.

Rennold Wolf in Smith's Magazine: Hypocrisy and the conventional shams of society do not flourish about William Gillette, the well known actor. He is thoroughly American—so much so, in fact, that he was guilty of a gross breach of etiquette upon the occasion of his first professional visit to England. He was appearing at the Adelphi theater in "Secret Service," and in the royal box the prince of Wales—now Edward VII—applauded enthusiastically. After the performance, word was brought to Gillette that his highness desired to meet him.

Several years later, when Gillette visited London with "Sherlock Holmes" King Edward, recalling this incident did not wait upon formality, but sought the star's dressing room immediately after the final curtain.

"Howdy do, sir," was the actor's greeting.

And England's monarch was not visibly shocked.

DESPERATE EFFORTS TO SECURE GOULD EVIDENCE

Detectives Search the Records in City of Baltimore

To Prove That Mrs. Gould Was Married There.

Dawsons Deny They Were Ever Married to Actress.

New York, May 23.—A detective attached to the New York city bureau was sent to Baltimore some time ago in an effort to substantiate a report that Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould, the former actress, had been married before her marriage to Howard Gould, according to an announcement made by a representative of the New York police department. The official, who made the announcement has had a leading part in the investigation, which has been under way for several days, to determine whether the New York city detective bureau was improperly used in connection with the Gould case. In connection with the announcement the official gave out the following telegram, which he said was a copy of one sent from Baltimore on March 26 last:

"George Dawson and Harriet Lonsdale, May 5, 1883. Can this be her?

ARGUMENTS ARE BEGUN

St. Paul, May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Arguments were begun in the United States circuit court of appeals in the case of the Utah Smelting companies, appellants, against James Godfrey and other residents of Salt Lake valley. The latter have secured a perpetual injunction against the smelting companies restraining them from operating their smelters on the ground that the fumes from the smelters carry death to the vegetation and sickness to the inhabitants.

Judge W. H. Dickson and Judge Andrew Howat represent the United States Smelting company; Waldemar Vanecil the Utah Consolidated Mining & Smelting company; John A. Street the Bingham Consolidated Mining & Smelting company. W. H. King is attorney for the complainants. The arguments will take up all of the court's time today and possibly tomorrow. It may be a month or possibly three months before the court hands down a decision in the case.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY WILL NOT FIGHT THE NEW OIL LAW IN MINNESOTA

Will Obey as Soon as Provisions Are Made Clear.

It Prohibits Any Discrimination in the Price.

Government Suit Against Company Begins on Friday.

St. Paul, May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Standard Oil company will not fight the Hinton law. It will make no effort to have the law declared invalid, but will obey the law in letter and in spirit when it ascertains from the attorney general just what the law means. This is the statement of Edward C. Stringer, attorney for the Standard Oil company, when his attention was called to the complaint made to the secretary of state Monday, that the company is violating the law.

The Hinton law prohibits any discrimination in the price of oil among communities in the state. The price on the same grade of oil must be the same at all towns, allowing, however, for difference in the cost of transportation.

Several independent oil dealers called on the secretary of state Monday and charges that the Standard Oil company is selling oil in St. Paul for 9 cents a gallon, while it sells the same oil under a different name in Stillwater and St. James for 10c, though the additional cost of transportation would warrant a difference of only a quarter of a cent in price.

JUDGE HARGIS IS ACQUITTED BY A KENTUCKY JURY

Lexington, Ky., May 23.—The jury in the case of Judge James Hargis, charged with the murder of Thomas Cockrill, this morning returned a verdict of not guilty.

Cockrill, who was marshal of Jackson, was shot in the courthouse at Jackson, June 21, 1904. He died later at Lexington, where he had been taken for medical attention. During the trial several witnesses swore that Judge Hargis, his brothers and Sheriff Ed Callahan had entered into a murder conspiracy promising immunity to anyone who would shoot Cockrill, Dr. B. D. Cox and J. B. Marcum, all three of whom have since died by shooting. The defense, however, presented testimony tending to disprove the conspiracy charge and Judge Hargis, testifying in his own behalf, denied all connection with the shooting. Curt Jett, who confessed to killing Marcum, for which he was given a life sentence, was a witness against Judge Hargis.

The next trial in this series will be called at Sandy Hook, Elliott county, next Monday, when the same defendants will be tried for the murder of Dr. B. D. Cox on April 14, 1902, a change of venue having been taken from Breathitt county.

PROTECTION OF CHILDREN

San Francisco, May 23.—The special policemen in plain clothes yesterday began an investigation into the treatment accorded women and children, who ride on the street cars, with a view to protecting them from violence, and reporting regular policemen who are derelict in their duty.

Twenty attorneys have also been appointed by the Bar association to watch the administration of justice in the police courts and endeavor to secure adequate punishment for the men who have attacked street cars and created disorders. The police are employed by the executive committee of the commercial organiaztions, and the attorneys are appointed at its suggestion.

The committee is determined that law and order shall be restored, and that justice shall be meted out to all offenders against persons, property and decency in the streets.

ANNIVERSARY OF UNITARIANS

Boston, May 23.—The fourth day of the Unitarian anniversary observances opened today with the customary morning prayer and communion service at King's chapel, conducted by Rev. Howard N. Brown, the pastor of the church. The morning address at the church was delivered by the Rev. Robert Collyer of New York.

The first meeting of the day was the sixth annual gathering of the Unitarian Historical society, also at King's chapel, at which Henry Hedes of this city presided.

The meeting of the Massachusetts convention of Congregational ministers followed at the South Congregational church, with addresses by Dr. Samuel M. Crothers and the Rev. Albert P. Fitch.

AN AUTHOR ON ANIMAL LIFE HANDS PRESIDENT A ROAST

Rev. William J. Long is Disgusted With the Executive.

New York, May 23.—In response to criticism by President Roosevelt that he had only superficial knowledge of the animals concerning which he wrote, the Rev. Dr. William J. Long, a well-known author of Stamford, Conn., is quoted today as having declared that the president is a "killer" of animals, and not a naturalist. Dr. Long defends himself against the specific charge of falsity to nature, made by the president, and does not spare biting terms in criticising Mr. Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt, in an article in a June magazine, was quoted in a general attack of writers of animal stories, who put forth as facts what are no more than interesting fictions, with animals as principals.

"William J. Long is perhaps the worst of these nature writing offenders," the president says. "It is his stories, I am told, that have been put, in part, into many of the public schools of the country, in order that from them the children may get the truths of wild animal life."

Rev. Dr. Long is a retired Congregational clergyman, a graduate of Haverford, Heidelburg and Andover, and the author of "Ways of Wood Folk," "Beasts of the Field," and other similar works.

TREASURER OF UNITED STATES SUGGESTS PLAN TO EXPAND CIRCULATION

CHARLES H. TREAT,
Treasurer of the United States, Who Says Some Changes Should Be Made in the Banking Laws.

Believes National Banks Should be Allowed to Issue

Would Provide More Money to Move Crops in Fall.

Kansas City, May 23.—Charles H. Treat, treasurer of the United States, addressed the Missouri Bankers' association, meeting here in annual convention, this morning, on "Some Comments on the Aldrich Law."

Mr. Treat said that the Aldrich law was of much benefit but that important banking laws still remain to be made. He believed that the national banks should be allowed to issue 50 per cent of their circulating notes on the basis of securities other than United States bonds deposited with the secretary of the United States treasury, such notes to be retired in four, six and eight months from Sept. 1 of each year. This plan would, he said, provide the expansion of circulation that is needed every fall to move the crops.

Referring to Secretary Cortelyou's action in depositing government money in the banks last March when the financial situation reached an acute stage, Mr. Treat said:

"This statesmanlike comprehension, this broad understanding of the fundamental as well as the practical operations of national and international finance at once secured for him the confidence of bankers throughout the world—a tribute that has probably not been bestowed upon any other new secretary of the treasury."

Mr. Treat said that no secretary of the treasury had been quicker to avail himself of all the benefits of the new legislation and put them promptly into action than Cortelyou.

STILL WITH THE STANDPATTERS

Washington, May 23.—Speaker Cannon, on having his attention called to a report which has gained currency, that he is out for tariff revision as a presidential candidate and has abandoned the standpatters, yesterday said:

"I do not know where the 'grape vine' originated. The only knowledge I have in the matter is the reports."

Mr. Cannon said further: "In the campaign of a year ago the Republican party won a victory which gave the Republicans a majority of fifty-eight in the Sixtieth congress, which organizes in December next, upon the very. "Let well enough alone," and I have no doubt that the Sixtieth congress, so elected, will be true to the pledges made in the campaign."

EXCITING ELECTIONS ARE HELD IN AUSTRIA.

Vienna, May 23.—Second ballots are being cast today throughout Australia, with the exception of Galicia and Dalmatia, in the elections which began last week under the new law providing for equal and universal suffrage. One hundred and sixty-nine seats are being contested and considerable excitement prevails. The polling in Vienna is heavy. Christian Socialists and Social Democrats came in conflict in the suburb of the Fuenfehaus, with the result that the police interfered and made a number of arrests.

STRENUOUS DAY FOR GEN. KUROKI

Boston, May 23.—Gen. Kuroki had a strenuous program of sightseeing, official calls, and receptions in Boston and Cambridge, with another day of similar experiences still to come.

The general's official day began with a breakfast at the Touraine, given by Mayor Fitzgerald, when he was presented to Governor Guild, members of the city government and prominent business men. About fifty attended the breakfast.

The general was taken in charge by Maj. Henry L. Higginson and two representatives of the Japanese society at Harvard for a visit to the state house and Harvard university.

COMPETENCY OF MRS. EDDY IN MAKING DEED MUST FIRST BE DECIDED

If That is Maintained the Plaintiffs Have No Standing in Court.

Concord, N. H., May 23.—There was an interested crowd of spectators, mostly Christian Scientists, in the Merrimack county courthouse today, when the hour arrived for the hearing of the suit brought by "next friends" of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy against Calvin A. Frye and several other Christian Scientists for an accounting of the property of Mrs. Eddy, leader and founder of the sect. Women predominated in the assemblage. Among those present in the councils of the church was Former Judge William C. Ewing of Chicago, who arrived here last night. Judge Robert W. Chamberlain presided.

Gen. Frank S. Streeter of counsel for the defense, addressed the court. This suit, he said, was brought, not by Mrs. Eddy, but without her knowledge and against her wishes. Three trustees appointed by Mrs. Eddy to take charge of her property wish to be substituted as complainants in this suit. They ask this as a matter of legal right, said Mr. Streeter, and they appear here under the authority of Mrs. Eddy's trust deed. Mr. Streeter produced the document mentioned, and it was submitted to the court.

It is admitted by both sides that this is a genuine deed, duly signed by Mrs. Eddy, and recorded. Under it the trustees took possession of Mrs. Eddy's property, and have since managed it.

Mr. Streeter managed the provisions of the deed and its directions. He laid special emphasis on the sections containing Mrs. Eddy's last policy in regard to investments directing the terminations of the trust at the death of Mrs. Eddy.

"If this deed is valid," said Mr. Streeter, "not only all Mrs. Eddy's property, but this action as well, has been transferred to the trustees, and they ask that they be allowed to carry it on. If Mrs. Eddy's competency to make this deed is regarded as material, then this question must be decided first," said Mr. Streeter. "'Next friends' action can be brought only when the nominal plaintiff is unable to protect his own interests. If the plaintiff is not thus incapacited, then the 'next friends' have no standing in the court."

Mr. Streeter quoted authority in sup-

MISSING SUPERIOR BOY FOUND IN BOX CAR WITH HIS SKULL CRUSHED IN Evidences of Crime Similiar to the Burnett Case Last Summer.

Walter O'Neil Had Been Missing From Home Since Tuesday Afternoon.

What appears to have been a practical repetition of the revolting Mitchell murder, which took place at Burnett last summer, was discovered early this morning when some laborers, working at the coke ovens in Superior, while going down the Northern Pacific tracks to work, noticed the body of a little boy lying in one of the open box cars, the head bruised and bloody, the scull crushed in as if with a blow from a plank or heavy club, and with the evidences of a revolting assault as a motive for the crime.

The coroner was at once notified, and he took the body to the morgue and notified the police. Thomas O'Neil had yesterday reported at the police station that his 11-year-old son, Walter, had been missing since Tuesday noon, when he left home for school, and he was sent for and came down to the morgue. He was horrified to find that his worst fears had been confirmed, and that the murdered boy was his son.

In the boy's pockets were found a handful of peanuts, and as it is said that he could not very well have secured them on his way to school, it is thought that perhaps it was by this means that the fiend who perpetrated the crime enticed his victim.

Police Have Clue.

The police have devoted their entire attention to the case since it was reported, and say that they have a clue which they hope may lead to the arrest of the man, but which cannot be made public until his apprehension is assured. As the crime must have been committed Tuesday afternoon the miscreant has had plenty of chance to get a good start on his pursuers if he has felt disposed to leave town.

The little fellow attended the Howe school and was very popular and well liked by all who knew him. He lived with his parents at 2440 Oakes avenue. The last seen of him was when he left home after lunch on Tuesday going in the direction of the school. When he failed to appear at home Tuesday night the father of the lad at once suspected foul play, but, remembering that he had refused to buy the lad a rifle when

If they are stylish, well-made, and varied, it is safe to infer that the more costly will be all that could be desired.

See our suits at $15, $18 and $20.00. You'll admit you never saw their equals for the money. They are made by the same manufacturers who design and create our more costly garments. Skilled merchant-tailor-like labor is back of every suit. Thus, they fit as they should, and are in every particular just as you want them to be. The patterns are different from what you'll see elsewhere; not ordinary designs, but neat and choice effects.

JEFFERSON STREET JOB IS BEGUN

Work on the nine blocks of paving on Jefferson street has been commenced. Contractor McDonnell has a force of men at work on the improvement and they are now engaged in unloading the curbing to be used on the job and in digging trenches for water services along the line of the improvement.

The big tar macadam mixer has been located at Twentieth avenue east and London road, from where all the distributing will be done. It is expected that rock from the Twenty-fourth avenue rock cut will be used for the greater part of the paving, though a portion will be hauled from the big crushing plant.

The actual work of laying the paving will, according to present plans, be begun in about three weeks and if nothing occurs to tie up the work Mr. McDonnell feels that he will have it completed by August 15.

St. Paul, May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three independent oil companies, the Corn Planter, the Bartles and the Pennsylvania Oil company, filed a complaint with the secretary of state today against the Standard Oil company alleging that the Standard sold oil cheaper in the cities than it did in the country towns where there was no competition. It is alleged that the Standard sold oil for 7½ cents in the large cities while in the small towns it charged 10 cents a gallon.

DRANK "HOFFMAN DROPS."

Charles Solimy has a combination which beats "squirrel whisky." The dope which is served up to the lumberjacks in a Bowery saloon isn't in it with Solimy's mixture. Solimy drinks "Hoffman drops."

Hoffman drops are a mixture of ether and sweet spirits of nitre, which is calculated to do up anything alive. Solimy had an eight-ounce bottle of the stuff when arrested, and about half a tablespoonful was gone, but that half tablespoonful had been sufficient to imbue the husky Finlander with a desire to commit suicide, and accordingly he plunged into the icy waters of Hughitt slip. When he felt the cold chilling him to the bone, Solimy experienced a decided change of heart, however, and when fished from the water by Officer Punder, after a session of furious howling for help, he was reasonably sober again.

TECHNICALITY HELPS.

Superior Council Dismisses Saloon Case Because of Irregularity.

After side-stepping and dodging the Hendricks' saloon issue for a number of weeks, the Superior city council, last evening, at its adjourned meeting, adroitly stepped clear around the troublesome case by deciding that it had now passed without their jurisdiction. They were assisted to this able solution of the problem by a suggestion from Attorney Cooper, Hendrick's representative, who pointed out that the petition calling for the revocation of the license was filed on April 16, and upon that date the saloon was given notice to appear before the council on April 30.

According to the statutes not more than ten, nor less than two, days' notice is to be given of such a hearing, according to Cooper's claims. He cited another irregularity, in that the city clerk had issued the summons, whereas no one but the council could do this. In consideration of this irregularity, he moved for a dismissal. City Attorney McIntosh fought the dismissal, saying the proceedings were strictly valid and would hold, but Attorney H. W. Dietrich took an opposite view and held that new proceedings would have to be started.

The council moved for a dismissal by an 11 to 7 vote.

The Civic league may bring in another petition for the revocation.

OFFERED TO DISMISS IF FORMULA WERE GENUINE

Attorney Wanted Mansfield to Demonstrate Compound in Court.

Prisoner Accepted Challenge, But the Judge Intervened.

"If Mansfield can take that formula and make an artificial albumen that is all he claims for it, the state is willing to dismiss this case," declared County Attorney Norton, in the Mansfield forgery trial this morning after he had made a vigorous attack on the Mansfield formula as a fake.

Both Mansfield and his attorney, M. H. McMahon were on their feet in an instant and accepted the offer of the county attorney.

"If I am given the opportunity," said Mansfield, earnestly, "I will be only too glad to demonstrate to this court and the jury that I can make the substance and prove that it is all that has been claimed for it."

Mr. Norton reiterated his offer and Mansfield and his counsel again declared that they would accept the terms of his offer if given the opportunity.

As there had been a few moments of spirited challenges and acceptances, the court put a quietus on the matter by remarking that the case on trial did not so much concern the genuineness of the Mansfield formula as it did the genuineness of the Mahlberg signature of the alleged forged check for the $448.87.

Judge Cant said that a test of the formula might have some influence with the jury as going to show whether there was an intent to defraud and that if, later, a test should be found necessary, it could be made. The court, in view of the statement of Mansfield that it would take some eight or ten days to get all the ingredients necessary to manufacture an artificial albumen for "angle cake" and "kisses," decided that it would not be advisable to hang up the trial that long.

Witnesses in Rebuttal.

Chief Troyer and John Marshall, clerk of the Lenox hotel, were the first rebuttal witnesses called by the state. Chief Troyer said Mansfield told him how he came to discover the artificial albumen in London, that he had obtained the American right of manufacture at a cost of $2,000. The witness also said that Mansfield told him the substance would cost about 20 cents a gallon to manufacture and could be sold for 80 cents to $1 per gallon.

"When I questioned Mansfield at headquarters," said Chief Troyer, "I asked him why, if he had such a good thing, he came clear out to the Zenith hotel looking for strangers with a small capital when he had so many friends with money whom he should have been pleased to put up against a proposition that he claimed to have."

Mr. Marshall testified that he had never seen Mansfield bring a package to the Lenox hotel, that he had made a thorough search of the hotel and was unable to find a package bearing the defendant's name.

Impossible Formula.

L. J. McDonald, a chemist for the Leithhead Drug company, who has had sixteen years' experience in his business, declared that one of the ingredients in the Mansfield formula for artificial albumen was an impossible chemical combination. Two of the other ingredients Mr. McDonald claimed he never heard of, nor was he able to find any mention of them in the standard reference books in chemistry or botany.

County Attorney Norton took up each substance in the formula and questioned Mr. McDonald closely for information as to their principles. One of the substances, the witness said, is commonly called soap-bark and is very poisonous. Other of the substances were of mineral or vegetable composition.

Under cross-examination by Mr. McMahon the witness said he had never heard of soap-bark being used in the manufacture of beer.

"If it was," interjected Mr. Norton, sarcastically, "it was probably the part that is blown off the top of the glass."

Mr. Norton Sums Up.

With Mr. McDonalds testimony both sides rested and, after a recess, County Attorney Norton began his arguments for the state. He claimed there was absolutely no reason why Phillip Mahlberg, who had recovered his money and who felt no bitterness toward Mansfield should testify falsely to things which he knew meant a term of imprisonment for Mansfield if the jury believed him. Mr. Norton then claimed that Mansfield had his liberty at stake and laid stress on the conditions that might make him swear falsely to save himself. Mr. Norton claimed that Mansfield forged the check, drew the money, and would have made his "get-away" had he not "crossed his wires and became short-circuited." As for the opportunity that Mansfield had to commit the alleged forgery, the county attorney claimed the evidence showed the defendant had the Mahlberg check for the rent of the store in his possession for some hours and nothing would have been easier than for the defendant, an expert penman, to sit down and with the genuine signature of Mahlberg before him and forge the $448.87 check.

The arguments for the defense were to be made this afternoon. It was expected that the case would reach the jury by 4 o'clock.

An interesting turn was given the trial yesterday afternoon when Vernon Van Dusen, who claims to have known Mansfield at Mayville, N. Y., some fifteen years ago, went on the stand as a witness for the state and testified that Mansfield's true name is Charles Carlson. The state claims that the defendant has a son named Charles Carlson and a daughter named Blanch Carlson.

Mnsfield, who was called in rebuttal for the defense, claimed that he adopted the name of Carlson because all his letters received at the county jail had been opened before they reached him. He claimed the fact the county attorney knew the alias was proof that the letters had been opened.

A. A. Farrington, one of the district court stenographers testified that in his opinion the contract purporting to have been made with the German inventor, giving Mansfield the American right of manufacture of the artificial albumen, and the contract of partnership with Mahlberg, were struck off on the same typewriter in Mansfield's office in this city.

DISSATISFIED FACTION.

Columbus, Ohio, May 23.—When the Presbyterian general assembly convened today, it was said that the faction which is dissatisfied at the endorsement yesterday afternoon of the Anti-Saloon league as a "safe and sane" organization, would bring up a resolution striking out these words in the resolution of endorsement. The conservative element of the assembly made every effort to keep the matter from again getting to the floor of the assembly.

Kansas City was expected to be selected for the next meeting although Denver, Seattle, Hot Springs and Atlantic City were after it. The important matter presented to the assembly today was the report on marriages and divorces.

Relief from Rheumatic Pains.

"I suffered with rheumatism for over two years," says Mr. Rolland Curry, a patrolman, of Key West, Fla. "Sometimes it settled in my knees and lamed me so I could hardly walk, at other times it would be in my feet and hands so I was incapacitated for duty. One night when I was in severe pain, and lame from it, my wife went to the drug store here and came back with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I was rubbed with it and found the pain had nearly gone during the night. I kept on using it for a little more than two weeks and found that it drove the rheumatism away. I have not had any trouble from that disease for over three months." For sale by all druggists.

LINOLEUM FOR CARPETS.

Brooklyn Eagle: There seems to be a possibility of carpets being displaced as a floor covering in future by linoleum. As our appreciation of sanitation in the home grows, the sale of linoleum increases. A few years ago it was used only for bathrooms and kitchens, but recently it has been turned out in varied and really beautiful designs that make it appropriate for halls, libraries, and even for drawing rooms and bedrooms, the patterns being those one is used to see in the best grades of carpets.

Linoleum has many advantages over carpets, principally that it is impervious to water or dust, can be cleaned easily, and that its durability is almost unlimited. The old printed linoleum used to lose its color and design after constant use, but the present highgrade material, inlaid or mosiac, as it is called, holds its design as long as the material is intact.

The use of linoleum as a floor covering has increased enormously in the past ten or fifteen years. It is used almost exclusively in all hospitals where any covering at all is used on the floors, on ships, ferries, in public buildings, and now is being introduced generally into private homes. In many of the homes of the poor, it is the floor covering because it is cleaned easily and wears well. Here the cheaper kinds are used, of course. The inlaid linoleums are only for well to do, because they are as expensive as carpets, ranging in price from $1.10 a yard to $1.75.

It is only within the past fifteen years that inlaid linoleum has been made, and the elaborate patterns one sees now were introduced. The designs imitate parquet floors perfectly, and there are beautiful patterns in soft colorings that are suitable for any room.

The inlaid linoleum made in this country is chiefly made in separate strips or blocks according to the design, and then pressed together. Much of the imported is cast in a solid piece. The foundation materials of which linoleum is manufactured are linseed oil—It is the Latin term for those two words that linoleum gets its name—and ground cork. Some resinous matter is usually introduced and in cheaper grades wood pulp is often used.

The waste of the cork industry is utilized, the raw material consisting of bits of cork about a cubic inch in size. These are cut by machine into smaller pieces and finally ground into a fine dust. The powder is mixed with oxidized linseed oil, the resins introduced and the mixture, which is like putty, is spread on a surface of burlap varnished on the under side to render it impervious to water. For the inlaid, the various parts of the pattern are made in separate molds and then, under a twenty-ton weight, pressed together. When the material is to be printed it is allowed to dry for several weeks and then the pattern is applied by means of a printing press or machine. In the imported inlaid goods where the whole pattern is cast at once there is a large metal mold which is made at great expense. Each color is laid on separately.

An enormous amount of linoleum is imported into this country from England, Scotland and Germany, and a little of the cheaper quality from Belgium, and there are several large factories in the United States. The European countries can import their goods here and sell at as low or lower price than the American manufacturer can. The manufacture of linoleum is an industry of the past fifty years, though the elaborate styles now in use have been known only for little more than a decade. The manufacture originated in England. It is undoubtedly one of the growing industries, because linoleum has everything to recommend it as a floor covering an dfew drawbacks, since it has begun to appear in patterns that are not distressing to the eye.

The first factory for the making of linoleum in this country was established thirty-five years ago, on Staten Island, by a company called the American Manufacturing company. Started on a small scale the company has grown enormously, and has given a name to the little town that is made up of its workers and their families, Linoleumville is on the southwest of Staten Island. The factory employs 1,000 workers, chiefly men with a few girls. It does not make its own linseed oil, so it is not the malodorous affair to its neighborhood that some of the other American factories are.

In some factories where the linseed oil is made the pots of oil are stirred by the workmen, instead of by machinery, as they should be, and very harmful effects result from their exposure to the fumes and the terrible heat. There is said to be danger, also, where precautions are not taken against it, from the effects of the flying particles of cork. They are very fine and easily blown about by the least breath of wind, consequently find their way into the nose and lungs of the operatives.

Most of the linoleum factories in this country are centered in the East. There is one in Camden, N. J.; one in Kearny, N. J.; one in Trenton, two in Philadelphia and one in Chicago.

The linoleum is used more extensively in European countries than it is in America, being manufactured in larger quantities there, but it is rapidly increasing in popularity here. Many houses here that import from Germany and England have artists to make designs, and they are sent to the factories abroad, as foreign patterns are not always pleasing to us.

After linoleum is made it has to be spread out in great lengths and exposed to varying temperatures in order to season or mature it. This process of drying lasts several months, varying with the weather. Moist weather or very hot weather interferes very much with the process.

Before the inlaid material was introduced, linoleum used to be made in yard wide width, now it is two yards in width, or two metres, as the Germans make and measure it. It is made a quarter of an inch in thickness. Because the oil used in the manufacture is not entirely oxidized in the process of making, the oxidization continues for a while after the goods are made, and that is what gives an odor to the fresh material.

One of the most modern purposes to which linoleum is put is as a covering for floors of stables of fine trotting horses. It is found excellent for that use and the most expensive grade is sometimes chosen. There are constantly growing uses to which the material is put, and it is altogether possible that, with the present improvements continuing, it will come into general use wherever floor coverings are needed.

BACKWOODS COURAGE.

The first thing we wanted to know about was the accident which accounted for Hickory's clumsy walk, says a descriptive writer in Forest and Stream. We had heard in a general way about it, and knew he had shown good nerve in getting out of it; but we wanted his own version of the experience.

"Well," said Hickory, looking down at his feet and moving them a little as he spoke of their unnatural shape, "it was a close call for that end of me. You see, my teamin was drawin' stone from the new quarry up on Coldbrook mountain, and they was gettin' out some pretty big ones there. They got out one that measured up thirteen tons, and I told the boys I'd ride that down myself. I shut up a couple of wagons (took the reaches out, and coupled the front and rear axles as closely as the wheels would allow) and put railroad ties on for bed pieces. Then I put a timber across the bed pieces on each wagon for bolsters and hitched the wagons together. When the stone was loaded it lay as light as a feather on the bolster, and I sat in the front end of it, with my feet on the bed pieces. We had to brake it pretty tight, for the road is terrible steep; but we got down the mountain all right, and most out to the unloadin' derrick without so much as bustin' a trace chain. Then, all of a sudden, the hind ex of the front wagon went down and let the stone dip forward. It caught my feet and doubled them up against the bed piece just as easy as if they'd been yarn mittens.

There wasn't but two men there—my boy and another fellow—and they tried every way they could think of to get me loose; but they couldn't budge that stone, and I was afraid they was goin' to kill themselves pryin' and liftin.' All the time there stood that derrick, not more than a hundred feet away, that could lift it just as easy as you'd lift a piece of pie, but it wasn't no use to us. Well, after about twenty minutes I see they couldn't do it no way, and I told them to give me an ax. Then I held it in one hand and shipped and split a notch out of the timber one foot big enough so that it let it loose. You see the tie was so wide that there was timber left to hold the stone after I'd cut out a chunk the width of my foot. I did it myself, for I was afraid the men would cut my foot, they were so excited and flustered with their liftin' and strainin.' When I'd got one out, they see how it was done, and was some cooled down, so they cut the other out, for I couldn't use the ax left handed.

"When the doctor got there," Hickory continued, "and said he could fix my fet up without cuttin' him off, I was pretty tickled, for they didn't look much better than mincemeat to start on. That's why I hain't been here before. I heard you fellows was here, but I couldn't get around much, and now my shoes are half full of suffin' to fill out the parts that's gone."

The visit drifted from one subject to another, until we noticed that Hickory was rather more particularly dressed than usual. His clothing had a newness about it, and there was a little dash of bright color in his necktie which gave us suspicions. The suspicions pointed to a certain widow whom he had heard of. Just as they were taking their parting drink, Henry put his hand on Hickory's sleeve, and patting the new cloth, asked some questions about the widow. Then the man who had courage enough to cut himself out from under a thirteen-ton stone, blushed and stammered like a school boy.

PLENTY OF PARENTS.

Paris News: At Quimper, in Brittany, the wife of a man named Le Saux gave birth to a boy. The father took the child and sold it for £8 to the wife of the local butcher, Mme Bonan. The woman presented it to her husband as her own newly born infant and Bonan hastened to register the child's birth.

Le Saux fearing that he might get into trouble with the police, next consulted the butcher, whom he supposed to be a party to the fraud. The duped husband threw Le Saux out of the house. The latter then registered the birth of his own child. In the eye of the law, therefore, the infant has claims on two separate families and enjoys the unique distinction of being the son of two mothers.

HOTEL COUNTER SARCASM.

San Francisco Chronicle: Some sharp pieces of sarcasm flash across the hotel counters at times. The other night an unkempt individual drifted into the Imperial, whose appearance did not prove at all satisfactory to the clerk.

"Sorry, we shall have to ask you to settle in advance," said the clerk. "But you see we don't know you—"

The response of the arrival was cool.

"What difference does that make?"

"Well, so many swindlers have done us lately, you see—"

"Oh, I thought there was professional courtesy among swindlers." And he walked out indignantly.

MORRISON'S

MODERN TAILORING HOUSE,

No. 8 Lake Avenue South.

Duluth, Minn., May 23, 1907.

Dear Sir: There never was a time when good clothes were worth as much to you as they are today. As a matter of fact, you can better afford to cut down almost any of your other bills than your clothing bill, for never before were good clothes as much of a business asset as now. Most people who buy ready-made clothes do so expecting to save either time or money. As a matter of fact, they do neither.

When you come here and have our four hundred patterns of actual suitings—not samples merely—to select from, at prices not any more than you would pay for any ready-made that you would care to wear. When you can get the best of trimmings, splendid work, a fine fit, your clothes made especially for you in a day or two, it's good business foresight to leave your order here as soon as you can.

New "Y" About Finished.

The street railway company expects by this evening to have finished the welding work on the new "Y" it has constructed at Lake avenue and Superior street. The welding process always attracts a crowd and yesterday a policeman had to be stationed at the work to keep people out of the way of the workmen. The construction work is of the heaviest rails used for the purpose and some of the new manganese steel switches have been installed. The "Y" will permit of cars being turned at Lake avenue when it is so desired.

Shipping Much Ore.

Indications are that the month of May will be a record breaker in the matter of ore shipments by the three roads tapping the Minnesota iron ranges. The shipments by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern so far this month are something more than 1,125,000 tons and it looks as though the total shipments for the month would be more than 1,500,000 tons.

Expects Good Crop.

A. D. McRae of Winnipeg, who is in the city on business, says that the wheat seeding in Manitoba and other wheat areas of Canada is now completed and although it is now late he thinks that the good growing weather expected in June will bring the crop forward in satisfactory manner. He estimates that there is less acreage seeded to wheat in Canada this year than last season.

ODD LAUNCHING CEREMONY.

A novel launching took place recently at Bombay. A 115-ton yacht had been built from designs by William Fife. The constructor, while the yacht was on the ways, sang a prayer. The launching was on the thirteenth of the month, and unfortunately the yacht stuck on the ways. The London Field thus describes the ceremonies:

A yacht, designed by Fife and built by Doolubdas Ruttonji, sounds somewhat of a novelty. The Bombay Gazette of Feb. 16 contains, however, an account extending to nearly two columns describing a really very fine 115-ton yacht, which Mr. Scovell, who some years ago sailed the 30-ton cutter Godwit across the Indian ocean, a rather risky bit of navigation, has had built for him at Tank Bunder, Bombay, by one Doolubdas Ruttonji, a native of Damaun. The vessel is named Muriel, 115 T. M., 77 tons displacement, 19 metres rating by the international rule. She is built of teak throughout, except the decks, which are Cowrie pine; she has twenty-three tons of lead on the keel and is fitted with two 23-horse power Gardner oil engines to drive her six knots, similar to those put into Kenneth Clark's ketch.

"She is classed at Lloyds, and a great feature of the vessel is the arrangement of her ventilation. Besides fifteen large scuttles, the yacht is provided with eleven copper wind cowls, while in addition she has twin skylights over the saloon and after cabin. The yacht was launched with great ceremony, being the first large vessel of the kind built in India, and her enterprising constructor, while she was upon the stocks, sang a prayer for the success of the craft, her owner, his family, and that the Muriel might be saved from 'merciless pelting of howling tempest from air and sea,' the appeal, which was of great length, closing with the words, 'Be piteous to me. Be piteous to me. I am your child and also your record. Hoping to acknowledge my humble petition, I close my prayer, my dearest gentlemen, with fair sound and fullest cheer. By the blessing of God and grace of my Lord, your most obedient servant Doolubdas Ruttonji.'

"Unfortunately, however, the first attempt to launch the yacht was made on the thirteenth of the month, and she stuck fast on the ways, so the occasion lost some of its splendor. A day or two afterward she was successfully towed off by a tug, and there is no doubt Mr. Scovell is now in possession of a very smart vessel."

AN EXPENSIVE ROW.

Baltimore American: When in Maine a few summers ago Miss Aphie James, of the Louis James company, had a most amusing experience in a gloomy background.

Miss James was stopping at one of the fashionable hotels not far from the Androscoggin river. Desiring to take a row one day, she engaged a small boat from a farmer who lived near the bank of the stream, and started out early in the morning, and did not return until about 1 o'clock.

Fastening the boat to a tree, she went up to the farmer's house and asked what she owed him.

"How long have you had the boat?" he asked.

Since 8 this morning," Miss James replied.

"Gee Whillikins!" he exclaimed, "you've had that boat five hours, and, b'gosh, I've got to charge you for it."

"Well, how much?" she asked.

"Now, see here, madam, I don't want to take advantage of your being a New Yorker, but I can't afford to do business at a cheap rate, so I will have to charge you 25 cents for the use of that boat."

FAVORABLE TO JOHNSON

Westerners Think He Would Make Good Presidential Candidate.

St. Paul, May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank A. Day, secretary to Governor Johnson, is home from the Pacific coast, where he has been the past ten days, attending to a mining deal. He says he struck pay dirt and is now letting in his friends.

Mr. Day was asked concerning the presidential chances of his chief, so far as the West was concerned, and he declared they could not be better. Bryan, however, he found to be the choice in Washington.

"I had a talk with the Democratic leaders," said Mr. Day, "and while they are favorably disposed to Johnson, should he care to get into the contest, they thought it entirely too early to do anything or make any promises now. With Mr. Bryan out of the way—and he has the call out West—the opinion was general that Governor Johnson would in every way be acceptable and would receive the full support of the Democratic forces there."

THE DIFFERENCE.

Los Angeles Times: Attorney General Hadley of Missouri condemned, in an address at Topeka before the State Bar association, certain trust methods.

"I am sure," he said, "that we all want to see laws enacted that will give a square deal to everybody—the same deal to the poor and friendless widow as to the great corporation. I am sure we all want to see wiped out that accusation of unfairness, of favoritism toward the money power, that is made against courts and the workings of courts. We want, all over the world, as little as possible of that taint which is exemplified in the anecdote of the Syracuse widow. 'This lady lost every cent she possessed through the peculations of some dishonest bank officials. In discussing the matter with her, a minister said, soothingly:

"'The thieves will be punished, maybe. They're committed for trial.'

"'Yes,' said the widow, 'they're committed for trial, it is true; and my child and I are condemned to hard labor for life.'

A BUTTERFLY FARM.

In ancient Bexley, whose population is much less than that of some of the suburbs of London, is to be found one of the most remarkable examples of modern enterprise. Six years ago a certain young man put this terse question to himself: "Bookkeeping or butterfly breeding?" He arrived at the decision that the latter offered a quicker and more congenial way to fortune than clerking, and thereupon, says The Boy's Own Paper, commenced to build up the butterfly farm to be seen at Bexley today.

Altogether Mr. Newman has about 30 different species of butterflies and moths on his farm in all stages and conditions. The most costly butterfly among them is the purple emperor, or king of the forest, so named because it is usually to be found flying over the top of oak trees. A male specimen of this insect is worth 4s and a female 3s.

The price of the ova, larvae and pupae, which Mr. Newman sells, vary, of course, according to the species. For instance, a dozen of the ova of the drinker, a very common moth, can be purchased for 3d, while the same quantity of the comma butterfly would cost six times that amount. Then, again, a dozen of the larvae of the small tortoise shell cost but 4d, while a dozen rannock sprawlers could not be purchased for less than 2s6. The pupae are sold at so much each, the prices ranging from 1½d for a painted lady, satin moth or scalloped hook tip to is 9d for a scarce burnished brass.

Mr. Newman's customers are almost as varied as his species. Schoolboys are enthusiastic collectors of caterpillars, which they like to breed themselves.

Once in a year you may find a good tenant by chance—through "happenstance." But a Herald want ad. will find him for you at the time you want him.

CONCERNING WOMEN

A small girl on West Superior street wants a brother. From the way she goes at things she is not one to placidly sit down and hope and pensively wish for things. So long as there are people in the world to bring one the things that one desires, why not go after them with one's whole soul, instead of sitting on the front door step and wishfully watch the blue clouds go bye. The little girl who lives on West Superior street undoubtedly is a crisp little girl, with tight braids, and she will undoubtedly develop into a capable woman.

She has sent a letter, addressed to "Dear Stork, Duluth, Minn." When one reads the interesting birth reports for this thriving city, one almost believes that the address is all right. By some master stroke of that unreasoning institution, the postoffice, the letter was delivered to The Herald. Without any kindly editing, the letter is as follows:

"Dear stork pleas can you bring me a baby brother I am 8 years old and I want a little brother to play with and I will help to take care of him I will take him out every day after school I will share all my candys and all pennys I will take him to school with me when he is big enough will you bring him soon one that is pritty with blue eyes."

That no mistake could possibly be made the small and ardent writer adds her name and address. One dislikes to think of the longing for a reply which the young woman must be going through since those intervening days. The habitat of the stork, and its methods of distributing its blessings is a matter of conjecture, of course, and there is no comfort that one can hold out to the small and throbbingly expectant sister.

BUILDING COMMITTEE

Of Y. W. C. A. to Meet to Consider Plans.

The building fund of the local Young Women's Christian association has passed the $122,000 mark, and, although the efforts have far from ceased, the other committees of the association are planning to have everything in such condition that when the last donation of the $130,000 is received everything will be in readiness for prompt and immediate action. A meeting of the building committee, of which Mrs. J. A. Watterworth is chairman, will be held tomorrow evening at the association rooms. The amount of money already subscribed makes the leading features of the new home possible, but the thing that the board of directors and those most interested in the association most desire, are the extra rooms which may be rented to the young workingwomen at a nominal cost, providing them with clean and cheerful surroundings. To the people who know the conditions of the young workingwomen intimately, this will be the most desirable feature of the association home, and the object for which they are working valiantly. The need in Duluth at the present time is an urgent one and during the years to come, this need will be greater. The action and discussions of the building committee will be awaited with interest by the friends of the association.

SPRING MUSICALE.

A large audience greeted the pupils of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Tyler last evening at the spring musicale at the Lyceum and the program was listened to with much interest. The recitals of the Tyler Vocal Art school are always heard with interest by Duluth audiences, for at each one the debut of promising young students of vocal art is made and the public interested in the development of musical culture in the city watches the progress of the pupils with interest. Last evening's program presented an exceptional number of fresh young voices that displayed the beginning of the careful tuition that promises much for the future.

A special feature of last evening program was the singing of the song cycle "Flora's Holiday" by H. Lane Wilson, a charming arrangement of old English tunes, sung by Misses Anna Hugo, soprano, Marie Clark, mezzo soprano, and Messrs. Leon Cooley, tenor and George Suffel, baritone. The cycle consists of nine numbers in quartets and solos, and each number was sung with the sprightly daintiness and charm which the text demanded.

The songs of Miss Hazel Harris, who was heard in the Lehman songs set to the verses of Robert Louis Stevenson "Every Night My Prayers I Say," and "The Captain," were sung with dainty charm. Her voice has rounded out since her last appearance. A duet "Pescatori," by Gabussi, sung by Messrs. Suffel and Koneczny, was well received. The solos were presented by Misses Gertrude deNoble, Gertrude Wallace, Lauretta Rietz, Edna Munsey, Ethelyn Abbott, and Mrs. E. P. Kreimer and Messrs. J. Glowinsky, Harry Lanners, Herman Oesterriech, Annar Myhre, JohnnKoneczny, Roy Pritz and Louis Dworschak.

The accompaniments were played in a most satisfactory manner by Miss Elizabeth Morton, who was to have been heard in the piano solo, but, owing to an accident to the grand piano, was unable to play. A violin solo by Oliver Colbentson "Souvenir de Moscow," by Wienaski, was well played and Mr. Colbentson responded to an encore. The theatre was filled with a large and appreciative audience.

Quiet Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Blanch Murray of West Duluth and Garfield Blackwood took place last evening at the home of Rev. W. J. Lowrie of West Duluth. The service was read by Mr. Lowrie at 9 o'clock and there were no attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Blackwood will be at home on Park Point.

Piano Recital.

Pupils from the piano class of Mrs. M. E. Thorburn appeared in a recital last evening at the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association. A large audience of friends of the young students were present. A reading by Miss Irene Wardell and a vocal solo by Ray Westaway gave variety to the program. The piano solos were played by Romona Tunell, Muriel Hobbs, Daisy Smart, Ella Johnson, Winnifred Mahon and Lubers were played by Helen and Margaret Cant and by Luella Neff and Mabel Anderson.

BEHIND THE TIMES

By Martha T. Freeman.

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Until she was 68 years of age, Mrs. Hubbell had never been over ten miles away from her native town, which being, as its younger population grumblingly declared, "way out of the world," it was not strange that the old lady was sadly behind the times.

Upon the death of her husband, Mrs. Hubbell discontinued housekeeping, and made her home with the elder of her two children, Mrs. Jane Stebb. Mrs. Stebb, on the strength of having spent a part of her honeymoon in New York city, quite prided herself on her knowledge of the world, and was entirely content to settle down for the remainder of her life on her husband's farm—her interests and ideas, and those of James, her husband bounded by the stone wall and rail fences that bounded their land.

The home of John, Mrs. Hubbell's younger child, had been, since his boyhood, in a distant city, with a wealthy and childless uncle, who had bestowed upon him a liberal education, and afterwards established him in business, but a few months previous to the time of our story, John had left his uncle's house, and with a fair domestic partner, established a home of his own, or, in his mother's homely phraseology, "John had got married an' gone to housekeepin'."

Mrs. Hubbell and her daughter were prevented from attending John's wedding, and several months passed without their having made the acquaintance of the bride, but at length, influenced partly by natural curiosity concerning her and partly by John's urgent invitations, they decided to brave the perils of the way, which seemed very formidable to Mrs. Hubbell, and pay him a visit.

"I can't stay more than a fortnight at the most," said Mrs. Stebb as they were laying their plans, "but there's nothing to hinder you from staying as long as you like."

Within a few days Mrs. John had completely captivated her husband's relatives, and within the same time their unconventional but kindly ways quite won Mrs. John's heart. But while heartily approving of John's wife, Mrs. Hubbell and her daughter did not altogether approve of his home surroundings, as the following conversation goes to show:

"Louisy's as good-lookin' a woman as I ever see," observed Mrs. Hubbell to her daughter one evening, as they prepared to retire.

"I declare, Janey," continued Mrs. Hubbell, "the more I see of how mean and poverty-stricken some things about the house be, the more I wonder how Louisy can keep up her sperits the way she does."

"I've thought of the same thing, ma," said Mrs. Stebb, "and I think all the more of Louisa for not making excuses about her things; I suppose she knows they're the best John can afford, and so she acts just as she would if they were the best in the land."

"So had I," said Mrs. Stebb.

"I declare, I was beat the first time I went into the parlor an' see how mean an' scrimped things was there," Mrs. Hubbell went on; "take that faded old carpet, now—it likely was made a present to Louisy by some of her folks, an' I suppose she an' John thought 'twould save buyin' a new one, and so they put it down, though it don't come up to the wall by a good foot all 'round, and to think of her hanging up those plates and platters on the wall, because they can't afford to buy pictures enough. It's too bad, how the poor child has had to put up with all the old trumpery," said Mrs. Hubbell, in mild indignation, as she laid her head on the pillow, and hour after hour, while her daughter slumbered at her side, the old lady lay wide awake thinking over the indications of her son's poverty that surrounded her on every hand, and devising a certain scheme for the bettering of his household appointments.

Sight seeing and other pleasures made the days fly, and all too quickly, Mrs. Stebb's visit drew to an end. As she was packing her trunk on the day previous to her departure, Mrs. Hubbell revealed to her the scheme which she had devised in the night watches.

"Janey," she began, "I've made up my mind to give Louisy my best set o' furniture, an' the three-ply carpet!" said Mrs. Hubbell, bringing the words out very slowly in order to gradually prepare her daughter for the stupendous announcement.

"Well, Ma, I guess you're right," said Mrs. Stebb, as, after thinking the matter over for a moment, her face brightened; "I had sort o' lotted on that set, but Louisa does need it a good deal more than I'm likely to for years to come."

"You're a good girl, Janey; there isn't a selfish hair in your head," said Mrs. Hubbell, approvingly. "You must be sure an' hev Simon wrap it up very careful, an' don't start it off till I write fur you to; I want to wait till I get a good chance to s'prise Louisy.

"All right, ma; and, dear me, won't Louisa be a glad and thankful woman when she sees it!" said Mrs. Stebb.

"An', Janey," said Mrs. Hubbell, as at the sound of the dinner-bell she rose, "you had better hev Simon box the best clock up, an' the big lookin' glass, an' send it along with the furniture."

For several weeks after Mrs. Stebb's return home, Mrs. Hubbell watched and waited in vain for a favorable opportunity to put into execution her project for surprising her daughter-in-law. At length one day John came to his mother and said that Louisa was about to make a short visit to a sister.

Mrs. Hubbell, senior, gladly assumed authority over her son's household, and congratulated herself upon the opportunity thus presented for the carrying out of her plans.

"Nothin' could a' suited me better," she said to herself in great delight, as on the day after her daughter-in-law's departure, she wrote to Mrs. Stebb an account of the situation, and requested that her gift be sent on without delay.

In a few days Mrs. Hubbell received from Mrs. Stebb a notification that the furniture was on its way.

"John," she said to her son at breakfast, on the day on which it was to arrive, "Janey has been sendin' me some things from home, an' James writes that they're goin' to get here today, an' I wish you'd send a good, stiddy man from the store to help me with 'em. They're heftier than me an' Katy can manage alone."

"Very well, mother, I will send Murphy; he is a strong, accommodating young fellow," said John.

Murphy, accordingly soon made his appearance, and a scene of great activity ensued. Katy was summoned from the kitchen to help.

All was ready, therefore, for the furniture when it arrived, and as it did so in excellent condition, Mrs. Hubbell's mind was greatly relieved, and she carried forward the work of refurnishing the parlor with much enthusiasm.

On the day upon which Mrs. John was to return, Mrs. Hubbell not only dusted, but thoroughly swept the parlor, and then she arrayed herself in her best cap and dress, and awaited Mrs. John's return.

"Here they be!" she exclaimed, as John's latch-key rattled in the door, and hastening down, she met Mrs. John in the hall.

Thinking best to defer administering the surprise until her daughter-in-law was refreshed, Mrs. Hubbell kept the parlor door locked until they had had their dinner, then, throwing the door wide open, she led the way in. Mrs. John took one step forward into the room, and then gave a sort of gasp, and stopped as suddenly as if she had instantaneously undergone the curse of Lot's wife, only her eyes remained active. John, too, after the first step, stopped short, exclaimed: "Hello!" under his breath, and then began to slowly revolve, in order to obtain a more satisfactory view of his surroundings.

"It's a present from me to you an' John, Louisy," said Mrs. Hubbell, complacently. "I saved up the money, dollar by dollar, that this set was bought with, Louisy," Mrs. Hubbell continued, "an' I always set a deal o' store by it. But when I come here an' see how bad off you was for furn'ture—a faded old carpet on the floor, an' that didn't begin to cover it at that, an' nothin' but odds an' ends o' cheers an' sech, an' not even pictures enough fur the walls, so that you had to hang up plates an' platters to make up for the lack, an' a side-board to help fill up—an' when I see how (fur all your things was so poor like) you kep' up your sperits, an' never found fault, an' was so pleasant an' good to Janey and me, then it come into my head t' s'prise you by makin' you a present o' my own parlor set, so's you could hold up your heads with anybody."

"You dear, kind mother!" said Mrs. John, as with lips twitching strangely she impulsively embraced the old lady; "how funny—I mean, how good of you!"

"Yes, mother, it was generous and good of you," said John, as he vigorously pulled his mustache.

"Well, I'm glad you like it," said Mrs. Hubbell, much gratified at these expressions of appreciation.

"But, mother," said Mrs. John, after a moment's hesitation, "I really don't deserve either your praise or this—this beautiful furniture."

"Why don't you?" inquired Mrs. Hubbell, in much surprise.

"Because our furniture was not poor, mother dear, and so there was no merit in my putting up with it," said Mrs. John very humbly.

"No, mother, it was only fashionable," said Mrs. John, who by this time could no longer control her risabilities, and burst into a hearty laugh, in which she was joined by her husband.

"Fash'nable!" echoed Mrs. Hubbell, as she threw up her hands and looked very blank.

"Yes, mother, they were all fashionable," repeated Mrs. John; "the faded carpet was a Persian rug, and cost a great deal of money. And the platters and plates, mother dear, were plaques, and made to hang on walls," Mrs. John went on.

"Dear me, an' I and Katy pile 'em on the top shelf o' the pantry!" said Mrs. Hubbell; "an' the sideboard, I suppose that was fashionable too."

"That wasn't a sideboard, mother," said Mrs. John, laughing, "it was a cabinet, and the dishes in it were very rare and expensive."

"Well, I never!" exclaimed Mrs. Hubbell, laughing too, for by this time the humor of the situation had partially overcome her mortification "I thought you'd put 'em in there, because they was odd pieces that wouldn't do fur the table. Well," continued Mrs. Hubbell, laughing again, "the long an' short on it is, I've made an old goose o' myself, an' the best thing I can do now is to send my furn'ture right back to Janey. If fashions has changed so here, they'll be changin' there before many years, an' she may as well hev the good of it, an' take what she's got for her settin' room."

And so Mrs. Hubbell's best set came, after all, into the possession of Mrs. Stebb, who received it gladly. Fashion or no fashion," she said to her husband, "I'd a good deal rather have it than all the things in Louisa's parlor put together."

"Just so," said Mr. Stebb, approvingly; "and," he added, with a twinkle in his eye, "if fashionable company comes and hints at wanting odds and ends, why we can invite 'em to take a seat up garret."

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Dandy Dixie Minstrels.
BIJOU—High Class Vaudeville.

The Dixie Minstrels.

The largest and most pretentious aggregation of colored minstrels on the road at the present time are the "Dandy Dixie Minstrels" who will be seen at the Lyceum this evening and tomorrow night.

The company comes from the East and comprises more than forty singing and dancing comedians. James Crosby, the tall tailed is featured in the cast, and his monologue was one of the hits of the New York Roof Garden last summer. "The Cotton Pickers' band" is one of the features of the production, and the olio contains many excellent specialties.

Change of Bill.

This afternoon, tonight, and all the rest of the week, "A Parisian Princess" will be the offering of the Frank E. Long Stock company at the Metropolitan. This is said to be one of the strongest pieces in the company's list. Nana Sullivan, F. H. Cummings, Erin Lacey, Ben J. Lauder, Frank Long, George Solden, C. T. Jackson and May Treat Rella, have important roles. There will be another bargain matinee Saturday. The number of ladies who attend the Long company's wholesome dramatic productions increases at each performance.

Very Strong Bill.

Don Leno's "Ten Happy Youngsters" who are making such a hit at the Bijou this week, are not the only strong feature at the bill. All of the other acts are fully up to the standard set by the Bijou. La Maybelle Meeker, an acrobatic dancer, has a very entertaining act, and is one of the most graceful and agile dancers seen at the Bijou in many months.

BROOKSTON VOTERS HAVE FIRST ELECTION.

Brookston, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first election in the newly created village of Brookston was held yesterday, and it was a lively affair. Twenty-eight votes were cast for the different candidates on the two tickets in the field. W. A. Epperson headed the caucus ticket, and at the eleventh hour a citizen's ticket was placed in the field, headed by J. F. Ryan, and the latter was the victor by an overwhelming majority. What is called the "blind pig" element sought to control the election, but the voters showed that they were against such a handling of the affairs.

The officers will qualify within a few days.

CHURCH HAS ITS JUBILEE

Bishop Edsall Reviews Last Half Century's Work of Church.

St. Paul, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the same church in which the first diocesan council of the Episcopal church of Minnesota was held fifty years ago, the jubilee was held yesterday in Christ church. A notable feature of the celebration was the address of Bishop S. C. Edsall, in which he brought out strongly the fact that while the pioneers of the state are passing, the pioneers of the Episcopal church in Minnesota as represented by its first council, have already passed. No one of those clergymen who attended that first council in Christ church in 1857 is now alive, declared the bishop. The bishop spoke at length, reviewing the church work for the half century and making numerous recommendations for its advancement.

Speaking of spiritual progress the bishop said:

"Perhaps the best indication of spiritual progress, taking a number of years and striking an average, is the number of confirmations in the respective parishes and missions. It is gratifying, therefore, to be able to report that the number of confirmations during the last conciliar year is 1,048. This surpasses the number of all years save one in the history of the diocese. Prior to the setting apart of the missionary district of Duluth, the largest number of confirmations reported in the undivided state of Minnesota, in any one year was an even 1,000. This year the confirmations in our present diocese exceed that number by forty-eight. The list of confirmations in each parish with the contributions made for the social needs fund, is appended to this address."

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Staples, Minn., May 23.—While adjusting the crossbar on the bumper of a freight car here Wednesday, Brakeman D. J. Gavin, employed by the Northern Pacific, was caught between two cars and the life crushed out of him, his body being frightfully mangled.

Gavin was 26 years old and is survived by his mother and a brother, living at Lansing, Iowa, where the body was shipped.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Moose Lake, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The large barn on C. F. Carlson's farm, two miles west of town, was struck by lightning Tuesday night at 11 o'clock, and burned to the ground. Six cows were saved, but all the horses, sheep, pigs and poultry were burned, and all the farm machinery and vehicles, also the hay and grain, and flour and other supplies that were stored there to last through the year. The insurance had run out a short time ago, and had not been renewed, so it was a total loss, estimated at $5,000. The heavy shower that followed the electrical storm was the only thing that saved the house and orchard, as the wind was blowing toward it.

CHAIN OF LAKES.

Water Route Open From Detroit to Pelican Lake.

Crookston, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Game Warden Munch has returned from Detroit, Minn., where he has been for the past week weeks attending to official duties. He says great improvements are being made to the chain of lakes there. The William K. West Land & Canal company has opened canals between the entire chain of lakes so that it is now possible to go by boat from Detroit to Pelican Lake. There are two locks installed, and the canals are large enough to accommodate good sized boats. Cement arch bridges are being constructed over the canals and the effect is very artistic.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

Crookston—The funeral of Timothy Regan who died last Saturday afternoon, was held Tuesday from St. Mary's church. The church was crowded with friends and relatives of the deceased, who paid a last tribute of respect to one who was held in high esteem by all who knew him. The four children who survive him were all present, as were other out-of-town relatives.

Minneapolis—J. B. Metz, formerly a well known railroad and militia man of Minneapolis, is dead in Los Angeles. It is expected that the funeral will be in Jersey City. Mr. Metz was about 45 years old, a bachelor, and was in the office of the city treasurer. He left Minneapolis in 1893, and has lived the last ten years in Los Angeles.

St. Cloud—For the second time a jury has failed to agree in the case of the state against Jacob Kurz, alleged to have assaulted a man by the name of Herman with a bar of iron.

WISCONSIN

BUSY TIMES FOR DREDGES

Ashland, Wis., May 23 — (Special to The Herald.)—There will be an unusual amount of dredging in this harbor this year judging by the plans that are already on foot. It is stated that not in years has so much public and private work been contemplated during one season.

The Great Northern Dredge company of Duluth has finished its contract at the Clarkston coal dock, and today began work at the Co-operative Coal Dock company's property. Another dredge of this company is also working for the Ashland Iron & Steel company near the pig iron dock. It is the intention of the Co-operative Coal company to pull up the piling, drive three rows of new piling near the water line and parallel to it and build the steel bridge on it. The dredging will begin at the government dock line, will follow the old line of tramways each side of the shore and follow along the shore so that vessels may enter at one side, make a circuit of the pond, and leave by the other side.

The Northern Dredge company is also at work on the breakwater, filling in with stone on the riprap work. This company will put in 27,000 tons of rock on the breakwater, in addition to which, the last session of congress, two months ago, appropriated $65,000 for the breakwater, and for dredging.

WILL ABANDON LUMBER PLANTS

Wisconsin Concern Must Look Elsewhere for Timber.

Lake Nebagamon, Wis., May 23.—The Lake Nebagamon Lumber Co., controlled by the Weyerhaeuser interests, and the second largest logging concern in Wisconsin, with an annual cut of 75,000,000 feet of lumber, will completely abandon its mill and withdraw from Lake Nebagamon by September. The company has been operating in that district for nine years and it has stripped the surrounding country of available timber. As a consequence, the huge mills, valued at $500,000, and the yards containing two and one-half miles of tramways will be sold, the plant, it is understood, going to Canada for re-erection and operation there. It is an interesting fact that the steel rails owned by the Nebagamon Lumber company will sell for more, after eight years of service, than they originally cost, owing to the advance in the price of steel. Nearly 600 men are employed by the lumber company and the departure of the mill and its allied industries will leave a big gap in the town of Nebagamon.

CHILDREN MAKE AWFUL DISCOVERY.

Washburn, Wis., May 23.—Mrs. Joseph Vallincour, a prominent woman of this city, was found dead at her home Sunday morning, heart trouble being the cause. The body was found by the children, who immediately summoned neighbors to the house. The deceased was a middle-aged woman and had lived in this city for a number of years.

OCCUPATION GONE, HE KILLS HIMSELF.

La Crosse, Wis., May 23.—Anton Roellich, a wealthy retired resident of the town of Shelby, this county, committed suicide Wednesday, by hanging. Restlessness, due to his retirement from business, leaving him no active occupation for his mind, is supposed to have been the cause of the tragedy.

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Kenosha—The plant of the Visible Typewriter company, in this city, was sold for taxes at the annual sale of tax titles. This is the second time that the tax deed has been issued against the plant, but it was redeemed at the former sale. The taxes due against the plant amounted to a trifle less than $800.

Marinette—James Larson and others of Green Bay have purchased the machinery of the old R. W. Merryman mill, and will remove it to Green Bay, to operate a mill there. The Merryman mill is the next oldest mill in Marinette, having been in operation for over thirty years, until last fall, when work in it was discontinued.

Ashland—Statistics of marriages in Ashland county have been prepared, showing that a total of 4,150 couples have been united in marriage since Ashland was made a city in 1887.

Eau Claire—Fire was discovered in the dynamo room at the Northwestern Lumber company's mill Tuesday, and an alarm was immediately turned in. There was a prompt response by the different companies of the fire department, and the blaze was put out before any extensive damage was done.

PLANS FOR SUMMER.

Delightful Places About Bemidji Will be Well Patronized.

Bemidji, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The summer resort business in Bemidji this season promises to eclipse any former year. Despite the very inclement weather that has prevailed so far this spring, there is already considerable activity in preparing for the enjoyment of the attractions offered by this city as a desirable place to spend the warm months.

At Grand Forks bay, several of the owners of cottages have been repairing their buildings, adding new ice houses and other conveniences and fitting their places for the reception of families.

At Lavina, at the northeast end of Lake Bemidji, another Grand Forks colony will hold forth this summer. Last year the owners of lots at Lavina built several cottages, and began the preliminary work of establishing a permanent outing settlement. During the past winter, about a dozen new ice houses have been built, and several new Grand Forks people, who have never spent the season here, will be among the resorters.

LARGER ACREAGE.

Less Wheat But More of Other Grains Planted.

Minneapolis, May 23.—The National Bank of Commerce has received more than three hundred reports from correspondents throughout the Northwest, giving the crop conditions. W. S. Harris, cashier, in sending out inquiries, touched upon the probability of a decreased acreage, now so much discussed, and also requested information as to the lateness of the season compared with the normal.

The whole makes a summary that is favorable, considered with reference to the serious reports that have been coming through other sources.

There will probably be a larger grain acreage than ever before. Wheat will cover less ground by considerable, but corn, oats, barley and flax will take its place.

So far as total production is concerned, and the money value thereof, the reports promise a highly successful year for the Northwest, though the seriousness of the situation as it relates to wheat, and the probability of smaller total returns from that cereal both appear.

In condensation, the situation presented is one that affords opportunity for bountiful crops, provided there is a fairly favorable summer.

MISSING ONE HAS FOUND A FORTUNE.

Janesville, Wis., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—After a silence of fourteen years, during which time he was believed to have died, George W. Brown, a former resident of Janesville, wrote to his two surviving brothers, B. W. Brown and O. A. Brown, of the town of Center, announcing that he was alive and in a fair way to become a millionaire through mining property in Nevada. Brown ran away from home fourteen years ago, and went West to be a cowboy.

DAKOTAS

PALERMO HAS ITS MYSTERY

Gruesome Discovery of Human Bones Near North Dakota Town.

Skeleton of Man Protrudes From Hastily Made Grave.

Palermo, N. D., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—This little town has its mystery, growing out of the discovery of the skeleton of a man within a mile of town. The bones protruded from the ground, where the evidence indicated they had lain for some time in a hastily made grave. The startling find was made by some men working near the farm house of Lars Hollekim.

No one appears to be able to throw any light upon the mystery. Only speculation can furnish a theory concerning the lonely grave which appears to have given up its dead.

The body must have lain in the grave for a considerable time, as the bare skeleton alone was there to mark it human. There was in the grave a table knife, a pocket knife, a decayed strap and a rusty buckle, which, it is supposed, was a leather hat band, and a small tin box, thought to have contained matches.

The grave appears to have been made too short for the body, and a completely decayed piece of lumber was found at either end. The constable from here went to the spot and unearthed the remains, which are lying on the ground near the grave at this writing.

CO-OPERATIVE COAL COMPANY

Fargo, N. D., May 23.—The plans are maturing for the organization of a company to be known as the Fargo Co-operative Coal company. The object is to establish a coal distributing plant in this city to work in conjunction with an Eastern coal concern.

The company will have a capital of about $30,000 and will co-operate with the Northwestern Co-operative Coal & Dock company of Ashland, Wis. It is the expectations of the persons interested in the organization of the company to secure coal from the East and distribute it on more favorable terms than are possible under the existing conditions. Among the business men interested in the company are the following: James Kennedy, B. I. Keating, P. Elliott, H. E. Allen, S. Graham, Baldwin & Thomsen, H. R. Turner, P. H. Cummings, J. J. Jordan, W. J. Early, C. F. Leonard, W. L. Van Horn, Shotwell & Graver, S. F. Crabbe, Peter Matson and others.

CRAMER JURY IS UNABLE TO AGREE

Fargo, N. D., May 23.—After ninety-four hours' deliberation, the jury which has been trying Mrs. Laura Cramer, charged with ordering her son, a mere boy, to shoot and kill her husband, Fred Cramer, at Page, N. D., Feb. 14 last, disagreed late Wednesday afternoon.

This is the longest time on record in this state that a jury has remained out without reaching a verdict. Two other juries have disagreed while considering the case. The case will be re-tried at the next term of court. The cause of the shooting was a family quarrel of long standing. The defense admitted that the woman told her son to shoot, but claimed justification. The boy had previously been acquitted.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Fargo—Brakeman A. J. Andyke and Conductor C. D. Perry have returned from Spokane, where they were called as witnesses for the defense in a $50,000 damage suit against the Great Northern, instituted by a woman alleged to have become insane while riding on the train on which Andyke and Perry were employed, and removed. The case never came to trial, being dismissed before it reached the jury.

When the offices of the new created Fargo division of the Northern Pacific are established here, J. G. Jacobus, who is now assistant train dispatcher on the Dakota division at Jamestown, will be made chief dispatcher of the division. With him will come half a dozen other dispatchers from the Jamestown division, but just who they will be has not yet been made known.

At a special meeting of the Commercial club board of directors, W. A. Yoder was elected secretary, vice E. F. Follett, resigned. Mr. Yoder will assume his new duties June 1. He has been for some years freight inspector for the various railroads in Fargo. Mr. Follett tendered his resignation some time ago and will go East.

At a special meeting of the Citizens' Water commission held in Mayor Johnson's office, it was decided to investigate fully all the artesian wells in Fargo and vicinity and all well boring propositions, whether successful or not. A full written report of the findings of the commission will be formulated and presented to the council.

WEATHER LIKE THAT HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The only records of weather conditions in the Northwest 100 years ago are those kept by the Hudson Bay company, and these records show that just 100 years ago the weather was very similar to what we are having this spring. Cold, backward weather continued until Aug. 1, which was the beginning of real summer weather.

Gen. Creel of Devils Lake, who is something of a weather prophet, and is as good a guesser as any of them, makes the following prediction: June will be an ideal growing month, with just enough warmth and moisture to make the crops grow perfectly. July will be also a fairly good month, though there may be light frosts. August is the month to be dreaded, as killing frosts may be expected.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH

TO SUBSCRIBERS:

It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed to give both old and new addresses.

DULUTH TO TIDEWATER.

A dispatch from New York brings news of the approaching completion of the plans of the Georgian bay canal commission, which will involve an elaborate scheme for the construction of a ship canal that will cut off a long distance in the journey by water from Duluth to tidewater, and which will practically make seaports of Duluth and all the other lake ports.

Incidentally, it is causing New York to sit up and take notice, because if it is completed according to present plans and specifications, it means that a large amount of traffic is certain to be diverted from the American seaports and sent by way of Montreal. This promises keen competition with what the New York Sun, in discussing the bearing of the plans on New York interests, calls the "$101,000,000 gutter across New York state," meaning the Erie canal.

The only way to meet this competition is by the construction of a ship canal of practical width and depth across New York, so that cargoes may be shipped from Duluth to the ocean that way without breaking bulk. Such a canal should have been constructed long ago, and it is to be hoped that the activity of the Canadians will spur American energy into accomplishing something along this line.

The Canadian commission proposes an inland water way twenty-one feet in depth from Georgian bay to Montreal by way of the French river, Lake Nipissing and Ottawa river. This route will be about half the distance to New York by way of Lake Huron, the St. Clair river, Lake Erie and the Erie canal. Cargoes could be shipped, when this canal is completed, from Duluth to Europe without breaking bulk. Freight carriers of considerable capacity could be loaded with commodities at Duluth or any of the other lake ports, and unloaded at European ports, and other commodities could be brought from the European ports back to the lakes again. It is figured that the cost of transporting wheat to tidewater would be reduced about three and a half cents a bushel.

At first it was figured that the Georgian bay canal would cost $35,000,000 to $85,000,000, but the new plans contemplate an expenditure of $105,000,000, because they are more practical and more elaborate.

New York plans spending $101,000,000 on its Erie canal, and then it will be only a barge canal, involving transshipment of cargoes at lower lake ports and again at New York when the goods are put into ocean vessels.

While any plan to meet this Canadian competition would have the fullest sympathy and support from upper lake states, the task of meeting it seems to be up to New York, since its will be the loss if traffic is diverted from its great port to Montreal.

PRACTICAL JOKE FIENDS.

The practical joker is the bull in the china shop of humor, and the worst thing about him is that his jokes so seldom react upon him as they should. If practical jokes would acquire a habit of proving fatal to the perpetrators, this would be a safer world to live in, because less fool jokes would be attempted.

Some fiend, who is unhappily unknown and who is not likely to publicly claim credit for his merry prank, filled a pipe with powder, and after tamping a layer of tobacco on top of the explosive placed the pipe on a sidewalk to tempt pedestrians. Not many would put a strange pipe in their mouths, but one man came along who had no such scruples, and observing that the pipe appeared to be loaded for business, but not realizing how literally it was "loaded," picked it up and lit it.

As soon as the flame of the match touched the powder it exploded, and the victim's face was so terribly injured that he died.

This is a common trick, though not usually so fatal. Those who play it, and those who play similar "jokes" of a dangerous nature, such as breaking backs by pulling chairs away from those about to sit down, or causing heart collapses by sudden frights, should be treated to good long terms in the penitentiary, where the joke will be on them.

THE WORLD'S DRINKS.

Acording to the report of the British chancellor of the exchequer, who it appears has been keeping cases on the drinking habits of the world, the amount of beer consumed in this country in 1905, the latest year for which figures are obtainable, was 16.8 gallons per head.

In other words, the beer drunk in that year by the people of this country amounted to nearly seventeen gallons for every man, woman and child in the land. As practically all of the children, most of the women, and some of the men, drank none at all, the average for those that did drink beer must have been pretty large. But at that our average is low, only Austria and France, with 14.3 and 7.5 gallons respectively, drinking less among the nations tabulated. The people of Belgium consumed the prodigious amount of 48.8 gallons apiece, the United Kingdom used 27.7 gallons, Germany consumed 26.3 gallons, and Denmark got away with 20.5 gallons.

This country's share shows a gradual increase in beer-consumption, running from 14.6 gallons in 1901 to 15 gallons in 1902, 15.2 gallons in 1903, 15.4 gallons in 1904, and 16.8 gallons in 1905.

This country is pretty low in the comparative scale on consumption of the more ardent beverages, also. In 1905 we drank 1.26 gallons apiece, but seven nations used more, as follows: Denmark led with 2.42 gallons, Austria came next with 1.99 gallons, and the others ahead of us were Hungary with 1.98 gallons, Germany with 1.43 gallons, Holland with the same, Sweden with 1.36 gallons, and France with 1.37 gallons. Those consuming less than the United States were Belgium with 1.10 gallons, Australia with .96 of a gallon, Canada with .94 of a gallon, and the United Kingdom with .91 of a gallon.

The discrepancy between nations in the consumption of wine is very marked, running from France with 30.8 gallons per capita down to the United Kingdom with .32 of a gallon. The United States is third from the bottom with .43 of a gallon, Holland coming in between with .37 of a gallon. The wine-using countries are France, with 30.8 gallons, Italy, with 25.1 gallons, and Spain with 18.5 gallons.

The Frenchman, apparently, consumes wine with the freedom with which beer-drinking people consume beer. Though that country is the greatest wine-producing nation in the world, it actually imports more wine than it exports, showing that it is unable to make enough for its own use. The average Frenchman drinks about seventy-five times as much wine as the average American, and one hundred times as much as the average Britisher.

GROWING BANK DEPOSITS.

Without a single break, every quarterly statement published by Duluth's banking institutions in the past two years has shown a substantial increase.

Each statement, therefore, has established a new highwater mark for Duluth bank deposits, and the statements published in The Herald last evening form no exception to the rule.

The total deposits shown by the four statements from the First National bank, American Exchange bank, City National bank and the Duluth Savings bank were $19,643,971.85.

The statements for the corresponding period last year showed total deposits of $16,765,542.48, against $12,801,500.17 for the same period in 1905. Thus in two years the bank deposits of this city have increased more than 50 per cent.

No more tangible evidence of steady growth and abounding prosperity could be imagined. It means something when every quarterly statement shows a total of deposits greater than the Duluth banks have ever held before, and that is what has been going on for several years, and it is still going on.

While, unfortunately, figures for purposes of comparison are not at hand, it is a safe claim that there are very few cities in the country that can make such a showing of growth, and few that can show anything like $265 per capita in bank deposits.

DISTRUST OF BANKS.

The foolish people that distrust banks because here and there, once in a while, a cashier empties one or the bankruptcy courts get another, are always with us, and the news is full of stories of their folly.

As a matter of fact, considering the vast number of banking institutions in this country, the scarcity of bank examiners and the laxity of the banking laws of many states, the wonder is that the banks of the nation are so safe and sane and sound.

Banks may fail occasionally, and cashiers or bank presidents may sometimes go wrong, but their number is an infinitesimal proportion of those that stay right and carefully husband the money of their depositors.

On the other hand, money stowed away in cracked teapots, in old stockings, buried in the cellar or in the garden, or hidden in the garret, is never safe, and is perpetually getting away from its owners.

There is an Indiana farmer who has lately learned this lesson, and his story is only a sample of thousands of similar ones. He distrusted banks, did this farmer, and swore they would get none of his money, so he deposited his surplus in a sheet iron box, which he cunningly buried in a corner of his garden. A short time ago, when he made his last deposit, the box contained the snug sum of $1,300. A little later he had another bit of savings to put away, and he went out into the garden with a spade and in the dark of evening started to dig. He dug and dug, calmly at first, frantically next, and desperately at last. But he dug in vain. No box. Somebody had been digging before him, and had walked away with his money, box and all.

Now that farmer is hiring detectives to engage in a vain search for his vanished savings, and he has discovered that he does not know nearly so much as he thought he did.

Money in a bank draws interest, small, perhaps, but still vastly better than nothing, which is all the interest that money can draw buried in the ground or hidden in the chimney. Besides, the man with money around the house is constantly shivering in fear of burglars, and as the habits of such individuals generally become known, burglars are pretty sure to accept the invitation issued by the practice of using one's home for a bank.

If you have savings, put them in a bank and fear nothing. Your chance of loss is so infinitely small that it is the height of folly to worry about it.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"The most aggravating thing in the world is a gun that will not work properly at the right moment," said T. L. Lyon of Eau Claire, Wis., at the St. Louis. "My brother used to own one of this kind, and I had some trying experience with it. I didn't do enough hunting in those days to warrant purchasing a gun of my own, and therefore, sponged off of my brother, so I really was not in a position to kick much on the service rendered.

"I remember one day in particular that I missed getting a fine buck because of the troublesome weapon. At least I have always comforted myself with the thought that I would have gotten the game if the lever hadn't stuck on me. My brother was operating a logging camp in Northern Wisconsin at the time, and I was out visiting him. Incidentally it was deer season, and the call of the wild was almost as strong as brotherly love.

"I didn't know much about the country, and George was too busy to show me around, so I had to get on to the ropes all by myself. They told me the general direction I had better take, and described a large burning, around the edges of which I was led to believe deer were so thick that I couldn't help getting one if I shot in any direction, about three feet from the ground. Either I hit the wrong burning, or else my informants didn't know what they were talking about, for signs of the animals were few, and I walked three hours without seeing anything that looked like a deer.

"I got pretty discouraged finally, and determined to make a wide detour and strike back to camp. In doing so I headed across a large burning, in making for a patch of green woods on the other side. Right out in the middle of the thing I came to a deep ravine, with sides so bare that there wasn't a bush in sight. Right in the creek bottom, however, were a few dry alders and a big bunch of grass, and out of this spot jumped a five-point buck and started up the opposite hill, whose top wasn't more than 150 yards distant, thanks to the steepness of the hill.

"Mr. Buck made pretty good speed the first few jumps, and my two shots missed him. As I tried to throw in the shell for the third shot, the lever got stuck, and I couldn't move it forward or back. I guess the deer hadn't really seen me, for at this interesting stage of the game the deer stopped dead still, broad side, and looked in my direction. After standing there long enough for a man to take good long aim, he loped easily over the hill and out of sight, and that's the last I saw of him.

"On the same visit I got the laugh on my brother. We were out together one Sunday. Just after a light snow had fallen, he with the balky rifle and me with one borrowed from the foreman, which appeared to be in good working order. We tracked two deer, and jumped them in a most unexpected place, tho way a fellow always does. I began shooting away at a lively rate, but only heard one shot from my brother.

"This was followed by a lot of cussing, and I knew what had happened. I managed to down a nice little yearling, and then turned and laughed at George's discomfiture. He is a good shot, and doubtless would have gotten the other deer if the shots had kept on coming. When a fellow has a repeater he is apt to be careless with his first shot, knowing he has a lot more in reserve, where, if he is using a single-shot gun, he tries to make the first cartridge do all the execution possible."

"I think if I lived in Duluth I would prefer owning a launch to an automobile," said T. G. Lincoln of Minneapolis, at the Spalding. "There certainly is every opportunity to get the full thrill of enjoyment out of a motor boat at the Head of the Lakes, while chances for using an auto here are, I imagine, rather limited. Of course, you have nice city streets, and the boulevard, with that drive east along the lake, but when you come to figure it out, that is a pretty limited field for an automobilist to work off his enthusiasm in.

"An automobile is a mighty nice thing at any time, if you can afford it, but it is nicest when there are miles and miles of good country road over which it may be run, as is the case with all the larger cities of the East, and most of those of the West. Around here the country roads, from what I have heard and seen, are in poor shape to afford any pleasure to the person riding over them, and this puts a limit on the sport.

"But for a boat there is an unlimited field here. The bay, lake and rivers give plenty of room, with an abundance of scenery and all that goes to make a launch ride pleasant. It would be pretty nice to live here and have a launch just big enough to stand a trip along the lake shore, and not too big for the rivers. A fellow could have all kinds of sport on a fishing or hunting trip down the north shore, for example, with a bunch of boon companions. There are so many streams runing into the lake that afford good trout fishing, and so many good hunting places nearby, that a man would never want for a first-class place to spend one or two days, or his whole vacation."

THE WEATHER.

The brief northeaster faded away last night, and the evening was clear and charmingly beautiful. This morning it was again clear, though later a light haze partly covered the sky, and the wind was light and from the northeast. Last night's lowest temperature was 34 degs. and yesterday's highest was 44 degs. The weather man expects little change in temperature tonight and tomorrow, but he expects it to be partly cloudy, with fresh easterly winds.

A year ago today it was cool and clear.

The sun rose at 4:22 this morning and sets at 7:46 tonight, making 15 hours and 24 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The barometric disturbance in the Southwest remains about stationary. During the past twenty-four hours it caused light to copious rains in most Northern states, and warmer weather in Eastern districts. High pressures in Western Canada are causing cooler temperatures in the Northwest. Partly cloudy weather is indicated for this locality tonight and Friday.

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

Buffalo Journal: Governor Johnson's boom for president as the Democratic candidate has been launched from Washington and it is quite possible that John A. Johnson may have the highest office in the government. Things have been shaping his way ever since the big majority with which he was elected last fall was announced, and he also obtained national prominence in the insurance investigations. The country could do a lot worse than Johnson for president.

Minneapolis Irish Standard: Partly because of Governor Johnson's success in twice carrying this state, and partly because of the disorganized condition of the national Democracy, and partly because of the undoubted strength of Governor Johnson, attention has been directed toward Minnesota as a possible ground from which a candidate either for the first or second place on the next national ticket might be furnished. Governor Johnson has been for some time mentioned as a possible candidate for second place, and recently some Eastern leaders have spoken of him as an available candidate for the presidency. This in itself is an unusual recognition, and it may be that events will so frame themselves that the governor of Minnesota may become a strong candidate before the next Democratic national convention.

Barnum Star-Gazette: The East calls for Johnson to come out of the West and lead the Democratic forces to victory with the presidential chair as a bait. They may get "too much Johnson."

Mora Times: In Watterson the governor has a friend in the saner elements of his party, and if a miracle should come to pass and a measure of sanity rule the Democratic party, it is not impossible that he may be complimented with the leadership of the forlorn hope next year.

Ortonville Herald-Star: It is amusing to see the Minnesota Democrats throw a fit every time Grover Cleveland is mentioned for the presidency. The Minnesota boys think they can produce a better man without turning a hair.

Mankato Free Press: Since Col. Henry Watterson spoke his piece, Governor Johnson's presidential boom has been taking on the proportions of a balloon. We don't wish Brother Johnson any bad luck, and would rather see him honored by the Democratic party than any other man in that organization. He's a prince of good fellows and one can't help but like him.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Governor Johnson is presidential timber, sure enough, and it looks as though he will be able to toe the mark with the big fellows when the next Democratic national convention is held.

Baudette Region: A regular Johnson boom is "booming" through the press for him as the Democratic nominee for president. What do you think of a presidential nominee from Minnesota?

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

International Falls Press: The bureau of corporations at Washington is investigating the lumber trust. Without an attempt to reflect in any manner on the capability of the bureau of corporations, there is a very widespread and general belief in the minds of the people that the wrong department of the government has taken hold of this investigation. The situation is one which demands vigorous and speedy action by the department of justice.

St. Peter Herald: James Thompson McCleary, by the grace of Mr. Roosevelt second assistant postmaster general, is to make a tour of the larger cities of the country and try to get in touch with the needs of his department. If he is no more successful in his mission than he was in sounding public sentiment in the Second congressional district it were better that he remain at home.

Bemidji Sentinel: So Brother Allen of Bemidji thinks that our next president will be a Democrat. We fail to see it that way. Where did you get the tip?—Shevlin Advocate.

Got it at the same place we got the tip last fall that this state would have a Democratic governor.

Floodwood News: We have ample ground for two states. The northern half is in every way thoroughly capable of taking care of itself, and no doubt it will be the only way by which we can obtain the rights and privileges which rightfully are ours.

Long Prairie Argus: Senator Perkins says President Roosevelt talks too much. The senator and his ilk have done things in secret so long that it is no wonder he don't like to have them talked about. It is the kind of talk, probably rather than the amount he objects to.

Hallock Enterprise: Now is the time to buy coal. The almanac says it is spring, hence the coal barons have lowered the price to induce folks to buy next winter's supply. It will be a good joke on them to buy it as if for next winter and when they are not watching burn it up right now to keep warm.

Sleepy Eye Dispatch: The establishment of a hospital farm for inebriates will place Minnesota in advance of most other states where the drunkard is still punished as a criminal rather than treated as a patient, suffering from disease.

Paynesville Press: The railroads seem to be laboring under the impression that there will never be any more sessions of state legislatures.

Fairmont Sentinel: A great display of little peanut politics by big small bore politicians is now being made over the admission of Oklahoma. There should be quarantine regulations against such a case of pernicious partisanship.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Dollar wheat sounds good and farmers will probably sow a little more than they figured on at the start.

Philadelphia Press: "O! You're cooked for this robbery, all right," said the detective, "you left a strong clue behind you."

"Dat's a lie," cried the prisoner. "De on'y strong tool I had wid me wuz a jimmy an' I took dat away wid me."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "These are the days when the young divinity student has a mental struggle."

"As to what?"

"Whether to preach or pitch."

Washington Star: "Did you ever sell your vote?" asked the impertinent friend.

"Never," answered Senator Sorghum. "A single vote is of no consequence these days. 'You've got to contract to deliver them in bunches."

Houston Post: "She is very wealthy?"

"Very."

"Yes; she is the author of a book entitled 'Hints to Beautiful Women.'"

"I presume all the beautiful women in the country purchased it?"

"No; but all the homely women did."

Cleveland Plaindealer: "Say, it must be a great joke for the fish that gets away when he hears himself described as the biggest that ever was."

"No, it's all lost on him."

"How do you know?"

Philadelphia Press: "Why am I gloomy?" demanded the undesirable suitor when she had heartlessly ignored. "Isn't it enough to make a man gloomy to be cut by the one he loves best?"

"The idea!" exclaimed the heartless girl. "I didn't even know that you shaved yourself."

MEMORIAL DAY WILL BE FITTINGLY OBSERVED

All Classes of Citizens Will Take Part This Year.

Grand Army Veterans Will be Honored Guests at Services.

The program of exercises at the Lyceum will be as follows:

Assembly call by bugler.

Invocation by Rev. Roderick J. Mooney.

Selection by Willis A. Gorman Post G. A. R. Drum Corps.

Song by Glee Club.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address by John H. Norton.

"America" by the audience.

The parade this year will probably be the largest ever seen in Duluth on Memorial day, and the following bodies will participate: Grand Army of the Republic, Sons of Veterans, Citizens' Staff, the national guards, the naval militia, High School Staff, and Children's staff.

The members of these bodies will assemble at the armory at 9 o'clock and will march to the Lyceum theater, Maj. H. V. Eva, acting as marshal of the day.

The boys' staff will be one of the novel features of the day, and all school children and newsboys are invited to participate. They will hold an overflow meeting at the Metropolitan theater, where Dr. M. S. Rice will speak to them. Flags and badges will be furnished, and it is hoped that several hundred children will take part in the services.

In the afternoon at 2 o'clock, the services at Forest Hill cemetery will be held, carriages being provided for the disabled veterans. They will be in charge of the Willis A. Gorman post No. 13, this year, assisted by the Joshua B. Culver post No. 128 and the Duluth camp No. 5 of the Sons of Veterans. The two Grand Army posts have charge on alternate years.

The members of the Women's Relief corps will hold their services at 4:30 p. m., when the ceremony of strewing the water with flowers will be held on board the Gopher.

Services will also be held on Sunday, May 26. At 9:30 a. m. the members of the two Grand Army posts and the Sons of Veterans will assemble at their hall and march to the armory. Here they will be joined by the members of the national guard and naval militia and march to the First Presbyterian church, where Rev. Campbell Coyle will deliver the memorial sermon.

Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele of the Trinity Pro-cathedral has also extended an invitation to members of all of these bodies to attend services at 5 p. m.

The newly organized Citizens' Staff auxiliary held an enthusiastic and well attended meeting at the Commercial club last evening, adopted its constitution, elected permanent officers, and inaugurated a campaign to increase its membership to 1,000. This organization will stand behind the Grand Army members this year, in their efforts to fittingly observe Memorial day, and take the bulk of the work and the entire expense of it, from the shoulders of the veterans. The latter will not be allowed to contribute toward the fund for the observances of the day, and will be the honored guests at the services this year.

Constitution Drawn Up.

The constitution, which was framed by a committee consisting of C. S. Mitchell, Judge J. D. Enslin, Judge Page Morris, T. W. Hugo and Mayor M. B. Cullum, sets forth the purposes of the organization, which are: To assist the Grand Army of Republic in their celebration of Memorial day; when they shall have passed away, to take charge of the celebration of the day, and to perpetuate their work in keeping fresh the spirit of patriotism. It provides that the annual meeting of the auxiliary shall take place upon the last Tuesday of April of each year, although the president may call a meeting at any time. The initiation fee and the annual dues of the organization are fixed at $1 each.

The following officers were selected after the constitution had been considered, approved, and adopted: President, W. I. Prince, vice president, Maj. H. V. Eva; secretary, Dr. R. W. Bowlden; treasurer, T. F. Upham; executive committee, W. I. Prince, H. V. Eva, T. W. Hugo, A. B. Siewert, and C. E. Lovett.

A committee composed of Judge F. H. Cutting, B. F. Neff and S. E. Jones was appointed to take charge of the campaign for 1,000 new members, and every member enrolled is expected to boost the auxiliary at every opportunity.

A resolution was adopted suggesting to the women of the city that they donate a staff flag to show their interest in the new organization after the fashion of the women of the '60's, who fashioned flags for the Northern regiments.

Badges will be worn by the staff members and steps were taken last evening to procure them as soon as possible. As it will not be possible to get the badges before Memorial day, ribbon badges will be printed for that event and will be worn by the members of the staff.

Make It National Body.

Plans were made last evening for a campaign to make the staff auxiliary a national organization. Communications will be sent out to prominent men all over the country in an effort to interest them in the work. At the state G. A. R. encampment at Minneapolis, June 12, an effort will be made to secure the appointment of a committee to superintend and promote the organization of staffs throughout Minnesota. When a state organization has been perfected in this manner the attention of the staff will be directed toward a national organization.

It was decided at the meeting last evening to allow all members joining before Memorial day to be enrolled as charter members.

WOMEN WORKERS IN UNITED STATES

Nearly Twenty-Five Millions Engaged in Commercial Pursuits.

Washington, May 23.—Women at work in the United States is the subject of a report issued by the census bureau yesterday, based on the census returns in 1900. In that year in continental United States—by which is meant the United States exclusive of Alaska, Hawaii and other outlying possessions—the total number of women 16 years old and over was 23,485,559, while those at work numbered 14,804,620. The women at work were young, 68.4 per cent being under 35 years of age, 44.2 per cent under 25 and 25.6 per cent had not reached the age of 21. 15.9 per cent were married, 11.7 per cent were widows, and 1.3 per cent were divorced.

The number of divorced women returned by the census, the report says, is probably an account, because the fact of divorce is not always admitted. But it is significant that of the number reported divorced, 55.3 per cent were supporting themselves wholly or in part. The total number of women at work included 11,771,996 native white women whose parents also were natives; 1,090,744 native white women one or both of whose parents were immigrants; 1,119,621 negro women and 11,288 Indian and Mongolian women.

The number of women at work more than doubled in the twenty years from 1880 to 1900, and there was a noticeable increase of breadwinners among married women in 1900 as compared with 1890. In 1900 women were represented in all but nine of the 303 occupations in which breadwinners of the country were engaged. The returns showed, among other things, that 5 females were employed as pilots; on steam railroads, 10 were employed as baggagemen, 21 as brakemen, 7 as conductors, 45 as engineers and firemen, and 26 as switchmen, yardmen and flagmen; 43 were carriage and hack drivers; 6 were reported as ship carpenters, and 2 as roofers and slaters; 185 were returned as blacksmiths and 508 as machinists; 18 were boilermakers, 31 were charcoal, coke and lime burners, and 11 were well-borers.

Two women were reported as "motormen." Almost one-fourth of the total number of women at work were servants, 456,405 were farm laborers, 96.8 per cent of whom were from the Southern states, and 361,804 were negroes. There were 338,144 dressmakers, 327,206 teachers, 328,935 laundresses, 307,706 farmers, 321,483 textile mill operatives and 146,929 housekeepers and stewardesses.

NO PRISON FARE FOR HUMMEL; IN HOSPITAL.

New York, May 23.—Abe Hummel is in the hospital of the penitentiary on Blackwell's island, supposedly very ill. He is on a special diet, and has thus far avoided eating the regular prison fare. Dr. McAuliffe, the visiting physician, had been summoned to diagnose Hummel's case.

The removal of Hummel to the hospital was ordered by Dr. Dorfmann, the prison physician. It is expected that Hummel will make a long stay in the hospital. His friends say he needs rest and medical treatment.

He did not sleep all night, and at noon he was curled up on his cot, with his knees almost drawn to his chin and only the top of his shiny bald head showing above the covers.

It was a bad night for Hummel. Those in nearby cells say he tossed and moaned the long hours through.

POSTOFFICE HITS BACK AT CANADA FOR RULE.

Washington, May 23.—Retaliation by the United States government against Canada will be resorted to because the Canadian postal authorities refuse to handle the second-class mail matter at the pound rate sent to Canada from this country. Postmaster General Meyer soon will issue an order directing the postmasters of this country to decline to handle the second-class matter sent from Canada into the United States.

This action grows out of the refusal of the Canadian authorities to handle second-class matter from this country when sent to Canada by either freight or express and mailed in Canada at the second-class rate, 1 cent a pound. Canada insists that it can be mailed at the 4 cents a pound rate only.

A postal commission from the United States was sent to Canada to try to settle the matter satisfactorily, but without success.

"REVEREND MISTER" GETS CROOK WEALTH.

Richmond, Va., May 23.—John Thompson Hargrave, former Methodist exhorter and Episcopal clergyman, now morally one of the most systematic crooks who ever operated in the United States, has been arrested at his home at Cedar Lodge, on the specific charge of "devising schemes to defraud by use of the mails."

The letter directly responsible was addressed to the Tennessee-Kentucky Distillery company at Clarksville, Tenn. The method was to secure the name of a firm, order whatever he wished, prefix "The Rev." to his signature, explain that he was an Episcopalian clergyman, receive the goods and refuse to respond to a request for a remittance.

In this way he has amassed a considerable fortune. This fortune is maintained in the name of his daughter Elizabeth.

Within the last six months Hargrave, according to the authorities, has swindled 100 business houses out of oupwards of $100,000.

GRANDE'S HOPES GET A SETBACK

Governor Johnson of Minnesota has refused J. H. Grande's request that the requisition papers sent the executive from the governor of California be not honored. Governor Johnson's action was based on a telegram from the governor of California, in which the latter stated that he had investigated the forgery charge against Grande, and believes it is sufficient to warrant extradition.

Grande's only hope in his fight against the requisition papers is the supreme court, where it is claimed, he will appeal from the order of the district court discharging the writ of habeas corpus in his case.

BRUTALLY MURDERED.

Manitoba Young Woman Outraged and Killed by Farm Hand.

Killarney, Minn., May 23.—Georgina Brown, a young girl who kept house for her brother on a farm two miles from here, was outraged and murdered yesterday by Lawrence Gowland Barnardo, who had been making his home with the Browns for two years past.

Her brother was absent from home for two hours yesterday and it was during this time that the brutal crime was committed. The murderer went to the girl's room, where she was dressing after dinner, accomplished his purpose, after a terrible struggle, evidences of which were apparent everywhere. He cut the girl's throat with a razor.

He then attempted suicide by cutting his own throat with a butcher knife but will probably recover, to pay the penalty for his crime on the gallows.

ACT OF HOODLUMS.

Boys Cover Rocks With Obscene Pictures and Writing.

A number of East end residents who have been accustomed to make visits to the lake shore with their children, in the vicinity of Fourteenth avenue east, when the weather is favorable, are complaining of the acts of boys who, it is claimed, have covered the large rocks and stones with obscene pictures and writing. There are several very pretty and convenient beaches along the lake through the East end and the residents consider the acts of the young hoodlums to be disgraceful. It has been suggested that it might have a good moral effect if the authorities would investigate some of the acts referred to and punish the guilty parties.

HIDDEN DANGERS

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Duluth Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Duluth proof:

Moses Leckey, flagman on the Northern Pacific railroad, living at Seventy-first avenue west, West Duluth, Minn., says: "A friend did me a great kindness when he recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me. He had used them with marked benefit, and on his recommendation I got a box and began treating a bad case of backache and kidney disorder, which had troubled me severely all last winter. There was acute pain in my back and loins, and the irregularity of the kidney secretions was most annoying. It prevented sleep at night. The first box almost rid me of the trouble, but I continued using them, until I had taken two boxes; then not a trace or symptom of the trouble remained. I used Doan's Ointment for itching hemorrhoids with equally fine results, and it is needless to say that I am an earnest endorser of both remedies."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

CAR ROLLS OVER BANK

Rails Buckle Throwing Observation Car From Rails.

Maysville, Ky., May 23.—One person was killed, one fatally injured and eighteen seriously injured in a wreck on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad at Lawrence creek, about five miles west of here, yesterday afternoon. The forward end of the train passed over a piece of track west of the bridge, when it buckled, throwing the observation car, which was on the rear of the train, from the track. It ran along the ties for about a hundred feet, then went over the bank about fifty feet high, on the south side, rolling over and completely wrecking it.

NO REVISION OF VULGATE.

Benedictines, However, Will Do Work With the Gregorian Chant.

Rome, May 23.—The Vatican declares no revision of the vulgate is contemplated, and the report that the pope had intrusted the revision to the Benedictines is said to be unfounded. The report probably originated in the fact that the pope has commissioned the Benedictines, who are now holding a chapter here, to do certain work in connection with the Gregorian chant.

EXPECT BIG RUSH.

Rosebud Indian Agency, S. D., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The rush into the Tripp country, when it is opened for settlement is expected to eclipse anything of the kind seen in years, as thousands are said to be planning to be early on the ground.

Of the most encouraging nature is the latest information which has been received here, as it indicates that everything will be in readiness for the opening of the land late in the summer. The precise time of the opening depends upon J. H. Scriven of Mitchell, who recently was appointed allotting agent for the Rosebud Indians.

Before the land can be opened it will be necessary for him to complete the work of allotting tracts to Indians in Tripp county. The duties of the position have been assumed by Mr. Scriven, who expresses the opinion that he can complete his work in ample time to have the opening take place late in the summer.

PLAN GREAT DITCH.

County Commissioners Are Considering Such Project at Aitkin.

Aitkin, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The May term of the district court adjourned Wednesday, after a week's session. There were forty civil cases and two criminal cases on the calendar, but no grand jury was called.

The county commissioners are in session this week, and in addition to the general busines of the board, the matter of a drainage ditch under a new state law came up. The work projected is extensive and will involve an expenditure of $150,000. While the ditch will drain a great deal of agricultural land, the prime object is to control the surplus waters of the Mississippi during flood stage.

CONFERENCE TO MEET IN LA CROSSE WIS.

La Crosse, Wis., May 23.—The meeting of the Wisconsin conference of the Methodist Episcopal church has been changed from Ashland to La Crosse. The meeting is particularly important, because at this session will occur, besides the conference of clergy, the quadrennial lay electoral conference, at which delegates to the general conference will be elected and recommendations on church policy made, are reappointments with the exception of the last named.

SETTLES HIS CLAIM.

Devils Lake, N. D., May 23.—T. P. O'Connell of Minot, claim agent for the Great Northern, has settled the claim of F. E. Dwyer of this city, extra gang foreman, who had a leg crushed two years ago in the local yards. Besides receiving $250 and a cork leg, to replace the one lost, the unfortunate man had his bill for medical treatment paid.

Mr. Dwyer has recovered and has resumed charge of a crew.

KINNEY BREAKS JAIL AFTER FIRING BED.

Backus, Minn., May 23.—Billy Kinney, who lives three miles south of here on a farm, a character who is said to have been more or less of a thorn in the sides of the village officials in most of the towns along the line, broke jail here last night after being taken in by the village marshal for drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

Several bars and a padlock were broken off the cell door and an outside window, and before leaving he set the bedding afire. Had the quilts not been damp the jail would surely have been destroyed by fire before morning.

The charges of resisting an officer, breaking jail and trying to set it afire are over Kinney's head, and the sheriff will be put on his trail.

ON DESERTION CHARGE.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Adolph Craney, who has been living for some time near Olinger's garden, on the North side, was arrested by Capt. Elliott and the sheriff of Taylor county on the charge of deserting his wife and children in that county. The sheriff took Craney back to Taylor county.

A charge of bigamy will probably be brought against the man, for it is said the police have ascertained that he was recently married to a woman in this city, and has been living with her on the North side.

SYSTEM IS COMMENDED

Duluth Has Right Plan of Guarding Tubercular Cattle.

Efforts Being Made to Partly Quarantine Tubercular Patients.

Considering the present day agitation in regard to the care and isolation of tuberculosis patients, a recently issued report of the Minnesota health department may be of interest to Duluthians as it comments in no questionable terms on the work that the Duluth board of health is doing in regard to its care and watchfulness over tubercular cattle. Says the report:

"The system employed in Duluth is almost ideal. Duluth is so situated that the tributary country is not adapted to farming, and consequently dairy cows must be imported. Realizing this fact the health authorities allow no cattle to be taken from the stockyards until they are tested and found free from tuberculosis. The result is that the dairy herds at Duluth are supplying pure milk and there is no danger of diseased cattle being introduced into the dairies. Of all cities which have ordinances covering their milk supply, Duluth is the only city which carries on the work with harmony and insures the public a pure milk supply."

However, nice the bouquets from the state authorities may be, the local health officials feel that there is another department of the work of fighting the white plague which is almost as valuable and effective as that of watching for tubercular cattle. This is the careful watching and at least partial quarantine of tuberculous patients.

On the cards which the health department furnishes doctors in order that they may report contagious diseases with ease and dispatch, tuberculosis is listed with smallpox, scarlet fever, measles, diphtheria and typhoid fever.

After being notified in this manner of existence of a consumptive patient, the department proceeds to treat it, as far as possible like other contagious diseases. The supposed origin, the sanitary condition, and other attendant circumstances are looked into by one of the department inspectors.

Frequent disenfecting is advised where possible, and children known to be tubercular patients are, whenever practicable excluded from schools. Consumptive teachers are also regarded as a menace and extremely dangerous to the children under them.

WILL SELL HORSES AT PUBLIC AUCTION

Noted Princeton Dealer Will Offer Grand Selection Next Saturday.

I am aware that all men love a nice horse, whether he wants one for labor or driving purposes. Let me tell you that I never failed to have an auction sale of horses at my home town (Princeton, Minn.), on the first Saturday of each month for twenty years, and I now have a lot of fine saddle, driving and draft horses in Duluth, at the Duluth Horse company's stables at 1926 West First street, and on next Saturday, May 25th, at 9 o'clock a. m. I will offer them for sale at public auction.

I want everyone who wants a horse to come and see them, and I am sure you will say that they are the finest lot of horses ever seen in Duluth. I want liverymen on the ranges and elsewhere to come and see the fine lot of driving horses. I want all who want heavy draft horses, or who have them to sell to come. If I can't sell you a horse I can purchase yours. I make Western horses a specialty during the summer months, and I was one of the first men to ship Western horses into Minnesota.

Now don't forget that I will sell you a team or all the horses you want on the most liberal terms. But come to the stables and see for yourself. Remember the date, May 25th, at 9 a. m., and the place, at 1926 West First street. I buy and sell horses. That is my whole business and has been for years, and I want you to come and select just what you want. Remember the fact that every horse is guaranteed just as he is represented. E. MAURICE RUBEN WILL SPEAK HERE

Y. M. C. A. Will Hold Meeting for Men at Lyceum Sunday.

Rev. Maurice Ruben, a most remarkable visitor, arrived in Duluth today. He is superintendent of the "New Covenant Mission" at Pittsburg, Pa., and is the editor of a bimonthly magazine, "The Glory of Mankind." He will speak to a big meeting of men at the Lyceum theater Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

Although the series of big meetings conducted by the Y. M. C. A. during the winter and part of the spring was closed several weeks ago, the Y. M. C. A. authorities considered the chance to have Mr. Ruben speak too good to cast aside and he has been brought here and will speak at the Lyceum. He will tell the story of his life and this is said to be one of the most thrilling of its kind ever heard.

Since the time Mr. Ruben has been in charge of the New Covenant Mission, a magnificent building has been erected and a new down town building has recently been purchased for $30,000.

The meeting will be for men only and will be free. Tickets can be obtained at the Y. M. C. A.. Smith & Smith's drug store, or at the Lyceum box office. There will be the usual concert by the orchestra and a special musical program is being arranged. The doors at the theater will be opened at 3 o'clock and the meeting will commence at 3:15.

CAUSE OF SKIN DISEASES

The cause of such diseases as psoriasis and eczema is little understood. Even physicians still wrangle about it, and some doctors who rank high in their profession have made but little study of these peculiar ailments. The most prominent specialists of Germany and France, however, as well as many willing to recognize the correctness of the theory of the eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis. The skin is curable through the skin alone, and where the patient suffers from no other ailments it is nonsense to dose the stomach.

External treatment with the proper vegetable compound offers the only cure for eczema. Wonderful reports are coming in from all over the country of the infallibility of the prescription of Dr. Dennis, known as the D. D. D. Prescription. Here is a case: James S. Erskine of Niagara Falls, N. Y., writes as follows:

"D. D. D. Remedy has done me more good than any other remedy I ever used in all my life time. Have suffered since I was a very young babe. My folks can tell you the long suffering and agony of that awful eczema trouble. It began, I believe, in my head, until it scattered all over my body. Doctored and doctored until I had a feeling of discouragement in every form."

D. D. D. Prescription gives instant relief. Apply a few drops of the Remedy and there is a cooling, soothing sensation that the tortured eczema patient can hardly imagine beforehand. The Remedy may be had from Lyceum Pharmacy.

BOOST RATE JUNE FIRST

Increase of 20 Per Cent in the Lumber Rate.

The Raise Will Apply to Points East of Chicago.

As announced in The Herald last week, lumber rates from Duluth to points east of Chicago will be given a substantial boost June 1. It is learned that the increase will amount to 20 per cent, causing an increase of about $1 per 1,000 feet in the retail cost of lumber in Eastern cities.

Lumbermen have not yet been officially notified of the advance, but news of it comes from an authoritive source. Lumber has been taken out of the list of materials which enjoy the commodity rate from railroads, and put on a straight freight classification basis.

The jump in railroad rates follows the general advance in wages and increase in cost of materials. It may result in driving more of the lumber shipments to the lake carriers, and the latter may also be forced to advance their rates. The Southern rate on lumber was advanced about 20 per cent Feb. 1. The last advance is due entirely to the Eastern lines.

TIME TAKEN UP.

Traffic Officials Kept Busy Attending Railroad Rate Hearings.

J. G. Woodworth, traffic manager of the Northern Pacific road, said when he was in the city this week that the reason traffic officers of the several roads do not appear in Duluth oftener is because most all of their time is spent in dealing with the railroad rate agitation in one form or another. He only recently returned from the second hearing in the Spokane rate case held at Portland, Or., and has several other cases pending before the interstate commerce commission. He made the statement that rates are low enough, and too low to encourage good service in some cases.

STEVENS REPORTS.

Hardly Likely He Had Been Offered Presidency of N. P.

St. Paul, May 23.—The Dispatch says: The report that John F. Stevens was to come to this city as president of the Northern Pacific railway is persistent. Today a telegram from Washington said that the presidency of the Northern Pacific had been offered to Mr. Stevens by J. J. Hill himself. Although Mr. Hill denies any knowledge of this he refused to discuss the question and would give no direct negative answer.

New Haven, Conn., May 23.—An official of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company, said that Mr. Stevens came here for definite purposes connected with the road and is not likely to be released for several months or perhaps a period considerably longer. Mr. Stevens himself is quoted as having said recently that the unfounded report that he would go to the Northern Pacific Railroad company originated in his leaving Panama and has persistently followed him up since. In railroad circles here the belief prevails that Mr. Stevens will not leave the New York, New Haven & Hartford. Mr. Stevens is not in the city.

Washington, May 23.—According to Mrs. John F. Stevens, her husband has not been offered the presidency of the Northern Pacific railway by James J. Hill or by anybody else. She stated last night that the report that Mr. Stevens was to become the head of that railway system originated in Wall street. Mrs. Stevens says Mr. Stevens now has three offers under consideration but none of them have any relation to the presidency of the Northern Pacific.

NEW MILEAGE BOOK.

Interchangeable Book Will be Issued by Northwestern Lines.

Washington, May 23.—The state railroad commission of Montana, consisting of B. T. Stanton, Nathan Godfrey and E. A. Morley, have given notice to the interstate commerce commission of an agreement entered into April 22, last, between that commission and the Great Northern Railway company, the Northern Pacific Railway company and the Butte, Anaconda & Pacific Railway company, under which these railroads undertake to issue at as early a date as practicable, probably July 1, next, an interchangeable 3,000 mile ticket good for one year from date of sale, at the rate of 2½ cents per mile. These books are to be for transportation of the individual whose name appears thereon, in all states reached by these companies, North Dakota and West, and under certain conditions for interstate journeys involving travel in the state of Minnesota. These companies further agree to endeavor to secure the concurrence in this arrangement and the issuance and acceptance of such 3,000 mile interchangeable ticket by the Oregon Short Line railroad and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway.

WEST DULUTH

TO DISCUSS DOCK PLANS

At Meeting of the Commercial Club Friday Night.

From present indications, the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club tomorrow night will not be as busy as some of the sessions held by that body recently. It is probable that the question of extending Ramsey street, which was a bone of contention for several meetings, will be resurrected. The committee which was appointed to look into the matter and report on the probabilities of extending the street, reported last Friday night, but the report was not gone into, being received and laid on the table, and the committee discharged.

It is probable that the municipal dock at the foot of Ramsey street will be discussed tomorrow night. There are a number of West Duluth people, who do not like the idea of having the approach to the dock from Oneota street and Forty-eighth avenue west, favoring the providing of an approach from Ramsey street. The matter has been taken up by individuals previously, but nothing was done, and it is possible that the club will lend its influence to an effort to secure the change.

"I am not fully conversant with the plans of the engineer, but I believe that no provision has been made for an approach to the dock from Ramsey street," said a member of the club this morning. "I think, however, that such an approach should be provided for in the plans, and the club will be asked tomorrow night to request it. As the plans were, when I last noticed them, it would be necessary for a person approaching the dock from West Duluth to go up Oneota street and then down on Forty-eighth avenue to the dock. Of course, it can be reached that way, but it is a roundabout route and one which could be done away with very easily.

"At the foot of Ramsey street, there is only a small pond near the railroad track which would need filling in, in order that an approach to the dock might be built. The city could fill that pond at a comparatively small expense and the improvement would then be more complete in detail. I, for one, am in favor of the change in the plans, and I think the city engineer should make it before the contract is awarded."

CHARGES ARE SENSATIONAL

Chicago, May 23.—The grand jury today began an examination into sensational charges that midwives and doctors had paid thousands of dollars "protection money" in connection with illegal surgical operations. Incidentally the jury indicted Dr. Lucy Hagenow in connection with the death of Lola Maddison of Salt Lake City, Utah. Dr. Hagenow was indicted on this charge a year ago, but the indictment was found technically faulty. Later Dr. Hagenow was called before the jury to testify to an interview credited to her, but later denied, that she, in common with others, had escaped trial for years by the use of "hush" money paid to a regularly organized clique of politicians and police.

The number of illegal operations performed in Chicago in a year is said to be startling. The victims are mostly girls and women from the country coming here, or sent, through advertisements carefully worded and circulated privately and in such regular publications as would handle them.

CALUMET IS HERE TODAY

This afternoon at Athletic park, the White Sox will open the second series of the season, Frank Mullane's Calumet Aristocrats assisting in the performance. The Aristocrats arrived from Winnipeg today to find the Sox ready and waiting for them. In the Canadian city, the copper diggers could only get away with two of the five games and in the meantime, the Sox were giving the other Copper country team a beautiful drubbing out at the park in the West end.

After Calumet had scowed away two of the first three games played in Winnipeg, the Canadian scribes marked them up as strong factors in the pennant race. Then the Maroons turned around and beat them two straight. It is possible that the Canadian sporting writers are off in their estimate, for they didn't let their judgment rest on the full performance.

Mullane is evidently shy on pitchers. In the Winnipeg series, Newcombe pitched three games and Schroder two. Calumet will never gain much by that. Working a pitcher three times in a series of five games is sure to hurt him and he can't maintain the stride. Should Newcombe or Schroeder go bad on account of overwork, Calumet would lose a good deal, for they are both good men, and should be used only on regular turns in a string of four pitchers. It's up to Mullane to get busy, unless he wants to kill his box-men off.

The series, which begins today, is an important one, for it will decide just what sort of a show the White Sox have for higher honors. They open the series with Calumet two games and but one defeat, while Calumet has but two victories and three defeats. If Duluth should win four of the six games, they will have a fine start in the Canadians and will be in fine shape to meet the red-clad ones when they come to Duluth next week. Of course, there is a possibility that Houghton will just clear a few on Winnipeg, for they started a good start yesterday.

The performance this afternoon, in batting order, are as follows:

Duluth—	Calumet—
Sievers, 2b	Corrigan, cf

Fred Goldsmith umpired the Duluth-Blaine high school game yesterday. He should be able to sympathize with Jack Nolan now.

It's real kind and obliging of the Giants to lend it to Winnipeg that way. If they will continue to wallop the Maroons, the Sox will endeavor to take care of the Indians from Calumet.

Jack Corrigan, Bibby Dolan and Roy Ness strike it the only Athletics with new blown here. McInnis recruited his team at Minneapolis and is said to have a good one.

McLaughlin, the local boy, will hold Laughly's local sack for a while. He played good ball Tuesday and is worthy of a trial. Jimmy Farrell will undoubtedly be back again, for he has the goods and will probably be able to deliver them when he gets in condition.

Orgie Overall, "the second Rusie," suffered his first defeat yesterday since July 21 last. He won fifteen games without a single defeat and with a beginning the sandwiched in between. His performances was regarded as marvelous. It took John McGraw and his Giants to break the record.

GIANTS WIN FROM PEGGERS

Winnipeg, Man., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—After losing four out of five to the White Sox at Duluth, the Houghton Giants arrived in Winnipeg yesterday and went almost directly from the train to Happyland park, where they won from the Maroons by a score of 5 to 4. It was an interesting game, with both teams contesting every advantage. Rogers, who pitched for Houghton, was in good form and after the third the Maroons couldn't hit him with men on the bases. Herr was not so effective. The Maroons took a commanding lead in the second and third innings, but from then on Rogers held them down, while his team-mates fought an uphill fight, scoring the winning run in the ninth inning. Score:

CUP GOES TO BLAINE

Game Was Close, Blaine Winning Great Uphill Battle.

The Blaine high school team of Superior won from the boys of the Duluth high school yesterday by a score of 7 to 6. By their victory the Superiorites secured the title to the cup offered by the Northern Hardware company to the team which would get the highest average of games won. The contest was fast from the start and was either side's game until the close of the ninth inning.

In the first inning both sides failed to score but in the second Bowen knocked out a nice single with two men on bases, bringing both of them in and getting to third safely himself. Cummings followed him with a two bagger and brought in another run. In the last of the third Medevitt knocked a pretty three-bagger and Cole brought him in. Shortly after Anderson swatted the ball for a two-bagger and brought in two men who were on bases. At this point the Duluth boys stopped scoring and did not make another point during the entire game.

In the fourth inning the Blainetes began to sit up and take notice and by bunching two of the inning they had four runs chalked up to their credit. At the end of the seventh Superior had seven points to Duluth's 6, and the score remained this way till the close of the game.

Rooney for Superior and Cummings for Duluth both pitched good games but the latter had somewhat the better of the argument. The two teams were evenly matched and although the players did brilliant work both sides played a consistent game with but few exceptions.

The two teams lined up as follows:

SUMMERS MAKES GOOD.

Philadelphia, May 23.—Tommy Murphy of New York and Johnny Summers of England fought one of the hardest six-round battles ever witnessed in this city at the National Athletic club last night. It was Summers' first appearance in the ring in this country, and he made an excellent impression. In the first round he dropped Murphy with a right to the jaw, and in the second round Murphy was forced twice, and only the over-anxiety of Summers to stop Murphy saved the latter from taking the count. Murphy grew stronger as the fight progressed and more than held his own in the third, fourth and fifth rounds, while the sixth was about even. Murphy's stomach punches find the Englishman tired at the end of the battle.

FIRST RACE OF SEASON

Boat Club Eights Cover Full Course in Good Form.

The two eights of the Duluth Boat club were sent over the full course of one and one-half miles last evening, and for an impromptu race it was a most exciting affair.

The regular junior eight as it is at present constituted, was pitted against an eight composed of the seniors and the "bantam" four. The latter crew, stroked by Church, got the jump at the start, and led by a scant quarter of a length all the way up the course to the Yacht club. Here the experience of the seniors began to tell, and with Church, Haroldson and Skelton in the stern of the boat, the stroke was gradually lifted until they led the juniors by a full length. They crossed the line with two or three feet of open water between the boats.

Considering the season of the year the men showed good form all the way over the course, and the race was more interesting than any pulled off at the club regattas last summer, between the eights.

The same two crews, with perhaps one or two changes, will be matched against each other on the evening before Decoration day. Interest will be added by the prizes which have been offered the winning crew. The club will present each man in the winning boat with a pair of leather seated rowing trousers.

Following the race a smoker will be held in the clubhouse, to which all members of the club are invited. This smoker will mark the formal opening of the season.

Following was the line-up of the crews last evening:

Church	stroke
Skelton	seven
Haroldson	six
Noalsund	five
Dennis	four
Walker	three
Horak	two
Higgins	bow
Tischer	coxswain

Pierce
Rockwell
Crawford
Totman
Joseph Pierce

Clarence McClelland, who wants to wrestle George Milton, has posted a forfeit and side bet with the sporting editor of The Herald, and it is ready to be covered by Milton. No date has yet been set for the Myers-Milton match, but it is thought it will come off in the Temple rink within two weeks.

LARGE SALES OF STEEL MADE

New York, May 23.—The Iron Age will say: Sales of steel for delivery in 1908 announced by one of the large manufacturers this week include 65,000 tons to the Northern Pacific; 10,000 tons to the St. Louis & San Francisco; 10,000 tons to the Illinois Central and 4,000 tons to the Great Northern. Another company has booked 10,000 tons for the St. Louis & San Francisco but the reported sale to the Southern Railway has not yet been effected. There was some additional large inquiries in the market, one company having under consideration about 100,000 tons. Rails have gone in for 5,000 tons for Panama and 13,000 tons for Manchuria have been booked.

Buying for 1908 delivery has been a feature in other departments of the trade, although in some isolated instances at least its significance is clouded by the fact that the seller protects the buyer against a decline.

An interesting transaction is the sale in Cleveland of 25,000 tons of malleable Bessemer for delivery, during the first half of 1908, on the basis of $22 at furnace. There have been some sales, too, of Southern iron for the first quarter on the basis of $15.50 Birmingham for No. 2. It is understood, however, that the furnaces are not encouraging transactions of this character.

It is estimated that Eastern steel makers have made additional purchases of basic pig for second half delivery to the extent of close to 50,000 tons, and there are indications that the movement has not yet quite ended.

Chicago reports the sale in that district of 3,000 tons of Middlesboro iron, with the probability of further transactions. The English market has eased off somewhat, warrants being quoted 60s 3d today for Middlesborough.

Very few sales of the foundry iron markets have become stronger during the week, although the feeling in the trade persists that prices are unduly high and that a lower level if it could be safely reached, would be far less dangerous.

The agricultural implement managers have apparently surrendered after a long struggle to secure lower prices for bars for the season which begins on July 1. They have bought heavily during the past week from the makers in the West and the Central West and what is a striking commentary on the reports of crop damage, have taken more tonnage than a year ago.

There has been a good run of business in structural material, chiefly in factory structures and office buildings. Western plate manufacturers continue under heavy pressure, chiefly from the car builders who are urgent for delivery. The sheet mills are catching up only very slowly and the tin plate mills are having good business. The leading pipe mill has taken an order for 120 miles of 1-inch pipe.

On the whole the demands for finished iron and steel hold remarkably well and specifications are rolling in rapidly. The new tonnage entered so far this month is, however, somewhat lighter than that of April and of March.

In the cast iron trade the volume of business is rather lighter than is usual this season of the year, which may be due partially to the fact that contracting was done a little earlier. It is noted that the requirements of the gas companies are light this year. The largest order place during the week was for 3,000 tons for Buffalo.

Coke for early delivery has been very weak lately and strictly first class Connellsville has sold down to $2 to $2.10 at oven.

Grounds of Endion Club Are in Excellent Shape.

With the advent of something approaching ordinary spring weather, the tennis players have become active and the members of the different Duluth clubs are preparing for a strenuous season.

The members of the Endion club have been busy for over a week past and now the courts on Superior street between Tenth and Eleventh avenues east are ready for play. The courts have been put in the best possible shape and with constant attention during the season, they will be kept in good condition. The club house has been given a thorough overhauling and the club is now very well equipped.

Enthusiasm is marked in the ranks of the Endion club this year and some interesting contests are promised. Some of the new members are excellent racquet handlers, and they will make the old timers move to secure the honors. Hammond, Dickerman, Kennedy, Ballou, Dahlgren and Bussbee are some of the new members, who are expected to make a showing this year. Applications from which to fill the vacancies in the membership roll, are still being received and will be until June 1, when the drawings for the first club turnament will be made.

The club in the normal school district is also preparing for an active season during this, its first year. The members are enthusiastic and some good contests are expected on its grounds.

In West Duluth, the tennis club, which was active a couple of years ago, has been reorganized, and interest is great in that section of the city. It is expected that the reorganized club will have twenty-five or thirty members and they hope to engage in contests with other clubs of Duluth and Superior.

MEMORIAL FOR "FLORAL KING"

Big Crowd Expected to Attend Linnaeus Celebration.

Unless all indications are wrong the Armory will be filled to overflowing at the big memorial celebration to be given this evening under the auspices of the Svean Glee club in honor of Linnaeus, the great Swedish naturalist. All preparations for the big affair are now complete and an excellent program has been arranged.

Congressman J. Adam Bede and Dr. J. S. Carlson of the University of Minnesota will deliver addresses and there will be a number of other able speakers. Several musical selections will also be given and, with the exception of some of the songs, the entire program will be in English.

Dr. Carolus Linnaeus, "The Floral King," was born May 23, 1707, at Rashult, Sweden, and lived seventy-one years. He was sent to the grammar school at Wexico at an early age, and here he showed a decided liking for flowers and nature study, and would neglect his other work to roam about the fields in search of new flowers. He was finally sent home to his parents with the opinion of the faculty that he was unfit for learning, having neither desire nor ability.

The boy was advised to learn a trade, but his parents turned to an old friend, Dr. Rothman, who said that Carl was the best student of nature in Wexico, and that he had the ability to become a great physician. The doctor assisted the boy and he was soon admitted to the University of Lund, where he made a wonderful record for himself as a student of nature. After two years of work there, he went to the University of Upsala, and, while there, he met Prof. Alcius, who offered to help him and secured for him an appointment as a lecturer at the University of Upsala.

Dr. Linnaeus soon came into great prominence throughout the entire world and in 1742 he was appointed professor of botany at Upsala. In order to study under him, students came from all parts of Europe. His success as a teacher was marvelous and great honors were gained for Upsala through him.

His health began to fail as early as 1750 and he had several severe attacks of rheumatism. His death occurred Jan. 19, 1778.

OUTRAGED AND MURDERED.

Fifteen-Year Old Long Island Girl Meets Horrible Death.

New York, May 23.—Amelia Staffeldt, 15 years of age, was outraged and murdered on the outskirts of her father's farm in Elmhurst, L. I., yesterday afternoon.

The crime was committed in a lonely spot, where the girl had wandered in search of dandelions, and the weapon employed was the kitchen knife, which she had used to sever the crowns from the roots of the wild flowers.

The body was found by Joseph Engel, a farm hand, was half stripped of clothing, and bore the evidence of revolting assault and the struggle which the girl had made. Two wounds in the throat told how the murder was done.

Word of the outrage spread quickly through the farming section where the girl's father, William Staffeldt, a well-to-do farmer, lives. Later, a determined posse of 200 neighbors searched for the murderer, but with no avail.

Engel says he saw a man crossing the lot in which the girl had been about three-quarters of an hour before he found the body.

REVISION OF THE TARIFF

Favored by the National Association of Manufacturers.

New York, May 23.—The National Association of Manufacturers of the United States went on record yesterday as in favor of a revision of the tariff at the earliest opportunity and the negotiation of more reciprocity treaties.

A lively debate preceded the vote, which was upon the acceptance of the report of the committee on tariff and reciprocity. The committee based its recommendations on a poll of the 3,500 members of the association. Of the total number replying, 55 per cent declared for immediate revision, while 20 per cent expressed a "hands off" sentiment. Eight per cent believed that the time for revision had not arrived and the other 17 per cent expressed indifference or made non-committal answers.

An effort to table the report was defeated and it was adopted as reported.

Capt. Henry A. Castle of St. Paul, formerly sixth auditor of the United States treasury, in a speech on "Needed Postal Reforms," criticised the management of the postoffice department, which, he said, should be placed on a business basis.

Charles A. Prouty, the member of the interstate commerce commission, advocated direct control by the government over the capital accounts of the railroads.

The association re-elected James W. Van Cleave of St. Louis, president, and F. H. Stillman of New York, treasurer. The convention closed with a banquet last night.

TRIO IN STOKE HOLE

Boston, Mass., May 23.—Stanley B. Smith of Zanesville, Ohio; Ernest C. Sherwin of Iowa, and William Yeager of New Jersey, arrived here on the steamship Michigan as stowaways. The trio left the canal zone, where they were employed, eighteen months ago and became stranded in Costa Rica. Here they intercepted a sailing vessel and were landed in Manchester, England, where they almost starved to death, being unable to obtain employment. They managed to get into the stokehole of the Michigan, where the temperature is 120 and the coal dust even worse.

The pitching of the vessel when she struck open water brought on seasickness, and after several days their groans attracted the coal passers, who dragged them forth. They were almost starved when brought to the deck, but were well cared for, and when strength returned were permitted to work their passage to Boston.

THREE BIG REPTILES.

Put to Death by Preacher and Two Boys in Kentuckey.

Lexington, Ky., May 23.—Three big snakes were killed near here last week. Tom Sebree and S. L. Poindexter killed a blowing viper over six feet long in the woods of Hick Sebree, near Stamping Ground. The battle between the snakes and the lads lasted twenty-five minutes.

Another snake four feet six inches long was killed by Rev. Robert N. Campton on his premises in Rowan county. This reptile was a black snake, and Elder Campton hung it on a fence in the yard after he had killed it. An hour later he called in a friend to show him the ophidan and discovered another snake four feet four inches long trailing up the route to where the dead one was hanging. The second reptile was also killed.

S.S.S. CURES BLOOD POISON

The first symptom of Contagious Blood Poison is usually a little sore or ulcer which does not always excite suspicion because of its insignificance; but as the poison becomes more firmly rooted in the blood, the mouth and throat ulcerate, copper-colored spots appear, a rash breaks out on the body, the hair begins to come out, glands in the neck and groins swell, and often ulcerating sores form on the limbs, hands or face. But this is not all: if the poison is allowed to remain it works down and attacks the bones, causing necrosis or decay, and makes a complete physical wreck of the sufferer. It will not do to tamper with a disease so powerful as Contagious Blood Poison, for every day the virus remains in the blood the trouble is progressing toward a more dangerous stage, and may in the end get beyond the reach of any treatment. There is but one certain, reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison, and that is S. S. S., the greatest of all blood purifiers. This remedy attacks the disease in the right way by going down into the blood and forcing out every particle of the poison. It makes the blood pure and rich, strengthens the different parts of the body, tones up the system and cures this humiliating and destructive disorder permanently. The improvement commences as soon as the patient gets under the influence of S. S. S. and continues until every vestige of the poison is driven from the blood, and the sufferer completely restored to health. S. S. S. is not an experiment, it is a success and has cured thousands of cases of Contagious Blood Poison in every stage, and being entirely free from minerals, is a safe as well as certain treatment. If you are suffering with this debasing disease get the poison out of your blood with S. S. S before it does further damage. SUBSCRIBE THE FUNDS

Fifth Avenue Wholesalers Raising Money for Footbridge.

Despairing of ever securing action from the city, the wholesalers located on Lower Fifth avenue are now endeavoring to raise enough funds from subscriptions among themselves to provide a wooden foot bridge for pedestrians across the tracks at that point. B. W. How and George C. Stone are leading the movement, and at last reports they were practically certain of raising sufficient funds to make the bridge a reality.

They have asked the city engineering department to draw up plans for such a structure and to give them an estimate on the cost. This has been done. The plans provide for an eight-foot walk, with stairway approaches at each end, the entire structure to be of wood. It will be located on the east side of the avenue and will commence just below the driveway turning into the Northern Pacific warehouses on Fifth avenue west and extending to the Omaha freight office on the south of the track.

There will be three spans over the Northern Pacific and Omaha tracks and over Railroad sareet, the largest being over the Northern Pacific tracks. The bridge will have the prescribed clearance of 22 feet.

According to the plans of the wholesalers, the stairway will be started from the street, but at a height of about eleven feet will swing over in a landing, so that the rest of the ascent and the roadway of the structure will be directly over the sidewalk. It is thought that this will enable the lower sidewalk to be used when desired, and that it will not interfere appreciably with team traffic. Such a structure, built of wood, would cost, according to the estimates of the city engineer, about $1,400.

Under ordinary conditions a wooden bridge would be poor economy and will be an unsightly structure at best, but under present conditions it is probable that the wholesalers are making a wise move toward the ultimate securing of a properly constructed steel, half-width or full-width viaduct, or at least a steel foot bridge when this wooden structure gives out.

The city will then be, in a way, forced to substitute for it a properly built structure, of whatever design may be then thought most feasible, or the recent decision of the supreme court regarding the maintenance of viaducts by railroads whose tracks they cross might result in the final rebuilding of the structure at the railroads' expense. At any rate, the end sought by the Lower Fifth avenue wholesalers will have been accomplished.

That the bridge is a sadly needed structure is universally recognized, as the armies of employes who are daily subjected to the inconvenience and danger of crossing the tracks will appreciate its installation immensely. The city's permanent improvement fund, as shown by the report of the report of the finance committee at last Monday's council meeting is, however, worse than empty, and there can be but little chance of any appropriation for such a structure under the disposition of the funds which was made by the conference committee this year.

IT WILL BE NOTED CASE

One of Prominent Virginia Jurists Accused of Murder.

Temporary Insanity and "Unwritten Law" Will be Defense.

Richmond, Va., May 23. — Within the next several weeks there is to be tried for his life in Nelson county, ex-Judge William G. Loving, one of the most prominent jurists in the state. The crime of which Judge Loving is accused is the murder of Theodore Estes, whom Judge Loving shot to death under the belief that he had drugged and then assaulted his young daughter, Elizabeth.

The young man had taken the girl out riding in the afternoon, bringing her back in a condition bordering on unconsciousness. Judge Loving stated at the preliminary hearing that he waited until he had obtained the story from the lips of his daughter before securing his gun and going in search of Estes. He found the young man, unconscious of his own impending fate, unloading a car of fertilizer.

Ordering the two negroes who were assisting Estes aside, Judge Loving, without further preliminaries and without giving the young man a chance to speak in his own defense, it is said, opened fire, shooting twice, both shots taking effect, Estes falling in his tracks and dying within a few moments.

Judge Loving immediately surrendered to the authorities and at the preliminary hearing pleaded the "unwritten law" in his own defense.

Considerable light has since been thrown on the tragedy. Miss Loving has written a letter to a friend which has since been made public in which she makes the emphatic statement that young Estes had never offered her an insult in his life. She intimates that she is utterly unable to comprehend the overmastering passion that must have dominated her father to have caused him to shoot the young man.

It has also been shown that the character of Estes was above reproach. His family stands among the very best in the state, one of his sisters being the wife of John P. Swanson of Danville, a brother of the governor of Virginia. The young man had been received into the Loving family as a social intimate. There had never existed any infatuation between himself and Miss Loving.

The story of the buggy ride that was the real cause of the shooting has been learned from various sources. On the evening in question Estes had an engagement to go driving with Miss Mary Kidd, whom Miss Loving happened to be visiting at the time. Upon their return from the drive, Miss Kidd suggested that Estes take Miss Loving, who had not been feeling well all day, out for a spin along the country roads.

When the girl was returned from the ride Miss Kidd home she rad to be assisted from the buggy, and was put to bed, where she remained for the better part of the following day. In the meantime Estes was killed and the story of the alleged drugging and assault made known.

A physician whom Estes sent to attend Miss Loving after the fateful ride, made a statement a week after the enactment of the tragedy. In which he stated that he treated the young woman for too much whisky, and that there was no evidences of assault observed by him, and that he never suspected any such thing.

Miss Loving thereupon admitted that she took a drink from a bottle in the possession of Estes, thinking that it would tend to alleviate her indisposition, and that the stimulant affected her more strongly than she anticipated. In this connection it is fair to state that Estes was not a drinking man. He was subject to severe headaches and nervousness, and had been in the habit for a long time of taking an occasional drink on that account. He had suffered from this malady on the previous day, which is offered as an excuse for his having the liquor in his possession at the time.

All of the male members of the Estes family, including the Swanson brothers, allied themselves together for the protection of Judge Loving, in the event that mob violence should be offered, it having been suggested that there might be danger from this source after the assault theory had been practically abandoned.

The allied families stated publicly that they were perfectly content to allow the law to take its course, secure in the conviction that when the case comes to trial they will be able to clear the name of the dead man of any odium in connection with his relations with Miss Loving. Judge Loving is now out on bail. He has retained the most noted criminal lawyers in the state in his defense. Miss Loving has remained in close retirement since the tragedy.

Judge T. Gordon Bennett of the Nelson circuit will probably refuse to try the case on account of an altercation in which he and Judge Loving engaged years ago. Judge Loving was then on the bench, the present jurist acting in the capacity of commonwealth's attorney in Judge Loving's court.

The two men, having decided to settle their differences by a personal encounter, repaired to a private room, where, behind locked doors, they fought with the weapons provided by nature for man's defense until rather could stand on his feet. Governor Swanson will probably designate some judge to sit instead of Judge Bennett during the progress of this trial.

When the news of the tragedy first became public there was an immediate and hearty indorsement of the action of Judge Loving in taking the life of the man who had invaded his home and ruined the beautiful child whom he had reared.

The prediction was made on every hand that no Virginia jury would convict a father for killing a man under these circumstances. It was the general belief that the "unwritten law," which is really the sentiment of a people brought to bear upon a body of jurors, would be sufficient to clear Judge Loving of any blame in connection with the death of Estes.

Day by day new facts have been brought to light to show that the young man had intended no harm to and had committed no indignity upon the young woman. It is alleged that offering the girl a swallow of brandy for her sickness he no more than any man would have done under the same circumstances.

As an evidence of the guiltlessness of Estes it is cited that he made no attempt to escape after bringing the young woman home, but, on the other hand, was easily found by Judge Loving in the pursuit of his usual occupation.

As a matter of fact, it is alleged that Estes himself went after a physician for the girl, explaining to the doctor that she had simply taken a little more brandy than she could stand. Young Estes also drove by the Kidd home on the morning of his death, which was the day following the fatal buggy ride, and offered to drive Miss Loving to her home. But the young woman was still too indisposed to undertake the journey. She did not return home until after Estes had been killed.

It is now believed that the plea of the "unwritten law" on behalf of Judge Loving will be abandoned. The allegation will be made, however, that at the time of the shooting he was honest in his conviction that his daughter had suffered at the hands of Estes and that he had given her something to render her unconscious in order to accomplish his purpose. It is very probable a plea of that sort would carry considerable weight.

DUKE'S COMB

Norfolk, Va., May 23.—His royal highness, the Duke of Abruzzi, is mourning the loss of his comb and brush, likewise divers pieces of his manicure set and a few odd pieces of one sort or another which, sailor man and rough-and-ready explorer that he is, the duke has always found necessary in the preparation of his toilet. Whether the loss is attributable to an excess of zeal on the part of the great American souvenir fiend or not, nobody undertakes to give an opinion, but the fact remains that the valuable articles named disappeared from his royal highness's cabin on the flagship Varese one evening last week when the duke gave his very attractive entertainment aboard ship. Gold mounted, and bearing the arms of the reigning house of Italy, the set came as a gift to the duke from his cousin, the king of Italy. To say the royal visitor is mourning his lack of foresight in not having his valuables safely stowed away before the arrival of the evening's guests is putting it mildly.

WORD SPOKEN TO HIS FATHER

Will Cost Young Fontenilliat Fortune Bequeated by Aunt.

New York, May 23.—To get a fortune willed to him by one of his aunts, 14-year-old Rene de Fontenilliat, the nephew of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, will have to live the next thirteen years of his life in such a manner as to convince the executors of his aunt's will that there is in his blood no hereditary trace of his father's characteristics which ruined his mother's life and caused her to divorce the Baron de Fontenilliat six years ago.

Young Fontenilliat must lose everything she left for him if he ever speaks to his father, and his aunt's will, in effect, appoints her executors a board of supervisors that will decide when he reaches the age of 27 if he is a safe person to trust the heritage with or if he is a profligate, with all the other bad traits of his father. At present he is a student at St. Paul's school, near the Belmont mansion at Hempstead.

Miss Armide Vogel Smith, who died in this city on April 18, is the aunt who has made the boy one of her heirs.

Miss Smith was one of the four famous beauties of Mobile, Ala., who had such remarkable careers, one of them becoming Baroness de Fontenilliat, one becoming Mrs. W. H. Vanderbilt and later Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, the third becoming Mrs. Fernando Yznaga and later Mrs. William George Tiffany, and the fourth, Miss Smith herself, a noted charity worker. Respectively, they were known as Julia, Alva, Mimi and Armide, and they were noted throughout the South for their beauty.

ROOT'S CENSURE ON PANAMA DEAL

Expected by Contractor Oliver, Whose Bid Was Rejected.

Augusta, Ga., May 23.—"The Panama canal will yet be built by contract, and I will have a hand in cutting it," said Contractor W. J. Oliver.

"Congress," he continued, "will investigate the way in which I was thrown down, and the revelations will be such that the canal work will be let to contractors.

Referring to the government's bad faith with him, he said:

"Root, the gum-shoe man of the cabinet, was responsible for my throw-down. He stands in with Ryan interests, which were backing the other crowd. After he saw that his friends were out of it under the conditions of the bid he was determined that I should not have it. What Root says goes in the cabinet. I received a straightout proposition to do certain things which I did to the letter. The goods should have been delivered to me when I made good. However, it was intended that the contracts should go to the interests, and when they saw they could not get around my bid they set me an impossible task as they saw it. This was to raise $5,000,000 in ten days and associate with me two contractors of equal standing. This I did."

Referring to Engineer Stevens, Mr. Oliver said:

"As a matter of fact, when he stated that he would not remain on the work if I got the contract, the president told him to go. You can state positively for me, on unquestionable authority, that Stevens did not resign, but was fired. His interest in the matter was to protect the other crowd."

JUMPS LIKE KANGAROO.

Ohio Wild Man Gnaws Bones and Lives on Garbage.

Dayton, Ohio, May 23.—Residents of the northern section of Edgemont have been terrorized by a wild man, who has been seen frequently at night, running through the alleys and across the streets on "all-fours." He is supposed to be insane, and has created genuine fear. Officer Jenkins saw the man early one morning and gave chase, but was unable to capture him. The man has a long beard, and his body is a mass of cuts and bruises. He wears scanty apparel, and is believed to live in stable lofts, as what appeared to be a strange four-footed animal, which jumped like a kangaroo, was seen in a large stable in the southwestern section of the city on a recent night. The man has been seen gnawing at bones and he lives mostly on garbage.

"I'SE EAT MEDICINE,"

Richmond, Ind., May 23.—"I'se eat medicine," lisped little Martha Uphaus, aged 2. A few minutes later she was stricken with convulsions, and died several hours afterward. It developed that the child had eaten four cough drops she had found in the house, and which were being taken by her mother. The drops contained morphine. The victim was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Uphaus.

QUESTION OF TEMPERANCE

Settled by the Presbyterian Assembly After Warm Debate.

Columbus, Ohio, May 23.—Following two hours of exciting debate, which, at times, became acrimonious and urged upon personalities, the Presbyterian general assembly yesterday, at the close of one of the liveliest sessions in its history adopted, without a dissenting vote, resolutions declaring as its policy that the permanent committee on temperance shall not embark upon or interfere in political work and endorsing the American Anti-Saloon league as a "safe, sane and effective organization in the advancement of the great cause of temperance" and pledging to it the fullest co-operation "consistent with the constitution of the church."

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state of Minnesota and Itasca county, have offered a nice money prize to any one who can effect the capture and conviction of Tony De Loretos, who is wanted for the murder of Samuel Ibsen, at Holman, May 5 last. Two hundred and fifty dollars are offered by the state and $50 by Sheriff Hoolihan for running down this murderer.

The authorities by making this offer emphasize their intention to make it hot for criminals of this class and to spare no expense to bring them to justice.

STEEL COMPANY TO TAKE OPTION

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two forty acre tracts of ore land, near here, owned by J. A. McDonald, will soon become the property of the United States Steel corporation if the prospecting on the land proves to be what is expected. The company is said to be arranging to take an option and begin prospecting at once. There is every indication of a heavy deposit of ore on the land. The experts of the company are asserted to have made a very favorable report.

DECLARE COCHRANE DID THE SHOOTING.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The result of the inquest held by Coroner Russell into the death of Allan Witt, the Deer River homesteader is that David Cochrane, the well known attorney, is charged with firing the fatal shot.

The accussed's preliminary hearing will be taken up Friday morning.

ENGINE TURNS OVER.

Hibbing, Minn., May 23.—As engine No. 16 on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern was backing into Hibbing yesterday the tender left the rails, followed by the engine. The huge machine turned on its side. Engineer Dallowitz was caught under the engine, but when removed it was found he was only slightly injured. Other members of the crew received a severe shaking up.

DEATH ACCIDENTAL.

Virginia, Minn., May 23.—A coroner's jury decided that the death of the unidentified man found in the Oliver mine pit Saturday was the result of an accident. The body was so badly decomposed that identification was impossible, but there is a theory the deceased was a Finn who disappeared from his boarding house last February.

HIBBING HAPPENINGS.

Hibbing, Minn., May 23.—The Saturday club, having about seventy women members, will hold its annual reception and banquet in the Power theater this evening, when the members will entertain their husbands and invited guests.

A number of teamsters have petitioned the village government to increase the wages paid per man and team from $4.50 to $5.50 per day.

The stumps inside the race track have been blasted by the Fair association. A large amount of stump wood is available for any one who cares to remove it from the ground.

he asked for it a few days before, thought that the boy might have become indignant and run away from home. Yesterday afternoon he reported to the police, and when the finding of the body was reported to them this morning, it was but a few minutes before it was identified.

The revolting features of the crime has caused a widespread indignation throughout Superior.

It will be remembered that the murder of Freddie Mitchell at Burnett last summer, for which crime Dan Maloney is now awaiting trial in the county jail, was committed under very similar conditions. The body was found, in that case, with the throat cut from ear to ear, but it was not until one or two days after the commission of the crime that the autopsy held by West Duluth physicians revealed a motive for the deed. The repetition of the fiendish act within such a short period of time, has attracted more than usual attention.

the New York police department. He denies that he ever sent the telegram to Sholes. He declares that the only persons he ever spoke to about Dawson being married, was Inspector McLaughlin, who until recently was at the head of the detective bureau. Inspector McLaughlin's alleged connection with the Gould case also has been the subject of an investigation by Police Commissioner Bingham.

Baltimore, May 23.—According to persons about police headquarters here, Lieutenant Peabody of the New York detective force was in Baltimore last March, and is presumed to have searched the records of the court of common pleas for the names of Sam W. or George Dawson, and a woman supposed to have been Katherine Clemmons, now Mrs. Howard Gould.

The marriage record book in the office of the clerk of the court of common pleas shows that on Nov. 3, 1882, George (not Sam W.) Dawson, aged 29, was married to Harriet Lonsdale, aged 31, by Rev. Dr. John Lanahan at the Fayette street Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. Lanahan died a few years ago.

A man, supposed to have been a New York detective, went over the marriage records for the year 1882, yesterday, and secured the same information given above.

Dawson is a watchman. He said he did not know Mr. or Mrs. Gould, nor had he read anything about their marital troubles.

Col. Sam W. Dawson, manager of the Monumental theater here, says he was approached by two men, several weeks ago, and they wanted to insist that he had been seen in company with Mrs. Gould in London in 1899, and that she was his wife. As Col. Dawson already had one wife at the time, and she still abides with him, he denied the allegations. The men left the colonel very much incensed because he would not fall in line with their suggestions in the Gould case.

Inquiries were made here concerning the telegram alleged to have been sent by Peabody to Sholes, it developed yesterday Manager Creamer of the Western Union Telegraph company, said he received a call from a local detective, who was accompanied by another man, who the officer introduced to Mr. Creamer as Policeman Merrill of New York. Merrill, Mr. Creamer said, told him he was here on "certain business;" that one of his sergeants had sent a telegram from here to New York in March, and he (Merrill) would like to see a copy of it. Mr. Creamer, in response to this request, said he knew nothing about any such telegram, and that if there had been any he had no authority to exhibit it.

SHIPMENTS DECREASING

If This Condition Continues Docks Will Soon be Filled.

Commercial shipments of coal from the Head of the Lakes have been falling off more or less during the last week or ten days and if this decrease keeps on for any length of time, the coal docks will soon be pretty well filled up, as coal has been coming to the docks from the lower lakes steadily ever since the season of navigation opened a month ago.

Since the first boats came up to the Head of the Lakes with coal there has been an enormous amount of fuel received at the various docks in Duluth and Superior and where the docks were almost stripped bare at the beginning of the season, there are now monster piles of coal.

At the opening of the season all of the docks were very busy and were working night and day to take care of the great fleet of boats then in the harbor. Since that time none of them have been idle and the total receipts have been enormous. Coal boats from Lake Erie are continually tied up at the docks.

At a rough estimate C. Gallagher, superintendent of docks for the Pittsburg Coal company, states that there is probably about 700,000 tons of coal which has been received at the Head of the Lakes since the opening of navigation. Over half of this probably was brought up by the first big fleet of boats. Mr. Gallagher estimates that there is about 150,000 tons of hard coal included in the total 700,000 tons.

On account of the decrease in shipments of coal from the Head of the Lakes Mr. Gallagher expects that if the coal continues to arrive from the lower lakes some of the docks, at least, will soon be filled to their total capacity.

There is no particular reason for the decrease in shipments except the fact that warmer weather is existing in the Northwest. Some outside dealers seem to expect that there will be a drop in freight rates from the Head of the Lakes about the first of June and are delaying their orders for that reason.

STRIKE MAY SPREAD.

Cleveland, May 23.—A mass meeting of members of the Metal trades unionists was held last night and action was taken looking to the calling out of all metal trades union men now employed in the Globe yards of the American Shipbuilding company here. The action of the unions is a result of the importation of strike breakers during the last two weeks.

DREDGING AT ONTONAGON.

Zenith Company Will Remove Shoals at Entrance to Two Harbors.

The Zenith Dredge company of this city will begin dredging the shoal places in the entrance to the harbor at Ontonagon, in about a week. The dredge which will be used in this work is now at Houghton but will be brought to Ontanagon in a few days.

G. A. Taylor of the United States engineering corps recently made soundings within the harbor and the dredging will be necessary this year as usual. The shoalings occur every year as a result of the sand washing up into the entrance from the lake and as a result of high water every spring in the Ontonagon river which washes down a lot of material.

When the dredging is completed there will be 13 feet of water at low levels and 14 feet at high water levels right up to the dock of the Ontonagon Lumber & Cedar company. The work will take about two weeks' time for completion. There will be a good deal of lumber shipped from Ontonagon this season and vesselmen will be interested to know that the harbor conditions there are to be improved.

LINES BADLY CRIPPLED.

Buffalo, May 23.—W. J. Connors, the contractor who employs most of the freight handlers at this port, was notified yesterday that his compromise offer of 19 cents an hour to the inside warehousemen had been refused and that the strikers were firm in their demand for 20 cents. The Western, Lehigh Valley, Mutual, Erie and Lackawanna lines are badly crippled and at some docks the outside freight handlers were laid off yesterday. The strikers were notified that President Keefe would be unable to come, but that he has directed Vice President T. V. O'Connor to come to direct the strike. Trouble was threatened at the Mutual dock yesterday, but it was put down by prompt action of the police.

Buffalo, May 23.—In a clash between the police and warehouse strikers at the Lehigh Valley docks today, the police were rushed and driven into a corner by about fifty Italians. The officers finding their clubs ineffective drew revolvers and shot into the crowd. Leo Nardo, one of the strikers, was hit in the abdomen and is now at a hospital in a critical condition.

T. V. O'Connor, vice president of the Longshoremen's union, arrived from Detroit this morning and is in conference with the strike leaders. Conditions are much worse at the freight docks today, only a few men being at work.

It is said that officials of the Detroit & Buffalo line have given orders to receive no more freight until the strike is over.

On Way to Pacific.

The steam barge Minnie E. Kettle, which was sold recently to Pacific coast people, is now on her way to her new station by way of the Welland canal and St. Lawrence river. She arrived at Buffalo the first of this week. Capt. Brown, formerly of the Omaha, and his mate, Charles Bates, will take the boat as far as Montreal.

Cargoes Offered Freely.

Cleveland, May 23.—Ore and coal cargoes are offered freely and the market is in good shape. Dispatch in the ore trade at upper lake ports is not as good as it was last year and boats are held in ports upwards of forty hours. Last year the average loading time was twenty-two hours.

MOVEMENT IS INCREASING.

If Conditions Are Favorable Ore Shipments Will be Large.

There is little change in the ore freight situation today and there is a good demand for tonnage all around. As most vesselmen are busy on their contracts there is not much wild tonnage at present. The ore movement is increasing steadily and if conditions are favorable during the balance of the month shipments for May will be close to 5,000,000 tons.

The ore docks are now doing better work than they have heretofore this season and dispatch is good all around. Since yesterday at noon ten boats arrived light for ore and during the same time fourteen departed with ore for lower lake ports.

Huronic Starts for Duluth.

The Northern Navigation company's passenger and freight steamer Huronic left Sarnia yesterday for Port Arthur and Duluth. She has already made a couple of trips to Fort Arthus this season, but this will be her first trip to Duluth. She is now running on schedule and will arrive here May 28. The steamer Juniata of the Anchor line arrived in Duluth for the first time on schedule this morning.

Broke All Records.

Detroit, May 23.—The largest number of boats passed Limekiln crossing Monday that have ever gone through in a single day since the government channel has made it navigable, according to a statement by William Livingstone, president of the lake carriers. Between the hours of 5 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. there were 111 boats passed up and down, an average of one boat every six and one-half minutes.

Will Be Repaired at Toledo.

Cleveland, May 23.—The steamer Saxon, lately ashore on Caribou island, Lake Superior, will be repaired at Toledo. Three of her forward tanks are punctured and her forepeak is leaking.

The steamer Oneko with a cargo of grain from Duluth to Chicago is at Detour with a cracked shaft. The tug Schenck will accompany the steamer to Chicago.

Whittaker Is Raised.

Amherstburg, May 23.—The steamer Byron Whitaker, which was sunk in collision with the steamer John C. Gault on May 12, was raised today and brought to the dock here. Two steam pumps were required to keep the vessel afloat. The remainder of the cargo is being unloaded here.

Mr. Stringer, "will obey the law literally and in letter. I am giving the law careful study and seeking light from every quarter, and I shall ask the attorney general for an opinion as to what the law means. When this information is obtained, the Standard Oil company will obey with absolute fidelity the construction placed upon it by the attorney general's office. But the company will insist that while obeying the law its competitors also be compelled to obey it."

Milton D. Purdy of Washington, assistant attorney general of the United States, arrived in St. Paul yesterday to assist in the prosecution for the government of the case against the Standard Oil company, which is to come before the United States court Friday. In an interview Mr. Purdy in part disclosed the plan of the government in the prosecution.

"The purpose is to show," he said, "the intimate relations between John D. Rockefeller and members of his family, H. H. Rogers and Henry Flagler, in numerous allied oil companies and organizations; to divulge the methods they have pursued through a long course of years; to trace their close connection through a score of companies, organized under various names, and to show such a control of these subsidiary companies by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, as to give that holding company a monopoly of the oil business throughout the United States in restraint of trade and in violation of law."

The hearing will be before the full bench, consisting of Judges Sanborn, Vandeventer, Hock and Adams. The United States will be represented by Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul, Charles H. Morrison, special assistant, and M. D. Purdy, assistant attorney general. The Standard Oil company will be represented by John G. Milburn of New York, Judge Priest of St. Louis, and W. H. Belgrade, May 23.—The Turkish garrison at Uskub, consisting of about 1,000 men, has deserted. The soldiers claimed that they were given bad food, and that other conditions were unendurable. They carried off their arms, and thus far only fifty men have been captured.

B. A. SHUMAN IS COMING WEST

A telegram was received today by the Duluth Y. M. C. A. from B. A. Shuman, secretary of the association at Buenos Ayres, stating that he had arrived safely at New York, on May 21, and is now on his way West. Mr. Shuman is the Minnesota representative of the Y. M. C. A. in South America, and is supported by the associations of this state.

He will first go to Nebraska for a short visit, and will then come to Minnesota to attend the commencement services at Hamline university at St. Paul. He will afterwards come to Duluth and expects to be in this city on Sunday, June 9. His mother is already in the city, awaiting the arrival of her son.

Mr. Shuman has been in South America in the interests of the Y. M. C. A. for the past six years, and this will be his first visit to Minnesota during that time. The members of the association in Duluth are awaiting his coming with considerable interest and enthusiasm, and arrangements will be made for a reception in his honor.

BIG REWARD FOR SLAYER

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state of Minnesota and Itasca county, have offered a nice money prize to any one who can effect the capture and conviction of Tony De Loretos, who is wanted for the murder of Samuel Ibsen, at Holman, May 5 last. Two hundred and fifty dollars are offered by the state and $50 by Sheriff Hoolihan for running down this murderer.

The authorities by making this offer emphasize their intention to make it hot for criminals of this class and to spare no expense to bring them to justice.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two forty acre tracts of ore land, near here, owned by J. A. McDonald, will soon become the property of the United States Steel corporation if the prospecting on the land proves to be what is expected. The company is said to be arranging to take an option and begin prospecting at once. There is every indication of a heavy deposit of ore on the land. The experts of the company are asserted to have made a very favorable report.

DECLARE COCHRANE DID THE SHOOTING.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The result of the inquest held by Coroner Russell into the death of Allan Witt, the Deer River homesteader is that David Cochrane, the well known attorney, is charged with firing the fatal shot.

The accussed's preliminary hearing will be taken up Friday morning.

ENGINE TURNS OVER.

Hibbing, Minn., May 23.—As engine No. 16 on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern was backing into Hibbing yesterday the tender left the rails, followed by the engine. The huge machine turned on its side. Engineer Dallowitz was caught under the engine, but when removed it was found he was only slightly injured. Other members of the crew received a severe shaking up.

DEATH ACCIDENTAL.

Virginia, Minn., May 23.—A coroner's jury decided that the death of the unidentified man found in the Oliver mine pit Saturday was the result of an accident. The body was so badly decomposed that identification was impossible, but there is a theory the deceased was a Finn who disappeared from his boarding house last February.

HIBBING HAPPENINGS.

Hibbing, Minn., May 23.—The Saturday club, having about seventy women members, will hold its annual reception and banquet in the Power theater this evening, when the members will entertain their husbands and invited guests.

A number of teamsters have petitioned the village government to increase the wages paid per man and team from $1.50 to $3.50 per day.

The stumps inside the race track have been blasted by the Fair association. A large amount of stump wood is available for any one who cares to remove it from the ground.

RANGES IN BRIEF

Hibbing—The Scandinavian Lutheran church has extended a call to Rev. Albert Okerstrom of Port Wing, Wis., and it is expected he will accept.

Biwabik—The lost 3,000 cigarettes, presumed to have been stolen from a Missabe freight car have been found in a local warehouse, where they were taken by mistake.

he asked for it a few days before, thought that the boy might have become indignant and run away from home. Yesterday afternoon he reported to the police, and when the finding of the body was reported to them this morning, it was but a few minutes before it was identified.

The revolting features of the crime has caused a widespread indignation throughout Superior.

It will be remembered that the murder of Freddie Mitchell at Burnett last summer, for which crime Dan Maloney is now awaiting trial in the county jail, was committed under very similar conditions. The body was found in that case, with the throat cut from ear to ear, but it was not until one or two days after the commission of the crime that the autopsy held by West Duluth physicians revealed a motive for the deed. The repetition of the fiendish act within such a short period of time, has attracted more than usual attention.

the New York police department. He denies that he ever sent the telegram to Sholes. He declares that the only persons he ever spoke to about Dawson being married, was Inspector McLaughlin, who until recently was at the head of the detective bureau. Inspector McLaughlin's alleged connection with the Gould case also has been the subject of an investigation by Police Commissioner Bingham.

Baltimore, May 23.—According to persons about police headquarters here, Lieutenant Peabody of the New York detective force was in Baltimore last March, and is presumed to have searched the records of the court of common pleas for the names of Sam W. or George Dawson, and a woman supposed to have been Katherine Clemmons, now Mrs. Howard Gould.

The marriage record book in the office of the clerk of the court of common pleas shows that on Nov. 3, 1882, George (not Sam W.) Dawson, aged 29, was married to Harriet Lonsdale, aged 31, by Rev. Dr. John Lanahan at the Fayette street Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. Lanahan died a few years ago.

A man, supposed to have been a New York detective, went over the marriage records for the year 1882, yesterday, and secured the same information given above.

Dawson is a watchman. He said he did not know Mr. or Mrs. Gould, nor had he read anything about their marital troubles.

Col. Sam W. Dawson, manager of the Monumental theater here, says he was approached by two men, several weeks ago, and they wanted to insist that he had been seen in company with Mrs. Gould in London in 1899, and that she was his wife. As Col. Dawson already had one wife at the time, and she still abides with him, he denied the allegations. The men left the colonel very much incensed because he would not fall in line with their suggestions in the Gould case.

Inquiries were made here concerning the telegram alleged to have been sent by Peabody to Sholes. It developed yesterday Manager Creamer of the Western Union Telegraph company, said he received a call from a local detective, who was accompanied by another man, who the officer introduced to Mr. Creamer as Policeman Merrill of New York. Merrill, Mr. Creamer said, told him he was here on "certain business;" that one of his sergeants had sent a telegram from here to New York in March, and he (Merrill) would like to see a copy of it. Mr. Creamer, in response to this request, said he knew nothing about any such telegram, and that if there had been any he had no authority to exhibit it.

SHIPMENTS DECREASING

If This Condition Continues Docks Will Soon be Filled.

Commercial shipments of coal from the Head of the Lakes have been falling off more or less during the last week or ten days and if this decrease keeps on for any length of time, the coal docks will soon be pretty well filled up, as coal has been coming to the docks from the lower lakes steadily ever since the season of navigation opened a month ago.

Since the first boats came up to the Head of the Lakes with coal there has been an enormous amount of fuel received at the various docks in Duluth and Superior and where the docks were almost stripped bare at the beginning of the season, there are now monster piles of coal.

At the opening of the season all of the docks were very busy and were working night and day to take care of the great fleet of boats then in the harbor. Since that time none of them have been idle and the total receipts have been enormous. Coal boats from Lake Erie are continually tied up at the docks.

At a rough estimate C. Gallagher, superintendent of docks for the Pittsburg Coal company, states that there is probably about 700,000 tons of coal which has been received at the Head of the Lakes since the opening of navigation. Over half of this probably was brought up by the first big fleet of boats. Mr. Gallagher estimates that there is about 150,000 tons of hard coal included in the total 700,000 tons.

On account of the decrease in shipments of coal from the Head of the Lakes Mr. Gallagher expects that if the coal continues to arrive from the lower lakes some of the docks, at least, will soon be filled to their total capacity.

There is no particular reason for the decrease in shipments except the fact that warmer weather is existing in the Northwest. Some outside dealers seem to expect that there will be a drop in freight rates from the Head of the Lakes about the first of June and are delaying their orders for that reason.

STRIKE MAY SPREAD.

Cleveland, May 23.—A mass meeting of members of the Metal trades unionists was held last night and action was taken looking to the calling out of all metal trades union men now employed in the Globe yards of the American Shipbuilding company here. The action of the unions is a result of the importation of strike breakers during the last two weeks.

DREDGING AT ONTONAGON.

Zenith Company Will Remove Shoals at Entrance to Two Harbors.

The Zenith Dredge company of this city will begin dredging the shoal places in the entrance to the harbor at Ontonagon, in about a week. The dredge which will be used in this work is now at Houghton but will be brought to Ontanagon in a few days.

G. A. Taylor of the United States engineering corps recently made soundings within the harbor and the dredging will be necessary this year as usual. The shoalings occur every year as a result of the sand washing up into the entrance from the lake and as a result of high water every spring in the Ontonagon river which washes down a lot of material.

When the dredging is completed there will be 13 feet of water at low levels and 14 feet at high water levels right up to the dock of the Ontonagon Lumber & Cedar company. The work will take about two weeks' time for completion. There will be a good deal of lumber shipped from Ontonagon this season and vesselmen will be interested to know that the harbor conditions there are to be improved.

LINES BADLY CRIPPLED.

Buffalo, May 23.—W. J. Connors, the contractor who employs most of the freight handlers at this port, was notified yesterday that his compromise offer of 19 cents an hour to the inside warehousemen had been refused and that the strikers were firm in their demand for 20 cents. The Western, Lehigh Valley, Mutual, Erie and Lackawanna lines are badly crippled and at some docks the outside freight handlers were laid off yesterday. The strikers were notified that President Keefe would be unable to come, but that he has directed Vice President T. V. O'Connor to come to direct the strike. Trouble was threatened at the Mutual dock yesterday, but it was put down by prompt action of the police.

Buffalo, May 23.—In a clash between the police and warehouse strikers at the Lehigh Valley docks today, the police were rushed and driven into a corner by about fifty Italians. The officers finding their clubs ineffective drew revolvers and shot into the crowd. Leo Nardo, one of the strikers, was hit in the abdomen and is now at a hospital in a critical condition.

T. V. O'Connor, vice president of the Longshoremen's union, arrived from Detroit this morning and is in conference with the strike leaders. Conditions are much worse at the freight docks today, only a few men being at work.

It is said that officials of the Detroit & Buffalo line have given orders to receive no more freight until the strike is over.

On Way to Pacific.

The steam barge Minnie E. Kettle, which was sold recently to Pacific coast people, is now on her way to her new station by way of the Welland canal and St. Lawrence river. She arrived at Buffalo the first of this week. Capt. Brown, formerly of the Omaha, and his mate, Charles Bates, will take the boat as far as Montreal.

Cargoes Offered Freely.

Cleveland, May 23.—Ore and coal cargoes are offered freely and the market is in good shape. Dispatch in the ore trade at upper lake ports is not as good as it was last year and boats are held in ports upwards of forty hours. Last year the average loading time was twenty-two hours.

MOVEMENT IS INCREASING.

If Conditions Are Favorable Ore Shipmen's Will be Large.

There is little change in the ore freight situation today and there is a good demand for tonnage all around. As most vesselmen are busy on their contracts there is not much wild tonnage at present. The ore movement is increasing steadily and if conditions are favorable during the balance of the month shipments for May will be close to 5,000,000 tons.

The ore docks are now doing better work than they have heretofore this season and dispatch is good all around. Since yesterday at noon ten boats arrived light for ore and during the same time fourteen departed with ore for lower lake ports.

Huronic Starts for Duluth.

The Northern Navigation company's passenger and freight steamer Huronic left Sarnia yesterday for Port Arthur and Duluth. She has already made a couple of trips to Port Arthus this season, but this will be her first trip to Duluth. She is now running on schedule and will arrive here May 28. The steamer Juniata of the Anchor line arrived in Duluth for the first time on schedule this morning.

Broke All Records.

Detroit, May 23.—The largest number of boats passed Limekiln crossing Monday that have ever gone through in a single day since the government channel has made it navigable, according to a statement by William Livingstone, president of the lake carriers. Between the hours of 5 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. there were 31 boats passed up and down, an average of one boat every six and one-half minutes.

Will Be Repaired at Toledo.

Cleveland, May 23.—The steamer Saxon, lately ashore on Caribou island, Lake Superior, will be repaired at Toledo. Three of her forward tanks are punctured and her forepeak is leaking.

The steamer Onoko with a cargo of grain from Duluth to Chicago is at Detour with a cracked shaft. The tug Schenck will accompany the steamer to Chicago.

Whittaker Is Raised.

Amherstburg, May 23.—The steamer Byron Whitaker, which was sunk in collision with the steamer John C. Gault on May 12, was raised today and brought to the dock here. Two steam pumps were required to keep the vessel afloat. The remainder of the cargo is being unloaded here.

Flax Has Another Decline on the Local Floor.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 23.—The American wheat markets took on a bearish tone today and the closing prices were lower everywhere on this side of the Atlantic. Rains in Nebraska and predictions of better weather for the Northwest were bearish factors and there was heavy selling. It was said that many of the big fellows were "unloading" today. Weather predictions for Kansas are not favorable for the crop. Liverpool closed 1½d higher, Berlin ⅝c higher, Budapest 1¾c lower and Antwerp unchanged.

The July option closed 2¼c lower in Duluth, 2⅛-⅜c in Chicago, 2c in Minneapolis and New York, 1⅞-2c in St. Louis, 2½c in Kansas City and 1⅜c in Winnipeg. The September option closed 2⅜c lower in Duluth, 2⅜-¾c in Chicago, 2½c in Minneapolis, 1¾c in New York, 1¾c in St. Louis and 2¾c in Kansas City.

July corn closed 1¼-⅜c lower in Chicago and was ½d to ⅝d higher in Liverpool. July oats closed ½c lower in Chicago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 523,000 bus, last year 226,000 bus. Shipments 127,000 bus, last year 324,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 186,000 bus.

Argentine shipments of wheat for this week are estimated at 3,200,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 298,000 bus, last year 602,000 bus. Shipments 264,000 bus, last year 510,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 262,000 bus.

Wheat was active in the Duluth market today. There was quite heavy liquidation and prices were off. May wheat was inactive and closed 2¼c lower than yesterday at $1.02¼. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Weak With Liverpool and Minneapolis Showing Advances.

Chicago, May 23—It was a weak looking wheat market which greeted traders today. Liverpool showed a sharp advance, the Minneapolis curb was up a cent, and there was no immediate prospect of rain in Kansas. There was, however, rain in Nebraska, and this lonely bear factor was sufficient to give the market its tone. It was even asserted, when prices dropped in the face of the preponderent bull news, that some of the "big people" were unloading. July opened ⅝c higher to 1c lower at $1.00 to $1.04, September opened ¾ to 1¼c down at $1.02 to $1.03, and sold down to $1.01¾c. December opened ⅝c to 1c depressed at $1.02⅜c to $1.03¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 314 cars against 412 cars last week and 134 a year ago.

During the last half hour of trading all options rallied a cent or better over the low point, but the advance was met by a deluge of selling orders and the close was weak. Kansas City reported a drop of 4c in cash wheat on reports of rain in various parts of Kansas. July closed 2¾@2⅝c lower at 99¼@99⅝c September, 2⅝@2⅝c depressed at $1.00@1.00⅝, and December 2½c under yesterday at $1.01⅜.

Corn was weak on rain in Iowa and Nebraska, July opening 8⅝@5c to 1⅛@¾c lower at 57⅝c to 58⅝c and holding during the first hour within the opening range. Local receipts were 114 cars, 43 of contract grade.

July corn dropped to 52¼c and closed weak, 1½@1⅝c lower at 52½c.

Oats declined in sympathy with the surrounding weakness. July opened unchanged to ⅛c down at 46⅝c to 47¼c. Local receipts were 87 cars.

The grain weakness and a drop in the hog market weakened provisions. Trade was dull. July pork opened 10c lower at $16.55, July lard 2½@5c depressed at $9.17½@9.20 and July ribs 5@7½c down at $8.92½c.

Close: Wheat, May, 97⅝c; July, 99¼-⅜c. Corn, May, 53⅝c; July, 52½c. Oats, May, 47¾c; July, 47c. Pork, May $16.32½; July, $16.52½. Lard, May, $9.05; July, $9.15. Ribs, May, $8.82½; July, $8.90. Broomhall, Liverpool cables: Wheat was steady at the start with values ¼c higher, being influenced by the late strength in America yesterday. Offerings were extremely light and shorts nervous. Following the opening there was a sharp advance, prices gaining 1⅛ to 1¼c, due to the bullish Prussian report, and a good demand for cargoes, which prompted free buying by large houses. Although there was a slight reaction from the advance, the undertone at mid-day was strong.

Corn was steady with early prices ⅛@¼c higher, followed by a further advance of ¼@⅝c. Support was the result of covering by shorts, due to the strength in wheat and the scarcity of la Plata offerings.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago, to Paine, Webber & Co.: The trade has reports of good rains through the Southwest before the opening. The precipitation in Kansas is not known but later reports show rain fall very heavy or very light, this will have much to do in shaping prices tomorrow. Soaking rains all over the West will no doubt improve the harvest somewhat and may cause some further liquidation by holders. Rains, however, cannot make good abandoned wheat acreage. Believe the situation a healthy one and that further liquidation caused by rains will make a spot for buyers.

Corn—The effect of the weakness in wheat was felt in corn. Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas have now had moderate rains at least. At the decline strong people bought both July and September corn, but the rally at the close was important. After rain effect is over corn will turn higher again with wheat.

WOMEN ON THE ROAD.

I say this only after I have had six years of experience as a "traveling salesman." During the six years I have come to the conclusion that if women would train themselves in this work they easily would equal men, and in many lines would outstrip them. I have figured that at the present time there is room for 10,000 women traveling agents in the United States. If this is so, why don't women fill the positions?

Because, unlike men, they rely too much upon their sex; they don't work hard; they don't begin right; they don't learn their business.

A woman who has an ambition to become a "traveling man" should become thoroughly acquainted with the line she intends to represent. I have found that pocketcoats carry considerable weight in securing trade, but knowledge must accompany them. The agent, woman or man, must be able to talk his or her goods.

To prove that there are good traveling positions awaiting many women, I am going to give the history of my own case. I was a stenographer in a big plant that made prepared paints. I was earning $12 a week, but my ambition was to climb higher. One day I went to the manager, and I said to him:

He looked at me in astonishment, then laughed, then sobered up.

"By George, that's a new idea," he said. "I'll think about it."

The upshot of the whole thing was that I began learning the manufacture of prepared paints. I didn't do that from pamphlets. I put on an old dress and went out among the grinding machines.

I went out in the factory proper. I saw just how tons of pressure were employed in grinding the pigments; I learned that white lead was not the only "base" and not the best; I learned that there were other "thinners" than turpentine; I learned a hundred things that equipped me for the road.

Six months I spent in this work. And when I started on my route in Illinois and Michigan, I had all the fine points of ready mixed paints at my tongue's end. I even took a number of lessons in painting from a professional painter so as to be able to describe the difference in appearance and protection of a building coated with a cheap mixture and one covered with a scientifically prepared product. Succeed? I was successful from the start. And each year by business has increased.

I find that the trading public likes to deal with women when the women have sense and know their business. Except in rare cases a woman always can get business where a man can, and, frequently, she can get business where her rival of the opposite sex cannot. At least, I find this so among paint dealers. The institution for which I work would place a dozen women on the road during the next year if they were of the right kind. I dare say the 250 manufacturers in the country would employ 1,000 women if they could get them.

Once I was in a small Illinois town. I was talking paint to a dealer when a local painter was standing near. This painter, who made his own paints, took offense at my talk and butted in with a lot of remarks which I could see were influencing the dealer, to whom I had never sold. Finally I turned to the painter and, with some wrath, said:

"I'll wager you $10 I can take a can of my paint and do a better job of painting than you can with this stuff you're talking about. Mr. ——— (referring to the dealer) can be the judge."

Well, we performed the stunt on one of the dealer's rear buildings. The result was that I secured a $300 order from the dealer and he now is one of my regular customers. And all this just because I knew how to paint.

BUT NO SPARKLE.

Los Angeles Times: A reporter asked Senator Tillman rather maliciously what he thought of a certain opponent's speech.

"My boy," said the senator, "it was like a fine bottle of champagne."

"Yes?" murmured the reporter, rather taken aback.

"Yes," said Senator Tillman. "Lots of froth, and very dry."

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

Decline Followed by a Rally Which Was Not Maintained.

New York, May 23.—Opening prices of stocks moved downwards from last night's closing level on a meagre volume of dealings. Canadian Pacific lost 1⅜, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, 1¼; New York Central and American Smelting a point and Union Pacific and Northern Pacific large fractions.

Some fractional recoveries from the opening decline brought prices to a level where selling was renewed and value of active stocks fell off sharply. The metal group, led by smelting and the grangers, Reading, and the Harriman and Hill stocks were the weakest features. Average losses approximately a point for most of the favorite stocks. Chicago, Great Western preferred "B" gave way three points, Canadian Pacific, 2⅜; Smelting, 2⅜; Northwestern, 1¾; Northern Pacific, 1⅝; New York Central, 1½; Southern Pacific and Atchison, 1⅜, and United States Steel, 1¼.

Prices slowly recovered on small dealing when the selling pressure became lighter. The buying in turn diminished at the higher level and the tone became heavy again. Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg sold at an advance of 3, Pullman, 2, and North American, 1. Bonds were easy.

Losses that were incurred during the morning declines were restored and a considerable margin added through the buying that began after midday. Reading, Union Pacific and Smelting were most in request and also the best gainers, but the movements in some other stocks were also important. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie advanced 2½, the preferred and United States Rubber, first preferred, 1½, and Union Pacific, Reading, Northern Pacific, Smelting, International Paper and United States Rubber 1 to 1¼. Pennsylvania was pushed up to 126¾ before the market began to fall back, owing to the dearth of buying orders. The trading was semi-stagnant later.

The market closed weak and dull. It required but light offerings to carry prices back to the low level of the morning. New York Central showed a loss of 2⅝, Consolidated Gas 3, Amalgamated Copper 1⅞, United States Steel preferred 1 and American Cable 1¼.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, New York, to Paine, Webber & Co.: Stocks ruled irregular today. That yesterday's late upturn was caused by the running in of shorts was clearly shown by the action of today's market. The list did not respond to continued favorable news from the wheat belt, something which has been lacking for days, and the one thing to which the bulls have pinned a great deal of faith. Toward the close prices were braced up to some extent but not enough to satisfy the backers of an advance. There was a slight covering movement today, but it was short lived and the moment it stopped, fresh liquidation started in.

Take it all in all it was a pretty discouraging close, and looks lower for tomorrow.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market conditions up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers:

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market relapsed into dullness again today and gradually sagged, with a small amount of liquidation. There were two or three small rallies during the day, but on each occasion long stock came out freely. Everybody seems to feel bearish, and as usual, think it would be about time for an upturn, but in the present instance, we think, any rally will be only temporary, and that we are in for a long dull summer with sagging prices. We advise the liquidation of all speculative accounts, and believe that the quick turns will be made on the short side for some time to come.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: It is impossible to form an intelligent opinion on this market. There are so many arguments on both sides. What seems to us to be the most likely, is that we are now having the after effects of March 14. It was a mystery then why there were not more failures; the chances are there will not be many men tided over, and since then have been gradually sold out. The men who ordinarily take advantage of a market like this to buy on are in a pessimistic mood, and say they would rather wait and pay more for them and see the situation clearer. Certainly after such a severe drop as we have had the past week we were entitled to a sharp rally. There was a slight covering movement today, but it was short lived and the moment it stopped, fresh liquidation started in.

opened firm at an advance of 8 to 17 points on a continuation of yesterday's buying movement which was encouraged by the higher cables and the early forecast calling for showers and lower temperatures quite generally over the belt. There was enough realizing at the advance of about 20 points from the low level of yesterday to cause some irregularity, but the market was active with a firm undertone and prices ruled about 15 to 18 points net higher during the middle of the morning. Private crop reports in the South continued very bullish, particularly from the central belt.

Cotton, spot closed steady, 10 points higher; middling uplands, 12.35; middling gulf, 12.60. Sales, 1,700 bales. Futures closed steady. SHE MURDERED HER PARENTS

Chicago, May 23.—That Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mette were murdered by their daughter, Mrs. Mary Sladek, for the $5,000 insurance carried on her parents' lives, is the charge laid before the grand jury today in asking for the indictment for murder of Mrs. Sladek. Mrs. Sladek lies ill in the county jail hospital. The evidence against Mrs. Sladek is circumstantial. The entire Mette family became ill after eating a meal at the Mette home. Mrs. Mette died April 5 and the death of Mette followed a week later. A post-mortem disclosed the presence of arsenic in the bodies. Frederick Starr, a druggist, testified today that he had sold Mrs. Sladek a vermin poison and that the poison contained thirty-four per cent arsenic.

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS

Harrisburg, Pa., May 23.—The auditors and experts of the capitol investigating commission will make their final reports when the commission resumes its public hearings on May 31. These reports will deal with every phrase of the capitol scandal and will show in detail how the $3,000,000 was expended for furnishing and equipping the building. The report of the auditors it is said, will be sensational and will show that many thousands of dollars were paid to contractors months in advance of the actual delivery of furnishings at Harrisburg. One company was paid $25,000 in advance of the delivery of metallic furniture and another was given advance payments of $125,000 within two months after being given the contract for furnishings. The report of the auditors will also show that the public records were changed after the letting of certain contracts, and will contain much information which had not been brought out at the public hearing.

Applicants Lining Up on Either Side of Land Office.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The increase in the number of landseekers continues. This morning at 10:30 o'clock Lewis Larson of Fosston, Minn., took a position on the other side of the land office door and announced that he was there to stay until July 1, when some valuable lands aggregating 229.97 acres and scattered over eleven different townships would be open to entry.

His action shortly prompted six to fall in line. The June Twelfth men are on one side of the door and now aggregate sixteen, while the July Firsters are on the other side. Harmony prevails.

But Has Been Very Wary and Protected Himself.

Washington, May 24.—There is a big surprise in store for people who have been expecting the interstate commerce commission to recommend to the attorney general the prosecution of E. H. Harriman and his associates and the dissolution of their railroad combination for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Chairman Knapp has informed the president that the commission has practically exonerated Harriman. He said the commission had found the great railroad colossus guilty of very wicked practices, but he had evidently protected himself at every point, and had probably violated no law. This sweeping acquittal follows the commission's careful consideration of the evidence, and is at variance with the recommendations of Attorneys C. A. Severance and Frank B. Kellogg, printed several days ago.

The commission, it is understood, has not put its conclusions into final written language, but Chairman Knapp told the president fully about them.

The two discussed the matter of making the commission's report public. It was not decided whether this shall be done before July 1, or whether the report shall be held till next autumn.

Chairman Knapp told the president that the commission, during its investigation of the Harriman properties, discovered no evidence of violation of the railroad rate law, and that no proceedings could be brought against him on that score.

They had also considered the evidence with reference to infringement of the Sherman anti-trust law. This study had convinced them that Harriman

LEGAL GIANTS MEET IN ST. PAUL IN BATTLE OVER STANDARD OIL COMPANY

EDWARD H. HARRIMAN.

Exceptions to Government's Bill of Complaint to be Heard.

The Company's Attorneys at Once Begin Their Attack.

Seek to Have the Issues of the Case Narrowed.

St. Paul, May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Not since the last arguments were made in the famous Northern Securities case in the United States circuit court here about three years ago, has there been so noted an array of lawyers as appeared in that court at 10 o'clock today in the case of the United States against the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its alleged corporations. Judges Sanborn, Vandeventer, Hook and Adams were on the bench and the matter brought for their consideration was a bill of exceptions filed by the Standard Oil company against the government's complaint which seeks to have the Standard Oil company and its seventy other companies declared an unlawful combination in restraint of trade and to have the combination dissolved.

Frank B. Kellogg of this city represents the government and he made the principal argument. He was assisted by M. D. Purdy, assistant United States attorney general, and C. B. Morrison of Chicago.

The complaint, which was filed a number of months ago in St. Louis, sets up well known facts against the company and goes into extensive details concerning various offenses, which it is alleged, the company has committed. The complaint begins with the inception of the trust; shows the relations which John D. Rockefeller, H. H. Rogers and others of the Standard Oil group bore to each other prior to 1899, when the Standard Oil company was organized as a holding company;

Vicksburg, Miss., May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—A handsome monument, erected at a cost of $25,000 by the state of Minnesota in honor of its soldiers who participated in the seige of Vicksburg was dedicated this afternoon in the Vicksburg military park. Governor Johnson of Minnesota and his staff, Governor James K. Vardaman of Mississippi and his staff, and many distinguished visitors participated in the exercises.

Gen. L. F. Hubbard, president of the commission transferred the monument to Governor Johnson who in turn presented it to the war department, speaking as follows:

"My Fellow Citizens: We are gathered here today to dedicate this memorial to the memory of the sons of Minnesota who participated in the siege of Vicksburg, and who preferred from among their comrades to offer up their lives as a sacrifice upon the altar of our country. I appreciate that nothing we can or do will add to the lustre of their achievements; that what transpires on this occasion will go unnoticed by them, and yet, little as it is, the state we represent could no no less than to erect a shaft to the memory of our heroic dead.

"It is not my purpose to review and revive the incidents of the sanguiary conflict of a half century ago; it is not my intention to discuss the issues which led up to the greatest Civil war which the world has ever seen; it is not my desire to boast of victory which may have come to one side or to exult in defeat which fell to those less fortunate. We come as American citizens, bringing garlands of love and af-

NEW ORDER OF VIKINGS

To be Established in Denmark and Extend Through World.

New York, May 24.—News comes from Denmark of a movement to become world-wide, by means of an organization called the Vikings. The first national council formed is that in Copenhagen. It is composed of some of the most representative and best informed men in the Danish capital. Its chief object at present is a free and fair discussion of great questions ultimately effecting the Northern nations of Europe. Ultimately it is planned that associations of Vikings shall be established in every country, national councils being organized in the greatest centers—New York in the United States, London in England, etc. When this has been done the discussions of the Vikings will take a wider scope and it is hoped that through the strongest, most unselsh and wisest persons in each country, who will have become members of the Vikings, it will be possible to exercise a conservative but leading influence throughout the world.

The first steps have been taken toward the formation of a central governing council, to be established in London, and the formation also of national councils in France, Germany, Austria, India, Italy and Canada. The movement has been brought to the attention of a number of notable men and women in this country and it may soon take definite shape in the national council of the United States.

MRS. McKINLEY MUCH BETTER

Arouses Sufficiently to Ask for Glass of Water.

Canton, Ohio, May 24.—Dr. Portman, after a call on Mrs. McKinley this morning, issued this bulletin:

"I have found Mrs. McKinley much better in every way this morning. Her heart action and circulation are better. She rallied enough to ask for a drink of water this morning, but immediately relapsed into unconsciousness."

Dr. Portman added that the result is in doubt as a relapse may come at any time.

Mrs. McKinley passed a night of rest and quiet, but at times showed indications of semi-consciousness. Under the watchful eyes of four nurses, special effort is made to administer every possible means for her comfort.

Surgeon General Rixey is due to reach Canton this morning, and he will go at once to the McKinley home and enter into a consultation with the local physicians.

REVELATIONS OF CONSPIRACY

In Timber and Mineral Lands Will Involve Big Men.

Chicago, May 24.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Washington, says: Amazing revelations of a conspiracy to defraud the United States of millions of dollars worth of mineral and timber lands will be laid before the grand juries of half a dozen states within a few days.

The frauds, it is alleged, will involve in criminal charges the names of men high in business and political circles. They include: One United States senator; one former United States senator; a man reputed to be one of the wealthiest men in the world; a railroad man known from the Atlantic to the Pacific; two of the wealthiest lumber barons in the United States, and numerous other men with less prominence.

WILLIAM JOHNSON KILLED.

Ashland, Wis., May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Johnson, a farm-hand, was instantly killed last night by being thrown from a wagon, the wheel crushing his head. Johnson was sitting on the top of some sacks and the wheel dropping into a rut the shock threw him out.

Joseph W. Farrington, an old resident of Berlin, died at the residence of his son-in-law, Judge McCloud, at Ashland today.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 24.—The Cartwright anti-trust law, perhaps the most far-reaching in effect of any of the laws of the last legislature went into effect yesterday and as a result in this country alone, thirty or more combinations in wholesalers and retailers in various mercantile lines will voluntarily dissolve in order to comply with the provisions of the new statute of the state.

TWO KILLED IN COLLISION

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 24.—Two men lost their lives in a head-on collision on the Grand Rapids, Grand Haven & Muskegon Interurban line at Celery Farm, a few miles east of Muskegon today. The dead:

G. D. BETTS, motorman, Grand Rapids.

JAMES EDMONDS, motorman, Muskegon, Mich.

The interurban is a single track road operated under a telephone dispatch system. A passenger car from Muskegon for Grand Rapids collided at Celery Farm, with a westbound baggage and express car. Both cars were wrecked and the two motormen, inclosed in their narrow vestibules, suffered the full force of the crash, being instantly killed. No one else was injured.

"NEXT FRIENDS" OF MRS. EDDY PRESENT ARGUMENT

On Motion That Trustees be Made Plaintiffs Instead of Defendants.

Concord, N. H., May 24.—The Merrimac county superior court room here was filled with an interested crowd long before the second day's session in the first legal battle over the suit in equity brought by "next friends" for an accounting of the property of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, the Christian Science leader was opened.

Gen. Frank S. Streeter, counsel for the three trustees to whom Mrs. Eddy made over her property after the suit was entered, yesterday completed his argument in favor of a motion of the trustees that they be substituted for "next friends" as plaintiffs in the suit and today proceedings were devoted to the presentation to the side of the so called "next friends," who oppose the motion of the trustees. Dewitt C. Howe was prepared to open the case for his clients and it was expected that he would be followed by Former United States Senator William E. Chandler, senior counsel for the "next friends."

The closing argument for the trustees will be made by Gen. Streeter, but it was thought today that Messrs. Howe and Chandler would not finish in time for Gen. Streeter to make his concluding arguments today.

The opening of Mr. Howe's argument was delayed by Judge Chamberlain, who wished to ask Gen. Streeter a question with reference to a bill filed by plaintiffs in the original suit, supplemental to the motion of counsel that the trustees named by Mrs. Eddy be made plaintiffs in the original suit.

The supplementary motion asks that the trustees be made defendants, instead of plaintiffs, saying that the defendants "procured and induced" Mary Baker G. Eddy to execute the trust deed, she being, as alleged in a condition of mind which made her incapable of executing such a deed.

Judge Chamberlain asked Gen. Streeter if the trustees accepted their trust, with full knowledge of the conditions and proceedings up to the time the trust deed was executed.

Mr. Streeter said they had such full knowledge.

Mr. Chandler of plaintiff's counsel, asked that Mr. Streeter be heard in full upon this point at this time, as he has the closing argument in the present proceedings.

Judge Chamberlain ruled that Mr. Chandler would have an opportunity to reply to anything Mr. Streeter might say on this point.

Mr. Howe then began his argument.

OUSTER OF OIL COMPANY FROM MISSOURI ADVISED

Commissioner Finds Standard Oil and Tributary Companies Guilty.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 24.—Commissioner Anthony, appointed by the supreme court to take testimony in the ouster suit of the state against the Standard Oil company, in his report, made to the court today, holds that the evidence introduced before him is sufficient to oust the Standard Oil company and tributary companies from Missouri.

His findings hold that the Standard, Waters-Pierce and Republic Oil companies entered into an agreement to control prices of oil.

He recommends that their charters be revoked, and they be ousted from the state. In his report, he holds that the supreme court has the authority to make the ruling of ouster.

Attorney General Hadley filed the suit in the supreme court two years ago, charging that the Standard Oil company, the Waters-Pierce Oil company and the Republic Oil company were in a trust, and were parties to a conspiracy to control the price of oil and petroleum products in Missouri, and to limit and prevent competition in the oil business. More than a year has been occupied in the taking of the testimony, witnesses having been examined in New York, St. Louis and other cities.

In his report to the court, Judge Anthony reviews in detail the testimony showing the organization and conduct of the companies. He reports to the court that the evidence shows that in 1901, the Standard, Waters-Pierce and Republic Oil companies entered into an agreement, which continued to exist up to the time of the filing of the suit, for the purpose of fixing and controlling the prices to be paid by retail dealers and others in Missouri for the products of petroleum, and to limit and prevent competition in the business of buying and selling.

The commissioner further finds that the three oil companies, from 1901 up to the time of bringing the suit by the attorney general, did: 1—Fix and maintain the prices of the refined products of petroleum sold in Missouri; consisting of coal oil, gasoline and naphtha.

2.—Did control and limit the trade in such products of petroleum in the state.

3.—Did prevent and destroy competition in the purchase or sale of such refined products of petroleum."

The report says that in pursuance of the agreement the oil companies prevented competition among themselves and others in Missouri, securing control of 90 per cent of the oil business, depriving the people of free, full and wholesome competition; that the oil companies misled

THREE BIG REALTY DEALS ON FIRST STREET CLOSED

Sales of West First street property aggregating $147,000 have been closed this week.

A syndicate of Duluth men, headed by Ward Ames, Sr., have purchased for about $90,000 the old Board of Trade livery barn property, just west of the Board of Trade building, from the Western Debenture & Realty company, a corporation which purchased the property several weeks ago through the office of W. C. Sherwood & Co. The property has a frontage of 100 feet on the upper side of First street.

The payment of this amount for the property shows the confidence of the purchasers in Duluth realty. It was bought for an investment, and Mr. Ames stated this afternoon, in confirming the report of the deal, that he and the men with him considered it the cheapest piece of property to be found on the market.

The southwest corner of First street and Fourth avenue west has been sold to parties whose names are not yet made public for $60,000. The property has a frontage of 75 feet on First street, and has been under option for some time. It is rumored that a fine business block will be erected on the location. The negotiations for the transfer of the property were made through the offices of N. J. Upham & Co. and W. C. Sherwood & Co.

The Gregory company, represented by J. A. Stephenson, has sold to W. C. Sherwood & Co., through the office of R. M. Hunter, lot 25 West First street, for $27,000. The property comprises a 50-foot lot, with a two-story frame building on the upper side of First street, between First and Second avenues west.

The realty market during the past week has shown a great deal of activity, particularly in West First street property. It is claimed that there are several more large deals of property on that thoroughfare still pending.

COURT SAYS CAPTAIN NEGLECTED HIS DUTIES.

Hamburg, May 24.—The admiralty court has decided that the wreck of the Hamburg-American line steamer Princessin Victoria Luise near Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 16, last, was due to Capt. Brunswig's mistaking one light for another and maintaining full steam at a time when he should not have done so. The decision of the court concludes with saying that Capt. Brunswig neglected his duties as commander of the vessel by locking himself in his cabin and committing suicide after she ran on the rocks instead of trying to save the ship and passengers, who, however, were all safely landed.

CAR BARN BURNS.

Buffalo, May 24.—The car barn of the Buffalo, Erie Traction company was burned today together with twenty-five of their twenty-eight cars. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

PLATFORM PRESENTED

Limitation of Armaments is Refused an Endorsement.

Lake Mohonk, N. Y., May 24. — Dr Barrows in presenting the platform before the arbitration conference today, said that in drafting it the business committee had taken the broad world view, the practical and not the academic view. No provision looking to the limitation of armaments had been made in the document submitted. "It is my belief, however," said Dr. Barrows in submitting the draft, "that if five things commended to The Hague conference in this platform could be adopted there the millennium will be pretty nearly at hand."

The thirteenth Lake Mohonk conference on international arbitration recognizes with profound gratitude the development of those forces which are making for international peace through international justice. The promotion of intercourse friendship and amity among the nations—the organization of international bodies in commerce, science and philanthropy—the demand for higher standards of international morality are but preludes to greater harmony and unity, among the peoples of the world.

"We mention with satisfaction among the events of the last twelve months the holding of the pan-American congress, the visit of Secretary Root to the South American republics, the organization in the United States of a branch society for international conciliation, the international conference for the revision of the Geneva convention of 1864, the holding at Washington of the first annual meeting of the American society for international law, organized in 1905 at the Mohonk conference and publication of its organization in the American Journal of international law, the formation of the Japan society for the cultivation of friendly relations between Japan and the United States, the increasing disposition of nations to assist each other in times of famine and disaster and the formation, in New York of a national arbitration and peace congress of far-reaching influence.

"The meeting of the second Hague conference next month marks another epoch in the history of international development. We note with gratification that twenty-one American republics will participate therein. We urge as the most immediate and important action to be taken by this second Hague conference the following measures:

"1.—A provision for stated meetings of The Hague conference.

"2.—Such changes in The Hague court as may be necessary to establish a judicial tribunal always open for the adjustment of international questions.

"3.—A general arbitration treaty for the settlement of international disputes.

"4.—The establishment of the principle of the inviolability of innocent private property at sea in time of war.

"5.—A declaration to the effect that there should be no armed intervention for the collection of private claims when the debtor nation is willing to submit such claims to arbitration.

"We recommend in accordance with our resolution of last year the consideration by The Hague conference of a plan for the neutralization of ocean trade routes."

An amendment offered by Edward D. Mead of Boston, declaring that the conference earnestly hopes the subject of limitation of armaments will be freely and fully discussed at The Hague conference was defeated by a vote of 33 to 51.

"I AM INNOCENT,"

Last Words of Man Before He is Executed for Murder.

Fayetteville, Tenn., May 24.—W. C. Baird, wife murderer, was hanged here early today. As he appeared on the scaffold, Sheriff Taylor appealed to him, "Bill, for God's sake, if you are guilty do not go before your Maker with a lie upon your lips," but Baird simply replied: "I am innocent," and calmly met his fate. He said his wife had been shot by highwaymen who stopped them on the road near Fayetteville.

Sheriff W. J. Bates left last evening for Stillwater with Dan Basorich, who has been sentenced to a term of twenty years in the penitentiary for the murder of Marco Rreklacich, at the Rust mine location last January. While confined in the county jail he had nothing to do but brood over his troubles and, for a time, it was feared that he would either die or become insane.

WILL SOON BE READY

Labor Bureau to be Located on Fifth Avenue West.

Commissioner Williams is in City and Secures Lease.

The new state free labor bureau which is being established in Duluth will be located on Fifth avenue west between Superior and First streets in the building formerly occupied as a plumber's shop. Labor Commissioner Williams came up from Minneapolis yesterday to secure the lease on the building and make the necessary arrangements.

Tomorrow, Lewis Levy, superintendent of the three bureaus will be in Duluth to assist Manager Walsh in establishing the local bureau. He will be here for about a week, and the new bureau will be ready for business about June 1, if not before. Mr. Williams will return to Minneapolis tomorrow.

Mr. Williams was also in the city to confer with R. E. Denfeld, superintendent of the Duluth schools, concerning the new child labor law which was passed by the last legislature. This law, while it is already effective, cannot be strictly enforced until later in the summer when the labor bureau gets its additional men.

"This new law which we will begin enforcing about Aug. 1 will be one of the strongest child labor measures in effect in the United States," said Mr. Williams. "It will absolutely keep all children under 14 years of age from work and it will be necessary for all children between the ages of 14 and 16 to obtain permits to leave school and go to work. These permits must show that it is absolutely necessary for the support of the family that the child should go to work and it must further state where the child is going to work. Heretofore the permits have been issued, but no track could be kept of the children after they left school.

"The labor commissioners and assistants will have full truancy power under the new law and will be able to exert this power whenever a case is reported to them by a school superintendent. Supt. Denfeld of this city has always been one of the best in the state in reporting violations of the child labor laws and it has been a great help to us. To enforce the law is to be our motto from this time on.

"Later on this summer the special woman inspector of the state labor bureau, Mrs. Perry Starkweather of Minneapolis, will be in Duluth for several weeks to make a thorough investigation of the conditions surrounding the women workers at Duluth."

LEGAL GIANTS MEET

shows how these men, prior to that date, held the stock of subsidiary and related companies as trustees, and shows how, in 1899, the Standard Oil company was formed as a holding company to take over the subsidiary and related companies for the express purpose of carrying on the methods of business which had been developed by Rockefeller, Rogers and the others as trustees.

The purpose of the bill of exceptions is to narrow the issue in the case to charges against the Standard Oil company, which date back not further than 1899, when the company was organized. The company files exceptions and objects to all those parts of the complaint that show the original conspiracy of the Standard Oil trust, which preceded the organization of the Standard Oil holding company. The bill of exceptions makes something like fifty objections to the complaint, the purpose of all of which is to narrow the issue by eliminating all parts of the complaint that refer to the business methods of Rockefeller, Rogers and the others as trustees, prior to 1899.

The ruling of the judges on the bill of exceptions will not determine the final outcome of the government's case, but the judges will determine whether the complaint shall stand as filed, or whether it shall be amended in any particular as demanded by the Standard Oil attorneys. If the decision of the judges is with the government, then the case will proceed along the lines heretofore outlined by Mr. Kellogg, Mr. Morrison and Mr. Purdy. If the contentions set forth by the Standard Oil attorneys in the bill of exceptions are upheld in any or all particulars, then it will be necessary to amend the complaint to conform with the ruling of the court.

In either event the next step in the fight against the Standard Oil trust will be the taking of testimony in substantiation of the allegations set forth in the complaint.

Attorney J. T. Johnson for the Standard Oil began his attack on the government's bill as soon as court was opened. He took up the greater part of the first half hour reading from the bill, calling attention to what he termed impertinent matter. He said the government charged the Standard Oil company with having committed acts which were long in the past, and of which the court could have no cognizance. He said it was not the Standard Oil company of years gone by that the government sought to have declared an illegal combination, but it was the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey that they wanted broken up. "It isn't," he said, "as if things they aver in their bill were conspired in 1870 or in 1882, but the pleading says that every conspiracy of the past was merged into the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and that is what they pray relief against. Against the alleged conspiracy that exists there is an issue raised in the answer of the defendants."

Mr. Johnson called attention to the fact that although the Standard Oil company was charged with many crimes, of rebating, restraint of trade and other acts, yet those engaged with the defendant in these acts were not made a party to the suit.

Mr. Johnson read several rules regarding the introduction of impertinent matter in the bill of complaint, long recitals of alleged facts which, he claimed, had no place in the document, and devoted much time in argument on this subject.

E. H. HARRIMAN IS NOT GUILTY

was exceedingly wary of the anti-trust statute, and that in his tremendous railroad transactions he had not violated its provisions.

However, Chairman Knapp assured the president that it was not the commission's duty to decide whether or not the Sherman anti-trust law had been violated, but rather to turn the evidence over to the attorney general. It was for him to decide about prosecutions. The commissioners, whether unanimously or by majority, is not stated, do not regard the Harriman mergers as comparable to the Northern Securities company. There a holding company was created and shares given in exchange for the Northern Pacific and Great Northern. Those were plainly competing roads.

The president learned, during Chairman Knapp's visit to the White House offices yesterday afternoon, that the commission looked upon the Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific as in an entirely different category. They were not competing lines in the strictest sense of the word, and as separate roads, did not have the same terminals.

The Union Pacific had purchased a majority of the stock of the Southern Pacific. There had never been anything like a holding company. It was a merger of the two lines, and Chairman Knapp told the president the commission would hesitate before it would declare that one railroad could not purchase the stock of another railroad under such circumstances. To do so might be setting a dangerous precedent.

The matter of the San Pedro and Los Angeles was discussed, including the evidence of Harriman's threats to ex-Senator Clark, in which the Union Pacific gained control of the San Pedro property.

But Mr. Knapp explained to the president that in the traffic and other agreements between the San Pedro and Union Pacific there seemed to be no violation of law. Further, the Union Pacific was represented as having purchased the San Pedro line.

The commission, Chairman Knapp informed the president, discussed the operations in which Harriman and his lieutenants had despoiled the Chicago & Alton, adding that the commissioners doubted whether he had thereby broken any state law.

On the necessity for legislation that will forestall any further operations such as Harriman's with the Chicago & Alton, the commission has very pronounced opinions. What form their recommendations will take is not known. The commission will also recommend undoubtedly other legislation to protect the public from abuses likely to grow out of such mergers as those covering the Harriman roads. The convictions of the commissioners are not expected to affect the proceedings contemplated before the federal court in New York to compel Harriman to answer certain questions.

the public into the belief that they were separate and distinct corporations, when in fact, the agreement made them one corporation.

The findings of the commissioner sustains the contentions of Attorney General Hadley in the petition filed with the courts two years ago.

The report of Commissioner Anthony will now be reviewed by the supreme court. The court may affirm the findings of the commissioner or it may remand the case to him with directions for further proceedings.

If the report should be affirmed and the findings of the commissioner adopted by the court, the court will then have power to take from the Waters-Pierce Oil company, which is a Missouri corporation, its franchise rights as a corporation. With regard to the Standard and Republic companies, both of which are foreign corporations, the court would have power to cancel their right to do business in Missouri. The court may impose fines on the defendants.

TO VEND STAMPS.

Government Will Experiment With Machines for Convenience of Public.

Washington, May 24.—Postmaster General Meyer has decided to make exhaustive tests of several types of automatic stamp-vending machines, adapted to receive 1 cent and 5 cent pieces for the purchase of 1 cent and 5 cent stamps and postal cards. Two years ago experiments were made of such devices by the postoffice department. The committee of experts reported that the machines could not be utilized to the advantage of the department. The postmaster general said today he believed that any measure that promoted the convenience of the public should be utilized when ever it was possible to do so without undue cost.

For the purpose of the tests the department will locate the machine at various points in the country. The great difficulty in this country is that there is no coin which is the equivalent of the 2-cent stamp and therefore it will be necessary to use two 1-cent stamps for letter postage.

London Globe: For women archaeology assumes a deeply interesting phase in the question which has been raised by Signor Mosso as to styles in dress as they existed 4,000 year ago. Signor Mosso, the eminent authority on ancient Etruria, the Roman Forum, and early Crete, has concentrated his great experience and knowledge on elucidating this bypath of science from his Cretan studies.

The general result has been to confirm the old dictium that there is nothing new under the sun. Even the "latest fashions" are antiquated. Signor Mosso finds that 4,000 years ago the ladies of primeval Mycenae wore hats pretty much as they are seen in the showrooms of Paris today—even to the roses and ribbons and the turned-up brim. They knew what crape trimming was, had tartans before Scotch understood the mysteries of corsets lacing in front, short wide sleeves, metal belts, and a style of dress which an imitative nineteenth century, that considered itself original, dubbed "Empire."

Their principal colors in robes were orange, yellow, blue and purple, which rather upsets the claim of the Phoenicians to have "discovered" purple.

IS MARTYR TO SCIENCE

Has Myelitis as Result of a Yellow Fever Experiment.

South Bend, Ind., May 24.—After offering himself without hope of remuneration upon the altar of medical science, that research might be made for the cure of yellow fever, John R. Kissenger of East Keasey street, who is still less than 30 years old, is now practically a confirmed invalid.

He is suffering with myelitis, or inflammation of the spinal marrow, as the result of the experiments, and is unable to move except with the aid of a wheel chair. He is a patient sufferer, nevertheless, and is bearing his affliction with fortitude.

The sacrifice was made while Kissenger was a soldier in the army. He enlisted during the Spanish-American war as a member of Company D, One Hundred and Fifty-seventh Indiana infantry, the Col. Studebaker regiment, which was in camp at Indianapolis for several months.

In the fall of 1898, at the close of the hostilities, Mr. Kissenger was mustered out of the volunteer service, but he enlisted in the regular army. With his "bunkie," John J. Moran, he remained in the service several years.

Soon after the announcement of peace the attention of the war department was called to the necessity of stamping out yellow fever, with which many soldiers of the West Indies died after having survived the Spanish bullets. Dr. Walter Reed was selected as head of the board appointed to make the tests. His assistants were Dr. James Carroll, Dr. Jesse W. Lazear and Aristides Agramonte, a Cuban physician who, having had yellow fever, was declared an immune.

Dr. Reed, aided by the Cuban, began work by making a close study of the fever conditions of the island. Disregarding the theory of "fomites" and taking a course calculated to stop the spread of the disease through ascertaining first how it took place rather than spending valuable time in hunting for the germ, the doctor proceeded upon the theory that yellow fever is carried by a variety of mosquito. The doctors themselves were the first volunteer martyrs. Dr. Lazear, not informing the rest of the physicians that he had been bitten by a mosquito of the fever-bearing genus, allowed the disease to run five days and died. Drs. Reed and Carroll recovered.

The mosquito theory was then partially proved. But the physicians wanted to be able to test theories for the prevention of the spread of the disease and its cure. Hence it was necessary that others be inoculated by submitting to the bites of diseased-bearing insects. A camp, named in honor of the dead physician, was established and congress appropriated money to reward those risking their lives in the proposed experiments.

It was not necessary to call for volunteers. Messrs. Kissenger and Moran came to the front and offered themselves, first stating in black and white that they did not want pecuniary reward and that it should not be offered to them.

When they appeared at the experiment camp Dr. Reed, filled with admiration, touched his cap and said:

"Gentlemen, I salute you. This exhibition of courage has never been surpassed in the annals of the United States army."

Kissenger was the first to be inoculated. He was bitten by five mosquitoes which had become infected by biting yellow fever patients. His sufferings were terrible. Three days after being inoculated with the disease, on Dec. 3, 1900, his life was despaired of, but he apparently recovered. Moran had to be infected twice before he was attacked, but he did not have the disease in its worst form.

The after effects were different in the case of the two heroes. Moran seemingly suffered no ill results. Kissenger appeared for a time to have recovered completely, but subsequent developments proved to the contrary. He returned to his army post and served until his enlistment expired. About four years ago he married and came to South Bend to reside.

Obtaining work in a local factory, he continued his employment until forced to retire a few months ago. Last fall he began to lose strength. He found it daily more difficult to perform the tasks required of him. Upon the advice of physicians he gave up work and he has daily grown more enfeebled.

His legs have not the power to carry him and they are in such condition that he travels about the house on his knees and uses a wheel chair out of doors. He assists his wife in domestic duties, but is unable to do anything else.

Dr. Howard Kelley of Johns Hopkins university has interested himself in the case and is of the same opinion as local physicians, that myelitis is the trouble and is directly a result of the yellow fever experiment.

Owing to the pleadings of friends, who insisted that he should seek a pension for his wife's sake, he allowed an application to be made. Congress voted $12 a month. This and the savings of nearly $1,000 are the only means of support.

THIS PRISONER IS ASTOUNDED

Englishman After Twenty Years in Jail, Surprised at Conditions.

London, May 24.—To be sentenced to penal servitude for life, to serve twenty years and four months of that sentence, and then to come back into a new and changed world to begin life afresh—such has been the experience of Robert Connolly, who was released from Pentonville prison.

Connolly was found guilty of manslaughter at Warwick assizes on Nov. 22, 1886, and Justice Grantham gave him a life sentence. At that time he was 32 years of age. He has lived to serve through twenty years of penal servitude, but of his five children three have died since his trial. He is now a gray-haired, gray-whiskered old man, quiet and gentle in bearing.

After his release at 10 o'clock in the morning Connolly spent a good part of his first day of freedom in motor-omnibus rides through the metropolis. In conversation later in the day he described his impressions of the new world in which he found himself.

"I am told that I am free and that I can go where I like; but do what I will, I can not get over the feeling that I am still under restraint. For years and years—a lifetime, it seems—my every action has been guided and governed by warders, and now, during these last few hours, time after time, I have hastily turned round half expecting to see the well-remembered uniform by my side. Those warders have so entered into my life that it seems they must still be here. And then again and again I tell myself, 'No, I am really free.'

"In the streets everything seems strange. I have seen thousands and thousands of people going hither and thither at their own will. Then, time after time, the delightful thought surged through my brain that I was one of those thousands of men, dressed as they were, and that I, too, was free. One would have to pass through my experience to know how I felt.

"I was particularly struck with the motor omnibuses. I had heard of them and I had seen photographs of them in the prison periodicals, but when I actually saw one, without any horses, running at a great pace through the streets in and out of the traffic, I was filled with amazement.

"Then I rode on one. It was a most curious sensation. But the noise the omnibus made surprised me, and I asked someone who sat by my side if it did not frighten the horses. He seemed surprised at my question, but told me that at first the horses were frightened, but that now they were used to it."

Questioned as to what he intended to do for a living, Connolly said that before he was convicted he was a gunmaker, but during his imprisonment he had heard much as to the different methods of manufacture which had been introduced, and he was afraid that he would now be useless at the trade. During the twelve years he was at Portland he was taught masonry, and now he hopes to be able to secure employment in that line.

The Catholic Prisoners' Aid society is now befriending him and endeavoring to secure him employment. Last evening he left London for his old home in the country.

SEEKING A BIG ESTATE

A Massachusetts Man Claims to be Heir to Millions.

Missing Papers and Bible Needed to Prove Descent.

Onset Bay, Mass., May 24.—Heir to an estate in England valued at $70,000,000 which was left by his grandfather, Lord George Mortimer Dudley, once of the old country, but who died in Virginia, William Cornish Ramsdell of Long Neck is attempting to prove his claim to the satisfaction of the courts of England.

For several years Mr. Ramsdell has been engaged in search for proofs of relationship to the dead lord and his rightful ownership. He has traced every clew that he considered would give him the necessary documents — documents which would be acceptable to English judges. Now he believes he has succeeded.

In the basement of an old dwelling in Jamestown, Va., are said to be papers and an old Bible which clearly show the relationship. According to a description which has been obtained this place is a "very old dwelling, standing in the old part of the town, built partly of brick and partly of wood, with the papers secreted in the basement."

Lord Dudley came to this country about 1700 and died during the Revolutionary war. His daughter, Miss Elizabeth Tabb Dudley, married Oswald Smith Jones of Mathews county, Virginia, where Lord Dudley settled. From this union there were several heirs and upon it Mr. Ramsdell bases his claim.

For several years Chester A. Ramsdell, a son of William, has been engaged in establishing the family tree. To his own satisfaction this has been accomplished, but the proof necessary to convince the chancery court of England has been missing. This, he believes, will be found in the old Jamestown dwelling.

These papers consist of the Bible of the children of Lord George Dudley, the British coat of arms of the Dudleys and the discharge papers of Oswald Smith Jones from the war of 1812.

Mr. Ramsdell was born at Mathews Courthouse, Va., and two years ago, with his son, he went there in an attempt to locate the required documents. He lost the scent, however, and returned home unsuccessful. Since then he has heard they were in Jamestown and there he will go this summer.

When he died his sister, Clarissa, came to this country and took back with her an old sword and many of the old papers. On her death, intestate, she left a fortune estimated at $50,000,000, which is also in the hands of the chancery courts of England.

Lord Dudley married Miss Fannie Gwynne, but no heirs were born. At the death of Lord George his widow married Thomas Gibson, who adopted a child, Fanny Gwynne.

This adopted daughter once put in a claim for the old lord's fortune, but was unsuccessful in her contention. She was familiar with the lost papers, but they could not establish her claims.

On the "old Dudley tract" lived the original family. This estate was very large, and, according to Mr. Ramsdell, there are old negroes living on it at this time who remember all about his grandfather. They have told him about a will left by the old lord. They also remember, as does he, that about fifty years ago there was an advertisement calling for the heirs of the estate to come forward, but nothing was done by the Ramsdells at the time.

Besides this fortune there is other property located in Virginia that Mr. Ramsdell believes to be his. This is a part of the "Dudley tract" and has been used by negroes as squatters for many years.

On his father's side Mr. Ramsdell also claims a portion of $7,000, with interest from 1812, from the United States government. According to him the government took seven slaves from his grandfather during that war and never paid for them.

In speaking about his claim Mr. Ramsdell says: "My mother always declared that Aunt Clarissa Dudley, sister of Lord George Dudley, took his papers back to England after he died, about 1777. The Bible was minutely described as English, large in size, with poetry and the coat of arms in it. I have also had assurances from friends who seem to know that Lord George's papers with the old Bible are in the old dwelling at Jamestown now. In that Bible were recorded the births, marriages and deaths in the family.

"Just now when everybody is rummaging over old things in and around Jamestown I expect to be able to locate the papers and Bible which mean so much to me."

LIQUOR ON THE POOR FARM

It Belonged to Druggist and Superintendent is Arrested.

Adel, Iowa, May 24.—A peculiar case of violation of the muiet law has been ended here by the conviction of Cozad & Freeman, local druggists.

On April 24 information was given to the county attorney that there was a quantity of liquor stored in a barn at the poor farm. An information accordingly was made out and a search resulted in the discovery of a barrel containing thirty gallons of brandy.

The cask had been nailed up in a large dry goods box. Supt. J. W. Reynolds of the Dallas county poor farm accordingly was made defendant and a date was set for his trial.

Before the date arrived, however, Cozad & Freeman confessed that the brandy was their property, stating that they had more liquor on hand than allwed by the law and had prevailed upon Reynolds to hold the brandy for them until their stock was reduced.

The druggists thereupon were made defendants and their trial has just resulted in a conviction. The brandy was condemned, the cask was broached and the liquor spilled on the ground.

TOO TIMID AS EMBALMERS.

Women Fainted When It Came to Tests, Says State Board.

Trenton, N. J., May 24.—An interesting discussion of the comparative merits of male and female undertakers, with the honors about evenly divided, is contained in the annual report of the state board of embalmers which has just been submitted to Governor Stokes. The report suggests that there is a slight leaning in favor of the men as undertakers because they seem to take more readily to the practical part of the work.

Taking up in detail the examinations held under the license law passed by the legislature a year ago, the board reports that about twenty women have been among the licensed applicants. These women have shown superior knowledge in the theory of embalming and the burial of the dead, but have not measured up as well in the practical tests required.

Without exception, all of the female candidates passed with high averages in the book of learning part of the examinations. When it came to the practical work, however, the men ran far in advance of their sisters.

The first practical demonstration of embalming was made in this city several months ago. At that time a woman was the first candidate called upon to embalm a body. She advanced rather timidly to the subject, fainted and fell prostrate over the body.

All of the other women candidates fainted in turn as they took their places, according to the board's report. The board concludes that, while women are capable of acquiring all the theoretical knowledge required of an undertaker, they are not likely to prove a success in the business because of their timidity.

The report concludes by showing how the profession of embalming and undertaking has been advanced by the enactment of the law requiring state examinations and the taking out of licenses.

QUITS WIFE; GIVES HER ALL.

Man Surrenders Everything He Owns to Woman He Leaves.

Kansas City, Mo., May 24.—An agreement of separation has been filed at Kansas City, Kan., under which Mr. and Mrs. William N. Woodward are to live apart and Mrs. Woodward is to have all of her husband's property. There would have been a divorce, but the woman has religious scruples against divorce.

Woodward, who is a real estate dealer, filed three documents in the office of the recorder of deeds. One was a warranty deed in which he transfers his property to his wife. Another sets forth terms of agreement.

The third gives to Mrs. Woodward power of attorney, transferring to her the right to sign her husband's name in all sales of property. These powers are irrevocable.

Woodward agrees to abide by any will which Mrs. Woodward shall leave at death. She in turn agrees to the same condition. Mr. and Mrs. Woodward have lived in Kansas City, Kan., nineteen years. They have six children living. The husband and wife have been living apart one year.

HORSE STANDS BY MASTER.

Knocks Out Four Brutal Highwaymen Bent on Robbery.

Mount Holly, N. J., May 24.—When four men, armed with clubs, waylaid and assaulted Edward Grant they probably figured on having a good time with the thrifty marketman's wallet. They never thought of his faithful horse Jim when they interrupted his master's daylight journey to the cranberry bogs. That's where the highwaymen made a mistake.

"We want your money and your watch and we want them quick," was the greeting which Grant received from the leader of the quartet.

The farmer was framing his refusal when a cluster of clubs bounded off his head. Grant immediately went into an executive session with the stars.

Then the horse got busy. Jim went up on his hind legs and shook off the two men that held him. Then he struck out fore and aft, starboard and port. He proved a good judge of distance, for two of the highwaymen went to the ground. Jim executed a few jig steps on the chests of the prostrate robbers and then gathered up his skirts and started for the Grant homestead.

By the time he arrived there his master, in the bottom of the wagon, was unconscious. When he had revived enough to tell the story a posse started out and spent all day scouring the neighboring woods for the four men.

As for Jim, he stood on the main street and held a reception. All the men and boys shook his hoof. The women patted him and stuffed him with sweets. The selectmen are seriously thinking of discharging the four town constables and making Jim the entire police force.

SQUABBLE OVER RELICS.

Rome, May 24.—Again the old story of Italian treasures, of discord between foreign worshipers of them and of Italy's perhaps justified national pride is before the public. It is also again the question of Herculaneum. Prof. Waldstein, the promoter of an international enterprise for excavations at Herculaneum, lamented, in an interview with the correspondent of an Italian paper, the want of courtesy shown him by the Italian authorities. This has roused a storm of indignation here and the papers are containing open letters from the authorities denying the allegations. An official communication denies Prof. Waldstein's assertion that the Italian central commission of art accepted his project unanimously, as Prof. Boni Forum, wrote a famous letter against it. It is also hinted that Mr. Waldstein's language in his letters to the Italian foreign minister was very much lacking in courtesy, so much so, indeed, that the fact was brought to his notice in a letter from the minister. All people agree that it is better that Italy should do the work herself, but many doubt whether, at this rate, Herculaneum will ever see the light of day.

Brief addresses were made by President Magner, Mr. Towne, Mr. McGonagle and Mayor Cullum. The president expressed his satisfaction that such efficient men had been selected for his staff of workers, and took occasion to speak most highly of the work of the retiring officers and directors. Mr. Towne spoke for the retiring directors, and Mr. McGonagle for the past presidents, while Mayor Cullum dwelt on the need of an improved park system, and the need of playgrounds for children in the thickly settled districts of the city. All the speakers had a good word to say for the bright future of Duluth, and expressed great hopes for the city.

HIS CLOTHING WILD VINES.

Hamilton, Ohio, May 24.—Like the first man in the Garden of Eden, Johann Fereusis, aged 20, a Hungarian, was found wandering in the dense woods of Riley's island near here by Louis Imlay, who was hunting mushrooms. Fereusis was as naked as on his natal day, save for a leathern strap entwined with wild vines around his loins, just as Adam and Eve appeared after the forbidden tree episode.

Fereusis was put in some second-hand apparel and brought to the police station, where with the aid of an interpreter Chief Symmes secured his story. With two companions he had gone to the Miami river to bathe, and Fereusis got separated from his fellow countrymen by swimming across the river. He came near drowning in the chilly water and would take no chances of a return trip.

Wonderful Eczema Cure.

"Our little boy had cezema for five years' writes N. A. Adams, Henrietta, Pa. "Two of our home doctors said the case was hopeless, his lungs being affected. We then employed other doctors, but no benefit resulted. By chance we read about Eclectric Bitters; bought a bottle and soon noticed improvement. We continued this medicine until several bottles were used, when our boy was completely cured." Best of all blood medicines and body building health tonics. Guaranteed at all drug stores. 50c.

IS MARRIED AS LIFE EBBED.

Pathetic Scene at the Nuptials of a Dying Bride.

Lynn, Mass., May 24.—James Temple of this city and Miss Mary McDonald were married as the bride, her cheeks blanched and her life ebbing from heart trouble, lay on what physicians said was her death bed. Rev. Arthur E. Harriman performed the ceremony, during which the woman was raised on pillows.

Just as the minister was about to name them man and wife she fainted. It required several minutes to restore her.

The couple were to have been married June 12, but last Monday Miss McDonald was taken suddenly ill. Physicians were summoned, but she sank rapidly. Temple was soon verging on nervous prostration. He urged his sweetheart to marry him. At first she tried to dissuade him, but he finally won her consent and a quick wedding was arranged. He was a widower.

HERMIT WAS HER SUITOR

Old Lady Strangely Disappears From Her Mountain Home.

Vanished in a Night, Leaving No Clew to Mystery.

Haverstraw, N. Y., May 24.—Alfred Gerow, administrator of the estate of his mother, Mrs. Jane Gerow, has dismantled the old home, under the brow of Big Kohr mountain, from which she disappeared mysteriously nearly a year ago. When the place was cleared further search was made for evidence that the aged recluse was murdered and her body buried secretly near by. District Attorney Thomas Gagan of Rockland county said after the search:

"There is no legal proof that Mrs. Gerow is either dead or alive. I think she is dead, and the circumstances point to a crime the mystery of which exceeds any that has ever come to my attention either in fiction or real life.

"So completely has all trace of her been effaced that she might as well have vanished in air. Shortly after her absence was reported, last summer, and detectives had failed to find her, I made a personal search of the premises with an assistant. I questioned every person, including Alfred Gerow, the son, who might be expected to aid in the solution of the mystery. I could not unearth any evidence on which to charge anyone, as even being suspected of the crime. Alfred Gerow was appointed administrator by the surrogate. He made affidavit of his belief that his mother is dead."

These facts the authorities have gathered: Mrs. Gerow was alive one night last June, and she disappeared the following morning. She was 70, and mentally alert. She was suffering from a broken leg, due to a fall in the street in Haverstraw, four months before, and used crutches. She could travel only a short distance with difficulty, and could not have wandered away alive, either in a carriage or otherwise, she must have been seen by neighbors.

All the property she was known to possess was found except a small amount of family silver. About $8,000 in cash and securities in the Greenwich Savings bank and the People's bank in New York has been surrendered to the son, who lives within half a mile of his mother's home. A particular search was made at the time she disappeared for a black satchel, in which Mrs. Gerow carried her bank books and other papers, and which she never permitted to leave her side. It could not be found.

A week later it was found on a chair near a bed in Mrs. Gerow's room. The bank books were intact. It also contained six unsigned checks on the Greenwich Savings bank, filled in with amounts ranging from $200 to $1,000. These checks were written by Alfred Gerow.

It was learned that Mrs. Gerow had instructed her son to write the checks, saying that in case she was ill unto death she would sign them and make them valid.

The reappearance of the satchel was vaguely accounted for by an old man past 70, who was employed as man of all work in the house. He is known as "Jock" and for long was considered a myth in the neighborhood, although farmers told of an "Old Man of the Mountains" who had a cave overlooking the Gerow homestead. Inquiries revealed an amazing secret which the old man guarded for years and which is now believed may have some bearing on the mystery of Mrs. Gerow's disappearance.

The Browns, the Gerows and the McBriens were leading families of the countryside. Jane Gerow was Jane McBrien before her marriage and shared with Elizabeth Brown the most attention from the gallants of the neighborhood. "Jock" fell in love with Jane McBrien. He was never credited with much wit and his suit was the laughing stock of the young people. Jane McBrien never gave him any encouragement. He transferred his affections to Elizabeth Brown and was again laughed at. Miss Brown married and "Jock" returned to Jane McBrien. She married and established a home in her father's residence near the Short Clove turnpike.

Jock was lost sight of, but rumor had it that he was living on the mountains watching over the object of his unrequitted love. Such proved to be the case. Except for a short time when he went to the front in the Civil war, he has never been outside the call of his boyhood's sweetheart.

He was living in his hut overlooking the Gerow home in the winter of 1905 when he saw Mrs. Gerow brought to her door, helpless because of her broken leg. He volunteered to abandon his hut and move into the house, where he might assist Mrs. Gerow. She accepted his services.

It was learned that Jock's love had remained unshaken during all the intervening years and that he proposed marriage to Mrs. Gerow. The story is told by Mrs. Frank Jones, who is nearest neighbor to the aged recluse.

"Four weeks before Mrs. Gerow's disappearance she came to my house and I saw that she was half angry and half amused," Mrs. Jones said. "She told me that Jock had asked her to marry him and became insistent when she refused. She said she would have ordered him out of the house if she had had any one else to help her during her affliction."

When Jock was asked to confirm this story of his proposal, his black eyes twinkled as he said:

"Old folks like us don't get married, do they? Jane is alive but I don't know where she is. I saw wagon tracks in the road in front of the house when I came down the mountain at 5 o'clock on the morning of June 10. Jane had told me she was going to the city to visit relatives and ordered me to guard the house during her absence. I am guarding it still and I'll stay here until she comes back. I've searched the well and under the woodpile and all the buildings just to prove to the detectives that her body hasn't been hidden."

The city relatives to whom Jock referred are brothers of Mrs. Gerow—Edward McBrien of 101 King street, and John McBrien of 73 Morton street, wealthy building contractors. They visited the old home and inspected papers which were uncovered in old closets and bureaus, but nothing of value was found. The first news that they received that their sister was missing was contained in the following letter, dated June 26:

Mrs. Edward McBrien—Dear Madam: It is now three weeks since Mrs. Jane Gerow was last seen about her home, and old Jock says she is with you in New York. He says she gave him possession of the place to watch until she returns. Patrick asked the hackman, who, he said, took her to the depot, but the hackman says he did not. The neighbors are getting suspicious; so if she is not with you please come up at once, as she may be lying sick or perhaps dead. Jock won't allow anyone to go in. A FRIEND.

All of Mrs. Gerow's clothing, even to her shoes, was found in the bedroom, proving that when she was carried from the house she was clothed only in the garments in which she retired the night before. Jock was permitted to remain in the house, which he declared he will guard until Mrs. Gerow is found, dead or alive.

PICTURES OF GROWTH

Of United States That Are Interesting and Suggestive.

Washington, May 24.—A series of panoramic views of conditions in the United States from 1800 to the present time in area, population, production, commerce, circulation, wealth, intercommunication, publication, and education are presented on the pages of the Statistical Abstract of the United States, just issued by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor. The 700 pages of solid figures, with scarcely a line of text discussion other than the title of the tables themselves which form this volume, supply much more of actual information, both historical and as to present conditions, than could be be placed in any other form in equivalent space.

The pictures of growth presented by these columns of figures are interesting and suggestive. While area has grown from less than 1,000,000 square miles in 1800 to 3,000,000 at the present time, and more than 2,500,000 if Alaska be included or about 3,750,000 if we include the islands, the population has grown from 5,000,000 to 85,000,000, and if all of that now under the American flag be included, to nearly 100,000,000; while the population per square mile in continental United States has grown from 6½ persons in 1800 to about 8 in 1850, 25 in 1900 and nearly 28 at the present time.

Wealth, which in 1850 was set down at 7,000,000,000, is given at $107,000,000,000 in 1904, the latest year for which figures are available; and the per capita wealth, which in 1850 was $307, was in 1904 $1,310. The public debt, which in 1864 was $2,675,000,000, is now but $964,000,000, and the per capita indebtedness which in 1864 was $76.98 is now but $11.46; while the annual interest charge, which was then $4.12 per capita, is now but 28 cents per capita. The money in circulation, which in 1800 was $25,000,000, in 1850 $278,000,000, and in 1880 $973,000,000, was in 1906 $2,736,000,000; and the per capita circulation, which in 1800 was $5, and in 1850 $12, was in 1906 $32.32.

Bank deposits, for which no record is available earlier than in 1875, were in that year a trifle over $2,000,000,000; in 1900, $7,250,000,000, and in 1905, $12,250,000,000. Deposits in savings banks show a complete record from 1820 to date. In 1820 they amounted to $1,000,000, speaking in round terms; in 1850 they had reached $43,000,000; in 1875, $924,000,000; in 1900, $2,530,000,000, and in 1906, $3,500,000,000; while the number of depositors, which in 1820 was only 8,635, was in 1850, 251,354; in 1875, 2,259,864, and in 1900, 6,107,083, was in 1906, 8,027,192, or nearly a thousand times as many as in 1820, while the deposits were more than 3,000 times as much in 1906 as in 1820.

Imports of merchandise, which in 1800 amounted to $91,000,000, were in 1906, $1,226,000,000; while exports, which in 1800 were $71,000,000; were in 1906, $1,744,000,000. The per capita of importations, which in 1800 amounted to $17.19, was in 1906 but $14.42, while the per capita of exportations, which in 1800 was $13.37, was in 1906, $20.41.

In the matter of production and manufacture the picture of progress is equally interesting. Cotton production, which in 1800 amounted to 155,556 bales, had by 1850 reached 2,159,000; in 1875, 3,750,000; in 1900, a little less than 10,000,000, and in 1906, 11,250,000. Corn production, which in 1840 was 377,000,000 bushels, touched the billion-bushel line in 1870, the two-billion-bushel mark in 1889, and in 1906 was 2,927,416,000 bushels, and may, therefore, be expected to cross the 3-billion-bushel line in 1907. The sugar production of the United States, which amounted to less than 11,000 tons in 1825, 111,000 tons in 1850, and 270,000 tons in 1900, was in 1906, 582,414 tons; beet-sugar production, which began in the "seventies," having grown from 447 tons in 1877 to 2,800 tons in 1880, 82,735 tons in 1900, and 300,317 tons in 1906. Meantime consumption grew even more rapidly, the total number of tons of sugar consumed having been 40,852 in 1822 and 2,864,013 in 1906, and the quantity consumed per capita, from a little less than 9 pounds in 1822 to a little more than 76 pounds in 1905.

In the great manufacturing industries evidences of progress are equally apparent. The page devoted to this subject shows that the number of people employed in manufacturing has grown from less than 1,000,000 in 1850 to 5,500,000 in 1905; the wages paid, from $237,000,000 in 1850 to $2,611,000,000 in 1905; and the value of products, from $1,000,000,000 in 1850 to nearly $15,000,000,000 in 1905.

COYOTE LED TO RICH ORE.

Tacoma, Wash., May 24.—A yelping coyote has at least one friend in Idaho. Four years ago John King of Winchester, in pursuit of this howling game, stumbled over a rock on the Craig mountain and fell into wealth, for the stone he struck proved to be copper.

For three years he and his son Jesse have been developing this claim, and the ore has been admitted by King to assay over $47 to the ton in copper and gold.

As the claim is within a few miles of Jacques Spur of the Northern Pacific railroad, and as the distance to the road from the claim is over very good highway, Mr. King is in the way of becoming a rich man.

News of the richness of the find has caused a virtual depopulation of Winchester, all those able going to the vicinity of King's mine to locate claims near his.

LIGHTNING ROUTE FOR HIM.

Maine Man Says That 12,000 Volts is Like "Sailing, Sailing."

Bangor, Me., May 24.—"If I was born to be killed, it's the lightning route for mine every time," said Michael Clisham, a roofer, after he had rubbed against a live wire carrying 12,000 volts, rolled off a pitch roof, bumped on a flat roof and landed on his head on the ground badly battered but still in the Union.

Clisham and a fellow-workman were repairing some slates on the gashouse. Clisham knew the wires were there, and also that his partner was a bit careless, and so took the risk himself. He made a slip and barely touched the wires. That was about all that he remembers until he awoke up in the Emergency hospital with his hands bandaged.

"Take it from me, it's the easy way," said Clisham. "There was a buz-z-z, like a planing mill. Then a dreamy, don't-you-care kind of feeling—sailing, sailing like, and that was about all. If the dose I got was anything like the real thing they serve up in the electric chair, it's the slickest route to the great beyond."

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Dandy Dixie Minstrels.
METROPOLITAN—Long Stock Company.
BIJOU—High class vaudeville.

MINSTRELS PLEASE.

Troupe of Colored Preformers Have a Good Show.

The Dandy Dixie Minstrels opened at the Lyceum last evening and the rather small audience enjoyed the program greatly. The sweet negro voices were heard to advantage in a number of songs and the audience applauded some of the solo work enthusiastically.

Charles Williams, the "Shoo-fly Sojer" sang "All In, Down and Out," in a manner which brought down the house and brought forth several encores. H. W. Woodson showed himself possessed of a powerful bass, which, while lacking in range was much appreciated in "Old Black Joe." Bunk Campbell was the other principal contributor to the "chin music" portion of the program and he made a decided hit in "Let It Alone."

In the olio Pamplin, the juggler, easily carried off the honors and he does some stunts which beat anything which has been seen here for a long time. The Dandy Dixies in short give a program which will be wholly satisfying to anyone who likes minstrelsy.

A Parisian Princess.

"A Parisian Princess," the play which the Frank E. Long Stock company gave for the first time at the Metropolitan yesterday afternoon, has made a hit with patrons of the summer stock season at the "Met." In it the members of the company appear to better advantage than they did in the opening bill, "Our Country Cousins." "A Parisian Princess" will hold the boards until Sunday afternoon, when and for the first half of next week, the Long company will give "Elected to Congress." There will be a bargain matinee tomorrow.

New Song Is a Hit.

"San Antonio," the new song being sung by Isadore Silver at the Bijou this week, is being quite generally whistled in Duluth, and seems to have made a hit. Don Leno and his ten youngsters are also creating many favorable comments, and many people who have never attended the Bijou before have been seen in the audiences this week.

SUPERIOR NEWS

PRESIDENT TESTIFIES

Head of Wisconsin Grain and Stock Company is Heard.

The taking of testimony in the case of the Chicago board of trade against the Superior board of trade to prevent quotations of grain sold "for Chicago delivery," has been in progress for several days and a very interesting turn was given to it yesterday by the introduction of the president of the Wisconsine Grain & Stock company and his explanation of how the business of the company is executed on the Superior board of trade.

The Wisconsin Grain & Stock company about two years ago succeeded to the business of Edwards, Wood & Co., and has since been using the quotations of the Superior board of trade. The Superior board cannot use the Chicago and Minneapolis quotations and sends out others purporting to be Superior board of trade quotations "for Chicago delivery," substituting Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis or Duluth, as the case may be. The Chicago board is asking the court to prevent the quotations made "for Chicago delivery" on the ground that they are really Chicago quotations and that the Superior board of trade's transactions are fictitious and illegitimate and made only for the purpose of supplying bucket shops with quotation service, no actual delivery of the commodity traded in ever being contemplated.

The Chicago board has put in a great amount of testimony to show the farcial character of the trading and the subterfuges employed to give it the appearance of legitimacy. The Superior board is now putting in its defense. The testimony offered by the Superior board previous to yesterday was along the line of attempting to prove that legitimate transactions are made on the Superior board.

C. D. Phelps of St. Paul, president of the Wisconsin Grain & Stock Co., was called yesterday, and was on the stand most of the day. The questions by Attorney Luse, representing the Superior board, brought out from Mr. Phelps the statement that his company sends all the orders received from its thirty-five branch officers to the Superior board of trade to be executed, and that confirmations are received from there.

Attorney Robbins, representing the Chicago board of trade, put Mr. Phelps through a long cross-examination, going minutely into the manner of doing business, the whole line of questioning intimating that the attorney considers the concern a bucket shop. Mr. Robbins is evidently also of the opinion that Edwards, Wodd & Co. own or control the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company although the latter professes to have bought out the other.

Mr. Phelps said that he owned $1,500 worth of stock in the company. After considerable questioning he admitted that one V. D. Tuttle was a stockholder in the company, finally conceding him to be the largest stockholder, owning 110 shares.

"He is a relative of the Woods, is he not?" asked Mr. Robbins.

"I think so."

"What relation?"

"A cousin, I think," answered Mr. Phelps.

Mr. Robbins went into considerable detail as to how the trades are handled in the office and what record is kept. Mr. Phelps stronously denied that a margin sheet is kept which shows the condition of a man's account, asserting that there is nothing more than the ledger account.

All orders for the purchase of New York or other stocks received from the branch offices of the company are sent to the Superior board of trade for execution, Mr. Phelps said. Confirmations are received from there.

Refused to Answer.

Mr. Robbins pressed him pretty closely to know how the deals in stocks are conducted and he finally closed up and refused to answer questions concerning their stock deals, claiming that the hearing had nothing to do with anything but grain deals. Mr. Robbins continued his questions and Mr. Phelps broke out angrily:

"Keep away from that stock business, will you? I won't answer."

"You might just as well answer now, for I will have you down to Madison on an order of the court if you don't," retorted Mr. Robbins sharply.

Questioned further, Mr. Phelps said that he had known of cases where their customers called for the actual delivery of stock and grain, and asserted that the deliveries were made. They were called from their representativs, H. P. Ernsberger or Paul Foss, on the Superior board. Upon being pressed for details, he could give but one specific instance, though he claimed that there were others. The one was where one, Hires, had called for delivery.

"He is a member of the National board of trade of Kansas City, is he not?" asked Mr. Robbins.

"I believe so," was the response.

Mr. Phelps' memory unlimbered to the extent that he recollected deliveries of Great Northern and Republic Iron & Steel company stock. The stock came through their representatives on the Superior board of trade.

Asked as to the charges made by customers, Mr. Phelps said that a commission was exacted, and also interest on "long" stocks. By that he explained that a customer was charged interest on the purchase price of stocks ordered by him. Mr. Robbins tried in vain to get any light upon whether any money had ever been advanced by the company to buy stocks for a customer.

John Stewart, telegraph operator on the wire from the companys' office in St. Paul to Superior, was called. Mr. Robbins brought out from him that he has been an operator for nine years, and has worked eight years for the Coe Commission company, the Edwards-Wood people, and the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company. He explained how the messages are sent to Superior, and the confirmations received. When asked how long it takes to get a confirmation on an order for the purchase or sale of New York stocks, he said from six to twenty minutes.

H. P. Ernsberger was called and asked as to the New York stock deals. He said he got the orders from the St. Paul office, and executed them on the Superior board of trade. Asked what he did when he got calls for the actual delivery of stocks, he said he got the stock from St. Paul.

The hearing is still in progress today, but will probably be concluded by evening.

FIND NO CLUES.

No trace of the murder of Walter O'Nell, the 11-year-old boy whose body was found yesterday morning in a box car, has as yet been found. Every available man of the police department is working on the case under the direction of Chief McKinnon, and the chief has offered a reward of $100 for information which will lead to the arrest an conviction of the guilty party.

Two suspects found in the railroad yards were arrested this morning, but were later released, there being no evidence against them whatever. Both were strangers in the city.

The coroner's inquest is being held this afternoon at the morgue, and a post mortem examination is being held.

ALL DAY SESSION.

County School Superintendents Conclude Meeting With Banquet.

The Wisconsin State Association of County School Superintendents was in session all day yesterday in the Superior normal school, morning and afternoon sessions being held, and the meeting was brought to a close last evening by an elaborate banquet, which was held in the Hotel Superior.

The morning and afternoon sessions were devoted to discusssions of varied school topics, Miss Jessie Smith of Washburn county, the vice president, presiding in the absence of President Hazelwood. "Associations," "The New Superintendent's Problems," "Records," "Progress," "The Need of Trained Teachers for the Country Schools," "The Rights of Country School Children," "Great Forward Movements in Rural School Improvements," "Nature Study in the Rural Schools," and an extended discussion on teachers' institutes, made up the program for morning and afternoon sessions. The toasts at the banquet, while entertaining and enlivened with wit and humor, also dealt with school subjects.

While this concluded the association meeting, the annual convention of County Superintendents was opened at the normal today, and will keep most of the school visitors in Superior during today and tomorrow.

MANSFIELD CONVICTED

Jury Finds Him Guilty of Forgery in Second Degree.

Defendant Remanded to Jail to Await His Sentence.

Charles H. Mansfield, or Charles Carlson, as the police claim his true name to be, was found guilty of forgery in the second degree yesterday afternoon, about 5 o'clock, after the jury had deliberated a short time. The penalty for the crime of which he stands convicted is imprisonment in the penitentiary for one to ten years.

Mansfield heard the verdict without a sign of emotion, shook hands with his attorney, and left the courtroom in company of a deputy sheriff to return to the jail. His sentence will probably be imposed early next week.

The indictment against Mansfield accused him of forging Philip Mahlberg's name to a check for $448.87 and with drawing the money from the American Exchange bank with the intent to defraud Mahlberg. The two men had entered into a partnership to manufacture and artificial albumen for which Mansfield claimed to have a secret formula. Mahlberg put in $500 and Mansfield put in a $66 draft of a New York firm that the authorities afterward found to be a fictitious concern. It was agreed that all checks should be signed by Mahlberg and countersigned by Mansfield. Two checks, one to pay Mahlberg his first week's salary and the other to pay the rent, were executed by the partners immediately after the banking account was opened. Mansfield took the check for the rent. Less than six hours after Mahlberg's money was deposited Mansfield appeared at the bank with a check for $448.87, purported to have been signed by Mahlberg, drew out the money and went to Superior. Mahlberg discovered that the money had been drawn and notified the police. Mansfield was arrested as he was about to take a train out of Superior the same afternoon. He declared that Mahlberg had signed the check and that the money he had drawn was to pay for materials. Mahlberg denied that he had signed the check or knew that Mansfield intended drawing the money from the bank. The check book showed that two checks had been executed from the back of the book, one of these being the $448.87 check. The state claimed that Mansfield forged Mahlberg's name, that the opportunity was offered when he had the check for the rent in his possession, with Mahlberg's real signature on it. A witness for the state, who claims to have known Mansfield in New York, several years ago, testified that his true name is Charles Carlson.

WILL BE IN JUNE.

Paris, May 24.—The marriage of Miss Shonts, daughter of the former chairman of the Panama canal commission, to the duc de Chaulnes probably will be celebrated at the end of this month or early in June, in Paris.

Mrs. Theodore Shonts and her two daughters have just arrived in Paris, whither they were preceded a week ago by the young duc de Chaulnes, who, it is understood, came in advance to overcome the aloofness manifested by certain influential members of his family. This mission has been accomplished to the satisfaction of every one.

The Shonts are living quietly at a well-known Paris hotel. Miss Shonts is too busy completing her trousseau to take any actual part in the social life of the city.

WEST END

THE STAKES WERE LOST

West End Youths Pitching Gold Pieces at a Crack.

Police Will Stop Games of Chance on the Street.

Digging for gold occupied several of the youngsters in the neighborhood of Nineteenth avenue west and Third street last evening, but just how profitable their open pit operations were, did not develop, or at any rate was not made generally known up to the hour of going to press.

Several young blades of the neighborhood, fellows who work when their hours for work are at hand, but who like to lean up against something and smoke cigarettes when not employed, are in the habit of engaging in that game of chance and skill known as "throwing nickels at a crack."

Yesterday, the sportiveness of the young men was marked and after a pleasant interval during which several nickels changed hands, it was suggested that the coin throwing be made more interesting by increasing the denomination of the weapons.

This met with general approval and it was decided that quarters should be thrown at a crack. Interest in the sport naturally increased and the participants vied with each other in efforts to make the most accurate throws and secure the money.

Naturally, several of the contests were very close, and this led to boastfulness on the part of some. One fellow who just succeeded in planting the coin on the crack two successive times, while flushed with success, announced that he was willing to throw five dollar gold pieces at the crack. Another young sport, not to be outdone, took up the proposition. The first man made a good throw, landing his gold piece near the official line. So when the other fellow went to throw, he was very nervous. The combination of the opponent's good cast and the amount of the stakes, caused such agitation that he made a bad throw. The little yellow coin struck the right crack and then rolled some distance beyond and sank from sight down a wide crack.

The first man claimed the money and immediately dived under the sidewalk in a frantic search for it. But it had disappeared. The others joined in the search, but the missing coin could not be found. Finally, it had to be given up for lost.

Before leaving the spot, however, the winner of the five-dollar-contest, offered a reward of 50 cents to any boy who found the missing gold piece and returned it to him.

This was what caused the interest in gold digging among the youngsters. Whether the man who won gets the gold piece or not even after it is found, is a question, as the finder may conclude that the boys' rule of 'finders, keepers,' holds good.

The police are going to put a stop to the coin throwing on the public thoroughfares, however. The interest in them is so great that the sidewalk is blockaded and passing pedestrians of both sexes are obliged to walk out in the street to get past the sports.

WILL BUILD NEW BAKERY.

E. Bjorlin to Erect a Twenty Thousand Dollar Structure.

Contracts for the erection of a two story brick bakery for the firm of E. Bjorlin & Co. have been let to Jacob Jacobson and work on the new structure will be commenced as soon as possible. It will be located at the corner of First street and Twenty-second avenue west.

The new building will house a complete bakery plant. On the first floor will be the salesroom and store and there will be some living apartments on the second floor. However, some of the second floor will be given over to a store room.

WOMAN WAS A PARADOX.

Chicago, Ill., May 24.—Lying among the corpse of paupers in the county morgue awaiting a coroner's inquest is the body of Mrs. Elizabeth Schaunloffell, 60 years old, who it was discovered after her death at the county hospital was worth more than $50,000. This Hetty Green of Chicago, lived in a 10-cent room in the Model boarding house, 13 Eldredge place, until April 29, when she was taken to the hospital.

Following the woman's death the superintendent of the boarding house discovered, hidden away in her dilapidated baggage, tax books showing her to be the owner of real estate at 202 West Monroe street and of extensive and valuable Irving Park and Grossdale building sites. There were also a bank book showing $3,000 in deposits, a bundle of interest-bearing bonds and $1,000 in currency.

At the lodginghouse where Mrs. Schaunloffel lived it was said that she lived with the utmost frugality. She paid a dime daily for her room; she ate an apple for luncheon; a crust of bread and a small tin pail of tea furnished her dinner, while her clothing was of the shabbiest, existing on less than is given to a pauper.

PRESIDENT TO HAVE A QUIET VACATION.

President Roosevelt will spend a very quiet summer at Oyster Bay this year. Visitors at Sagamore Hill will be few and far between.

The only out-of-town engagement the president has made thus far the for the entire summer is that of Aug. 20, when he will speak at Provincetown, Mass., on theoccasion of a Pilgrim Fathers' celebration.

The president will make the journey to Provincetown and return by boat. The Mayflower will probably be selected for this voyage.

The rest of the summer will be devoted to recreation, rest and writing. The vacation ends Sept. 29.

BROKEN BY TRAGEDY.

Chicago, May 24.—Broken down by the tragedies that have filled the latter years of his life, Mike McDonald, once gambling king and high among Chicago's politicians, lies at St. Anthony's hospital, a mental wreck, and his friends are reported to fear that his condition may end in insanity and death.

The climax of the gray old man's troubles came when his wife shot and killed Webster Guerin, an artist, and was arrested to answer the charge of murder. The strain of the tragedy has pulled him down fast, and a week ago he was taken to the hospital.

"BUM" IS PUT QUIETLY AWAY

"Bum" is dead.

He was put quietly away yesterday afternoon by a dose of polson, and is now doubtless holding down a front seat in Dog Paradise, if there is such a place.

"Bum" was probably the most widely known dog in Duluth. He was owned by the billposters and was as much a part of the billposting business as the big pails of paste. In fact, the dog used to eat the paste, and seemed to thrive on the diet, gulping down mouthfuls of it whenever the opportunity presented itself.

"Bum" was a fighter of note. Fighting was his recreation and billposting his business. He followed the wagon of the billposters as faithfully as its shadow, but he could not resist the temptation to digress at times, and enjoy a little relaxation in a rough and tumble scrap with some passing dog.

"Bum" had a strange history. He came to Duluth on a "blind baggage" with a bum of the human variety, and simply adopted the billposters. Nobody owned him in particular, although Cliff Gullingsrud was one of his particular favorites among the men. He seemed to lose his desire for moving about the country when he took up with the billposters and settled down into a life of innocuous desuetude, as the official guardian of the paste pots.

But "Bum" was growing old, and sickly, and surly. He lost interest even in billposting, and didn't even have the heart to chew up a brown spaniel which ran out and barked at him the other day. The billposters decided to put him away, and last evening he was handed a little piece of doctored steak that did the trick.

SCHOOL FOR MATRIMONY.

Kansas City Star: It has just been discovered by statistics that the state agricultural college at Manhattan is the greatest school of matrimony in the Union. A larger per cent of its graduates get married than any other school. A young woman graduate at Manhattan is doubly attractive to the young man looking for a wife. In her four years' course there she has learned much of practical housekeeping, such as sewing, cutting, making garments, cooking and similar domestic arts, while studying the classics, sciences and culture subjects. This puts her in touch with home-making along with her classical training.

CHECKING LOCAL OFFICIALS.

There is no great surprise in the news from St. Paul that the attorney general believes that the law passed last winter providing for a county examiner for St. Louis county is invalid. The decision of the supreme court covering laws wherein it was provided that the district courts should appoint public officers invalidated all such measures, including this one, but it was too late in the session, when the discovery was made, to pass another measure changed to meet the new condition.

The law provides for the appointment of a county examiner by the judges of the district court, to look into the accounts of cities, towns, villages and school districts. It is much needed in this county, and it is unfortunate that it is probably worthless. There is at present absolutely no check upon the vast sums that are spent by these local bodies. The United States Steel corporation alone pays nearly a million dollars a year in taxes to local subdivisions, which is spent altogether without official check. The Duluth school district is not supervised by any public authority except its own, yet it spends several hundred thousand dollars each year.

While it is probably useless to look to this law for help, the county board should take advantage of another law passed last winter which requires the state public examiner to check up such accounts at least once a year at the request of the county boards. Though there is no suspicion of peculations, it is a measure of safety to have these accounts looked over, and once a year is none too often to have it done.

THE USE OF ALCOHOL.

Not long ago several leading physicians of London came out in public prints with a rather astonishing defense of alcohol as a food and medicine. Their statements were circulated abroad, and undoubtedly did much harm. The appetite for alcohol grows rapidly enough without such encouragement as that which consists of heralding it as either a food or a medicine.

The consensus of medical opinion nowadays is that it is distinctly neither a food nor a medicine. It is a stimulant, with disastrous reaction, and like many other artificial stimulants, it creates a demand for more and more, until an amount that creates exhiliration in a beginner merely stimulates the craving for more with the advanced drinker.

To counteract the effect of this dangerous pronouncement, a dozen of the best physicians in London, including such famous men as Sir Frederick Treves, Sir James Barr and William Ewart, have lately joined in a statement that is being published in the medical press.

Referring to the former manifesto, the signers say:

> We gravely dissent from much of its teaching, nor can we accept it as an authoritative statement of recognized medical opinion on the matter.

Then the statement goes into some of the arguments advanced in favor of alcohol, and after exposing the fallacy of the reasoning used, sums the case up as follows:

> We strongly believe that alcohol is unnecessary as an article of consumption in the case of healthy men and women, and that its general use could be discontinued without detriment to the world's welfare. Furthermor, believing that alcohol is one of the most fruitful sources of poverty, disease and crime, we are pleased to add that it is now sparingly used as a remedy by a majority of medical men.

All the evidence goes to show that alcohol is in no sense a food, and that its use as such is absurd and dangerous. As to its medical properties, it is true that as shown by the London situation, there is a division of opinion, but the vast majority of physicians, including those of highest repute, deprecate its use or condemn it altogether.

In hospitals, where its use was formerly common, it is going rapidly out of consideration, and in many of the best hospitals it is seldom used at all. There is not a single use to which it has ever been put, as a medicine or as a beverage, that cannot be better served by other materials.

THE GREEN TERROR.

It's odd how far men will go to find agencies that destroy themselves, when it is just as easy to live sanely and soberly, and enjoy peace and health and happiness by doing so.

Strong drinks have been used by men for ages, and millions have thrown their lives away, drowning their better instincts and their manhood in liquor.

Strange drugs that destroy slowly but surely all have their devotees. Nothing could be more miserable than the life and end of the victim of drugs, yet thousands begin using them every year, apparently undismayed by the spectacle of other thousands coming to shameful and horrible deaths from their use.

Weary of the too slow effect of ordinary liquors, it is said that thousands of men in this country are abandoning themselves to the insidious and baneful influences of absinthe, the green terror of France, which is sapping the vitality and manhood of that nation and turning it into a nation of degenerates.

A botanist of the federal agricultural department is quoted as saying that absinthe is being produced in considerable quantities in this country, and is being used to an alarming degree. The wormwood plant, from which its evil drops are distilled, is being cultivated in many parts, and in nearby Wisconsin much of it is grown. At first most of the output was shipped to Europe, but now its producers are finding a ready and profitable market for it in this country.

It is strange indeed that any man who knows the inevitable result of using this strange and uncanny liquor should ever begin its use. An authority says of it that a person under its influences experiences the most pleasant dreams and imaginations, but that it kills the gentle emotions, freezes kindness, rouses in man the spirit of the beast, and accomplishes more vile deeds than are dreamed of. A large drink of it will produce insensibility, convulsions, dilated pupils, sluggish pulse and other serious effects; the after effect includes trembling hands, arms and legs, intense thirst, illusions of sight and hearing; in short, delirium.

Says this authority: "Many drinkers nowadays, especially when suffering from the reaction from a debauch, will ask for a few drops of absinthe in their whisky. A drink like this makes a man feel as though he owned half the earth, with a good chance of getting the other half if he takes another drink, which he usually does. Two or three of these drinks put the drinker into a condition where he owns it all, knows it all, and is generally the biggest fool in seventeen states. Then when the effect wears off he is dangerously close to a good case of green elephants and speckled boa constrictors. There is nothing so certain to produce jim-jams in short order than 'just a drop or two of absinthe.'"

Whisky is bad enough, but if absinthe gets to be a national drink— Deliver the country!

SHORT WEIGHT FRAUDS.

It is interesting and gratifying to note that the state dairy and food commissioner is getting after people that use short weights, and that try to rob the public by holding out a percentage of the contents of each package of food products they sell.

The chief offenders so far located are the so-called "box car" merchants, who will have little sympathy, and who are entitled to none. They are objectionable anyway, because they take trade away from local merchants who have established places of business, who support local institutions and pay taxes, and who therefore deserve all the local patronage; but when they sell adulterated goods and deal in short weights, as they often do, it is eminently proper that the authorities should get after them.

The state food authorities have just seized a large quantity of grocery supplies ready for delivery at Southern Minnesota towns by box car merchants. Tins of coffee said to contain fifteen to twenty-five pounds each were weighed and found one to three pounds short, and forty packages of spices were found to be three to five ounces short.

This is stealing, of a petty, stealthy sort, and just as culpable as it would be for these merchants to steal pennies out of the pockets of their customers. It is a very proper subject for official action, and the dairy and food commissioner's assistants are to be commended for their activity.

ACQUIRING SENSE.

There are evidences that the railroad men of the country are coming to their senses, and are beginning to see that the public has rights that they are bound to respect. More important still, they are beginning to realize that the public does not wish to confiscate railroad earnings, but that while it will be contented with an absolutely square deal, it will never be contented with anything less.

While the evidences of radicalism in many state legislatures the past winter threw railroad men into a panic, there is no evidence at hand that anything was done that shouldn't have been done. If the spirit in which railroad legislation was approached had something of bitterness in it, and threatened to produce legislation seriously injuring railroad interests, the fault lies with the railroads, because they have conducted their business with such a high hand, have corrupted and befooled the lawmaking bodies of the country so long, and had acquired so arrogant an attitude toward the public, that there was widespread resentment that furnished ample occasion for the spirit of revengefulness that was evident in some quarters.

Railroad legislation should not be approached in that spirit, because nothing but harm can result, but if the railroads want to avoid such conditions, they should all learn the lesson that some of them have learned: that the railroads are public highways just as much as wagon roads, that the people have rights upon them which are superior to those of their actual owners, and that these rights include the right to demand equal treatment of all patrons, rates that shall be fair to stockholders and to the public, and service that shall be equal to the demands upon it.

Recently Melville E. Ingalls, head of the "Big Four" system, said in a public speech that the railroads must submit to the law, and that Wall street must learn that the railroads are not playthings, that their securities are not counters in the game of speculation, and that they are entitled to legitimate dividends and to legitimate dividends only.

Railroad affairs must be public. They must be divorced, to as complete a degree as possible, from Wall street. They must be conducted not alone for the benefit of stockholders and the manipulators of Wall street, but also for the benefit of the public, that it may have the best and safest possible service for the least money consistent with good business returns upon fair and unwatered capitalization. These things the people demand, and if the railroads grant them, they need have no fear of congress or the legislatures.

The greatest mistake the railroads have made has been in their corrupt manipulations of lawmaking bodies. This has produced a reaction that the railroads considered dangerous, though so far they have been more scared than hurt. If they don't stop it, and turn their attention to meeting the demands of the people, they are going to be hurt still worse.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Mileage books are not all popular with commercial travelers these days," said C. E. Tuttle of St. Paul at the Spalding. "Nearly all of them are paying for railway transportation as they go, and buying tickets from station to station just the same as people who are merely going on a short trip for a visit with friends. There is no object in buying a mileage book; for the price is no lower than if one pays cash fare, and investing in a book merely means tying up $100 or more for an indefinite period.

"The average traveling man has a feeling that the new order of things is not entirely just. He believes that a man who travels, say 3,000 miles a month, should get a more reasonable rate than the man who travels only forty or fifty miles a month, putting up the argument that in purchasing anything besides transportation an individual who buys a large lot gets better prices than the man who buys a small lot. A person who buys in dozen lots does not get as good a price as one who buy by the gross. The claim is made that the same condition should apply to railroad transportation.

"On the other hand, it is pointed out that if rebating should be carried on with passengers, it should also be allowed on freight shipments, and the man who ships hundreds of tons of material should get a better rate than the one who ships only by the 100 pounds. Under the old system it was considered perfectly proper that the big fellow should get a little better rate than the small fellow, but when the interstate commerce commission got to investigating the order of things was greatly changed, and everybody was put on an equal basis.

"There are certain inequalities about the new rate laws that only time can adjust. A good deal has been said in the papers concerning the cities along the Western border of Minnesota, where a man can save $3 or $4 if he walks across the boundary from Dakota into Minnesota before buying a ticket to Duluth or the Twin Cities. Buying in Dakota he pays at the rate of 3 cents a mile, and if he purchases his ticket in Minnesota he pays only 2 cents a mile. If he wishes to ride in the sleeper from an interior point in Dakota he is forced to pay full fare at the rate of 3 cents a mile, instead of buying a ticket to the Minnesota state line, and then traveling the rest of the way at the 2-cent rate. Sleeping car conductors refuse to let him ride with them unless he can show a ticket from starting point to destination.

"Duluth looks mighty good to me. I wish I had a few thousand dollars to invest here. Returns would be sure to be large."

"The cigar business is very good all through the Northwest this year," said T. L. Ferguson of Chicago, at the St. Louis. "Dealers are selling more goods this season than for several years past, which speaks well for the general prosperity of the country. The cigar business, you know, is something of a barometer by which to judge business conditions. Men will not buy cigars unless they can afford it, and the more of the expensive brands that are sold, the more prosperous the district in which they are disposed of.

"I will not say all men who cannot afford the luxury refrain from buying cigars, for we all can think of cases where this is not true, but take it as a whole, the man who invests in the weed generally has a little margin of cash to play on. If the cigar barometer is a safe medium by which to judge, Duluth must be in a very prosperous condition, for there is probably no city of its size in the United States that consumes as many high 5 and 5-cent cigars as Duluth. From this the cigar salesmen get the idea that Duluth is a good town, and they and their employers always speak of it as such when the name of the city is mentioned at outside points. Every little bit helps, you know.

"It is a curious fact that often the man in only moderate circumstances smokes a more expensive brand of cigars than the millionaire. The latter gets so in the habit of saving while building up his fortune, I suppose, that he does not get over the habit even when he has more money than he needs, and he always hates to spend more than 5 or 10 cents for a cigar. There are a good many men of wealth who never think of spending more than 5 cents for a cigar, although at the same time their sons may be smoking 25-cent ones. It is all in getting the habit. A person who is accustomed to smoke 5-cent cigars gets as much pleasure and satisfaction out of it, as the fellow does who is accustomed to smoking the 25-cent brands."

THE WEATHER.

If that northeast wind doesn't let up pretty soon, somebody will be getting out an injunction against it. It has blown with a persistence worthy of a better cause for several days, and this morning it was inclined to be boisterous. The weather man says he expects it to keep going tonight and tomorrow, and to bring showers, cool temperature and probably fog, all of which sounds like more northeaster. The lowest temperature last night was 34 degs. and yesterday's highest was 44 degs.

The sun rose this morning at 4:21, and sets tonight at 7:47, making 15 hours and 26 minutes of sunshine.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The Utah-New Mexico barometric depression has advanced its center to Northern Texas and Western Kansas. This disturbance caused light to heavy rains during Thursday or last night throughout the Rocky Mountain districts, the Missouri and Mississippi valleys, and middle Atlantic states. This storm in connection with the high pressure overlying Lake Superior is causing easterly winds in the lake region, upper valleys and the Northwest. Temperatures continue chilly in the extreme northern Rocky Mountain states. Conditions favor showers, cool temperature, rather strong northeast winds and possibly fog in this locality tonight and Saturday."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

An erroneous impression which prevails very generally, not only all over the country but right here at home, is that the euphonious and most appropriate appellation, "Zenith City of the Unsalted Sea," is an extract from the speech of Proctor Knott. Way back in '68, when the population of Duluth consisted of a few hundred dwellers in primitive shacks on Minnesota Point, a Fourth of July celebration was held, and Dr. Thomas Foster, editor of the Minnesotian, was the orator of the day. In the course of his remarks, Dr. Foster gave utterance to those words, which by common consent have been accepted as a synonym for Duluth.

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

Springfield, Mass., Republican (Ind.): Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota, whose remarkable political achievements in his own state have caused occasional mention of him as a possible Democratic candidate for the presidency next year, will soon make a speech at Vicksburg, Miss., at the unveiling on the battlefield there of a monument to the Minnesota soldiers who took part in the great siege. It is possible that he may extend his trip and make several speeches in other places in the South. It is therefore suggested that, if he makes a favorable impression on the southerners, a presidential boom for him may be started in earnest, particularly as the relations between him and the Bryan element are said to be entirely harmonious. Johnson's remarkable success as a vote-getter in Minnesota, where he is the only Democrat ever elected governor, stamps him as a man of popular qualities.

Crookston Times: If any one is having more fun out of the present situation than his excellency, Governor Johnson, there are few that know it.

Northampton, Mass., Herald (Dem.): The Duluth Herald says:

"He is fit for it, and if the nation knew him as Minnesota knows him Johnson of Minnesota would be sweeping the country as a political battlecry. As a campaigner he is without equal. Wherever he would go, as the Democratic candidate for president, he would set the hills and the prairies ablaze with enthusiasm. Strong in personal magnetism, attractive with his obvious sincerity, magnificent in his courage, integrity and sterling manhood, his charming personality would draw all men to him."

Well, send him this way.

how he pans out, compared with the "Peerless." According to description he cannot be a mate to Cleveland, Parker or Olney. They did not draw very many men unto them, very long. But the name sounds familiar. Years ago there used to be a play called "Too Much Johnson." We always supposed it wasn't possible to have too much of a good thing, but some people seem to have thought otherwise. However, the Minnesota Johnson may be another sort. Send him along.

Lake Crystal Union: Governor Johnson is being pretty thoroughly endorsed by the Democratic press of the United States, but it would be nothing remarkable about it, if our governor should receive the nomination. He's a darned sight better in every respect than any one yet mentioned.

Do the People Care?

Mankato Free Press: One newspaper in this state does not agree with The Duluth Herald in its claim that legislators will have something to answer for because they failed to extend the primary law to cover state officers and United States senators. It is the opinion of the paper referred to that the public generally have so little interest in the primary law that they don't much care what happens to it.

The law does not seem to have a genuine friend either in or out of the legislature. This seems hard, but a consensus of public opinion will bear out the statement.

This is why the legislature let it alone. If it had dared the legislature would have punched a hole in the law large enough to drive an auto through it, and thousands of their constituents would have said amen.

The principle of the law is all right, but its execution under present primary conditions is little short of a nightmare to the average voter, and as a political reform it is generally considered an expensive delusion.

The members of the legislature, therefore, need not have any fear of being called down by their constituents for not extending the primary. The law will have to be rebuilt on broader lines before extension is advisable.

"Chicka-ma-chica-ma-cra-nee-crow
Went to the well to wash her toe,
When she got back her chickens were gone!
What time, old witch?"

I want to play hide and seek again
And climb in the old hay loft.
Oh, the world is empty and all in vain
Its riches; and oft and oft
I turn aside from the path of pain
To list to a whisper soft:
"One zall, two zall, zickerzall, zan,
Bobtail vinegar, tickerall, tan,
Harum scarum, Irish narum,
Swingerium, Swangerium,
Washumbuck."

WATTERSON'S DARK HORSE.

Henry Watterson in Louisville Courier-Journal: We undertake to boom nobody—far less anybody at Mr. Bryan's expense. It is not we who would play the part of Warwick. It is Mr. Bryan we would have play it, in the event that he has the least distrust of himself.

The man we have in mind is close to Mr. Bryan. He is a typical American. He has made his mark deep upon the popular mind and heart of a region whence we must derive our outlying strength to win. He is clean, able, approved, loyal, against whom no element, or faction, in the Democratic party—nor any reasonable Republican element dissatisfied with its own party—could offer the smallest objection; as good a man for the Democrats as Hughes of New York, is conceded to be for the Republicans; and our belief is that he can defeat even Hughes, and insure us a Democratic victory next year.

In the matter of a moustache, there is controversy, but his hair is not yet touched with gray!

Atlanta Journal: The silence with which Mr. Bryan has greeted Col. Watterson's suggestion about another presidential candidate means that, as at present advised, he is being advised too much.

Knoxville Journal and Tribune: Everybody is wanting to know the name of Col. Watterson's dark horse; wonder if it is Gov. Johnson of Minnesota? The latest story is that Col. Johnson is being talked of to an extent that will cause Bryan to sit up and take notice.

New York Tribune: Col. Watterson may merely have wanted to start a guessing contest when he said he had a winning Democratic presidential candidate in mind, other than Mr. Bryan, who lived west of the Alleghanies and north of the Potomac and Ohio." But this is treating a solemn situation with undue levity.

Savannah News: Henry Watterson holds back the name of his "dark horse" candidate for the Democratic presidency, but has unbent so far as to say that the "dark horse" has a mustache. If the size and beauty of the mustache have aanything to do with the matter, Col. Watterson must have in mind "Joe" Blackburn, of Kentucky. Now, if he had said "whiskers' instead of "mustache," a fair guess might have been Col. James Hamilton Lewis. What with swing enough of the winds there would be if Col. Lewis and Gov. Hughes of New York, were the runners!

Knoxville Sentinel: Mr. Watterson wants Bryan to be a Warwick. But Mr. Bryan, being a Democrat, is opposed to making kings.

There is no great surprise in the news from St. Paul that the attorney general believes that the law passed last winter providing for a county examiner for St. Louis county is invalid. The decision of the supreme court covering laws wherein it was provided that the district courts should appoint public officers invalidated all such measures, including this one, but it was too late in the session, when the discovery was made, to pass another measure changed to meet the new condition.

The law provides for the appointment of a county examiner by the judges of the district court, to look into the accounts of cities, towns, villages and school districts. It is much needed in this county, and it is unfortunate that it is probably worthless. There is at present absolutely no check upon the vast sums that are spent by these local bodies. The United States Steel corporation alone pays nearly a million dollars a year in taxes to local subdivisions, which is spent altogether without official check. The Duluth school district is not supervised by any public authority except its own, yet it spends several hundred thousand dollars each year.

While it is probably useless to look to this law for help, the county board should take advantage of another law passed last winter which requires the state public examiner to check up such accounts at least once a year at the request of the county boards. Though there is no suspicion of peculations, it is a measure of safety to have these accounts looked over, and once a year is none too often to have it done.

THE USE OF ALCOHOL.

Not long ago several leading physicians of London came out in public prints with a rather astonishing defense of alcohol as a food and medicine. Their statements were circulated abroad, and undoubtedly did much harm. The appetite for alcohol grows rapidly enough without such encouragement as that which consists of heralding it as either a food or a medicine.

The consensus of medical opinion nowadays is that it is distinctly neither a food nor a medicine. It is a stimulant, with disastrous reaction, and like many other artificial stimulants, it creates a demand for more and more, until an amount that creates exhiliration in a beginner merely stimulates the craving for more with the advanced drinker.

To counteract the effect of this dangerous pronouncement, a dozen of the best physicians in London, including such famous men as Sir Frederick Treves, Sir James Barr and William Ewart, have lately joined in a statement that is being published in the medical press.

Referring to the former manifesto, the signers say:

> We gravely dissent from much of its teaching, nor can we accept it as an authoritative statement of recognized medical opinion on the matter.

Then the statement goes into some of the arguments advanced in favor of alcohol, and after exposing the fallacy of the reasoning used, sums the case up as follows:

> We strongly believe that alcohol is unnecessary as an article of consumption in the case of healthy men and women, and that its general use could be discontinued without detriment to the worlds welfare. Further, believing that alcohol is one of the most fruitful sources of poverty, disease and crime, we are pleased to add that it is now sparingly used as a remedy by a majority of medical men.

All the evidence goes to show that alcohol is in no sense a food, and that its use as such is absurd and dangerous. As to its medical properties, it is true that as shown by the London situation, there is a division of opinion, but the vast majority of physicians, including those of highest repute, deprecate its use or condemn it altogether.

In hospitals, where its use was formerly common, it is going rapidly out of consideration, and in many of the best hospitals it is seldom used at all. There is not a single use to which it has ever been put, as a medicine or as a beverage, that cannot be better served by other materials.

THE GREEN TERROR.

It's odd how far men will go to find agencies that destroy themselves, when it is just as easy to live sanely and soberly, and enjoy peace and health and happiness by doing so.

Strong drinks have been used by men for ages, and millions have thrown their lives away, drowning their better instincts and their manhood in liquor.

Strange drugs that destroy slowly but surely all have their devotees. Nothing could be more miserable than the life and end of the victim of drugs, yet thousands begin using them every year, apparently undismayed by the spectacle of other thousands coming to shameful and horrible deaths from their use.

Weary of the too slow effect of ordinary liquors, it is said that thousands of men in this country are abandoning themselves to the insidious and baneful influences of absinthe, the green terror of France, which is sapping the vitality and manhood of that nation and turning it into a nation of degenerates.

A botanist of the federal agricultural department is quoted as saying that absinthe is being produced in considerable quantities in this country, and is being used to an alarming degree. The wormwood plant, from which its evil drops are distilled, is being cultivated in many parts, and in nearby Wisconsin much of it is grown. At first most of the output was shipped to Europe, but now its producers are finding a ready and profitable market for it in this country.

It is strange indeed that any man who knows the inevitable result of using this strange and uncanny liquor should ever begin its use. An authority says of it that a person under its influences experiences the most pleasant dreams and imaginations, but that it kills the gentle emotions, freezes kindness, rouses in man the spirit of the beast, and accomplishes more vile deeds than are dreamed of. A large drink of it will produce insensibility, convulsions, dilated pupils, sluggish pulse and other serious effects; the after effect includes trembling hands, arms and legs, intense thirst, illusions of sight and hearing; in short, delirium.

Says this authority: "Many drinkers nowadays, especially when suffering from the reaction from a debauch, will ask for a few drops of absinthe in their whisky. A drink like this makes a man feel as though he owned half the earth, with a good chance of getting the other half if he takes another drink, which he usually does. Two or three of these drinks put the drinker into a condition where he owns it all, knows it all, and is generally the biggest fool in seventeen states. Then when the effect wears off he is dangerously close to a good case of green elephants and speckled boa constrictors. There is nothing so certain to produce jim-jams in short order than 'just a drop or two of absinthe.'"

Whisky is bad enough, but if absinthe gets to be a national drink— Deliver the country!

SHORT WEIGHT FRAUDS.

It is interesting and gratifying to note that the state dairy and food commissioner is getting after people that use short weights, and that try to rob the public by holding out a percentage of the contents of each package of food products they sell.

The chief offenders so far located are the so-called "box car" merchants, who will have little sympathy, and who are entitled to none. They are objectionable anyway, because they take trade away from local merchants who have established places of business, who support local institutions and pay taxes, and who therefore deserve all the local patronage; but when they sell adulterated goods and deal in short weights, as they often do, it is eminently proper that the authorities should get after them.

The state food authorities have just seized a large quantity of grocery supplies ready for delivery at Southern Minnesota towns by box car merchants. Tins of coffee said to contain fifteen to twenty-five pounds each were weighed and found one to three pounds short, and forty packages of spices were found to be three to five ounces short.

This is stealing, of a petty, stealthy sort, and just as culpable as it would be for these merchants to steal pennies out of the pockets of their customers. It is a very proper subject for official action, and the dairy and food commissioner's assistants are to be commended for their activity.

ACQUIRING SENSE.

There are evidences that the railroad men of the country are coming to their senses, and are beginning to see that the public has rights that they are bound to respect. More important still, they are beginning to realize that the public does not wish to confiscate railroad earnings, but that while it will be contented with an absolutely square deal, it will never be contented with anything less.

While the evidences of radicalism in many state legislatures the past winter threw railroad men into a panic, there is no evidence at hand that anything was done that shouldn't have been done. If the spirit in which railroad legislation was approached had something of bitterness in it, and threatened to produce legislation seriously injuring railroad interests, the fault lies with the railroads, because they have conducted their business with such a high hand, have corrupted and befooled the lawmaking bodies of the country so long, and had acquired so arrogant an attitude toward the public, that there was widespread resentment that furnished ample occasion for the spirit of revengefulness that was evident in some quarters.

Railroad legislation should not be approached in that spirit, because nothing but harm can result, but if the railroads want to avoid such conditions, they should all learn the lesson that some of them have learned: that the railroads are public highways just as much as wagon roads, that the people have rights upon them which are superior to those of their actual owners, and that these rights include the right to demand equal treatment of all patrons, rates that shall be fair to stockholders and to the public, and service that shall be equal to the demands upon it.

Recently Melville E. Ingalls, head of the "Big Four" system, said in a public speech that the railroads must submit to the law, and that Wall street must learn that the railroads are not playthings, that their securities are not counters in the game of speculation, and that they are entitled to legitimate dividends and to legitimate dividends only.

Railroad affairs must be public. They must be divorced, to as complete a degree as possible, from Wall street. They must be conducted not alone for the benefit of stockholders and the manipulators of Wall street, but also for the benefit of the public, that it may have the best and safest possible service for the least money consistent with good business returns upon fair and unwatered capitalization. These things the people demand, and if the railroads grant them, they need have no fear of congress or the legislatures.

The greatest mistake the railroads have made has been in their corrupt manipulations of lawmaking bodies. This has produced a reaction that the railroads considered dangerous, though so far they have been more scared than hurt. If they don't stop it, and turn their attention to meeting the demands of the people, they are going to be hurt still worse.

Henry Watterson is inclined to take it back about the moustache, and he adds that the hair of his dark horse is not yet touched with gray. That limits the field still further, and practically leaves it bounded on the East by Wisconsin, on the North by Canada, on the West by the Dakotas and on the South by Iowa.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Mileage books are not all popular with commercial travelers these days," said C. E. Tuttle of St. Paul at the Spalding. "Nearly all of them are paying for railway transportation as they go, and buying tickets from station to station just the same as people who are merely going on a short trip for a visit with friends. There is no object in buying a mileage book for the price is no lower than if one pays cash fare, and investing in a book merely means tying up $100 or more for an indefinite period.

"The average traveling man has a feeling that the new order of things is not entirely just. He believes that a man who travels, say 3,000 miles a month, should get a more reasonable rate than the man who travels only forty or fifty miles a month, putting up the argument that in purchasing anything besides transportation an individual who buys a large lot gets better prices than the man who buys a small lot. A person who buys in dozen lots does not get as good a price as one who buy by the gross. The claim is made that the same condition should apply to railroad transportation.

"On the other hand, it is pointed out that if rebating should be carried on with passengers, it should also be allowed on freight shipments, and the man who ships hundreds of tons of material should get a better rate than the one who ships only by the 100 pounds. Under the old system it was considered perfectly proper that the big fellow should get a little better rate than the small fellow, but when the interstate commerce commission got to investigating the order of things was greatly changed, and everybody was put on an equal basis.

"There are certain inequalities about the new rate laws that only time can adjust. A good deal has been said in the papers concerning the cities along the Western border of Minnesota, where a man can save $3 or $4 if he walks across the boundary from Dakota into Minnesota before buying a ticket to Duluth or the Twin Cities. Buying in Dakota he pays at the rate of 3 cents a mile, and if he purchases his ticket in Minnesota he pays only 2 cents a mile. If he wishes to ride in the sleeper from an interior point in Dakota he is forced to pay full fare at the rate of 3 cents a mile, instead of buying a ticket to the Minnesota state line, and then traveling the rest of the way at the 2-cent rate. Sleeping car conductors refuse to let him ride with them unless he can show a ticket from starting point to destination.

"Duluth looks mighty good to me. I wish I had a few thousand dollars to invest here. Returns would be sure to be large."

"The cigar business is very good all through the Northwest this year," said T. L. Ferguson of Chicago, at the the St. Louis. "Dealers are selling more goods this season than for several years past, which speaks well for the general prosperity of the country. The cigar business, you know, is something of a barometer by which to judge business conditions. Men will not buy cigars unless they can afford it, and the more of the expensive brands that are sold, the more prosperous the district in which they are disposed of.

"I will not say all men who cannot afford the luxury refrain from buying cigars, for we all can think of cases where this is not true, but take it as a whole, the man who invests in the weed generally has a little margin of cash to play on. If the cigar barometer is a safe medium by which to judge, Duluth must be in a very prosperous condition, for there is probably no city of its size in the United States that consumes as many 10, 15 and 25-cent cigars as Duluth. From this the cigar salesmen get the idea that Duluth is a good town, and they and their employers always speak of it as such when the name of the city is mentioned at outside points. Every little bit helps, you know.

"It is a curious fact that often the man in only moderate circumstances smokes a more expensive brand of cigars than the millionaire. The latter gets so in the habit of saving while building up his fortune, I suppose, that he does not get over the habit even when he has more money than he needs, and he always hates to spend more than 5 or 10 cents for a cigar. There are a good many men of wealth who never think of spending more than 5 cents for a cigar, although at the same time their sons may be smoking 25-cent ones. It is all in getting the habit. A person who is accustomed to smoke 5-cent cigars gets as much pleasure and satisfaction out of it, as the fellow does who is accustomed to smoking the 25-cent brands."

THE WEATHER.

If that northeast wind doesn't let up pretty soon, somebody will be getting out an injunction against it. It has blown with a persistence worthy of a better cause for several days, and this morning it was inclined to be boisterous. The weather man says he expects it to keep going tonight and tomorrow, and to bring showers, cool temperature and probably fog, all of which sounds like more northeaster. The lowest temperature last night was 34 degs. and yesterday's highest was 44 degs.

The sun rose this morning at 4:23, and sets tonight at 7:41, making 15 hours and 26 minutes of sunshine.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The Utah-New Mexico barometric depression has advanced its center to Northern Texas and Western Kansas. This disturbance caused light to heavy rains during Thursday or last night throughout the Rocky Mountain districts, the Missouri and Mississippi valleys, and middle Atlantic states. This storm in connection with the high pressure overlying Lake Superior is causing easterly winds in the lake region, upper valleys and the Northwest. Temperatures continue chilly in the extreme northern Rocky Mountain states. Conditions favor showers, cool temperature, rather strong northeast winds and possibly fog in this locality tonight and Saturday."

Minnesota never fails to make up for lost time, and the crops will come along when due.

Occasionally a ripple is heard in the political pond, indicating that Bob Dunn is still willing.

If the Republicans fail to get together next year, they don't deserve to have the governor.

Some men are so blamed afraid of hurting some one's feelings that they sacrifice every atom of independence and manhood.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

An erroneous impression which prevails very generally, not only all over the country but right here at home, is that the euphonious and most appropriate appellation, "Zenith City of the Unsalted Sea," is an extract from the speech of Proctor Knott. Way back in '68, when the population of Duluth consisted of a few hundred dwellers in primitive shacks on Minnesota Point, a Fourth of July celebration was held, and Dr. Thomas Foster, editor of the Minnesotian, was the orator of the day. In the course of his remarks, Dr. Foster gave utterance to those words, which by common consent have been accepted as a synonym for Duluth.

Mrs. H. Hale started the middle of the week for Albany, N. Y., where she will make an extended stay with her son.

F. A. Day to A. L. Warner, fractional block 9, Highland Park, $3,700.

Thomas Kilpatrick to Charles H. Chadbourne, east half lot 35, and west half lot 37, East Superior street, First division, $15,000.

T. A. Olmstead to D. A. Strickler, lots 7 and 8, block 16, Banning & Ray's, $3,500.

J. G. Schmidt to Horace Ramsdell, lots 2 and 10, block 63, Endion, $3,000.

John Meginn, formerly in the lumber business at Northern Pacific Junction, and now a resident of St. Paul, is in Duluth.

George B. Baker has gone to St. Paul on a visit.

Articles of incorporation of the Sobreski Building & Loan association are published today. The directors are: M. Koppa, W. Kempinski, A. Marshall, W. Walkswiak, J. Buckholz, Y. Golez, J. Franhowski, John Marszatkiewiez and M. Szczepanski, all of Duluth.

About noon yesterday, H. A. Blume's spirited driving horse attached to a light buggy occupied by the owner, became frightened on Superior street and ran a short distance at a terrific rate. Mr. Blume was hurled to the ground and dragged about, but escaped injury, while the vehicle was badly demoralized. The miraculous escape of Mr. Blume is the subject of much discussion by those who witnessed the accident.

The Longhammer German Dramatic company was greeted by a good house last night. "Der Herrgottschnitzer" was the play, and the company was assisted in a most creditable manner by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Thiel and Henry Dworschak of Duluth.

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

Springfield, Mass., Republican (Ind.): Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota, whose remarkable political achievements in his own state have caused occasional mention of him as a possible Democratic candidate for the presidency next year, will soon make a speech at Vicksburg, Miss., at the unveiling on the battlefield there of a monument to the Minnesota soldiers who took part in the great siege. It is possible that he may extend his trip and make several speeches in other places in the South. It is therefore suggested that, if he makes a favorable impression on the southerners, a presidential boom for him may be started in earnest, particularly as the relations between him and the Bryan element are said to be entirely harmonious. Johnson's remarkable success as a vote-getter in Minnesota, where he is the only Democrat ever elected governor, stamps him as a man of popular qualities.

Crookston Times: If any one is having more fun out of the present situation than his excellency, Governor Johnson, there are few that know it.

Northampton, Mass., Herald (Dem.): The Duluth Herald says:

"He is fit for it, and if the nation knew him as Minnesota knows him Johnson of Minnesota would be swept over the country as a political battlecry. As a campaigner he is without equal. Wherever he would go, as the Democratic candidate for president, he would set the hills and the prairies ablaze with enthusiasm. Strong in personal magnetism, attractive with his obvious sincerity, magnificent in his courage, integrity and sterling manhood, his charming personality would draw all men to him."

Well, send him this way. Let's see how he pans out, compared with the "Peerless." According to description he cannot be a mate to Cleveland, Parker or Olney. They did not draw very many men unto them, very long. But the name sounds familiar. Years ago there used to be a play called "Too Much Johnson." We always supposed it wasn't possible to have too much of a good thing, but some people seem to have thought otherwise. However, the Minnesota Johnson may be another sort. Send him along.

Lake Crystal Union: Governor Johnson is being pretty thoroughly endorsed by the Democratic press of the United States. There would be nothing remarkable about it, if our governor should receive the nomination. He's a darned sight better in every respect than any one yet mentioned.

Do the People Care?

Mankato Free Press: One newspaper in this state does not agree with The Duluth Herald in its claim that legislators will have something to answer for because they failed to extend the primary law to cover state officers and United States senators. It is the opinion of the paper referred to that the public generally have so little interest in the primary law that they don't much care what happens to it.

The law does not seem to have a genuine friend either in or out of the legislature. This seems hard, but a consensus of public opinion will bear out the statement.

This is why the legislature let it alone. If it had dared the legislature would have punched a hole in the law large enough to drive an auto through it, and thousands of their constituents would have said amen.

The principle of the law is all right, but its execution under present primary conditions is little short of a nightmare to the average voter, and as a political reform it is generally considered an expensive delusion.

The members of the legislature, therefore, need not have any fear of being called down by their constituents for not extending the primary. The law will have to be rebuilt on broader lines before extension is advisable.

Went to the well to wash her toe,
When she got back her chickens were gone!
What time, old witch?"

I want to play hide and seek again
And climb in the old hay loft.
Oh, the world is empty and all in vain
Its riches; and oft and oft

WATTERSON'S DARK HORSE.

Henry Watterson in Louisville Courier-Journal: We undertake to boom nobody—far less anybody at Mr. Bryan's expense. It is not we who would play the part of Warwick. It is Mr. Bryan we would have play it, in the even that he has the least distrust of himself.

The man we have in mind is close to Mr. Bryan. He is a typical American. He has made his mark deep upon the popular mind and heart of a region whence we must derive our outlying strength to win. He is clean, able, approved, loyal, against whom no element, or faction, in the Democratic party—nor any reasonable Republican element dissatisfied with its own party—could offer the smallest objection; as good a man for the Democrats as Hughes of New York, is conceded to be for the Republicans; and our belief is that he can defeat even Hughes, and insure us a Democratic victory next year.

In the matter of a moustache, there is controversy, but his hair is not yet touched with gray!

Atlanta Journal: The silence with which Mr. Bryan has greeted Col. Watterson's suggestion about another presidential candidate means that, as at present advised, he is being advised too much.

Knoxville Journal and Tribune: Everybody is wanting to know the name of Col. Watterson's dark horse; wonder if it is Gov. Johnson of Minnesota? The latest story is that Col. Johnson is being talked of to an extent that will cause Bryan to sit up and take notice.

New York Tribune: Col. Watterson may merely have wanted to start a guessing contest when he said he had a winning Democratic presidential candidate in mind, other than Mr. Bryan, who lived west of the Alleghanies and north of the Potomac and Ohio." But this is treating a solemn situation with undue levity.

Savannah News: Henry Watterson holds back the name of his "dark horse" candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, but has unbent so far as to say that the "dark horse" has a mustache. If the size and beauty of the mustache have anything to do with the matter, Col. Watterson must have in mind "Joe" Blackburn, of Kentucky. Now, if he had said "whiskers" instead of "mustache," a fair guess might have been Col. James Hamilton Lewis. What a blowing-through of the winds there would be if Col. Lewis and Gov. Hughes of New York, were the runners!

Knoxville Sentinel: Mr. Watterson wants Bryan to be a Warwick. But Mr. Bryan, being a Democrat, is opposed to making kings.

T. W. Hugo Makes Suggestion for Fostering of Patriotism.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Quite recently I visited a "foreign country," and attended the morning services at an Episcopal cathedral. Four things struck me very forcibly: First, of the 1,500 persons in the church fully 1,000 were men; second, the zest and earnestness, in fact enthusiasm, with which the congregation entered into the spirit of the time; third, the magnificently short, gracefully eloquent, eminently practical sermon of the dean; and fourth, and the one I want to emphasize just now, the evidences of loyalty and patriotism displayed.

I think it was just after the close of the sermon, and we were all standing. Suddenly came to our ears a single note, the keynote. I happened to be looking at a group of soldiers, and noticed them straighten up and come to attention. Everybody straightened up and threw out their chests. My chaperone climbed up on to the seat but, as she was not very tall, she was excusable. Then a peal of grand harmony rolled from the great organ and everybody sang at the top of their voices, God save the ruler of the country. I do not know when I was so impressed by anything before, and all I could do was to chirp in with "My Country, 'tis of thee." The people sang as a robin red breast seems to sing in the early morning, as if he wants to, and I made up my mind then and there that as long as they kept on that keynote there was no use in thinking annexation.

In our efforts to civilize ourselves, benevolently assimilate others, and build up a patriotic and loyal citizenship, everything which promises to bring about love of country and its institutions must be taken into account, and to that end, Mr. Herald, I move that it is the sense of this meeting that beginning on next Sunday every organ should strike the keynote, and every choir, and all the congregations, sing "My Country, 'tis of thee," and this be done every Sunday, and as often on Sunday as can be. It will be an inspiration to the young and a gratification to the old, as well as a practical effort on the part of the churches to inculcate those virtues which foster loyalty, patriotism and good citzenship.

LITTLE BABY CURED OF ECZEMA

A SPEEDY AND PERMANENT CURE

"We express to you herewith our best thanks for the cure of our baby from eczema. The eczema appeared when the child was three months old. We applied to several doctors and hospitals, each of which gave us something different every time, but nothing brought relief. A physician recommended a salve which we threw into the fire after two days' use as the eczema became worse so that the baby scratched his face. At last, one of our friends recommended to us Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. A few days afterwards improvement could be noted. Since then we have used nothing but Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and now the baby is six months old and is quite cured. All that we used was one cake of Cuticura Soap and two boxes Cuticura Ointment, costing in all $1.25. Even the poorest man can pay that instead of throwing it into the doctor's lap. I myself only make twelve dollars a week as a teamster, but I recommend the Cuticura Remedies strongly to all mothers whose children suffer from such diseases. They are cheap, harmless and good. C. F. Kara and Wife, 343 East 65th Street, New York, March 30, 1906."

FOR SORE HANDS

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

The Dignity and Sacredness of Motherhood.

Think of the greatest man who has ever lived upon this earth, and then think of him as he lay, an infant, in his mother's arms. Does it seem possible that he should have grown, become great in the world's estimate and perhaps had monuments erected to perpetuate his memory, and yet that the world should have forgotten even the name of the woman who bore him? The son's work is the mother's primarily and, therefore, the recognition of the dignity and tender sacredness of motherhood should no longer be delayed. It is high time that this country's greatest treasures—THE WOMEN WHO HAVE CONTRIBUTED LARGELY TO MAKE IT WHAT IT IS—should be recognized.

Why should not these good mothers be given the right to vote and have a voice in our government—a right that is accorded to some of the most ignorant, most insignificant and vilest of men?

It has been well said that "for every monument to a great man there should be a monument to his mother and the mother's monument should be built first."

But it is not so much the purpose of this brief article to advocate the just rights and privileges due to the women of this country, although it has afforded the writer great pleasure to pen the foregoing brief tribute to their worth and just deserts, as it is to call attention to the fact that when broken down in health and strength by over-work, the too frequent bearing of children, the never ending toil, worry and care of the household, or by whatever may overtax the strength and delicacy of her sensitive system, there is one, tried and proven, safe remedy upon which she may rely to regain health, strength and the power to fully enjoy life.

That remedy is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—a remedy made wholly from the roots of native forest plants which have been proven to be most efficacious, reliable and safe in the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, periodical pains, irregularities, wasting and weakening catarrhal, pelvic drains and kindred ailments. It is a remedy, the makers of which print its formula on every bottle-wrapper and attest its completeness and correctness under oath; a remedy devised and adapted to woman's delicate constitution by an educated physician—an experienced specialist in woman's diseases; a remedy, every ingredient of which has received the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar diseases; a remedy which has more bona-fide cures to its credit than any other sold by druggists for woman's special requirements and the only one which contains no alcohol in its make up.

Delicate, weak, nervous women should especially shun the use of alcoholic medicines which, from their stimulating and exhilerating effects may seem, for a time, to do good, but which, from the inevitable effects of the alcohol in shrinking up the red corpuscles of the blood, are sure to do great and lasting harm in the long run. Besides they beget a craving for stimulants which is most deplorable. "Favorite Prescription" is the one remedy for woman's ills which contains no alcohol.

Only invigorating and nerve strengthening effects can follow the use of this famous medicine for women. It can not possibly do harm in any state or condition of the system.

If a woman has bearing down, or dragging pains, low down in the abdomen, or pelvis, backache, frequent headaches, dizzy or fainting spells, is nervous and easily startled, has gnawing feeling in stomach, sees imaginary floating specks, or spots before her eyes, has melancholia, or "blues," or a weakening disagreeable, catarrhal drain from pelvic organs, she can make no mistake by resorting to the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It will invigorate and tone up the whole system and especially the pelvic organs.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Perscription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. Being made of native American medicinal roots, and without alcohol, it is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic, "Favorite Prescription" imparts lasting strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womanly organs. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

No woman suffering from any of the above symptoms can afford to accept any secret nostrum or medicine of unknown composition, as a substitute for a medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and has a record of over forty years of cures and sells more largely to-day than ever before. Its makers withhold no secrets from their patients, believing open publicity to be the very best guaranty of merit.

Dr. Pierce invites all suffering women to consult him by letter free of charge. All letters of consultation are held as strictly private and sacredly confidential and all answers are returned in plain, sealed envelopes. Address: Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

FIRST TEST IS FINAL

Dr. Ward Holds That Condemned Cows Must be Killed.

Owners Cannot Hold Their Cattle for Second Test.

Under the state law persons owning cows that have been condemned under the tuberculin test will be compelled to have the animals killed without a second test.

Supt. Matt Haug of the county poor farm, who recently had two cows condemned, and who quarantined them with the intention of making a retest later on, has consented to bring the cows to Duluth to be killed in the regular manner provided by law.

Mr. Haug raised the question of the finality of the test made by the inspector from the local health department, and a ruling from Dr. H. S. Ward, secretary and executive officer of the live stock sanitary board of Minnesota, based on the state law, shows that the test is final, and there is no recourse for the owners of condemned cattle but to obey it.

Dr. Ward says:

"Referring to your question, 'Can cattle which have reacted to tuberculin test be held for retest?' I desire to say that our regulations require that all cattle which react must be killed at once, except in cases of valuable pedigreed cattle, in which cases the owners are permitted to hold them under quarantine under certain conditions. This proviso is made so that breeders of blooded stock might derive some benefit from diseased animals by continuing to breed them. It is required, however, that the progeny of such quarantined cattle be immediately removed from their dams to different surroundings and brought up on nurse cows previously tested.

"As the cattle in question are not pedigreed stock, and no object can be gained by continuing them under quarantine, you are hereby instructed to see that they are properly appraised and killed.

"You are required to carry out any order issued by this board, and I respectfully refer you to section 2165, Revised Laws. If any obstruction is shown by the owners, your duty will be to prosecute them under section 4990 of the Revised Laws. If owners are not satisfied with this order to kill, and believe animals to be free from tuberculosis, the law gives them the privilege of having their cattle killed under protest. See chapter 115, Laws of 1905."

IN HONOR OF LINNAEUS

Great Enthusiasm Displayed at Celebration at Armory.

Great enthusiasm was displayed last evening by several hundred Swedish-Americans of this city at the 200th memorial anniversary of the birth of Linnaeus, the great Swedish naturalist, which was given at the Armory under the auspices of the Svea Glee club. Every time the name of the great scientist was mentioned a burst of applause showed the respect and esteem in which his memory is held.

The program was opened with a song by the Svea Glee club, followed immediately by the address of welcome by Dr. O. A. Oredson, who told of the object of the celebration and in a few words paid a high tribute to the great "flower king." He declared that Linnaeus was the greatest man Sweden had ever produced and that few countries had produced his equal. Dr. Oredson also spoke of the purpose and object of the Svea Glee club and he introduced Congressman J. Adam Bede.

Bede in Serious Vein.

"To live the life of Linnaeus is to live the life of the gods," said Mr. Bede. "He led what today we call the 'simple life,' and was favored in having great opportunities to study nature in all its forms. But the civilization of today gives everyone a chance to attain the greatest happiness, as great as that of Linnaeus. The middle classes of the people are getting a better chance and their lives are being continually broadened out.

"All of the problems which are now before the people of this country will be solved in time and we do not have to worry about them. The civilization of today has lifted so many people up and given them such a better chance to live in happiness, that no one should wish for the old manner of living. The trouble now is that we do not rightly employ our leisure hours, made possible by the advance in civilization. They are too often idle hours. If we would employ our leisure as Linnaeus did, our happiness would be supreme."

Mr. Bede advised all Swedish-Americans to keep on using the old language of Sweden and not to let it die out when they come to this country. He paid a tribute to the Swedish citizens of the United States for their progressiveness and thriftiness.

Dr. Carlson Speaks.

In his memorial speech Dr. J. S. Carlof the University of Minnesota placed Linnaeus at the head of the world's foremost scientists and said that he was not only one of the greatest scientists in the world, but one of the best and most honored of men.

"We call him a botanist, but this is not all. He took in all nature and the science of botany was created by him. If men live by their deeds, Linnaeus will always live for his deeds are too great to die. Linnaeus was the author of a great mass of literature and his works are now considered authority on scientific subjects.

Dr. Carlson reviewed the history of the Swedish nation and the life of Linnaeus, telling of his great hardships and struggles in getting his education.

An address in Swedish was given by Carl Rignell of this city, who spoke in praise of the great flower king.

The several selections given by the Svea Glee club were warmly applauded by the audience and the program ended with the singing of "America" by the audience and members of the club.

NEGRO KILLS WHITE MAN.

Columbia, S. C., May 24.—After being arrested at the baseball park at Carlisle yesterday by Clarence C. Gist, brother of William P. Gist of the Bank of Carlisle, for disorderly conduct, Arthur Davis, a Pullman porter, waylaid and shot and instantly killed the former near the Seaboard Air Line depot about 9:30 o'clock last night. Excitement ran high for a time, and race trouble was threatened, but the counsel of cooler heads prevailed, and at 1 o'clock the situation was reported as quieting down. The negro is still at large.

OFFICE A POULTRY FARM.

Washington, May 24.—Hatching chickens in file cases in one of the rooms of the general land office by the use of the heat from a flue leading from the boilers that produce the electric power for the building is a new industry in which two or three of the women clerks have engaged with great interest recently. The experiment has proved successful and the hundreds of clerks on duty in the building are keeping tab on the "chicks."

So crowded is the land office in its present quarters that several heretofore discarded rooms through which runs an enormous chimney from the electric plant in the basement have been pressed into service. Even in the coldest yeather these room have a temperature that is practically torrid.

One of the women converted a file box in an incubator by substituting for it a cracker box stuffed with cotton and containing three eggs. She ascertained that the average temperature against the wall was 93 degrees, just right, according to books on raising poultry for profit. But one night the flue got too hot and the eggs were cooked. Investigation by means of self-registering theremometer showed the flue had attained a heat of 103 degs.

New eggs were substituted and the young women, to avoid the danger of cooking the eggs, opened the drawer of the file case each evening as they left the department. The last installment of eggs was consigned to the improvised incubator April 6, and twenty-one days later one of them showed signs of life.

It was on a Saturday night when the young women left the office that there was a distinct pecking on the inside of the sheel. Monday morning every one of the clerks in that room was on hand earlier than usual. A rush was made for the drawer and it was found to contain one little, fuzzy chick peeping away feebly.

NOT TO BE MAILED.

Kansas City Star: Dr. Wiley, the government food expert, has been connected with the agricultural department for a good many years. When Uncle Jerry Rusk of Wisconsin, was secretary of agriculture, Dr. Wiley brought him a letter to sign. It had bee nwritten to an imperthent but infuential correspondent and was couched in cunningly sarcastic vein. Mr. Rusk read it with delight, roared out his laughing approval and then tore it up.

In answer to Dr. Wiley's look of amazement he said: "That was a bully letter. Now go and write one that we can send to the blame fool." Dr. Wiley learned there and then that witty and sarcastic letters are not in favor in the government service.

ELECTRIC CHAIR FOR JOHN BELL

Trolley Car Conductor Sentenced to Death for Killing Physician.

New York, May 24.—"I am no Harry K. Thaw, but plain John Bell. I have no wealth, but if I had I could produce witnesses whose testimony would acquit me."

With these words a Brooklyn trolley car conductor closed an impassioned address to the jury that three hours later was to find him guilty of murder in the first degree.

Bell, a young man of mediocre attainments, was happily married a few years ago. A year after the wedding his wife died in childbirth. Dr. Charles Wilmot Townsend, a prominent physician of Staten Island, had attended her. On the humble stone that marked her grave Bell caused to be chiseled: "Revenge renews our happy love in Heaven." He was unconsolable and for months brooded over his affliction. To his friends he expressed the conviction that his wife had not received proper medical care.

On the night of Jan. 29 last Dr. Townsend was shot to death in his bed. He had been awakened by the intruder, and exclaimed:

"If you are here to rob, take what you can find, but do not harm my family or me."

The supposed burglar replied: "I want none of your things; I want you," and fired. Mrs. Townsend, who occupied the bed with her husband, was the sole witness of the murder.

Letters subsequently written by Bell caused his arrest, and in court his own family appeared against him. A half brother testified that Bell confessed to having killed the physician for revenge.

Bell was the only witness for the defense, and the trial, held at Richmond, was not prolonged. Yesterday afternoon the case was given to the jury, and last night a verdict of murder in the first degree was returned. Judge Abbott denied a motion for a new trial, and forthwith sentenced the prisoner to be electrocuted on the first Monday in July next. Bell received the verdict and sentence stolidly, and remained cool when his stepmother and his sister fainted.

Bell denied the confession attributed to him by his half brother; said he secured a weapon because he had contemplated suicide, and explained the tomb inscription that had been used against him by declaring that vandals had stolen the flowers which he had daily placed upon his wife's grave, and that when the headstone was erected, he resolved to punish the thieves. He claimed to have spent the night of the murder in the Bowery.

UNABLE TO TELL HER NAME.

Woman Who Has Long Been Cared for by Charitable People.

Olympia, Wash., May 24.—For five years charitable ladies of this city have been caring for an elderly woman who has forgotten her name or whence she came. Well dressed and with every evidence of belonging to a family of refinement and wealth, the woman came here one day in 1902 and secured a room at the Olympia hotel. It was discovered that she was unable to give her name or tell where her home was and members of the local relief society took charge of her, as she was penniless.

Other than vain attempts to learn from the woman herself no attempt has been made until today to find out who the mysterious stranger is, and then the only action taken was to give the facts to the newspapers.

Although the woman has a small trunk from which she has taken photographs at times to show her benefactors, none of the women has ever attempted to investigate the contents of the trunk to see if it will give any clew to the woman's identity. A local physician who recently examined the woman says she is insane, but not dangerous.

For a number of years the ladies' relief society has arraigned for the care of the stranger by Mrs. Johnson of the Capitol hotel. Recently the hotel was sold and Mrs. Johnson is leaving, so new arrangements were necessary.

The ladies this week applied to the county commissioners for aid for the woman, but the commissioners took the position that is the woman is insane she should be sent to the hospital for the insane.

The stranger wore excellent and expensive clothing when she came here and shows education and refinement in her meager conversation. Any attempt to get her to discuss her past brings a sad reply that she cannot remember, which is one reason why no effort has been made to take possession of her trunk and see what it may contain as a clew.

It is thought the woman, in a moment of sudden insanity, packed up a few of her most cherished keepsakes and took the train for this city. While with women she has known here the stranger is apparently lucid in her conversation, with newcomers and persons she sees for the first time her mental trouble is plainly evidenced. She is apparently about 70 years of age.

OUTLOOK IS VERY POOR

No Low Prices on Strawberries Expected This Season.

More Liberal Receipts of Vegetables, Fruits and Poultry.

Housewives who are economically disposed will probably not can as many strawberries as usual this year for use next winter. The outlook is not at all favorable for very cheap berries, and the indications are that a stiff price will be maintained throughout the season, contrary to the general rule.

Receipts of the fruit are somewhat more liberal this week, and the quality is better, with the supply barely sufficient to meet the heavy demand, however. There is a light crop in Arkansas, owing to the fact that about 60 per cent of the berries were frozen by late frosts. It has been necessary to pick and ship a good many of the water-soaked berries on account of so much rain this spring, but during the last few days the result of dryer weather and more sunshine has been seen in a better quality of berries.

Conditions on the produce market are gradually improving all around. The orange movement continues very satisfactory, and on account of the high prices being obtained for strawberries, the demand for oragnes is quite heavy, this fruit taking the place of strawberries to a certain extent, according to the dealers.

Pine apples are now arriving quite freely, and are reasonable in price. The Florida season is about commencing, and for the next six weeks or two months receipts will be liberal. The quality is very fine. The banana situation remains about unchanged from last week. The fruit is none too plentiful, and good prices are being asked by the importers. Apples are getting scarce, and the price is going up right along.

Green vegetables are arriving in larger quantities than before, and they are better in quality than they have been up to the present time. Receipts of new potatoes are quite extensive, most of them coming from Texas, but the prices of the old stock have not been affected as yet. Old potatoes are pretty well cleaned up, as is the case with all varieties of roots. Old potatoes and other old root crops will soon be cleaned out. New varieties are steadily taking the place of the old. Old onions are out of the market, and new varieties are coming from Texas, California and Louisiana. The backward spring and unfavorable weather has had a retarding effect on green stuff of all kinds.

No advance in the price of lemons has occurred as yet, but dealers say it will require only a brief spell of warm weather to force the price up a notch, in answer to the heavier demand.

Prices on butter, both creamery and dairy, are gradually getting lower, to a level with the usual spring quotations. There is a weak feeling in the egg market, though there has been no material change in prices recently. The demand for eggs is very heavy. They seem to offer about as cheap a substantial food as there is in the market, and consumers are buying them freely.

The demand for fish and poultry is good. The poultry market is in good condition, and live stock is now arriving. Last week most of the stock being disposed of was from storage. The fish business has been better this week than at any time for several months past, with a very heavy demand. In spite of this demand, receipts of fresh lake fish have been large enough to lower the price on lage trout 1 cent a pound. Other varieties are unchanged in price.

On the whole the jobbers are encouraged over the outlook for a brisk business from now on. Better weather has been showing over the country in the last few days, and this is expected to bring about better conditions in the produce market. The demand for all kinds of produce is good, and will continue so during the summer, it is expected.

DOG KINDER THAN FATHER.

Paris, Ky., May 24.—While en route to his home in North Middletown from Paris a farmer, whose name could not be learned, discovered a forlorn-looking little boy sitting by the side of the road a short distance out of Paris. A big bulldog was by his side. Attracted by the sight, the farmer stopped and made inquiries.

The youthful traveler would not give his name, and stated that his father put him on a train at Kirk, in Breckenridge county, and gave him $5. He said that he had been put off the train by the conductor several days ago, and that he had been wandering around the country since then, sleeping in fence corners and making his meals upon what he could get at farmhouses.

He said that he had no fears, for his friend, the dog, which he had picked up on the pike, slept by his side every night, and would not allow anyone to come near him.

The farmer took the boy to North Middletown with him, and when the story became known the people of that community furnished the lad with a new suit of clothes and a complete outfit. He would not part with the dog, as he said that the dog had been kinder to him than his father had.

The lad was brought to Judge Dundon's office in Paris, and by telephoning to the chief of police at Kirk it was learned that the boy's mother had died there several months ago, and that his father, after putting the boy on the train, had left for parts unknown. His uncle, a well-to-do resident of Breckenridge county, telephoned Judge Dundon to send the boy to him and he would take the best of care of him.

C. J. Lancaster, custodian of the courthouse, was detailed to accompany the lad to Lexington, where he was safely placed on board a train en route to Louisville, where officers were to meet him and send him to Kirk.

That little fellow, despite his exposure to the elements and a lack of substantial food, was in good spirits and health, and said to the officers here that he had determined to make his own way in the world. He gave his age as 8 years. No inducements would prevail to make him give his name, as he said he did not want people to know.

WON'T HEED RUSSIANS' CRY

Pottsville, Pa., May 24.—A project under way among Russians here to send a delegate to Philadelphia to appeal to Rudolph Blankenburg to organize a famine relief movement as he did once before, has been abandoned for a somewhat peculiar reason. In explanation, one of the most prominent Russians here said today:

"The Russian people are taxed beyond endurance and can not be relieved by any such spasmodic movement as has been proposed. The horrors in Russia must soon increase until all the world must sit up and take notice.

"Perhaps something may then be done which will give permanent relief to this suffering people. Any aid extended now would be simply in the nature of helping the czar to prolong his cruel policy.

"There is no question whatever that Russia is smoldering over a volcano and, when the hardships now being felt in many of the provinces, extend to the cities, as assuredly they must, there will come a giant uprising which will make history.

"The Russian people are the most patient and long suffering in the world, but when the outbreak once comes, it will be terrible in intensity, for the government is pursuing the same course which brought into existence the demons of the French revolution."

SAY CHILDREN ATE SWILL.

Taunton Man's Little Ones Stole Food From Cats to Live.

Taunton, Mass., May 24.—When the six children of Frank Taves of Brekeley were taken before Judge Fox as neglected children, neighbors swore that the little ones ate from the swill pails and stole fish from the cats, and that, while their stepmother wore gloves and new shoes and rubbers, her 3-year-old stepson shook with the cold, being barefooted and without underclothing.

On several occasions the two youngest children were found sleeping on the stone doorstep barefooted and with thin dresses. Yet the little ones looked healthy and happy in court and Taves' lawyer pointed out they were a glowing proof of the claim of the physical culturists that the open air treatment means health.

The court found the charge of neglect as to the two youngest children to be proved and places Taves on probation.

BAR "TICKLERS" AT FAIR.

New York, May 24.—The women of Flushing object to the little bunches of feathers on bamboo sticks which are called "ticklers" and none will be sold at the carnival and amateur circus which will be given in Flushing June 6, 7 and 8 in aid of the Flushing hospital.

The entertainment is to be a social event and elaborate preparations have been made. All the social organizations in the suburbs have been formed into one big aid society, whose members have been working since the winter making fancy costumes for the carnival. Sisters, sweethearts and wives have been cutting out and sewing spangled jackets and tights for the men who are to take part in the circus.

A short time ago it was learned that some of the young men and women who are to have charge of the booths intended to sell "ticklers" of the Coney island variety. Part of the entertainment is under the direction of forty women whose names are prominent in Brooklyn society and who are also members of the Good Citizenship league.

They held a meeting in the league building to discuss the "tickler evil." The meeting was short but decided and after its conclusion official announcement was made that there had been a "unanimous vote against ticklers being sold on the grounds in which the carnival and amateur circus will be held. The sale of confetti, however, will be permitted."

THREAD CHOKES A YOUNG GIRL

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 24.—Miss Tessie Sena, aged 17 years of 199 Hudson avenue had a dreadful time yesterday afternoon in the tailoring shop of I. & C. Weiss at 258 Front street, where she is employed. She was chewing a little button of silk thread for want of better gum and the thread's end got down her throat and tickled her so that she coughed.

The next inhalation took the button down her throat and she was in danger of choking for a while. Everybody in the place became worried and excited.

Tessie could not explain things, for the mishap had rendered her speechless, but the general impression was that she had swallowed a bobbin. The foreman, who got hold of her tongue and dragged it from her mouth most unpleasantly, had a notion that he could see an end of thread sticking down her throat and he tried to catch it.

But the muscular contractions prevented much of an exploration. Every time the man who held the tongue got another operative to fish down for the end of the string there was a contraction and the string disappeared and the aperture to the throat closed with a jerk.

Somebody had telephoned for a ambulance surgeon and while he was on his way at a mad jump from the Brooklyn hospital, with the ambulance, the fishing down the saddened young woman's throat went on, not merrily but with much vigor and enthusiasm. The job was tough on Miss Sena's tongue, but it was useless. In the excess of her trouble her hairpins were flying out and she was getting into a disheveled condition.

When matters seemed to be at their worst the ambulance surgeon came. If Miss Sena had been suffering before it was not a circumstance to what happened with the doctor. Of course, knowing nothing about what the young woman had in her throat and ignorant of the time that had been spent fishing into her inward being, he got hold of the tongue again and gave it a twist and downward pressure which put it for the time out of the way.

And then he began unreeling thread from the young woman's throat—yards and yards of it—until he could see nothing more in sight. But the people in the place declared that she still had a bobbin down there and the fact that bobbins are indigestible is notorious. So the doctor said that he would be forced to take Tessie to the hospital to put the X-rays on her.

Just then Tessie got back her power of speech. She said she had not swallowed a bobbin, but simply the wad of thread, and she felt nothing more down there, and she would be obliged if the doctor would let her alone. She really wanted something to eat.

The doctor went away with the thanks of the operatives and Tessie was let off earlier than usual to recuperate.

FATHER UNKNOWN TO SON.

Believed Long Dead, is Employed on the Latter's Ranch.

Pullman, Neb., May 24.—Paul George, a young man of Cherry county, has just discovered that an old man whom he employed to work upon his ranch in South Dakota six or seven months ago and who has been living under the same roof with him most of the time since then, is his own father, long believed to be dead.

The father, Thomas C. George, mysteriously disappeared from his home in Western Kansas twenty years ago and his wife and children never heard of him since.

The son, Paul George, came to Cherry county eight years ago and two years ago he acquired a ranch up in South Dakota, near the Nebraska line, where he employed the man who turned out to be his long lost father.

The elder George has been going under the name of Henry Miller since he left his family and has wandered from place to place in the West, working on ranches. He explains to his son that he left his wife and children because he had not been successful in life and felt that he was a burden to them.

ONE MORE TALESMAN PARTIALLY QUALIFIES.

Boise, Idaho, May 24.—The net results of yesterday, the tenth day of the Haywood trial, were the partial weeding out of the talesmen of the second venire entitled to statutory exemption and the partial qualification of one juror.

The sixty men of the second special venire presented themselves when court opened this afternoon, and when it was announced that the court would hear excuses twenty-three of the sixty marched forward. Judge Wood said that he would accept only those excuses which clearly came within the statute and when he made good his announcement the band of petitioners, melted very quickly. Five petitioners were flatly denied, nine were temporarily denied, six were granted. The other three petitioners did not bother to present their excuses.

If there's a town away up in the north where one can't find a speck of earth without digging through about fourteen feet of snow and ice, and its sporting fraternity is looking for a real live baseball team, it is respectfully referred to Frank Mullane, home address season of 1907, Calumet, Mich. Mullane has a bunch of ball players who wouldn't give Juneau and Skagway and some more of those Arctic teams a peek at a victory. Let the thermometer show the mercury to dogs below zero and the wind travel fifty miles an hour, and it's a 10 to 1 shot that those Calumet boys would cavort around like playful steeds on the plains of Texas.

A bunch of ball players who can play errorless ball and sweat out ten hits for fourteen bases on a day like yesterday isn't wasted in this league. What are they going to do when the sun begins to shine down and the balmy breezes coming in from Lake Superior make everybody feel that he is glad to be alive, bad players in common with everybody else. They'll win in a walk and they didn't any more than canter yesterday. Here's hoping they're cold weather men all-together and then once in a while a warm day will sneak in and they'll lose.

Just after the White Sox had mounted to the top of the ladder by jabbing the harpoon into the Houghton Giants four times while receiving but one thrust in return, along came Mullane and his Aristocrats. Encouraged by the fact that the Sox played good ball last week, while Calumet lost the big end of the series to Winnipeg, a couple of hundred fans journeyed to Athletic park and sat, bundled up in winter clothes, shivering and shaking while they watched the Sox take a strong dose of medicine. These dandies who had just come out of the frozen north took to the weather like a land lubber to terra firma after a shipwreck, and what they did to the Sox is shameful to tell, as it was still more cruel to behold. They jumped on them, walked all over them, ambled around them and then did it all over again. While the men of Smith's squad, with numbed fingers and frozen joints were accumulating a choice selection of fumbles and muffs, the Aristocrats were pulling off plays with an ease one would hardly expect to see on a balmy day in mid-season.

A cold blooded young Teuton named Schroeder was the champion cold weather man, who led the Michiganders in the onslaught. He stood in the pitcher's box and worked as though such a thing as chilling of flesh and bones were unknown. As the score began to come up to the place, he mercilessly cut them down. Six hitless, no two of which could get close enough together to keep each other warm, were all he would give the luckless Duluthians. In the second inning, Bill Mechernick drove the ball to the fence and tried to warm up by running to second. He took third on a sacrifice, but died there and his team mates allowed him the honor of being the only blue-clad athlete to land on the opening of the home stretch.

Jim Haney occupied the point which the Aristocrats chose to attack when the game opened. He stayed off their sallies weakly until the fifth, but then he had to give up. Up to that frame, the game had been going along nicely. The numbed Sox had handed Mullane's bunch a couple in the second and fourth, but the lead wasn't hopeless and the fans still had interest enough in the game to keep from freezing. The Aristocrats furnished all kinds of fireworks in the fifth. Schroeder opened with a smash to right field, which bounded off McCormick's frozen digits. Corrigan laid one down and was headed off at first. Oriet walked and then something happened. Two heart-rending doubles by Ball and Dolan, a base on balls to Taylor and then another double by Regnas. It was too much. Haney was chased to the bench and Josie Krick trotted out. He hit Burns, the first man up. Regnas was caught trying to steal third. Mullane sent one to right field and Roy dropped it, Burns scoring. Schroeder fanned to end the agony. Just to show that they could spurt again if they wanted to do so, the Michigan men added one in the seventh. Burns walked and Mullane scored him with a double to right.

While the Aristocrats were piling up the runs, the Sox were picking off an occasional hit, but they couldn't get three near enough together to count them in the run column and the game ended with the forfeit score.

GLASS MUCH WROUGHT UP

President Says Rowdyism Must be Stamped Out.

Taylor and Sundheim Will be Suspended on Return.

Houghton, Mich., May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday afternoon President-Secretary Glass of the Northern Copper Country league, when seen by The Herald correspondent state emphatically that the league circuit has seen the last of the rowdy ball playing, such as was seen at Duluth during two or three of the Houghton games with the White Sox. President Glass told the correspondent that this rough-house business must stop and that the offenders, Sundheim and Taylor of the Houghton team, who mixed things up with Umpire Nolan in Duluth, will be suspended and heavily fined on their return to the Copper country.

Both men will be requested to report to the president immediately on the arrival home of the team. Little blame is placed on Sundheim, as he has always appeared to be a clean sort of a player, in fact President Glass considers Sundheim one of the most ideal ball players in the league, but he will have to stand his fine just the same. The men were allowed to proceed to Winnipeg with the team as the president did not wish to spoil the games there or injure Houghton's chances to win in any way, but the Houghton management has been notified to get men to take the places of both Taylor and Sundheim when they arrive back in the Copper country the latter part of next week.

He states that several players from both the Houghton and Calumet teams have already been fined. The fines will be collected this year and the suspensions will be rigidly enforced in every instance. If the umpires do not attend to their work as they should, they will be discharged and new ones, who will be able to take care of the work, will be secured.

But in every instance the umpire is to be the "boss" of the field. The players are, under no consideration, to give him any back talk and are to be strictly under his orders. If there are any complaints they can be made to headquarters and the league will investigate the matter thoroughly. In such a case as the Duluth games recently showed, the umpire is responsible to the president alone and cannot be called to account by the players or the captain of the team. Nolan has been placed on probation.

President Glass told The Herald that he will not decide how heavily to fine Taylor and Sundheim or what the term of their suspension will be, until they arrive home from the West.

DATE SET FOR THE SMOKER

Boat Club Members Will Open Season Next Wednesday.

Next Wednesday evening, May 29, is the date set for the opening smoker of the Duluth Boat club. The smoker is for the purpose of allowing the new members to become acquainted with the older members and inspect the club property.

There will be an eight-oared race at 7:45 p. m., between the junior crew and the eight composed of the senior men and the "bantam" four. This race is for the rowing trunks offered by the club. There is already keen rivalry between the crews, and they will both be in to win next Wednesday evening. The seniors and "bantams" won in the race Wednesday evening, but there was a scant length between the two boats, and the juniors hope to improve sufficiently in form during the next few days, to overcome this difference by Wednesday night.

Following the race there will be an informal program in which George Suffel, Leon Cooley and Charles Applehagen will assist. The cafe will be open and light refreshments will be served.

The Oatka branch will be opened June 1, and the Spirit Lake branch is expected to be ready by June 15.

MAROONS SHUT OUT GIANTS

Canadians Bunch Hits on Neubauer and Win Second.

Winnipeg, Man., May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sawyer and Neubauer had a pitchers' battle yesterday, and opportune hitting by the Maroons gave Sawyer a victory. The Peggers bunched on Neubauer in the third, sixth and seventh and scored four runs, while Houghton was returned with a shut-out. One of the largest crowds of the season saw the game, which was an excellent exhibition. Score:

TO PLAY TEN MORE GAMES

Season of Interscholastic League Nearing an End.

The season of the Interscholastic Baseball league is fast drawing to a close and a few more games will decide which school is the best nine. The league schedule called for games, and but ten of these remain to be played. The standing of the teams at present is as follows:

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Longfellow	6	6	0	1.000
Lincoln	7	5	2	.714
Washington	6	4	2	....
Jefferson	6	4	2	.667
Jackson	6	4	2	.667
St. Thomas	8	4	4	.500
Lester Park	5	2	3	.400
Endion	8	2	6	.250
Emerson	8	2	6	.250
Madison	8	1	7	.125

Tomorrow, the following games will be played: 10 a. m.—Emerson vs. Wellington on Washington field; Jefferson vs. Jackson on Jackson field; St. Thomas vs. Longfellow on St. Thomas field; Lester Park vs. Endion on Lester Park field; 1:30 p. m.—Jackson vs. Lincoln on Lincoln field.

The following games have yet to be played: Lester Park vs. St. Thomas, Lester Park vs. Jackson, Jefferson vs. Longfellow. Two games, Washington vs. Jefferson and Washington vs. Lester Park, are under dispute.

The committee will try to make arrangements to have the Longfellow and Jefferson game played off at the ball park. The Longfellow team thus far has a clean record, not having lost a game. Should it loose the St. Thomas and Jefferson games, an exciting finish is promised.

There will be a meeting of the Interscholastic Field meet committee at the Boys' department this afternoon at 5 o'clock, when entries for the meets will be presented.

CULLED FROM THE SCORE BOOK.

Such a walloping!

But then, those things must happen.

There's some clouters in that Calumet outfit. Notice the fifth.

Seven stolen bases all for Calumet. Too cold to throw and too cold to catch. The White Sox found it so, Calumet didn't.

McCormick's double in the second promised to help some, but the big fellow died on third base. Nothing doing low died on third base. Nothing doing in the wallloping line by those who followed.

It was Schroeder's third game of the six played by Calumet and Newcombe pitched the other three. If they can hold out, it's all right, but that's working pitchers pretty hard in this climate.

Those Winnipeg scribes weren't all wrong either. That Calumet team will bear watching and if they play the ball they did yesterday, the 1907 pennant may follow last year's to the Copper country.

Mullane has evidently picked men who make baseball their business. They're in the game every minute, with no time for cracking jokes or wasting smiles. They're in to win and they work every minute of the time they're on the field.

There are some tall pines growing around first base those days. "Biddy" Dolan and Harry Tracey are both built along the line of an eight-inch telephone pole. No wild throws to first in this series.

Roy, Goldsmith and McCormack each drew an error yesterday on hard hit balls, which wouldn't stick to their numbed hands. Errors of those kind are excusable on a day like yesterday.

Jack Burns is playing some baseball in center field for the Arlstocrats. When he came to bat first yesterday, he drew a finish from the crowd by swinging at one two feet of the end of his bat. He followed it with a smashing single and duplicated the trick in his next up. That was all for him.

McLaughlin played a fair game at third yesterday. He knocked down a hard one in the third inning and poked out a hit in the seventh. His work shows lack of experience, for he is nervous in the field and at bat. He should develop into a good third sacker.

Freddie Olmstead, an Escanaba, Mich., man, arrived in Duluth from Green Bay to join the Sox. Olmstead is a good infielder and a fair hitter. He fielded .925 and hit .234 when playing third base for Peoria in the Three I league two years ago. Last year, he was out of form, but is believed to be all right this year. He is a brother of Henry Olmstead, the Denver pitcher, who was with the Boston Americans once and also with the Columbus team of the American association.

New York, May 24.—Chicago defeated New York at the Polo grounds yesterday by a score of 5 to 2, winning two out of the series of three games.

Manager McGraw called upon the services of his entire staff of six pitchers, but could not stave off defeat.

The game was won and lost in the fifth inning, when Mathewson was batted out of the box, Sheckard making a home run with two men on bases.

In all, McGraw confronted the visitors with seventeen players and the big gathering of spectators was kept on the tiptoe of expectation and excitement at every stage.

POLICEMAN CONFESSES

That He Went to Baltimore in Search of Gould Evidence.

Worked on Case for Weeks at Request of His Superiors.

New York, May 24.—There were developments of moment last night in the investigation recently begun by Commissioner Bingham to determine what part was played by certain members of the police department in the domestic troubles of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gould. In papers served a few days ago, upon counsel for her husband, indicating Mrs. Gould's purpose to institute suit for separate maintenance, it was alleged that there had been a conspiracy against the plaintiff in which high officers of the police department were involved.

Last night Lieut. William Frank Peabody, who, with Capt. (formerly Inspector) William F. McLaughlin, had been frequently mentioned in the case, met by appointment an official high in the police department, and, according to the latter, made a clean breast of his connection with the Gould affair.

A stenographer was present at the interview, the result of which was later made public by the representative of the police department.

According to this man, Peabody admitted that he had worked for several weeks on the Gould case, not only in this city, but in Washington and Baltimore, and that he sent the telegram to Edward Sholes, in this city, on March 26, in which a woman named Harriett Lonsdale was reported married to a man named George Dawson.

Commissioner Bingham has sought to determine the author of this message, which, it has been intimated, grew out of a search of marriage records through which it was sought to establish that Mrs. Gould, while still Katherine Clemmons, had married one George Dawson.

In his statement, as given out by the police official, Peabody said he was called into the private office of Inspector McLaughlin at police headquarters early in March last, when McLaughlin told him to "bring in 'Big Bill'" Hawley. Peabody said he went out to get Hawley, but learned Hawley was out of town. Ten days later Hawley returned and Peabody said he asked McLaughlin if Hawley was then wanted. Peabody said McLaughlin told him not to bother about Hawley, but to locate Edward Sholes.

Peabody later saw Sholes and told him that Inspector McLaughlin wished to see him at police headquarters. Subsequently, Peabody said, McLaughlin, Hawley, Sholes and he went down to Delancey Nicoll's office.

Peabody said he took three days off and on March 23, under instructions from McLaughlin and Nicoll, and also under implicit directions from Sholes, with the latter went to Washington and thence to Baltimore. Sholes remained in Washington and arranged to communicate with Peabody in Baltimore.

While in Baltmore Peabody said he searched the records of the bureau of vital statistics in that city for the records Sholes had indicated to him as nearly as Sholes could recall the names.

The search resulted in Peabody sending to Sholes the following telegram on March 26: "George Dawson and Harriett Lonsdale, May 5, 1883. Can this be her?"

The official who made public the admissions of Peabody stated that the latter said he had gone to Baltimore to find "a murderer" named Reagon, but also to ascertain whether Katherine Clemmons had been married in Baltimore many years ago.

Peabody said he received a reply to his telegram from Sholes, who was in Washington. In his telegram Peabody declared Sholes said:

"She has used many aliases."

In a subsequent telegram Sholes asked Peabody if he could locate Dawson. Peabody said he remained in Washington only a few hours after leaving Baltimore and came back to New York city. Arrived here he reported his finding to McLaughlin and the latter told him to report to Mr. Nicoll, which Peabody says he did.

"As we say, or your money back."

S.S.S. NATURE'S TONIC

Every one should take a tonic in the Spring; their systems require it. The blood has become thick and sluggish with the accumulations left in the system from the inactive, indoor life and from the heavy, rich foods of the Winter season. The blood, being in this unnatural and disordered condition, is unable to furnish the body with the increased amount of nourishment necessary for the more energetic life of Spring and Summer, and the system suffers from debility, weakness, nervousness, indigestion, loss of appetite, and many other unpleasant symptoms of a disordered blood circulation. When the system is in this run-down and disordered condition it is not safe to take unknown concoctions, sarsaparillas, compounds, etc., because they usually contain potash or some other equally strong and harmful mineral ingredient, which acts unfavorably and often dangerously on the depleted, weakened system at a time when it needs gentle and natural stimulation to throw off the impurities and recuperate its lost energy. S. S. S. is appropriately called Nature's tonic. It is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks from the great storehouse of forest and field, selected for their purifying and health-restoring qualities, and as it does not contain the slightest trace of mineral in any form it is perfectly safe for young or old. S. S. S. acts directly on the blood, ridding it of all impurities and poisons, and restoring the lost properties of rich, nutritive strength so that it is able to supply the system with the healthful, invigorating energy needed to pass the trying season of the year. Its action is the most pleasant, prompt and satisfactory of all tonics, and those who feel the need of such a medicine will do well to commence the use of S. S. S. at once. S. S. S. restores lost energy, relieves the tired, worn-out feeling, helps the appetite, aids digestion, and adds tone and vigor to the system. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

GOOD clothes and a good horse are alike in one way; the thoroughbred quality is something more than a surface appearance; it's what's underneath that wins the races.

That's what we like about Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; the sound, reliable all-wool quality is in them; the tailoring is right; the "lines" of the garment are thoroughbred lines. They look "quality" all over.

Railroad Men Believe Lowry Interests Behind New Project.

Would Give Road Line Connecting All Coal Docks.

Local men see in the filing of condemnation proceedings by the Wisconsin Central Railroad company and the Duluth & Thunder Bay company, a coup of the Soo to gain entrance to Duluth, and acquire terminals which will give them practically a belt line road connecting the docks at the Head of the Lakes.

There seems to be a well defined impression among Duluth railroad men that the Soo road is behind the project, and so positive are some of the persons who think this way, that they openly declare that as soon as the preliminaries have been arranged and such privileges as the road can better secure by acting as independent corporations are obtained ,the Soo line will openly take over the properties and make the new line a part of the regular Soo system, which now extends from the Twin Cities to Sault Ste. Marie on the east and North Dakota on the west.

Duluthians add color to their theories concerning the connection of the Soo line with the Duluth-Thunder Bay-Duluth & Northern Minnesota crowd by pointing out the fact that Judge M. B. Koon of Minneapolis, one of the general counsel of the new enterprise, is the chief attorney for the Lowry interests, of which the Soo road is a part.

The Soo line is controlled by Thomas Lowry, the Minneapolis street railway magnate, and Judge Koon has long been his first legal aide.

It is well known, too, that the Soo line is very anxious to secure entrance to Duluth and Superior. For the past few years rumors of the advent here of the Soo have appeared, and been circulated with great persistency. So far, however, none of them has materialized.

The fact that men prominent in the coal business are connected with the project, and the location of the land condemned, make it plain that the promoters have an eye to the coal docks, and are plannig to have the most direct connections with these big sources of freight.

The suddenness with which the project was sprung is typical of the Soo road, which has the reputation of being one of the most aggressive and energetic of the Western railroad corporations and railroad men at the Head of the Lakes are confident that it is well directed attempt to cut into the territory of the Great Northern and Northern. Pacific roads and secure terminals at the Head of the Lakes which will in time become of almost inestimable value.

A NEW RATE TO CHICAGO

Better One to Duluth When Tariffs Are Re-Arranged.

It Will Probably be About $11.25 One Way.

A new rate from Duluth to Chicago may be put in effect this summer, as soon as the interstate tariff sheets of the several roads are arranged to meet the requirements of the new rate laws. The rate will probably be about $11.25, instead of $13.55, as at present.

A new rate is to be established between the Twin Cities and Chicago. It will probably be $8.25, which, with the $3.04 rate from the Head of the Lakes to St. Paul, will mean $11.25 from Duluth to Chicago, a rate which the Omaha will doubtless meet.

From present indications it will be the middle of July or the first of August before the railroads are able to put in a new rate between Duluth and Chicago and other commercial points, based on the reduced fares in the different states. While both houses of the Illinois legislature have passed a 2-cent bill, they have not come together as yet, and it is not known when such a bill will become effective.

This is keeping back the filing of interstate tariffs to some extent, and the making of new rates involves such labor that the railroad men say that it is an impossibility to get the tariffs lined up for six weeks at the earliest. Rate clerks of short lines say that they can get the tariffs lined up so far as their local points are concerned without much delay, after it is ascertained what the Illinois legislature is going to do, but before filing any interstate tariffs, they have to get rates to and from the big lines with considerable mileage, which is a task involving weeks of steady figuring.

Kismet Special.

The Kismet special, carrying a party of 100 New York city Shriners, returning to their homes from attending the convention at Los Angeles, is due to arrive in Duluth this evening at 6 o'clock over the Nothern Pacific. The Shriners will board the Juniata, the Anchor line steamer, which will leave at 10 o'clock tonight for Buffalo. F. J. Ober, city passenger and ticket agent of the Northern Pacific, left on the afternoon St. Paul train to meet the special down the line.

The proceeds of this sale will be applied by the company to pay $7,500,000 notes maturing July 1 next and the balance for betterments and improvements.

The regular monthly meeting of the Northern Railway club will be held at the Commerical club this evening. There will be an excellent program of papers on subjects of interest to railroad men. Charles Catter of the Duluth & Iron Range will take on "The Care and Management of Locomotives." There will be a special program of music, with plenty of cigars as a side issue. Special trains will be run from Two Harbors and Proctor.

Close Memorial Day.

Local railroad freight and ticket offices will be closed at day Decoration day, according to a decision arrived at a meeting of the Duluth general agents yesterday.

The Elk Rate.

A number of Duluth Elks will attend the annual national convention of the order to be held at Philadelphia, July 15 to 20. The advertised rate for the event is $38.35, but it is hoped that a better rate than this may be secured.

Chance of a Lifetime.

The "Fitwell" Clothing Parlors' sale of coats and rain coats at this time of the year is a great chance to secure a handy garment for Duluth weather. As they only handle high grade goods, the reductions from their former low prices means a great saving and an early call at their store tomorrow is advisable, as they won't last long. A friendly tip is to drop in Saturday morning and get one of these big bargains.

HANGS SELF WITH STRAP

August Lundberg Takes His Life Near Mallard, Clearwater County.

Had Been Ill for Years and He Was Despondent.

Bagley, Minn., May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Despondent on account of ill health, August Lundberg, a farmer, aged 56, living near Mallard, took his life by hanging. For several years he had been afflicted with dropsy, and of late had been confined to his bed a great deal. Tuesday afternoon his wife and daughter left him lying in bed and went into the garden, a short distance from the house, to plant some seeds. About an hour afterwards they returned to the house and were horrified to find the dead body lying in a partially upright position, a strap around the neck attached to the ceiling, telling all too plainly of the manner in which the unfortunate man had ended his sufferings.

From the position in which the body lay, it is evident that Lundberg fastened the strap to the ceiling, high enough so that he had to stand in the bed to reach it, and then fastening it about his neck, threw himself backward and was gradually strangled to death.

Lundberg leaves a wife and one daughter, also a stepdaughter, both of the latter being married.

St. Croix Falls, Wis., May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—A dispatch from Great Falls, Mont., announces that the body of A. E. Wall, the dead man's father, left for as soon as he received the news of his son's death and conducted the search for the body. He will bring the body here for interment.

It appears the search for the body had been practically abandoned when a man walking along the river bank discovered it twenty miles below where Wall fell into the stream.

Wall was employed as a fireman on the Montana Central railroad, and just as his engine emerged from the tunnel near Craig, the engineer saw him fall into the river. It is supposed that he was overcome by tunnel gas.

MICHIGAN MAN'S WEDDING STOPPED

Sheridan, Mont., May 24.—"If there be any who say this marriage shall not take place, let him or her say no now, or forever hold their peace."

The clergyman officating got no further than this in the ceremony by which he was seeking to marry Miss Dorothy Scott to Jasper W. Cooper at the home of the young woman's uncle, Kingsley McGregor, near the little town of Lyon, south of here.

Just as the clergyman uttered the last word a woman dressed in black, who, unbidden and without attracting attention to herself, had slipped into the room, threw back the veil that covered her face, and, pointing a finger accusingly at Cooper, cried in a voice that was heard by every person present:

"I say it shall not take place!"

"It shall not take place for the reason that that man, Standford M. Thompson, is my husband," the woman added, never for a moment taking her eyes off the man she referred to.

Cooper in the confusion growing out of the strange woman's sudden appearance, contrived to slip out of the room and escape.

Thompson used to live in the Northern peninsula of Michigan. When in this region he received letters from people in Houghton, Hancock, Escanaba, and other towns there and answered them. He said he had spent considerable time in that region and knew many people there.

DAKOTAS

BUILDING PLANNED

Many Notable Improvements in North Dakota.

It is Busy Season for the Architects and Builders.

Fargo, N. D., May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—This will be a busy year in the building line in North Dakota. Architects and contractors predict that 1907 will be something of a record-breaker in the number and cost of new buildings put up in this state.

All over the state churches, schools and public buildings as well as business blocks and residences are in course of construction. A few which were begun and partially finished last fall, are rapidly nearing completion. The ground has just recently been broken for others while the plans for some have only just been sketched in the barest outline by the architect.

That the local architects are securing their share of the work is evidenced by the long list of plans for new structures which they are drawing. Among the most important of these buildings is the public schoolhouse which is soon to be built at Ashley. It will be a six-room building heated by steam and will cost about $10,000 when completed.

Architects are preparing plans for a $ -,000 church which the Baptists will erect at Page. The church will have a seating capacity of about 500 and will be heated by steam. Work on the building is to be commenced the first of next month.

Plans for the big cold storage plant at the insane hospital, Jamestown, were prepared in Fargo and the structure is to be erected by Fargo contractors. The building which will be of brick and stone will occupy a ground space 36x48 feet and will cost about $11,000 when completed. It will be a two-story building with a large basement and is to be completed by Oct. 15.

Extensive improvements are to be made at the Moorhead normal school during the summer. A new boiler plant is to be placed in the rear of the main building and for the accommodation of the plant a one-story brick building with a large basement is to be erected. The entire plumbing system of Wheeler Hall is to be changed and modern piping installed and the basement and upper story of this building are to be finished so that there may be more room for the accommodation of those attending the school.

FLOUR MILL FOR WILLISTON, N. D.

The Well-Known Millmen Planning to Launch Enterprise.

Williston, N. D., May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new industry is promised this city in the shape of a flour mill which promises to be an institution of worth and capacity. A Dunn of Park River, and who was until recently the mayor of Grafton, and R. J. Andreson of the big mills at Grafton, were here looking over the city and surrounding country, with a view to establishing a modern mill here, one that would be of such high order and complete detail that there would be a place for the product immediately.

How long before the mill is in operation is difficult to say. It will depend upon the manufacturers of mill machinery.

The mill will have a capacity of 300 barrels a day and will be operated by electricity. The construction of the building will proceed while the machinery is being turned out.

A line of elevators will be built along the Great Northern, west of here after the mill is built.

HILL ENDORSES PROJECT.

Railroad Magnate Encourages the Enterprise of Crookston People.

Crookston, Minn., May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The energy and enterprise of the 25,000 club in seeking to make this a leading manufacturing center is attracting attention as is evidenced by a letter received from James J. Hill written in New York relative to the proposition. Mr. Hill endorses the plan and in quite a lengthy letter tells why. He has also something to say which will be of great interest to every merchant of the city. The letter was read at the meeting of the club Wednesday evening in the city council room.

The eyes of the investors, homeseekers and business men are turned towards Northwestern Minnesota and the Red River valley as the sentiment is gaining ground that this will be a year of great prosperity for this section. The time is opportune for the 25,000 Commercial club of Crookston to make the great effort of its existence.

KELLIHER SELLS BONDS.

Village is Now Assured of a Waterworks System.

Kelliher, Minn., May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village of Kelliher has sold its waterworks bonds, and the speedy completion of the system is assured.

At a special election, held last August, the proposition to bond the village for $5,000 for the purpose of putting in a waterworks system was carried, almost unanimously. Negotiations were opened with the state for a loan on the bonds, but after considerable delay the negotiations fell through, owing to a misunderstanding. The work of putting in the system was commenced, but was stopped, owing to the failure of the plan to get the money from the state. It was decided to again advertise for bids for the sale of the bonds, and the bids were opened at a meeting of the village council, held the first of the week, with the result that they were sold to W. H. Roberts of Bemidji at 6 per cent, par. The bonds are for $5,000, $1,000 of which becomes due May 1, 1913, and $1,000 each year thereafter, for four years.

The work of installing the waterworks system will be done under the supervision of M. D. Stoner of Bemidji and G. W. Jewett of Blackduck, who have been retained as engineers for the village. The plans call for a steel tower, 100 feet high, on top of which will be a steel tank, six feet high, with a capacity for 40,000 barrels of water, the sinking of a large well, and the laying of three blocks of 6-inch water mains. The contracts for the system have been let as follows: Steel tower and tank, Chicago Bridge & Iron Works; water mains, H. Bosworth, Ada; well, Espe Bros., Crookston. The foundation for the tower and tank has already been completed, and the work of installing the remainder of the system will at once be pushed to completion.

Houghton, Mich., May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—With bandages about his head and weak from the loss of blood, Emil Koko appeared before Justice of the Peace Jackola Wednesday against Isaac Makikuhna, better known as Maki, whom he charged with cutting him with a knife during an affray upon the streets. The accused waived a hearing and was held for trial in bonds of $3,000.

It develops that Kokko and Maki got into a fight on Pine street, during which Kokko alleges that Maki pulled a knife and slashed him about the head. At any rate when Kokko appeared in court, his head was all bandaged up and he looked as though he had met with treatment not quite ordinary. He will be unable to go to work for a week or more.

VICIOUS DOG KILLED.

Calumet, Mich., May 24.—A vicious dog that bit the little daughter of Attorney William J. MacDonald on Fifth street Wednesday morning after snapping at several other persons, was put out of business by Marshall Trudell before biting any one else. The MacDonald child will probably be taken to Ann Arbor for treatment.

WILL WORK LOCKHART

Eastern Capitalists Secure Option on a Well Known Property.

Iron Mine That Has Been Fought Over in Courts.

Tower, Minn., May 24—(Special to The Herald.)—The famous Lockhart claim in section 28 and 33-63-12 is the latest on which a new option for a mining lease has been granted. John Semer of Escanaba, Mich., was on the range a few days ago and said that he and his associates had granted the option to some Eastern capitalists, and that operations on the property would commence immediately.

This property, like many other on the Vermilion range, has had its share of litigation, and in this case took on sensational features. Two men were arrested for perjury, and, had it not been for the timely arrival on the scene and the cool-headed advice of James Sheridan, who was one of the fee owners of the land at the time, one of the principals connected with the litigation would have fared badly.

The Lockhart claim joins the famous Chandler mine on the west, and ore has been taken out by the Chandler workings up to the very line of this property, and there has never been any doubt but that the ore formation from the Ely group of mines, which include the Savoy, Silverman, Chandler, Pioneer, Sibley and Zenith, continues through the Semer property and under Long lake. It is the opinion of mining men that the time is not far distant when this lake will be drained like Lake Angeline, on the Marquette range was, and a large body of ore discovered.

It is welcome news to the people of this section to know that the litigation over this property has been settled and the mine is to be opened up, thereby giving employment to several hundred additional men. The benefit of this will be felt chiefly at Ely, as the property is in close proximity to that city.

SATURDAY CLUB BANQUET.

Hibbing, Minn., May 24.—With Mrs. C. D. Root, the president of the Saturday club as toastmaster, the members of the club enjoyed their annual banquet in Powers theater hall last evening. Those present were all club members, and the affair was a most pronounced success. Yellow and white were the decorations, daffodils and smilax being lavishly used.

The following were present: Messrs. and Mesdames Adams, Downing, Goltz, Hunner, Hunt, Lerch, Pellenz, Rood, Young, Jewett, Read W. H. Latham Silliman Kirby, Wadsworth, Redfern, Norby, the Mesdames Bates, Trenary and Herrick, the Misses Davis, McCall, Wildes, VanSlyke, Grant, and Messrs. Blair, McCall, Wildes, T. S. Silliman, Donovan, Bates, Trenary and Herrick.

Organized only four years ago, the Saturday club has been largely instrumental in advancing the city among its notable achievements being a gift from Andrew Carnegie of $25,000 for a public library.

USES HIS FISTS ON BARTENDER

Hibbing, May 24.—In the municipal court John M. Warning pleaded guilty to using his fists too freely upon the anatomy of L. J. Curley bartender at the Hotel Superior.

It appears that the two had some trouble Wednesday night, and when they met on the street in front of the Hotel Hibbing yesterday Waring is alleged to have promptly knocked Curley down.

He was fined $25 and ordered to the county jail for sixty days unless the fine and costs were paid.

MRS. STEIN HOPEFUL.

Virginia Woman Still Belives Her Missing Husband Will Return.

Virginia, Minn., May 24.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of C. E. Stein of this city, who dropped out of sight in Duluth, April 26, remains unsolved. Although the police have been very active in trying to locate him, sending notices of his disappearance broadcast, their efforts have been unavailing. His wife still believes he will eventually return.

Stein was employed in a local store, and went to Duluth to see his wife, who was in a hospital. As he had some money with him, his friends fear he met with foul play. His employers and his friends generally have a good word for the missing man's character.

CHISHOLM IMPROVEMENTS.

Chisholm, Minn., May 24.—S. Sapero has purchased the vacant lot formerly owned by Lewis Bros. but later owned by Louis Roth, next to the First National bank, for a consideration of $5,500. Mr. Sapero will commence immediately on the erection of a handsome two-story department store. The dimensions of the new structure will be 25 by 100 feet.

RANGES IN BRIEF

Hibbing.—One hundred dollars and costs or ninety days in the county jail constitutes the punishment meted out to John H. Bailey, convicted in the municipal court of striking Officer Erick Nord, as the latter was attempting to arrest him for being drunk and disorderly.

The pupils of Mrs. Louise McPike will give a recital at the Presbyterian church this evening and Saturday, assisted by Miss Clara Zumbach of St. Paul.

The Longyear Exploration company is planning to erect a sample building at the rear of their office, corner of Superior and Third streets, to be used exclusively for preserving and classifying samples of ore.

Two Harbors.—Residents of this section are complaining of the prevailing shortage of hay and other fodder. Owing to the backward spring it is necessary to use more fodder than ordinarily and the price has consequently been advanced.

Chisholm—Work has commenced on baseball grounds. The soliciting committee has secured over $800, and expects to get several hundred more. The people of Chisholm are exceedingly enthusiastic over the prospects of being represented by a fast ball team this season, and all the business men are pulling together on this project.

STRANGE POST OFFICE.

Girl's Own Paper: I should like to mention a post office on the ocean, which certainly belongs to the most primitive in the whole world, and does not boast a single official.

It is the South American continent, on the coast of Patagonia. Close to the edge of the sea is erected a strong beam, on which is written "Post Office," and joined to it by a strong iron chain lies a barrel with a movable cover. The ships which pass through the straits send a boat to the coast to take out those letters which are to be forwarded, and at the same time put in their own postal matter, the former being conveyed to the next port, to be sent on by means of the usual post.

COLLEGE GIRLS INDIGNANT.

Seattle Times: When Bishop Cradding of the diocese of Oregon, in the Episcopal church, said that Western girls are cheaper to entertain than the Eastern variety, he was unaware that he touched a tender spot in the makeup of the girls at the University of Washington. The varsity young women say the bishop does not know whereof he speaks, or he would not make such assertions.

The girls say that a gaze at Mount Rainier is not a substitute for ice cream and that they demand other articles of diet besides sea food. They also intimate that the bishop has not been in the habit of entertaining the sweet girl graduates of the land or he would not say they are cheap to feed.

The girls do not want the impression to get out, however, that they are expensive luxuries and that they "bleed" the youthful swains of the West. A happy medium is the keynote of their sentiments.

$30 Suits for $15.

Tailors charge $30 for the same blue serge suit that the "Fitwell" sells for $15. Single and double breasted styles and they are guaranteed not to fade or your money back. 112 West Superior street.

STORY OF DISASTER

Declares It Was Miracle No More Lives Were Lost.

Capt. George W. McCullagh, master of the steamer Saxona, reached Duluth yesterday afternoon with his boat which is now tied up at the ore docks. The Saxona was the first boat to arrive at the burning of the passenger steamer Naomi in the middle of Lake Michigan Tuesday morning and Capt. McCullagh gives a thrilling account of the events of the night. He declares that it was a miracle that no more lives were lost.

"A short time after backing away from the burning boat," said Capt. McCullagh, "we thought we saw more people on a life raft, and at once manned a lifeboat, which went at full speed to the raft. It was floating and no one on it, and then we heard voices calling for help from the burning boat.

"The voices proved to be those of four four men, coal passers, doomed to an awful death in the forepeak sleeping quarters. It was one of the most horrible and pitiable things which it falls to the fate of man to witness. We talked with them and were within a few feet of them, yet unable to lend them a helping hand.

"They were imprisoned without the slightest chance of escape. They were below the main deck, which was of steel, while above them raged a mass of flames. The dead lights were only large enough for them to get their faces through to get a breath of fresh air.

"They exhibited a remarkable calmness, but there was a light in their eyes which, once seen, can never be forgotten. Words cannot describe the look. They knew that they were seeing their last, and that within a few moments they would be with the dead. While they were still talking to us and their conversation was broken, they cried out a last farewell and fell back. Knowing that no assistance could reach them, we drew away. As the flames enveloped them they shrieked in agony, the shrill cries of their death struggle piercing our ears like rifle shots.

"The Saxona left South Chicago May 20 at 5:30 p. m., and on her course for Point Betsy on the following morning at 1:45 the mate saw fire on the starboard side about five miles distant. At the same time we heard distress signals. All hands were called to the deck to render assistance. When we came nearer we heard voices calling for help, and picked twenty-one persons out of two of the Naomi's boats, two of whom were women.

"While we were taking them aboard, the steamer D. G. Kerr, which accompanied us from South Chicago, went alongside the burning vessel and took off the remaining passengers and crew, as they thought. Not knowing that others were on board, they both backed away a short distance to await daylight.

"When the steamer Kansas reached the scene the passengers were transferred from the Saxona and the Kerr. A line was attached to the hull of the Naomi, and the Saxona and the Kerr started with her for Grand Haven. Within three miles of Grand Haven she was turned over to the Kansas.

"The Saxona was the first to reach the scene, followed closely by the Kerr. When the Kansas hove in sight all the passengers and the members of the crew, with the exception of the four that were burned to death, had been taken off. Too much credit cannot be given to Herbert Geel, second mate of the steamer Kerr, who went down into the mass of fire with a hose in his hand, trying to save the lives of the men whom he afterward learned were imprisoned in the doomed Naomi."

TWO VESSELS LIBELLED.

Buffalo, May 24.—The steamer John C. Pringle was libeled today by Adam Hartman, owner of the schooner Buffalo for $2,000, a claim for the same amount having been filed against the Buffalo by the City of Duluth. The Buffalo was at Duluth last November in tow of the Pringle when the anchor of the Buffalo dropped to the bottom of the harbor, dragging up the city pipe line, hence the libel. The owner of the Buffalo holds the captain of the Pringle responsible. The steamer Rappahannock was seized on a libel of the Northern Elevator company for $6,000 for alleged damages to 11,713 bushels of grain loaded at Fort William and Port Arthur.

BIG INCREASE NECESSARY

If Record is to be Broken in Ore Shipments.

Cleveland, May 24.—Ore and coal tonnage continues in good demand. There is no change in rates but the feeling is firm. The steamer Sage will carry three loads of pulpwood, Quebec to Cleveland at $4 a cord with return cargoes of coal at $1 a ton.

Iron ore shipments will have to show a big increase from this time on if the 40,000,000 ton mark aimed at for this season is to be reached. Shipments to date are below the average on account of the late opening of navigation into Lake Superior. To reach the record season's figures the ore men have in mind the fleet will have to carry 6,000,000 tons per month during June, July, August and September, the four heaviest shipping months and during the remainder of the season will have to show an increase over the figures of last year.

A notice has been sent out by the United States Lake Survey office at Detroit, that a revised chart, in colors, of Eagle Harbor, Lake Superior, has just been issued and is now on sale at the Detroit office, 33 Campau building, Detroit, Mich.

MONUMENT TO MINNESOTA SOLDIERS

fection to the departed sons of our own great state.

> "Here they sleep with those against whom they contended. They, at least, are in perfect peace. The cause over which they struggled is at an end. It needs no champion, it needs no defense, it invites no controversy; the war of the Rebellion is long since at an end.

"All who participated in it were Americans. The valor of the one was equal to the valor of the other. The conscience of the one was as the conscience of the other. Right or wrong, the struggle was by brave men. Out of it came the present America, the greatest country which the world has ever known; a country as dear to one as to the other. Out of it grew great responsibilities; responsibilities which rest upon those who enjoy its blessings and it privileges today. Mighty and glorious. America sheds its ray of light upon millions of happy freemen. The nation offers its protection and its opportunity to all who seek to enjoy its institutions. In these blessings we cannot participate unless we are willing also to share the responsibilities. Every age is fraught with its opportunities and with its grave responsibilities. Every age has its problems which must be solved. Ours is certainly not without them.

"One of the greatest problems confronting the American people is kindred and has a companionship with the great problem which the people of America endeavored to work out in the dark days of the Civil war. Unsuccessful efforts were made for its solution at the close of the struggle. But then the wounds were still bleeding; the public mind was in chaos. The people were filled with passion, and the ultimate conclusion was not then reached, has not been reached now, and doubtless will confront the intelligence of the people for many years to come. I have no doubt of the capacity of the American people to solve every problem and to solve it correctly. I believe that when this great question is finally settled it will be settled by those who best know and clearly understand it, by those with whom it is ever present, and by those who have in it the greatest personal interest. It can never be settled until it is settled right, and until it is settled in such a manner as will give to every American citizen his rights under the constitution. It will not be settled by another clash of arms. Its solution will and must be a peaceful one, and will come through a better knowledge of all the questions which concern American people. A knowledge which will make us charitable to the faults of those with whom we differ, and which will teach us to realize that America confers no special privileges upon any class, or upon any condition, but which guarantees culture, development and prosperity to all who desire a realization of that which American citizenship means in its highest and best form. Our country, east, west, north and south, has enjoyed a development during the past half century unparalleled in the history of nations. The future growth and advancement of our citizenship and of our material resources rest entirely with the population itself. As Americans, we must act in concert for all which tends to promote the development of our institutions.

We may differ as to theories and methods, but we must be agreed in the one idea that America must reach her perfect grandeur through the patriotism of her people. A patriotism not necessarily the result of conflict, but of patience and self-sacrifice; of earnest endeavor; of conscientious effort; of honesty of purpose.

> "America has had its first and last great civil conflict. The monument erected here on this field is not to perpetuate and keep alive the spirit of war, but is a monument to the peaceful relation which must exist in the future between all our people.

"As the tinted rainbow is a sign that the floods shall never again overcome the earth, so this shaft is an emblem of peace and a declaration that henceforth and for evermore Americans shall never again oppose each other by force of arms, but only in a spirit of rivalry for the uplift of all humanity. It will ever stand to tell the passerby that brave men did not falter in their duty and to admonish future generations that duty well and bravely done becomes the true American citizen. It will also tell the story of our gratitude to virtue and to sacrifice and teach men that the people who comprise states and nations are not ungrateful; that heroes are thus remembered for their contribution to the wonderful fabric of that independence which quickens national life."

Gen. E. A. Carman represented the secretary of war and accepted the monument in a brief speech.

An appropriate address was made by Governor Vardaman of Mississippi, which was followed by singing by the school children of Vicksburg. The bronze figure at the foot of the monument was unveiled by the wives of the two governors present.

Gen. L. F. Hubbard, Gen. C. C. Andrews and Gen. T. P. Wilson, comprising the Minnesota commission, will go to Shiloh battlefield to select a site for a monument to be erected there by the people of Minnesota.

Governor Johnson with his staff and large official party, reached this city yesterday afternoon. When the gubernatorial party reached the city a salute was fired by a local battery.

An official reception was tendered by the citizens of Vicksburg to Governor Johnson and Governor Vardaman and their staffs last night.

The monument was provided for by the legislature of 1905, and an appropriation of $25,000 was made for the monument and for a small marker for each of the regiments. The monument, which has been constructed, under the supervision of a commission, composed of Gen. L. F. Hubbard, Gen. C. C. Andrews and Gen. T. P. Wilson, stands on the central ridge of the battlefield, and will be visible from all parts of it. It is a shaft of Southern granite ninety feet in height. At the base has been placed a heroic size female figure of peace with a sheathed sword in her right hand and with the warrior's shield, wreathed with the laurel of victory, in her left. The design has been executed in a dignified and impressive manner. It has been the idea of the sculptor to typify the peace which has sent motherhood rejoicing in the restoration of her sons. The fact that this is the first peace monument erected in a national cemetery is regarded as especially noteworthy. The sculptor is William Couper of New York.

The park contains 1,250 acres, with twenty-seven miles of roadway. Twelve states have made appropriations for the establishment of memorials there, and four have already been erected.

TRIUMPHANT TROLLEY.

Tri-State Tourist: It is estimated that about six billion passengers were carried by the trolleys of the country last year, about four or five billion more than traveled by steam.

At this rate every man, woman and child, white, black, yellow or brown, might have had about seventy-five rides each during the year.

An average of something like seventeen million passengers were carried daily.

Nearly a third of a million persons have their names on the payrolls of the trolley companies of the country.

In spite of the rapid development of electric street railways, there are still operated in this country 200 miles of horse car lines and 240 miles of cable lines.

In view of the talk prevalent today about the dangers incident to travel, it is interesting to note that on the street railways but one person is killed in 26,000,000 and but one person is hurt in 900,000 of those carried.

FAILED TO MAKE GOOD.

The Bohemian: The Smiths had invited the minister to dinner. As the last course was reached, little Willie, who had been closely watching the guest almost continually through the meal, looked over at him once more and said:

"You haven't changed a bit since you started eating, have you, Mr. Curtis?"

"Why, no," laughed the minister, "Why do you ask that question?"

"Because," blurted Willie, confused by the pairs of eyes focused on him, "because I heard pa tell ma you'd make a big hog of yourself as soon as you got your eyes on the corned beef and cabbage."

REGISTERED AS A BOY.

The London Standard: M. Lenoir and Mlle. Deschamps were about to set out to be married at La Haye Malherbe, Normandy, when the village schoolmaster, who is also the village clerk and registrar of births, came to them, exclaiming: "The marriage is impossible!"

He explained that his predecessor had mistakenly registered the birth of the bride as that of a boy, and under the registration Mlle. Deschamps would become liable to serve as a soldier this year. The bride and bridegroom hurried off to the mayor and magistrate and implored them to authorize the marriage, urging that the mistake in the register was self-evident.

The authorities turned a deaf ear to their pleading, for French red tape is not to be treated lightly, and it will take time to repair the mistake.

CONCERNING WOMEN

A brown squirrel muff in conjunction with a vieux apricot colored suit, and a black sailor hat, disported itself on Superior street yesterday. It looked comfortable and cheery and altogether out of place.

Two young women were standing on the corner. "Jus-st l-look at that muff," chattel the one with the purple nose. "D-d-id you ever s-see anything so ri-ridiculous?"

"I never did!" agreed the one whose shoulders were huddled up near the top of her ears. "Y-and think when it is nearly June that people would use some sense in dressing and not come out with muffs and sailor hats at the same time;' and she stood one foot on the ankle attached to the other, for the wind was playing cruel havoc with her almost unprotected ankles. "I used to think that the proper way to dress was according to the weather but I've gotten all over that notion and I act just like my grandmother does. She takes off woolens on the thirteenth of May and puts them on again the sixteenth of September, and, even if the Fourth of July is perfectly freezing she won't put them on. That's the way I do, only I take them off April 15," and her complexion became a mottled red and purple as she remembered the life giving warmth that might have been hers if it wasn't for principle. "You never can tell about the seasons unless you adopt some reasonable mode of action like that," she argued. "Dressed as I am I don't forget for a moment but that it's spring."

"I think that is very silly," said the purple nosed upholder of reason. "I didn't think that anybody but people of the last generation and man were so foolish. 'Put them on when it's cold and take them off when it's hot,' she announced 'and be comfortable all the time.'"

"Well, if that's the way you do, what makes your nose so purple?" inquired the senseless one.

"No reason in particular," said the devotee of reason. "It's just a little way it has."

Meantime she who was toasting her fingers in the brown squirrel muff, gazed in at the airy and diaphanous materials sported alluringly in pink and yellow and murmured to herself: "And I'll have it made a little low in the neck and elbow sleeves with lace kind of hanging down, and I wonder how it would look with not exactly a short waist, but just rather——"

And then the West Duluth car came.

Pineapples, 25 and 30 cents each.
Green peas, 18 cents a qt.
Long radishes, 5 cents a bunch.
Tomatoes, 40 cents a basket.
Broilers, $1 each.
Lobsters, 35 cents a lb.
Crown roast of lamb, $3.

"How much is flour?" asked the marketer, in a determined tone.

"Well," said the market man, in a sheepish tone (he has not been in the business long), "it's gone up."

"How far?" asked the marketer inexorably.

"Pretty far," hedged the market man, glancing about furtively for a less inquisitorial customer. And then getting courage, "and it's going further," said he in a bold, brave manner. "A small sack——

"How small?" asked the marketer. "Twenty-four pounds," said the market man, looking fretful at being interrupted, "will cost you 80 cents."

"Heavens," said the marketer, "what did it used to cost me."

"Seventy cents," said the market man. "And if you bought flour a week ago you paid $1.25 for forty-nine pounds, and if you buy that many today you'll pay $1.45 for it."

"Well, I'll not buy any, of course," said the marketer with killing logic. "How much are green peas? I'd like to buy some of them."

"They are 18 cents a ——" began the market man.

"A quart," said the market man.

And yet there are prospects of quite a few June weddings.

MONSIEUR SULLI'S RETIREMENT

By Mary Cecil Hay.

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

A small old-fashioned cottage, where a woman sits working in the porch. A slight, pale woman, wearing a widow's cap upon her smooth brown hair, but with such a look of love and longing on her face that she too has a beauty which it is good to look upon.

As she sits there alone, Mary Sullivan is dreaming the old dreams which have chequered her through her ten years of widowhood—bright but never impossible dreams of the future of her only son.

From the porch where Mary sits she can catch a glimpse, through the trees, of the road along which the stage coach daily passes. This spot she is watching eagerly, and when the four horses come within sight at last, she drops her knitting and rises. How her face brightens when he comes at last.

"Mother!"

"Oh, Davy, Davy!"

The greeting bursts from the hearts of both in that first moment; then the boy's lips are clinging to his mother's, and her arms hold him in that entire love which a widowed mother so often lavishes upon an only son.

"Four whole weeks of idleness, and of home, and of you, mother," David says. "It seems too good to be true."

"But you like school, Davy?" Mrs. Sullivan asks, wistfully. "You are happy there?"

"Happy? Oh, yes, and getting on capitally. Of course I try to do that, mother, as grandfather urged it so when he condescended to put me to this school. Perhaps he will help me a little, even when the five years are over. I will soon rise, if he gives me a start after this promised school term."

"And if he does not, this education is a great help, Davy. You will be 17 when you leave the college, and clever and able to do anything."

"Anything—everything, mother," asserts the boy, softly drawing her arm about his neck. "I shall be a man, and you shall never want anything again. You shall have a large house and garden, and I shall come home to you every evening from my office, where I shall earn the money, you know. It must be near London, because men don't get rich except in London, I expect."

"And what do the masters say of you, Davy?"

"That I am the best arithmetician in the school," the boys says, laughing, "and best (for my age) in one or two other things. But, mother, I beat every fellow—older or younger—hollow at gymnastics."

"What are they?" asks Mary, wondering. But though David explains at length, her idea of the science is only a little less vague when he finishes than it had been when he began.

That first vacation of David's has passed like a dream to his mother; and now that the last day has arrived, she feels as if only a week had sped, though she has so regretfully and hungrily counted (each morning and each night) both the days that have been spent, and those that are to come.

Another long absence follows; another bright home-coming; (on a frosty Christmas evening now); another absence; and so on, and on, and on; until David comes home from school for the last time of all.

He meets his mother just within the porch, where the flowers bloom that summer as they have bloomed through every summer of his life, and he has no cloud upon his face. But, later on, his mother's anxious question is answered a little sadly.

"Yes, mother; I heard from the lawyer yesterday. Grandfather's will does not mention either of us. He has given me all the help he meant to give. Well, he has been very good, and now I am ready to make my own start in the world. But I must go at once. One delicious day with you here, then for London! Don't look so sad, my mother; this shall not be a long separation—not even so long as the old school terms, for I will soon come back to fetch you."

So, after this, one day, he goes, laughing over his scanty purse, because his hands are strong, he says, and his fortune—hope and courage.

After David's departure, the days pass for Mrs. Sullivan just as the old schooldays have done, except that now she has a daily excitement in his letters.

At last one letter comes in which he tells her he has found employment in an accountant's office—employment which is very easy to him, and which he likes, though the salary he is to receive is a much smaller one than he had anticipated when he so hopefully began his search.

When he has been absent for a year, he comes home to spend his birthday with his mother—a summer day which they have spent together for all the 18 years of David's life. Then he goes back to his work, still hopeful of the rise which his earnest and untiring servitude is to win.

Six months pass, and then one day, David's letter brings joyful tidings. The long-talked-of home will be ready soon, for he is earning a high salary now, and all the old bright plans are to be carried out.

David had said that he would spend his birthday at home—that June day which has always been the one holiday of the year to his widowed mother—but on the morning before arrives a letter which tells her that he is obliged to delay his coming. London is very full, he says, and he is very busy; so he must give up that day's holiday.

In every line of this letter the mother can read his disappointment, as well as the sorrow it gives him to disappoint her; and tears come out and blot out the loving words, as well as the proud descriptions of the home which is all ready for her now out in one of the pleasant northern suburbs. They blot out even that simple request at the end—"Think of me more than ever tomorrow, mother, and pray for me just at nightfall; at that very hour when we have been used to sit together on the porch on other happy birthday nights."

There is the present of money which most letters bring her now, and it is while she holds this in her hand that she forms a sudden resolution; and it comes to her at that moment as so natural a one that she wonders where it has been hidden before. David is working very hard and is so lonely on his birthday. How can she better use his gift to her than by giving him a pleasure he cannot expect, and so prevent his being solitary on that day which they have never yet spent apart? As he cannot come home to her, she will go to him. Ah, how his face will brighten when he sees his mother come in! How he will start up with outstretched arms to clasp her! That moment will repay her for any trouble she may have in reaching him.

It is a long journey, but the anticipation of David's delight at seeing her shortens and beautifies the way.

And this is London—this line of streets, and crowd of people, and deafening sound of wheels! Poor Davy! How he must long for the quiet, shady lanes, and the fresh breeze coming inland from the sea!

She takes a cab from the depot and Mary Sullivan stands with beating heart at the door of a tall, narrow house in Farrington street, and rings the bell faintly. She waits what she thinks a long, long time before a young man appears in answer to her modest summons and her inquiry for David Sullivan.

"Monsieur Sulli—Sullivan?" the young man questions, laughing a little as he glances into the face of the country-bred yet delicate-looking woman who stands holding her basket so closely to her side. Yes, he knows. He will take her to him.

What a gay, grand place this is, with lights like suns and stars upon the ceiling, so far up, so very, very far up! Why, the church at home is not nearly so high as this room. But why is it lighted yet? The June sunshine is laying brightly now upon the sea at home, and it must be light as day in the cottage rooms. What thousands of faces are gathered here, all looking one way, too, all looking at the door which she had been bidden to watch. Are they watching for David too?

Suddenly a band begins to play; and—puzzled more and more—Mary turns her eyes from the spot she is watching so intently. David has never told her about this music, and these lights, and this great lofty room, and the watching crowd. What does it mean? and why is Davy coming here?

A prompt, tumultous sound of clapping in the crowd; and Mary turns her puzzled eyes back again to the doorway she had been bidden to watch. No one is there save the few idle figures which stood there all the time. But now, in the cleared space in the center of the building, a man (who must have passed through while she was gazing at the band, and whose face is turned from her) is climbing a single rope suspended from the wall.

Wonderingly, Mary watches the light and active figure—tightly clad in white and crimson—springing upward with the speed and agility of a squirrel. Why should he do this daring, foolish thing? Is a man's life so valueless that he should risk it thus to provoke a moment's passing wonder? Is death so trivial a thing that he should brave it recklessly thus to win a moment's applause? Ah, to think of this man's life, and then of Davy's!

Another minute and the man she watches springs to a double rope which hangs from the lofty ceiling; and, sitting there at ease, looks down upon the crowd. Then Mary's eyes look full into his face.

It is a special performance at the circus on this June night, being the farewell of the famous gymnast, Monsieur Sulli, who, after his brief and brilliant career, is retiring from the profession in which he shines without a rival; intending to settle down—so it is rumored, ironically and discontentedly—to office work with an accountant, and to live in a small house out in a north suburb with an old mother from the country. So ridiculous, in the very zenith of his fame!

On this farewell night he is to perform (for the last time) his greatest feat—a feat which no one but himself has ever attempted. From the flying trapeze where he now stands, swinging himself carelessly to and fro, he will spring to a stationary one, 40 feet distant, and, passing through this, will catch it by one foot only, and hang suspended so, 100 feet above the arena.

A dangerous exploit, of course, but performed with wondrous nerve, and skill. Surely it will be a pity if, having made his reputation, Monsieur Sulli shall persist in his determination to retire from the ring.

Decidedly a grand success—though in one seat among the crowd a solitary woman, who is a stranger there, sits white, and still, and dead!

ODD FACTS ABOUT TOBACCO.

The most expensive cigars made cost about $7 each.

The largest cigars come from the Philippine Islands, some of them being 18 inches in length.

Italy has the reputation of manufacturing some of the strongest smokes in the world.

A good cigar will burn slowly and equally. The weed that smolders up one side is of inferior quality.

If the leaf of a cigar has a greasy appearance, or shows green blotches, or is of a pale, sickly yellow, the wrapper is made of inferior tobacco.

In the total quantity of tobacco grown the United States rivals Cuba and the Philippine Islands combined, and British India is not very far behind the states.

In Tasmania no person under 13 years of age is allowed to smoke in a public place. Nearly everybody smokes in Japan. The girls begin when they are 10 years of age, and the boys a year earlier.

Many believe that cigars marked with light spots are indicators of the predatory habits of an insect which attacks only a good leaf, but, as a matter of fact, these spots are due to the combined action of sun and rain.

The color of the ash is not an accurate guide, but if the ash displays a black "lip," a thin, dark line around the edge next the mouth, it is proof positive of an indifferent cigar. The ash of a good cigar should also stand well.

The smoke from the bowl of one's pipe is blue, because, coming direct from the red-hot tobacco, it is very highly oxidized; but the smoke from one's lips is gray, because it is highly watered and hydrocarbonized.

The best cigars manufactured come from Cuba, the tobacco for which is cultivated in the famous Vuelta da Abajo district, west of Havana. This favored spot is located on the banks of a river, the nature of the soil being such that in no other part of the world can leaves of such excellence be produced.

Once in a year you may find a good tenant by chance—through "happenstance." But a Herald want ad. will find him for you at the time you want him.

GRANDE FILES HIS APPEAL

Through his attorneys, W. E. Culkin and W. E. Whipple, Joseph H. Grande has filed with the clerk of the district court a notice of an appeal to the supreme court from the order of Judge Dibell discharging the writ of habeas corpus and remanding Grande to the custody of Sheriff Bates, to be turned over to the California authorities. When the order was made a few days ago, the court granted a stay of execution to give Grande time to take an appeal, the time for doing so being up today.

Pending the supreme court decision, Grande will continue in the custody of Sheriff Bates. If the supreme court ruling is against Grande he will be turned over to Deputy Sheriff C. C. Case, who has been here several days waiting to take him back to Stockton, Cal., to answer to the charge of forgery.

THE POLICE COURT GRIST

Mr. and Mrs. John Langell Are Leading Queer Life.

Street Car Man Loses Job and Pays a Fine.

A strange pair are Mr. and Mrs. John Langell, and their career is a strange one. They have been prominent in police court circles in Duluth for years, first one and then the other appearing, and the charges have, with one or two exceptions, been drunkenness.

The Langells have no home. When ever they secure a little money they stop at one of the cheap lodging houses about town, making their headquarters nowhere, and they have on several occasions been arrested for trespass, when they sought places to sleep when they did not have the wherewithal to provide a sleeping place.

Yesterday Langell was arrested on a warrant sworn out by his wife, whose name, by the way, is "Eureka," charging him with non-support. He pleaded guilty, but was released by the court upon his promise to look his wife up and give her enough money to live on.

Accordingly, Langell started out to look for Eureka, but his search was fruitless. This was natural, as Eureka was locked up in the West end jail awaiting the arrival of the patrol wagon to bring her to headquarters, to be kept over night in the woman's department.

Mrs. Langell was arraigned this morning and pleaded guilty to the charge. Judge Cutting considered the case for a moment, and then decided to let the woman start out to look for her husband.

Mrs. Langell asserted that she had spent part of the winter at the poor-farm.

John L. Brooks, up to yesterday a conductor on the Duluth street railway, was arrested yesterday afternoon at the request of Supt. Moore of the street car company, while drunk. Brooks got full shortly before time for him to begin work, and did not show up at the right corner to relieve the previous crew. The conductor, who was not relieved as scheduled, 'phoned in to headquarters, and when the superintendent arrived on the scene, Brooks was creating a disturbance.

Even then he might have avoided arrest, but when Mr. Moore ordered him to turn in his money to the car company, and draw his time, he refused to do so, and his arrest followed.

Brooks was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and costs in municipal court this morning.

Because the officer thought that Fred Mitchell was attempting to fleece Myron Frazer, an old woodsman, out of a "roll," which he had exhibited before Mitchell in a saloon yesterday, he placed the latter under arrest and took Frazer along with him to headquarters. The old man was sadly the worse for liquor so he was booked for drunkenness, while Mitchell was charged with disorderly conduct, the basis for this charge being a lively altercation with a bartender in one of the saloons where he took Frazer.

The officer reported that Mitchell was following the old man around, buying drinks, etc., but Mitchell said that his intention were of the best and that he was only taking the old man to a room as he had asked him to do. The judge sentenced Mitchell to pay a fine of $7 and costs or spend seven days in the county jail at labor, and Frazer paid $3 on the drunkenness charge.

PATRIOTIC EXERCISES

Being Held in All the Schools of Duluth.

Memorial Addresses Given by Delegations of Old Soldiers.

Memorial exercises in honor of dead soldiers of the G. A. R. are being held in all the schools of the city today. Musical programs and recitations and military drills are being given by the pupils and at each school a delegation of old veterans has been detailed to talk to the pupils. Parents of the children and others interested have been invited and many attended the exercises.

At the Central high school the services took place this morning in the assembly room and an unusually good program was rendered. The old soldiers present were W. H. Smallwood, Rev. N. L. Upham, Judge S. F. White and C. E. Holt each of whom gave a short address to the pupils of the school.

The program opened with the singing of America by the school and the choir and this was followed by a cantata entitled "Barbara Fritchie" rendered by the school choir. Capt. Smallwood's address and that of C. E. Holt were upon their reminiscences of the war. Judge S. F. White spoke on "Duty" and Rev. Upham on "Opportunity." The talks were most interesting and the students exhibited their appreciation. The program closed with the singing of "Star-Spangled Banner," by Miss Hyland and the school.

The services in the other schools of the city were begun this afternoon at 2 o'clock and consisted of recitations, musical selections and drills by the pupils besides the talks by the old soldiers. The exercises of the Washington school were held at the high school assembly room but the other schools held their exercises at their own buildings.

Piano solo, (a) Rondo Villagcois; (b) The Tulip.
Flag Salute.
"Star Spangled Banner," School and audience.

At the Jackson school the following program was rendered:

At the Jefferson school in the East end exercises are being held in the main hall as there is no assembly room. The program consists of various kinds of patriotic drills, including the flag drill, and several recitations and musical selections. Each department in the school contributes toward the making up of the program.

At West Duluth patriotic services are being held in each of the schools and delegates from the G. A. R. are in attendance.

HEROIC ACTS PERFORMED IN BURNING OF NAOMI

Faced Death by Flames in Most Fearless Manner.

Not since the burning of the Lady Elgin on Lake Michigan some thirty years ago or more, has there been enacted on the Great Lakes a scene so replete with incidents of daring, bravery and heroic service in the attempt to save human life as that of the rescue of the passengers and crew of the steamer Naomi by the Duluth steamers D. G. Kerr and Saxona on the morning of last Tuesday. The steamers have arrived in Duluth and their crews tell the story of the rescue.

"The Saxona was the first to reach the scene of peril. As it neared the burning vessel, cries for help were heard from the surrounding waters, and the Saxona stopped and took on board two boat loads of survivors, as well as one raft load of passengers who were floating about in the vicinity, rescuing twenty-three persons.

In the meantime the Kerr had arrived, and, without a moment's hesitation, Capt. Ballentine rouded to astern of the burning ship, and brought his steamer alongside the Naomi's starboard quarter, where, huddled together like caged rats, were fifty or more human beings, praying for speedy deliverance and shrieking in their great agony.

Notwithstanding the great heat that fried and blistered the port side of the Kerr, Capt. Ballentine, like Jim Bludso, held his steamer alongside the burning ship until he was informed by the officers of the Naomi that every one on board was off.

Capt. George McCollough of the Saxona said, in speaking of the rescue: "When I saw Capt. Ballentine on the bridge of his ship, running his vessel alongside that blazing vessel, apparently with as much coolness as if he were making a landing at the Missabe dock, I thanked God that the Great Lakes could produce such sailors. Had the Kerr been five minutes later in getting alongside, I believe those people would all have been suffocated. We had our hands full in pulling aboard those from the boats and raft, some of whom had jumped overboard from the Naomi."

One poor fellow came to the dead light and thrusting his hand out, called to the men in the small boat: "For the love of God, help us. Turn on your hose. We are being burned to death."

Mate Warwick said today: "The look on that man's face will haunt me as long as I live. We were utterly powerless. The dead light was only about six inches in diameter. There was no possible means of getting those men out from the redhot steel cage in which they were imprisoned. We called to the steamers and both vessels promptly came ahead, until their bows were up against the bows of the Naomi, and both vessels worked their fire hose on the burning ship to their full capacity. The cries of the imprisoned men ceased and we heard no more."

The knowledge that a number of men were being burned alive before their eyes, incited the crews of both vessels to renewed efforts to quell the flames. The Saxona swung about and came alongside the burning vessel, and notwithstanding the intense heat, her crew put out steel cables and the burning ship was lashed to the port side of the Saxona, where both vessels could work the fire pumps to better advantage, the Kerr being alongside the Saxona, her fire hose running across the latter's decks.

For two hours, the combined crews of the Saxona and the Kerr fought the flames inch by inch, when the second mate of the Kerr, Herbert Geel of Port Huron, volunteered to go into the burning vessel and ascertain if the men were still alive. With the flames still roaring at his back, the second mate sprang aboard the Naomi and made his way down the ladder and into the windlass room.

It was no use however. Geel managed to crawl up the stairway, and to fresh air. For two hours more the men continued to pour water on to the vessel with all the force both vessels could command, when the fire forward was practically extinguished although the steel plates were still smoking hot.

A second time Geel attempted the rescue of the imprisoned men. This time accompanied by Frank Randall, mate of the Kerr, and together they entered the windlass room still thick with smoke, where they stumbled over the charred remains of two bodies, from which the clothing had been wholly burned, whose headless, armless, legless trunks were still smouldering in the ruins.

Shutting their eyes to the sickening sight, the men groped their way to a ladder leading down beneath the windlass room into the sleeping quarters of the crew, where two more bodies were found, from which life had long since departed.

Both Capt. Ballentine and Capt. McCullough were averse to saying much about themselves, but their men are loud in praise of both for the cool businesslike manner in which they handled their ships in a dangerous situation.

PAVING BIDS ARE OPENED

At the meting of the board of public works this morning bids were opened for the paving of Sixteenth avenue east from London road to Sixth street. P. McDonnell is low on two of the most popular of the three pavements considered, however, and it is very probable that he will do the work. The three kinds of paving considered were tar macadam, sandstone blocks, and a combination of the two, with a strip of sandstone blocks down the middle to give better footing on the steeper portions of the hill. P. McDonald bid $20,440.30 for plain tar macadam, and $22,480.30 on the combination. Hugh Steele was lower than McDonnell, however, on the straight sandstone paving with a bid of $25,749.30.

Bids for three other smaller sewer jobs were opened at the meeting today, and the contracts will probably be awarded in the near future.

St. Paul, May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two decisions, one of them a reversal of the Minneapolis municipal court, and three per curiams covering alleged errors were filed in the supreme court today. Added to this the court filed an order denying a rehearing in the Appleby will case.

John C. Sodini, the well known Minneapolis character, loses out in the appeal taken by Harry Gaber, a former partner in one of his numerous business enterprises. Duluth Board of Trade, May 24.—Wheat was weaker during most of the session today and closed irregular, after a bulge. The close was about unchanged in Duluth but the tendency was weaker in most of the other American markets. Reports of rain in Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma and predictions of more of it, and better weather for the Northwest were the bearish factors at the opening. The Argentine shipments were liberal. Good buying and an excellent foreign demand put prices up here about noon but they went off afterwards. Much wheat was worked for export by local exporters. Liverpool closed ½d higher, Berlin ¾c lower and Budapest unchanged.

The July option closed unchanged in Duluth, was ½c lower in Chicago and New York, ½c lower in Minneapolis, ⅝c in St. Louis, ¼c higher in Kansas City and ⅝c lower in Winnipeg. The September option closed unchanged in Duluth, ¼c higher in Chicago, ½c lower in Minneapolis, ⅜c off in New York, ½c lower in St. Louis and ¼c lower in Kansas City.

July corn closed ⅝c higher in Chicago and was ½d to ⅝d lower in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅜d higher in Chicago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 526,000 bus, last year 296,000 bus. Shipments 515,000 bus, last year 372,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 264,000 bus.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 4,144,000 bus against 5,096,000 bus last week and 1,054,000 bus a year ago.

Primary receipts of corn were 263,000 bus, last year 328,000 bus. Shipments 545,000 bus, last year 403,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 275,000 bus.

Argentine shipments of corn were 731,000 bus, against 285,000 bus last week and 2,204,000 bus a year ago.

Wheat was active during the session in the Duluth market. There was a good demand all day, the foreigners being in the market here. May wheat was inactive and closed ¼c lower at $1.02. July wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.02¾, advanced to $1.02⅝ by 9:35, declined to $1.01 by 10:30, rallied to $1.01⅞ by 10:35, went off to $1.01 by 10:52, rallied to $1.03⅛ by 12:10 and closed at $1.02⅜, unchanged from yesterday. September wheat opened ⅜c lower at $1.02⅛, went off to $1.01, rallied to $1.01⅜, declined to $1.01, rallied to $1.03⅛ and closed at $1.02⅝, unchanged from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed unchanged and cash spring wheat was selling at the July price for No. 1 northern.

It is estimated that the stock of wheat in store at Duluth will decrease 550,000 bus., this week.

Flax was fairly active and advanced about 1 cent by the close. May flax opened unchanged at $1.21½d, went off to $1.20, rallied to $1.22¾ and closed at that price, a gain of 1 c over yesterday. July flax opened ¼c lower at $1.22½, declined to $1.21⅝, rallied to $1.21¾, went off to $1.21⅝, rallied to $1.23½ and closed at that price, a gain of ¾c over yesterday.

October flax opened unchanged at $1.21¾, declined to $1.20⅝ and closed at $1.23, a gain of 1¾c over yesterday.

It is estimated that the stock of flax in store at Duluth will decrease 200,000 bus., this week. Argentine shipments of flax were 1,080,000 bus.

The coarse grains were unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Heavy Rains Continue to Send Wheat on Its Downward Course.

Chicago, May 24.—The wheat market today continued its downward course. The chief depressing factor was the report of the weather bureau that rains had fallen in Kansas, and predicting their continuance tonight. Rains were also reported at various parts of the West. Argentine shipments were reported as being liberal, and this also weakened the market. July wheat opened ⅛@⅜c to ½@⅝c lower at 96¾c and sold at 96c, advanced to 96½c and then declined to 95¼c. September opened a shade to ¼@⅜c lower at $1.00⅝@⅝c, sold at $1.00⅝ and then declined to 95⅝c. December opened ⅛c to ⅜c lower at $1.00¾c to $1.01¼, sold at $1.01⅜ and then held for a time around $1.01. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 340 cars against 428 cars last week and 162 one year ago.

The low point of the day for July was 95⅝c, for September, 99c, and for December, $1. About noon the market rallied strongly on reports from New York and Winnipeg of a strong demand for export. July advanced to $1.01; September, $1.02⅝, and December to $1.03½. The greater part of the advance was lost, however, in the latter part of the day and the market closed weak. Final quotations on July were ⅛c lower at 99⅝@99¾c, September was unchanged at $1.00⅝@1.00⅝. December was ¼c lower at $1.01⅜.

The corn market opened weak, the more distant futures showing the softer feeling. July was comparatively steady on good buying by commission houses. July corn opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 50¼c to 50⅜c sold at 52c and then declined to 52⅛@52¼c. Local receipts were 162 cars with 69 of contract grade.

The low point for July was 52⅛c. The market rallied from this price and was strong in the last half of the session. The close was firm with July ⅜c higher at 52⅞c.

July oats were steady at the opening of the market, but September and December were inclined to drag on a slack buying movement. July oats opened unchanged to ⅛c lower at 46⅛c to 47c and sold at 47⅛c. Local receipts were 105 cars.

The provisions market was quite and prices were weak. A 5c to 10c decline in the price of live hogs and the weakness of coarse grain were the chief depressing factors. July pork opened 10c lower at $16.42½. Lard was 5c to 7½c lower at $9.07½ to $9.10. Ribs were 5c lower at $8.85.

Closes: Wheat—May, 97½c; July, 95⅝@96c. Corn—May, 54c; July, 52⅝c. Oats—May, 47⅜c; July, 47⅜c. Pork—May, $16.32½; July, $16.52½. Lard—May, $9; July, $9. Ribs—May, $8.75; July, $8.85½. Rye—Cash, 86c. Barley—Cash, 70@80c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 97@98¼c; No. 3 red, 95@96c; No. 2 hard, 96@98c; No. 3 hard, 95@96c; No. 3 spring, 95@$1.02. Corn—No. 3, 53@53½c. Oats—No. 2, 43½@43¾c.

Broomhall cables from Liverpool: There was a steady opening in wheat although values showed a decline of ¼d to ⅜d. Offerings at the start were larger owing to the more favorable American and Canadian weather which prompted some realizing. This was followed by a sharp advance, prices gaining ⅞d to 1d due to the insufficient rains in Roumania and yesterday's heavy sales of cargoes. There was some selling for profit on this advance and ⅜d to ½d was lost, but again at midday the market rallied, this decline being recovered with the undertone firm. Shorts covered freely due to the light speculative offerings.

Corn was steady with early values ⅜d lower, being influenced by the weaker American cables. Later, however, the strength in wheat a good demand for spot prompted good support and prices advanced ⅜d to ½d.

Emigrant agent of Canadian Northwest estimates wheat acreage will be 20 per cent below last year; 15 per cent already done and growing weather now starting. Crop last year was 90,000,000 bus., and this year's prospect is 60,000,000 to 70,000,000.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago, to Paine, Webber & Co.: After a steady opening there was a return of selling pressure in wheat. The selling from the outside appeared to come from points which did not take part in the profit-taking of yesterday. On the decline some of the cleverest leaders in the local trade let go lines of wheat. Others were encouraged to sell short. The bears had plenty of rope early and got themselves in all kinds of trouble a little later. But bugs appear from fresh points and samples were sent here from Pennsylvania wheat fields. Rains over Kansas proved light and scattered and many points in that state continue to send complaints of dry weather and bug injury.

Omaha dispatches said that samples of wheat from all over Nebraska were alive with bugs. Winnipeg, Duluth and New York all report foreigners all eager bidders for wheat. Northwest dispatches claim very cool weather all along the Soo line. Minneapolis report claims very little growth has been made because of the absence of warm weather and moisture. New York bought wheat here. All the early offerings were well absorbed. Allowing for some improvement in Nebraska and Kansas the situation seems to warrant higher prices and we feel inclined to urge buying on the breaks.

BATES CASE IS BEFORE COURT

St. Paul, May 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the supreme court today was heard quo warranto proceedings in the case of William J. Bates, sheriff of St. Louis county, whom his Democratic rival in the fall election is seeking to have ousted from office. John D. Brady is the man who wants the job.

The proceedings are brought on the charges that Bates, in order to relieve himself from any embarrassing rivals, while seeking the nomination, gave one Jack Miles $500 to get in the race in opposition to him, and then, when the proper time arrived, to withdraw.

This Miles, it is claimed, did, and Bates won out, not only the nomination, but the office at the regular election.

To make the case worse, it is claimed that Bates, when he filed his bill of expense, only reported $300. This is a violation of the corrupt practices act. Now Bates must show why he should not be ousted and the office go to his Democratic rival, Brady.

Dr. King's New Discovery's power over coughs and colds is simply marvelous." No other remedy has ever equaled it. Fully guaranteed by all druggists. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

New York, May 24.—Prices of stocks yielded sharply under the liberal offerings that came on the market in the opening dealings. Consolidated Gas ran off 4 points, Missouri Pacific 2, Northern Pacific 1½. Erie first preferred 1⅜ and Anaconda 1, Atchison, Ontario & Western and United States Rubber 1, and Baltimore & Ohio, Amalgamated Copper and Sugar large fractions.

Certain stocks such as the Harriman, New York Central, Reading, Amalgamated Copper and Smelting were supported in face of the decided pressure at other points. These conflicting movements had a decided bearing on the action of the market, and at times compelled realizing in the strong features. Eventually the persistent buying of the speculative favorites imparted a better tone to the list and at 11 o'clock the tendency was uniformly upward. Among the more important declines were Bethlehem Steel preferred 5 points; Reading second preferred and Consolidated Gas, 5; Denver & Rio Grande preferred, 2; United States Rubber first preferred, 2⅜, and Baltimore and Ohio preferred, 2. The advances included 1⅝ in Union Pacific; 1¼ in Reading, and 1 in Southern Pacific, New York Central and Amalgamated Copper.

Trading in the second hour was very dull and the movement insignificant outside a few stocks. Reading got up 2 points, Wheeling and Lake Erie second preferred as much; Pressed Steel car preferred, 1½; Northern Pacific and American Smelting, 1¼, and St. Louis and San Francisco second preferred and Cotton oil preferred, 1. Southern Railway preferred fell, 2; North American, 3½; United States Rubber, 1¼; the second preferred 1⅜, and Colorado & Southern and Railway Steel Spring, 1. Bonds were irregular.

Quotations were higher for Reading, St. Paul and Smelting, but the buying was not followed up vigorously. In general the price movement was too trivial to call for comment.

Another slight rise occurred in the mid-afternoon, which was still confined to a half dozen stocks. Union Pacific got up to 138, a rise of 2⅝, and Reading figured for 2⅜. United States Steel was also advanced 1. Amalgamated Copper 1⅜, Denver & Rio Grande 1¼ and St. Paul 1⅝. Minenpolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie lost 3 and Ontario & Western 1 point.

The market closed dull and irregular. A disposition to realize profits by the traders was increased by the rise in wheat. The reaction ran to 2 in Smelting and to 1 in half a dozen others. Consolidation Coal of Maryland sold at a decline of 10; Southern Railway preferred 4⅝, Atlantic Coast Line 3; Locomotive 1½ and Sloss-Sheffield 1. In some other prominent stocks there were advances up to 2⅛.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Stocks rallied again today and closed in fairly good shape. The unfavorable crop news was ignored. The trading was of a professional character. The volume of trade was light. We cannot see anything on which to buy stocks at the present time and believe, after the short interest has been entirely eliminated, prices will work lower.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 24.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 6 points and shortly after the opening showed a net gain of @@10 points on the active months on covering and buying for a turn, encouraged by the rains reported in the South and fear of further delays in farm work. There was a good deal of realizing at the advance, particularly in the near months, and prices eased off to a net decline of 2 to 4 points during the early session, but rallied again ing the early session, but rallied again later in the middle of the morning and was about unchanged to 3 points higher with the new crop relatively steady. Liverpool was closed and will not reopen until Monday morning.

Spot cotton closed quiet; middling uplands, 12.25; middling gulf, 12.60. Sales 126 bales. Futures closed steady. Closing bids: May, 10.57; June, 10.94; July, 10.96; August, 10.99; September, 11.09; October, 11.27; November, 11.30; December, 11.36; January, 11.47; February, 11.50; March, 11.55.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: A great deal of stress is being laid on the big borrowing demand for stocks. It is making the professional element rather nervous. The principal demand is for Union Pacific and Steel common. It is said that one house is borrowing over 200,000 shares of various stocks. Considering the enormous amount of Steel common outstanding, some good market judges consider the borrowing demand in that stock fictitious.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market showed no change today. The traders are generally bearish and the money situation is helping them. We expect a little rally against the shorts within a day or two, and then we feel sure all the list will be a sale again.

Treasury Balances.

Washington, May 24.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $252,589,294; gold coin and bullion, $94,555,527; gold certificates, $44,174,630.

St. Paul Live Stock.

St. Paul, May 24.—Cattle: Receipts, 400; market, steady and unchanged. Hogs: Receipts, 3,000; 10c lower, range, $6.00@6.22½; bulk, $6.15@6.22½. Sheep: Receipts, 100; about steady and no change.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market conditions up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers:

FACES JURY THIRD TIME

Frederick M. Argyle Accused of Assaulting Bessie Butchart.

Defense Claims Former Verdict a Bar to Prosecution.

Frederick M. Argyle, who shot Miss Bessie Butchart in the head at Lakeside, March 5 last, destroying the sight of one eye, is being tried for assault in the first degree.

This is the third time that Argyle has been placed on trial in the district court. The other two trials were based on indictments accusing him with assaulting his wife, Lillie Argyle, with intent to kill. The jury were unable to agree in the first trial, and a verdict of not guilty because of insanity was returned at the close of the second trial.

Since it became known that the state would push the remaining indictments against Argyle there has been more or less speculation as to what effect the former verdict might have. W. E. Culkin, who has been defending Argyle, has moved for a dismissal of the present case on the ground that one jury has already found him to have been insane when he made the alleged assault on his wife, which was contemporaneous with his shooting Miss Butchart. Mr. Culkin holds that the verdict is a bar to a prosecution of the Butchart case against Argyle. The arguments will be heard by the court before any evidence is taken.

Up to this noon five talesmen had been accepted on the jury these were Leslie P. Wilkie, city ticket agent for the South Shore road; Fred W. Colby, manager of the local branch house of Swift & Co.; John P. Daly, grocer; Frank Ehlenbach, general merchant, West Duluth; Frank Nichols, laborer, employed by Duluth Van company.

The selection of a jury has been proceeding quite slowly, the defense exercising apparently extreme caution in the matter. Mr. Culkin examined all those accepted as jurors, concerning their knowledge of the case, gained from newspaper accounts of former trials, or from what they have heard other people say. Jurors were questioned closely as to whether they had formed any opinion concerning the guilt or innocence of Argyle, and whether they had any prejudice against a defense of insanity.

At noon today it looked very much as though the jury would not be complete before this evening.

Forty men answered summons, yesterday, for special jury service, so that there is quite a large list of talesmen from which to make a selection.

WEST DULUTH
ARE GOING SKYWARD

Forerunners of a Boom in Western Part of City.

"Real estate values in West Duluth, Smithville and other points west of the city, are shooting skyward," said a New Duluth man, who was in West Duluth yesterday. "The talk of the steel plant locating on the St. Louis river near New Duluth has caused owners of property in that district to take a renewed hold on it and only good substantial sums can induce them to release their grasp. I know properties which could be purchased a year ago for a nominal sum, and now one can't buy them for any amount within reason.
"It's only a natural consequence of the steel plant talk. Should such a big industry really come, as I believe it will, those places will have a boom, which will overshadow anything of the kind ever seen in Northern Minnesota for some time. Put the steel plant out there, run regular trains and extend the street car line to Fond du Lac and see what will happen to New Duluth. The boom in real estate values is only a forerunner. When the actual work on the plant begins, the values will shoot still higher and those holding land there now will reap the harvest.
"Fond du Lac will have a little boom of its own out there this summer, from what I hear. All available lots are being taken up and there are several new cottages in prospect. Those who have made their summer homes there in the past are showing no inclination to let them go and the population of the place will be much more this year than ever before."

Surprise Party.

Mrs. C. D. Hibbard of West Duluth gave a surprise birthday party to Mrs. Charles Boss Wednesday evening. The evening was pleasantly spent with cards and dancing and refreshments were served. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Bingham and Jay Howard of Lakeside, Miss Frances Merriman of Superior, Mr. and Mrs. Falkner, Mr. and Mrs. Graves, Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Swingle, George Graves, Charles Graves, Ben Hibbard, Miss Burnside, Charles Boss.

MEXICO OBJECTS TO THE SHOOTING OF SUBJECTS WITHOUT A FAIR TRIAL

Warns Guatemala That Sentence Must Not be Executed.

Two Mexicans Condemned, With Nineteen Others, to Die.

All Were Implicated in Attempt on President's Life.

City of Mexico, May 25.—News has been received here of the imprisonment and sentencing of nineteen men, charged with complicity in the recent attempt to assassinate President Cabrera of Guatemala.

The following telegram came from Dr. Rodenguez Parra, Mexican consul at Guatemala City, who is acting as charge d'affaires since the departure of Minister Gamboa:

"The author of the plot to assassinate Cabrera, committed suicide day before yesterday while the Guatemalan officials were arresting them. Despite this fact, the council of war yesterday passed upon the testimony of nineteen persons charged with being suspected accomplices in the crime and sentenced all to death. Among the doomed are two Italians, one Spaniard, one Belgian and two Mexicans. The diplomatic corps met today and decided that each minister accredited to the Guatemalan government should ask President Cabrera for an annulment of the sentences, which, they allege, were the result of irregularities and false testimony. If this action on their part does not bring immediate results, the diplomatic corps will direct a collective note to President Cabrera tomorrow. All the members of the corps were in accord with the decision."

The situation is considered by officials here to be most grave, but there

MACHINISTS WILL STRIKE

All Over Country Against Railroads "Piece Work" Plan.

New York, May 25—The strike of machinists, which began all along the line of the Erie railroad, yesterday, is understood to be only the first step in a general strike of machinists against railroads where the "piece work" plan is in vogue, according to a statement given out at the Erie offices, here, today. The Erie officers declare that the union leaders are opposed to the piece work plan, not because it is unfair to the men, but because its application has resulted in more of them withdrawing their active support from the union. Determination to continue in denial of the strikers' demands that the piece work plan be abolished was expressed at the Erie offices today. It was said that arrangements are being made to fill the places of the strikers, and that the shops are expected to be in full operation by Monday. General Manager Stuart said many places already have been filled by the promotion of apprentices, and that while heavy work has been stopped in most of the shops, running repairs were being made today.

THEODORE TILTON HAS PASSED AWAY

Paris, May 25.—Theodore Tilton is dead.

Theodore Tilton, author and journalist, was born in New York Oct. 2, 1835. He was editor of the Independent, New York from 1856 to 1870, editor of the Golden Age from 1871 to 1874, and from 1874 to 1876 he was editor of the Brooklyn Union. In August, 1874, Mr. Tilton sued Henry Ward Beecher for $100,000 damages for the alienation of Mrs. Tilton's affections. The trial lasted 112 days, and resulted in a disagreement. Mr. Tilton had lived in Paris since 1888.

For some days past Mr. Tilton had been suffering from double pneumonia, complicated with heart trouble.

ADDITIONAL WITNESSES

Boise Idaho., May 25.—At the opening of the Haywood trial today, Judge Wood granted the state permission to endorse the names of several additional witnesses on the indictment against the accused miners, the defense naming an exception under the decision of the Idaho state supreme court, which held that the filing of the additional witnesses after the trial has begun is an error without prejudice. Attorney Richardson declared that the defense has been unable to locate many of the witnesses for the state and had been informed by counsel for the state that they did not know the address of many of their own witnesses. If surprises should develop from the testimony of these unlocated witnesses, Mr. Richardson said a delay might be looked for.

Finley McBean, a Scotchman by birth, qualified this morning, after a thorough examination by Attorney Darrow of the defense. He took his place as a juror in seat No. 2. The defense exercising the seventh of its ten peremptory challenges, excusing John Whitlock, a nurseryman, at No. 6, from further service. Whitlock was formerly a guard at the penitentiary under Governor Hunt.

MRS. McKINLEY NOT SO WELL

Canton, Ohio, May 25.—After an early morning call at the McKinley home, preceding the conference with Dr. Rixey, Dr. O. E. Portman in a statement says Mrs. McKinley is not so well, that all the change in her condition since early morning has been unfavorable, and that Dr. Rixey will abandon his plan to return to Washington tonight unless the day's developments are much wore satisfactory.

At 10:15 Rev. Dr. Buxton, pastor of the First M. E. church of which Mrs. McKinley is a member, came from the McKinley home. He said that he found the symptoms of the patient alarming. Mrs. McKinley is gradually sinking, and he believes she cannot possibly survive.

A conference of Drs. Rixey, Portman and Eyman is being held.

Concord, N. H., May 25.—Arguments were completed in the Merrimack county superior court yesterday on the motion of the trustees of the state of Mary Baker G. Eddy, head of the Christian Science church, to intervene and be substituted as plaintiffs in the suit brought by her son, George W. Glover, and others to compel an accounting of her property. Judge Chamberlain, the presiding justice, issued an order that all affidavits and all citations in the case be filed by next Tuesday, and his decision on the motion will be given later.

Does Not Agree With President on Federal Control.

National Government Should Direct Interstate Commerce Only.

Opposed to Government Ownership, Except as Last Resort.

St. Paul, May 25.—The Dispatch today prints under a Vicksburg, Miss., date, an interview with Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota, who is in the South in connection with the dedication of a monument erected by Minnesota in the National park at Vicksburg.

In this interview Governor Johnson says his visit to the South has no political significance, as his only hope at present is to fulfill his duties to his state as governor.

Asked if he would ignore the demands of the Democratic party if made upon him, he said:

"No authorized body in the country, of which I am aware, has as yet mentioned my name in any capacity. I recognize the fact that a number of newspapers throughout the country have discussed to some extent myself as one who might be available, and I am pleasantly conscious of all the kind things which have been said of me in this connection."

Regarding the attitude of the Democratic party in the next campaign, Mr. Johnson said:

"It seems to me that the slogan of the Democratic party in the next campaign, and in every succeeding campaign, until the question is settled, should be a revision of the tariff. A most thorough revision, mind you, for it is on this point that I disagree with the president of the United States. I believe that the tariff, more than any other cause,

MURDERER CAPTURED

San Jose, Cal., May 25.—A negro, believed to be Jesse Coe, wanted in Indianapolis for the murder of Policeman Charles Russell, on Sept. 30, 1906, was arrested here last night after a fierce battle with two policemen, both of whom were severely slashed with a razor wielded by the prisoner. He was finally overpowered and placed in jail.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 25.—The negro, thought to be Jesse Coe, arrested at San Jose, Cal., last night, after a desperate fight with police officers, is wanted in this city for the murder of Policeman Charles J. Russell, on the night of Sept. 30, 1906. Officer Edward J. Petticord, who accompanied Russell on the fatal night, was shot and killed by Coe's partner, George Williams. Williams paid the death penalty for his crime, being hanged at the Indiana penitentiary at Michigan City, on Feb. 8 of this year. Coe escaped after he had shot and killed Policeman Russell, and all efforts to trace him have been to no avail. There is a reward of $1,556 for the capture of Coe.

CAMBRIDGE WILL NOT SEND A TEAM

London, May 25.—It was definitely ascertained today that the projected track and field meet between Harvard and Yale and Oxford and Cmbridge is off for the present year, Oxford and Cambridge having definitely decided that they are unable to send a team to America. President Ryle of the Combridge University Athletic club telegraphed today to the Associated Press as follows: "The absence of due notice and financial considerations have prevented the acceptance of the challenge by Cambridge."

When the American challenge was received there was a feeling at the English universities decidedly in favor of its acceptance, but it was always realized that the paucity of funds at the disposal of the university athletic clubs might be a tar to the trip.

DUKE D'ABRUZZI,
Cousin of King of Italy, Who Is Visiting New York.

Indicted Man Makes Long Statement to American People.

Says Opponents Desire to Obtain Political Control of City.

Mullaly Also Declares That He is innocent of Charges.

San Francisco, May 25.—Patrick Calhoun, late last night, issued a lengthy statement, addressed to the American people, in which he says the returning of indictments against himself and associates is another step in the program to gain political control of this city by Rudolph Spreckels and others for selfish purposes, through a combination with the Labor Union party.

Mr. Colhoun says: "The evidence is now complete that self-confessed criminals have been retained on the board of supervisors to do the bidding of Spreckels and his fellows. In the language of one of the prosecutors, they are merely 'good dogs.' Their evidence has been purchased, and their services securd through immunity contracts.

"I charge that the motives of Mr. Spreckels and his associates are base and malicious; that his plans are

HUMMEL ONLY FEIGNS ILLNESS, SAYS KEEPER.

New York, May 25.—"No. 925 is still in the hospital suffering from nervous prostration and stomach trouble. He is on a milk diet and may not recover for two months."

This was the reply of the physician in charge of the hospital ward at the Blackwell's Island penitentiary, when asked about Abraham H. Hummel, who is serving a year for conspiracy in the Dodge-Morse divorce tangle.

Despite this report, the impression among Hummel's fellow-prisoners and his keepers is that the convicted lawyer is "soldiering."

"Hummel's only stallin'," declared one of the keepers; "he's wise, all right, and he'll do his bit; but you see, he won't do no more work 'n he can help."

MEXICO OBJECTS TO THE SHOOTING OF SUBJECTS WITHOUT A FAIR TRIAL

Warns Guatemala That Sentence Must Not be Executed.

Two Mexicans Condemned, With Nineteen Others, to Die.

All Were Implicated in Attempt on President's Life.

City of Mexico, May 25.—News has been received here of the imprisonment and sentencing of nineteen men, charged with complicity in the recent attempt to assassinate President Cabrera of Guatemala.

The following telegram came from Lic. Rodriguez Faria Mexican consul at Guatemala City, who is acting as charge d'affaires since the departure of Minister Gamboa:

"The author of the plot to assassinate Cabrera committed suicide day before yesterday while the Guatemalan officials were arresting them. People take fact the council of war yesterday passed upon the testimony of fourteen persons charged with being suspected accomplices in the crime and sentenced all to death. Among the doomed are two Italians one Spaniard one Belgian and two Mexicans. The diplomatic corps met today and decided that each minister accredited to the Guatemalan government should ask President Cabrera for the annulment of the sentences, which, they allege were the result of irregularities and false testimony. If this action on their part does not bring favorable results the diplomatic corps will direct a collective note to President Cabrera tomorrow. All the members of the corps are in accord with the censure.

"The situation is considered by officials here to be most grave, but there

All Over Country Against Railroads "Piece Work" Plan.

New York, May 25.—The strike of machinists, which began all along the line of the Erie railroad, yesterday, is understood to be only the first step in a general strike of machinists against railroads where the "piece work" plan is in vogue, according to a statement given out at the Erie offices, here, today. The Erie officers declare that the union leaders are opposed to the piece work plan, not because it is unfair to the men, but because its application has resulted in more of them withdrawing their active support from the union. Determination to continue in denial of the strikers' demands that the piece work plan be abolished was expressed at the Erie offices today. It was said that arrangements are being made to fill the places of the strikers, and that the shops are expected to be in full operation by Monday. General Manager Stuart said many places already have been filled by the promotion of apprentices, and that while heavy work has been stopped in most of the shops, running repairs were being made today.

THEODORE TILTON HAS PASSED AWAY

He was editor of the Independent, New York, from 1856 to 1870; editor of the Golden Age from 1871 to 1874, and from 1874 to 1876 he was editor of the Brooklyn Union. In August, 1874, Mr. Tilton sued Henry Ward Beecher for $100,000 damages for the alienation of Mrs. Tilton's affections. The trial lasted 112 days, and resulted in a disagreement. Mr. Tilton had lived in Paris since 1885.

For some days past Mr. Tilton had been suffering from double pneumonia, complicated with heart trouble.

ADDITIONAL WITNESSES

Boise, Idaho, May 25.—At the opening of the Haywood trial today, Judge Wood granted the state permission to endorse the names of several additional witnesses on the indictment against the accused miners, the defense naming an exception under the decision of the Idaho state supreme court, which held that the filing of the additional witnesses after the trial has begun, is an error without prejudice. Attorney Richardson declared that the defense has been unable to locate many of the witnesses for the state and had been informed by counsel for the state that they did not know the address of many of their own witnesses. If surprises should develop from the testimony of these untested witnesses, Mr. Richardson said a delay might be asked for.

Finley McBean, a Scotchman by birth, qualified this morning, after a thorough examination by Attorney Darrow of the defense. He took his place as a juror in seat No. 2. The defense exercising the seventh of its ten peremptory challenges, excusing John Whitlock a nurseryman, at No. 6 from further service. Whitlock was formerly a guard at the penitentiary under Governor Hunt.

MRS. McKINLEY NOT SO WELL

Canton, Ohio, May 25.—After an early morning call at the McKinley home, preceding the conference with Dr. Rixey, Dr. O. E. Portman in a statement says Mrs. McKinley is not so well, that all the change in her condition since early morning has been unfavorable, and that Dr. Rixey will abandon his plan to return to Washington tonight unless the day's developments are much more satisfactory.

At 10:15 Rev. Dr. Buxton, pastor of the First M. E. church of which Mrs. McKinley is a member, came from the McKinley home. He said that he found the symptoms of the patient alarming. Mrs. McKinley is gradually sinking, and he believes she cannot possibly survive.

A conference of Drs. Rixey, Portman and Eyman is being held.

Does Not Agree With President on Federal Control.

National Government Should Direct Interstate Commerce Only.

St. Paul, May 25.—The Dispatch today prints under a Vicksburg, Miss., date, an interview with Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota, who is in the South in connection with the dedication of a monument erected by Minnesota in the National park at Vicksburg.

In this interview Governor Johnson says his visit to the South has no political significance, as his only hope at present is to fulfill his duties to his state as governor.

Asked if he would ignore the demands of the Democratic party if made upon him, he said:

"No authorized body in the country, of which I am aware, has as yet mentioned my name in any capacity. I recognize the fact that a number of newspapers throughout the country have discussed to some extent myself as one who might be available, and I am pleasantly conscious of all the kind things which have been said of me in this connection."

Regarding the attitude of the Democratic party in the next campaign, Mr. Johnson said:

"It seems to me that the slogan of the Democratic party in the next campaign, and in every succeeding campaign, until the question is settled, should be a revision of the tariff. A most thorough revision, mind you, for it is on this point that I disagree with the president of the United States. I believe that the tariff, more than any other cause,

President Ryle of the Cambridge University Athletic club telegraphed today to the Associated Press as follows: "The absence of due notice and financial considerations have prevented the acceptance of the challenge by Cambridge."

When the American challenge was received there was a feeling at the English universities decidedly in favor of its acceptance, but it was always realized that the paucity of funds at the disposal of the university athletic clubs might be a bar to the trip.

San Francisco, May 25.—Patrick Calhoun, late last night, issued a lengthy statement, addressed to the American people, in which he says the returning of indictments against himself and associates is another step in the program to gain political control of this city by Rudolph Spreckels and others for selfish purposes, through a combination with the Labor Union party.

Mr. Calhoun says: "The evidence is now complete that self-confessed criminals have been retained on the board of supervisors to do the bidding of Spreckels and his fellows. In the language of one of the prosecutors, they are merely 'good dogs.' Their evidence has been purchased, and their services secured through immunity contracts.

"I charge that the motives of Mr. Spreckels and his associates are base and malicious; that his plans are

RAILROAD NEWS

Duluth Will Soon Have Four Transcontinental Systems.

Eight Different Lines Will Have Direct Access to City.

With the completion of the Soo road into Duluth, and the completion of the Milwaukee line to the Pacific coast, Duluth will have four transcontinental railroads entering the city, the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, the Soo and the Milwaukee.

While the latter road hasn't a line of its own extending to the Head of the Lakes, it has a traffic agreement with the Northern Pacific that means practically the same thing, and there is an excellent prospect that within the next two or three years the Milwaukee will build a line of its own into Duluth, from the Twin Cities. This will soon be necessary if business increases at the rate expected.

Duluth is rapidly developing into a railroad center of considerable importance, and the present rate of development the city will be on a par with other important railroad centers of the West before very long. The Soo already has a traffic agreement with the Northern Pacific, so there are really now eight different railroad companies having direct access to Duluth, and this number will be increased to nine when the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake builds the proposed extension to Duluth from Virginia. The Wisconsin Central will mean a new line, but, like the Milwaukee and the Soo lines, the Wisconsin Central is now working under a traffic agreement with the Northern Pacific.

PULLMAN RATES.

Interstate Commerce Commission Asked to Secure a Reduction.

Washington, May 25.—A definite effort was begun today before the interstate commerce commission to secure to the public a reduction in the rates charged by the Pullman company for its sleeping car accommodations. This is the first time in the history of the commission that a proceeding has been brought against the Pullman company.

Three complaints were filed against the Pullman company and various northwestern railroads that are made co-defendants, by George S. Loftus, a business man of St. Paul, Minn. Mr. Loftus avers that, in the course of his business, he is obliged to travel from St. Paul to various other points and to use the accommodations of the Pullman company. The charges for the accommodation, he declares, are unjust, unreasonable, and excessive, and he asks that the commission reduce them.

His first complaint is against the Pullman company, the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, and the Great Northern railway. He avers that the charges made by these companies for a sleeper car berth from St. Paul, Minn., to Superior, Wis., is $1.50 whether the berth be an upper or a lower. He says the lower berths are far more desirable than the upper berths and that the price of the latter ought to be considerably less than that of the former. The exaction of the same charge for both, complainant alleged, results in discrimination against passengers, who are compelled to take upper berths. He requests the commission to fix as a maximum charge for a lower berth between St. Paul and Superior $1, and for an upper berth 50 cents.

RAILWAY CLUB.

Very Successful Meeting is Held at the Commercial Club.

The regular monthly meeting of the Northern Railway club, held last evening at the Commercial club, was largely attended. Special trains were run from Two Harbors and Proctor, and brought a good many outside members to Duluth for the meeting.

"The Care and Management of Locomotives" was the subject of an interesting paper read by Charles Cotter of the Duluth & Iron Range road. There was a discussion of a paper read at the last meeting on the process of creosoting railway ties, and brief talks were made by J. F. Smith of Chicago, representing the American Foundry company; Mr. Baker of the Murphy Varnish company, and Frederick A. Gale of the Erie Heating company. There was an excellent musical program, with other features for the entertainment of members.

CHIEF IS INCENSED BY CHARGES OF J. H. GRANDE

Says Claims of Persecution Conspiracy Are False.

Alleges That Grande Was Wanted Before Coming to Duluth.

To the Editor of The Herald:

During the past month or more, one, J. H. LaGrande, alias J. H. Grande, alias J. Vaccars, who was arrested by me on request of Walter F. Sibley, sheriff of Stockton, Cal., as a fugitive from justice, being charged in San Joaquim county, Cal., with the crime of forgery, has been making himself notorious by getting himself interviewed by newspaper men, and by writing letters to the newspapers, alleging that he is not guilty of any crime in the state of California, and that the charges brought against him by the officers in that state, and the requisition papers issued by the governor of that state, upon which papers the governor of the state of Minnesota issued his warrant of extradition, ordereing the return of the said LeGrande to the state of California, is merely a conspiracy between the chief of police of the city of Duluth and the sheriff of the county of St. Louis, and Mr. Grande's alleged competitors in the city of Duluth, and the officials in the state of California, to have Grande taken back to that state for the purpose of getting rid of him in his city, and for the purpose of persecuting him, etc., and not for the purpose of prosecuting him for any offense which he has committed.

I do not care to take up your space to go into the merits of the case in California, which is, in fact, none of my business, anyhow, except to state that all of my communications by wire and by letter from the sheriff in California, which are in my possession, clearly indicate and prove that the sheriff did not know that Mr. Grande had a commission business, or any competitors, but that he supposed he was merely employed here by a certain fruit company. These letters also show conclusively that Sheriff Sibley got all of his information with reference to Grande's whereabouts from citizens of the state of California, and not from citizens of the city of Duluth, either directly or indirectly, and the fact that the first warrant against Grande was issued in October, 1906, at least five months before Grande had ever been heard of in this city, would, it seems to me, clearly indicate that this crime was charged against him long before he had any competitors in the city of Duluth, if he has, in fact, ever competed against anybody here in business.

So far as I am personally concerned, I wish to state emphatically that no commission man, or alleged competitor of Mr. Grande, in the city of Duluth has ever spoken to me or been spoken to by me with reference to Mr. Grande, except the president of the common council, Mr. Tessman, who happens to be a commission man, but who spoke to me on account of Grande having preferred charges against me to Mr. Tessman, as president of the council, and not as a commission man or competitor.

I have correspondence in my possession sent to the sheriff at Stockton by Grande which refutes effectually every allegation made in Grande's letter, published in yesterday's News Tribune, alleging a conspiracy against him, and which shows conclusively that Grande attempted to go into a conspiracy with the sheriff at Stockton to bring suit against me and others in the city of Duluth.

My correspondence with the sheriff at Stockton, a copy of which is on file in my office, also shows conclusively that I never intimated to that official any desire whatever to have Grande returned to the state of California, to say nothing of having commanded the sheriff there, as Grande alleges, to have him returned to California on account of a damage suit brough against me by him.

He has not only attempted to conspire with officials of California, but he has attempted to bring the sheriff of this county into the coils of himself and his wife by requesting private interviews with the sheriff with the request that no other persons be present, except Grande and his wife. He has both before his last arrest and since his communication to the News Tribune yesterday morning, made attempts by telephone to have similar interviews with me, no doubt thinking that he could get me into a position where he could make as false representations against me as he does in his letter, when he states that I abused him and used vile language when I served the governor's warrant upon him. The situation was exactly reversed and Grande abused me in language too vile to be incorporated in this letter.

The sheriff and I are, however, not looking for private interviews with Mr. and Mrs Grande to allow them to entwine their coils about us.

Do it Now! Don't Wait Until It's Too Late!

KEEP your body clean!

Most people are very neat and clean in their outward appearance, but how about the inside?

Are you clean inside?

And if not, how can you face the world with clean thoughts, clear intelligence, a fair, just, bright mind and get your full share of capacity for work and enjoyment?

The small intestine is compelled to absorb the poison of decaying matter instead of wholesome nourishment.

The liver gets inactive; the bile doesn't "work off"; the eyes get yellow; the skin gets dead like putty and pale like dough, disfigured with boils, pimples, blackheads and liver-spots.

There's only one solution to the problem: Keep clean inside all the time. That's the answer.

If you can not diet, or keep your mechanism going by proper exercise, take Cascarets, the sweet, fragrant, harmless little vegetable tablets, that "act like exercise" on your bowels, and gently but powerfully clean out and disinfect the whole digestive canal.

A Cascaret every night before going to bed will "work while you sleep" and make you "feel fine in the morning."

If you have been neglecting yourself for some time, take a Cascaret night and morning and break up the "constipated habit" without acquiring a "cathartic habit."

Cascarets are sold by all druggists, 10c, 25c and 50c. The 10c size trial box is a neat fit for the vest pocket or lady's purse.

Be sure to get the genuine with the "long-tailed C" on the box and the letters "CCC" on each tablet. They are never sold in bulk. 744

SCHWAB WANTS COREY.

Head of Steel Corporation May Take Position With Bethlehem.

New York, May 25.—There was a report in Wall street yesterday which originated in Pittsburg that Charles M. Schwab and W. Ellis Corey had reached an agreement by the terms of which the latter is to resign his $100,000 position as president of the United States Steel corporation to take the presidency of the Bethelehem Steel company, founded by Charles M. Schwab, out of the wreck of the shipbuilding combination and now one of the rivals of the great steel trust of which Schwab was the first president. There has been very heavy selling of the United States Steel common this week, and, according to Pittsburg advices, the principal sellers have been Charles M. Schwab and W. Ellis Corey.

It is said that while in Pittsburg recently, Mr. Schwab in discussing iron and steel matters, said to some friends that Corey was one of the brightest men ever in the steel business and that when he left the United States Steel corporation he would find a berth in the Bethelehem Steel corporation.

The story that Mr. Corey intended to leave the steel trust was repeated by a correspondent in Pittsburg to President A. E. Dinkey of the Carnegie Steel company. Mr. Dinkey said that he did not believe it but that if Mr. Corey did resign from the United States Steel corporation he would have no trouble in finding work.

MINNESOTA INDIAN IS AFTER A WHITE GIRL.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 25.—C. Beesaw, an Indian from the White Earth reservation in Minnesota was arrested at Vinton on suspicion that he was seeking to abduct the 15-year-old daughter of H. G. Mendenhall, whom he had followed from the reservation. Mendenhall formerly lived in the White Earth reservation, and says that Beesaw kidnapped his oldest daughter, a beautiful white girl and kept her in hiding for a week before her frantic parents found her.

Mendenhall removed to Vinton to get away from the Indian. He says that just before he started, Beesaw and another Indian kidnapped a younger daughter and kept her three days, but were arrested and fined at Duluth. The father thought he had evaded the Indians, and was dismayed yesterday when Beesaw appeared at Vinton with a man named Ellsworth and was seen skulking around the Mendenhalf home.

Carrying concealed weapons is the charge upon which the Indian is held pending further investigation of his abduction record.

CONFIRMS SUSPICIONS

Autopsy Proves That Walter O'Neil Was Victim of Assault.

Council Will Meet Tonight to Offer Reward for Slayer.

The autopsy which was performed by Dr. O'Brien upon the body of Walter O'Neil yesterday afternoon confirmed the suspicions of the police that the boy had been murdered in order to prevent him disclosing the commission of a previous revolting assault. The inquest, which was to have been held yesterday afternoon was indefinitely postponed on account of the lack of any evidence, but Coroner Dudley stated yesterday that he would probably hold it today regardless of whether more evidence should have been discovered or not.

Mayor Victor Linley has called a special meeting of the city council this evening, "to consider ways and means of apprehending and bringing to justice the murderer of Walter O'Neil, and to consider the offering of a reward for the apprehension and bringing to justice of such murderer, and taking all necessary action in that behalf."

Chief McKinnon has already offered $100 reward for the apprehension of the fiend who committed the deed and the city council is expected to still further increase this. Several private citizens of means in Superior are also said to be ready to make substantial additions to the price upon the murderer's head should it be thought that this will aid materially in securing his arrest.

The police are still without a clue and until someone is found who saw the boy after leaving home Tuesday afternoon they are very likely to remain as much in the dark as ever. An attempt has been made to find the plank or other instrument with which the boy was killed, but without avail, and a number of persons who had been reported as saying that they saw the lad after he disappeared from home, denied making any such statements when questioned by the police. The police believe that there must have been someone who saw the lad, but that they are afraid to report it for fear of being implicated in the horrible affair.

The funeral services of the murdered boy will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Hammond avenue Presbyterian church and interment will be made at Greenwood. Rev. L. K. Grimes will conduct the services.

THEATRICALS FEATURED

Theatricals are taking a prominent part in the Superior graduating programs this year. Plays have been the feature of nearly every set of exercises which have been held here this season, and their success in almost every case has been most conspicuous.

Last evening two more classes celebrated their graduation by the histrionic talent of a number of their members. The Bryant school graduating class gave an old fashioned concert entitled "Ye Little Old Folks" at the Twenty-fifth avenue M. E. church and the big audience which filled the church was delighted with it.

The Nelson-Dewey graduates gave an operetta entitled "Bonnydell," in which forty memebers of the large class took part and concluded the program with a one act farce "Professor Black's Phonograph," about twenty of the young men of the class officiating in this selection.

CHAS. M'KINNON DIES.

Former Deputy Sheriff Succumbs to Lingering Illness.

After a lingering illness, lasting for nearly a year, Charles McKinnon, brother of ex-Sheriff McKinnon, died last evening at the home of his sister, Mrs. Ambrose McPhee, 1520 Fourteenth street of lung trouble. The end came peacefully about 7:30. Mr. McKinnon has done everything possible to regain his failing health during the last twelve months. He has lived out of doors as much as possible, has traveled extensively and only last Monday returned from Colorado Springs. It was all to no avail, however, and he kept rapidly sinking to the end.

Mr. McKinnon was well known and much liked throughout Superior. His duties in the sheriff's office had been very effectual in enlarging his circle of friends, and his death, while long expected will still be a distinct shock to them. He was 27 years of age at the time of his death and is survived by four brothers and two sisters. Besides Mrs. McPhee, at whose home he died, there are Miss Mae McKinnon, Edward McKinnon, Fred McKinnon, Wallace McKinnon and William McKinnon. The funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

Ore Puncher Disappears.

John Kuhlo, an ore puncher on the Allouez ore dock has been missing from his boarding house since Thursday evening and it is feared that he has fallen from the dock and been drowned. The last seen of the missing man he was starting down a stairway at the dock to recover his hat which had blown off and fallen to the lower part of the dock. This was about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. He did not show up at his boarding house and his friends notified the police. They spent yesterday afternoon dragging the bottom of the bay around the dock, but without avail. Kuhlo was 23 years of age and unmarried.

OSHKOSH GETS MEETING.

Next Session of Superintendents to be Held There.

The Wisconsin convention of county superintendents was brought to a close this morning in a business and literary session. Quite a warm fight was experienced when the question of the selection of the next meeting place came up, Oshkosh and La Crosse being the principal contestants and Oshkosh winning out by a narrow margin of votes. Papers were read by State Inspector of Rural Schools Wood and by Mrs. Bradford of the Menomonie training school, who talked on "Reading."

The harbor excursion, which had been planned for this afternoon, was called off on account of the weather.

Flashed a Gun.

Fred Ross was arrested in a saloon last evening, charged with carrying concealed weapons. Ross was flourishing a big Colt .44, when the police arrived and was attempting to collect $10 from the other men in the saloon. Ross said that he had lost $10 while there and that some of them must have it, so he started in to get it in the quickest and best way. He forfeited $15 bail, by non-appearance this morning, and the case was dropped.

INTERRUPTING A HUNT.

Bystander: After a good hunting run the pack seemed within measurable distance of getting hold of their fox, when suddenly he disappeared in a most unaccountable way.

But some gypsies, with a lurcher dog, were observed by the roadside, and upon their being questioned as to the whereabouts of the fox it was discovered that they had him in a bag. Moreover, before they would part with him they wanted half a crown—which for pure unadulterated cheek has seldom been equalled in fox hunting annals. Not only had these businesslike nomads, with the help of their dog, stopped the run and purloined the fox, but they did not mean to restore him to the members of the hunt unless they got something out of it.

The situation was not without its humorous side, and it was with mingled amusement and indignation that the Burstow men "parted." Then the fox was liberated, the hounds were soon on his line again and eventually got hold of him.

Claim Their Employers' Liability Contract Was Repudiated.

An action which will, it is claimed, test the ability of concerns carrying employers' liability policies to collect from the insurance companies in case of a loss, was filed in the district court this morning.

The suit has been started by Swallow & Hopkins, a large lumbering and mining concern, against the Aetna Life Insurance company. The amount sued for is $3,514.25 which purports to be the aggregate of sums paid out by the Swallow & Hopkins company in settling damage claims and paying other necessary expenses in connection with them.

In the complaint, which has been filed by Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell, Swallow & Hopkins claim that they entered into a contract with the Aetna company March 10, 1906, for a liability policy covering its employes in the Holland mine.

It is alleged that one Victor Pihlajanaki was injured in the mine, that he was not one of the excepted classes under the policy, and that he was injured in a manner as to make Swallow & Hopkins liable for damages.

It is claimed that the Aetna company was notified of the injury but that when Pihlajanaki, through his attorneys, Theodore Hollister and John R. Heino, started suit, the insurance company refused to defend, declined to accept the risk, and, in fact, repudiated its liability in the matter.

Swallow & Hopkins claim that a proposition was made to them to settle the case for $300 and that they gave the insurance company an opportunity to take charge of the case but it refused to do so, and a settlement was effected for $300, the other expenses in connection with the settlement being $259.85.

Swallow & Hopkins claim that during the month of June, 1906, another employe, named Joe Fabish was killed, and his estate brought suit for $5,000 damages. It is alleged the Aetna Life Insurance company again refused to defend under its alleged policy, and that a settlement was finally effected by Swallow & Hopkins for $2,700, not including $254.50 expenses.

Swallow & Hopkins claim that the insurance company, under the terms of its liability policy, should make good the amounts that it has paid out and judgment is demanded.

BOYS ENJOY AN AUTO RIDE

Fifty Members of Y. M. C. A. Have a Pleasant Outing.

The automobile party, which opened the first of the summer outings in connection with the boys' department, was held last night, and was an occasion that will be long remembered by the fifty boys who were fortunate to be there. Long before the time of starting the tickets had run out, and also there were only nine autos, the crowd was limited to the first fifty. The party left the boys' building at 8:45, and the route followed was Second street to Seventh avenue west, out Superior street to Nineteenth avenue east, along London road to Lester park, back to Twentieth avenue west and from there to the club, where the outing committee had provided refreshments. The committee appreciated the kindness of those who sent their autos, and also those who were unable to be present last night, but who have promised to send them up on a future occasion. The following sent their machines up last evening: P. S. Anneke, W. H. Cole, G. H. Lounsberry, Alfred Merritt, F. A. Patrick, R. J. McLeod, F. Freeman, F. A. Cokefair and H. W. Fisher.

The next outing will take place Saturday, June 8, and will be a trip to Mountain Iron to see the largest open mine in the world.

The older boys' meeting will not be held at the boys' department Sunday afternoon, but will be held at the Lyceum, where Maurice Reuben of Pittsburg will speak.

The Knights of Sir Gallahad will meet at the boys' department at 3 o'clock and will be addressed by Rev. A. Milne. All boys under 14 years are invited.

WEST DULUTH

ONE OF THE PIONEERS

Came to Duluth With Freeman Keene Fifty Years Ago.

Eugene Marshall, one of Duluth's oldest settlers, both in point of age and length of residence at the Head of the Lakes, died this morning at the home of John Schulte, Sixty-third avenue west and Lexington street, of ailments brought on by advanced age. Mr. Marshall was 93 years of age, and came to Duluth over fifty years ago with the late Freeman Keene, who died a few years ago.

Little is known of Mr. Marshall's personal history. He was born in lower Michigan or Ohio, and was a foreman of carpenters when the locks were constructed at Sault Ste. Marie in the early '50s. He and Mr. Keene then came to Duluth by boat, arriving when there were but a few houses on the site of the city and no railroads of any kind. The only means of communication with the outer world was furnished by an occasional boat in summer and long journeys over the snow in winter.

Mr. Marshall worked at his trade as a carpenter here, but retired on account of old age several years ago. He had acquired some property which has been in the hands of a trustee for several years, Mr. Marshall boarded at the Shulte home. Mrs. Marshall died a number of years ago, and there were no children, so it is not known whether there are any relatives surviving the deceased, certainly none at the Head of the Lakes. The remains were removed to Filiatrault's morgue this morning to await the arrangements for the funeral, which will probably be held Monday or Tuesday afternoon.

DON'T LIKE DOCK PLANS.

West Duluth People Want Ramsey Street Extended.

A committee of the West Duluth Commercial club, consisting of M. M. Zauft, J. J. Frey, A. T. Park, M. Jolitz and P. H. Martin will appear before the city council next Monday night and protest against the plans for the approach to the proposed municipal dock at the foot of Ramsey street. The original intention was to have Ramsey street extended so as to provide an approach to the dock direct by that thoroughfare, but the plans were later changed, so as to provide for an extention of Forty-eighth avenue west from Oneota stret, necessitating an approach to the dock from Ramsey street by a circuitous route. The change did not meet with the approval of West Duluth residents, and the question was brought up at the meeting of the Commercial club last evening.

The members of the club expressed disapproval of the proposed plans of approach and favored the extension of Ramsey stret rather than Forty-eighth avenue. The original dock committee consisting of Messrs. Clark, Zauft and Frey was increased by three members, and they were instructed to convey to the council next Monday night, the sentiment of the club expressed in the following resolution, which was adopted:

"Resolved, that the West Duluth Commercial club is in favor of building a West Duluth dock at the foot of Ramsey street, with a Ramsey street approach and is not in favor of an approach by Forty-eighth avenue."

PROTEST ON PETITION.

Oneota Street Property Owners Will Kick to Council.

In all probability a protest will be entered by property owners along Oneota street from Forty-sixth avenue west to its intersection with Ramsey street, when the board of public works makes its report to the council Monday evening on the petition for paving the street which was submitted last week.

An attempt will probably be made to show that the petition does not have the required 25 per cent of the property owners on Oneota street, though along the whole line of tthe improvement, including Ramsey street, the signers may make up 25 per cent of the whole. They expect to be able to demonstrate that while a good portion of the Ramsey street owners have signed the petition, the Oneota street owners are almost unrepresented on the petition, and they do not want the street paved.

They say that their property has been practically confiscated twice already, first, when the street was graded, and second, when the cedar block paving was laid, and that an additional street assessment at this time would be an imposition. What weight this argument will have with the council remains to be seen.

PETUNIA VALUED HIGHEST.

Los Angeles Times: Flowers run to the most remarkable extremes in this yield. Sweet peas, which seed more freely than any flower, sometimes produce 3,600 pounds to the acre—a ton and a half of seeds. The double petunia, which is known to seedgrowers as the "shyest seeder," will sometimes fail to yield a pound to the acre.

This inability of the double petunia to hold its seed makes it very valuable. Its retail price is $6 an ounce or $1,120 a pound. It is worth more than ten times its weight in gold. This seed is much finer than gunpowder and almost as fine as cooking flour. It is almost impossible to distinguish the separate seeds, and is the most expensive kind handled by any dealer. The cheapest seeds sold by the pound are those of the beet and mustard, which cost only 5 cents a pound. In plentiful seasons sweet peas sometimes sell for 7 cents a pound.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

The University Orchestra Heard Again in an Excellent Program.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 25.—(Special to The Herlad.)—Intercollegiate preliminaries in debate are to be held this evening and Monday evening. Twenty-five men are entered for six places. The large number of entries has made it necessary to hold the contests on two evenings. At these preliminaries the teams which will represent Minnesota against Nebraska and Wisconsin will be chosen.

On account of the excellence of the material the debating board is considering the advisability of choosing an additional third team to take part in a debate with some third college such as the North or South Dakota university. The judges in this contest will be professors McDermott, Willis, Sardeson and Sanford, the faculty members of the debating board, and the outside judges who have not yet been secured. The time allowed each speaker will be eight mintes. Five minutes will be for constructive work and three minutes for rebuttal.

The following men have entered the contest: Albert G. Evans, M. J. Doherty, A. O. Coburn, L. Prigge, J. F. Sinclair, P. D. Stralton, A. M. Gilbertson, J. L. Gleason, H. P. Duff, F. Persinger, O. M. Harter, C. D. Randall, H. L. Dearing, Zenas Potter, E. L. Swenson, N. A. Houck, L. A. Frye, M. Lowenthal and J. O. Maland.

The question to be used in the preliminaries is "Resolved, That the Federal Government Should Exercise Control Over All Transportation Corporations Doing Interstate Business Constitutionally Granted."

This is the first year in the history of the music department that anything has been done in the line of free composition.. In some instances the composition were performed by the composers. The other numbers were in the hands of well known soloists.

The program was varied and artistic in the extreme, about fifteen compositions being rendered.

University musicians, cadets and others had an opportunity to hear the University orchestra again last evening. The program, which was put on Tuesday, May 14, when cadet inspection took place, was repeated with a few changes. On account of the bad weather on inspection day, and the fact that classes did not meet, very few came to college, and consequently the audience at the first performance was small. The attendance Friday was very good, and an excellent program was given. Besides solos on several instruments, vocal selections were given, and a very interesting reading.

"Twelfth Night," to be given by the Dramatic club on the campus in the Ben Greet fashion, June 1, marks a new epoch in the university dramatic circles. "It is right in line with the present tendency of the Eastern university," said Mr. Holt, director of the Dramatic club, "to give classics." He also said that on the whole the Dramatic club has given a number of plays that will rank as high as the efforts of the Eastern universities. Ibsen's "Pillars of Society" was the most important production in recent years, which received high praise from city critics.

The production of "Twelfth Night" bids fair to rival "Pillars of Society" in interest and success.

Admiral Hichborn Praises Pe-ru-na.

REAR-ADMIRAL HICHBORN

Admiral's Words Carry Weight.

Rear-Admiral Hichborn is one of the best-known officers in our navy. His statements concerning Peruna will have much weight as they go out in the world. What he says is echoed by many others of high standing.

What the Admiral Says.

Philip Hichborn, Rear-Admiral of the U. S. Navy, Washington, D. C., writes:

"After the use of Peruna for a short period, I can now cheerfully recommend your valuable remedy to any one who is in need of an invigorating tonic."—Philip Hichborn.

Kidney Trouble.

Mr. Andrew Cooper, 337 Second street, Menasha, Wis., President of Menasha Horticultural society, and member of Ancient Order of United Workmen, writes:

"I suffered with kidney trouble for a number of years. I took Peruna for a couple of weeks before I noticed any change for the better, but my improvement was very fast after that, and in a little while I could go to work again. I used Peruna for four months and was rid of all kidney trouble, the pains in my back were all gone, and I felt much better all around."

Exposure and Dampness.

Mr. Sylvester E. Smith, Room 218, Granite block, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "Peruna is the best friend a sick man can have. A few months ago I came here in a wretched condition. Exposure and dampness had ruined my once robust health. I had catarrhal affections of the bronchial tubes and for a time there was a doubt as to my recovery. My doctor advised me to take Peruna, which I did and in a short time my health began to improve very rapidly, the bronchial trouble gradually disappeared and in three months my health was fully restored."

An Ever-Present Foe.

The soldier is especially subject to catarrh. In the barracks and on the field Peruna is found equally efficacious to overcome this physical enemy. If taken in time it will prevent colds from developing into catarrh. Even after a cold has settled in some organ of the body Peruna can be relied upon as an efficacious remedy to promptly overcome it.

Peruna will relieve catarrh, whether acute or chronic, but a few doses of it taken in the first stages of the disease will be more effective than when the disease has become established.

Chronic Catarrh of the Head.

Mr. W. S. Wadsworth, 97 Chestnut St., Camden, Me., writes:

"I felt a constant desire to clear my throat and head, and for months I lost my sense of taste and smell entirely. I expected your Peruna would be like other so-called catarrh remedies, but after persisting in its use for a reasonable length of time, I found I was mistaken. I think there is no remedy equal to Peruna for catarrh."

ON THE IRON RANGES

BETTER ORE UNCOVERED

Large Deposit of Rich Bessemer Struck on Mesaba Range.

A. M. Miller Jr. of Duluth Again Meets With Success.

Virginia, Minn., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The success that has followed the operations on the Messaba range of A. M. Miller, Jr., of Duluth and A. B. Coates of Virginia is again exemplified by recent development work they have conducted on the s. w. ¼ of section 11, 57-21, southwest of Hibbing. This property was originally explored by George H. Crosby of Duluth and the Carlson Exploration company of Hibbing. A large body of ore was shown in the analysis, it was considered somewhat below the Bessemer grade. Recently Messrs. Coates and Miller purchased the property on a royalty basis with a considerable cash bonus. They set drills to work proving up the ore body with the result that not only is the deposit much larger than at first supposed but the grade is greatly improved, and the average phosphorus showing is so much less that the entire deposit will come well within the Bessemer limit. This is the first large deposit of strictly Bessemer ore to be discovered on the Mesaba in recent years, and it is estimated that the mine will produce from 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 tons. The exact amount will be determined by further drilling. As the original explorers will receive a royalty they will share in the good fortune of Messrs. Coates and Miller, who expect to operate the property themselves as an underground proposition. Owing to the fact that the ore is of Bessemer grade is will meet with ready sale, and the outlook is that this property will soon be one of the important producers of the Hibbing district.

Another find of considerable importance was recently made by drillers employed by Louis Rouchleau of Duluth, in sections 12 and 13, 58-19. This property is located about midway between Mountain Iron and Buhl a half mile east of the Kinney mine. The outlook is for a large deposit of ore of good grade. There is a large territory lying between Buhl and Mountain Iron upon which there are few mines. Much of the ground has been explored, but superficially, the drills ceasing work as soon as rock was encountered. Deeper drilling of late has resulted in the discovery of considerable ore and the chances are that much more awaits the finding by explorers who have the courage to bore deep.

The Alberta, a new property opened this year by Messrs. A. M. Miller, Jr., and A. B. Coates, on state land, near Virginia, is expected to ship between 30,000 and 40,000 tons of ore this present season. Development work at this property owing to the fact that there was no water, to interfere with sinking of the shaft. The deposit is a small one, although the ore is of high grade.

The New York State Steel company has temporarily ceased operations at its Knox mine, adjoining the Adriatic, near Mesaba station. The work of development will be resumed next winter, when it can be prosecuted to greater advantage. The management of the company is now devoting its time to the attempt to sink a shaft at the Kellogg, midway between Biwabik and McKinley, where much difficulty has been experienced on account of quicksand and a superabundance of water.

WOMAN TELLS OF KILLING OF WITT

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 25.—Mrs. Allan Witt, the sole witness of the killing of her husband, a Deer River homesteader, presumably by David Cochrane, and Fred Andreson, is the star witness at the preliminary hearing of the accused men. According to her story liquor seems to have figured prominently in the events leading up to the crime Anderson having twice brought liquor to the Witt homestead and induced her husband to drink. There were numerous differences between Anderson and Witt, according to the woman, and these finally culminated in the shooting of the latter.

One day, after she and her husband had been at Anderson's homestead and were starting home, she remembered that she had forgotten her cloak, and they returned to the cabin after the garment. Anderson was lying in the road apparently in a drunken stupor, Cochrane was sitting in the doorway with a rifle over his knee. Witt attempted to make up with Anderson, but the latter repulsed him and when asked when he was coming to the Witt homestead, replied, "When I get good and ready."

Witt then turned to Cochrane to bid him goodby, and patted him on the side of the face, when Cochrane said:

"You black Kentucky dog, you'd shoot me, would you?"

Witt replied:

"No, I wouldn't shoot you; I would not harm a hair of your head."

Cochrane then jumped up and said: "You black Kentucky dog, then I'll shoot you."

At this point, according to Mrs. Witt, Anderson snatched Witt's rifle from him and Cochrane shot at the same time. Witt fell and expired in half an hour.

ARE TO IMPROVE ROADS ON RANGE

Better Highways in the Vicinity of Ely Promised.

Ely, Minn., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Commissioner Patterson was an Ely visitor this week, and, in company with Commissioner McMahon, went over the White-Iron and Ely-Tower roads, which are badly in need of repair, as there has been no money spent on them for several years past.

Credit is due Commissioner Grant McMahon in having secured an appropriation for his district this year. There are $3,000 for the Ely-Tower road and $600 for the White-Iron road. Although a large amount could be used to good advantage, the sum available will help considerably. Work will be commenced at soon as possible and will be in charge of John Densmore.

Andrew Tolso, who died here of pulmonary tuberculosis, from which he has been suffering a long time was buried last Wednesday. The funeral was held at the Finnish church, the Finn society attending in a body and escorting the body to the cemetery.

DULUTH MAN TO SPEAK.

Supt. Denfeld Will Deliver Memorial Day Address at Two Harbors.

Supt. Denfeld of the Duluth school has been engaged to deliver the address. Excellent decorations will be placed in the Grand opera house where the exercises will be given while a chorus of 125 voices is rehearsing.

The services at the graves will be conducted with the aid of a firing squad and buglers, whose services are being arranged for in Duluth. After the services at the cemetery the procession will march to the lake shore, where the memory of those who met death on the sea will be honored.

ORDINANCE DEAD LETTER.

Livestock Can Wander at Will About Streets of Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to the fact than Alderman Mesberg was suddenly called to Duluth the first of the week, the cows of Virginia are still in clover, and allowed to roam the streets night and day at their sweet will. Thursday afternoon, one that was being chased by dogs along Chestnut street, ran up on to the sidewalk, in front of the Minnesota Dry Goods company's store, and a woman who was passing only escaped being trampled upon by jumping quickly into the doorway of the store.

The ordinance recently passed by the council, forbidding cows the right to run at large, was vetoed by Mayor Eaton, on the ground that it was legislation in the interests of only part of the people, and because of the absence of Alderman Mesberg the council could not pass it over the mayor's veto. So it is a dead letter.

WILL BRAVE HEAVY WIND

Fleet of Lumber Boats Departs During the Storm.

Heavy Seas Will be Encountered on Lake Superior.

The fleet of lumber boats which waited in the harbor yesterday for better weather before starting on the trip down the lakes, got away early this morning when there was an apparent lull in the storm. These vessels usually wait in port until the northeasters are entirely over, but this was not the case today.

They will undoubtedly encounter heavy seas on Lake Superior today, as the storm, which had quieted down somewhat during the night, started again about 8 o'clock this morning, and the wind blew harder than ever. Eight lumber boats, including the Lycoming, Buffalo, Sweetheart, L. E. Hines, Ashland, King, Teutonia and Gawn, were in the fleet.

The larger boats were not delayed by the storm yesterday, and none of them are waiting for weather today. At the ore docks the rain delays operations considerably. A good-sized fleet of freighters arrived light for ore since yesterday, and an even dozen departed during the same period.

The weather man predicts that there will be a continuation of the wet weather and brisk northeast winds tonight and tomorrow. Fogs will probably prevail tonight.

Bill of Sale Recorded.

The bill of sale was filed yesterday in the customs office in the transfer of the steamer Thomas F. Cole to the Pittsburg Steamship company from the builders, the Great Lakes Engineering company. The Cole has a net tonnage of 5,484 and a gross tonnage of 7,263. Its length is 550 feet, beam 58 feet and depth 33 feet.

Benefits Canadian Yards.

The long strike of the bolters and riveters at the various yards of the American Shipbuilding company has proved to be of great benefit to the Canadian shipyards. The yards across the border formerly had a hard time getting men, and consequently could not handle very big jobs. The strike has been the making of the yards over there. Great numbers of the strikers went there and were hired at once. There are about 100 of the strikers from the Detroit yards now employed at the Bridgeburg, Ont., yard, and these men, according to reports received, seem to be satisfied and entirely willing to stay at the Canadian yard.

Leave for Rock of Ages.

The construction work on the new Rock of Ages light station will be commenced in a few days. The steamer M. C. Neff has been chartered by the light-house department, and a party left Detroit this week bound for the Rock of Ages. Walter F. Beyer is in charge of the party, and will supervise the construction work under the direction of Maj. Charles Keller, lighthouse engineer. Masons, carpenters and other mechanics were included in the company.

Western Transit Settles Strike.

Buffalo, May 25.—Although a settlement has been effected by the Western Transit line, the strike of inside freight handlers still continues at the Lehigh Valley, Erie, Mutual and Lackawanna warehouses. About 500 men are still out.

Buoy Out of Position.

Detroit, May 25.—The survey steamer Gen. Williams reports that the Grubb reef gas buoy in Lake Erie is displaced and is adrift. One and three-quarters miles north and 10 degs. west of its proper position.

Offerings More Liberal.

Cleveland, May 25.—Offerings of ore tonnage are a little more liberal, but some shippers could handle more boats. Coal cargoes are freely offered and the market is firm. A block of 50,000 tons of coal for Depot Harbor is on the market, but vesselmen will not take it at 35 cents. They ask 50 cents.

royal visitor. Headed by the Italian consul general, Count Massigili, a delegation of prominent persons boarded the Varese, and formally welcomed the admiral-prince to the city. The prince has received many invitations, and a meeting has been arranged between the prince and Commander Peary, one of the two men who ever exceeded his own "farthest north" record.

Monday he will be the guest of Major General and Mrs. Frederick D. Grant, at Governor's Island, and Monday evening he will attend a reception given in his honor by the count at the Waldorf Astoria.

Prince Louis is one of the first members of European royalty. He is the son of a king, having been born at Madrid in 1873, while his father, the duke of Aosta, was king of Spain from 1870 to 1875. The duke of Aosta was a brother of King Humbert of Italy, thus making the duke of the Abruzzi a cousin of the present King Victor Emmanuel of Italy.

Although holding this exalted rank in the house of Savoy, Prince Louis preferred a life of adventure and daring rather than the ease and luxury of court life. He, therefore, renounced his title to succession to the throne of Italy, and devoted all his time to exploring the remotest regions of the globe. His ascent of Mount S. Elias and the Alaskan summits were some of his earliest achievements. In the Arctics his record of "farthest north" is next to that of Nansen and Peary. Pushing into the heart of Central Africa, he followed the route of Stanley, and explored the hitherto unknown mountains of the Moon.

JOE CHAMBERLAIN BETTER.

St. Raphael, France, May 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, who have been sojourning here for some time past, will return to England in a few days. HAT WITH A HISTORY

One Passes Through Davenport Addressed to President Roosevelt.

Said to Have Started From Duluth Express Office.

With more than 100 souvenir tags attached, a new hat for President Roosevelt is making the rounds of the express offices throughout the country, and according to a telegram received from Chicago today it was started on its journey in Duluth or vicinity. The telegram received was as follows: "Hat for Roosevelt by express from Duluth passed through Davenport bearing over 100 souvenir tags."

Inquiries were made at the local offices of the principal express companies today and it was learned that a hat for the president passed through this city some time last fall, but that as far as could be learned no hat has been sent out during the last few weeks.

Last fall one of the messengers on the Northern Pacific railway received a hat for the president at Ashland and brought it to Duluth, afterwards sending it on to St. Paul. It had come up to Ashland on the Wisconsin Central line, but the sender was unknown.

The fact that the hat which passed through the Davenport had so many souvenir tags attached would indicate that it had been on the road for quite a while, but the Northern Pacific officials hardly think it is the same hat which passed through their offices last fall.

"The express boys along the various lines often start things of this kind," said an express official today. "Once one of them started a dog on the road, and he was soon well loaded down with souvenirs. Several hats passed through this office since last fall, but none of them addressed to President Roosevelt."

Officials at the American Express office stated that a hat had been started only this week at St. Paul, but that Duluth had been the first point through which it had passed, so that it only had only two or three souvenirs. This was not addressed to Roosevelt.

Destructive Diseases of Men Cured

Safe, Skillful and Reliable Treatment.

Established in Duluth since 1899.
The Northwest's Most Successful
SPECIALIST IN DISEASES OF MEN.

OUR PATIENTS

Receive the personal and watchful care and attention of an eminent Specialist in Men's Diseases until a complete cure is effected.

The man who becomes afflicted with any Pelvic or Private Disease is not a sufferer very long until, by its painful distressing symptoms and damaging effects he is reminded that it is important and he must take immediate steps to have himself cured. Pelvic diseases are those which originate in the region of the pelvis, wherein lie the Kidneys, Bladder, Prostate and the entire urinary system. The diseases that affect this part are indeed the only maladies that victimize men to such an extent as to destroy their physical, mental and manly powers, leaving only enough vitality to hold soul and body together. The most frequent of Pelvic and Private Diseases are contracted and inherited—BLOOD POISON, SKIN DISEASES, STRICTURE, VARICOCELE, NERVOUS DECLINE, MALE WEAKNESS OR LOST MANHOOD, PILES, FISTULA, RUPTURE, HYDROCELE and the complications of these diseases with the KIDNEYS, BLADDER and PROSTATE. The one who is so unfortunate as to be afflicted with any of these disorders, and is neglecting to have himself treated by a competent, reliable Specialist, is far on the sea of life, without an anchor of hope for prosperity and happiness. A vast number of men have one or more of these Pelvic troubles and nearly all are constantly struggling to regain their health and natural vitality, of which their disease has robbed them. Many men have doctored for years, and, after spending a large sum of money, without even benefit, they become hopeless and decide that their fate is ill. I earnestly desire having all discouraged sufferers and men contemplating having themselves cured of any of the diseases I treat, PAY ME A PERSONAL VISIT, or write me regarding their condition. Do not hesitate because you have failed to receive a cure in treating with your family physician; seek medical attention from a physician who thoroughly understands your case AND CAN CURE YOU SAFELY, quickly and permanently. If everyone who reads this advertisement would investigate our professional and financial standing and could talk with the many men who have regained their health, strength and manhood by our skill and ability to cure, they would surely accept this convincing evidence of the merits of our treatment and place themselves on the road to recovery, along which so many have traveled and gone joyously away, HALE, HEALTHY, HAPPY and full of hopes for a bright future. CONSULTATION FREE and CONFIDENTIAL.

UNION LABOR NEWS

TRIBUTE TO UNION MEN

State Labor Commissioner Williams Praises Their Enterprise.

They Show Right Spirit and Interest in Their Meetings.

Labor Commissioner Williams of Minneapolis, who was present at the meeting of the Duluth trades assembly last evening, paid a warm compliment to union men of this city when speaking of the attendance at the meeting and the general interest shown.

"Your union men here seem to have the right spirit and interest and are willing to come out to the meetings," said Mr. Williams. The attendance here tonight is greater than we can get at any of our assembly meetings in the Twin Cities, more than once or twice a year, and we have many more union men than there are in Duluth. I think that you ought to feel proud of what the unions are doing here and if you keep on there will be more union men at the Head of the Lakes in a few years than in many other cities in the state. A good attendance at the meetings is what keeps up the interest in unionism."

Mr. Williams added that he thought the trades assembly did themselves great credit when they endorsed James Walsh for the Duluth labor commissioner position and that their endorsement had done more in deciding who should be named than anything else. He is confident that the appointment will prove satisfactory to all concerned. It was announced by Mr. Williams incidentally that Miss Pearl A. Ettinger had been appointed assistant to Mr. Walsh at a salary of $800 a year. Miss Ettinger is a stenographer and at present is employed in the office of Attorney J. A. Keyes. She is the daughter of an old union man.

In concluding his talk, Mr. Williams spoke of the new child labor laws which this state now has and urged that the Duluth unions assist the labor department in every possible manner in enforcing these laws.

James Walsh of the L. T. P. A., who received his appointment last week as superintendent of the Duluth state labor bureau, was called upon for a few remarks at the meeting and told of his plans for conducting the labor bureau.

"I was not able to be present at the meeting of the trades assembly two weeks ago," said Mr. Walsh. "But you can imagine how pleased I was the next day to see the announcement in the papers that I had received the endorsement of the trades assembly for this position. I want to thank the trades assembly as a whole and the members individually for what they did for me at that meeting. I am also thankful to the governor and to Labor Commissioner Williams. I only owe one thing to the trades assembly, however, and that is that I do my duty while occupying this position and this I certainly intend to do."

For the first time in several years the assembly was honored by the presence of two lady delegates, representatives of the newly organized garment workers' union. They were Miss Bessie Cayou and Mrs. Rose Tritchard. Myron Lesser was the other delegate from this organization.

These unions reported that their union had just been formally installed this week with a membership of about forty, but that the members expect to greatly increase this number within a few months. The organization is arranging for a ball to be given next month and a committee has been appointed.

The assembly voted to allow each of the delegates to the state convention at St. Cloud the sum of $25 for their necessary expenses while on the trip. Delegate Barron made a suggestion that the delegates should make a move to secure the 1908 convention for the city of Duluth. The delegates will act upon the suggestion as they see fit.

Credentials were presented by six new delegates last evening and they were obligated. They were Mrs. Bessie Cayou, Mrs. Rose Pritchard and Myron Lasser, garment workers; W. E. Hamilton, telegraphers, J. W. LaMere, Thomas Wiley, freight handlers.

AGREEMENT IS REACHED

Original Agreement is Signed by Union and Contractors.

After the original conference committee appointed three weeks ago to settle the difference between the striking building trades unionists and the contractors had been reconvened yesterday afternoon, an agreement between the master builders and the sheet metal workers was reached and signed by the representatives of both sides.

The agreement reached yesterday was practically the same as that which had been drawn up by the conference committee two weeks ago which it had been claimed by the unions had been repudiated by the contractors. The contractors now claim that the agreement had never actually been brought up and had therefore never been repudiated by them.

According to statements made by Secretary Cobb of the Builders' exchange, this morning when the conference committee had decided to adopt the new agreement which had been discusser and amended considerably, the members voted to leave it in the hands of M. J. McMartin, representative of the boss sheet metal workers and A. L. Moore of the union, who were to rewrite the new rules and present them to the union and contractors to be signed.

Instead of doing the work in conjunction the committee worked separately. One of them rewrote the rules and then presented them to the other for his signature. It was then claimed that the rules were not drawn up just as had been agreed upon, therefore the signatures could not be obtained. It is claimed that if Mr. McMartin and Mr. Moore had worked together in rewriting the agreement the last two weeks of the strike would have been avoided.

The main differences settled at the conference yesterday were the helper question, the discrimination fee matter, and the necessity for a permanent method of arbitration. The helper question and the discrimination matters were left as they were before, but a clause was inserted in the agreement stating that hereafter during the year in which the agrement is in force when any differences over the rules come up they will be left to an arbitration board for settlement and that there will be no interuption in the work.

This clause has been in force several years, but for some reason was not inserted in the original agreement drawn up three weeks ago. It only affects the Sheet Metal Workers' union and their employers.

WANT NATIONAL HOME.

Barbers May Vote on Proposition to Establish One.

The union barbers of the country are agitating the establishment of a home for aged, sick and indigent barbers. The local union, No. 191, at Springfield, Mo., has taken the initiative in the matter, with a motion that was carried by acclamation, for a donation by the local union of $2 a member, to be drawn at any time that it is adopted by a referendum vote, an $2 a year for each member thereafter to build a home.

This money will be used to build a home for old and sick barbers, who are not able to provide for themselves, and to allow a pension of $10 per month to the wife of each member, such pension to take effect upon the member entering the home, and to remain in force while he is an inmate of the home.

The Springfield local has figured out that, with 21,600 members of the Journeymen International union, the average cost per member would not exceed 3 11-13 cents a week. Counting on the entire membership approving of the plan, there would be a yearly income of $43,200.

STONE CUTTERS AFFILIATE.

Another Large Body of Workingmen Joins A. F. of L.

Another large body of workingmen has voted to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor, the Journeymen Soft Stone Cutters of North America, with headquarters in Washington. The executive council has passed upon the charter of affiliation and it will be issued within a few days.

The proposition to affiliate has been defeated several times, and finally a referendum vote was taken which settled the matter. This action brings several thousand more members into the fold of the federation and leaves but two of the large building organizations, the bricklayers and the plasterers, not affiliated. It is predicted by prominent labor leaders that these will follow the example of the stone cutters in the near future.

ANOTHER BRAINERD UNION.

Organization of Machinists' Helpers and Laborers is Formed.

Another new union was organized at Brainerd this week with a membership to begin with of over fifty. The name of the new union is the Brainerd Machinists' Helpers and Laborers' union, and meetings will be held monthly. A charter has been sent for, and as soon as it is received the permanent organization will be effected.

Those who were in charge of the organization of the new union expect that the total membership will number over 100 within a few weeks.

The temporary officers are as follows: Mathew Culbertson, president; Andrew Hanson, vice president; John Gaffney, recording secretary; A. C. Ford, financial secretary; D. Frayer, doorkeeper; H. Langslow, treasurer; Al Piper, sergeant-at-arms, and Robert Hogan, inductor.

Ask For Support.

The St. Paul union of plasterers, which is on strike for a raise of 50 cents a day, has sent word to the secretary of the State Federation, asking for the support of that organization. The strikers ask that the officials of the State Federation bring pressure to bear on the locals throughout the state to keep away from that city, and lend any assistance possible to the strikers.

Minneapolis Labor Man Here.

W. S. Chisholm, a prominent labor man of Minneapolis, was in Duluth yesterday on his way from Port Arthur to his home city. Mr. Chisholm spent the winter in Port Arthur, where he represented a machinery company for a Minneapolis concern. He said that he was glad to get back into American territory.

GOV. JOHNSON ADVOCATES THE CONTROL OF RAILROADS

has a direct bearing on trusts, and places a burden, direct and indirect, upon the people of the country, benefiting no general class, and good only to a privileged few.

Governor Johnson said he did not agree with President Roosevelt's idea of federal, rather than state, control of railways. The state, he said, should be absolute in the control of railway transportation with federal control of interstate traffic.

Governor Johnson said he did not favor government ownership of railroads, until all other means had been exhausted. As to who would be the next nominee for presidential honors of the Democratic party, Governor Johnson said he had not the slightest idea who would be the party nominee.

MEXICO OBJECTS TO THE SHOOTING OF SUBJECTS

is a prevailing opinion that Estrada Cabrera may be able to play his trump card, and if the pressure from foreign powers becomes sufficiently great he will theatrically pardon all the men doomed to death, thus endeavoring to nullify the stories of his alleged atrocities. A high official stated to a representative of the Associated Press that the greatest care should be taken by those entrusted with guarding Mexican interests, for an unguarded word would have serious results.

"So," he continued, "you must not designate my official position in quoting me, but this last act of Cabrera's will convince doubting Thomases among the nations of the world of Mexico's forbearance in this great crisis.

"It is just twenty days since the alleged attempt was made on the life of President Cabrera and three men killed themselves rather than submit to arrest, and nineteen were sentenced to be shot. Is it within the limits of reason that fair trials could have been given these men? Mexico thinks not, and we would not stand quietly by and see two citizens shot in such a summary manner.

"This government will await the reply of Cabrera to the joint note of the diplomats which will be signed not only by the representatives of the four powers directly affected but by every accredited diplomat in the Guatemalan capital."

"And if Cabrera's answer should be unsatisfactory?" he was asked.

"It is too serious a matter to speculate upon," was the reply.

Manuel M. Giron, the Guatemalan minister, received yesterday a lengthy dispatch from his government concerning the incident and details of the actual perpetration of the attempt on the life of Cabrera.

According to this message two mines were laid, one of which exploded and the other was found unexploded several days later.

The last mine was twenty metres from Cabrera's residence and directly in front of the American legation and of the barracks of the Guard of Honor. This mine is said to have been connected by an electrical apparatus with a house in front of the barracks occupied by two doctors, named Blanco and Eaveley, both of whom were not engaged in practice. The other mine was laid in the end of the same street and was connected with the house of a man named Rodil.

The police investigation resulted twenty days later in the discovery of the perpetrators house on the outskirts of the city. When an attempt was made to arrest them they fired on the officers, killing three. The door to the house was battered in, but the men turned their weapons on themselves.

While this story was given in detail in the message nothing was said about the condemning of the nineteen to death, and the Guatemalan minister does not believe the story. He says there has not been time in which to try the men on such a charge, and they would not be sentenced to death without trial.

selfish and injurious to the welfare of this community; that they seek through the assassination of character, to injure the United Railroads, and further their own financial plans, and that inspired strikes, violence, destruction of property, boycotts, and these indictments are each a part of Spreckels, plans to confiscate the property of the United Railroads, to replace our street railways by lines owned by Spreckels, and to that end to control politics of San Francisco. I would be surprised that any body of American citizens could be induced to find these indictments if I did not know the means which have been pursued by Spreckels' corps of hired detectives, and his constant access to the members of the grand jury, who have been misled by his professions of virtue.

"To my friends throughout the country I give the assurance that these indictments are not founded upon facts, that there is no evidence that could justify them and that my associates and I will be fully vindicated."

Thornwell Mullaly said: "I am absolutely innocent of any of the charges made against me. This will be clearly shown as soon as the opportunity offers which I hope will be immediately afforded me. I wish the fullest investigation. The charges against me are as malicious an outrage as could possibly be perpetrated against man. The souls of the men responsible for them are tonight more burdened than mine. In spite of the attacks upon me, my character remains unchanged, and when it shall appear, as it surely will, that there is no evidence whatever against me, my reputation will not be impaired in the slightest degree by the great wrong that has been done me. I ask that my friends and the public believe me."

FIRST BUILDING BURNS.

Tomahawk, Wis., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The old barn of the Bradley Lumber company, the first building that was erected in Tomahawk, was totally destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon, and a fine saddle horse of W. H. McDermott, foreman of the Bradley Lumber company's Tomahawk plant, perished in the building before the local fire company reached the scene of destruction. Prompt and efficient action by the local fire department saved the saw mill plant and millions of feet of lumber, lying to the windward of the blaze.

That the readers of this paper appreciate advice when given in good faith is plainly demonstrated by the fact that one well known local pharmacy filled the "vegetable prescription" many times within the past two weeks. Most of these folks naturally bought the ingredients only and mixed them at home. The announcement of this simple, harmless mixture has certainly accomplished much in reducing the great many cases of kidney complaint and rheumatism here, relieving pain and misery, especially among the older population, who are always suffering more or less with bladder and urinary troubles, backache and particularly rheumatism.

Another well-known druggist asks us to continue the announcement of the prescription. It is doing so much real good here, he continues, that it would be a crime not to do so. It cannot be repeated too often, and further states many cases of remarkable cures wrought.

The following is the prescription, of vegetable ingredients, making a harmless, inexpensive compound, which any person can prepare by shaking well in a bottle: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Karkon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Any first-class drug store will sell this small amount of each ingredient, and the dose for adults is on teaspoonful to be taken after each meal and again at bedtime. There is enough here to last for one week, if taken according to directions. Good results will be apparent from the first.
WISCONSIN

MANY STUDENTS AT SUMMER SESSION.

Madison, Wis., May 25.—Indications point to an attendance of over 650 students at the summer session of the University of Wisconsin. The program just completed announces a number of new and interesting courses of study, beside those given in former years, making a total of 190 different courses. The college of law offers a summer session for the first time this year, completing the representation of practically every university department in the summer session courses, including the colleges of letters and science, engineering, agriculture, law and the school of music. In addition to the eighty-two members of the university faculty who will have charge of work in the various departments, the services of thirteen professors and instructors from various Eastern and Western institutions of higher education have been secured. They include Dr. Max Mason, professor of mathematics at Yale university; Dr. R. E. Lyons, chemistry department of Indiana university; Dr. F. P. Graves, professor of history and principles of education, with Dr. Isidor Loeb, professor of political science and public law, and Prof. E. J. Lake of the department of art and design, all from Missouri university; Justice Emlin McClain of the supreme court of Iowa; L. L. Summers, director of manual training at the Oshkosh normal school; Miss Mary McLeod, director of physical training and dean of women at Cornell college, Mt. Vernon, Iowa, and Miss M. E. Hazeltine, preceptor of the Wisconsin Library school, with two assistants from the same institution. Mrs. H. P. Sawyer and Miss Julia E. Elliott.

SNOW SHOVELING MAKES THEM WEARY.

Marquette, Mich., May 25.—Continuous jobs of snow-shoveling proved too irksome for a gang of men employed by the Sparrow Kroll Lumber company, and they quit in a body. They declare they object to shoveling the "beautiful" in the summer time.

Recently the Consolidated Fuel & Lumber company had a similar experience with some of its men, who also got tired of handling so much snow. It is a question whether the upper peninsula ever saw such weather as this year.

DOGS MUST HAVE TAGS

Police Will Begin Annual Task of Collecting Tax.

Owners Who Refuse to Pay Will be Fined.

It is nearly time for about three-quarters of the dog owners of the city of Duluth to file down to the office of City Treasurer Voss, and pay that dog tax, which has been due since May 1. If you don't it is a case of "the copper'll get you if you don't watch out," for the police are threatening to get busy in the very near future and rumor has it that the men who round up the refractory dog owners will be detailed early next week and start on their rounds.

Fortunately for Duluth's canine population the law in force here is different from the old, time-worn one, under which the unpaid for dog was promptly shot by a police officer. It is the owner, who refuses to pay, who suffers under the ordinances of Duluth, and he is subject to a fine of from five to ten dollars after the first day of May. Continued neglect in this line constitutes an additional offense and the city ordinances provide that the owner may be repeatedly prosecuted.

Up to date barely 500 of Duluth's dog owners have paid the required amount and secured the little aluminum tags, which insure immunity for themselves and their canines. As there are approximately 2,000 dogs in the city, this leaves about three-quarters of the dog population unlicensed, and their owners, subject to arrest and fine.

Of course, unless the the circumstances are particularly aggravated, or unless the offense has been committed before, the police do not, as a usual thing, make a business of making arrests, and each officer is equipped with a receipt book, so that he may receive the overdue dog tax from the delinquent owner.

As a usual thing, two men are detailed for the Lakeside district, two for West Duluth, one or two in the West end, and as many as may be deemed necessary are put upon the work of going after the dog owners in the central part of the city. And it is no easy job.

Many a dog who believes he has a good substantial home, a place where he comes regularly for his daily sustenance, and where he sleeps at night, is described to the copper by the owner of that same home as, "just a stray dog, that hangs around here. I don't know where he came from."

And what an exodus of dogs there must be to the country about this time of year. Time and again, the old tax collectors say, they are informed that the dog is going to be sent to relatives in Dakota, or that the family is just going to move and the dog will be taken with them. It takes some time and considerable argumentative ability to convince the citizen who is possessed of such convictions as these about his pup, to part with the necessary $1.25 for the annual tax.

PASSENGERS ARE THANKFUL

New York, May 25.—The Russian steamship Korea was towed into port by two tugs yesterday with 1,500 passengers kneeling on her decks in a prayer of thanksgiving for deliverance from perils of the sea that had beset them for almost a month.

With her wooden deck fittings chopped up for fuel and a part of her cargo burned to keep the engines going, the Korea had fought almost incessant storm.

For three days the ship was helpless in a gale, her shaft having broken in the middle of the night. As the vessel rolled and pitched in the heavy troughs of the sea, her officers had difficulty in restraining the 1,500 Russian steerage passengers in their wild plan of taking to the boats.

Provisions ran low and there was a shortage of fresh water. This condition threatened to become worse and Capt. Kirschjedt turned the ship's nose toward Boston. His signals of distress were seen off Boston light and aid was given him.

The indictments against Glass are additional to the eleven indictments already returned against him on the charge of bribing supervisors to refuse a competitive telephone franchise. The indictment against Halsey is for the same offense. Superior Judge Coffey fixed bail in the sum of $10,000 on each of the charges.

'OLD GLORY" DESECRATED.

Winnipeg, Man., May 25.—An unhappy incident marred the Victoria day holiday here yesterday. For the first time in many years the union jack was floated at the American consulate, Dr. Jones, the recently appointed vice consul, paying this compliment to the Canadian people. Seeing the British flag flying beneath the Stars and Stripes, two men said to be recent arrivals from England, tore down "Old Glory." The incident has created much indignation here. Dr. Jones regrets the happening very much and expressed the opinion it was the action of irresponsible parties.

OLD OFFICER RETIRES.

New York, May 25.—Capt. William W. McLaughlin, one of the best known officers that the New York police department has ever had, and whose thirty-nine years of service to the city have been crowded with stirring events, retired from the force at midnight. The former inspector yesterday made application for retirement on half pay, which will be $2,500 a year, and, as he has served his twenty-five years and no charges against him are pending, Commissioner Bingham has no alternative, but to grant the application.

THE PRESBYTERIANS CONCLUDE THEIR WORK.

Columbus, Ohio, May 25.—The one hundred and nineteenth general assembly of the Presbyterian church concluded its work yesterday. There was no renewal, as had been expected, of the temperance controversy. On the contrary the report of the permanent committee on temperance was accepted without debate.

The assembly voted to enlarge the permanent committee on temperance and elected six new members as follows:

Revs. J. H. Snowden, E. Trumbull Lee, and Thomas Waters, and Messrs. A. A. Hershberger, W. W. Shields and Harvey Thompson. Revs. C. S. McClellan and T. B. Anderson, and Messrs. W. C. Lilley and Graham Wells were re-elected members of the committee.

HOUGHTON MAN IS MADE CHAIRMAN.

Houghton, Mich., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the one hundred and nineteenth general assembly of the Presbyterian church, now being held at Columbus, Ohio, Rev. William Roberts, D. D., of Philadelphia, moderator, in his appointments for the coming year, named Rev. William C. Bryant, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Houghton, as chairman of District No. 11, comprising the states of Illinois and Michigan. Rev. Mr. Bryant is one of the best known missionary workers of the Presbyterian church in the Central states. He has been at the Houghton mission about a year. FISHERMEN LUCKY; LIFTS NOT LARGER.

Houghton, Mich., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local fishermen and those interested in the fish industry say that the predictions for the most successful year in fishing in the history of the industry are rather premature. The lifts now being taken are not any larger than usual, although the fishermen are having better luck than they did last season. The Endress fleet, from the Soo and Grand Marais, which is now stationed at Houghton and Isle Royale, is taking good lifts in the vicinity of Isle Royale, but they are not unusual.

That's the story of "G. & W. Special" in a nutshell.

Fusel oil is an injurious constituent which forms in small proportions during alcoholic fermentation. It has a fiery taste and odor, and it's what causes whisky to "kick all the way down."

Fusel oil has poisonous properties. The Encyclopædia Britannica says "fusel oil causes headaches—extreme thirst—coated tongue."

Now you know where that "next day" feeling comes from.

By a special process in distilling at considerable expense, Gooderham & Worts take out all the fusel oil, but retain that much-wanted, rare old flavor found only in the highest grade whisky—

JURY IS NOT COMPLETE

Seven Talesman Are Accepted in the Argyle Trial.

Hearing of Case Will be Resumed Monday Morning.

Only two talesmen were accepted on the Argyle jury yesterday afternoon, making a total of seven jurors secured to date. Owing to the special term of the district court today the trial will not be resumed until Monday morning.

The jurors who have been accepted by both sides are as follows: Weslie F. Wilke, Fred W. Colby, John P. Daly, Frank Elphenbach, Frank Nichols, Thomas Wright and James J. Ganley.

Argyle is being tried on the only indictment remaining against him, that charging assault in the first degree. It is claimed by the state that Argyle shot Miss Bessie Butchart with the intent to kill.

After the jury is complete the court will hear arguments on the motion of W. E. Culkin, for the defense, to have the case dismissed on the ground that the former verdict of not guilty because of insanity is a bar to further prosecution, where the acts complained of were almost simultaneous.

Relief from Rheumatic Pains.

"I suffered with rheumatism for over two years," says Mr. Rolland Curry, a patrolman, of Key West, Fla. "Sometimes it settled in my knees and lamed me so I could hardly walk, at other times it would be in my feet and hands so I was incapacitated for duty. One night when I was in severe pain, and lame from it, my wife went to the drug store here and came back with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I was rubbed with it and found the pain had nearly gone during the night. I kept on using it for a little more than two weeks and found that it drove the rheumatism away. I have not had any trouble from that disease for over three months." For sale by all druggists.

SMALLPOX PREVENTS COMMENCEMENT PLANS.

Walker, Minn., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to the breaking out of smallpox among the members of the graduating class, there will ba no commencement exercises at the Walker school this year. Three students have the disease—Hazel Sarff, Floyd Sarff and Vera Dally. These are the only cases in the village, and it seems somewhat remarkable that in each instance it should be a member of the class of '07. The young lady members of the class, who had pretty gowns prepared, and moreover had been pondering over commencement essays, feel quite chagrined at the turn of affairs. School closes next week Friday.

OUT ON BONDS.

YOUNG ASSAILANT BOASTS OF CRIME.

He was hurried to the county jail in this city to avert a lynching. He was then taken before a justice of the peace, where he made a full confession, relating in an indifferent manner all the revolting details of his crime. He was then hurried back to the county jail, where he will await an opportunity to plead guilty before Judge Webb.

THUMPING HEADACHES

Many Duluth Women Have Them But Few Know the Real Cause.

Dull, thumping headaches,
Sick, prostrating headaches,
Dizzy, whirling, blind headaches—
Point to disorders of the kidneys,
Tell of uric poisons in the blood.
Narcotics may ease the pain
But won't cure the cause.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure the kidneys,
Remove uric poisons, purify the blood,
Banish headache, backache, urinary ills.

Here's Duluth testimony to prove it.

W. W. Scott, operator on the St. Paul & Duluth railroad, and living at 126 Sixty-sixth avenue west, Duluth, Minn., says: "I have already recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. I told in the statement made in 1898 how I had suffered with dull aching pains through the loins and kidneys. From the constant sitting position required in my work my back became so lame and sore that I could scarcely straighten. The kidney secretions were irregular and annoying. At times severe headaches would strike me and I was feeling worse than ever when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice. I began using them, and as I have stated, in my previous testimonial, they so thoroughly regulated the kidneys, removed the backaches, headaches, pains and weakness that I have felt like a different man. I have never had a return of any of these symptoms and have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills again and again."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

New Yorkers Visit in Duluth for Few Hours.

Aad Temple Gives Reception at the Spalding Hotel.

Duluth was invaded last evening by a party of about 100 nobles of the Ancient Order of the Mystic Shrine, Kismet Temple, Brooklyn, on their way home from Los Angeles, where they attended the imperial council meeting. They came in from the Twin Cities on a special Northern Pacific train, in charge of F. J. Ober, city passenger and ticket agent of the line here, and other officials. They departed for Buffalo on the steamer Juniata.

Members of Aad Temple of this city had arranged for their reception, and a dinner was given the visiting knights at the Spalding hotel, after which the local nobles gave them a brief reception in the parlors of the hotel, which had been engaged for the purpose.

Duluth has become noted all over the country as having a warm spot for the Shriners, and the New Yorkers did not care to pass this city. Last summer Alladin Temple stopped here on a trip from their home city, Columbus, Ohio, and were entertained by Aad Temple. So many compliments were heard by the Kismet members on the Los Angeles trip concerning the hospitality of this city, that they decided to come around this way on their way home in order to get a taste of it.

The only regret was that they could not stay for a whole day in this city. The representatives of the Brooklyn body at the Los Angeles meeting were: Conrad V. Dykeman, potentate; J. Harris Balston, William Bamber and William H. Patterson, all enthusiastic nobles high in the work of the order, and were among the visitors. In charge of the local reception on behalf of Aad Temple were: Joseph B. Cotton, potentate; S. L. Frazer, recorder; Jesse Norton, J. W. Lyder, L. L. Culbertson, John T. Black, George W. Buck and W. E. Richardson.

SOUTHERN ALBERTA LANDS

The Richest Farming Lands In All North America!

Your opportunity for a choice investment is right now—and we beg of you, don't think we mean this for somebody else. WE ARE TALKING STRAIGHT TO YOU. And we mean every word of this for you—if you want an investment that will bring you 40 PER CENT CLEAR annually on your money—it might bring you 100 per cent, but we don't PROMISE you more than 40 per cent.

HERE ARE A FEW FACTS ABOUT SOUTHERN ALBERTA:

Climate and Weather

Because Canada is a little farther north than the United States, some people have the idea it is mostly an Arctic wilderness, but people are fast discovering that the real truth is, we have in Southern Alberta a climate superior to that of most parts of the United States. We have no cyclones, no rough winds, no bad storms, no severe winters—in fact, we have none of the extreme hardships of climate which have to be endured by those who live in many parts of the United States from Texas to Minnesota.

Plowing is often done right up to the 24th of December, and we usually have a baseball game on Christmas day. The winter wheat is generally showing quite green by March 15, and the spring flowers are in bloom before the snow is gone in Minnesota. Illness, especially from lung or throat troubles, is very little heard of in Southern Alberta, as the high elevation and the clear, bracing air make our climate as healthful as any in the world.

Soil

The soil is the famous chocolate-colored loam, from 10 to 24 inches deep, with a little volcanic ash mixed in it, which acts as a fertilizer, and partly accounts for the enormous crops raised. One farmer in our district raised last year (1906), a total crop of 9,300 bushels of wheat from 150 acres—an average of 62 bushels per acre. We have never know of but one higher average anywhere. The subsoil is clay and extends to a depth of from 10 to 30 feet.

Crops

Every kind of grain can be raised, and the average for wheat is about 35 to 45 bushels per acre, and oats from 60 to 120 bushels per acre—depending on how good a farmer you are. All vegetables do finely, sweet corn, beans, tomatoes, beets, carrots and even watermelons, all yield magnificent crops. Small fruits, such as strawberries, currants, raspberries, apples, etc., do excellently.

RAINFALL

The rainfall is about the same as at St. Paul, Minnesota, and as most of the rains occur during the months of May and June, the growing crops have the full benefit, and the bright clear weather during July and August brings the crops to maturity in fine shape. Alberta's beautiful harvest weather is one of its chief attractions.

SNOW

There is an ample snowfall, which protects the winter wheat, etc., and gives plenty of moisture, which, is quickly absorbed by the soil, as the Chinook winds usually melt the snow very shortly after falling. Sleighs and cutters are almost unknown here, as the snow usually stays too short a time.

FUEL

We have seven or eight mines now working in this district, and there are more being opened up every little while. The coal is a very high grade of soft coal, better than the Pennsylvania product, and retails for $3.00 per ton at the mine. No danger of a fuel famine for us.

THE PEOPLE

The class of people who are settling, or investing, in Southern Alberta, are of the same type as your very best neighbors and friends, and are bright, intelligent people, comfortable and prosperous—or rapidly becoming so—and are all well pleased and happy in their new homes in the West—Our West.

COST OF CROPS

If you have to hire all your farm work done, it may cost you $8.00 or $9.00 per acre, per year, to handle a crop, but a careful and intelligent farmer can operate from year's end to year's end at a cost of about $6.00 to $7.00 per acre.

Net Profits on the Crops

Figuring a very low average yield per acre, say 30 bushles of wheat, and a very moderate price, say 60c per bushel, one has a gross return of $18 per acre, and deducting the cost per acre of handling throughout the year, one has a net profit of about $10 per acre, and the land will cost you only $12 to $16 per acre; one-third cash, balance on 5 years' time, for the best. Pretty good investment, isn't it?

After carefully noticing these statements do you not honestly think you might be better off if you would settle in Beautiful Sunny Alberta? Or, if you are an investor, do you not believe you would make some money if you would invest in some of our selected lands? All we ask is that you come out with us on one of our cheap excursions and see for your self. Our excursion routes are planned so that you see part of practically every district of importance in all Western Canada, and thus you are able to judge very well which is the best. Our experience for several years in Western Canada has made us familiar with this whole country, for we have WATCHED WESTERN CANADA GROW, and know what it can do—and many, many people have found good comfortable homes and become prosperous and happy. And many others who have made investments there have been richly rewarded, having made fortunes out of Western Canada's opportunities. You may have your share of this wonderful prosperity if you only will. Don't delay, but come now, for you will never regret it. Whether you have little or much to invest, this is YOUR OPPORTUNITY, and if you want a fine farm and a good home

Come to Beautiful Southern Alberta.

BUILDING SITUATION CLEAR.

The last cloud upon the horizon in the field of building operations in Duluth was dispelled yesterday afternoon when the members of the sheet metal workers' union and the members of the Builders' exchange settled all their differences, and agreed to join hands again in the work of building up Duluth.

Though the other unions in the structural alliance had settled their disputes with the Builders' exchange some time ago, this particular adjustment halted, and was not completed until yesterday afternoon. It was so long postponed that there were fears that it might involve another general strike, and public gratification over the settlement is therefore all the greater.

The thanks of the community is due everybody connected with this settlement for warding off a long and disastrous tie-up, and particularly are they due to Bishop McGolrick, who originated the idea of using outside influences to bring the warring interests together, and who kept at it until he was finally and completely successful.

His suggestion that the union and the employers sign a contract agreeing to submit their differences to arbitration before going upon a strike another time is progressive, and will be beneficial and profitable to both sides and to the public. Such an agreement has been made in this case, and it should be made in all other similar cases, not only in the building trades, but in others in which disputes between employers and employes are likely to occur.

SEEKING A JOB.

A New York newspaper tells the story of a man who found a job in that great city. That oughtn't to be much of an incident, in times of vast prosperity, but the unusual manner in which it was done made the story.

For several days a tall, poorly dressed but well set-up man stood in Park row where every man participating in the two daily Brooklyn bridge rushes could see him. Suspended from his neck was a white placard two feet square, bearing, in letters crudely done but plain to the vision, these words:

: I WANT WORK. :
: NO GRAFTER. :
: NO APOLOGIES. :

The candor of the man and the simplicity of his appeal lifted him immediately from the status of the ordinary street fakir. Scores of sympathetic people stopped and talked with him, and heard his story, which was as follows:

> My name is H. W. Leonard. I am not educated, but I am honest, and I can work. I have no trade, but I have my health, and must support myself. I lost my place because my hands were injured in a gas explosion. I am well again and want a job. I propose to stand here until the right man comes along.

After two days, from the jostling thousands emerged a middle-aged man and woman, who stopped in front of Leonard. The man asked a question, and Leonard's lips parted in a joyful smile.

"Are you sure you want me?" he said. "Thank God! I knew it would come!" And he took off his sign and marched away with his new employers.

The pathos of his joy over the mere fact that he had found a chance to earn an honest living by hard work will appeal to thousands who do not know what it is to be without work, but it will appeal more deeply still to those who know by experience what it means. One of the most grievous things in life is the spectacle of a strong man, willing to work hard, going hungry for want of a job.

But there is more than a pathetic story in this; there is a lesson. Those who are found looking for work, often in vain, are those with no special equipment for doing some particular thing. Those who have a trade and are good at it almost never want for work. Those who have no trade, and who are therefore seldom blessed with a permanent situation, often find themselves "seeking a job" and not finding it.

Parents should see that their sons learn to do something that will ensure them employment, for there is nobody more helpless than the man with no special skill or knowledge to commend him to employers seeking somebody possessing just that skill or knowledge.

GRAFT IN BUSINESS.

A professional "muck raker" recently told an audience before which he appeared that this country is so permeated with commercial graft that before long dishonesty will be an essential to business success.

Never was muck raker more mistaken, and valuable and necessary as they are, muck rakers often have been mistaken. It is their business to find graft, and if they fail to find it their work is wasted. That may not lead them to declare they have found it where it does not exist, but too often it leads them to magnify suspicion into certainty, and to pass off for evidence that which is unworthy of the name.

Nobody needs to be told that there is graft in this country, political and commercial. Adulterated goods, short weights, lying labels and all that sort of thing prove the commercial dishonesty, but federal laws are looking after that part of it, and doubtless most of the merchants and manufacturers that have engaged in it will be glad to quit it if all their competitors are compelled to quit, too.

But as a matter of fact the situation is not nearly so bad as it has been painted, and if any American has been led into the belief that commercial dishonesty is a characteristic Yankee trick, he should be set right, for it is not. No one who has ever traveled in other lands can be made to believe it. In other countries fraud in retail trade is almost the rule; here it is rather the exception.

In Asia and Europe the custom of bargaining prevails to an enormous extent. The first price of an article is always several times what the dealer hopes to get, which is a cheat upon its face. Tourists, particularly from this country, are always charged higher prices than the dealer expects to get from his fellow-countrymen. While a tourist from this country needs in other lands to keep a sharp lookout on every hand for such deception, tourists from other lands may travel this whole country over and never be charged a penny more than the natives are asked.

Graft in business is unfortunately common, but it is by no means true that all successful merchants and manufacturers are guilty of it, nor is it true in any sense that it is an essential to success or that it ever will be. A merchant can have no better asset than a reputation for square dealing, for nothing repels trade in this country so quickly as the knowledge of commercial dishonesty, while nothing draws it so certainly as the public knowledge that a merchant's goods and prices may be depended upon to be right.

A NEW DISEASE.

Pittsburg, the only city in the country that needs no press agent because the exploits and predicaments of its citizens perpetually keep it before the public gaze and on the front page of the public prints, has discovered a new disease.

As might be expected of anything coming out of Pittsburg, the disease is phenomenal, but not nearly so much so as its name and the lucid explanation given of it by the coroner's physician, who proclaims it to a palpitating world.

This sounds formidable enough to be necessarily fatal, but an accompanying comment, wherein the learned doctor forgot his pedantry and descended to plain English, is more encouraging:

> After you have been in Pittsburg awhile, your lungs resemble a piece of blue blotting paper over which a bottle of ink has been spilled.

Further explanation reveals the fact that what the doctor is talking about is that in the smoky atmosphere of Pittsburg the lungs absorb vast quantities of coal smoke, and the result is the seven-syllabled disease above-named.

The moral is, of course, that there ought not to be so much smoke in a city, but it would have been much more effective if the doctor had not added, apparently as an after-thought, that there is no cause for alarm, "as the lungs don't appear to mind it in the least."

However, how does he know that there is no cause for alarm? May there not be some hidden association between the remarkable eccentricities of the Pittsburgians, as evidenced by their capers in the public prints, and the insidious effects of pneumonokoniosis? Because he has not discovered the connection is no sign it does not exist.

There must be something to account for the remarkable manifestations of the Pittsburgians' difference from other people, and why should not pneumonokoniosis be held to account? It may be that it is not alone to blame, and that it is only effective when combined with sudden accumulation of wealth, since most of the Pittsburg performers have been wealthy. The clue is slight, but it is not to be overlooked entirely.

Notoriety-seeking college professors have leaped into sudden fame on theories much more slender than this, and if there are any left who are hungry for publicity, and have nothing handy to base it on, they might take up the investigation. Also, Mr. Carnegie might endow a clinic for that purpose.

ENTHUSIASM.

An essay in a current magazine, one of those fatherly screeds designed to inform young men how to succeed, enlarges upon the value of "enthusiasm" as a means of gaining success in life and of becoming expert and efficient in one's chosen vocation.

It's mighty good advice, too, only it is not the easiest in the world to follow. Enthusiasm is a splendid business asset. In fact there are few better ones, and everybody ought to have it. Indeed, he who approaches his work with indifference or distaste can have but indifferent success in it.

But the essay referred to did not tell how to get it, and therein it fell short of filling the demands of the situation. It is easy enough to say "be enthusiastic over your work," but not so easy to become enthusiastic.

The man with enthusiasm in his work must like it, and be interested in it. If he dislikes it, or accepts it as a stern necessity and merely as a means of getting bread and clothing, he is likely to have little enthusiasm in it, and if he lacks that quality, of necessity his work must compare unfavorably with that of his fellow-workers who do like their work, who are deeply interested in it, and who are therefore enthusiastic over it.

How is one to acquire enthusiasm in his work? Well, for one thing, he must understand it and appreciate the end toward which it is aimed. He must be familiar with its details, and with the relation his particular portion of the work bears to the whole. He must let it possess him completely, and must keep in mind the object of the concern by which he is employed. Even if his part in attaining that object is small, it is vital, or he would not be employed. That object, when attained, will be the sum of all its parts, and the sum of the labors of all who helped attain it. If one worker, no matter how insignificant his part, lags and performs it with indifference, the result is that the complete work is just that much poorer.

When an employe begins to take pride in the joint product of his work and that of his co-laborers, he is going to acquire enthusiasm in his own particular branch, and handle it in his best possible manner. That means better results for his employer, and the reflex result of that is appreciation for the employe from the employer, which means promotion and better wages.

On the other hand, it is the duty of the employer to see that he notices such things, and rewards the enthusiasm of his helpers by suitable appreciation expressed in the tangible form of promotion and better wages where they are due. Thus he can breed enthusiasm among other employes who see how it works, and who will profit by the example of those who coin their enthusiasm into better place and better pay.

RULES FOR COURTSHIP.

An Eastern clergyman who thinks it wrong that nobody has ever formulated any rules for courtship, by which the youth of the land might be guided in its wanderings in the most delightful and charming fairyland the world affords, that of courtship, has tried his 'prentice hand at it with a result that is truly marvelous.

Of course he has hardly had time to fully elaborate his rules, and to make them a complete manual of the gentle art of courtship, but he has gone so far as to lay down a few regulations which he considers fundamental, such as these:

Don't hold hands.

Don't take walks in lonely places.

Don't take buggy rides at night.

Don't sit close on the sofa.

In addition, he would have calling hours limited to the period between 8 p. m. and 10:30 p. m., and he wouldn't have the courtship exceed seven months. When that time is up the parent should take the young man in hand and inquire into his intentions. If they are good, and it is simply sluggishness or bashfulness that has held him back, doubtless the parental inquiry will bring him to time.

The formation of such rules as these, or even the criticism of them, is perhaps beyond the sphere of duty that engages a newspaper, even though it be a family journal. However, this newspaper feels like laying down one rule to govern courtship, and, not without hesitation, presents it herewith:

Don't pay any attention to the absurd regulations proposed by that clergyman.

FIGHTING CONSUMPTION.

It is encouraging to note, as a local story in The Herald the other evening explained, that the health authorities of Duluth are with the vanguard of enlightened city officials that are treating consumption just as other contagious diseases are treated. About half the large cities of the country now require that cases of tuberculosis be reported to the health authorities just as cases of diphtheria and scarlet fever are reported, and for the same reason: that measures to prevent the spread of the disease may be taken.

Minnesota has taken an advanced stand in the treatment of this dread disease, and in guarding against its spread. It is one of the few states that have their own provisions for treating the disease, as its sanitarium for consumptives at Walker is about ready for use, and it is taking a very active part in educating the public in the need of proper safeguards against the spread of tuberculosis by contagion.

The Herald has at hand a series of circulars issued by the state board of health which should be of immense service in bringing about conditions that will stop the spread of consumption. One is addressed to physicians, and instructs them as to their duties in the premises. It might seem that this is unnecessary, but the experience of health officers shows that it is very necessary indeed, as there are many physicians that do not seem to appreciate their duty to their patients and the public in this matter.

Another circular, addressed to the patient, instructs him in all the measures necessary to prevent him from injuring those about him by communicating the disease to them, and also tells him how to cure himself, which is much easier than most people imagine.

A third circular deals with the care of the sickroom of the tuberculous, and gives valuable instructions of this nature. It states that anybody that rents out apartments that have been occupied by a consumptive patient, without first properly disinfecting them, or that permits them to be occupied, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and that it is the duty of the attending physician to report all cases to the local health officers.

The fourth circular is addressed to the public, which is asked to support the movement against consumption, and to be on its guard against the disease in the homes, schools, factories, shops and public business places.

The sixth circular is addressed to those interested in schools, and beseeches them to see that consumptive teachers are not employed, and that consumptive children are excluded.

The sixth circular relates to disinfection, and gives full instructions as to care of sick rooms, clothing, drinking cups, dishes, etc., that have been used by consumptives.

The information given in these six circulars is immensely valuable, and should have wide circulation. The fight against consumption is largely a matter of educating the public, and these circulars form an effective means to that end.

THE PASSING SHOW.

T. W. Hugo's suggestion that patriotic hymns be sung in the churches as often as may be is a good one. The churches can add to their value by teaching patriotism.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"If Duluth is anything like other cities through the country where outdoor pleasure resorts have been established, the second year of the White City's existence will be more profitable to the stockholders than the first," said H. E. Nagle of Milwaukee, Wis., at the Spalding. "I have been interested in ventures of this kind to a limited extent, and have yet to hear of a single failure. The idea of a resort of this kind is one that takes well with the people, and the second year is invariably more successful than the first. The public gets the habit of going, and the habit is one that grows on a person and spreads rapidly.

"The American people have gone in more strongly for amusement of almost all kinds the last few years than ever before, and there are no indications of a change in the attitude of the people in this respect. This fact is shown in the case of the cheap vaudeville houses as much as anywhere else. There are three vaudeville houses today where there was one four or five years ago. The growth of the vaudeville business has been something remarkable. Ten-cent houses have sprung up by the score all over the country, and the higher-class attractions, charging up to 50 cents admission, are also able to find two or three times as many houses to show in as was the case six or eight years ago.

"And the business of the big theaters hasn't been injured any as a result of this, either. A good show at the Lyceum, for example, will draw as well or better now than it ever did, and yet the same people who patronize this class of attractions will many of them be found at the Bijou every week. Duluth is big enough and prosperous enough to easily support another good vaudeville house, playing the Orpheum attractions, and the business of the other houses already established will not suffer in consequence of the advent of a new theater. There will be room enough for all."

"If a person were to make a list of all the labor-saving devices placed on the market during the last half dozen years, he would have enough to fill a book that would be too heavy to carry comfortably," said S. L. May of St. Paul, at the Lenox. "It is a wonder there is any manual labor of any kind left to do at all, at the rate new inventions in the way of labor-saving devices are being put on the market.

"I was reminded of this coming up on the train from the Twin Cities today. On a long stretch of double track we overtook one of these gasoline arrangements on three wheels that I believe the railroad men call velocipedes. It, of course, was on the other track, probably contrary to the rules of the railroad. The thing almost kept pace with us for a mile, and the two men sitting on it did nothing in the way of work, only sitting there and smiling. I can remember when there was no such thing known as a railroad velocipede operated by anything but man power.

"Some of these machines are still in existence, and you see them often around the railroad yards. A man sits straddle of a seat and works the handles back and forth. On an Eastern trip a short time ago, I noticed the section men along the road were using gasoline propelled handcars exclusively. They are a great improvement over the old cars that moved along at the rate of six or eight miles an hour when laboriously pumped by five or six sweating men. The new car attains a speed of twenty miles an hour or more, and is a money saver, for the men not only arrive at the scene of a special piece of work sooner than under the old system, but they are rested when they get there, and in condition to do more work, because they haven't been laboring at the handles for the last half hour."

"The Southwest expects to get more new settlers this year than during any similar period in the past," said Ellis Farnsworth of Chicago, district passenger agent of the Missouri Pacific railway, at the Spalding. "People in the North and East are beginning to appreciate the fact that Texas and other parts of the Southwest offer exceptionally fine inducements to the new settler, and are now taking advantage of this fact.

"For one thing, they have warm weather down there. Texas, for example, has an ideal climate. It is not to cold in winter, and not oppressively hot in summer. The temperature the year round allows one to live in comfort, and the quality of the oil and the variety of the crops grown guarantees good returns on money and time invested.

"The tide of imigration is turning strongly toward the Southwest, as is shown by records of the different roads entering the territory. Indications point to an exceptionally heavy passenger business this season. There are a certain number of people who entertain a hearty dislike for cold weather, and they figure that when they can get good land as cheap, and live as cheap in a warm climate as in a cold, they might as well settle down there and get as much pleasure as they can out of the one life they have to live. Minnesota is a good state, but all these people who are headed for Canada, where they have winter nine months in the year, would be showing much better sense if they would head for the Southwest."

THE WEATHER.

After struggling for several days, the northeast wind finally blew up a rainstorm, which continued during last night and well into this forenoon. Not a great deal of rain fell, and it was not a real northeaster because the wind was not heavy and it was rather too warm. But it made a pretty fair imitation, and was close enough so that nobody is complaining because it was not any closer. The weather man expects it to keep on as it is, and even to get a little worse, judging from his forecast. Last night's lowest temperature was 34 degs., and yesterday's highest was 46 degs.

The sun rose at 4:21 this morning and sets at 7:48 tonight, making 15 hours and 27 minutes of sunlight. The sun will set a minute later tomorrow evening, making a minute more sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The southwestern storm has moved its center to Eastern Nebraska. During Friday or last night this disturbance caused light to heavy rains throughout the central valleys, the Northwest and Rocky Mountain states. High pressures prevail in those sections. The easterly movement of the Nebraska storm will be attended by rainy and cool weather with strong northeast winds in this locality tonight and Sunday."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Philadelphia Press: "I was delighted, Miss Plumpton," began Mr. Richley, "to meet your mother today for the first time, but I was surprised to find her so very—er—"

"Oh, don't mind that," hastily interrupted Miss Plumpton, "I take after father, you know."

Baltimore American: "I see where your new enterprise has gone into the hands of a receiver."

"Yes, and I wish it was a telephone business."

"Why?"

"So I could hang up the receiver."

Indianapolis News: "I can't understand why she isn't happy with him. He's certainly very attentive to her."

"That's just it. She argues that he couldn't be so attentive to her if he hadn't had a lot of experience before with someone else."

Philadelphia Press: "Ah!" said the doctor, "you ride a great deal in the trolley cars, you say?"

"Yes, sir," replied the new patient.

"I see. Your trouble is due to your sedentary habits. Now, when you're at work what do you do?"

"I'm a motorman."

Washington Star: "Why did you send that man Grafton Grabb to congress?"

"Well," answered Farmer Corntossel, "we kind o' thought it 'ud be cheaper to turn him loose on the national government instead of encouragin' him to give all his time to the local taxpayers."

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: The man who really knows a lot about women is usually willing to admit that he knows nothing.

No poor man has any business to marry a woman who has a mania for making nothing out of something.

Even when a friend urgently requests you to point out his faults, don't do it if you value his friendship.

Every man ought to marry a woman who is a good manager, because few men are any good unless they are properly managed.

When a man's first baby arrives, he wants to treat all his friends; when the seventh comes along, he expects all his friends to treat him.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

North and South.

Memorial day ought to mean more to our whole country from year to year. Each advancing twelve months puts the day of internecine strife so much further into the past and witnesses one or more events that tend to cement the ties between North and South and to emphasize the oneness of our people today from Maine to California, from Minnesota to Louisiana.

This year, the holding of a great exposition at Jamestown in Virginia, in honor of the establishment 300 years ago of the first English settlement in North America, is bringing together in large numbers Northerners and Southerners as to a common shrine.

Such fraternizing is sure to prove advantageous to all concerned. What keeps people apart and sometimes arrays them in hostile ranks is too little familiarity with one and another. Intercourse breaks down prejudices, enlarges sympathies, broadens horizons. A Kentucky mountaineer, was once driving a stage on which a Northerner was a passenger, with whom he began to converse; after a while the Kentuckian said, "I suppose there's a lot of things up North that we uns down here don't know anything about." "Yes," said the Northerner. He continued, "I suppose there's a lot of things down here that you uns don't don't know anything about." "Yes," assented the Northerner again. Then the Kentuckian after a thoughtful silence observed, "Well mixin larns both."

The mountaineer hit the philosophy of the matter. When earnest, well meaning people from the North and South get together at such conferences for example as those held under the auspices of the Southern education board, it is good for those who participate and for the entire land. For there are problems in each part of the land for the working out of which the wisdom of the entire nation is essential. Neither section ought to say to the other off hand, "This is the way you ought to do things." Neither ought to ask the other to do what if conditions were reversed, the section making the request would not itself do. But in the spirit of a large patience of a mutual burden bearing, and of a temperate persistent endeavor, the problems should be faced by all.

The essential thing to remember is that no part of the country has a monopoly of good men and women. They can be found among the multi-millionaires of New York and Chicago, as well as among the recent importations from over the seas in the great manufacturing cities of New England and the interior. They can be found in the direct descendants of the men and women who settled at Jamestown, in whose veins still flows the pure blood of the cavalier and who have the outward marks of the patrician class. Good men are also to be found among the great mass of Southern white who constitute the rank and file of the population. And goodness and the patriotic spirit are also the possession of thousands of persons whose skin is black. The thing to do is to league together the good people in some such fashion as blacks and white have united in Georgia since the Atlanta riot to put down disorder and mob rule.

This coming Memorial day also reminds us of our beloved dead, who were not content simply to be passively good; but who were ready and eager to pour out their life's blood in behalf of what they deemed to be right. In a quiet cemetery in Salisbury, N. C., over the grave of a mere stripling, who fell wearing a Confederate uniform, is this touching inscription: "He laid down his life for the cause which he loved." I never realized until I visited one of the great cemeteries in Richmond the motives of patriotism that prompted many of the men who fought for what proved to be a lost cause. Upon monument after monument in that city of the dead are these words, "How sweet it is to die for one's country!" History has proved that they were wrong in their judgments and mistaken in the specific ends to which they devoted themselves, but this does not detract from their valor or their consecration.

So as we decorate the graves of the valiant dead, let us pray that we may be imitators of their devotion and their courage, and seek in these days of peace, so to champion justice and mercy that never again shall fraternal strife rend this land; but that its unity may become more manifest from year to year.

New York Press: A woman's reason for loving a man is that she does.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Hallock Enterprise: There will an increase of somewhere in the neighborhood of forty per cent, in the tax levy because of the extravagance of the legislature in voting money for public and semi-public institutions. This will make good (?) campaign material for the Republican party in the next campaign.

Fairmont Sentinel: What a useless hubbub is being raised because a male child has been born to the king and queen of Spain. The Spaniards would be better off if they could realize that the intelligent voter can beat the stork hands down in producing strong, honest rulers to govern a country.

Cannon Falls Beacon: If the "tariff revision" West needs any inducement to cause it to line up for Taft for president, it ought to be found in the fact that the American Economist, the organ of the protected trusts, is demanding that he speedily declare himself an uncompromising protectionist—and that he isn't doing it.

Brainerd Tribune: The Tribune stands solidly with Roosevelt— in his opposition to a third term for Roosevelt.

Buffalo Journal: The foundation of good government is respect of the people for their laws and those delegated for their administration. When one has knowledge of the so-called jokers which are injected to defeat the ends of laws, and laws made to protect special interests, it is difficult to maintain the proper reverence and respect for the laws placed on our statute books.

Thief River Falls Press: President Roosevelt weighs over 200 pounds, Bryan 234 pounds, Taft 250 pounds. "Let us have nien about us that are fat."

Brookston Herald: According to the government forestry bureau over three times as much timber is used in the United States as is made by the new growth. It is easy to see the finish of the timber supply unless the principles of forestry are applied to some of the few wastedess tracts in Northern Minnesota. We do not advocate the segregation of any of the rich agriculture lands of this part of the state for the purpose of reforestation, but we think waste land could not be better used.

Anoka Herald: If some of you people who are operating prosperous farms kept track of your receipts and expenditures you would find that you are making more money than a lot of city people who are grinding along year after year with nothing to show for it save three meals a day.

Little Falls Herald: The Elk River Star-News, which believes in a protective tariff, says that the fine thing about the anti-pass legislation is that it "effectually does away with special privileges, and everybody gets the same deal as everybody else." The present tariff does not give everybody the same deal. Men will get excited over the special privileges in railroad matters, and properly so, while closing their eyes to the prolific mother of graft, corruption and "unsquare" deal, the protective tariff.

Grand Rapids Herald-Review: Northern Minnesota pays the big end of the taxes and is getting the worst of the deal all around. Let's cut her in two. There's plenty of territory to make a pair of great states. The interests of the two sections are not identical.

Any Other Name But That

San Francisco Call: The cartoonist of the Chicago Tribune, under the sorrowful legend, "Poor Frisco," pictures the unhappy lot of San Francisco as it appears to the readers of newspapers beyond the mountains. It is unfortunately true that this city in the past year has become the most important news center in America. We have had a series of startling sensations, and these have not suffered in magnitude when told over the wires. The experiences of a year that include a fire and earthquake, the graft exposures, Roosevelt's obstreperous messages about the Japanese, and now the checkered course of the street car strike —all these combine to give the placid Easterner or Middle Westerner an impression that there is always something doing in San Francisco—something of an explosive nature. Realizing, as we do, the unhappiness which all this must create in the breasts of our ultraurbane countrymen, we hasten to reassure them and beg they will not feel discouraged about San Francisco. It we are at more or less regular intervals a little disfigured, we are still in the ring and always equal to either fortune; nor do our misfortunes justify the Tribune in calling San Francisco by the vile and vulgar nickname "Frisco." Speak any other name but that.

On the Go.

Everybody's
Out of doush,
Morning, noon
And night they go
To and fro,
And here and there,
Back and forth
And everywhere,
Doing this and Doing that,
Busy here, there
Standing pat,
Climbing, digging,
Toting things,
Wishing they were Wearing wings;
Hustling, rustling,
Sweat and wheeze,
Sailing ships
Across the seas;
You're as bad, you
Know that you
Always have Enough to do,
Always got
To hamp and strive
For the right
To be alive;
But you bet
The world's all right;
There's the wife
And babes at night!

Removed at Last.

Harper's Weekly: A West Point cadet, some years ago, was told by his instructor to draw up the plans and specifications for a railroad viaduct to connect two high hills, between which ran a small stream.

In due course an excellent set of drawings was presented, one showing the bridge in its completion, with a sketch of the surroundings, and on which sat two men, with their legs hanging over the side, fishing. The drawing was returned with the request that the men be removed from the bridge.

Upon receiving the paper the second time the professor discovered that his instructions had been carried out, but that the two men were seated on the bank of the stream, still in quest of representatives of the finny tribe.

Again was the paper returned, and this time with positive orders to remove the men from the drawing altogether. Imagine the consternation which overspread the features of the "learned instructor," upon receiving the papers for the third time to find two little graves and tombstones, with appropriate epitaphs, situated near the bank of the stream. His orders had been obeyed, and the men removed altogether.

Needless to say that the cadet was forgiven for this breach of discipline, and the unintentional disrespect to his senior officer was overlooked.

CHARLES A. CULBERSON OF TEXAS

By SAVOYARD.

(Copyright by E. W. Newman.)

About four years before the promulgation of the Declaration of Independence by the Continental congress, William H. Crawford was born in Amherst county, Va. Before he had advanced beyond childhood his father took him to Georgia, and there the boy grew to manhood, and became one of the first citizens of the republic. He was elected to the legislature and soon after was chosen a senator in congress, of which body he became president pro tempore during his first term. He was minister to France during the war of 1812, and upon his return, was appointed secretary of war by President Madison, and soon after was transferred to the treasury department, of which he continued the head throughout the two succeeding administrations of President Monroe. He was a prominent candidate for president in 1824 and his was one of the names that went before the house of representatives upon the failure of the electoral college to elect. Though he was a Jeffersonian, Daniel Webster, a New England Federalist, strove for the election of Crawford, even over John Q. Adams, from Webster's own state. When Adams was elected by the house, he invited Crawford to remain at the head of the treasury, but he declined, returned home, accepted a judgeship and a few years later, died.

Crawford was not so great a man as Clay, or Calhoun or Webster, but he was better fitted for the presidency than any one of them. He was emphatically a sagacious man. He was not a statesman by intuition; his statesmanship resulted from reflection. Though no genius, he had wisdom of the highest practical order. Webster and Calhoun were warm friends in 1825, and both hoped to see Crawford chosen president over Adams or Jackson, and it was no small tribute to a man's capacity and character when Calhoun and Webster indorsed him for the first place in the republic.

Charles A. Culberson of Texas is a direct lineal descendent of William H. Crawford of Georgia and a chip of that same block of abilities, in character, in temperament. Caution in deliberation, he is adamant when once he has reached a conclusion. There is nothing dazzling about him. It is a cool head always. He reflects carefully and weighs every argument scrupulously before he decides; but his decision is final. He is today the best prepared man in the senate. He has in old trunks, boxes, drawers and chests, more papers and scraps of papers than any other of our public men, and he knows precisely where to search for any one of them. He burns no letters, and writes no letters he would request or wish to be burned. Like Baillie Nicol Jarvie's father, the deacon, he never puts out his hand so far that he cannot draw it back again. He is the most capable and the most skillful politician in the Democratic party today.

David B. Culberson was a member of congress for twenty-two years when he voluntarily retired from that body. As a lawyer he had no superior in either house of the national legislature, and for many years he presided over the judiciary committee. One of the finest public speakers in public life, he rarely addressed the house, but when he did rise to speak he commanded the attention of all within the sound of his voice. He was powerful in the logic of common sense. He loved simple and homely speech. He was a simple man in temperament and as democratic as a hunting shirt or a coonskin cap. The late Tom Reed has extravagant admiration for his extraordinary abilities, and when they were both members of the judiciary committee, Reed was fond of taking untenable positions just to see "old Cyclops demolish them." It was the ambition of the elder Culberson to represent Texas in the senate; not for vanity, but because he was conscious of his capabilities for that theater. A time came when the senatorship was his for the asking, but he was now growing old and tired of parliamentary life. He declined it and Texas gave it to his favorite son, the apple of his eye, the core of his heart--the boy of whom he was so proud and who so well deserved his approbation.

The younger Culberson was born in Alabama in 1855, and the following year his father became a citizen of Texas. Old Dave said that he intended that the boy should have an education that would enable him "to find his hat." One might write volumes and not express it so well. What the father meant was that his boy should be disciplined for the battle of life; that he should be taught detail; that he should be grounded in self reliance; that he should know how to make his way in the world. Many a boy, bright, healthy, vigorous, cannot find his hat in the morning, and the pity of it is they go through life just that way—always seeking what they cannot find, and simply because they were not properly taught in childhood how to seek.

And as soon as he was old enough young Culberson packed off to the Virginia military institute, a school little inferior to West Point. There he graduated with high honors, and was anxious for a military career; but that did not suit the father, who insisted that the son should study for the bar. He entered his father's office and studied under the instructions of the old man for three years and then became a student at the law department of the University of Virginia, where he greatly distinguished himself. Here he attracted the attention of Senator Daniel, himself a great lawyer, who wrote a paper on one of Culberson's legal productions at school, and predicted the distinguished career the young man was to carve out.

Returning to Texas after his graduation, young Culberson opened an office at Jefferson, and engaged actively in the practice. He was very soon thereafter elected prosecuting attorney of Marion county; but his private practice made such demands on him that, in justice to his clients, he was forced to resign the office. While yet a very young man he appeared in the supreme court of the United States and argued the celebrated case of Le Grande vs. the United States, involving the constitutionality of the ku klux act. His speech on that occasion was a legal triumph, and the court decided the case in the client's favor.

In 1890, at the age of 35, he was elected attorney general of Texas, succeeding the redoubtable James Hogg, and two years later he was re-elected. It was while he was attorney general that he again appeared before the supreme bench at Washington and argued the case of the Reagan vs. the Farmers' Loan & Trust company, involving the constitutionality of the act creating the Texas railroad commission. When he had concluded his argument and was preparing to leave the room the clerk of the court beckoned him, and upon going to the desk he there found Mr. Justice Gray, who warmly congratulated him upon his able presentation of the case. This was praise from Sir Hubert and Sir Hubert not lavish of praise. Some years subsequently, when he made another exceptionally strong plea before that bench, Justice Gray again sent for him, and said: "Young man, I have watched your career, and am not unmindful of the fact that the people of Texas have taken care that you should not go unrewarded." Chief Justice Fuller also heartily commended him.

In 1894 Culberson was elected governor, defeating the veteran John H. Reagan for the nomination. Two years later he was re-elected. His administration was eminently satisfactory, and his fame went to the uttermost parts of the union, when, with bulldog determination, he banished the prize ring from the state. It cost a deal of money, and no end of vigilance, but Christian civilization cheerfully footed the bill and policed the border. In 1899 Culberson became a senator in congress, and is now serving his second term. He is a capital public speaker, but not a whirlwind declaimer. What he says will set men a-thinking, rather than a-shouting. He speaks the English tongue, and never wanders from the text. His style is that of the thinker and the lawyer. He never talks for the galleries, but his addresses are to the senators.

Culberson is a party man through and through; so was Lincoln; so is Roosevelt. But Culberson, like all great lawyers, is a conservative. He does not believe in pyrotechnics. He suspects novelty. He will sooner cross the river on a safe bridge than on a tightrope. He examines everything, and no labor daunts him. Well grounded in the fundamentals of party politics, he tests everything by those principles. In short, Charles A. Culberson is his great-great-grandfather returned to life, and William H. Crawford and David B. Culberson live again in him.

I understand the Democratic side of the United States senate is in search of a leader. Culberson has no superior in that body. No man is more alert—swifter to see a mistake of the enemy or prompter to take advantage of it. It may be objected that he is Fabius rather than Marcellus; that Fbius gave Hannibal more concern than did Marcellus. Fabius saved Rome; Marcellus fell in action. Culberson is perhaps the only senator the Democrats would cheerfully follow. He does not create antagonisms. He has an admirable temper. He commands confidence and wins respect. Leadership is as necessary to a party as to an army. No man who saw the work of Thomas B. Reed in the Fifty-second congress will challenge that proposition. If the Democrats of the senate of 1907-08 are led with half the skill of the Republicans of the house were in 1891-93, it will have a tremendous effect on the political situation.

When the Southern senators retired in 1861 and Douglas died, the Democrats of the senate were in a great deal worse fix then than their successors are in the present senate. They were few in number and without leadership. The two ablest men among them were powerless in the grasp of the demon drink. Garret Davis was not yet a Democrat. Lazarus W. Powell was discredited for his Southern sympathies. Latham was more than half a Republican. Turpie was a senator, but but a few weeks. Doolittle was yet a full Republican. Hendricks was not yet a senator. Thurman did not come in until 1869. There was no leadership, and very nearly no party. Hendricks and Thurman put a different face on things, and it was the wise counsel of Thurman, supported by Bayard, Lamar, Hill and Casserley, that gave the Democrats the senate in the Forty-sixth congresss. It took twelve years for the "Old Roman" to accomplish it, but he had but a handful of supporters to begin with, yet he hewed his way to the majority by the sheer force of logic and the invincible truths of old-fashioned Democracy, a principle that has never for one moment been in a minority in this republic since the ordination of the constitution of the United States. Tilden saw with perfect vision when, as early as 1870 he made the declaration: "The Democratic party was never beaten when it was Democratic."

But leadership implies discipline. Will the Democracy be led? That is the question, and there's the rub. Senators are human. Culberson is yet young for a senatorial leader. Will the others follow? It is said that Mr. Roosevelt has chosen the Democratic leader of the senate, and Mr. Culberson is not the man. Mr. Roosevelt has accomplished more impossible things than any other man since Napoleon Bonaparte. He is absolute master of one party and claims an option on the other. If the Democratic party is going to take orders from a Republican party president, it is useless to even think of Culberson for the titular leader of such a layout. If he is made leader in name he will be leader in fact, and the party in the senate would as well, or better, go out of the political business as to name a leader and then take orders from the enemy.

With strong Democratic leadership in the two houses of congress—Culberson and Williams—the next session of the American congress would be the most interesting within a generation, and it would beneficially affect American politics for another generation.

FAREWELL FUNCTION

High School Senior Class Gives Its Final Banquet.

Dinner is Followed by Speeches and the Class Prophecy.

The seniors of the high school gave their farwell banquet and dance at the school last night and the affair was a success in every way. The tables were set in the lunch room and practically the entire class was present. The decorations were in red and yellow colors of the class and the tables were prettily ornamented with flowers which were the gift of Principal and Mrs. Smith.

The girls furnished the dinner and the boys did full justice to it, disposing of it in quick fashion. The girls also acted as waitresses and proved to be very efficient in this capacity.

The speaking, after the close of the dinner, was begun by President McDevitt.

"When we consider the occasion for which we are assembled," he said, "it brings a feeling of sadness to us to think that we are so soon to depart from our Alma Mater forever. This is almost the last time that we will come together as a unit and it brings back many pleasant memories of bygone times." The speaker then went into the history of the class, describing its entrance to the school life the first day amid the hisses of the sophomores, and the manner in which the class afterward humbled those same haughty sophs.

He said that the class had fulfilled its promised greatness, dealing briefly with the success of its athletic and social functions.

Principal Smith was then called upon to speak and he responded with an eulogy of the class in general and its president in particular. He cracked several jokes at the expense of some of the students and then proceeded to tell in a serious vein of the many merits of the class. He said that it had given him great pleasure and delight by its conduct since its entrance to high school ,and said that as the senior class it has set a worthy example to the lower classmen. He closed with an expression of his gratitude for the great help which they have been to him, and with sincere wishes for their future welfare.

Prof. Phillips, who has been the friend and helpmate of the class since his arrival at the high school, was called on next. He said that all the teachers will greatly miss the class of '07, but none of them more than he, as it is the best class that he has ever taught in his experience as a teacher. The class, he said, has always responded heartily to everything that has been required of it. He also took occasion to thank the students for the great honor which they had done him in dedicating the Zenith to him. He closed his talk with the wish that the class might have the best that life can give.

Speeches were also made by Miss Wells, Mrs. Lectra, Miss Mogford, Miss Noyes, Miss Robinson, Mr. Neal, Mr. Ferguson and Fraulien von Schelten, all of whom complimented the class upon the great success which it has been as a high school class and gave the students their hearty good wishes.

The speaking was closed by the class prophecy, which was delivered in the form of a poem by Miss Margaret Culkin. It was very cleverly written and elicited great applause from the students, who were pictured in all sorts of guises by Miss Culkin.

After the banquet the class enjoyed dancing in the hall above, to which the other classes were admitted. The music was furnished by La Brosse's orchestra and the selections found great favor with the dancers.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Much New Business is Pending in Iron and Steel Industry.

New York, May 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Further progress was made in the distribution of spring merchandise this week, but the season is still very backward and much stock will be carried over. Confidence is not generally shaken, although some evidences of caution followed the violent rise in prices of wheat and frequent rumors of crop disasters. Latest reports indicate that warm weather in some states and much needed rains in other sections have given the tardy grain and cotton a better start. Leading manufacturing industries have not curtailed operations, several advances in wages have occurred and there are numerous encouraging developments to offset slow progress on the farms, including more prompt mercantile collections at many cities.

Much new business is pending in the iron and steel industry and a large tonnage was placed during the past week, but the furnaces and mills are sold so far ahead that interest is greatest in specifications on old orders. As these are of noteworthy size, it is evident that consumption is fully maintained, and no setback can be discerned in any department.

A conspicuous feature is the demand for bars from makers of agricultural implements. This business is larger than last year, indicating that no anxiety regarding the crops is felt in this industry, although wholly dependent upon the prosperity of the farmer. Business in steel rails includes large quantities for Japan and Panama and domestic contracts covering deliveries during the first half of next year, while light rails for traction companies are under negotiation, but this large tonnage depends upon funds being raised for projected lines. Structural steel mills have extensive inquiries for office buildings, factories and railway bridges, most of the pressure coming from Western cities.

In the textile industries, the event of most interest during the week was the increased firmness in cotton goods on account of the sharp rise in cost of raw material and a better demand for the finished product from many buyers, who just began to appreciate the fact that no advantage would be gained by further delay. Prices are steady, but there is much talk of contemplated changes on account of labor scarcity and high wages in addition to the rise in raw cotton.

There is no foreign business in cottons, export inquiries from the Red sea being too far below the market. Little reselling of export goods in the domestic market occurred, although the attempt was made. Improvement is noted in woolen goods, yet buyers of men's wear are conservative, restricting operations to certain lines that are always popular.

A few varieties of footwear are 2½c cheaper, but most good grades are firmly held, and New England factories are well equipped with orders for the better class of goods, while makers of cheap shoes have not sufficient business to be assured of active machinery for any length of time.

While leather is not especially active, there is a good movement of sole, but side upper has declined still further. Domestic hides of late sailing are firm, but there is little inquiry for long haired winter stock. All foreign hides are weaker, owing to the poor business of European tanners. Several grades are fractionally lower for the week, because stocks have accumulated, tanners buying less than the slaughter.

QUALITY OF THE SURFACE WATERS

Washington, May 25.—As a result of nearly two years' field and laboratory work carried on by the United States geological survey in co-operation with the state board of health, the federal survey has just issued a report outlining the general characteristics of the surface waters in Minnesota, and discussing the various factors that tend to modify the quality of the drainage. Both the chemical and the bacteriological work, during which the entire cooperation were under the immediate supervision of Dr. F. F. Westbrook, director of the laboraries of the state board of health, who shares the authorship of the paper with R. B. Dole of the geological survey.

The head waters of these great drainage systems lie within the borders of Minnesota. Approximately one-tenth of its surface is tributary to the Laurentian system; three-tenths drain to Hudson bay, through its great tributaries, Red and Rainy rivers; the rest of the state is tributary to the Mississippi, either directly or through its large branches, Missouri, Des Moines, Cedar, St. Croix and Minnesota rivers.

The report in question discusses the condition, both natural and economic, that influence the quality of the water, and import to the lakes and streams their essential characteristics, after which each drainage area is considered in detail, the streams are described, the sources of pollution are discussed, and the results of chemical and bacteriological examinations are given. The report is available for free distribution, and copies may be obtained by addressing the Director, United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

Day after day The Herald want columns show a procession of opportunities—opportunities to buy, to sell, to lease, to hire, to find people to work for, to find boarders, lodgers, tenants, or partners. These want ad. opportunities touch almost all phases of life and living in this city.

TAKEN UPON OLD CHARGE

Roseau County Citizen's Friends Stirred Up Over the Affair.

Roseau, Minn., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is considerable feeling in Roseau county over the reported arrest in Winnipeg, Can., of A. P. J. Monkman, a well-known trapper, guide, hunter and cruiser, on the charge of having been implicated in the Reil rebellion of about thirty years ago.

In the army of halfbreeds and Indians with which Louis Riel hoped to carve out a kingdom for himself in the Canadian Northwest, Monkman is said to have been second in command. When the rebellion finally collapsed and Riel and several of his breeds were hanged, Monkman escaped and came to this part of the country. A price was placed upon his head, but he managed to escape capture.

As the years rolled by, Monkman, who had homesteaded, hunted and trapped throughout Northern Minnesota, was seized with a desire to see his old stamping ground, and several times has visited Winnipeg, always returning in safety. On his last visit, however, according to the information received here, he was arrested.

CARRIES GOSPEL INTO THE NORTH

Big Falls, Minn., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—In order to reach the greatest number of railroad employes and lumber jacks, whose moral welfare is the especial mission of the Northwestern Evangelical association, L. C. Ward, the superintendent, has been here arranging for headquarters for far Northern Koochiching county.

He will at once begin the erection of a frame building, 24x30, which will be used as a chapel, reading room and home for the floating population, and others. The building will be located just east of the fire hall, on lots owned by the Lumbermen's bank. Mr. Ward delivered a powerful sermon Sunday night at the M. E. church, assisted by Rev. Astwood and Rev. Watson. Mr. Ward is an earnest worker, a gifted talker, and has a strong following among the camp boys, among whom he has spent most of his life.

MAY BE IN CARLTON WITH STOLEN CHILD.

Minneapolis, May 25.—The kidnaping by the nurse, known as "Bessie," of the 4-days-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Glauque, by whom she was employed, still remains something of a mystery. There is a theory the girl took the child to Carlton, Minn.

The police of that place have been asked to seek for the girl, and return, if possible, the baby to its almost heart-broken mother.

Mr. Mineau said that he had no insurance on his household goods, and that, while his loss is considerable, the bulk of his goods were saved.

FAT WALLET IN LAUNDRY

Rich Find Made by Girl Employed in Grand Forks Concern.

One Hundred and Twenty-Five Dollars in Bills in Washing.

Fargo, N. D., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the girls employed in a local laundry came across a rich find in the washing on which she was working. In the laundry that came from the Arlington hotel was a wallet belonging to a boarder that contained $125 in bills. The pocketbook and contents had been in the washer about an hour when discovered. Both were more or less torn.

The pieces were picked up and returned by Soe Durick, proprietor of the laundry, to Landlord Knudson of the Arlington, who took them to one of the national banks. The bills will be sent to Washington for redemption. It is believed that about $100 will be secured.

The owner of the money had placed the pocketbook under his pillow and the chambermaid threw the sheet and pocketbook into the laundry basket. The owner of the pocketbook feared he had been robbed and the discovery of the pocketbook at the laundry cleared the atmosphere.

UPPER MICHIGAN

MANY CASES TO BE TRIED

Busy Term of Court Begins at Houghton Next Week.

There Are Forty-One Criminal Cases on the Docket.

Houghton, Mich., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The May term of the Houghton county circuit court will open at Houghton Monday morning, with one of the largest calendars in a long time, forty-one criminal cases, sixteen issues of fact, three issues of law and seven chancery cases, and more are being added to the list. Circuit Judge A. T. Streeter of Houghton will be on the bench. The jury will not report till Tuesday morning, the first day of the term being spent in hearing pleas, arranging the calendar and admitting new citizens, there being almost one hundred petitions for first papers.

Eighteen of the criminal cases are for violation of the liquor laws by screening the bar on Sundays, keeping open after hours, selling liquor to minors, etc. Nine are for burglary, larceny, robbery, etc. One of these cases is that of Theophile Bellefeuille, a hockey player, better known as "Tuff," one time with the Kenora Thistles and afterwards with the Portage Lake and Calumet hockey teams and one of the most noted and fastest players in the game. He is charged with robbing a Calumet saloon. He was caught in the basement of the place by the proprietor and an officer. He came to the Copper country with a shadey name and two black eyes and just after serving a term of two years in a prison in Western Canada, it is said. The Canadian papers are showing considerable interest in the case.

Another case is that of Alex Colombe, charged with wife desertion and non-support. Colombe was apprehended in the Zenith City by Duluth officers at the instance of Sheriff Beck of Houghton county and made all the trouble he could for the Michigan officers in the matter of requisition papers, etc.

Frank X. Provost, once tried and sentenced to Marquette prison for assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than the crime of murder, is on the calendar again for the fourth time, his case being ordered retried several terms ago by the supreme court. It has been continued from time to time, but will likely be tried at the present term. It is charged that he attempted to blow up a residence at Kenton, this county, a couple of years ago. There will be two murder trials, both for infanticide. One is that of a Finnish girl, Brita Sophia Haukijarvi, who was working in the family of a very prominent Hancock man. When it was discovered that she was in a very delicate condition she was driven from the house, it is claimed. Her child was born outside in the snaw, and it is claimed that she murdered it. The other is that of an Austrian girl of Calumet, and is of more recent date.

The other cases of the criminal calendar are for assault, attempted murder and several other such offenses.

BIG REUNION OF ST. GEORGE SONS

Several Hundred Members Expected to Attend Ishpeming Meeting.

Hancock, Mich., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Copper country members of the order, Sons of St. George, are taking a great interest in the plans and arrangements being made for the annual reunion to be held at Ispheming in July. It is estimated that between 500 and 1,000 will attend from the Copper country. Houghton is probably the only town in the Copper country that has not a branch of the order. T. Andrew, the Hancock chief of police, is the treasurer of the order and a candidate for re-election at the coming convention in the Iron country.

The members of the order, before going to the convention, vote on the officers for the coming year and the result of the election is made known at the reunion. The nominations are made by the grand lodge at the previous meeting. The supreme lodge session of the order will be held at Calumet in October. The Michigan grand lodge is entitled to two delegates.

CABLE FOR 'PHONE.

Canadian and American Soos to Talk Under Water.

St. Ignace ,Mich., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The cable to be laid at the bed of St. Mary's river by the Michigan State Telephone company for the purpose of connecting its systems in the American and Canadian Soos will be 4,500 feet in length. It is what is known as a ten-pair submarine cable and was made in London, England. The cable arrived in Montreal over a month ago, but was lost somewhere en route to the Soo and has not yet been located. It will be laid as soon as it arrives here, and it is hoped by the company to have it in working order early in June. For years connection between the towns has been by wires strung across the international bridge, for which the telephone company was obliged to pay the railroad company $1 a day. Owing to the roundabout way traveled by the system, it was expensive in keeping up repairs and the company decided some time ago to lay a cable and cut off a big portion of this annual expense.

Ladies' Auxiliary of Knights of Pythias at Hancock.

Hancock, Mich., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last night a branch of Pythian sisters the ladies' auxiliary of the Knights of Pythias, was installed in the city of Hancock for both Houghton and Hancock ladies. WANT TAXES REDUCED.

Michigan Legislature to be Petitioned in Behalf of Railroad.

Norway, Mich., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—A largely signed petition, asking a reduction in the taxes assessed against it, is to be presented the legislature in the interest of the Wisconsin & Michigan railroad. Municipal and county officials and leading business men along the line of the company's road are attaching their signatures to the memorial, and it is believed that the facts set forth will have weight at Lansing. The road is a new one, with comparative small mileage, it extending only from Peshtigo Harbor, Wis., to Quinnesec, Mich., and its traffic is not such as to occasion anything of the nature of a congestion of cars. In fact, the taxes levied last year amounted to $7,000 more than the total profit.

MACCABEES' REUNION.

Copper Country Lodges to Meet at Calumet June 15.

Hancock, Mich., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many Portage Lake Maccabees will attend the reunion of the Copper country lodges, to be held in Calumet on Saturday, June 15, to which all the members of the order in the Copper county have been invited. One of the features of the meeting will be the big street parade in which it is expected that over 1,000 knights will march. The reunion will be held at the Palestra skating rink in Laurium. In the evening there will be a prominade, at which the full Calumet & Hecla orchestra will furnish the music.

Houghton, Mich., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Treasurer M. M. Foley of Houghton has just received the apportionment of the primary school money for the county from the state school commissioner and treasurer and has apportioned it to the various townships and the one city, Hancock, of the county. The amount is $24,154, or one dollar per head, there being 24,154 children of school age in the county. This is the semi-annual apportionment. The next apportionment will be made in September or October and will amount to either three or four dollars per head. The school districts are allowed to use this money only for defraying the salaries of teachers.

Houghton—Vesselmen are pleased at the good dispatch that boats are getting at the Head of the Lakes. This is true of the boats in all the trades, and the lumpy, frozen ore that was coming down from the open pit mines is about played out. Frozen ore makes dispatch slow and the ore roads and the vesselmen are glad to see the last of it.

Houghton—George E. Reay of Detroit has arrived in Houghton and accepted a position as pharmacist at Atkin's.

Hancock—The grand ball, given under the auspices of Hancock lodge of Elks at Germania hall Wednesday night, was a success in every way. A large number of Elks from Calumet were in attendance and numerous people from other towns in the county were among the guests. The arrangements were all that could be desired.

Marquette—A special election will be held to decide the proposition either of selling the electric light system to the Granger-Farwell interests of Chicago, the concern which owns the street railway, for $35,000, or of spending $18,000 to rebuild the plant.

Crystal Falls—The 10-months-old daughter of Mrs. James Langdon drowned in a pail of water in the kitchen, during the mother's absence from the house.

They are better than many pages of mere description. Very many other letters and reports are available, but space does not permit their insertion. MAYOR'S OFFICE
Hamilton, Montana,
February 27, 1907.

As an officer of our city government, I am pleased to offer you our co-operation in carrying through your irrigation project, because of the great developments which must come to this favored valley, by your adding one-third more irrigated land to its present acreage. Our valley has already attained a rank and position second to none because of its unusual natural advantages, cheap lumber, cheap fuel, pure water, and beautiful scenery; and because of the unusually high market conditions, the enormous crops of grains and grasses, and the unrivaled fruits of all Northern varieties which have given the valley a leadership for quality and profits of fruits among all the great regions of the Northwest.

The east side lands which you are now reclaimnig at so great an expense are unquestionably, in my judgment, among the best lands in the valley for fruit, and have proved to be equally productive for all kinds of crops. The great Daly estate is adjoining your land, together with the farming carried on for years here and there along the whole length of your land, wherever water could be obtained, have demonstrated the great value of the bench lands for all time, especially for fruit.

With the completion of the trunk line of the C. M. & St. P. Railroad at Missoula this fall, transportation facilities, already good must benefit our valley largely. The building of the electric freight and passenger line between Hamilton and Missoula, which now seems assured, and which extends along or through the land you are irrigating, must greatly increase land values on the east side of the river. In my opinion, it seems reasonably certain that the great Daly interests will establish a large beet sugar factory next year in time to handle the crops of 1908.

While our valley, with its 14,000 or more people is very fully advanced in every way, with good schools, churches, telephones, and rural free deliveries—your own project and the other projects under way must give a great impetus to the advance in land values and of every interest in the valley. Your project offers to the people who invest in your land a special opportunity to share with our citizens the remarkable advantages which abound here.

I personally consider this one of the most highly favored regions for its size in the whole country.

Wishing you unbounded success, I am,
Very truly yours, W. W. McCRACKEN, Mayor.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
Missoula, Montana, March 7, 1907.

For some time we have been watching with a great deal of interest your irrigation project in the Bitter Root Valley, and wish at this time to congratulate you on the final consummation of this gigantic project.

A valley that has all of the natural advantages that the Bitter Root contains is truly the Mecca for all who desire to make and build a happy and prosperous home. In this arid climate "Water is King," and, practically speaking, is the cap sheaf which guarantees success. You have supplied this, and the entire valley will reap the result of your labors.

The marvelous earning power of these Bitter Root lands is almost incomprehensible, and we have been reluctant at times to inform our Eastern Brothers of the immense possibilities in the way of fruit growing, and the success which follows a careful and industrious grower—but all who have made an intelligent investigation have said, "half has not been told—one must see to appreciate."

With permission that you refer all doubting inquirers to us, we beg to remain,

Very truly yours,
MISSOULA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

In answer to your recent favor asking my opinion of the Bitter Root District in Western Montana—in which district your are now constructing an irrigation plant to reclaim the arid lands on the east side of the river,—I have to say after a careful investigation made on my trip West last summer—at which time I spent two weeks in the Bitter Root Valley—that the district presents greater inducements to the homeseekers than any district I have ever visited. I am more or less familiar with all of the irrigated districts in Utah and Idaho, and portions of Montana and Wyoming, and feel confident in saying that as a location for a home or an investment the Bitter Root stands in a class by itself, and above all others.

I have examined the valley from one end to the other having driven up the west side and down the east. I found a most cordial and enlightened class of people in the towns and among the farming class on the west side of the valley, which has been developed to a high state of cultivation from arid land, by appropriating the water from the small streams fed by the melting snows on the high range of mountains to the west, bringing this land up in value from almost nothing to prices ranging from $250 to $500 per acre; and I dare say, some of the land is worth much more than that per acre, because it produces one year in fruit an amount equal to, or greater than, that figure. The farmer only limits the price of his land by the manner in which he handles it. The quality of anything that is planted which is adapted to that particular climate. And, as their markets are of the best in the world, being wholly local and affected in no wise by Chicago or New York, except on fancy packed fruits, it is only a question of production with the farmer. If he produces a crop he finds a ready market for all his product at high prices. Silver City, and Mining camps adjacent to the Bitter Root Valley. These camps are obliged to ship in all of the products consumed, of which a great portion come from Utah and Idaho. Thus, you may understand, the farmer or fruit grower has a great advantage over those in other districts by being so near steady cash markets.

I had the pleasure of helping myself to all the strawberries I could eat from a patch of two acres which the owner told me would net him more than a thousand dollars for the season's crop. Other fruits grow in proportion, and all of the growers with whom I talked were prospering and seemed to think there was no limit to the possibilities of the Bitter Root. The certainty of the markets and the assurance of a good crop each year by irrigation carries farming and fruit growing in that district beyond the point of an experiment or of speculation.

The climate is ideal; the scenery most beautiful, as the valley is completely surrounded by mountains; and for a home there is no prettier spot in the West. I know from my talks with several men who went into the valley several years ago without anything, and bought small tracts on time at $200 an acre—which they developed, and are now out of debt and some of them with bank accounts—that people with a very limited means may become most independent, and do it without risk by taking up homes in the Bitter Root.

The land which your irrigation plant will reclaim on the east side of the valley is a most beautiful scope of country, and the nature of the soil is such that it will work up easily, there being no sage brush such as covers nearly all of the desert land which is reclaimed by irrigation. I therefore believe that this land will develop into the most productive of any in Western Montana.

I have a few friends whom I have talked with about Bitter Root, and I should be glad to have you send some of your advertising matter to them with a map of the district, and for that purpose I inclose a list of the names.

I shall be pleased to answer any inquiries from parties desiring to know about Bitter Root, if you care to refer any such to me, as it will be a pleasure to impart any information which I gained from my trip out there, to those who are seeking homes in the West.

Very sincerely yours,
L. L. L. SEARLES.

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 15, 1907.

As to the production of fruits, grains, and vegetables. For years I have heard much of these famous lands and a great part of what I heard was received as "fish stories." But my investigation there proved to me that there has been no exaggeration. $1,000 to the acre is not an unusual result for a crop of apples, crab apples, pears, or strawberries, while I found many instances of a much higher amount being realized. As to value, I believe that $600 per acre is a fair average price for improved orchard lands, while hay and grain lands are worth from $200 to $300, according to location.

I wish to congratulate you on what you have already accomplished.

Respectfully yours,
H. M. JONES,
President Western Fruit Jobbers' Association.

Stevensville, Mont., Feb. 19, 1907.

I have resided in the Bitter Root Valley for the past forty-three years, and on the place where I now reside thirty-eight years. During that time I have been engaged in diversified farming.

The apple crop is always good, and in the Alexander apple will average $500 per acre, and in Transcendent crab apples will average $1,000 per acre. My sales of apples this year is $5,000.00, and profit $4,500. I consider the Bitter Root Valley (in regard to making money on a ranch) far superior to any place I have seen in the United States. If a farmer here has good water right, it does not make any difference what kind of land he has—it is all good.

Yours truly,
D. C. BASS.

Victor, Mont., March 7, 1907.

All kinds of vegetables are raised successfully and yield prolifically. There is always a fair market for all crops. Potatoes average from five hundred to six hundred bushels per acre on good land. The lowest price in recent years is 50 cents per bushel at digging time, and every year they reach $1.00 to $1.50 per hundred pounds. Onions average from 75 cents to $1.25 per hundred. Root crops of all kinds are always satisfactory and bring a good profit. Celery does extremely well and is usually well flavored. The farmer receives an average of about 50 cents per dozen.

In my experience in farming in the Bitter Root Valley there are no diseases among the hogs, cattle, sheep, or poultry to speak of. I have raised hogs for twenty-five years and have never lost one from disease yet. They are very profitable here.

The Bitter Root Valley is the only district where crab apples are grown in commercial quantities and are free from codling-moth, and as long as these insects are kept out, there will be a market for all the crab apples that can be produced. It is an established fact that the more apples produced the more there will be consumed. The market for crab apples is sure to increase as the product increases.

I know of instances where from 25 to 30 boxes per tree have been gathered. These apples now net the grower about $1.15 per box. The production of standard apples, pears, and cherries are equally as profitable. The Bitter Root Valley offers the best of opportunities for the intelligent fruit grower.

It is no trouble to sell anything that is good always at good prices. We have made from forty to fifty pounds of butter per week for five years and never got less than 25 cents, and most of the time 30 cents or better. I butcher my hogs and cure the meat and always have a greater demand for my pork products than I can supply, which averages me 10 cents per pound for the hog hanging on the gambrel.

From close observation I believe that the farmers, fruitgrowers, and stock raisers are more progressive and get better returns for farming than in any other place their time and labor than in any other place that I have lived.

Dairying I consider especially profitable. I pasture twenty cows for eight months of the year on fifteen acres planted to clover and keep them in first-class condition. The price of cream is always high. I have never seen butter below 25 cents per pound.

E. W. O'DELL.

Victor, Mont., Jan. 19, 1907.

On my farm mixed timothy and clover yielded from 3½ to 4 tons at a single cutting, and the second crop was cut from the same ground in the same season. Alfalfa yields, of course, greater returns, and is usually cut three times. In 1906 ten acres of hard wheat yielded me 506 bushels. In my neighborhood it is not uncommon to have a yield of 125 bushels of oats per acre. At present, the price of oats is $1.70 per hundred pounds. There is always a good demand for all kinds of farm products, and market conditions are improving every year. In my estimation the Bitter Root Valley has been more highly favored by nature than any other section of the country of equal area.

MONTANA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE
February 1, 1907.

With this growing dairy industry comes a need for butter-makers, and butter-makers' assistants. So far it has been difficult for the dairy department of the Montana Agricultural College to supply properly trained butter-makers for the different creameries. Frequently, calls have come in to the dairy department for creamery butter-makers which we have been unable to fill, as all of our available men were already placed. In view of this fact, it has been deemed advisable by the dairy department to institute a course of one month for young men who desire to co-operate with the different butter-makers in the state along this line.

Stevensville, Mont., Feb. 19, 1907.

The past year I have sold cream from four cows and averaged $40 per month. The dairy business is comparatively a new industry in the valley, but I consider it is one of the coming industries of the country.

Gentlemen:

I have been in this Valley for twenty-six years and have seen it develop from an arid district into the most productive valley in the West. We pride ourselves upon being able to raise more per acre than does any place in our State—and the State leads the Union in yield per acre in all crops excepting one, in which it is second. Our great success is due to three things: First, we have good soil; second, we depend wholly upon irrigation, and third, we have a climate that is mild and more uniform than in any other country I was ever in.

I wish further to state that the land which lies below the survey line of the canal you are constructing will be as productive when properly irrigated, as the best farming land in the valley.

It may be of interest to explain how much of a crop raised one can expect the first year you cultivate this bench land. I raised about fifty bushels of wheat per acre east of Hamilton the first year, and it is a very common thing in the valley to thresh over one hundred bushels of oats per acre. I consider we are behind no one in raising apples and small fruits, never being bothered with pests. We are very successful in producing quantity, quality, and size. I have seen over five tons of timothy and clover hay cut per acre. Hay is retailing today in Hamilton at $21.00 per ton, and never becomes cheap. What is every haystack worth?

The best evidence that I can give of what I think of the Bitter Root Valley farming lands, is to cite you to what I have done and am doing in the construction of irrigating systems to reclaim what was once thought to be worthless land. I claim the honor of being the first man to raise a crop on the bench lands of the Bitter Root Valley.

GEORGE W. WARD.

Gentlemen:

I have been a resident of the Bitter Root Valley for the past fourteen years and never knew of a crop failure during that time. When I arrived at Grantsdale I bought forty acres of land and only had $150.00 to pay down on it. I worked three years on the railroad trying to pay for it, but had to give it up as a bad job. I then started at small truck gardening, and at that time I knew nothing at all about farming. I have been engaged ever since at the gardening business, and have made lots of money at the business. I not only paid the place off, but have laid up money and have made a trip with my family through England and Scotland and Wales, besides numerous long trips in this country. I traveled 17,000 miles in one trip, but saw no country which I considered equal to the Bitter Root as a farming and fruit raising country. I have a house on my place which cost me $2,500.00 with good outbuildings. Our climate is the best of any place that I have ever been. If a man has a place with water, he need have no fears as to the result if he will only do his part. If he will handle the ground right he should have no trouble in clearing one hundred dollars to the acre.

Yours truly, (Signed)
S. A. CRABB.

In answer to your verbal inquiries, would say that I have been here for over twelve years, engaged in the banking business, and have loaned considerable money on mortgages, and in all that time I have only foreclosed one mortgage and that was on town property.

From my observation, I know no section of the country where people generally are more prosperous than in the Bitter Root Valley.

Respectfully,
W. W. McCRACKEN,
President Ravalli County Bank.

Stevensville, Mont., Feb. 19, 1907.

We have now fields of alfalfa that have been seeded for thirteen years bearing us two heavy crops each year. I have in mind a field on the high bench lands seeded to red clover about 17 years ago. Four years ago this field was plowed and sowed to Lincoln oats. The yield was about 100 bushels of very fine oats per acre without any special care. We have had no crop failures in seventeen years.

Fruit has been grown here for thirty years, and in recent years has advanced to a more important position in the products of the farms. Apples, plums, cherries, and prunes grow in profusion. Warms and insects are practically unknown, the fruit is large, of delicious flavor, unexcelled in keeping qualities, and in demand in the Eastern markets. Berries grow to perfection.

The reputation which the Bitter Root Valley has obtained, has been gained by results, and not by bluster and blow. A mild climate, rich soil, abundance of water, and an intelligent American population are the rich assets of this beautiful and fertile valley. Newcomers to the valley will find intelligent and prosperous neighbors who will, I am quite certain, extend a friendly hand to new arrivals and offer a hearty welcome.

In reply to your request for information relative to my experience in the Bitter Root Valley nineteen years, and have been in the business of raising fruit for the past fourteen years. I have about six thousand trees on the bench west of Como. I have had great success and believe the bench lands of the valley cannot be excelled anywhere for the raising of apples. From seven hundred 8-year-old Wealthy trees, I have netted about two thousand dollars. During the year nineteen hundred and five, fourteen hundred trees brought in a net return of $5,000.00. In addition with my apple crop I have been very successful with cherries. Eighty-five cherry trees, 8 years old, gave me a net return of two dollars per tree. Plum trees of the Lombard variety 8 years old, for the past year gave net returns of seven dollars and fifty cents per tree. Transcendent crabs do remarkably well. Thirty trees 9 years old, produced two hundred and twenty-five boxes in one year. Three hundred and eighty-four trees of the McIntosh variety of apples, 8 years old, produced six hundred and fifty boxes. The apples sold for $1.25 per box.

I consider the bench lands much superior to the valley lands for fruit raising, being less subject to frost. I have never known the crop to fail.

Yours truly, (Signed)
THOMAS PADDEN.

Gentlemen:

I first came to the Bitter Root Valley in 1889, and have been interested in farm property ever since. I have resided here continuously since 1893. During the time I have resided here I have been all of my real estate interests for the reason that the profits to be derived therefrom were very large. The increase in the value of the property, a good investment, to say nothing of the net returns from the crops of hay, grain and fruit. We are so well satisfied with our investments that we are not offering any property for sale, as we believe the property will continue to advance. Eight-year-old trees of the McIntosh Red variety of apples will produce about five hundred boxes per acre. The price of these apples averages over one dollar per box. We are well satified that apple raising in the Valley is a money-making business. We have never known of any worms or insects on our fruit. I have never known of the failure of the apple crop.

In addition to our apple orchards, we have all kinds of fruit raised in the Northern states, and it has proved very successful.

We have also been successful at raising beef cattle and hogs for the market, and believe in feeding grain and hay products on the farm.

Yours truly, (Signed)
CHARLES McRAE.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE

One Bitter Root farmer reports an income of $577.75 from ten cows in twelve months. Another herd of twenty gave the following results in 1903: Butter 9,932 pounds at an average of 29½ cents per pound, or $1,799.44. Besides this, there were 112,420 pounds of skimmed milk, which is considered to be worth thirty cents a hundred weight as feed for hogs, calves and chickens.

A third dairyman with twenty-seven cows sold eight thousand pounds of butter in Butte in twelve months. Such results as these from individual effort made the work of organizing convenient returns of seven dollars and fifty cents pantles to systematize and extend the business comparatively easy.

Another advantage of the dairy industry for Montana is that there are no long freight hauls to market. There is an unlimited market right at home, with prices for butter and cheese that excel those of almost any other state in the Union. In addition there is a fine climate, pure water, and as good feed as can be grown anywhere. All these are prime essentials for high quality butter and cheese."

A Ten-Acre Tract of This Best-of-All Fruit Land, Planted and Brought to Bearing, Is the Best Possible Protection You Can Buy for Your Family.

Recurring commercial disturbances, financial tempests, labor troubles, unsettled industrial and economic problems, not only render ordinary values uncertain, but render uncertain, as well, salaried positions and business undertakings, little and big. Yet through any and all of such disturbances these lands will retain their value, and continue to yield their annual and highly profitable harvest. Crop failures are here unknown.

A small investment in an orchard home, such as here offered, will provide you with a safe and most inviting retreat in time of physical or financial troubles. The Valley is a most delightful place in which to live. At present some fourteen thousand remarkably prosperous, healthy and happy people are there domiciled, enjoying advanced educational facilities and social advantages. Fish and game of all kinds are abundant. The Bitter Root river and numerous small mountain streams are well filled with trout. The speckled beauties may be caught as wanted, and with little trouble.

CLASS OF BUYERS—The professional, college and business man are found orcharding in the Valley, and more of their class are daily coming into the Valley, acquiring land and moving onto it.

WHEN RETURNS MAY BE EXPECTED.

Substantial net returns may be expected from an apple orchard the fifth year, and thereafter, for many years, the annual net income will increase. The fifth and sixth years' crops will more than pay the original price of the land and cost of developing it. At the end of the eighth year, a well kept orchard will have returned to the owner thereof a handsome profit, in addition to the original.

At Hood River, Oregon, a few years ago, and before fruit-growing began in earnest, the price of raw land was only a few dollars per acre. Today, good bearing apple orchards can not be bought at less than $2,500.00 per acre.

At North Yakima, Washington, land that sold for $10.00 per acre ten years ago, has a cash value today of from $1,000.00 to $2,500.00 per acre. A St. Paul man who bought ten acres at this point a few years ago and planted it to apple trees, recently sold two of his ten acres for $4,500.00. For verification of this statement, write R. P. Ober, G. A. R. C. L., N. P. Ry. Co., St. Paul. Another St. Paul man, who purchased forty acres of raw land in the same vicinity, recently sold it for $45,000.00. At Wenatchee, Washington, another one of the few great Pacific Slope fruit districts, land values a few years ago purchased forty acres of raw land in the same vicinity, recently sold it for $45,000.00. At Wenatchee, Washington, another one of the few great Pacific Slope fruit districts, land values have increased, within a few years, from almost nothing, to one and two thousand dollars per acre. The same is true of Rockyford and Grand Junction, Colorado. And none of the above mentioned districts produce apples in quality equal to those produced in the Bitter Root Valley; and none are as well located with regard to markets.

If desired, advantageous arrangements may be made for planting and cultivating lands for those who buy and do not want to immediately move onto the land.

DIVORCED WIFE IS SEEKING DAMAGES.

Menominee, Mich., May 25.—Judge Quinlan, attorney for Delvina De-Marais-Ramm, has filed notice of suit against the family of Donald Ramm of New London, Wis., whose marriage with the plaintiff was annulled by Judge Hastings, asking for $20,000 damages for alienating the affections of her husband of two days.

THE WRONG SPIRIT.

Alfred H. Love, the famous peace advocate, had been protesting in Philadelphia against the great quantity of military features in preparation for the Jamestown exposition.

"Really," he concluded, with a smile, "one would think that the whole world was animated and kept progressing by a spirit of hatred and revenge and bitter enmity. One would think that—but perhaps you know the story.

"A pale, wan woman, on her deathbed, said in a weak voice to her husband:

"'Henry, if I die, promise me one thing.'

"'Gladly, my poor darling. What is it I am to promise?'

"'Promise me that you will marry Mary Simpson.'

"The man started.

"'But,' he said, 'I thought you hated her.'

"'I do, Henry,' the dying woman whispered. 'I want to get even with her.'"

MUCH ACTIVITY SHOWN BY FIRST STREET DEALS

Several Large Deals on First Street Aggregating $165,000 Have Been Closed This Week, Some for Improvement and Some for Investment—Plans Are Being Prepared for a Number of Large Building Improvements.

The feature of the local real estate market this week has been the activity in First street property in the central portion of the city. Deals have been closed for property on that thoroughfare, within the past few days, involving an aggregate consideration of $165,000, not taking into account other sales that are said to have been made but concerning which there is no definite knowledge. There have been more First street transactions, and the amount involved has been larger than for any like period of time in years past. The prices paid indicate that First street values have been slowly but surely advancing and frontage on that thoroughfare, in the central part of the city, is selling for more than the conservative real estate men would have ventured to predict a couple of years ago. Not only are the values higher, but the buyers at the present time, in some instances, are purchasing for an investment, figuring that prices have not yet hit the high mark. Outside the activity in First street property, the local market has been rather quiet, a condition which many of the brokers claim to be due to bad weather.

The sale of the old Board of Trade livery barn property, on the upper side of First street, just west of the Board of Trade building, from the Western Debenture & Realty company to a syndicate of local men, headed by Ward Ames, Sr., for $65,000, was the largest deal in local real estate given publicity this week. The property has a frontage of 100 feet on First street and is considered as a very desirable realty to hold for investment purposes or even for improvement, should one be contemplated. The sale price is substantially larger than that for which the same property was sold the Western Debenture & Realty company several weeks ago and shows the confidence that Mr. Ames and his associates have in Duluth realty as an investment.

The second large sale of First street property was the transfer of the southwest corner of Fourth avenue west and First street, to parties whose names are not yet made public, for $60,000, the presumption being that the land was bought for improvement. The property has a frontage of seventy-five feet on First street and is directly across the street from the location for the new courthouse. The corner has been under option for some time past, the purchasers deciding to exercise their option this week. The deal is said to have been negotiated through the offices of N. J. Upham and company and R. M. Hunter.

W. C. Sherwood & Company have purchased from the Gregory company, represented by John A. Stephenson, No. 25 West First street, for $27,000. The property has a frontage on the upper side of First street, between First and Second avenues west, and comprises a 50-foot lot and a two-story frame building. The purchase is considered a good one from an investment standpoint. The transaction was negotiated through the office of R. M. Hunter.

N. J. Upham & Company have sold Olaf Pearson of the West end, the southeast corner of First street and Second avenue east, for $13,000. The property is 72x100 feet, and lies just north of the old Masonic temple property. Mr. Pearson was represented in the deal by F. I. Salter.

The announcement made this week of the new railroad from Superior to Port Arthur, to be constructed by the Duluth-Thunder Bay Railway company, in Minnesota, and the Wisconsin & Northern Minnesota Railway company in Superior, has caused a big stir in local realty circles, by reason of the large amount of valuable dock property that the new company proposes to acquire for its uses on Rice's Point. The proposed road, as shown by the map on file in the condemnation proceedings already instituted in the district court will take in a large area of valuable bay front property at the lower end of the point, and will cut off the ends of two large elevators on the point. The condemnation proceedings show the proposed line ending at Railroad street and Fifteenth avenue west, and there is a great deal of speculation as to what arrangements are under way by the new company to secure further trackage. It has been rumored that the new corporation really represents the road and that traffic arrangements will probably be made with the Iron Range road for the use of its tracks either to Knife River or Two Harbors. It is also rumored that the new railway company is likely to take over the railroad that Alger-Smith & Co. have built from Knife River up the north shore as far as the Split Rock river. It is claimed that the end of the logging traffic over the line will soon be in sight and that the road will be the logical route for the proposed extension to Port Arthur. Fruther developments will be watched with a great deal of interest.

L. S. & S. Loeb company, the well known real estate and mortgage loan concern, has given the Twin City real estate men a sample of Duluth enterprise by putting Como Prospect addition, near Como park, on the market at prices almost unheard of hitherto in St. Paul or Minneapolis. L. S. & S. Loeb company bought the property a few weeks ago at a bargain and, having platted it, are selling the lots on easy payments of from $1 to $2 down and $1 a week until the lots are paid for. The company is meeting with great success.

N. J. Upham & Co. have sold S. H. Rudburg lot 5, block 101, Endion, for improvement, the consideration being $600. The lot is located on Sixth street and Seventeenth avenue east.

John B. Greenfield has sold the residence of Harlow C. Bellinger at 4705 Robinson street, to Louis Loranger. He has also sold a lot on Fifty-eighth avenue east for Elia G. Hardenbergh of St. Paul to R. F. Barrows, who resides on the avenue. Mr. Barrows expects to improve the property purchased.

H. W. Andridge, who recently sold his residence in Lakeside, has purchased lots 15 and 16, block 36, London addition, at the corner of Forty-second avenue east and Regent street where he will erect another home. The plans are being drawn by F. L. Young & Co., architects.

A large number of transfers of lots in Marine division and West Park addition, running to the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway company, with an aggregate valuation of over $21,000, were filed with the register of deeds this week. The transfers are some that have been made, in some instances, months ago, and the action of the company in filing the deeds is said to have no special significance. Some of the property transferred has been the rumored location of a coal dock.

According to the rumors current this week the Dewitt-Seitz company, wholesale furniture dealers, expect soon to occupy a large six-story building to be erected near the corner of Lake avenue and Buchanan stret, to cost in the neighborhood of $75,000. The ground is said to be owned by the Zenith Investment company, which concern is to erect the building. It is claimed that Architect J. J. Wangenstein is preparing the plans.

The Massachusetts Real Estate company, J. L. Cromwell, agent, is contemplating the erection of four 7-room houses and four 6-room houses at the northeast corner of Eighth avenue east and Fourth street, to cost in the neighborhood of $25,000. The plans are now being made by F. L. Young & Co., the architects. The same architects are getting out plans for a $12,000 addition to the school at Aurora; for the remodeling of the central school at Ely; also for a big flat building in the East end, on First street, to cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. The architects report the contract for J. P. Holman's two double brick houses on Fourth street, near Eleventh avenue east, awarded to Harry Pearson; the general contract for the Fitger hotel building at Bovey, awarded to John W. Hilliard, for $19,500, and the contract for Seekin's Flower emporium, at Third avenue east and Superior street, awarded to Bergquist Bros.

Mrs. Cynthia Fletcher, who purchased a lot on East Second street, opposite the Central high school, intends to erect on the property a modern family hotel, containing about sixty roonis, and which will cost, when completed, about $35,000.

The question of the difference between a flat and an apartment has been raised a great many times by renters, agents, contractors and architects, and it may be of interest to know that there is a legal distinction. The matter was brought up in the supreme court of New Jersey, in the case of Lignon vs. Jackle, 65 Atlantic Reporter, 221. The court says that a flat, or flat-house, is a building consisting of more than one story, in which there are one or more suites of rooms on each floor, equipped for private housekeeping purposes. An apartment house is either a building, otherwise termed a "flat," or it is a building divided into separate suites of rooms intended for residence, but commonly without facilities for cooking. It was contended that the proper distinction depended upon the amount of rent which was paid. The court concedes the possibilty of this, but holds that the payment of $40 a month rent will not convert a flat into an apartment.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Improved Weather Conditions Causes an Easier Feeling in Wheat.

Chicago, May 25.—Improved weather conditions for the crop caused an easier feeling at the opening of the wheat market today. The weather in Kansas and Nebraska was reported as warmer today, although lower temperatures are predicted to arrive by Sunday afternoon. A sharp rally took place soon after the opening, prices advancing strongly. The strength of the foreign markets was a potent factor in forcing up prices. The tone at Liverpool was strong because of reported damage to wheat on the continent by drought. The buying early in the day was not heavy, but the market was nervous and fluctuated quickly in response to either bullish or bearish news. July wheat opened 1@1¼c to ⅜@⅝c lower at 98¾c to 99c, advanced to $1.00⅝ and then sold at $1. September wheat opened ⅜@⅝c to ⅝@¾c lower at 95¾c to $1.00¾, sold up to $1.02 and declined to $1.00¾. December opened ⅛@¼c lower at $1.00⅞ to $1.01⅛, sold up to $1.02¼ and declined to $1.02. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 360 cars, against 411 cars last week and 159 cars one year ago.

The market sold steady for the great part of the session, despite occasional slight setbacks. July closed firm and 1⅜@1½c higher at $1.00½. September closed 1½@1⅝c higher at $1.01⅞@1.02. December was up 1¼@1⅝c at $1.02⅝@⅔c.

The corn market opened firm with a fair amount of trading. The receipts of contract grain were heavy, but this did not weaken prices. July corn opened ½c to ⅝c higher at 53c to 53⅝c and sold at 53¾c. Local receipts were 278 cars, with 125 of contract grade.

The market held steady throughout the day and closed strong and ¾c higher for the July option at 53¾c.

The oats market opened easier but advanced along with wheat. July oats opened unchanged to ⅜c lower at 47c to 47⅜c and sold at 47¾c. Local receipts were 106 cars.

The provisions market was quiet and prices were easier because of a 10c decline in the price of live hogs. The receipts of live stuff were liberal. July pork opened 2½c lower at $16.50. Lard was down 10c at $9. Ribs were off 2½c at $8.80.

Close: Wheat, May 98¼c; July, $1.00¼. Corn, May, 54⅜c; July 53⅝c. Oats, May 47⅝c; July, 47¾@47¾c. Pork, May, $16.40; July, $16.60. Lard, May $8.95; July, $9.02½. Ribs, May, $8.75; July, $8.77½@8.80. Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat market closed the week strong and in a healthy condition. Liverpool, Paris and Berlin all came strong and higher, independent of our easier closing yesterday. These very strong cables reflect the serious situation in the Danubian countries. Private cables from the best authorities during the day report a continuation of drought and damage in Southern Russia, prospects of half crop for Hungary, while in Roumania, the damage is reported as a calamity. Winnipeg reported the stiffest bids for weeks from the otherside. New York sold bids highe:, buying of wheat on this side yesterday in all positions, probably reached 5,000,000 bushels. Numerous Illinois points continue to send in reports of bugs. Nearly all the Southwest dispatches concede that the rains in Kansas have been a failure so far, that the wheat crop has been little helped and in many sections is still suffering from both drought and the work of bugs. The buying of wheat today while not so big a scale as many times of late, was of a conservative character. If conditions for growing wheat in Europe and this country do not improve by the first of the week, we feel that the extreme bullishness of ten days ago will be renewed.

Broomhall, Liverpool, May 25, on wheat: Firm at the start with values ⅝d higher, being influenced by the late rally in America yesterday, reports of drouth in the American Southwest and continued unfavorable reports from both Russia and Roumania. A further advance was noted during the early trading with shorts nervous and anxious to cover, prompted largely by the firmness of Russian offerings. At the close, however, there was som disposition shown on the part of small holders to take profits, due to the larger Manitoba offerings and a growing belief that the drouth has done but little damage at this time of the season of the year.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Market Moved Sluggishly and Irreguiarly and Closed Weak.

Prices Gave Way Late, Despite Favorable Bank Statement.

New York, May 25.—Only a few stocks were traded in within the first few minutes of the opening of the stock exchange. Prices moved sluggishly and irregularly. Sloss-Sheffield Steel advanced 1⅜, Denver & Rio Grande a point and American Locomotive ¾. Canadian Pacific fell ¾.

Room traders who had attempted to put up the market by buying New York Central and Union Pacific did not get much encouragement. New York Central scored a temporary advance of a point and Union Pacific ⅝. Very little interest was shown in the market. Erie first preferred and United States Rubber first preferred gained a point each and North American lost 1¾.

The market closed weak. Prices gave way late in the session in spite of the favorable character of the bank statement. Resulting declines were Great Northern ore certificates 3, Southern Railway preferred 2¼, Consolidated Gas 2¾, Northern Pacific and Smelting 1⅝, Union Pacific 1⅝, Reading and Great Northern preferred 1¼ and St. Paul, Erie, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Atlantic Coast Line, Rock Island, Colorado & Southern, United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper 1. Stock Gossip.

New York, Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The short session today was one of professional transactions only. Early covering was followed by a recession, in which traders sold stocks for the turn. The big interests were not represented in today's market as far as could be seen. There was little or nothing in the way of news to influence stocks. The market is subject to much manipulation in the specialties and sentiment remains bearish.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Business today was as dull as ever. The bank statement was favorable, but stocks immediately commenced to decline and closed weak. We are informed that the stories of a large short interest have been greatly exaggerated and that in reality long stock is coming out all the time. We advise sales of all speculative stocks on every rally.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: There is little of interest to say about the market today and the changes from last night's close are small. It would seem as though the market was at a low level, and had pretty well discounted everything in sight and had some margin left. There is a good sized short interest in New York. The big men being away there is no one to interfere with it and it looks as though we were in for a quiet summer, but we think there will be more money in buying than selling stocks at this level.

Hall, Boston, to Gay & Sturgis: "I have just been talking with a fellow who represents a large New York house. He says that all the 'tape worms' there are short of this market; the very same crowd that was long and bulling the market 25 points higher. They got soaked on the long side and have doubled up. He says the reason this market does not rally is because all the big men are away and there is no one taking any interest. He looks for a very quiet summer or at least until the big plungers get back."

Hayden-Stone, Boston, to Verne R. Culbertson: "There was no feature to the market today and on light trading, prices held steady. Nothing was at hand to affect prices and few traders were down, so that the market had a mid-summer appearance and we expect a dull and uninteresting market to continue."

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 25.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 5 points on June, which was affected by liquidation, but 1 to 4 points higher on other positions, in response to continued wet weather in the belt and a bullish construction of the visible supply figures. Immediately following the call the market eased off two or three points on the new crop months, under realizing, but rallied later on covering and fresh buying for long account, which was encouraged by private crop wires claiming fresh damage from recent rains. Prices during the middle of the morning were about six to eight points net higher, with the market moderately active and firm.

Autopress Shares Will Be the Basis of Many a Fortune

But the time to get in is NOW, before the price has advanced to prohibitive limits.

Bear this in mind:—There is only one Autopress—just as there is only one Air Brake—only one Marconi Wireless—only one Standard Oil—only one Bell Telephone and only one Mergenthaler Linotype.

Now recall the history of those great companies.

When they started, the stock was offered at a very low price—just as we are offering Autopress shares now.

You know what those stocks are worth today—you know the enormous dividends they are paying—you know that every one who went in at the beginning has made a fortune from a very small investment. Linotype alone in 7 years paid $127,000 in dividends on every $100 invested.

Autopress—Enormous Dividend Payer.

Come in and see the Autopress in operation at the Company's offices. Then you will understand why this wonderful machine will equal Linotype in earning capacity—and make a fortune for every shareholder in it.

Here is the proposition in a nutshell:—

The Autopress is to Printing what the Linotype is to Typesetting.

It has 5 times the speed of the ordinary press—does its work automatically and takes up only one-fifth the floor space.

Printers Concede it to Be Revolutionary.

It thus becomes an absolute necessity to every printing office—big or little—throughout the world.

In fact, competition will FORCE printers to either use Autopresses or go out of business.

Printing office owners who have examined the Autopress are enthusiastic over its future and are trying to get the first ones built. In order to pay for the machines, they are now BUYING THE STOCK, while it is at a nominal price—relying upon the enormous increases in its value to make them whole.

A Very Low Capitalization.

The capitalization of $200,000 (half Preferred—half Common Stock) is very conservative for so great a proposition. The stock offered you is the PREFERRED, carrying 7 per cent interest annually—and what is of vastly greater importance it participates in ALL earnings of the company in addition to the 7 per cent, and dividends are credited from date stock is issued. For one week, until Monday, May 27, A bonus of one share of Common Stock will be given with every 10 shares of the Preferred, which shares are issued full paid and constitute first lien upon the company. The Par Value is $10.

Shares $10 Each Now--Par-

The Stock of the Autopress Company has been steadily advancing from its original price of $5 a share until now it is held at Par, $10 a Share. The last allotment of 250 shares was snapped up within 36 hours.

So we say to you again:—

Seize your opportunity NOW before it is forever too late.

It is an opportunity which can never be duplicated.

It is the beginning of one of the greatest revolutions in the whole history of commercial inventions.

If you come in now you get into a fortune-maker; stay out and you will repent it all your life.

As there are but 200 Shares to be sold at $10 each you will do well to act quickly. Accompany your order for shares with at least 20 per cent of the amount.

We reserve the right to reject any subscription by refunding deposit.

Telephone, 5552—Beekman.

BUTTE AND DULUTH

COPPER MINING COMPANY

ORGANIZED UNDER LAWS OF MONTANA.

Capital $1,000,000.00. 1,000,000 Shares, Par Value $1.

333,334 Shares In Treasury.

The Compamy Offers 25,000 Shares of Treasury Stock at Par, $1 Per Share

And Gives as a Bonus One Share of Promoter's Stock With Each Share of Treasury Stock.

The Company is the owner of 20 claims (400 acres) in the Greater Butte Mining district of Montana. Two pits ten feet deep are bottomed in ore that assays $10.33 gold; $17.15 silver; $15.75 copper and $39.72 lead. This is a general average and not selected. The two pits show that the vein is at least 20 feet wide. The company has no liabilities, bonds or leases and all money received from sale of stock will be used for development purposes only.

This is one of the very best mining propositions ever offered to the public and 25,000 shares is all that will be sold on terms above mentioned. Subscription books open May 27th, close June 5th, 1907. 50 per cent with application and balance payable July 1st, 1907.

FAKE RINGS NUMEROUS

Duluth Being Deluged by Dealers in Phony Jewelry.

Frequent Arrests Being Made and Sentences Are Heavy.

Duluth is being deluged with a very undesirable class of citizens this spring. They are the peddlers of "phony" jewelry, principally rings, and the police say they never experienced such an influx of this class of criminals before. Every two or three days a complaint comes in that one of these men has been attempting to swindle the green lumberjacks along the Bowery, or on Lower Lake avenue, and on more than one occasion evidence has shown that the unsophisticated woodsmen have paid good big prices for fake gold rings, which one of the peddlers testified were purchased for 15 cents.

John Langly was arrested this morning on a drunkeness charge, but when searched, one or two of the fake rings were discovered on him. One of them was marked on the inside with the initials, "W. to C," an obvious attempt to enable the fake peddler to convince the purchaser that it was a genuine, solid gold wedding ring. Eddie Wall, Dan Landry, Frank Hall, Mike O'Shea and one or two others have been arrested, charged with peddling without licenses within the last two weeks, and all found guilty and given heavy sentences. Landry was considered a suspicious character, and was ordered out of town, his sentence being suspended on condition that he clear out two hours after sentence was passed, and the others paid heavy fines, or are still confined in the county jail.

A store which makes a business of dealing in this fake stuff has recently been established here, and the police believe that they are largely responsible for this kind of work. A determined effort will be made to stop the nuisance.

William Fanta, the East Superior street saloonkeeper, was arraigned in municipal court this morning, charged with having kept his saloon open after hours, between 11 o'clock and 5 o'clock a. m., on Wednesday evening. He pleaded guilty and was given the minimum fine of $82.50. Fanta asserted that an ex-ball player had a number of his friends in there at the time, and that they were about to close up when arrested.

VIRGINIA YOUTH DROWNS IN LAKE

Virginia, Minn., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Serson, tally boy at the Lincoln mine, was drowned in the lake this afternoon. He was playing with two other boys on the boom in the lake. Serson and one of the boys fell in. The third boy pulled the latter out, but Serson sank before he could be assisted. His body was recovered near the shore, after a short time. The dead boy was 14 years of age.

MORE MEN FOR POSTAL SERVICE

Examinations Will be Held in June at Federal Building.

Secretary A. Grabarkiewicz of the local board of civil service examiners has just received a notice from St. Paul that an examination will be held at the federal building in this city on June 12 for the position of postal clerk or carrier.

This examination offers an opportunity to bright, energetic young persons to enter an interesting field of the government employ, where the salaries compare most favorably with those paid in private employment.

The salaries of letter carriers in all cities which contain a population of less than 75,000 are arranged in two classes, second class, $850 a year and third class, $600 a year. In cities having more than 75,000 population there are three classes, first class, $1,000 a year; second class, $800 a year, and third class, $600 a year. The salaries of postal clerks vary according to the work to be performed and the size of the office, but range from $400 to $1,000 in the smaller offices.

The examination consists of the studies of spelling, arithmetic, letter writing, penmanship, copying, geography and reading. The age limit is 18 to 45 years. Should there be any applicants for the position in Duluth they may apply to Mr. Grabarkiewicz at the federal building for further information.

At the end of the fiscal year in July the government will put on a large number of additional postal clerks and carriers, and it is for this reason that the examinations are being held.

MINISTER'S KISS

To Bride Grieves the Husband, Who Seeks Separation.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 25.—Unable to eradicate from memory the fact that the officiating clergyman planted a warm congratulatory kiss upon the cheek of his bride one year ago, Charles T. Hogan yesterday began action against his wife for divorce.

Mrs. Hogan will file a counter petition alleging unreasonable jealousy on the part of her husband. She declares that the ministerial kiss appears to be constantly on his mind. That he discusses it at his meals and reminds her of it in the night time until the taunts have become unendurable.

Mrs. Hogan says that one innocent kiss has been the hoodoo of her life, and that she never wants to kiss or be kissed again.

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Houghton, Mich., May 25.—The Calumte & Hecla exploration work in the Porcupine mountains district will be continued for some time. The old Union property is to receive attention as soon as the drilling on the White Pine is finished, probably about a month hence. The two drilling outfits will be moved there and a through cross section of the property will be made.

What will be the outcome of the Calumet & Hecla exploration upon the Nonesuch, White Pine and Union, which are held under option, it is impossible to determine at the present time. The work at the Nonesuch is quite thorough in character, consisting of a good sized mill test in addition to the drill work and the fact that exploration have been continued on adjoining properties is taken as indicative that good values were found.

The owners of other properties in that district are waiting with much interest the action of Calumet & Hecla. If the company exercises its option then there will be something doing in that locality.

The Carp Lake will get busy shortly. It is planned to make a mill test of the rock, using the Calumet & Hecla plant at Nonesuch if arrangements can be made for its use, and do considerable exploration work with the diamond drill.

BAXTER SPRINGS DISTRICT

Camp Thronged With Strangers and Two Important Sales Made and Several Others Pending--- Good Strikes Are Reported.

Baxter Springs, Kan., May 25.—The little town of Lincolnville, which has grown up in the very heart of the mines in the Quapaw Reserve, I. T., and has 2,500 inhabitants still receives Uncle Sam's mail by R. R. D., No. 2, from Baxter Springs. No more interesting nor amusing sight is to be seen than that of the people gathering around the carrier when he arrives in the town, you can scarcely see his cart or horse for the people, men, women and children alike gather around for the mail. Through the efforts of some of those most interested a local postoffice is being secured. This week the Miners' Bank and Trust company, a branch of the same company at Miami, I. T., opened a little bank for the accommodation of the miners as well as the companies who wish to keep on deposit expense money. Already the stock has gone up 10 per cent, showing that it is doing a good business. M. P. Wells is president; P. E. Gelder, vice president; R. W. Thompsen, cashier.

The Baxter Springs mining camp is thronged with strangers this week, and two important sales have been made, and several others are pending. The "2 F's Mine" one of the oldest and best mines in the camp was sold to a company of Kansas City capitalists for $40,000. Chief among the purchasers are Adam Kahr, Henry Mathers, B. Gray, and Ben T. Brooks of Kansas City, and William Rendleart of Iola, Kan., with Kenneth Brown, cashier of the National bank of Baxter, as treasurer of the company. Ben T. Brooks, who is the general manager and secretary of the company, is already at the mill. The company is very fortunate in having Mr. Brooks as manager for he was for twenty years a miner and mine operator in Colorado big mining camps and Baxter Springs camp welcomes a real mining man, as the mine they have bought will yield velvet with a deep nap under his management. There was a car of jack in the bins today, and from records kept by the correspondent in the office this mine produced during the time it was running last year 338,857 pounds of zinc, and when the new company have put the mill in repair and added another unit to it of 250-tons, much may be expected from this mine.

The other sale that was consummated was that of the "Big Jack," consisting

DIVIDENDS BY TINTIC MINES

Colorado Company Expects to Pay Regularly---Began Producing Only Few Weeks Ago---Lower Mammoth Pays First Dividend.

Salt Lake, May 25.—Four of Tintic's mines have posted dividends this month. The Colorado company, which began production only a few weeks ago, started off with a declaration to pay $50,000, or 4 cents a share, on the 25th, and the management is credited with expressing the belief that this sum can be regularly distributed every month. The Colorado property does not carry any "specimen" or "picture" gold ore, but it sends to market a tonnage of lead-silver ore that, aside from the big copper mines, counts for more than any of them when it comes to returns.

The Beck Tunnel company, whose property adjoins that of the Colorado, and which has been paying dividends for a year or more, now, also paid out $40,000, or 4 cents a share, on the 20th to shareholders of record on the 15th.

At the same time the Grand Central directors got together and decided to pay 4 cents a share also. As the Grand Central is capitalized for only 250,000 shares, its declaration will call for the disbursement of only $10,000, this being $2,500 less than in April.

The reason that the Grand Central is not paying more this month is said to be due to the large amount of new work that is going on in the deeper levels, work that has interfered some with the extraction and shipment of ore.

It is for the same reason that the Victoria company is not paying at all this month.

The initial dividend of the Lower Mammoth Mining company is 5 cents a share, or $9,500. Books close against the transfer of stock on the 28th, and payment will follow on the 31st of the present month. The day of payment is set farther off than it would otherwise have been in order that holders of bonds might have ample time in which to convert them into stock and register for the first distribution.

TO BUILD REDUCTION PLANT

Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company to Cease Shipments of Ore to Salt Lake Smelters--- Loans on Nevada Stocks.

Reno, Nev., May 25.—George Wingfield stated a few days ago that the Goldfield Consolidated Mines company would, in every probability, not pay any dividends during the year 1907, nor will any high grade ore be shipped to the smelters at Salt Lake. Mr. Wingfield said that the company is going to erect its own reduction plant in Goldfield at a cost of between $500,000 and $600,000, and that the mill will have a capacity of from 600 to 1,000 tons a day. Mr. Wingfield stated that the $1,100,000 now in the treasuries of the subsidiary companies, of which the Goldfield Consolidated Mines company is the holding company, and which is available for dividend purposes, would be needed for the erection of the mill and to furnish the mines with proper equipment in the way of electric hoists of greater horse power than those now on the ground, which are absolutely essential before deep mining can be attempted. Mr. Wingfield stated farther that the net cost to the company for transportation and treatment charges of all ore shipped to Salt Lake for smelting was $30 per ton, and that, with the company's own mill in operation, this work would be accomplished at about $7 per ton. The maximum production of the company is given at 1,000 tons per day, and by not shipping ore at this time, Wingfield declares that there is a net saving of $25,000 per day, which will be realized to the stockholders as soon as the mills are in operation on the ground. Mr. Wingfield estimates the average value of the ores now blocked out in the workings of the various properties controlled by the merger, at $40 per ton.

The fact that no dividends will be declared this year and that no sensational shipments will be made to the smelters, is accepted here as a bear argument, and it is believed that the downward movement on the exchanges of Goldfield Consolidated shares has, by no means, yet reached bottom, and that the decline will continue. On the other hand, the view is widely entertained in Goldfield and Reno that as soon as the public understands the reason for the decline in Goldfield Consolidated, the downward movement of this stock will cease to affect the other Goldfield issues which were not included in the merger, and that the latter will steady themselves.

That the confidence of Nevada securities has not been seriously impaired by the manipulation to which the market has been subjected during the past two weeks, was made evident today when Sullivan & Rice, Reno, made public announcement of the fact that they have been designated as the agents of a syndicate who desire to loan money on Nevada mining stocks. This announcement was made by L. M. Sullivan, of the firm named, who stated that he wished the broadest publicity given to the fact that the syndicate his firm represents is prepared to lend at least $250,000 on the security of listed Nevada stocks. Loans are to be made to the extent of 66 2-3 of the market value of the issues offered as collateral. They must be in amounts of $250 and upwards, and may be made for a period of four months. Interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum will be charged. If the amount which the syndicate has set aside to is not sufficient, Mr. Sullivan stated that it will be prepared to lend an additional $1,000,000 in the manner outlined.

KEEPS UP ITS EARLY RECORD

North Butte Has More High Grade Ore Than Ever Before and Will Make Banner Year—Some New Companies Extracting Ore in Paying Quantities.

Butte, Mont., May 25.—Recent statements to the effect that the mineral values have been gradually lowering in the properties of the North Butte Mining company are met with the statements from official sources that the ore showing in the property is at the present time the best in its history, and that there is more of the first-class ore, which was such a feature of the early operation of the property, in sight now than at any previous time.

When the mines were opened and the property brought rapidly to a financial basis unknown in the history of mine flotation for a similar short period of time, the result was ascribed to the high values in copper besides others in the precious metals. The copper values in the first ores raised from the North Butte ran as high as 7 per cent, and sometimes better. It was pointed out at the time that these values were much above the rest of the Butte camp, and that they could not last; yet the first report that was issued on the property gave every hope that the beginnings were but a faint taste of what the property would develop into.

The report for the fiscal year 1906 warranted that hope, but for the year 1907 the result was not materially better than it was in 1906, which, although the report was incomplete and lacking in specific details, was generally ascribed to the large amount of development work that the company has under way, added to the long delay in getting the new shaft equipment into working order.

A distinct reference to the fact would have set all doubts aside as to the value of the property. During the entire time that North Butte was making total figures that were considered far from satisfactory, reports were constantly issued from apparently good inside sources to the effect that the property, on the basis of an output of 1,500 tons of ore a day, running at least 6 per cent copper, was making a banner year. It is reported that the company is producing between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 pounds of copper a year, with earnings running close to $500,000 a month.

There is no question that the property has been keeping up to record figures, and from the best sources it is determined that there have been weeks and months when it has warranted every good thing that has been said about it. That the North Butte has plenty of ore in sight is about to open up additional bodies in the Berlin is not denied. Like all other of the big properties it has a long future before it, and logically, if the ore values measure down to the level of the Butte camp, the time is not far distant when the management will have to consider the proposition of erecting a concentrator to keep even with the product of the properties.

There are quite a number of new mining companies operating in the Butte district and the remark is often heard that if some of these companies would strike ore, things in general and stocks in particular would boom.

Some of these companies have struck ore, and, that, too, in paying quantities, while others are supposed to be practically on the verge of strikes. Among the companies that are extracting ore in paying quantities and making some money are East Butte Extension, East Butte, Alliance, Amazon-Butte, Bullwhacker, Curtis & Majors, Reins Copper and Butte-Montana, eight in all. This number is, of course, only a small percentage of the new companies operating, but a majority of the others are sinking and must complete this work before ore can be expected. This takes time, and plenty of it. Among the companies sinking shafts with a view of reaching the point where large bodies or ore can be looked for are the following:

Butte & Bacorn.
Butte-Milwaukee.
Butte Copper-Montana.
North Butte Extension.
Butte & Superior.
South Butte Copper.
Colusa-Leonard Extension.
Butte & London.
Tuolumne.
Calumet & Butte.
Ida-Montana.
Butte & Michigan.
Montana Consolidated.

There are thirteen of these companies, and in addition a few others are not sinking at present, but are working. Among the latter are the Butte Central & Boston Copper, which has commercial ore in the upper levels of its Ophir mine and will resume sinking from the 500 to the 750 foot marke in a few days; the Butte Copper Exploration, which has a shaft down 1,000 feet and is crosscutting from the bottom in search of ore; the Farrel, which is crosscutting for its vein from the 200 of the Alliance shaft; the Avic-Davis, which is sinking two shafts, crosscutting and drifting in two others and will resume crosscutting south of the Original in a short time; Butte & Summit Valley, which has suspended work temporarily; the Copper Eagle, which has ore in the levels so far opened, but expects to resume sinking in a few days.

The Goldsmith is another company

IN THE CANANEA DISTRICT

Col. L. W. Powell Takes Over Control of the Ronquillo---Pay-rolls Now the Biggest in the Camp's History—Betterments at Greene Cananea Going Forward Steadily.

Cananea, Mex., May 25.—Col. L. W. Powell of the Calumet & Arizona, general manager of the Cole interests in the Southwest, arrived in the city for the purpose of taking over the Ronquillo Copper company. Final arrangements for the transfer on the part of the vendors was made by P. J. Tehaney at Tucson last week, he returning with Mr. Powell to participate in the necessary legal steps under the laws of Mexico. Nothing definite has been given out by Mr. Powell for the purchasers of the Ronquillo as to steps which it is their intention to take. However, the Ronquillo is taken over under bond, providing a cash payment, which has been made, and final payment the latter part of next January. Inasmuch as this is the case it is reasonable to presume that the purchasers of the property intend active development work to determine the value of the ground within the life of the bond, and some vigorous work is looked for. It will be of decided interest in the locality of the Ronquillo, where there are a number of properties which have conditions to contend with are very similar to those which have confronted the Ronquillo. Inasmuch as the final payment on the latter property is nine months away, the Ronquillo company has formed no definite plans for action on its remaining properties and will probably wait the outcome on the Ronquillo. The plan to disburse the money received from the sale of Ronquillo among stockholders in the company as a dividend, which will refund them the amount of their investment, however, is definitely determined.

Throughout the Cananea camp conditions prevailing are excellent. Development in all instances is going ahead with no abatement in vigor and with no lessening of brightness as to prospects. All properties under development are coming along in a manner which warrants confidence. In the producing mines the situation is better than ever before in the history of the camp. Wit hthe Greene ore extraction is being carried on steadily decreasing costs under the management of Superintendent Kirk, while development is being kept well ahead of production, assuring the very desirable safeguard of abundant reserve supplies for emergencies. As the Greene mines stand today, they could confine themselves to producing for a long period if it became necessary, without having need to do a stroke of development. Labor conditions are excellent. Pay rolls which will be cashed in the next few days will be the biggest in the history of the camp and will turn a large amount of money into the channels of trade. Men are well satisfied with conditions as they have been made, and are staying with their work steadily. No scarcity of labor has been noted recently though increase in working forces has been going on regularly. Many men have come in from outside points and have found employment within a short time after arrival.

In the reduction division of Greene-Cananea the betterments which have been planned are going forward steadily and with much smoothness in installation. Of course, the rehabiliating of a big smelter and continuation at the same time of production at something near former figures of output is a tremendous task, involving many difficulties which large application of ingenuity alone can surmount. However, they have relaid surface tracks and accomplished a number of smaller changes enabling economy in time and have put two new furnaces going. The third new one is coming along with surprising rapidity and it will not be long before the fourth is tackled. The new furnaces are doing splendid work and assure that when the balance of the changes are made that the expectations of materially increased output from the plant will be realized. At the concentrator operations continue with much smoothness and altogether satisfactory results.

Sierra de Cobre is crowding steadily ahead with its work. The Limestone tunnel continues to look better and better. There is a world of ore there. Mining men who have lately looked at the showing consider it one of the biggest to be found in the camp, while one prominent visitor is on record with the declaration that it is the biggest thing yet found in Cananea. The situation appeals strongly to the minority stockholders with Phelps-Dodge in this property, the American organization of which is Indiana Sonora, and which the present outlook would warrant expectations of seeing it in the dividend paying list before a great while.

A gold find, which may prove of large importance, occasioned much interest in the city during the week. The latter was increased by the filing of a number of denouncements with

Mesaba Range Expected to Ship 27,000,000 Tons This Season —Mountain Iron Mine Will be the Biggest Shipper, While the Mahoning Will be a Close Second.

While ore shipments had a bad start because of the unseasonable conditions on the Great Lakes during April, the movement is rapidly reaching the maximum and it is the expectation that the traffic each month from now until the close of the season in December will exceed that of the corresponding period a year ago. Indeed, this will have to be the case if the anticipated total of 43,000,000 tons is shipped, and of no other range is this more true than of the Mesaba. It is the Mesaba that is look to to furnish the increase of 3,500,000 tons. This will mean a shipment of more than 27,000,000 tons, and as big a producer as it is it will keep the range hustling almost with might and main. Much will depend upon the weather if the giant open-cut shippers are to be kept in continuous commission, and much will depend also upon the free and unhampered movement of ore by rail and lake. However, there were 22,860,000 tons forwarded from the range last season—the best record in its history of fifteen years—and this was an increase of more than 3,550,000 tons over the production achieved in 1905.

The biggest shipper on the Mesaba this year will be the Steel corporation's giant Mountain Iron mine, as has been the case the past two seasons, when it sent out upwards of 5,000,000 tons. Closely pressing it, however, will be the big Mahoning, at Hibbing, in which the Steel corporation and the Cambria Steel company are jointly interested. The Mahoning will ship approximately 2,000,000 tons. Its big pit, which opens into that of the adjoining Hul-Rust mine, is already one of the greatest excavations ever made anywhere, yet eventually it will be several times its present size. Steam shovels of large capacity are at work, stripping and mining, night and day, and it is said that it has been planned to ship no less than 10,000,000 tons within the next five years. The Mahoning is a mine with enormous reserves, its acreage extending from the present open cut east a mile or more into the village of Hibbing itself. Hibbing is the biggest town on the range, but at some time in the future it will have to seek a new location—at least a considerable portion of it will—for the reason that ore deposits, owned by the Steel corporation, underlie it. It was because of a similar occurrence that the village of Eveleth was moved to a new site some years ago, just as will be done in the case of McKinley and Sparta.

A fine new mine being opened on the Mesaba is the Hartley, in the Chisholm district. Stripping is in progress, the work having been commenced a year ago, and it will be continued vigorously throughout the season. The property will be a large shipper next year. The St. Clair, adjoining the Hartley, has suspended underground work and will be stripped later on, as will a considerable area at the Jordan, where an ore body still to be developed is available to supplant the deposit now nearly exhausted. Much of the overburden at the Pillsbury has been removed, strippers having been at work throughout the winter, and some 500,000 tons of ore will be mined by steam shovel this year. New shafts are in commission at the Shenango and Monroe-Tener, while at the Chisholm, Clark, Glen, Shenango, Myers and Leonard there are considerable stockpiles to augment the shipments from the workings direct. In fact, practically all the mines of the Chisholm district are being operated to capacity this year and the activity was never greater. The Croxton will duplicate its product of last season, which amounted to 160,000 tons.

The Steel corporation is actively developing its Virginia group, and will ship considerable ore from them this season. Steam shovels are doing duty at the Oliver and Ohio, the latter a combination of several properties mined in a small way some years ago. The New York State Steel company is opening the Larkin mine, formerly the Tesora, in this field; it is developing the Kellogg mine at McKinley, and has a third property at Masaba. A new shaft is going into commission at the Williams mine, at the edge of Biwabik. A second shaft is to be sunk at the Cass property, in the same district. At the Biwabik open pit, half a dozen steam shovels are at work, and a heavy production is being made. This mine will probably re-enter the million-ton class this season.

A new property acquired recently by the Steel corporation is a forty-acre in section 4, 58-18, at the edge of the village of Mountain Iron. This is a state lease, held by the heirs of the late J. S. Lane, to them will be paid a bonus of 10 cents a ton for all ore mined. A royalty of two and one-half times that will go to the state. The state lease covering the Scranton tract, formerly the Elizabeth, in the Hibbing district, has proved a valuable acquisition for Pickands, Mather & Co., which acquired the property in 1900. As determined by drill borings, it is understood, the average thickness of the ore body averages 100 feet, with some portions of the deposit extending 400 feet in depth. As there are 120 acres in the tract it is evident that the mine is one of the largest on the range. The lease runs for forty-four years yet.

Sinking at Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Syracuse mine, on Embarrass lake, is now in progress in the rock, the ledge having been reached successfully by the pneumatic pressure system, which is likewise proving successful at the company's adjoining Rangor mine. The development of these two properties has been tedious and costly. Ordinary methods of putting down the shafts

IS ENLARGING THE SMELTER

Calumet & Arizona Improvements at Douglas Being Pushed---Copper Green Smelter Also Being Increased--Ore Reserves Growing.

Douglas, Ariz., May 25.—The Calumet & Arizona smelter is undergoing its first important change, and one which marks its progress radically. Formerly the addition of a furnace of a couple of converters was considered a matter of consequence.

Now, the machinery has been moved from the old machine and boiler shops to its new quarters and the ground is trembling with the excavation operations for the new extension to the power house, powder being employed to shake up the tenacios formation.

The demolition of the old shops will rapidly follow, while cement for the foundation and structural steel for the buildings are at hand ready for their respective places in the construction of the new extension.

At th esouth end of the main smelter building, they are filling in the inequalities and fitting up their elevator for heavy work.

The ore reserves of the Copper Queen stock pile shows for itself. The long temporary corrugated iron building is pulled down as the ore is removed and replaced when the pile is stored up. The stock pile at present is about 360 feet in length. It is no secret that the companies feel very comfortable at being able to supply the smelters since the recent labor troubles commenced, without thinking of accumulating a stock pile but the situation is daily improving in this respect.

The reverbatory furnace will now be completed without delay. Most of the work on the furnace work is nearly completed, but the stack or chimney remains to be built. The object of this revebatory is to handle the fine dust. The old fashioned way of brisquetting the dust and feeding it back into the furnace is very unsatisfactory. In the reverbatory the raw dust which is mostly coke, is brought into contact with the molten contents of the furnace and reduced to matte, instead of going up the stack, as when handled in the ordinary way.

Nothing worthy of mention has taken form at the Shattuck-Arizona this week. No doubt the work is rapidly

PROGRESS OF GLOBE MINES

Globe, Ariz., May 25.—While there has been no event o especial importance in the local mining field during the past week, operations have shown a further expansion and an increase in the number of men employed, made necessary by new development and construction work. The labor market is well supplied, there being a steady influx of men from other camps, attracted by the high wage scale and favorable conditions prevailing in the Globe district. The activity in mining throughout the district gives impetus to every kind of business, and Globe,as the distributing center for all the outlying camps, is enjoying great prosperity and a healthy growth.

At the Old Dominion, comprehensive plans for the enlargement of the company's surface works are engaging the attention of the local management without in the least impairing the operation and development of its mines. The structural steel for the extension of the smelter building, delayed by the congestion of freight on the Rock Island railroad, has been located and its delivery is promised at an early date. Construction will then proceed rapidly, and No. 5 furnace will be erected and should be in operation by July 1.

The plans include the installation of still another furnace construction of an additional dust chamber and the erection of another stack 200 feet high and having double the capacity of the present stack. These and other contemplated enlargements will require the remainder of the year for their completion.

Of importance in this connection is the enlargement of the smelter ore bins, to be undertaken at once. The capacity of the bins, now 3,600 tons, is to be increased to 4,800 tons by an extension seventy-two feet in length. Sixteen new automatic charge scales will be added, so as to load six charge cars at one time instead of three cars, as now loaded.

The Old Dominion mine is furnishing a steady output of ore. The Continental is contributing high grade sulphide and the United Globe, Gibson Custom ores are still being purchased and Arizona Commercial are making regular shipments, mostly sulphides, and what is not sold to outside smelters, is stored.

BLACK ROCK ALL ACTIVITY

Butte & Superior Company Rapidly Installing New Machinery---Electricity to be Extensively Used ---Third Compartment Will be Raised.

Butte, Mont., May 25.—The past few weeks have witnessed a wonderful transformation at the Black Rock mine, which came into the possession of the Butte & Superior Copper company last February. By early fall the new equipment will be in commission, and it will be one of the most complete mining plants on the hill.

Under the direction of R. C. Davis, formerly connected with the engineering department of the Amalgamated Copper company, a small army of men is actively at work constructing new buildings and preparing foundations for the new engine and for the gallows frame which are on the ground ready for erection. The engine, which is of the Corliss type, 500-horse power, will be set on a concrete foundation now under way. For this foundation an excavation has been made to a depth of about twenty feet, in order to reach bed rock, and it will be about 40 by 50 feet in size. Adjoining it will be the boiler room of generous size, and capable of housing a battery of four boilers.

The new gallows frame, which is of wood, will be 60 feet in height, and set on six concrete piers now under construction, which will rest on the solid rock, fifteen feet below the surface of the ground. A new carpenter shop, 40 by 60 feet in size, is now in course of construction. It will be equipped with all the most modern labor-saving machinery, and being located slightly above the level of the collar of the shaft, the framed timbers, may easily be sent by gravity cars from the carpenter shop to the shaft.

Owing to the difficulty and expense of placing coal upon the ground, it has been decided to use electricity extensively wherever possible, and it is probable that steam will be used only for the operation of the shaft. Electricity will be utilized for running the compressors, and for all of the machinery in the carpenter and blacksmiths shops.

The shaft is now down 700 feet,

THE NEW MEXICO OIL FIELDS

Bisbee, Ariz., May 25.—The tract of land near Santa Rosa, N. M., reported to give every indication of being oil bearing ground, will soon be the scene of extensive and systematic development work, which will be inaugurated before the end of the present month. Paraphernalia for boring for the oil is at present being assembled on the ground, and the managers of the company are only awaiting the arrival of an oil expert from California to designate the exact spots to begin work.

Several prominent local capitalists of Bisbee and Douglas are interested in the company, which has been organized for the purpose of prospecting the new oil fields and an option on 20,000 acres has been secured. Most of the ground was located on a land grant, and the final deal for its possession was closed in Albuquerque about a month ago.

Among the local capitalists interested are L. C. Shattuck, W. Douglas, L. W. Powell, H. A. Smith, H. B. Hovland, L. J. Ovelock, W. H. Brophy, M. J. Cunningham and others.

It is understood that H. A. Smith is taking an active part in the commencement of the oprations, which will be begun just as soon as the oil expert arrives on the ground from California.

Already the stockholders of the company have received a very flattering report from a California expert named Craig, who made a thorough examination of the formation a few days ago, and pronounced it an ideal formation, with every favorable indication of oil deposits at a depth af 800 to 3,000 feet. Oil rock shown in Bisbee lately bears out the report of the expert.

Development work at the new fields will be watched with a great deal of interest by the entire Southwest. The discovery of oil in the New Mexico fields would mean the saving of thousands of dollars in cost of fuel to mining companies in Arizona and New Mexico, and the personnel of the company which has undertaken the work of prospecting the ground is a guarantee that the work will be carried on in a systematic manner.

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Houghton, Mich., May 25.—The Calumet & Hecla exploration work in the Porcupine mountains district will be continued for some time. The old Union property is to receive attention as soon as the drilling on the White Pine is finished, probably about a month hence. The two drilling outfits will be moved there and a through cross section of the property will be made.

What will be the outcome of the Calumet & Hecla exploration upon the Nonesuch, White Pine and Union, which are held under option, it is impossible to determine at the present time. The work at the Nonesuch is quite thorough in character, consisting of a good sized mill test in addition to the drill work and the fact that exploration have been continued on adjoining properties is taken as indicative that good values were found.

The owners of other properties in that district are waiting with much interest the action of Calumet & Hecla. If the company exercises its option then there will be something doing in that locality.

The Carp Lake will get busy shortly. It is planned to make a mill test of the rock, using the Calumet & Hecla plant at Nonesuch if arrangements can be made for its use, and do considerable exploration work with the diamond drill.

BAXTER SPRINGS DISTRICT

Camp Thronged With Strangers and Two Important Sales Made and Several Others Pending---Good Strikes Are Reported.

Baxter Springs, Kan., May 25.—The little town of Lincolnville, which has grown up in the very heart of the mines in the Quapaw Reserve, I. T., and has 2,500 inhabitants still receives Uncle Sam's mail by F. R. D. No. 2, from Baxter Springs. No more interesting nor amusing sight is to be seen than that of the people gathering around the carrier when he arrives in the town, you can scarcely see his cart or horse for the people, men, women and children alike gather around for the mail. Through the efforts of some of those most interested a local postoffice is being secured. This week the Miners' Bank and Trust company, a branch of the same company at Miami, I. T., opened a little bank for the accomodation of the miners as well as the companies who wish to keep on deposit expense money. Already the stock has gone up 20 per cent, showing that it is doing a good business. M. F. Wells is president; P. E. Geiger, vice president; R. W. Thompson, cashier.

The Baxter Springs mining camp is thronged with strangers this week, and two important sales have been made, and several others are pending. The "3 F's Mine" one of the oldest and best mines in the camp was sold to a company of Kansas City capitalists for $45,-000. Chief among the purchasers are Adam Kahr, Henry Mathers, B. Gray, and Ben T. Brooks of Kansas City, and William Readicaer of Iola, Kan., with Kenneth Brown, cashier of the National bank of Baxter, as treasurer of the company. Ben T. Brooks, who is the general manager and secretary of the company, is already at the mill. The company is very fortunate in having Mr. Brooks as manager for he was for twenty years a miner and mine operator in Colorado big mining camps and Baxter Springs camp welcomes a real mining man, as the mine they have bought will yield velvet with a deep hand under his management. There was a car of jack in the bins today, and from records kept by the correspondent in the office this mine produced during the time it was running last year 328,357 pounds of zinc, and when the new company have put the mill in repay and added another unit to it of 250-tons, much may be expected from this mine.

The other sale that was consummated was that of the "Big Jack," consisting

Colorado Company Expects to Pay Regularly---Began Producing Only Few Weeks Ago---Lower Mammoth Pays First Dividend.

Salt Lake, May 25.—Four of Tintic's mines have posted dividends this month. The Colorado company, which began production only a few weeks ago, started off with a declaration to pay $40,000, or 4 cents a share, on the 25th, and the management is credited with expressing the belief that this sum can be regularly distributed every month. The Colorado property does not carry any "specimen" or "picture" good ore, but it sends to market a tonnage of lead-silver ore that, aside from the big copper mines, emits for more than any of them when it comes to returns.

The Beck Tunnel company, whose property adjoins that of the Colorado, and which has been paying dividends for a year or more, now also paid out $40,000, or 4 cents a share, on the 25th to shareholders of record on the 15th.

At the same time the Grand Central directors got together and decided to pay 4 cents a share also. As the Grand Central is capitalized for only 250,000 shares, its declaration will call for the disbursement of only $10,000, this being $2,500 less than in April.

The reason that the Grand Central is not paying more this month is said to be due to the large amount of new work that is going on in the deeper levels, work that has interfered some with the extraction and shipment of ore.

It is for the same reason that the Victoria company is not paying at all this month.

The initial dividend of the Lower Mammoth Mining company is 5 cents a share, or $6,500. Books close against the transfer of stock on the 28th, and payment will follow on the 31st of the present month. The day of payment is set farther off than it would otherwise have been in order that holders of bonds might have ample time in which to convert them into stock and register for the first distribution.

TO BUILD REDUCTION PLANT

Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company to Cease Shipments of Ore to Salt Lake Smelters---Loans on Nevada Stocks.

Reno, Nev., May 25.—George Wingfield stated a few days ago that the Goldfield Consolidated Mines company would, in every probability, not pay any dividends during the year 1907, nor will any high grade ore be shipped to the smelters at Salt Lake. Mr. Wingfield said that the company is going to erect its own reduction plant in Goldfield at a cost of between $500,-000 and $750,000, and that the mill will have a capacity of from 600 to 1,000 tons a day. Mr. Wingfield stated that the $1,000,000 now in the treasuries of the subsidiary companies, of which the Goldfield Consolidated Mines company is the holding company, and which is available for dividend purposes, would be needed for the erection of the mill and to furnish the mines with proper equipment in the way of electric hoists of greater horse power than those now on the ground, which are absolutely essential before deep mining can be attempted. Mr. Wingfield stated further that the net cost to the company for transportation and treatment charges of all ore shipped to Salt Lake for smelting was $30 per ton, and that, with the company's own mill in operation, this work would be accomplished at about $7 per ton. The maximum production of the company is given at 1,000 tons per day, and by not shipping ore at this time, Wingfield declares that there is a net saving of $23,000 per day, which will be realized by the stockholders as soon as the mills are in operation on the ground. Mr. Wingfield estimates the average value of the ores now blocked out in the workings of the various properties controlled by the merger, at $40 per ton.

The fact that no dividends will be declared this year and that no sensational shipments will be made to the smelters, is accepted here as a bear argument, and it is believed that the downward movement on the exchanges of Goldfield Consolidated shares has, by no means, yet reached bottom, and that the decline will continue. On the other hand, the view is widely entertained in Goldfield and Reno that as soon as the public understands the reason for the decline in Goldfield Consolidated, the downward movement of this stock will cease to affect the other Goldfield issues which were not included in the merger, and that the latter will steady themselves.

That the confidence of Nevada securities has not been seriously impaired by the manipulation to which the market has been subjected during the past two weeks, was made evident today when Sullivan & Rice, Reno, made public announcement of the fact that they have been designated as the agents of a syndicate who desire to loan money on Nevada mining stocks. This announcement was made by L. M. Sullivan, of the firm named, who stated that he wished the broadest publicity given to the fact that the syndicate his firm represents is prepared to lend at least $250,000 on the security of listed Nevada stocks. Loans are to be made to the extent of 66 2-3 of the market value of the issues offered as collateral. They must be in amounts of $250 and upwards, and may be made for a period of four months. Interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum will be charged. If the amount which the syndicate has set aside to is not sufficient, Mr. Sullivan stated that it will be prepared to lend an additional $1,000,000 in the manner outlined.

KEEPS UP ITS EARLY RECORD

North Butte Has More High Grade Ore Than Ever Before and Will Make Banner Year—Some New Companies Extracting Ore in Paying Quantities.

Butte, Mont., May 25.—Recent statements to the effect that the mineral values have been gradually lowering in the properties of the North Butte Mining company are met with the statements from official sources that the ore showing in the property is at the present time the best in its history, and that there is more of the first-class ore, which was such a feature of the early operation of the property, in sight now than at any previous time.

When the mines were opened and the property brought rapidly to a financial basis unknown in the history of mine flotation for a similar short period of time, the result was ascribed to the high values in copper besides others in the precious metals. The copper values in the first ores raised from the North Butte ran as high as 7 per cent, and sometimes better. It was pointed out at the time that these values were much above the rest of the Butte camp, and that they could not last; yet the first report that was issued on the property gave every hope that the beginnings were but a faint taste of what the property would develop into.

The report for the fiscal year 1906 warranted that hope, but for the year 1907 the result was not materially better than it was in 1906, which, although the report was incomplete and lacking in specific details, was generally ascribed to the large amount of development work that the company has under way, added to the long delay in getting the new shaft equipment into working order.

A distinct reference to the fact would have set all doubts aside as to the value of the property. During the entire time that North Butte was making total figures that were considered far from satisfactory, reports were constantly issued from apparently good inside sources to the effect that the property, on the basis of an output of 1,500 tons of ore a day, running at least 6 per cent copper, was making a banner year. It is reported that the company is producing between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 pounds of copper a year, with earnings running close to $500,000 a month.

There is no question that the property has been keeping up to record figures, and from the best sources it is determined that there have been weeks and months when it has warranted every good thing that has been said about it. That the North Butte has plenty of ore in sight is about to open up additional bodies in the Berlin is not denied. Like all other of the big properties it has a long future before it, and logically, if the ore values measure down to the level of the Butte camp, the time is not far distant when the management will have to consider the proposition of erecting a concentrator to keep even with the product of the properties.

There are quite a number of new mining companies operating in the Butte district and the remark is often heard that if some of these companies would strike ore, things in general and stocks in particular would boom.

Some of these companies have struck ore, and, that, too, in paying quantities, while others are supposed to be practically on the verge of strikes. Among the companies that are extracting ore in paying quantities and making some money are East Butte Extension, East Butte, Alliance, Amazon-Butte, Bullwhacker, Curtis & Majors, Reins Copper and Butte-Montana, eight in all. This number is, of course, only a small percentage of the new companies operating, but a majority of the others are sinking and must complete this work before ore can be expected. This takes time, and plenty of it. Among the companies sinking shafts with a view of reaching the point where large bodies or ore can be looked for are the following:

Butte & Bacorn.
Butte-Milwaukee.
Butte Copper-Montana.
North Butte Extension.
Butte & Superior.
South Butte Copper.
Colusa-Leonard Extension.
Butte & London.
Tuolumne.
Calumet & Butte.
Ida-Montana.
Butte & Michigan.
Montana Consolidated.

There are thirteen of these companies, and in addition a few others are not sinking at present, but are working. Among the latter are the Butte Central & Boston Copper, which has commercial ore in the upper levels of its Ophir mine and will resume sinking from the 500 to the 750 foot mark in a few days; the Butte Copper Exploration, which has a shaft down 1,000 feet and is crosscutting from the bottom in search of ore; the Farrel, which is crosscutting for its vein from the 200 of the Alliance shaft; the avic-Davis, which is sinking two shafts, crosscutting and drifting in two others and will resume crosscutting south of the Original in a short time; Butte & Summit Valley, which has suspended work temporarily; the Copper Eagle, which has ore in the levels so far opened, but expects to resume sinking in a few days.

IN THE CANANEA DISTRICT

Col. L. W. Powell Takes Over Control of the Ronquillo---Payrolls Now the Biggest in the Camp's History—Betterments at Greene Cananea Going Forward Steadily.

Cananea, Mex., May 25.—Col. L. W. Powell of the Calumet & Arizona, general manager of the Cole interests in the Southwest, arrived in the city for the purpose of taking over the Ronquillo Copper company. Final arrangements for the transfer on the part of the vendors was made by P. J. Tehaney at Tucson last week, he returning with Mr. Powell to participate in the necessary legal steps under the laws of Mexico. Nothing definite has been given out by Mr. Powell for the purchasers of the Ronquillo as to steps which it is their intention to take. However, the Ronquillo is taken over under bond, providing a cash payment, which has been made, and final payment the latter part of next January. Inasmuch as this is the case it is reasonable to presume that the purchasers of the property intend active development work to determine the value of the ground within the life of the bond, and some vigerous work is looked for. It will be of decided interest in the locality of the Ronquillo, where there are a number of properties which have conditions to contend with are very similar to those which have confronted the Ronquillo. Inasmuch as the final payment on the latter property is nine months away, the Ronquillo company has formed no definite plans for action on its remaining properties and will probably wait the outcome on the Ronquillo. The plan to disburse the money received from the sale of Ronquillo among stockholders in the company as a dividend, which will refund them the amount of their investment, however, is definitely determined.

Throughout the Cananea camp conditions prevailing are excellent. Development in all instances is going ahead with no abatement in vigor and with no lessening of brightness as to prospects. All properties under development are coming along in a manner which warrants confidence. In the producing mines the situation is better than ever before in the history of the camp. Wit hthe Greene ore extraction is being carried on steadily decreasing costs under the management of Superintendent Kirk, while development is being kept well ahead of production, assuring the very desirable safeguard of abundant reserve supplies for emergencies. As the Greene mines stand today, they could confine themselves to producing for a long period if it became necessary, without having need to do a stroke of development. Labor conditions are excellent. Pay rolls which will be cashed in the next few days will be the biggest in the history of the camp and will turn a large amount of money into the channels of trade. Men are well satisfied with conditions as they have been made, and are staying with their work steadily. No scarcity of labor has been noted recently though increase in working forces has been going on regularly. Many men have come in from outside points and have found employment within a short time after arrival.

In the reduction division of Greene-Cananea the betterments which have been planned are going forward steadily and with much smoothness in installation. Of course, the rehabilitating of a big smelter and continuation at the same time of production at something near former figures of output is a tremendous task, involving many difficulties which large application of ingenuity alone can surmount. However, they have rehaid surface tracks and accomplished a number of smaller changes enabling economy in time and have put two new furnaces going. The third new one is coming along with surprising rapidity and it will not be long before the fourth is tackled. The new furnaces are doing splendid work and assure that when the balance of the changes are made that the expectations of materially increased output from the plant will be realized. At the concentrator operations continue with much smoothness and altogether satisfactory results.

Sierra de Cobre is crowding steadily ahead with its work. The Limestone tunnel continues to look better and better. There is a world of ore there. Mining men who have lately looked at the showing consider it one of the biggest to be found in the camp, while one prominent visitor is on record with the declaration that it is the biggest thing yet found in Cananea. The situation appeals strongly to the minority stockholders with Phelps-Dodge in this property, the American organization of which is Indiana Sonora, and which the present outlook would warrant expectations of seeing it in the dividend paying list before a great while.

A gold find, which may prove of large importance, occasioned much interest in the city during the week. The latter was increased by the filing of a number of denouncements with

Mesaba Range Expected to Ship 27,000,000 Tons This Season —Mountain Iron Mine Will be the Biggest Shipper, While the Mahoning Will be a Close Second.

While ore shipments had a bad start because of the unseasonable conditions on the Great Lakes during April, the movement is rapidly reaching the maximum and it is the expectation that the traffic each month from now until the close of the season in December will exceed that of the corresponding period a year ago. Indeed, this will have to be the case if the anticipated total of 43,000,000 tons is shipped, and of no other range is this more true than of the Mesaba. It is the Mesaba that is look to to furnish the increase of 3,-500,000 tons. This will mean a shipment of more than 27,000,000 tons, and curtis has not been seriously impaired by the manipulation to which the market has been subjected during the past two weeks, was made evident today when Sullivan & Rice, Reno, made public announcement of the fact that they have been designated as the agents of a syndicate who desire to loan money on Nevada mining stocks. This announcement was made by L. M. Sullivan, of the firm named, who stated that he wished the broadest publicity given to the fact that the syndicate his firm represents is prepared to lend at least $250,000 on the security of listed Nevada stocks. Loans are to be made to the extent of 66 2-3 of the market value of the issues offered as collateral. They must be in amounts of $250 and upwards, and may be made for a period of four months. Interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum will be charged. If the amount which the syndicate has set aside to is not sufficient, Mr. Sullivan stated that it will be prepared to lend an additional $1,000,000 in the manner outlined.

The biggest shipper on the Mesaba this year will be the Steel corporation's giant Mountain Iron mine, as has been the case the past two seasons, when it sent out upwards of 5,000,000 tons. Closely pressing it, however, will be the big Mahoning, at Hibbing, in which the Steel corporation and the Cambria Steel company are jointly interested. The Mahoning will ship approximately 2,000,000 tons. Its big pit, which opens into that of the adjoining Hul-Rust mine, is already one of the greatest excavations ever made anywhere, yet eventually it will be several times its present size. Steam shovels of large capacity are at work, stripping and mining, night and day, and it is said that it has been planned to ship no less than 10,000,000 tons within the next five years. The Mahoning is a mine with enormous reserves, its acreage extending from the present open cut east a mile or more into the village of Hibbing itself. Hibbing is the biggest town on the range, but at some time in the future it will have to seek a new location—at least a considerable portion of it will—for the reason that ore deposits, owned by the Steel corporation, underlie it. It was because of a similar occurrence that the village of Eveleth was moved to a new site some years ago, just as will be done in the case of McKinley and Sparta.

The new mine being opened on the Mesaba is the Hartley, in the Chisholm district. Stripping is in progress, the work having been commenced a year ago, and it will be continued vigorously throughout the season. The property will be a large shipper next year. The St. Clair, adjoining the Hartley, has suspended underground work and will be stripped later on, as will a considerable area at the Jordan, where an ore body still to be developed is available to supplant the deposit now nearly exhausted. Much of the overburden at the Pillsbury has been removed, strippers having been at work throughout the winter, and some 500,000 tons of ore will be mined by steam shovel this year. New shafts are in commission at the Shenango and Monroe-Tener, while at the Chisholm, Clark, Glen, Sherwango, Myers and Leonard there are considerable stockpiles to augment the shipments from the workings direct. In fact, practically all the mines of the Chisholm district are being operated to capacity this year and the activity was never greater. The Croxton will duplicate its product of last season, which amounted to 160,000 tons.

The Steel corporation is actively developing its Virginia group, and will ship considerable ore from them this season. Steam shovels are doing duty at the Oliver and Ohio, the latter a combination of several properties mined in a small way some years ago. The New York State Steel company is opening the Larkin mine, formerly the Tesora, in this field; it is developing the Kellogg mine at McKinley, and has a third property at Masaba. A new shaft is going into commission at the Williams mine, at the edge of Biwabik. A second shaft is to be sunk at the Cass property, in the same district. At the Biwabik open pit, half a dozen steam shovels are at work, and a heavy production is being made. This mine will probably re-enter the million-ton class this season.

A new property acquired recently by the Steel corporation is a forty-acre in section 34, 58-18, at the edge of the village of Mountain Iron. This is a state lease, held by the heirs of the late J. S. Lane, to them will be paid a bonus of 16 cents a ton for all ore mined. A royalty of two and one-half times that will go to the state. The state lease covering the Scranton tract, formerly the Elizabeth, in the Hibbing district, has proved a valuable acquisition for Pickands, Mather & Co., which acquired the property in 1900. As determined by drill borings, it is understood, the average thickness of the ore body averages 100 feet, with some portions of the deposit extending 400 feet in depth. As there are 120 acres in the tract it is evident that the mine is one of the largest on the range. The lease runs for forty-four years yet.

Sinking at Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Syracuse mine, on Embarrass lake, is now in progress in the rock, the fedee having been reached successfully by the pneumatic pressure system, which is likewise proving successful at the company's adjoining Rangor mine. The development of these two properties has been tedious and costly. Ordinary methods of putting down the shafts

Calumet & Arizona Improvements at Douglas Being Pushed---Copper Green Smelter Also Being Increased--Ore Reserves Growing.

Douglas, Ariz., May 25.—The Calumet & Arizona smelter is undergoing its first important change, and one which marks its progress radically. Formerly the addition of a furnace of a couple of converters was considered a matter of consequence.

Now, the machinery has been moved from the old machine and boiler shops to its new quarters and the ground is trembling with the excavation operations for the new extension to the power house, powder being employed to shake up the tenacios formation.

The demolition of the old shops will rapidly follow, while cement for the foundation and structural steel for the buildings are at hand ready for their respective places in the construction of the new extension.

At th esouth end of the main smelter building, they are filling in the inequalities and fitting up their elevator for heavy work.

The ore reserves of the Copper Queen stock pile shows for itself. The long temporary corrugated iron building is pulled down as the ore is removed and replaced when the pile is stored up. The stock pile at present is about 360 feet in length. It is no secret that the companies feel very comfortable at being able to supply the smelters since the recent labor troubles commenced, without thinking of accumulating a stock pile but the situation is daily improving in this respect.

The reverbatory furnace will now be completed without delay. Most of the work on the furnace work is nearly completed, but the stack or chimney remains to be built. The object of this reverbatory is to handle the fine dust. The old fashioned way of brisquetting the dust and feeding it back into the furnace is very unsatisfactory. In the reverbatory the raw dust which is mostly coke, is brought into contact with the molten contents of the furnace and reduced to matte, instead of going up the stack, as when handled in the ordinary way.

Nothing worthy of mention has taken form at the Shattuck-Arizona this week. No doubt the work is rapidly

PROGRESS OF GLOBE MINES

Globe, Ariz., May 25.—While there has been no event o especial importance in the local mining field during the past week, operations have shown a further expansion and an increase in the number of men employed, made necessary by new development and construction work. The labor market is well supplied, there being a steady influx of men from other camps, attracted by the high wage scale and favorable conditions prevailing in the Globe district. The activity in mining throughout the district gives impetus to every kind of business, and Globe,as the distributing center for all the outlying camps, is enjoying great prosperity and a healthy growth.

At the Old Dominion, comprehensive plans for the enlargement of the company's surface works are engaging the attention of the local management without in the least impairing the operation and development of its mines. The structural steel for the extension of the smelter building, delayed by the congestion of freight on the Rock Island railroad, has been located and its delivery is promised at an early date. Construction will then proceed rapidly, and No. 5 furnace will be erected and should be in operation by July 1.

The plans include the installation of still another furnace construction of an additional dust chamber and the erection of another stack 200 feet high and having double the capacity of the present stack. These and other contemplated enlargements will require the remainder of the year for their completion.

Of importance in this connection is the enlargement of the smelter ore bins, to be undertaken at once. The capacity of the bins, now 3,600 tons, is to be increased to 4,800 tons by an extension seventy-two feet in length. Sixteen new automatic charge scales will be added, so as to load six charge cars at one time instead of three cars, as now loaded.

The Old Dominion mine is furnishing a steady output of ore. The Continental is contributing high grade sulphide and the United Globe, Gibson Custom ores are still being purchased and Arizona Commercial are making regular shipments, mostly sulphides, and what is not sold to outside smelters, is stored.

BLACK ROCK ALL ACTIVITY

Butte & Superior Company Rapidly Installing New Machinery---Electricity to be Extensively Used ---Third Compartment Will be Raised.

Butte, Mont., May 25.—The past few weeks have witnessed a wonderful transformation at the Black Rock mine, which came into the possession of the Butte & Superior Copper company last February. By early fall the new equipment will be in commission, and it will be one of the most complete mining plants on the hill.

Under the direction of R. C. Davis, formerly connected with the engineering department of the Amalgamated Copper company, a small army of men is actively at work constructing new buildings and preparing foundations for the new engine and for the gallows frame which are on the ground ready for erection. The engine, which is of the Corliss type, 500-horse power, will be set on a concrete foundation now under way. For this foundation an excavation has been made to a depth of about twenty feet, in order to reach bed rock, and it will be about 40 by 50 feet in size. Adjoining it will be the boiler room of generous size, and capable of housing a battery of four boilers.

The new gallows frame, which is of wood, will be 60 feet in height, and set on six concrete piers now under construction, which will rest on the solid rock, fifteen feet below the surface of the ground. A new compressor shop, 40 by 60 feet in size, is now in course of construction. It will be equipped with all the most modern labor-saving machinery, and being located slightly above the level of the collar of the shaft, the framed timbers, may easily be sent by gravity cars from the carpenter shop to the shaft.

Owing to the difficulty and expense of placing coal upon the ground, it has been decided to use electricity extensively wherever possible, and it is probable that steam will be used only for the operation of the shaft. Electricity will be utilized for running the compressors, and for all of the machinery in the carpenter and blacksmith shops.

The shaft is now down 700 feet,

THE NEW MEXICO OIL FIELDS

Bisbee, Ariz., May 25.—The tract of land near Santa Rosa, N. M., reported to give every indication of being oil bearing ground, will soon be the scene of extensive and systematic development work, which will be inaugurated before the end of the present month. Paraphernalia for boring for the oil is at present being assembled on the ground, and the managers of the company are only awaiting the arrival of an oil expert from California to designate the exact spots to begin work.

Several prominent local capitalists of Bisbee and Douglas are interested in the company, which has been organized for the purpose of prospecting the new oil fields and an option on 20,000 acres has been secured. Most of the ground was located on a land grant, and the final deal for its possession was closed in Albuquerque about a month ago.

Among the local capitalists interested are L. C. Shattuck, W. Douglas, L. W. Powell, H. A. Smith, H. E. Hovland, L. J. Ovelock, W. H. Brophy, M. J. Cunningham and others.

It is understood that H. A. Smith is taking an active part in the commencement of the operations, which will be begun just as soon as the oil expert arrives on the ground from California.

Already the stockholders of the company have received a very flattering report from a California expert named Craig, who made a thorough examination of the formation a few days ago, and pronounced it an ideal formation, with every favorable indication of oil deposits at a depth af 800 to 3,000 feet. Oil rock shown in Bisbee lately bears out the report of the expert.

Development work at the new fields will be watched with a great deal of interest by the entire Southwest. The discovery of oil in the New Mexico fields would mean the saving of thousands of dollars in cost of fuel to mining companies in Arizona and New Mexico, and the personnel of the company which has undertaken the work of prospecting the ground is a guarantee that the work will be carried on in a systematic manner.

JUNE GRADUATES AND JUNE BRIDES!

These two prospective figures hold the center of attraction and within a few weeks will come into all the attention and delightful flutter of their short day, to give way to the picnics of July. To those who are helping Sally get ready for a high school commencement, time does not hang heavy. To have pink, or blue, or yellow, for class night, and to have imitation Cluny lace with dotted Swiss or Val. lace and lawn for graduation night, are not matters to be settled in a one brief hour consultation. There are plenty of families thus putting in their spare time, for the high school class is a large one this year and its members come from all over the city, and the interest is widespread.

Duluth is also interested in the college commencement this year and several young Duluthians will be represented at the graduation exercises of the Eastern colleges as well as at the state university. Local society will be represented at the functions attending graduation at several of the colleges.

And then there is the June bride! She is the one especially busy person just now, completing the all important trousseau. Hers, however, is an easy task. She knows what she wants and the only thing remaining to be done is deciding which of many she can afford. Not so the gift giver, whose misfortunes are traceable directly to the bride. It is one of the peculiar things of modern civilization that when one goes to buy a wedding gift, one loses every bit of sense one was previously possessed of. One may have a friend who has shown no signs of hereditary insanity, and one day she announces that she is to be married. The only redeeming thing about it is, that she has the grace to blush. One immediately sees a wedding present looming ahead. One may know her as well as one knows oneself, but to choose for her a wedding present! The deep gloom of her defection appears light against the impossibility of getting anything she wants. The weeks previous to the wedding are gloom-cast with this necessity staring one in the face. There is no help to be offered either. It has been suggested that a prospective bride might go to the dealer who knows her, and who knows about who her friends are, and tell him the pattern of china she prefers, and the cut in glass that finds special favor with her, and the people whom he could possibly switch to getting her a piece of jewelry instead of the raft of table stuff no person of simple tastes would need at least for the first few years. She might also keep him informed of the gifts as they are received and he could provide an infinite variety and save her at least, in part, the sorrow of having more than four duplicates. But a mock modesty steps in here and few brides will come to the assistance of their friends in even so small a thing. But they could, if they would.

Such beautiful things never were seen in silver, and glass, and china, and hammered brass, and such things, so after all maybe the most to be congratulated person of the late spring is the June bride, who is in immediate danger of receiving duplicates of these beautiful things.

The only event scheduled for next week is a Boat club smoker, which event will not cause any noticeable upheaval in society circles, as it is a stag affair. When, however, the members have become acquainted with themselves, summer may be ushered in with an informal hop, and canoes on the bay and such frivolous and delightful pastimes. Meanwhile society is housecleaning.

MARKET IS NEGLECTED

Unlisted Shares Show Some Activity—Greene-Cananea Stronger.

Little interest was shown in the Boston coppers during the short session of the market today, and the closing prices were a little off from yesterday.

During the latter part of the day a fairly brisk trade in some of the unlisted shares developed. Greene-Cananea was stronger. At the opening it sold at $14.12½, declined to $14, rallied to $14.50 and closed at $14 bid and $14.25 asked.

Butte Coalition opened at $25 bid and $25.25 asked, sold at $25.25 and closed at $25 bid and $25.25 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $167, advanced to $168 and closed at $167 bid.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $16.50, declined to $16.25, and closed at $16.25 bid and $16.37½ asked. J. D. Howard, W. T. Bailey and several other prominent Duluthians interested in the newly formed Butte & Duluth Copper Mining company will leave the first part of next week for Butte, where they will lay machinery. Enough equipment will be purchased to sink a shaft 1,000 feet, and it will be set up and work on the property begun as soon as possible.

The property is located on the other side of the hill from Butte, about four miles to the north of that camp. When Mr. Howard was in Montana on a hunting expedition last fall, he heard about this property and made preliminary arrangements for securing control of it. The deal has now been culminated and the company formed, J. D. Wellcome of Butte, is president, and Mr. Howard is treasurer.

Two test pits, ten feet, have been sunk on the property which is a new one and in a new district, and in both of them has been encountered good ore. The tract is located about three miles from the Northern Pacific road, and about seven miles from the Anaconda smelter.

The capital stock of the company is $1,000,000, divided up into 1,000,000 shares of a par value of $1 each. It is understood that $25,000 of stock will be placed on the market here. A like amount has been disposed of in the East.

DAMAGES FOR BROKEN SKULL

Workman Would Collect $43,000 From Coal Company.

The Youghiogheny & Lehigh Coal company and James Kerr, a foreman employed by the company at its docks in Superior, have been sued by Stever Herman in the district court for $43,000 damages for injuries sustained by Herman while working on the dock in June, 1902. In his complaint Herman alleges that while he was loading coal on a scow by means of a wheelbarrow, Kerr, the foreman, brushed some large pieces from the tramway overhead, one of the pieces striking Herman and fracturing his skull. Herman is represented by J. De LaMotte.

THE ALLEGED TAMPERINGS

Of Mrs. Howard Gould's Mail Will be Investigated.

New York, May 25.—An investigation by the postoffice department of the charges made by Mrs. Howard Gould, who is seeking a separation from her husband, that her mail was tampered with for months, will be made if Mrs. Gould furnishes the department with letters, which she informed Police Commissioner Bingham yesterday afternoon had been apparently opened and tracings made of the addresses.

Mrs. Gould is quoted as saying to Commissioner Bingham that last summer she noticed that the mail she received had been tampered with and that tracings had been made of the address.

CONTRACT LET MONDAY

Commercial Club's Action May Tie Up Dock This Year.

The letting of the contract for paving Sixteenth avenue east from London road to Sixth street will be the feature of the meeting of the board of public works Monday morning. At that time the board will also hold a hearing for the benefit of the property owners along the avenue in order that they may decide upon the kind of paving which they will use.

It is understood that while a feeble effort may be made to get the sandstone installed on the street, its grade in points being the argument for the stone paving, the property owners along the line of the improvement are almost unanimous for tar macadam. As P. McDonnell is low on this, it is practically certain that he will get the job. Mr. McDonnell is placed in a most advantageous position to do cheap paving work in the eastern end of the city, as the rock cut at Twenty-fourth avenue east is furnishing him his rock at no expense beyond the crushing and hauling.

Whether or not it wil be necessary to put a strip of sandstone up the middle of the avenue for the benefit of ascending teams may be a matter of discussion however. It is not thought that this will be necessary for the whole length of the improvement but the grade between Second and Fourth streets is so great that it may be imperative there.

It seems to be the general sentiment that the action of the West Duluth Commercial club last evening in turndown the Forty-eighth avenue approach to the Ramsey street dock and boosting for the Ramsey street approach may delay the construction of the dock for another year. According to the estimates compiled by the city engineer at the request of O. H. Simonds of the West Duluth Land company, the Ramsey street approach will cost in the neighborhood of $1,000 more than the Forty-eighth avenue approach would have come.

The lowest bid for the structure with the cheaper approach slightly exceeded the appropriation made for that purpose by the council, and as the permanent improvement fund is worse than empty just at present, and a number of much needed improvements are being clamored for from various portions of the city, it is very unlikely that the council will increase the appropriation, or order the work done in opposition to the wishes of West Duluthians as expressed in the resolution of the Commercial club.

THREE MEN LOSE LIVES

Boston, Mass., May 25.—Three men lost their lives in a fire which broke out in the box factory of S. T. LeBaron, in the heart of the woodworking district along the East Boston water front this afternoon. They were Patrick Rourke of East Boston, a member of the firm of Johnson & Rourke; James Varrasso of East Boston, and an Italian known as Tony Rose of Charles street, in the north end of the city.

The fire was one of the most threatening for years in East Boston and three alarms were necessary to summon sufficient apparatus to bring it under control. The financial loss is placed at $50,000.

The flames swept quickly through the building, which is a five-story brick structure, cutting off the escape of the workmen in the upper stories.

Many were rescued by firemen and taken down on ladders. Several of the rescued were overcome by smoke.

SUSPECT RETRACTS HIS CONFESSION

New York, May 25.—Efforts to disNew York, May 25.—Efforts to disfeldt, the 15-year-old girl who was stabbed to death while digging dandelions in a field at Elmhurst, L. I., were impeded by the action of Henry Becker, a suspect under arrest, who today retracted the statement he made yesterday accusing a companion of murdering the girl.

Yesterday Becker declared that he had witnessed the girl's murder by a Slav, with whom he was searching for work, but whose name he said he did not know. Today Becker said he parted company with the Slav after reaching Elmhurst and knew nothing whatever about the murder.

EXPLOSION INJURES FOURTEEN PERSONS.

New York, May 25.—Fourteen persons were injured, some of them probably fatally, by an explosion in the cut for the new Pennsylvania station at Thirty-first street and seventh avenue today. Several of the injured were pedestrians in surrounding streets, who were caught in the shower of stones which were hurled hundreds of feet by the force of the explosion. The others were laborers.

DROWNED AT BRIDGE

Struck His Head on Timber and Was Stunned.

Slipping on the wet stringers of the Duluth-Superior bridge, a fireman on the tug Manistique, fell and striking his head on a timber, was drowned in the channel, shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon.

The man's name was Smith, but none of the witnesses of the accident knew his first name, and it could not be learned up to a late hour this afternoon. He was a new man, having just been employed on the tug, and he was going to work when the accident happened.

He and one of the other firemen were walking along the bridge from the Duluth side, Smith in the rear. Suddenly his companion heard a cry, and turning he saw Smith falling. He struck his head on a timber before striking the water, and was doubtless stunned by the blow.

The body was recovered about twenty minutes later, coming to the surface, and the coroner was notified.

SETS VALUE ON HIS EYE

Michael Moran Wants $20,000 for Partial Loss of Sight.

Brings Suit Against Railroad Company for Heavy Damages.

The complaint was filed in the office of the clerk of the United States court today in a personal injury case in which a judgment of $20,000 is asked. The case has been instituted by Michael Moran against the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, and will probably come up for trial during the July term.

Moran claims that he was working with an extra gang for the railway company last October on the line between Proctor and the ore docks in this city, where the track was being repaired and ballasted. As trains were being constantly run over the line the work had to be done hurriedly during the intervals when the line was clear.

On the day on which he was injured the complaint states that Moran was ordered to clean up along the side of the track near where the rock was being unloaded from the construction train. It is claimed that while he was working thus, a large quantity of rock was unloaded in close proximity to him. Some of this rock struck him in such a manner as to cause agonizing pains and permanent injury.

As a result of the accident Moran has permanently lost the sight of his right eye, and that of the left is partially gone. He claims that he is unable to work and cannot enjoy life as he would otherwise be able to do. For these injuries he asks the sum of $20,000 and the costs of the action.

He is represented in the suit by Attorney John Jenswold, Jr. No answer to the complaint has yet been filed.

RETAIL CIGAR MEN ORGANIZE

The Duluth Retail Cigar Dealers' Association is Formed.

The Duluth Retail Cigar Dealers' association was organized at a meeting of local cigar men held last night. The association is for mutual protection and benefit, and starts out with a membership of eighteen. It is expected that virtually every dealer of any consequence in the city will be a member before the organization is six months old.

One purpose of the association, it is understood, will be the buying of very large lots of cigars for distribution among the members. In this manner a much better price will be obtained than if individuals bought the same cigars in smaller lots. The ultimate result of this, it is claimed, will be a better price to the consumer. Brands that now retail at 10 cents straight, for example, will, under the new system, be sold at three for a quarter. At least this will be done if present plans of the organization work out as expected. Regular meetings will be held, and matters of interest to the trade will be taken up.

TAXPAYERS INTERESTED

Claim His Appointment Would Remove Friction on Commission.

One of the things that is understood to have hung up the courthouse commission is the selection of a consulting architect. Before the supreme court decision, which held the old commission to be without legal organization, the members had employed John Wangenstein as architect, and there had been some negotiations toward selecting a consulting architect from outside the city, some man who has had wide experience and one in whom the commission and the people would have confidence.

It is claimed that two of the members of the old board sent for Cass Gilbert, the New York architect, who designed the new capitol for Minnesota, and brought him here without the knowledge of the other members of the commission, who are said to have known nothing of the move until Mr. Gilbert was here, with the expectation of closing up a contract. The proposition is said to have been made with Mr. Gilbert's consent, that the 3 per cent commission to be paid Mr. Wangenstein, the architect, was to be increased to 5 per cent, and the latter was to take Mr. Gilbert into partnership, or, if this arrangement was not agreeable to Mr. Wangenstein, he could resign.

It is understod that when the other members of the board learned of the Gilbert proposition they balked, claiming that they had no objections to the selection of a reputable consulting architect, but they did not want Mr. Gilbert. This was the situation, it is said, when the supreme court decision knocked out the old commission.

Chairman Patterson of the county board has reappointed all the members of the courthouse commission, with the exception of E. Morcom of Tower, whose term of office as a county commissioner expired the first of the year. P. J. Ryan of Hibbing was appointed in Capt. Morcom's place. Up to the present time only on of the appointees has filed his acceptance with the county auditor. The matter of a consulting architect is said to be one of the bones of contention that has prevented any of the other appointees from filing.

A large number of the taxpayers, business men, and a committee from the Commercial club have been interesting themselves in the matter to some extent to see if the affairs of the commission could not be straightened out satisfactorily, so that the plans and the construction work on the new courthouse could go forward this season and without any further delay.

Many prominent citizens of the county are suggesting as consulting architect, F. W. Fitzpatrick, a former well known Duluth architect, who is now in Washington, D. C., and who has a national reputation as a consulting architect.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, because of his former residence and acquaintance here, has a wide circle of friends who are urging a consideration of his appointment. They claim that he would be acceptable to a majority of the commission and also to Mr. Wangenstein, and that if the men appointed by Chairman Patterson could get together on his selection the present friction might be done away with, the acceptance could be filed and the commission could get down to business.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, it is claimed, would, if appointed, give his personal services. Some of the structures he has designed include large and imposing commerical and public buildings in various parts of the United States.

A. A. Williamson, a writer in the Western Architect, of November, 1905, claims that Mr. Fitzpatrick stands at the head of his profession in the art of architectural delineation. He claims that Mr. Fitzpatrick has, without doubt, the largest practice of consulting architect in the country and has public spirit enough to spend a great deal of time in advocating better construction by his writings, in organizing municipal societies for artistic and structural development of cities besides being a writer of recognized authority on may subects.

SWEDENBORG IN LONDON.

Occult Review: Swedenborg was a great deal in London, where he was known and admired and had several good friends, but his small knowledge of English and the impediment in his speech precluded him from any real intimacy.

His slight figure, with his fine features and hazel eyes, was well known in the neighborhood of Coldbath Fields, where he lodged, and he was often seen stopping to talk to the children, for whom he used to carry sweetmeats. He was always dressed in an old-fashioned suit with lace ruffles, and wore a full-bottomed wig, carrying a sword and a gold-headed cane.

On Christmas eve, 1771, he had a stroke of apoplexy, and on March 29, 1772, the day he had foretold, he died at the hour which he had himself predicted.

OUR PIGMY ANCESTORS.

The Hospital: The armor of the knights of the middle ages is too small for their modern descendants. Hamilton Smith records that two Englishmen of average dimensions found no suit large enough to fit either of them in the great collection of Samuel Meyrick. The head of the Oriental sabre will not admit the English hand, nor the bracelet of the Kaffir warrior the English arm. The swords found in Roman tumuli have handles inconveniently small, and the great medlaeval two-handed sword is now supposed to have been used only for one or two blows at the first onset. The statements made by Homer, Aristotle and Vitruvius represent six feet as a high standard for full-grown men, and the irrefutable evidence of ancient doorways, bedsteads and tombs proves the average size of the race certainly not to have diminished in the modern days.

During the latter part of the day a fairly brisk trade in some of the unlisted shares developed. Greene-Cananea was stronger. At the opening it sold at $14.12½, declined to $14, ranged to $14.50 and closed at $14 bid and $14.25 asked.

J. T. Howard, W. T. Bailey and several other promoted Duluthians interested in the newly formed Butte & Duluth Copper Mining company will leave the first part of next week for Butte, where they will start machinery. Enough equipment will be purchased to sink a shaft 1,000 feet, and it will be set up and work on the property begun as soon as possible.

The property is located on the other side of the hill from Butte, about four miles to the north of that camp. When Mr. Howard was in Montana on a hunting expedition last fall, he heard about this property and made preliminary arrangements for securing control of it. The deal has now been culminated and the company formed. J. D. Wellcome of Butte is president, and Mr. Howard is treasurer.

Two test pits, ten feet, have been sunk on the property which is in a new copper district, and in both of them has been encountered good ore. The tract is located about three miles from the Northern Pacific road, and about seven miles from the Anaconda smelter.

The capital stock of the company is $1,000,000, divided up into 1,000,000 shares of a par value of $1 each. It is understood that $250,000 of stock will be placed on the market here. A like amount has been disposed of in the East.

CONTRACT LET MONDAY

Commercial Club's Action May Tie Up Dock This Year.

The letting of the contract for paving Sixteenth avenue east from London road to Sixth street will be the feature of the meeting of the board of public works Monday morning. At that time the board will also hold a hearing for the benefit of the property owners along the avenue in order that they may decide upon the kind of paving which they will use.

It is understood that while a feeble effort may be made to get the sandstone installed on the street, its grade in points being the argument for the stone paving, the property owners along the line of the improvement are almost unanimous for tar macadam. As P. McDonnell is low on this, it is practically certain that he will get the job. Mr. McDonnell is placed in a most advantageous position to do cheap paving work in the eastern end of the city, as the rock cut at Twenty-fourth avenue east is furnishing him his rock at no expense beyond the crushing and hauling.

Whether or not it wil be necessary to put a strip of sandstone up the middle of the avenue for the benefit of ascending team may be a matter of discussion however. It is not thought that this will be necessary for the whole length of the improvement but the grade between Second and Fourth streets is so great that it may be imperative there.

It seems to be the general sentiment that the action of the West Duluth Commercial club last evening in turndown the Forty-eighth avenue approach to the Ramsey street dock and boosting for the Ramsey street approach may delay the construction of the dock for another year. According to the estimates compiled by the city engineer at the request of O. H. Simonds of the West Duluth Land company, the Ramsey street approach will cost in the neighborhood of $1,000 more than the Forty-eighth avenue approach would have come.

The lowest bid for the structure with the cheaper approach slightly exceeded the appropriation made for that purpose by the council, and as the permanent improvement fund is worse than empty just at present, and a number of much needed improvements are being clamored for from various portions of the city, it is very unlikely that the council will increase the appropriation, or order the work done in opposition to the wishes of West Duluthians as expressed in the resolution of the Commercial club.

DROWNED AT BRIDGE

Struck His Head on Timber and Was Stunned.

Slipping on the wet stringers of the Duluth-Superior bridge, a fireman on the tug Manistique, fell and striking his head on a timber, was drowned in the channel, shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon.

The man's name was Smith, but none of the witnesses of the accident knew his first name, and it could not be learned up to a late hour this afternoon. He was a new man, having just been employed on the tug, and he was going to work when the accident happened.

He and one of the other firemen were walking along the bridge from the Duluth side, Smith in the rear. Suddenly his companion heard a cry, and turning he saw Smith falling. He struck his head on a timber before striking the water, and was doubtless stunned by the blow.

The body was recovered about twenty minutes later, coming to the surface, and the coroner was notified.

SETS VALUE ON HIS EYE

Brings Suit Against Railroad Company for Heavy Damages.

The complaint was filed in the office of the clerk of the United States court today in a personal injury case in which a judgment of $20,000 is asked. The case has been instituted by Michael Moran against the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, and will probably come up for trial during the July term.

Moran claims that he was working with an extra gang for the railway company last October on the line between Proctor and the ore docks in this city, where the track was being repaired and ballasted. As trains were being constantly run over the line the work had to be done hurriedly during the intervals when the line was clear.

On the day on which he was injured the complaint states that Moran was ordered to clean up along the side of the track near where the work was being unloaded from the construction train. It is claimed that while he was working thus, a large quantity of rock was unloaded in close proximity to him. Some of the rock struck him in such a manner as to cause agonizing pains and permanent injury.

As a result of the accident Moran has permanently lost the sight of his right eye, and that of the left is partially gone. He claims that he is unable to work and cannot enjoy life as he would otherwise be able to do. For these injuries he asks the sum of $20,000 and the costs of the action.

He is represented in the suit by Attorney John Jenswold, Jr. No answer to the complaint has yet been filed.

TAXPAYERS INTERESTED

Claim His Appointment Would Remove Friction on Commission.

One of the things that is understood to have hung up the courthouse commission is the selection of a consulting architect. Before the supreme court decision, which held the old commission to be without legal organization, the members had employed John Wangenstein as architect, and there had been some negotiations toward selecting a consulting architect from outside the city, some man who has had wide experience and one in whom the commission and the people would have confidence.

It is claimed that two of the members of the old board sent for Cass Gilbert, the New York architect, who designed the new capitol for Minnesota, and brought him here without the knowledge of the other members of the commission, who are said to have known nothing of the move until Mr. Gilbert was here, with the expectation of closing up a contract. The proposition is said to have been made with Mr. Gilbert's consent, that the 3 per cent commission to be paid Mr. Wangenstein, the architect, was to be increased to 5 per cent, and the latter was to take Mr. Gilbert into partnership, or, if this arrangement was not agreeable to Mr. Wangenstein, he could resign.

It is understood that when the other members of the board learned of the Gilbert proposition they balked, claiming that they had no objections to the selection of a reputable consulting architect, but they did not want Mr. Gilbert. This was the situation, it is said, when the supreme court decision knocked out the old commission.

Chairman Patterson of the county board has reappointed all the members of the courthouse commission, with the exception of E. Morcom of Tower, whose term of office as a county commissioner expired the first of the year. P. J. Ryan of Hibbing was appointed in Capt. Morcom's place. Up to the present time only on of the appointees has filed his acceptance with the county auditor. The matter of a consulting architect is said to be one of the bones of contention that has prevented any of the other appointees from filing.

A large number of the taxpayers, business men, and a committee from the Commercial club have been interesting themselves in the matter to some extent to see if the affairs of the commission could not be straightened out satisfactorily, so that the plans and the construction work on the new courthouse could go forward this season and without any further delay.

Many prominent citizens of the county are suggesting as consulting architect, F. W. Fitzpatrick, a former well known Duluth architect, who is now in Washington, D. C., and who has a national reputation as a consulting architect.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, because of his former residence and acquaintance here, has a wide circle of friends who are urging a consideration of his appointment. They claim that he would be acceptable to a majority of the commission and also to Mr. Wangenstein, and that if the men appointed by Chairman Patterson could get together on his selection the present friction might be done away with, the acceptance could be filed and the commission could get down to business.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, it is claimed, would, if appointed, give his personal services. Some of the structures he has designed include large and imposing commerical and public buildings in various parts of the United States.

A. A. Williamson, a writer in the Western Architect, of November, 1905, claims that Mr. Fitzpatrick stands at the head of his profession in the art of architectural delineation. He claims that Mr. Fitzpatrick has, without doubt, the largest practice of consulting architect in the country and has public spirit enough to spend a great deal of time in advocating better construction by his writings, in organizing municipal societies for artistic and structural development of cities besides being a writer of recognized authority on may subects.

SWEDENBORG IN LONDON.
Occult Review: Swedenborg was a great deal in London, where he was known and admired and had several good friends, but his small knowledge of English and the impediment in his speech precluded him from any real intimacy.

His slight figure, with his fine features and hazel eyes, was well known in the neighborhood of Coldbath Fields, where he lodged, and he was often seen stopping to talk to the children, for whom he used to carry sweetmeats. He was always dressed in an old-fashioned suit with lace ruffles, and wore a full-bottomed wig, carrying a sword and a gold-headed cane.

On Christmas eve, 1771, he had a stroke of apoplexy, and on March 29, 1772, the day he had foretold, he died at the hour which he had himself predicted.

OUR PIGMY ANCESTORS.
The Hospital: The armor of the knights of the middle ages is too small for their modern descendants. Hamilton Smith records that two Englishmen of average dimensions found no suit large enough to fit either of them in the great collection of Samuel Meyrick. The head of the Oriental sabre will not admit the English hand, nor the bracelet of the Kaffir warrior the English arm. The swords found in Roman tumuli have handles inconveniently small, and the great mediaeval two-handed sword is now supposed to have been used only for one or two blows at the first onset. The statements made by Homer, Aristotle and Vitruvius represent six feet as a high standard for full-grown men, and the irrefutable evidence of ancient doorways, bedsteads and tombs proves the average size of the race certainly not to have diminished in the modern days.

THREE MEN LOSE LIVES

Boston, Mass., May 25.—Three men lost their lives in a fire which broke out in the box factory of S. T. LeBaron, in the heart of the woodworking district along the East Boston water front this afternoon. They were Patrick Rourke of East Boston, a member of the firm of Johnson & Rourke, James Varasso of East Boston, and an Italian known as Tony Rose of Charles street, in the north end of the city.

The fire was one of the most threatening for years in East Boston and three alarms were necessary to summon sufficient apparatus to bring it under control. The financial loss is placed at $50,000.

The flames swept quickly through the building, which is a five-story brick structure, cutting off the escape of the workmen in the upper stories.

Many were rescued by firemen and taken down on ladders. Several of the rescued were overcome by smoke.

SUSPECT RETRACTS HIS CONFESSION

New York, May 25.—Efforts to disNew York, May 25.—Efforts to disfeldt, the 15-year-old girl who was stabbed to death while digging dandelions in a field at Elmhurst, L. I., were impeded by the action of Henry Becker, a suspect under arrest, who today retracted the statement he made yesterday accusing a companion of murdering the girl.

Yesterday Becker declared that he had witnessed the girl's murder by a Slav, with whom he was searching for work, but when name he said he did not know. Today Becker said he parted company with the Slav after reaching Elmhurst and knew nothing whatever about the murder.

EXPLOSION INJURES FOURTEEN PERSONS.

New York, May 25.—Fourteen persons were injured, some of them probably fatally, by an explosion in the cut for the new Pennsylvania station at Thirty-first street and seventh avenue today. Several of the injured were pedestrians in surrounding streets, who were caught in the shower of stones which were hurled hundreds of feet by the force of the explosion. The others were laborers.

RETAIL CIGAR MEN ORGANIZE

The Duluth Retail Cigar Dealers' Association is Formed.

The Duluth Retail Cigar Dealers' association was organized at a meeting of local cigar men held last night. The association is for mutual protection and benefit, and starts out with a membership of eighteen. It is expected that virtually every dealer of any consequence in the city will be a member before the organization is six months old.

One purpose of the association. It is understood, will be the buying of very large lots of cigars for distribution among the members. In this manner a much better price will be obtained than if individuals bought the same cigars in smaller lots. The ultimate result of this, it is claimed, will be a better price to the consumer. Brands that now retail at 10 cents straight, for example, will, under the new system, be sold at three for a quarter. At least this will be done if present plans of the organization work out as expected. Regular meetings will be held, and matters of interest to the trade will be taken up.

The sovereign body voted down an application from the Uniform Rank of Woodmen for an appropriation of $10,000 for the next two years, but as a compromise allowed the uniform rank $5,500 for two years, and relieved them of all dues and charter taxes.

The annual salaries of sovereign officers were increased, that of J. C. Root, sovereign commander, Omaha, Neb., being raised from $3,000 to $10,000.

Commencement Ceremonies Are Only Two Weeks Away.

Some of the Students Who Have Taken Class Honors.

Writers of Five Graduation Night Essays and Their Themes.

The long wintry spring, lasting as it has until within three weeks of graduation time, makes it hard to realize that the glorious day of the sweet girl graduate, the singing of "Alma Mater," the glorious hilarity of class night, and the more serious ceremonies of commencement are all but a scant two weeks away. The days of the class of '07 are truly numbered nevertheless, and the ceremonies which will celebrate their departure from the world of high school life are drawing rapidly nearer.

The class play was only started in motion early this week, and the three scant weeks which remain will be barely sufficient to whip the cast into shape for the production by the hardest kind of work. The selection of the commencement night speakers was also deferred until but a little over a week ago, and the twelve highly honored but none-the-less hard worked students, whose essays were adjudged the best by the faculty committee have a most strenuous two weeks before them.

Add to this the grind of the last two weeks of examination review to which the whole school is subjected, the responsibility of the issuing of the Zenith, which rests heavily upon the shoulders of some of the busiest of the class, and you can get some idea of the strenuous period which is in store for the seniors next week. The examinations for the graduating class come Thursday and Friday of next week, a short and insufficient four days in which to prepare, and the last week, with studies over, will be devoted to the perfection of the graduation program, the junior-senior reception, and the attendant dissipations.

The greatest pleasure has been expressed on all sides concerning the selection made by the committee regarding the commencement night essays. The five young people chosen by Mr. Smith and the English teachers represent the highest literary talent in the class, if not in the school, and the majority of them have distinguished themselves in oratorial and dramatic lines before this.

Marguerite Culkin is one of the most talented elocutionists in the school, and has been a feature on a number of Philomathian and other school programs up to this time. She has worked up her paper, "The Future" as a sort of valedictory and prophecy combined. Miss Culkin is the daughter of W. E. Culkin of Hunters Park.

Evelyn Cash has selected a live, timely and much discussed subject as thetopic of her theme, "The Child Labor Problem." The subject is one which would permit of either a sympathetic and touching treatment, or a dispassionate and thoroughly statistical one. The selection of the paper from among the 100 others entered in the competition is a sufficient testimonial for Miss Cash's treatment of the subject. Miss Cash is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cash of 523 west First street.

"Tolstoi, The Idealist of Russia" is the topic chosen by Miss Fern Doremus for her essay. This is a topic which was selected by a large number of the feminine members of the class of '07 and was in fact one of the topics which was most popular. The peasant philosopher seemed to hold some peculiar interest for the graduating girls and the selection of a paper from among so many able competitors is an additional testimonial to the worth and skill of Miss Doremus' treatment of the subject. Miss Doremus is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doremus of 1131 Lake avenue south.

The two boys who were fortunate enough to be chosen for the class night exercises Thomas Manley and Gerald Eddy, have bravely tackled two of the nation's most pressing problems, and have, according to their views on the subjects and what they have gleaned from careful study of them, set forth answers to them which, in the opinion of the faculty committee, were good enough to merit their being set forth from the rostum on commencement night.

Thomas Manley has chosen "Our Duties to the Filipinos" as his topic, while Gerald Eddy will talk upon "The Solution of the Negro Problem." Manley is the son of L. B. Manley of 5401 London Road, while Eddy is the son of Mrs. A. B. Eddy and nephew of Principal Scott A. Foster of the Irving school, and resides in West Duluth.

A musical program and the addresses by Principal Smith and Superintendent Denfield will make up the rest of the program on commencement night, Friday evening, June 7, when the diplomas may evening, June 7, when the diplomas will be presented to the class and after which some 190 of the students of the high school will be students no more, but full fledged alumni.

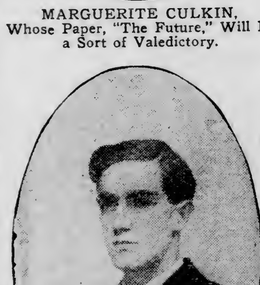
On class night, aside from the performers in the class play, who will of course be prominent in the program, needs an introduction. For four years star back on the footbal lteam, catcher on the baseball team, prominent in track work, in short, the best all round athlete the school has ever had, president of his class for two terms, for two years president of the athletic association; he has perhaps been honored more persistently by his classmates than any other student who ever graduated from the school. He has carried his honors easily, however, and bears distinction, rare for a student as prominent in athletics as he, of never having been ruled out of a game on account of having been back in his studies.

FERN DOREMUS,
Whose Subject Is "Tolstoy, the Ideal-ist of Russia."

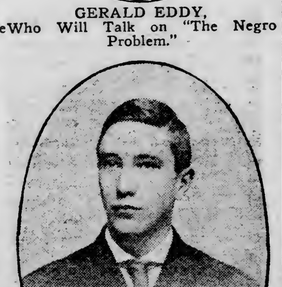
EVELYN CASH,
Who Chose "The Child Labor Problem" as Her Topic.

MARGUERITE CULKIN,
Whose Paper, "The Future," Will Be a Sort of Valedictory.

GERALD EDDY,
Who Will Talk on "The Negro Problem."



EDWARD COLE,
Class Orator.



THOMAS MANLEY,
Who Will Speak on "Our Duties to the Filipinos."

J. Edward Cole was chosen by his classmates as the one of their number best fitted to deliver the class oration which has been a feature of the class night programs since graduations began to be celebrated, and which, with the president's address was the only feature of the class night program which was retained when the prophecy, history, and the rest of the old program was dropped two years ago. Mr. Cole's oratoriacal ability is a development of the last year of his high school course, but he has worked up his oration on "The Concentration of Energy" in a way which is sure to do credit to both himself and his class.

Cole has been prominent in athletics since his freshman year, and has held several class offices. He is at present captain of the baseball team, and while his chief prowess has been on the diamond, he has held sub-halfback and other substitute positions on the football team on several occasions, and has been prominent on class football teams.

Elmer McDevitt, president of the class of '07 will, of couse, deliver the presidents address. "Muck" scarcely

Why Stanton Disliked Grant—Books of Perennial Popularity—William Sage and His New Novel—A Timely Jamestown Romance—The Latest Dictionary—An Author's Versatility.

Gen. Wilson's "Life of Charles A. Dana," published last week, is full of fascinating details regarding the men and events of the past half-century. Here, for instance, is the explanation of why Secretary Stanton always retained somewhat of a dislike to Gen. Grant—a dislike which came through a hasty mistake and a consequent wounding of the war secretary's vanity. That the mistake was Stanton's own, and that it was of a kind to which a man of less self-conceit would have given no attention, made no difference.

"Having reported his arrival at once, Grant received a telegram the next day from Halleck, directing him to proceed to Louisville, where he would 'meet an officer of the war department with orders and instructions.' As it turned out, the secretary himself was the officer who was to meet Grant, and the first meeting between these distinguished men took place on the morning of Sept. 18, 1863, in the union station at Indianapolis.

"It was not altogether free from embarrassment to Mr. Stanton, who had somewhat impulsively mistaken Dr. Kittoe, the staff surgeon for the general. Trivial as this incident may seem, Dana and the officers present always believed that it produced an unfavorable impression which lasted till the secretary's death. That he was disappointed in the general's appearance and bearing cannot be positively stated, but it is certain they never became devoted friends."

It is interesting to know that, in addition to Dickens and Scott and Shakespeare and Eliot, there are numerous books which retain popularity for decades. The Harpers, for example, find that there is not only a constant demand for their admirable sets of these four great authors, but that other books popular, say, some half-century ago, are still steadily sold.

Such, for instance, are the works of Miss Mulock, especially her "John Halifax, Gentleman;" such as Du Chaillu's "Adventures in Equatorial Africa," and other books; and such are the novels of Charlotte Bronte, which have been in continuous demand ever since publication, particularly her "Jane Eyre."

No variety of fiction causes so great a strain on the author as stories of mystery. The difficulties involved in putting the puzzle together, taking it apart and then putting it together again for the reader's benefit, are enormous. Practiced hand as she is, the problem in "The Mayor's Wife" proved almost too much for Anna Katharine Green. When the labor of compositon was over, she found herself on the verge of nervous prostration. She has gone abroad for a long and well-earned rest.

William Sage, whose new novel, "By Right Divine," a vigorous present day romance of love and politics, is soon to be published, says he is a New Englander and is glad of it, as New Englanders should be. Although he now lanaers should be. Although he now resides in New York city, he spends his summers up among the Presidential range of mountains in New Hampshire, his native state, seeking relaxation and inspiration while living the simple life. His last year's novel, "The District Attorney," displayed his thorough knowledge of financial and political conditions. In "By Right Divine" he deals with the struggle between a United States senator and a young governor for political supremacy in their native state, and is complicated by the love of the senator's daughter for both of the contestants.

Among novels of timely interest on account of the tercentennial of the settlement of Jamestown, is Maud Wilder Goodwin's "The Head of a Hundred," which gives a charming picture of the colony of Virginia in the early seventeenth century. The publishers, Little, Brown & Co., Boston, have just issued a new popular price edition of "The Head of a Hundred." The heroic Betty Romney comes to the shores of Virginia in the first shipload of wives, to escape a titled marriage with a man she hates, selected for her husband by her father. It is a stirring Colonial romance.

A new dictionary of the French and English languages issued this week with the Baker & Taylor company's imprint has escaped interest inasmuch as it is the latest dictionary of the two languages and is supposed to contain among its 60,000 words all the new ones that have recently established themselves in modern French. J. Mc-Laughlin, professor of languages at the Institut Commercial de Paris, has compiled, enlarge and revised this work from the well known dictionary of E. Clifton.

The Spectator, in reviewing "The Golden Hawk," by Edith Rickert, speaks very highly of the book, saying, "Miss Rickert's versality is truly amazing. The scenes of her first book were laid in the Southern states and opened in the cypress swamps of Louisiana. Her second story, "The Reaper," was a really remarkable study of life in the Orkneys, while her latest book is a romance of the sun-scorched plains and crags of Provence. But," says the Spectator, "Miss Rickert finds herself at home wherever she goes, and in her new volume, dedicated to Mistral, she has given us a modern romance in the picaresque style steeped in the sunshine of Provence and reflecting at every turn the meridonal glamour of the gueuse parfumee."

The third Harvard professor to be designated as exchange professor with the University of Berlin is Prof. William Henry Schofield, head of the department of comparative literature at Harvard. Although a young man, Prof. Schofield has achieved a high reputation among American scholars, and this international recognition of his standing will gratify many Americans. He is the author of "English Literature from the Norman Conquest to Chaucer," which The Macmillan company published last year.

Miss Florence Wilkinson, although she has written three novels, of which "The Silent Door" has just appeared, wishes to be known primarily as a poet. That is why she has allowed so much time to elapse since her last novel, "The Strength of the Hills," was published, and has devoted her time entirely to poetry. She recognizes the fact that it is next to impossible for the writer who has made his reputation by prose fiction, ever to be accepted seriously as a poet. Thomas Hardy and William Dean Howells are cases in point. Miss Wilkinson has wished to establish herself in the minds of poetry lovers, at least, as a poet first and novelist afterwards, and to have her novels judged rather as the work of a poet who has turned to fiction, than her verse, as the casual production of a prose writer. That she has succeeded in this attempt is shown by the fact that most of the reviews of "The Silent Door" have appeared under the heading "Fiction by a Poet."

Among the Magazines.

Where did the moon come from? Was it once a part of this earth? If so, from what part of the earth was it flung off, and where is the scar? That these questions can be answered with scientific accuracy, and that it can positively be shown from what part of this earth's surface the moon was torn, is set forth in a remarkable article by Prof. Pickering, of the Harvard Observatory, in the June number of Harper's Magazine. Another article of distinguished interest is upon Shakespeare's "King Henry IV." For this article, Edwin A. Abbey has painted some most admirable pictures, and the frontispiece of the magazine is one of these paintings, beautifully reproduced in color. The article itself is by Prof. Lewis Campbell, one of the most distinguished of English scholars. Col. William H. Crook, President Lincoln's friend and personal body-guard, contributes another paper on "Lincoln, as I Knew Him," giving deeply interesting descriptions of his daily life. William Dean Howells writes agai nof England; this time of Doncaster and Durham, treating these places with his finest literary charm and skill. An article by Charles Wellington Furlong, illustrated by himself, tells of a visit to Tripoli, and is not only highly interesting, but at the same time is successful in subtly suggesting the mysterious glamour of the land.

A popular and seasonable article in the June Century is Charles D. Stewart's account of "The United States of Baseball," a semi-humorous but careful and detailed narrative of the stature of the national game in America; how the major and the minor leagues are made up, and much other information sure to interest intensely all boys and most men. The writer is that man with that quaint touch, the author of "The Fugitive Blacksmith" and "Partners of Providence." A "star article" is a practical discussion by Mme. Melba of "The Gift of Song," her first contribution to the literature of her art. Coming from one of the greatest and certainly the most phenomenal of living singers, this account of her own early struggles, combined with much sound and authoritative advice for ambitious young women, is likely to make a wide appeal. Published now probably for the first time is a letter of Victor Hugo's, forming the leading article of the number, a letter written in response to an inquiry from Count Victor A. Peps of Italy, as to Hugo's purpose in writing his great romance. This authoritative personal statement of Hugo's object in "Les Miserables" and its relations to social problems has special interest in connection with current social discussion; and to add to this interest are three drawings by Castaigne of scenes in "Les Miserables," two in tint.

The June number of Scribner's Magazine opens with a very characteristic article by F. Hopkinson Smith, describing with zest the adventure of a swirling automobile ride from Dives to the picturesque home of an American painter, Aston Knight, an outdoor man who has achieved wonderful effects in the painting of running water. Knight's method is to put on a pair of waders, and stand in the middle of the stream with his canvas on a ladder. The article is appropriately called "The Man In the High-Water Boots." It is illustrated with some of Knight's pictures, and with photographs. The personality which Mr. Smith puts into the narration is the charm of the article. Another article of the open-air is Henry Van Dyke's "Between the Lupin and the Laurel," which tells of a little journey in the early spring-time down a stream in Southern New Jersey. "The American Osprey As a Game Bird," by Ernest Harold Baynes, describes the amusing and curious habits of a pair of tame hawks, with many photographs.

J. H. Twells, Jr., is the author of the novel which opens the June number of The Smart Set. The story is entitled, "One Man's Hour," and is a purely romantic tale, full of action and adventure. A young English publisher falls in love with a beautiful American girl and follows her to Paris, where the real story begins. The remarkable incidents which follow should cause the most jaded reader to become enthusiastic. Zona Gale contributes to this issue what is perhaps the most notable one of her fellow stories and Etcarts stories, entitled "Rosemary for Remembrance." Miss Gale's work has a charm and distinction with which magazine readers are happily familiar. John G. Neihardt, a young Western writer, who is rapidly coming to the front, is again a contributor, this time with a story entitled "The Ancient Memory," a most graphic piece of work. J. Lee Matherson, a hitherto unknown writer, contributes "The Spirit and the Flesh," which is as strong a bit of fiction as will be found in any periodical.

The Woman's Home Companion for June is foreshanded with an article on "The Woman of Millions—How She Could Spend Her Money." This magazine believes that millionairesses, or at least some of them, are willing to follow the lead that Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller in devoting some of their great wealth to practical benevolence, so William H. Allen of the New York Association for the Improvement of the Poor, was asked to tell women with millions just what they could do for their less fortunate fellow-creatures. The result is an able and thoroughly practical article. In the same number Dr. Edward Everett Hale has an editorial describing in his kindly genial manner just what women can do about good government, especially the civic duties connected with schools and libraries. Charles Edward Hooper, who is contributing a series of illustrated articles on building the home, describes the practical side of the house and what should be considered by prospective home builders to make the dwelling comfortable as well as beautiful.

"Silk Stockings and Morality," by Anne Annis, is the attractive title of the novelette opening Youth's Magazine for June. Silk stockings and morality in the possession of a poor but charming girl artist seem absurdly inconsistent to the provincial young millionaire, who is ensnared by her beauty. Of the latter he is sure, by fleeting glimpses—they're red-gold, to match her hair—and he proceeds therefore on the theory of an utter absence of the ethical quality. Only when he meets with a complete rout by the horrified girl, does he become convinced of the falsity of his deductions.

Meanwhile there has appeared another millionaire, of broader insight, and a mightily interesting, three-cornered romance is developed. Scintillant with wit and repartee, laid in a prim, country town where the artist girl and her New York studio friends import a Bohemian atmosphere that makes the townspeople sit up and rub their eyes, the story justifies its epigrammatic title.

Rose Tressy, the artist, is a flesh and blood girl, altogether adorable, while her staid chum, the latter's fiance, a lively, irrepressible, young New Yorker, and the rival millionaires, make a group of story people delightful to meet and whose gay company one leaves with regret.

Transatlantic Tales for June contains a complete novel by Rene Bazin, of the French academy, entitled "The Dying Land," which appeared in France under the title "La Terre qui Meure." In this tremendously strong story of the marshlands of Lower Brittany a vital presentation of the forces that are depopulating the land itself and crowding humanity into the cities is interwoven with a charming love-story. It is of particular interest to Americans from the fact that many portions of our own country are suffering from the same depopulating influences. Among the writers who furnish the short stories in this number are Anatole Le Braz, Marcel Prevost, Catulle Mendes, Antonio Fogazzaro, Anton Chekhov, Pedro de Alarcon, Ottilie Boudy, etc. The poems are by Gustavo Becquer and Sully Prudhomme.

The People's Magazine for June contains a little story by Henry Alford, entitled "The Dago," which, at this time of agitation against a certain class of Italian immigrants, seems especially significant. "The Dago" shows how a naturalized Italian befriends a native-born American. The dago, who is the hero of the story, is a character that might be met with in almost any large town in the United States, for he is an Italian barber. Mr. Alford's little story is well worth reading, and furnishes food for reflection.

It is, however, only one of twenty-odd stories which make up the June issue of the People's Magazine, there being included a complete novel and a novelette.

The leading article in the June number of House and Garden is from the pen of Mary Hodges. The writer deals delightfully with her subject, "Ashland Past and Present,' once the home of Kentucky's greatest statesman, Henry Clay, and now occupied by his direct descendants. The view of the house, as it was in the days of Mr. Clay and as it is at the present time, are extremely interesting, for today as in the long past, "Ashland" stands as a type of all that is best in a Kentucky bluegrass estate and home. There are few house gardens where the rose is not in pronounced evidence. John M. Hall sets forth in a brief way very explicit instructions upon their planting and care. The detail entered into by him makes success certain, if his suggestions are observed.

Ainslee's for June carries a list of nine short stories, which is rather unique. To collect that number of a quality so high and a type so diversified is something of a feat in magazine-making and one that deserves attention. A story of the West by Roy Norton, one of child interest by Marion Hill, one of the detective type by Robert E. MacAlarney, a humorous story, one at which the reader must laugh, whatever his mood, by F. Walworth; one of intense emotional interest by H. F. Prevost-Bteersby, and others by Owen Oliver, H. B. Marriott Watson, Zona Gale, and Elizabeth Banks, all the best work of these authors, make a remarkable combination.

One of the features of the June issue of the Popular Magazine is the opening instalment of a new serial by W. B. M. Ferguson, whose "Garrison's Finish," published originally in the Popular and later in book form, was so widely read. "Callenstein," as the serial is called, is the story of a man whose early life is clouded, in mystery, but who gets a grip on the memory in the back of his brain when, after a fracas terminating in a tragedy, he is offered a military captaincy in the little firebrand kingdom of Zollenstein—the bone of contention between Germany and France. He is only a pawn on the royal chessboard, but the pawn develops potentialities undreamed of, and the series of the most amazing exploits follows. The story begins in the June number of the Popular, and will be complete in five issues.

All the world loves a wedding, to paraphrase, and The Housekeeper for June is full of all sorts of hints for that most important occasion. "Phyllis, Her Golden Wedding" is a delightful poem by John Kendrick Bangs; "On the Training of a Husband," by Emily Ruth Calvin, ought to be read by both man and maid as the secrets are applicable for both; and there are special hints for the wedding feast by Mary Foster Snider and for the wedding dinner by Elizabeth W. Morrison. In fiction the number is particularly strong. "The Gift," by J. J. Bell, the author of "Wee MacGregor, is a story above the average. "In the Sweet of the Year," by L. M. Montgomery, is a delightful love story of the old-fashioned kind. A rollicking Irish story is "The Curse of King O'Brien," by Arthur Upson.

The May number of The Writer (Boston) is full of practical suggestions for literary workers. Ellen Douglas Deland contributes a helpful article on "Writing for Girls," and Ruth Hall writes from her experience on "Writing Books for Boys." H. G. Cutler answers the question, "When Publishers Lose Manuscripts—What Then?" and the editor discusses "Editorial Responsibility for Manuscripts."

Among the leading articles in the June number of the Technical World Magazine are the following: "The Song of the Engine-Driver," poem by C. L. Edholm; "Smokeless Cities of the Future," by A. D. Atkinson; "New Colossus of Telescopes," by Paul P. Foster; "Nature Fights the Railroads," by W. G. Fitz Gerald; "The Man with the Baneful Eye," story by Henry B. Allyn; "Precious Stones at Home," by Mrs. W. E. Burke; "Building a Lighthouse," by W. G. Fitz Gerald; "Butter's Rival Gaining Favor," by Fred Haxton.

Are American men losing their chivalry and consideration for women? Is it a fact that it is not so safe for a young woman to travel unchaperoned in the United States as it was a few years ago? The freedom that our girls enjoy has been a matter of comment for a long time. If it is true that we are in danger of losing one of our national characteristics and approximating a European standard in this regard we have something else to worry about besides the growth of corporations and the railroad question. In the number of Smith's Magazine now on newsstands Miss Annette Austin raises the question, and then answers it in the best way possible. She tells some of the experiences that actually befell a girl who traveled alone. The girl was a typical American from the Southwest, and came to New York as a bread-winner. Aside from the interest in the question involved, the narrative has a distinct charm and attraction of its own from the story-interest. It is well worth reading. In the same number of the magazine there is a complete novellette by Louise Driscoll which will attract more than passing attention. It tells the story of a family suddenly grown rich and a girl suddenly grown poor who is engaged to teach them the ways of the world of wealth.

The Broadway Magazine for June has a striking article, "The Menace of the Race Track," by Richard Spillane. Another notable article is "The Luxury of the Modern Hotel," by Anne O'Hagan, while Allen Johnston in answer to the question, "What is the Matter With Wall Street" These articles are lavishly illustrated and are cited as specimens of the splendid contents of this excellent magazine which is growing better with every number.

In the New England Magazine for June, "Galveston, an Epitome of American Pluck," by Frank Putnam, is the story of the indomitable energy of the citizens of that far southern city, in rebuilding after the waste of the tidal wave of seven years ago. "A New England Architect and His Work," by Oscar Fay Adams, relates how a Boston architect has made Christian Science famous through the designing and building of its unique and wonderful temple and tells of the work of the same man in the Rogers memorials at Fairhaven, the remodeling of the Massachusetts state house and many other buildings of great architectural excellence. Fiction holds a prominent place in the New England for June, Holman Day's exciting story of the battles of lumber barons in the wild lands of Maine is continued with an installment entitled, "In the Barony of Stumpage John." Lumber camp philosophy, ethics, and the grapple of two men's souls in the wilderness carries the story on in a series of vivid climaxes. "An Intervention of Providence," by Gilbert Coleman is a pretty story of a romantic chance meeting that ends in a love match. "The Unfinished Flag," by Kenrick Ferris is a tale of pathos and devotion, and "Lamey Daisy M. D.," by Mary Agnes Griffin, and "Mrs. Blunt's Rebellion," by Harriet A. Nash, are at once humorous, quaint and appealing.

The June issue of the 10-Story Book contains the usual content of ten clever stories, including "Fooling With Fire," by Eben E. Rexford; "The Deacon's Goodness and Celeste's Corsets," by Beatrice Lee; "Mel Hanwood's Coup de Grace," a snappy Western story by Elliot Walker; "The Prescience of T. Murray Hill," by Thomas Topham Grimshaw; "The Jack of Hearts," by Richard Bransteln; "The Nihilist of Kikamsk," by L. B. Kinder; "The Curse of the Skin Purse," by Lucy A. Drew; "The Downfall of the Roxmore Club," by Robert Carlton Brown, and "The Woman Who Confessed," by Nellie Cravey Gillmore. The short story masterpiece is Bret Harte's famous sketch, "The Outcasts of Poker Flat." The favorite poem is Ella Wheeler Wilcox's "Communism."

In the June Delineator are many interesting articles, including: "Smart Millinery for Summer Days," two pages of bewitching hats sketched by Carl Kleinschmidt from original models and accompanied by helpful descriptions of colors and materials; "The Dress of Paris," by Edouard La Fontaine, the latest ideas of famous modistes, the little touches which make a gown original and artistic, and the names of the new materials are all to be found in this article; "The Marital Unrest," by Caroline Duer, the first of a series of papers by leading writers and thinkers, on a subject of vital importance to our homes and our nation—the divorce evil; "Green Acres: An American Ideal," by Lida A. Churchill, an account of a summer meeting place for the spiritually-minded of all nations; "The Danger of Summer Separations," by William George Jordan, a heartfelt, sympathetic talk which will open the eyes of every wife who reads it.

The North American Review for May 17 presents an important and interesting array of contributions to the reader. The instalment of Mark Twain's autobiography contains many passages full of charm and beauty from Susy's biography of her father. Bishop Doane of Albany, in "The Rock' of the Church," assails the doctrine expressed by Professor Charles A. Briggs in a recent number of the Review. W. H. Mallock, in the third of his articles entitled "A Critical Analysis of Socialism," shows the socialistic fallacy of omitting to count the value of organizing skill and directive ability in the production of wealth. In "Our Duty in Cuba," Charles A. Conant recommends a more thorough supervision on the part of the United States of the government of Cuba.

The modern transatlantic steamship has developed of late years into a regular floating palace with all the accessories of an attractive home on shore. In an article on the wondrous transformation of ocean travel printed in the current issue of Leslie's Weekly that sparkling writer, Harriet Quimby, gives interesting details of the improvements, conveniences, and luxuries which are the features of a great passenger liner of the best type. A page of photographs taken aboard one of these magnificent vessels enhances the effects of the verbal description. This is a number marked by abundance of good illustrations. These include front drawing by Frank X. Chamberlain, representing a clash at night between New York harbor police and river thieves; picturesque scenes in Madagascar; glimpses of Cuba's industrial development (with an article on the subject by Mrs. C. R. Miller); a pictorial record of the Old World's doings; photographs of strike scenes in New York and San Francisco; North River shad-fishing views; a page of dramatic pictures; the photo contests, and a variety of other things.

Any one of the four things in the June American Magazine would have made the number a good one. Edwin Lefevre's character sketch of Harriman, Ellis Parker Butler's story of "Wetter New York in 1933," Ray Stannard Baker's account of "The Negro in Southern City Life," or Ida M. Tarbell's story of Grover Cleveland's great fight of 1887.

In the same number the author of "Emmy Lou" tells another Letitia story. Elizabeth Irwin writes of the most famous artists' model in the world, F. Marion Crawford goes on with his serial, and David Grayson writes of "The Tramp" in his "Adventures in Contentment" series.

Other contributors of stories and poems are: M. J. Reynolds, Witter Bynner, Walter A. Frost, Frances Bent Dillingham, Cale Young Rice and Walter Prichard Eaton.

"The Interpreter" talks about Socialism.

Prof. Franklin H. Giddings, who occupies the chair of sociology in Columbia university, has contributed to the June number of the Van Norden Magazine an article of great interest and moment just at this time. In "The Danger in Charitable Trusts" Prof. Giddings takes the ground that the establishment of such great trust funds as the $32,000,000 and $10,000,000 educational trust funds of Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Carnegie and the $10,000,000 charitable fund trust formed by Mrs. Sage are diametrically opposed to the policy fought out hundreds of years ago in Europe, and adopted in our own constitution as axiomatic, forbidding the tying up of estates beyond one generation, and limiting the life of leases.

Annie S. Peck, who recently attempted to conquer Mount Sorata in Peru, writes of the mistakes made by American merchants in not adapting their methods to those in vogue in South America. "Russia's Defiance of the Tzar," a poem by Henry Frank; "Fighting Tuberculosis in New York," by Charles Warne Batting; "A Wall Street Money Lender," by Garet Garrett; "The Tale of the Ticker," a poem by Remsen Crawford; "The World Politics of the Kaiser," by Fritz Morris; "Linking Lake Michigan to the Gulf," by William Trowbridge Larned; "Should Railways Operate Canals?" by Charles H. Cochrane; "Millions in Hidden Reserves," by H. C. Nicholas; "Printing Our Money and Stamps," by Waldon Fawcett; "American Securities in Foreign Markets," by W. J. Boles; "The Hebrew Free Loan," by Maurice Greenberg; "Railroad Passenger Rates," by J. E. Van Dyke; "Why the Railroads Dismissed Their Bankers," by R. L. Barnum, and the usual digest of the month's news in the financial world, are other of the contents.

The trial of W. D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, for complicity in the assassination of Former Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, constitutes one of the most momentous legal battles in the history of American jurisprudence. The full story of the dramatic events leading up to this trial, upon which such vital and momentous issues hang, is graphically reviewed in the current Harper's Weekly, accompanied by some extremely interesting photographs bearing upon the case. Some of the other features of interest in this issue of the Weekly are: The continuation, in an engrossing instalment, of Will N. Harben's admirable new serial, "Mam' Linda;" a full and detailed description of a wonderful new invention—a locomotive that walks a wire; a most amusing and original short story, "The Waterloo at Fort Myer," by Arthur Somers Roche; a description of the remarkable feat involved in moving a great newspaper in a single night; the method of counting China's 400,000,000 of population; and there are additional features, illustrative and pictorial, dealing with current events of interest in various fields of the world's activity.

"Teething" Babies Have No Ills When Properly Nursed

By MRS. MARY E. HOOD.

An ever present anxiety of young mothers after baby is three months old is his teeth. Whenever there is anything the matter, or he whimpers, somebody says warningly: "Teething." As a matter of fact, very often there is no trouble at all when the teeth come and careful attention can almost always prevent even slight illness. Baby should be guarded from cold and strict attention should be given to the diet. These two precautions will save pounds of cures. Also his habits must be regular, otherwise he will get into bad condition and a rise in temperature is likely to ensue.

Any time after three months teeth may appear, and the first first to peep through as a rule, are the two lower front ones. Following these come the two upper teeth. Next are two lower ones either side of those already through, then the upper ones to correspond. Stomach and eye teeth are those baby is most apt to have trouble with.

Although three months is none too early for this stage of development to begin, a young mother must not be worried if there are no signs of teeth for some infants do not begin until the end of the first year, and boys are more backward generally in this respect, as in others, than girls.

Excessive drooling and hardness of the gums are ordinarily the first indications of the presence of teeth. Baby tries usually to chew his little fist, and is not content merely to suck it. Unless there seems to be inflammation and actual hardness to not try to hurry the teething by letting him bite on something, for the teeth will come of their own accord usually, but should either of the conditions already spoken of exist, let him have a smooth, ivory ring. One cannot be too particular about keeping the ring clan. For it may be a collector of germs. I have seen more than one mother, who thought herself particular and cleanly, pick up such an article when it had fallen to the floor, and give it to the tot without first washing.

There are times when lancing the gums is so beneficial and entirely painless that no mother should hesitate in having it done. There is no doubt of the need when it is apparent, for the gums are very much inflamed and swollen and baby has a temperature. In this case, call a physician and let him remove the cause, which is quickly done and relief is immediate.

Though I have said that there may be no trouble at all during the teething period, it is still true that sometimes the little ones are desperately ill at this time, and they are more apt to suffer in warm weather. Change of air is the most beneficial thing that can be done for infants suffering in this way, and, should lack of money or time, prevent one from going out of the city a boat ride is better than staying at home. Those steamers that have upper decks are best, and an infant may be put on a pillow or left in his carriage and spend the whole morning going to and fro over the water. Under no conditions should he be held at such a time, for the warmth of the body is bad for him.

THE PRESIDENT'S MINT.

New York Press: Recent visitors to the White House are satisfied they have discovered the real reason for the exclusion of reporters from the White House grounds in the presence of a luxuriant mint bed bordering the floral semi-circles just below the terrace. Other presidents have made no secret of their liking for the fragrant herb or of the use to which they thought it lent itself most pleasantly, but Cleveland and Arthur, both of whom liked their julep, thought too highly of the properties of mint to trust its rearing to the official gardener; so they got their supplies direct from John Chamberlin.

Mint in the White House grounds is said to be a distinct innovation, and it is a fact that there was none during McKinley's tenancy there, since both to him and to Mrs. McKinley the scent was unpleasant. In these nerve racking days, those who have the moral uplifting of the nation at heart fear the presence of the plant may be a cause of temptation to visitors to the president.

It is in vain they are informed that mint beds are a feature of all Dutch gardens, such as Mrs. Roosevelt has laid out. Mrs. Roosevelt, it should be added, has a taste for Japanese tea, and a sprig of mint is an indispensable part of a perfect brew; but there are fears that the White House men may put the mint to other and less mild uses than that of flavoring tea.

Once in a year you may find a good tenant by chance—through "happenstance." But a Herald want ad. will find him for you at the time you want him.

Commencement Ceremonies Are Only Two Weeks Away.

Some of the Students Who Have Taken Class Honors.

Writers of Five Graduation Night Essays and Their Themes.

The long wintry spring, lasting as it has until within three weeks of graduation time, makes it hard to realize that the glorious day of the sweet girl graduate, the singing of "Alma Mater," the glorious hilarity of class night, and the more serious ceremonies of commencement are all but a scant two weeks away. The days of the class of '07 are truly numbered nevertheless, and the ceremonies which will celebrate their departure from the world of high school life are drawing rapidly nearer.

The class play was only started in motion early this week, and the three scant weeks which remain will be barely sufficient to whip the cast into shape for the production by the hardest kind of work. The selection of the commencement night speakers was also deferred until but a little over a week ago, and the twelve highly honored but none-the-less hard worked students, whose essays were adjudged the best by the faculty committee have a most strenuous two weeks before them.

Add to this the grind of the last two weeks of examination review to which the whole school is subjected, the responsibility of the issuing of the Zenith, which rests heavily upon the shoulders of some of the busiest of the class, and you can get some idea of the strenuous period which is in store for the seniors next week. The examinations for the graduating class come Thursday and Friday of next week, a short and insufficient four days in which to prepare, and the last week, with studies over, will be devoted to the perfection of the graduation program, the junior-senior reception, and the attendant dissipations.

The greatest pleasure has been expressed on all sides concerning the selection made by the committee regarding the commencement night essays. The five young people chosen by Mr. Smith and the English teachers represent the highest literary talent in the class, if not in the school, and the majority of them have distinguished themselves in oratorial and dramatic lines before this.

Marguerite Culkin is one of the most talented elocutionists in the school, and has been a feature on a number of Philomathian and other school programs up to this time. She has worked up her paper, "The Future" as a sort of valedictory and prophecy combined. Miss Culkin is the daughter of W. E. Culkin of Hunters Park.

Evelyn Cash has selected a live, timely and much discussed subject as the topic of her theme, "The Child Labor Problem." The subject is one which would permit of either a sympathetic and touching treatment, or a dispassionate and thoroughly statistical one. The selection of the paper from among the 100 others entered in the competition is a sufficient testimonial for Miss Cash's treatment of the subject. Miss Cash is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cash of 523 West First street.

"Tolstoi, The Idealist of Russia" is the topic chosen by Miss Fern Doremus for her essay. This is a topic which was selected by a large number of the feminine members of the class of '07 and was in fact one of the topics which was most popular. The peasant philosopher seemed to hold some peculiar interest for the graduating girls and the selection of a paper from among so many able competitors is an additional testimonial to the worth and skill of Miss Doremus' treatment of the subject. Miss Doremus is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doremus of 1131 Lake avenue south.

The two boys who were fortunate enough to be chosen for the class night orations are Thomas Manley and Gerald Eddy. Have bravely tackled two of the nation's most pressing problems, and have, according to their views on the subjects and what they have gleaned from careful study of them, set forth answers to them which, in the opinion of the faculty committee, were good enough to merit their being set forth from the rostrum on commencement night.

Thomas Manley has chosen "Our Duties to the Filipinos" as his topic, while Gerald Eddy will talk upon "The Solution of the Negro Problem." Manley is the son of L. B. Manley of 5401 London Road, while Eddy is the son of Mrs. A. B. Eddy and nephew of Principal Scott A. Foster of the Irving school, and resides in West Duluth.

A musical program and the addresses by Principal Smith and Superintendent Denfield will make up the rest of the program on commencement night. Friday evening, June 7th, when the diplomas will be presented to the class and after which some 100 of the students of the high school will be students no more, but full fledged alumni.

On class night, aside from the performers in the class play, who will of course be prominent in the program, two more of the masculine members of the class will be the stars.

J. Edward Cole was chosen by his classmates as the one of their number best fitted to deliver the class oration which has been a feature of the class night programs since graduations began to be celebrated, and which, with the president's address was the only feature of the class night program which was retained when the prophecy, history, and the rest of the old program was dropped two years ago. Mr. Cole's oratoriacal ability is a development of the last year of his high school course, but he has worked up his oration on "The Concentration of Energy" in a way which is sure to do credit to both himself and his class.

Cole has been prominent in athletics since his freshman year, and has held several class offices. He is at present captain of the baseball team, and while chief prowess has been on the diamond, he has held sub-halfback and other substitute positions on the football team on several occasions, and has been prominent on class football teams.

Elmer McDevitt, president of the class of '07 will, of couse, deliver the president's address. "Muck" scarcely needs an introduction. For four years star back on the footbal lteam, catcher on the baseball team, prominent in track work, in short, the best all round athlete the school has ever had, president of his class for two terms, for two years president of the athletic association; he has perhaps been honored more persistently by his classmates than any other student who ever graduated from the school. He has carried his honors easily, however, and bears distinction, rare for a student as prominent in athletics as he, of never having been ruled out of a game on account of having been back in his studies.

FERN DOREMUS,

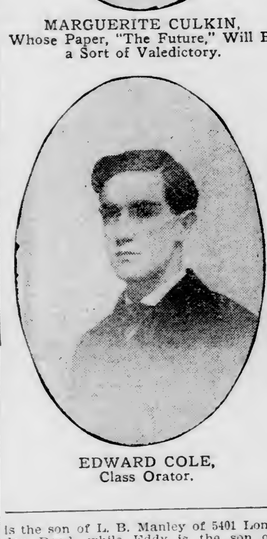
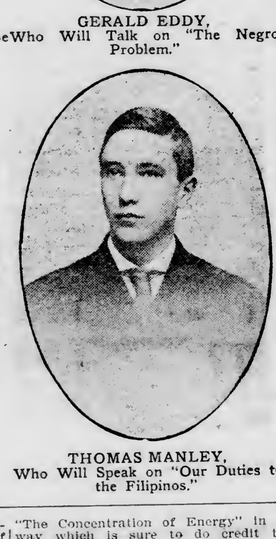
EVELYN CASH,
Who Chose "The Child Labor Problem" as Her Topic.

MARGUERITE CULKIN,
Whose Paper, "The Future," Will Be a Sort of Valedictory.

GERALD EDDY,
Who Will Talk on "The Negro Problem."



EDWARD COLE,
Class Orator.



THOMAS MANLEY,
Who Will Speak on "Our Duties to the Filipinos."

Why Stanton Disliked Grant—Books of Perennial Popularity—William Sage and His New Novel—A Timely Jamestown Romance—The Latest Dictionary—An Author's Versatility.

Gen. Wilson's "Life of Charles A. Dana," published last week, is full of fascinating details regarding the men and events of the past half-century. Here, for instance, is the explanation of why Secretary Stanton always retained somewhat of a dislike to Gen. Grant—a dislike which came through a hasty mistake and a consequent wounding of the war secretary's vanity. That the mistake was Stanton's own, and that it was of a kind to which a man of less self-conceit would have given no attention, made no difference:

"Having reported his arrival at once, Grant received a telegram the next day from Halleck, directing him to proceed to Louisville, where he would meet an officer of the war department with orders and instructions.' As it turned out, the secretary himself was the officer who was to meet Grant, and the first meeting between these distinguished men took place on the morning of Sept. 18, 1863, in the union station at Indianapolis.

"It was not altogether free from embarrassment to Mr. Stanton, who had somewhat impulsively mistaken Dr. Kittoe, the staff surgeon for the general. Trivial as this incident may seem, Dana and the officers present always believed that it produced an unfavorable impression which lasted till the secretary's death. That he was disappointed in the general's appearance and bearing cannot be positively stated, but it is certain they never became devoted friends."

It is interesting to know that, in addition to Dickens and Scott and Shakespeare and Eliot, there are numerous books which retain popularity for decades. The Harpers, for example, find that there is not only a constant demand for their admirable sets of these four great authors, but that other books popular, say, some half-century ago, are still steadily sold.

Such, for instance, are the works of Miss Mulock, especially her "John Halifax, Gentleman;" such as Du Chaillu's "Adventures in Equatorial Africa," and other books; and such are the novels of Charlotte Bronte, which have been in continuous demand ever since publication, particularly her "Jane Eyre."

No variety of fiction causes so great a strain on the author as stories of mystery. The difficulties involved in putting the puzzle together, taking it apart and then putting it together again for the reader's benefit, are enormous. Practiced hand as she is, the problem in "The Mayor's Wife" proved almost too much for Anna Katharine Green. When the labor of composition was over, she found herself on the verge of nervous prostration. She has gone abroad for a long and well-earned rest.

William Sage, whose new novel, "By Right Divine," a vigorous present day romance of love and politics, is soon to be published, says he is a New Englander and is glad of it, as New Englanders should be. Although he now resides in New York city, he spends his summers up among the Presidential range of mountains in New Hampshire, his native state, seeking relaxation and inspiration while living the simple life. His last year's novel, "The District Attorney," displayed his thorough knowledge of financial and political conditions. In "By Right Divine" he deals with the struggle between a United States senator and a young governor for political supremacy in their native state, and is complicated by the love of the senator's daughter for both of the contestants.

Among novels of timely interest on account of the tercentennial of the settlement of Jamestown, is Maud Wilder Goodwin's "The Head of a Hundred," which gives a charming picture of the colony of Virginia in the early seventeenth century. A new dictionary of the French and English languages issued this week with the Baker & Taylor company's imprint has escaped interest inasmuch as it is the latest dictionary of the two languages and is supposed to contain among its 60,000 words all the new ones that have recently established themselves in modern French. J. Mclaughlin, professor of languages at the Institut Commercial de Paris, has compiled, enlarge and revised this work from the well known dictionary of E. Cliffton.

The Spectator, in reviewing "The Golden Hawk," by Edith Rickert, speaks very highly of the book, saying, "Miss Rickert's versality is truly amazing. The scenes of her first book were laid in the Southern states and opened in the cypress swamps of Louisiana. Her second story, 'The Reaper,' was a really remarkable study of life in the Orkneys, while her latest book is a romance of the sun-scorched plains and crags of Provence. But," says the Spectator, "Miss Rickert tiinds herself at home wherever she goes, and in her new volume, dedicated to Mistral, she has given us a modern romance in the picaresque style steeped in the sunshine of Provence and reflecting at every turn the meridonal glamour of the gueuse parfumee."

The third Harvard professor to be designated as exchange professor with the University of Berlin is Prof. William Henry Schofield, head of the department of comparative literature at Harvard. Although a young man, Prof. Schofield has achieved a high reputation among American scholars, and this international recognition of his standing will gratify many Americans. He is the author of "English Literature from the Norman Conquest to Chaucer," which The Macmillan company published last year.

Miss Florence Wilkinson, although she has written three novels, of which "The Silent Door" has just appeared, wishes to be known primarily as a poet. That is why she has allowed so much time to elapse since her last novel, "The Strength of the Hills," was published, and has devoted her time entirely to poetry. She recognizes the fact that it is next to impossible for the writer who has made his reputation by prose fiction, ever to be accepted seriously as a poet. Thomas Hardy and William Dean Howells are cases in point. Miss Wilkinson has wished to establish herself in the minds of poetry lovers, at least, as a poet first and novelist afterwards, and to have her novels judged rather as the work of a poet who has turned to fiction, than her verse, as the casual production of a prose writer. That she has succeeded in this attempt is shown by the fact that most of the reviews of "The Silent Door" have appeared under the heading "Fiction by a Poet."

Among the Magazines.

Where did the moon come from? Was it once a part of this earth? If so, from what part of the earth was it flung off, and where is the scar? That these questions can be answered with scientific accuracy, and that it can positively be shown from what part of this earth's surface the moon was torn, is set forth in a remarkable article by Prof. Pickering, of the Harvard Observatory, in the June number of Harper's Magazine. Another article of distinguished interest is upon Shakespeare's "King Henry IV." For this article, Edwin A. Abbey has painted some most admirable pictures, and the frontispiece of the magazine is one of these paintings, beautifully reproduced in color. The article itself is by Prof. Lewis Campbell, one of the most distinguished of English scholars. Col. William H. Crook, President Lincoln's friend and personal body-guard, contributes another paper on "Lincoln, as I Knew Him," giving deeply interesting descriptions of his daily life. William Dean Howells writes agai nof England; this time of Doncaster and Durham, treating these places with his finest literary charm and skill. An article by Charles Wellington Furlong, illustrated by himself, tells of a visit to Tripoli, and is not only highly interesting, but at the same time is successful in subtly suggesting the mysterious glamour of the land.

A popular and sensonable article in the June Century is Charles D. Stewart's account of "The United States of Baseball," a semi-humorous but careful and detailed narrative of the status of the national game in America; how the major and the minor leagues are made up, and much other information sure to interest intensely all boys and most men. The writer is that man with that quaint touch, the author of "The Fugitive Blacksmith" and "Partners of Providence." A "star article" is a practical discussion by Mme. Melba of "The Gift of Song," her first contribution to the literature of her art. Coming from one of the greatest and certainly the most phenomenal of living singers, this account of her own early struggles, combined with much sound and authoritative advice for ambitious young women, is likely to make a wide appeal. Published now probably for the first time is a letter of Victor Hugo's, forming the leading article of the number, a letter written in response to an inquiry from Count Vitor A. Peps of Italy, as to Hugo's purpose in writing his great romance. This authoritative personal statement of Hugo's object in "Les Miserables" and its relations to social problems has special interest in connection with current social discussion; and to add to this interest are three drawings by Castaigne or scenes in "Les Miserables," two in tint.

The June number of Scribner's Magazine opens with a very characteristic article by F. Hopkinson Smith, describing with zest the adventure of a swirling automobile ride from Dives to the picturesque home of an American painter, Aston Knight, an outdoor man who has achieved wonderful effects in the painting of running water. Knight's method is to put on a pair of waders, and stand in the middle of the stream with his canvas on a ladder. The article is appropriately called "The Man In the High-Water Boots." It is illustrated with some of Knight's pictures, and with photographs. The personality which Mr. Smith puts into the narration is the charm of the article. Another article of the open-air is Henry Van Dyke's "Between the Lapin and the Laurel," which tells of a little journey in the early spring-time down a stream in Southern New Jersey. "The American Osprey As a Guest," by Ernest Harold Baynes, describes the amusing and curious habits of a pair of tame hawks, with many photographs.

J. H. Twells, Jr., is the author of the novel which opens the June number of The Smart Set. The story is entitled, "One Man's Hour," and is a purely romantic tale, full of action and adventure. A young English publisher falls in love with a beautiful American girl and follows her to Paris, where the real story begins. The bewildering incidents which follow should cause the most jaded reader to become enthusiastic. Zona Gale contributes to this issue what is perhaps the most substantial of her fancies and Ettarre stories, entitled "Rosemary for Remembrance." Miss Gale's work has a charm and distinction with which magazine readers are happily familiar. John G. Neihardt, a young Western writer, who is rapidly coming to the front, is again a contributor, this time with a story entitled "The Ancient Memory," a most graphic piece of work. J. Lee Matherson, a hitherto unknown writer, contributes "The Spirit and the Flesh," which is as strong a bit of fiction as will be found in any periodical.

The Woman's Home Companion for June is foreshanded with an article on "The Woman of Millions—How She Could Spend Her Money." This magazine believes that millionairesses, or at least some of them, are willing to follow the lead of Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller in devoting some of their great wealth to practical benevolence, so William H. Allen of the New York Association for the Improvement of the Poor, was asked to tell women with millions just what they could do for their less fortunate fellow-creatures. The result is an able and thoroughly practical article. In the same number Dr. Edward Everett Hale has an editorial describing in his kindly genial manner just what women can do about good government, especially the civic duties connected with schools and libraries. Charles Edward Hooper, who is contributing a series of illustrated articles on building the home, describes the practical side of the house and what should be considered by prospective home builders to make the dwelling comfortable as well as beautiful.

"Silk Stockings and Morality," by Anne Annis, is the attractive title of the novelette opening Youth's Magazine for June. Silk stockings and morality in the possession of a poor but charming girl artist seem absurdly inconsistent to the provincial young millionaire, who is ensnared by her beauty. Of the latter he is sure, by fleeting glimpses—they're red-gold, to match her hair—and he proceeds therefore on the theory of an utter absence of the ethical quality. Only when he meets with a complete rout by the horrified girl, does he become convinced of the falsity of his deductions.

Meanwhile there has appeared another millionaire, of broader insight, and a mightily interesting, three-cornered romance is developed. Scintillant with wit and repartee, laid in a prim, country town where the artist girl and her New York studio friends import a Bohemian atmosphere that makes the townspeople sit up and rub their eyes, the story justifies its epigrammatic title.

Rose Tressy, the artist, is a flesh and blood girl, altogether adorable, while her staid chum, the latter's fiance, a lively, irrepressible, young New Yorker, and the rival millionaires, make a group of story people delightful to meet and whose gay company one leaves with regret.

Transatlantic Tales for June contains a complete novel by Rene Bazin, of the French academy, entitled "The Dying Land," which appeared in France under the title "La Terre qui Meure." In this tremendously strong story of the marshlands of Lower Brittany a vital presentation of the forces that are depopulating the land itself and crowding humanity into the cities is interwoven with a charming love-story. It is of particular interest to Americans from the fact that many portions of our own country are suffering from the same depopulating influences. Among the writers who furnish the short stories in this number are Anatole Le Braz, Marcel Prevost, Catulle Mendes, Antonio Fogazzaro, Anton Chekhov, Pedro de Alarcon, Ottilie Bondy, etc. The poems are by Gustavo Becquer and Sully Prudhomme.

The People's Magazine for June contains a little story by Henry Alford, entitled "The Dago," which, at this time of agitation against a certain class of Italian immigrants, seems especially significant. "The Dago" shows how a naturalized Italian befriends a native-born American. The dago, who is the hero of the story, is a character that might be met with in almost any large town in the United States, for he is an Italian barber, Mr Alford's little story is well worth reading, and furnishes food for reflection.

It is, however, only one of twenty-odd stories which make up the June issue of the People's Magazine, there being included a complete novel and a novelette.

The leading article in the June number of House and Garden is from the pen of Mary Hodges. The writer deals delightfully with her subject, "Ashland Past and Present," once the home of Kentucky's greatest statesman, Henry Clay, and now occupied by his direct descendants. The view of the house, as it was in the days of Mr. Clay and as it is at the present time, are extremely interesting, for today as in the long past, "Ashland" stands as a type of all that is best in a Kentucky bluegrass estate and home. There are few house gardens where the rose is not in pronounced evidence, John M. Hall sets forth in a brief way very explicit instructions upon their planting and care. The detail entered into by him makes success certain, if his suggestions are observed.

Ainslee's for June carries a list of nine short stories, which is rather unique. To collect that number of a quality so high and a type so diversified is something of a feat in magazine-making and one that deserves attention. A story of the West by Roy Norton, one of child interest by Marion Hill, one of the detective type by Robert E. MacAlarney, a humorous story, one at which the reader must laugh, whatever his mood, by F. Walworth; one of intense emotional interest by H. F. Prevost-Bierrsby, and others by Owen Oliver, H. B. Marriott Watson, Zona Gale, and Elizabeth Banks, all the best work of these authors, make a remarkable combination.

One of the features of the June issue of the Popular Magazine is the opening installment of a new serial by W. B. M. Ferguson, whose "Garrison's Finish," published originally in the Popular and later in book form, was so widely read. The new serial, as it is called, is the story of a man whose early life is clouded, in mystery, but who gets a grip on the memory in the back of his brain when, after a fracas terminating in a tragedy, he is offered a military captaincy in the little firebrand kingdom of Zollenstein—the bone of contention between Germany and France. He is only a pawn on the royal chessboard, but the pawn develops potentialities undreamed of, and the series of the most amazing exploits follows. The story begins in the June number of the Popular, and will be complete in five issues.

All the world loves a wedding, to paraphrase, and The Housekeeper for June is full of all sorts of hints for that most important occasion. "Phyllis, Her Golden Wedding" is a delightful poem by John Kendrick Bangs; "On the Training of a Husband," by Emily Ruth Calvin, ought to be read by both man and maid as the secrets are applicable for both; and there are special hints for the wedding breakfast by Mary Foster Snider and for the wedding dinner by Elizabeth W. Morrison. In fiction the number is particularly strong. "The Gift," by J. J. Bell, the author of Wee MacGregor, is a story above the average. "In the Sweet of the Year," by L. M. Montgomery, is a delightful love story of the old-fashioned kind. A rollicking Irish story is "The Curse of King O'Brien," by Arthur Upson.

The May number of The Writer (Boston) is full of practical suggestions for literary workers. Are American men losing their chivalry and consideration for women? Is it a fact that it is not so safe for a young woman to travel uncheperoned in the United States as it was a few years ago? The freedom that our girls enjoy has been a matter of comment for a long time. If it is true that we are in danger of losing one of our national characteristics and approximating a European standard in this regard we have something else to worry about besides the growth of corporations and the railroad question. In the number of Smith's Magazine now on the newsstands Miss Annette Austin raises the question, and then answers it in the best way possible. She tells some of the experiences that actually befell a girl who traveled alone. The girl was a typical American from the Southwest, and came to New York as a bread-winner. Aside from the interest in the question involved, the narrative has a distinct charm and attraction of its own from the story-interest. It is well worth reading. In the same number of the magazine there is a complete novellette by Louise Driscoll which will attract more than passing attention. It tells the story of a family suddenly grown rich and a girl suddenly grown poor who is engaged to teach them the ways of the world of wealth.

The Broadway Magazine for June has a striking article, "The Menace of the Race Track," by Richard Spillane. Another notable article is "The Luxury of the Modern Hotel," by Anne O'Hagan, while Allen Johnston in answer to the question, "What is the Matter With Wall Street" These articles are lavishly illustrated and are cited as specimens of the splendid contents of this excellent magazine which is growing better with every number.

In the New England Magazine for June, "Galveston, an Epitome of American Pluck," by Frank Putnam, is the story of the indomitable energy of the citizens of that far southern city, in rebuilding after the waste of the tidal wave of seven years ago. "A New England Architect and His Work," by Oscar Fay Adams, relates how a Boston architect has made Christian Science famous through the designing and building of its unique and wonderful temple and tells of the work of the same man in the Rogers memorials at Fairhaven, the remodeling of the Massachusetts state house and many other buildings of great architectural excellence. Fiction holds a prominent place in the New England for June. Holman Day's exciting story of the battles of lumber barons in the wild lands of Maine is continued with an installment entitled, "In the Barony of Stumpage John." Lumber camp philosophy, ethics, and the grapple of two men's souls in the wilderness carries the story on in a series of vivid climaxes. "An Intervention of Providence," by Gilbert Coleman is a pretty story of a romantic chance meeting that ends in a love match. "The Unfinished Flag," by Kenrick Ferris is a tale of pathos and devotion, and "Lamey Daisy M. D." by Mary Agnes Griffin, and "Mrs. Blunt's Rebellion," by Harriet A. Nash, are at once humorous, quaint and appealing.

The June issue of the 10-Story Book contains the usual content of ten clever stories, including "Fooling With Fire," by Eben E. Murray Hill," by Thomas Topham Grimshaw; "The Jack of Hearts," by Richard Brannstein; "The Nihilist of Kikansk," by L. B. Kinder; "The Curse of the Skin Purse," by Lucy A. Drew; "The Downfall of the Roxmore Club," by Robert Carlton Brown, and "The Woman Who Confessed," by Nellie Cravey Gillmore. The short story masterpiece is Bret Harte's famous sketch, "The Outcasts of Poker Flat." The favorite poem is Ella Wheeler Wilcox's "Communism."

In the June Delineator are many interesting articles, including: "Smart Millinery for Summer Days," two pages of bewitching hats sketched by Carl Rheinschmidt from original models and accompanied by helpful descriptions of colors and materials; "The Dress of Paris," by Edouard La Fontaine, the latest ideas of famous modistes, the little touches which make a gown original and artistic, and the names of the new materials are all to be found in this article; "The Marital Unrest," by Caroline Duer, the first of a series of papers by leading writers and thinkers, on a subject of vital importance to our homes and our nation—the divorce evil; "Green Acres: An American Ideal," by Lida A. Churchill, an account of a summer meeting place for the spiritually-minded of all nations; "The Danger of Summer Separations," by William George Jordan, a heart-to-heart, sympathetic talk which will open the eyes of every wife who reads it.

The North American Review for May 17 presents an important and interesting array of contributions to the reader. The instalment of Mark Twain's autobiography contains many passages full of charm and beauty from Shea's biography of her father. Bishop Doane of Albany, in "The Rock' of the Church," assails the doctrine expressed by Professor Charles A. Briggs in a recent number of the Review. W. H. Mallock, in the third of his articles entitled "A Critical Analysis of Socialism," shows the socialistic fallacy of omitting to count the value of organizing skill and directive ability in the production of wealth. In "Our Duty in Cuba," Charles A. Conant recommends a more thorough supervision on the part of the United States of the government of Cuba.

The modern transatlantic steamship has developed of late years into a resplendent floating palace with all the accessories of an attractive home on shore. In an article on the wondrous transformation of ocean travel printed in the current issue of Leslie's Weekly that sparkling writer, Harriet Quimby, gives interesting details of the improvements, conveniences, and luxuries which are the features of a great passenger liner of the best type. A page of photographs taken aboard one of these magnificent vessels enhances the effects of the verbal description. This is a number marked by abundance of good illustrations. These include front drawing by Frank X. Chamberlain, representing a clash at night between New York harbor police and river thieves; picturesque scenes in Madagascar; glimpses of Cuba's industrial development (with an article on the subject by Mrs. C. R. Miller); a pictorial record of the Old World's doings; photographs of strike scenes in New York and San Francisco; North River shad-fishing views; a page of dramatic pictures; the photo contests, and a variety of other things.

Any one of the four things in the June American Magazine would have made the number a good one: Edwin Lefevre's character sketch of Harriman, Ellis Parker Butler's story of "Wetter New York In 1913," Ray Stannard Baker's account of "The Negro in Southern City Life," or Ida M. Tarbell's story of Grover Cleveland's great fight of 1887.

In the same number the author of "Emmy Lou" tells another Letitia story. Elizabeth Irwin writes of the most famous artists' model in the world. F. Marion Crawford goes on with his serial, and David Grayson writes of "The Tramp" in his "Adventures in Contentment" series.

Other contributors of stories and poems are: M. J. Reynolds, Witter Bynner, Walter A. Frost, Frances Bent Dillingham, Cale Young Rice and Walter Prichard Eaton.

"The Interpreter" talks about Socialism.

Prof. Franklin H. Giddings, who occupies the chair of sociology in Columbia university, has contributed to the June number of the Van Norden Magazine an article of great interest and timeliness at this time. In "The Danger in Charitable Trusts" Prof. Giddings takes the ground that the establishment of such great trust funds as the $32,000,000 and $10,000,000 educational trust funds of Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Carnegie and the $10,000,000 charitable fund trust formed by Mrs. Sage are diametrically opposed to the policy fought out hundreds of years ago in Europe, and adopted in our own constitution as axiomatic, forbidding the tying up of estates beyond one generation, and limiting the life of leases.

Annie S. Peck, who recently attempted to conquer Mount Sorata in Peru, writes of the mistakes made by American merchants in not adapting their methods to those in vogue in South America. "Russia's Defiance of the Czar," a poem by Henry Frank; "Fighting Tuberculosis in New York," by Charles Warne Batting; "A Wall Street Money Lender," by Garet Garrett; "The Tale of the Ticker," a poem, by Remsen Crawford; "The World Politics of the Kaiser," by Fritz Morris; "Linking Lake Michigan to the Gulf," by William Trowbridge Larned; "Should Railways Operate Canals?" by Charles H. Cochrane; "Millions in Hidden Reserves," by H. C. Nicholas; "Printing Our Money and Stamps," by Waldon Fawcett; "American Securities in Foreign Markets," by W. J. Boies; "The Hebrew Free Loan," by Maurice Greenberg; "Railroad Passenger Rates," by J. E. Van Dyke; "Why the Railroads Dismissed Their Bankers," by R. L. Barnum, and the usual digest of the month's news in the financial world, are other of the contents.

The trial of W. D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, for complicity in the assassination of Former Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, constitutes one of the most momentous legal battles in the history of American jurisprudence. The full story of the dramatic events leading up to this trial, upon which such vital and momentous issues hang, is graphically reviewed in the current Harper's Weekly, accompanied by some extremely interesting photographs bearing upon the case. Some of the other features of interest in this issue of the Weekly are: The continuation, in an engrossing installment, of Will N. Harben's admirable new serial, "Mam' Linda;" a full and detailed description of a wonderful new invention—a locomotive that walks a wire; a most amusing and original short story, "The Waterloo at Fort Myer," by Arthur Somers Roche; a description of the remarkable feat involved in moving a great newspaper in a single night; the method of counting China's 400,000,000 of population; and there are additional features, illustrative and pictorial, dealing with current events of interest in various fields of the world's activity.

"Teething" Babies Have No Ills When Properly Nursed

By MRS. MARY E. HOOD.

An ever present anxiety of young mothers after baby is three months old is his teeth. Whenever there is anything the matter, or he whimpers, somebody says warningly: "Teething." As a matter of fact, very often there is no trouble at all when the teeth come and careful attention can almost always prevent even slight illness. Baby should be guarded from cold and strict attention should be given to the diet. These two precautions will save pounds of cures. Also his habits must be regular, otherwise he will get into bad condition and a rise in temperature is likely to ensue.

Any time after three months teeth may appear, and the first first to peep through as a rule, are the two lower front ones. Following these come the two upper teeth. Next are two lower ones either side of those already through, then the upper ones to correspond. Stomach and eye teeth are those baby is most apt to have trouble with.

Although three months is none too early for this stage of development to begin, a young mother must not be worried if there are no signs of teeth for some infants do not begin until the end of the first year, and boys are more backward generally in this respect, as in others, than girls.

Excessive drooling and hardness of the gums are ordinarily the first indications of the presence of teeth. Baby tries usually to chew his little fist, and is not content merely to suck it. Unless there seems to be inflammation and actual hardness to not try to hurry the teething by letting him bite on something, for the teeth will come of their own accord usually, but should either of the conditions already spoken of exist, let him have a smooth, ivory ring. One cannot be too particular about keeping the ring clan. For it may be a collector of germs. I have seen more than one mother, who thought herself particular and cleanly, pick up such an article when it had fallen to the floor, and give it to the tot without first washing.

There are times when lancing the gums is so beneficial and entirely painless that no mother should hesitate in having it done. There is no doubt of the need when it is apparent, for the gums are very much inflamed and swollen and baby has a temperature. In this case, call a physician and let him remove the cause, which is quickly done and relief is immediate.

Though I have said that there may be no trouble at all during the teething period, it is still true that sometimes the little ones are desperately ill at this time, and they are more apt to suffer in warm weather. Change of air is the most beneficial thing that can be done for infants suffering in this way, and, should lack of money or time, prevent one from going out of the city a boat ride is better than staying at home. Those steamers that have upper decks are best, and an infant may be put on a pillow or left in his carriage and spend the whole morning going to and fro over the water. Under no conditions should he be held at such a time, for the warmth of the body is bad for him.

THE PRESIDENT'S MINT.

New York Press: Recent visitors to the White House are satisfied they have discovered the real reason for the exclusion of reporters from the White House grounds in the presence of a luxuriant mint bed bordering the floral semi-circles just below the terrace. Other presidents have made no secret of their liking for the fragrant herb or of the use to which they thought it lent itself most pleasantly, but Cleveland and Arthur, both of whom liked their julep, thought too highly of the properties of mint to trust its rearing to the official gardener; so they got their supplies direct from John Chamberlin.

Mint in the White House grounds is said to be a distinct innovation, and it is a fact that there was none during McKinley's tenancy there, since both to him and to Mrs. McKinley the scent was unpleasant. In these nerve racking days, those who have the moral uplifting of the nation at heart fear the presence of the plant may be a cause of temptation to visitors to the president.

It is in vain they are informed that mint beds are a feature of all Dutch gardens, such as Mrs. Roosevelt has laid out. Mrs. Roosevelt, it should be added, has a taste for Japanese tea, and a sprig of mint is an indispensable part of a perfect brew; but there are fears that the White House men may put the mint to other and less mild uses than that of flavoring tea.

Once in a year you may find a good tenant by chance—through "happenstance." But a Herald want ad. will find him for you at the time you want him.

COURTHOUSE SITE NOW CLEARED; READY FOR THE NEW BUILDING

SITE OF THE NEW COURTHOUSE.

Although the new courthouse site in the east half of the block, bounded by First and Second streets and Fourth and Fifth avenues west, has been cleared of its buildings with the exception of one house, which is now in the process of being removed, the building plans are no nearer being put in operation than they were some months ago.

The county has purchased a site for its proposed new courthouse and there is money enough in the courthouse sinking fund to begin the construction work, but there is, as yet, no courthouse commission, an organization which under the law, if it is constitutional, must supervise the construction.

The supreme court held that the first commission, the members of which were appointed by the judges of the district court, was not a legal organization, although the commission had employed an architect, and considerable progress had been made in the way of preparing plans for a building. The work had gone forward to a point where test pitting had been done on the property with a view of getting an approximate idea of the rock work necessary in the excavation before calling for bids, but the supreme court ruling stopped everything at that point.

As soon as the new law was passsed delagating the appointive power to the chairman of the county board, Chairman Patterson reappointed all of the old members of the courthouse commission with the exception of one that could not now qualify, having ceased to be a member of the county board. When the last appointments were made it is said to have been the understanding that the new organization would be practically the same as the old, but there are rumors that some of the appointees object to this understanding, and, by reason of the little friction said to exist there has been only one acceptance filed to date.

One informal meeting of the men appointed to the commission has been held, but no definite results have yet been shown.

Whether the men appointed intend to serve on the commission seems to be a matter of some doubt and a great many complaints are being made by taxpayers over the delay. It has been suggested that if any of those appointed do not intend to serve, it is up to them to say so and the chairman of the county board could then go ahead and make other appointments.

DIP IN HILLS THROUGH WHICH NEW RAILROAD MAY ENTER THE CITY

WHITE CROSS MARKS GULLY THROUGH WHICH RAILROAD MAY COME.

One of the familiar landmarks in the western end of the city of Duluth is the big gap in the line of hills which extend back of the city from Lakeside to New Duluth.

The break is really a ravine extending back into the country for some distance. It has been before the public eye quite prominently of late by reason of the rumor that the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg Railway company will enter Duluth by a line coming through the break in the hills. This rumor has been strengthened by the report that the railway company has acquired the Merritt homestead comprising about seven or eight acres on the hillside in Oneota, just below the ravine, which lies north of Fortieth avenue west.

The picture herewith shown, with the gap marked by a cross, was taken by The Herald staff photographer with a telescope camera, from West Third street, or Grand avenue, at a distance of two miles or more from the break in the hills.

The first survey of a railway line through the gap from Duluth to the iron ranges, is said to have been made years ago by the Merritts.

DULUTH STREET RAILWAY COMPANY BRINGS SEVEN NEW CARS TO CITY

UNLOADING ONE OF THE NEW CARS.

The ingenuity of modern mechanics in the handling of heavy bodies was aptly illustrated in this city this week, when the Duluth street railway received, at Thirty-seventh avenue west and Oneota street, seven of the fifteen new double truck cars that were ordered for the service here, and which were loaded onto, and unloaded from, railroad flat cars by their own power.

It is not so many years ago when new cars for the street railway service were received with their motor equipment not attached, and considerable trouble and expense were incurred, both in loading and unloading them. The work would have been even more difficult by the old methods, in this instance, for the new cars weigh about twenty-five tons each, and the work of getting them off the flat cars and onto the street railway tracks without some damage would have been a nice engineering feat.

The seven cars now stored in the company's barns at Twenty-sixth avenue west were run out of the Twin City Rapid Transit company's shops at St. Paul, fully equipped and ready for service. Inclined tracks were prepared, and with their own power the cars were run on the flat cars and securely blocked for transportation to Duluth.

The Duluth Street Railway company has a spur track to the Northern Pacific switch tracks at Thirty seventh avenue west, and when the flats carrying the seven new cars were run on the switch track, an inclined track was laid upon a pile of ties at the end of the flat. The circuit was completed by touching one of the rails of the street railway company and one of the wheels of the car with a long metal bar, the current was thrown on and the big double truck car ran off the floor of the flat car on to the rails of the inclined track down to the car tracks.

The operation was a comparatively short one, only a few men being required on the work.

The arrival of the first installment of the new cars is an event of great interest to the people of Duluth, showing as it does the company's avowed intention of making extensive improvements in its car service at the Head of the Lakes.

The new vehicles are the latest and best types of street cars to be found anywhere in this or other countries. They have been constructed along lines advocated by the Master Car Builders' association, and are claimed to combine convenience and comfort of travel with strength and utility. Generally speaking, the last consignment of cars has been constructed very much along the line of railroad coaches, steel frames replacing the former wood construction used in the earlier make of cars.

The new cars are numbered from 183 to 189 inclusive and the first three are likely to make their first appearance on the Woodland and Hunter's Park line either today or Sunday.

The length over all of each of the new cars is forty-six feet, seven and one-holf inches, or about two feet greater length than the other double truck cars.

The width is nine feet, three and one-quarter inches, as compared with a width of eight feet and ten inches in the old double truck cars. The extra width is noticeable in the wider aisles, giving the interior of the cars a roomier appearance.

The bottom of the car, and extending up the sides nearly to the window sills, is constructed of steel plates, by reason of which the walls of the new cars are not as thick as those of the wood construction, another saving of room for the interior.

The aisles are twenty-eight and one-half inches wide, or exactly eight and one-half inches wider than those in the other double truck cars. Inside the car, from side to side the width is eight feet, three and one-half inches, as compared with seven feet, eight inches in the other cars. The interior is handsome, with its cherry finish. The cross seats are each thirty-five inches wide and all the seats are rattan covered. The cars have hot water heat.

A striking feature of the new cars is the depth of the front and rear vestibules, which are five feet and three inches, as compared with four feet and nine inches in the old cars. It is claimed that twenty-five people can stand in the rear vestibule without overcrowding. The cars have the latest style of air brake, made by the General Electric company, where the older cars have the Christenson air brake. The brakes are inside, hung on all eight wheels of the car, similar to the brakes on a locomotive, where the brakes on the older cars are on the outside. It is claimed that there is a greater resistance, and less wear on the brake shoes by the new construction. The trucks were manufactured by the Baldwin Locomotive works, according to the plans recommended by the Master Car Builders' association. The trucks are attached by a pivot, which permits of the running of the car around the sharpest curves to be found on the local company's lines. The springs are so arranged as to minimize any jars at curves or any uneven spots in the tracks.

The cars are equipped with four of the General Electric company's motors, of forty-horse power each. Each wheel is a driver, a feature that means much when there is snow on the tracks.

The air tank, automatic governor, the lightning arrester and the set of resistance are all located under the car floor. The compressor is manufactured by the General Electric company and the pressure is maintained at from eighty to 100 pounds.

Conspicuous in the new cars is the following sign:

"Please press the button one block before the desired stop. Move to the rear door and be ready to get off when the car stops, thereby shortening delays and accommodating passengers whose destinations are beyond."

BUG IN HER EAR.

New York Press: Miss Nellie Flynn, a clerk in a dry goods store in Lockport, has in a peculiar manner overcome a severe pain in her head from which she had suffered for several years. All efforts to alleviate it had been futile. The other day she felt a relief in her head where the pain was most severe, and, feeling something loose in her ear, had one of the other clerks in the store look into it.

She saw an insect, and it was alive. Out dropped the flying animal, the size of an ordinary fly, and with its removal the pain stopped. Miss Flynn remembers that twelve years ago, while spending a summer vacation at Thousand Islands, in Canada, an insect had flown in her car. She went to a physician, but he could not get it out. An ear specialist was called in, but he was also unsuccessful.

She believes the insect crawled in as far as it could get and has been bothering her ever since. Many nights she has been kept awake by the burring of the insect.

TRAVEL OF A TEACHER.

Philadelphia Record: Milan Walker, son of ex-Sheriff Miles Walker of Center county, who last June graduated from the Bellefonte high school, just closed his first term of teaching school, and with it he has made quite a record.

His school was at Rock Forge, which is seven miles from Bellefonte, preferring to board at home, he walked these fourteen miles each day, with the exception of fourteen trips which he made on a bicycle. The distance covered during the term was 2,156 miles, and, taking from that the 560 miles which he traveled on his "bike," leaves 1,590 miles which he walked. He left Bellefonte early in the morning, and quite often the thermometer registered 10 to 14 degs. below zero. In addition he broke his way through the snow to the schoolhouse and made fire, having the room warm before school was called at 9 o'clock.

RAILROAD MEN WILL HOLD BIG GATHERING ON JUNE 29

Plans for Annual Meeting of the G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. Club.

Members Will Take Trip to Isle Royale This Year.

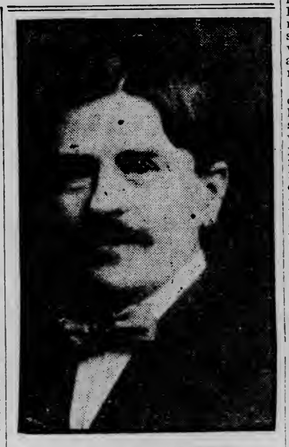
June 29, is the date decided upon for the annual meeting of the G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. club, members of which will gather in force in Duluth for a good time this year. At first it was planned to have the gathering occur in July, but much better arrangements could be made for securing a boat for the Isle Royale trip in June than at a later date, and those having the affair in charge came to the conclusion that they would trust to luck and the weather man, and pull the meeting off next month.

Last year a three-day northeaster marred the pleasure of the railroaders to some extent, but did not spoil their good time by any means. Men in the railroad business are accustomed to meeting so many adversities that a little thing like rain and cold weather is not sufficient to prevent their having fun when they set out to have it, but the plans of entertainment were disarranged last year, the gathering being held in the stormy month of June, and it was decided to arrange for a later date in 1907, on the chance that better weather would prevail.

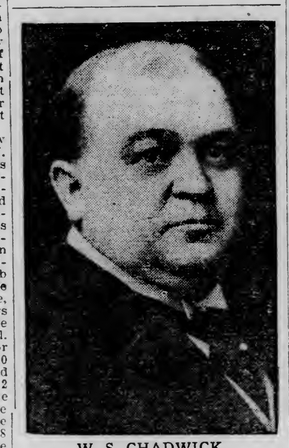
Everybody in Duluth should know by this time that G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. stands for "Get as Much Business as You Can club." W. S. Chadwick, ticket agent at the Union depot, started the organization, and its charter members were all passenger men. Later its horizon was extended to take in freight and operating officials, as well as certain departments of the steamboat business. The sole purpose of the club is to get the members together once a year in Duluth for a good time, and at the two previous meetings this purpose was accomplished to the satisfaction of everybody concerned.

The program of entertainment for June 29, is a boulevard drive at 10 o'clock in the morning, a trip around the horn in the afternoon at 2 o'clock, a banquet at 6 o'clock at the Spalding, and a side trip to Isle Royale for those who want it. The boat will leave Duluth between 8 and 9 o'clock, and will return the morning of July 1. Flaaten's Third Regiment band will be along on the horn trip, and his orchestra will be taken along on the boat to Isle Royale. The members who do not go to the island will visit the White City Sunday, June 30. The membership of the club is now about 500, and probably 250 will attend the meeting. For the first time in the history of the club, members have been invited to bring their wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts along, and the local committee already has assurance that a number of the outsiders are going to take advantage of the invitation. Duluth women will assist their husbands in seeing that the visiting ladies are properly entertained. They will be specially invited to go along on the trip to Isle Royale.

W. H. Northmore, division freight and passenger agent of the Booth line, is president of the club, and W. S. Chadwick is secretary. Mr. Northmore yesterday announced the appointment of the following men to act as chairmen of committees to arrange for the coming event, committee members to act with them to be appointed by the chairmen later on: Reception, Mart Adson, general passenger agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway; banquet, C. L. Kennedy, commercial agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; lake excursion, A. E. Hathaway, city passenger and ticket agent of the Great Northern; boulevard drive, General Agent Sherwood of the Wisconsin Central.



W. H. NORTHMORE,
President of the Club, and Division Freight and Passenger Agent of the Booth Line.



W. S. CHADWICK,
Union Depot Ticket Agent, Father of the Club and Its Present Secretary.

IS A MOUNTAIN OF MARBLE

Colorado Has a Deposit That Rivals Quarries of Carrara---Dormant Wealth Soon Will be Reached by Railways.

"I see an angel in it," is the poetic exclamation attributed to Michael Angelo, on coming across a rough but flawless block of marble. Had he seen Treasury mountain in Colorado, no doubt his imagination would have peopled it with all the hosts of heaven—for it is a mountain of marble, as pure and free from flaw as any that ever came from Parian, Pentelic or Carraran quarries. It is not angels, however, nor anything else so unsubstantial, that the materialistic imagination of today beholds in the marble of Treasury mountain. It is money—hard, glittering coin, such as everyone is hustling after. From this sordid viewpoint the marble mountain contains enough potential wealth to make Rockefeller's savings seem paltry, pay off the national debt, dig the Panama canal, build a new navy and defray the expenses of the Thaw murder trial.

The town of Marble is nestled on the west slope of the Rocky mountains, in Gunnison county, Colo., forty-five miles from Glenwood Springs. Hitherto it has been but a sleepy mountain hamlet, but it is now the scene of unwonted activity of the workmen, who are opening up what are believed to be the world's greatest marble deposits.

The marble deposits of Gunnison county have been long known and have frequently been examined by scientific men and others. Their value has been fully appreciated for years, but the long distance of nearly fifty miles to railroad transportation made it impracticable for anyone to engage in quarrying operations. However, the railroad is approaching the town at last, and by the middle of June or the first of July at the latest, the Crystal River & San Juan line will be completed, with its terminus at Marble. The wealth that lies dormant along Crystal river and its tributaries will then be readily available

In anticipation of the early completion of the railroad, one company already has many thousands of tons of marble quarried and contracted for, ready for shipment as soon as the railroad is ready to receive freight. Numerous other mineral claims have been taken up in the neighborhood, so that it is likely that this will soon become one of the most important marble producing districts in the United States.

Few persons appreciate the extent and importance of the marble producing business of today. For monumental purposes, marble has been largely supplanted by granite, for the reason that granite will hold its polish indefinitely under all sorts of weather conditions, while the ordinary grades of marble will not. For the making of statuary, the finest grade of pure white marble obtainable is required, this coming from the celebrated quarries of Carrara, Italy. It is for structural purposes, interior finish and decoration, and furniture making that marble finds its greatest field of usefulness. For building purposes, it is not merely the most beautiful, but also one of the most durable of all materials, withstanding with little injury a degree of heat that disintegrates granite. The Parthenon, at Athens, was built of Pentellic marble, to which is due the fact that that noble specimen of classic architecture still survives. For structural purposes, New York city uses an average of 1,000 cubic feet of marble every day; and the daily consumption of the entire country is estimated at not less than 20,000 cubic feet, or more than 7,000,000 cubic feet each year. The amount of marble used annually in the United States has doubled every five years for the last quarter of a century. To meet this rapidly multiplying demand the great quarries of Vermont, Massachusetts, New York, Tennessee, Georgia and other states have long been taxed to their utmost capacity.

Three miles south of the town of Marble, on the steep sides of Treasury mountain, have been opened what are expected to develop into the world's greatest marble quarries, on the banks of a mountain torrent, known as Yule creek, fed by the melting snows far above. The deposits can easily be worked from open cuts just above the level of a branch railroad that will be built up Yule creek. The blocks of marble will then be lowered to the railroad, instead of having to be hoisted from the bottoms of deep pits by means of expensive machinery, as in the case of most of the great marble quarries of the East and South. Some of the quarries of Vermont, Massachusetts and New York are several hundred feet deep, involving great labor and expense to get the huge blocks to the surface. Near the quarries are always extensive plants in which the blocks of rough marble from the quarries are sawed into the sizes desired by the purchasers. Much of it is cut into thin slabs, for wainscoating, mantels, table tops and similar purposes; or into oblong blocks, to be turned into columns, pillars or the shafts of monuments. Polishing and ornamentation are rarely done at the quarries, this being left for the marble cutters of the localities in which the material is to be used.

The outcome of marble on Treasury mountain is traceable along the surface for many miles, showing that a large part of the bulk of the mountain is composed of this material. Where it outcrops on the surface, the action of wind, rain and frost has given it a rough, granular appearance, and this surface portion is valueless. At a depth of four or five feet, however, it is found to be hard, solid and crystalline. So far as explored, the deposits have been determined to be more than 700 feet in depth in successive layers or strata that show a great variation in grain, texture and coloring, adapting the material to many different uses. Some of the strata are coarse and of comparative little value. Others are suitable only for building purposes. Some are admirably adapted to the uses of the furniture maker, or for monumental use, and one thick stratum near the bottom is said to be entirely composed of the finest grade of white statuary marble. Nor are the colors less diversified than the qualities, ranging from pure white to pure black, with various shades of green and gray, and strata beautifully grained and mottled.

Marble is nothing more nor less than crystallized limestone. It is to the fact that it is composed of countless multitudes of tiny crystals that it owes much of its beauty. Vermont supplies 80 per cent of all employed for monumental purposes, and Georgia most of the remainder. The most famous of the Vermont quarries are located at West Rutland, Proctor and Brandon, where some of the finer grades are taken from a depth of more than 400 feet. At Lee and Pittsfield, Mass., also, some of the best grades of white marble are secured. The greater part of the colored marble used for interior finish, mantles and furniture tops are secured in Tennessee, the most important shipping points being located near Knoxville. For structural work, large quantities of this material are obtained from St. Lawrence and Westphalia counties, New York; from Pickens county, Georgia, and from the neighborhood of Cockeysville, Md. Practically all of the white marble used in recent years for statuary purpose has been obtained from the famous quarries of Carrara, Italy. Select specimens of Colorado marble have have been submitted to many to many American and foreign sculptors, all of whom have pronounced it in no way inferior to the best products of Carrara. Other famous marbles are those of the Island of Paros and Mount Pentelacus, but now rarely employed, because the deposits are practically exhausted.

Figures are entirely inadequate to give an idea of the amount of marble contained in the rugged sides of Treasury mountain, but they will help. There are 43,560 square feet in one acre. Multiplying this by the depth to which the marble beds have been examined, 723 feet, we find that one superficial acre of Treasury mountain contains 31,493,280 cubic feet, or 2,624,470 tons. One acre, therefore, is capable of supplying all the marble used in the world for years. Yet there are tens of thousands of acres in this mountain, and the deposits may extend to several times the depth to which they have been proved.

MIXED.

Chicago Tribune: At the Easter service in one of the churches little Esther, aged 4, was to recite a verse, the first line of which read, "Christ is risen, this is Easter." Although she had learned her little part well, she became embarrassed when before the people and said, in all earnestness, "Jesus Christ, this is Christmas."

SAVED HIM MONEY.

New York Press: Frank Eddy used to have a friend who never was known to stand treat to anything—neither dinner, drinks, cigars, theater nor opera. One day, meeting him by chance, he said earnestly:

"Just the man I want to see, Charley. If you want to make a little money right quick I've got a good investment."

All eagerness, Charley wanted to know everything, but Eddy whispered: "It isn't safe to speak of a matter of this kind in a public street; where can we go and talk privately?

"Why let us step into this cafe and have a drink and a chat."

"Good enough." Two whiskies were ordered and disposed of.

"How much?" asked Charley.

"Twenty-five cents," said the bartender.

Having cast down his quarter, Charley said to his friend, "Now, how about that investment?"

"You've already made it, and have the profits in your pocket."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, you always drink alone at 15 cents a drink, two for 30 cents. You and I have just had two drinks for a quarter; therefore, by investing 25 cents you have saved a nickel. Good morning."

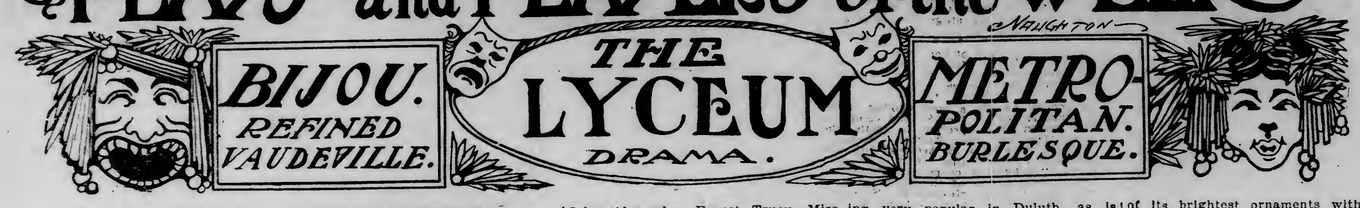
PLAYS and PLAYERS of the WEEK



AT THE LYCEUM

Raymond Hitchcock in "A Yankee Tourist" Wednesday and Thursday and Roselle Knott in "Alice Sit by the Fire" Friday and Saturday.

Surrounded by a company of unusual excellence and portraying a character which fits with a glovelike nicety, Raymond Hitchcock will be at the Lyceum Wednesday and Thursday, with a matinee on Decoration Day, under the direction of Henry W. Savage, in a new three act comic opera, "A Yankee Tourist," the book of which is by Richard Harding Davis, the lyrics by Wallace Irwin, and the musical score from the very prolific pen of Alfred G. Robyn. In the cast will be found Flora Zabelle, Helen Hale, Walter Lawrence, Susie Forrester Cawthorne, Harry Stone, Eva Fallon, Herbert Cawthorne, Phillips Smalley and the brightest and most vivacious chorus of the year. In this new vehicle for the transportation of his comedy genius, Mr. Hitchcock will return to the musical stage, from which he has been nabsent two seasons, and his return will be welcomed, for his absence left a void which was not filled. He possesses a charm of manner not known to any other comedian of the present day. His deftness of touch and the rare finesse with which he plays a "laughing point," mark the man with originality, and he is the one American star today who does not resort to low "mugging" and horse play in order to win plaudits of the theater goer.

Miss Zabelle will be remembered for her exceedingly clever work in "King Dodo" and "The Yankee Consul," and Miss Hale for her efforts with "Peggy From Paris," "Woodland" and more recently "The Man From Now." Walter Lawrence was also the baritone with the three last named attractions. Susie Forrester Cawthorne and Herbert Cawthorne have been identified for many seasons with some of the greatest successes the American stage has ever known, and Harry Stone is known for his rare work in "The Stolen Story." Messrs. Irwin and Robyn have proved themselves of incalcuable aid to Mr. Davis by their work on the lyrics and the score, and there are at least a dozen numbers which will prove "hits," including "Golden Sails," "A Yankee Millionaire," "And the World Goes on Just the Same," "Irish Lads" and "When a Girl is Born to be a Perfect Lady."

ROSELLE KNOTT

In J. M. Barnes' Delightful Play "Alice Sit by the Fire."

No one can challenge the assertion that J. M. Barrie, as an autor of books, is a delightful entertainer. Sentiment and satire, true to life and fantasy, sympathetical humor, and ironical wit make his play, "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire" restfully enjoyable. It lacks any boisterous fun, but it is full of sparkling humor. The play delights one for the time being, it amuses and goes straight to the heart. Its sparkle seems to be all on the surface, and yet there is a serious, sentimental tragedy of disillusioned and disappointed motherhood. One laughs at a daughter of sixteen instructing her mother in the knowledge of life, and at the mother's clever indulgence of the daughter in the latter's mistake, but there is sympathy for the mother in the effort she is making to win the love of the daughter and the son, from whom she has been separated for years. It is a play that grows on one from the first to the second act, and still on into the third. And the merits of the play are admirably brought out by Roselle Knott and a capable company. Miss Knott gives an especially pleasing performance of the wife and mother. The maternal spirit is strong and tactful in her Alice. She mingles opposing emotions with dexterous ease. Her acting is vivacious and effective. Eric Blind, as Col. Grey, Alice's husband, is especially strong in the part. He is an English gentleman, and in manner and speech neither overodes the part nor makes it too commonplace. His work is decidedly pleasing. It is clean cut and charming, and he uses details with a good and true effect. Viola Knott, Roselle's daughter, as Amy Grey, gives an exceptionally good presentation of the girl of 16, who has learned the ways of the world from attending the theater five times in one week. She plays the part smoothly and in the proper key. John Alexander, Ernest Truex, Miss Grace Gibbons, Mrs. Codrington-Webber and the others of the company are well and properly cast.

Shepard's Moving Pictures.

The moving picture tidal wave, which has recently swept the country from coast to coast, has been the means of educating the people to the beneficial features of animated pictures, and they are proving to be the most interesting and well recognized feature of every vaudeville performance. People complain that the pictures hurt their eyes. This is their own fault, for if they would not stare at them with eyes wide open, but would wink occasionally, as they do in the presence of diffused light, their eyes would not bother them at all.

This form of entertainment is growing very popular in Duluth, as is shown by the liberal patronage at the Lyceum every Sunday evening since these pictures have been running. Next Sunday it is planned to give an especially fine program, and all the latest and best films will be shown. Miss Lauretta Reitz, the well known singer, will render several of the latest New York successes in connection with beautiful colored slides.

A Long Tour.

Mrs. Lselie-Carter, who will be seen at the Lyceum next month, is making one of the longest tours of the country ever undertaken by a theatrical company. It began at Norfolk, Va., and extends through the South and Middle West, out to California and back through the Northwest to New York. Mrs. Carter travels in a special car, elaborately fitted out for her by the Pullman company.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

The Long Stock Company in Popular Dramas Promises to Enjoy Profitable Engagement in Duluth---The Bill for Next Week.

The Frank E. Long Stock company bids fair to spend a most pleasant and profitable summer season at the Metropolitan. During the past week, many persons of both sexes enjoyed their performances of "Our Country Cousins" and "A Parisian Princess," and during the coming week, they will have an opportunity of seeing the clever players in "Elected to Congress" and "From Rags to Riches."

"Elected to Congress" is one of Nat Goodwin's successes, and will be given for the first time tomorrow afternoon. It will also be presented tomorrow night, Monday night, Tuesday afternoon and night and Wednesday night.

Commencing with the Thursday matinee and continuing for the rest of the week, the company will present a stirring drama of modern life, "From Rags to Riches."

There will be two complete changes in the specialties during the week. Tomorrow afternoon the specialty artists will change their acts and will do so again Thursday afternoon. Mock Sad Alli, the Hindoo magician, is said to have some model stunts up his sleeves for the coming week and the other vaudeville artists with the company promise something good.

While it was to be expected that for a few days after the burlesque ended, the women would be loath to attend the usual performances at the "Met," but the number increased at every performance. No smoking is permitted, of course, and the plays are clean and wholesome. Everywaere they go the Long players play to large audiences of women and children as well as men. It is expected that this week the ladies will go to the "Met" in larger numbers.

During the coming week there will be matinees tomorrow, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

AT THE BIJOU

Al Jolson, the Man With the Versatile Mouth, Will Head Next Week's Vaudeville Bill---"Home, Sweet Home," a Comedy Sketch, is Another Feature.

In next week's bill at the Bijou the patrons of the popular theater will see a bill of vaudeville stars such as are seldom seen in any one program.

The show is headed by Al Jolson as the principal feature. Mr. Jolson has a pair of lips that are very versatile, capable of being manipulated to imitate music of the flute, a saxaphone and many other musical instruments. Mr. Jolson works in cork make-up, and is one of the best and funniest comedians ever seen in vaudeville. His parodies are original; his stories new, and his imitations have no equal. Another very entertaining comedy will be offered by the Manning trio, who present the roaring comedy skit entitled "Troublesome Servants." A big musical feature will be the three Keltons, who present an excellent musical act, playing classical and popular selections upon novelty and standard instruments. A feature of the act is Baby Kelton, who is a child wonder in the musical line. Grace Orma is a comedienne of considerable note. She will render several singing selections as well as tell numerous stories. Ellsworth and Burt will be seen in a comedy playlet entitled "Home, Sweet Home."

The following extract from the Minneapolis Journal will give the public an idea of these clever entertainers' ability.

Although Ellsworth and Burt were practicaly unkonwn to local theatergoers before the curtain rose on their act yesterday and last night at the Majestic theater, both have a warm place in the hearts of all who saw them, as they furnish real fun and lots of it. "Home, Sweet Home" is the title of the sketch in which the couple appear, and the skit is ridiculous and the situations are amusing. The dominating husband and the loving and devoted wife are the characters portrayed. The wife decided that she would not tolerate such treatment from her husband and resolves to hand him back the same medicine he prescribes. This causes spontaneous laughter and the lines throughout the play are bright, catchy and amusing. The hit of the act is the evident animosity the husband has acquired for those well known words which adorn the wall, "Home, Sweet Home." He continues to throw hard biscuit at the sign throughout the play as evidence that he does not believe in their meaning. Mr. Ellsworth and Miss Burt are clever."

As a special attraction, Carana will be seen in one of the most sensational and daring wire acts ever seen at the Bijou. Carana does more daring feats upon a slack wire than any other wire walker.

Isadore Silver will render "In the Wildwood," a new song hit which is illustrated with colored views.

The moving pictures for the week will be "How the World Lives" and the two comedy pictures entitled "Father Wants You, Mother," and "Looking for Lodgings."

Matinees are given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved for all performances by either telephone. A special school children's matinee will be given Saturday afternoon, with regular performances on Sunday afternoon and night.

SOME FEATURES AT THE BIJOU NEXT WEEK.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Not Overly Notable Season Nearing Its End---Richard Mansfield Goes to England and May Not Act Next Year.

New York, May 25.—We will perhaps have some warm weather before long, though the odds on the event are not so long as they usually are at this season, and then there will be an exodus from Broadway to mountain, farm and seashore, for the theatrical season of 1906-07 is rapidly drawing to a close, and the actor people are worried with their arduous labors. It has been a season of successful plays from the box-office view point, and after all, is not the fact that people are willing to pay real money to see a show a good test of merit in this commercial age as we are able to find.

It will hardly be cautioned that any of the season's successes go into dramatic history along with the work of Shakespeare and the like, but nevertheless there has been more than one production this season which will live at least the average life of a modern play. Among the most marked successes have been "His House in Order," by Arthur W. Pinero; "The Hypocrites," by Henry Arthur Jones; "The Chorus Lady, by James Forbes; "The Great Divide," by W. D. Moody; "Brewster's Millions," by Quiley and Smith; "Salomy Jane," by Paul Armstrong; "The Road to Yesterday," by Dix and Sutherland; "The Rose of the Rancho," by Belasco and Tully; "The Man of the Hour," by George H. Broadhurst; "Caught in the Rain," by Collier and Stewart, and "The Red Mill," by Blosson and Herbert.

Of other successes may be mentioned "The New York Idea," "The Three of Us," "The Parisian Model," "The Orchid" and half a score of others.

A remarkable feature of the season is the fact that neither Augustus Thomas nor Clyde Fitch figure to any extent in the season's successes.

They usually do so at least once and frequently several times. The offerings during the past week have been of little importance. Here they are: Monday—Carnegie Lyceum, Mme. Oda's American debut in Henrik Ibsen's drama, "Little Eyolf." Keith and Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theater Stock company, headed by Miss Edna May Spooner, in David Belasco's "Zaza." West End theater, Van Berg Opera company in Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, "The Mikado." Metropolis theater opening of Summer Stock company's season with Miss Adelaide Keim as Glory Quayle in Hall Caine's play, "The Christian." Wednesday—Irving Place Theater Stock company in "Percosa," a romantic play by Messrs. F. A. Wolf and C. M. Von Weber. Thursday—Irving Place theater, pupils of the Metropolitan Opera school in "Hansel and Gretel." Friday—Irving Place theater opera pupils in acts from "La Traviata," "Romeo et Juliette" "Les Huguenots," "Lohengrin" and "Hamlet." Saturday—Irving Place Theater Opera pupils in "Der Freischuetz."

The American stage may lose some of its brightest ornaments with the close of the season. Miss May Templeton declares it will be the simple life, far, far from the footlights' glare, for her, with the finish of her present engagement. It is seriously questioned if Richard Mansfield will ever play again. When he sailed for Europe this week it was decided that he would certainly not be able to appear on the stage next season, and there was reason to fear his stage career is ended. It is to be hoped this may not prove to be the case.

Monty Brewster still is spending his millions in stage money with the utmost recklessness in "Brewster's Millions" in the comfortable Hudson theater. Although the play begins tomorrow its twenty-third consecutive week in New York city, the audiences are big enough nightly to test the capacity of the theater. Montgomery and Stone celebrated the three hundredth performance in New York of "The Red Mill" Wednesday. This popular musical attraction is drawing the same immense crowds that it has from the very start last fall.

Mercedes Leigh, an actress who won distinction last season for being the first person with the courage to render Oscar Wilde's play "Salome" on a New York stage, is a bride. Miss Leigh's husband is McAllister Smith, of Newport, R. I., who is well known in art circles and an authority on Japanese art. Mr. Smith is also representative of a New York importing house in Japan. According to close friends of the couple they will sail for Japan on June 6. This is Miss Leigh's second flight into matrimony. In 1898, when she was at the height of her fame as an actress, she married Col. Thomas C. Miles, a wealthy Philadelphian.

Despite the repeated denials of any break between Henry Miller and Miss Margaret Anglin, the fact remains that next February, at the end of their tour in "The Great Divide," Miss Anglin starts for an Australian tour under the management of Williamson, the Frohman of Australia, while Henry Miller plays the far West and San Francisco.

For the first time in more than half a century that historical drama, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," is having a genuine Broadway run. The piece has been done many times in New York, but never before have the doors of a Broadway theater been opened to it. On May 20 a new version of Mrs. Stowe's historic novel, by James W. Harkins, Jr., and Edwin Barbour was put on in the Majestic theater for an indefinite run. The production is made by J. H. J. Bonner and is under the direction of Stephen Fitzpatrick. The comedian donkeys, tragedian bloodhounds and the animated cakes of ice which have afforded so much mirthful entertainment in the past, have been elliminated from this production.

Since her recent appearance in New York in "The Mills of the Gods' Miss Florence Rockwell has been favorably received in Chicago in "The Round Up," a Western play—with cowboys. She will appear in the play in New York in the autumn.

Maude Adams is on the road—Ethel Barrymore closes her season this week and Julia Marlowe is in London. But let us not be discouraged. Edna May Spooner has begun a long season at the Fifth Avenue theater, and while other Broadway favorites may be missed from the theatrical thoroughfare the favorite actress of Brooklyn and Williamsburg will regale the parched theater-goers, and the repertoire includes almost everything from "Zaza" and "Barbara Fritchie" to "Blue Jeans" and "Camille."

Miss Spooner's Broadway debut was made last week in David Belasco's "Zaza."

It would be idle to criticise Miss Spooner's "Zaza." It has not the historic glories of Mrs. Carter, but Brooklyn has decided that it is equally popular. At times it is more like Maude Adams; then it is like Mrs. Carter, and in the first act it has distinct touches of Katie Barry. At other times Miss Spooner reminds you of Julia Marlowe, and then again there are deft little suggestions of Ethel Barrymore and now and then a fringe of Margaret Anglin. It is from start to finish an interesting performance, however, and over it all is an atmosphere of that same delightful sociability that shows the actress is in as friendly touch with the audience from the stage as is her mother at the rear of the theater.

"The Builders" is a new play of Western life, by Marion Fairfax, which was seen for the first time in New York at the Astor theater last Monday night. The play recently received a trial production in the West, and so favorably impressed Managers Wagenhals and Kemper that they decided to interrupt the comedy season at the Astor to make way for it.

FRANK E. LONG,
With Long Stock Company at the "Met."

While a comedy drama of the great Southwest, the claim is made for it that it contains none of the conventional features of the usual Western play. There is not an Indian in it, not a desperado, not a miner. The management believe that it will be found virile and uplifting as well as entertaining.

"The Builders" was presented by the members of the Tully Marshall company, each member of which has been selected with the idea of the truthful portrayal of the characters they are to assume. Among other members of the cast are: Margaret Ellsworth, William Ingersoll, Marion Fairfax, Tully Marshall, William McVay, Charles Dow Clark, John S. Collins, Theodore M. Morris, John Fenton, Richard Lyle, Amelia Gardner, Albert Meyer and Harry Mainhall.

The story of the play concerns the lives of a man and a woman. In his youth, while under the influence of liquor, he kills another man, and serves several years in prison. He comes forth a better man, satisfied in having paid the penalty of his crime, and strong in his eagerness to make a way for himself. But he is ostracized from society, leaves his native city, and goes to the great Southwest to build up a new life. Here he meets the woman. She is trying to live down a wrong which conventional society has named a sin, and her associates in the little Arizona town will not discriminate between conventional wrong and real wrong. These two people come together; the woman as the man's stenographer. The man has staked his new life on the building of an arrigation ditch, and he and the woman work out the plan together. But during this time the man thinks he is in love with a certain girl, who is pretty and sentimental. At the hour of his triumph with his great piece of engineering, exposure of his early life comes from an unexpected source. Under the shock of this exposure, which is the big act of the play, the man sees clearly, learns to distinguish between the unknowing girl and the true, farseeing woman, whose experience has given her full sympathy with him, and who, like himself, has been the builder of a new life.

In "A Yankee Tourist" at the Lyceum Next Week.

time at the Hyperion theater, New Haven, the previous Thursday evening. Mr. Herbert and Mr. Kerker, the authors of the new summer show, were responsible for the Casino's success, "The Social Whirl," which was presented at the "Golden Playhouse" for seven months last season. During the past two seasons Mr. Herbert has been one of the most fortunate of native musical comedy librettists. Besides "The Social Whirl" he provided the Shuberts with two more successes, "About Town," for Lew Fields and his all-star company, and "The Orchid," in which Eddie Foy is appearing at Lew Fields's Herald Square theater. Mr. Herbert's "Fascinating Flora" was written in collaboration with R. H. Burnside, who has staged the play. Mr. Burnside is as well known on account of his musical comedy libretti as for his cleverness in the staging of this class of entertainment. Mr. Kerker, who furnishes the score for "Fascinating Flora," composed the music for a number of musical comedy successes. His scores have been a feature at the Casino on many rare occasions. Mr. Kerker's first connection with this playhouse was as its regular composer. Before joining the Casino forces he had come into prominence with the scores for "The Cadets," "Orpheus and Eurydice," "Castles in the Air," and "The Pearl of Pekin." His first work for the Casino was "The Brigands." Other Casino successes from his pen were "The Belle of New York" and "The Whirl of the Town."

Many of the principals who assisted in making "The Social Whirl" a success last season appear in the new piece. Those of prominence are Adele Ritchie, Ada Lewis and Fred Bond, each of whom made individual hits in the Herbert-Kerker opera of last year. Miss Ritchie, who is seen in the title role, has been connected with several Casino successes. She was leading woman in "The Chinese Honeymoon" and "Floradora," and also originated the role of Violet Dare in "The Social Whirl." New and important talent in the new Casino summer show includes Louis Harrison, James E. Sullivan, Ella Snyder and Edna Chase.

Louis Harrison has been recognized for many years as one of the clever comedians of the American stage. He has starred during the past year in "Veronique," afterward called "The Flower Girl," and was recently seen in "Mexicana." Another comedian of the company is James E. Sullivan. One of Mr. Sullivan's successes was the polite lunatic in "The Belle of New York." Ella Snyder is a young actress not new in musical comedy. She was the principal feature of "The White Cat" three seasons ago, and has appeared in other extravaganzas and musical comedies. Edna Chase, another member of the company was last season a member of the company presenting "The Tourists." She is an exceptional dancer and in this capacity made her first hit. She made her debut at Weber & Fields' Music hall in 1903, and was soon advanced to important roles.

The story of "Fascinating Flora" is told in two acts. The first act is laid in the Conservatory of Music in Paris, while the second is divided into two scenes, the first taking place in a broker's office in New York and the last at Manhattan Beach. Fascinating Flora to be impersonated by Miss Ritchie, is a beautiful and charming young New York girl studying music in Paris. Louis Harrison will appear as Alphonse Allegretti, Flora's teacher; Fred Bond will impersonate Gulliver Gayboy, in love with Flora; Jamess E. Sullivan will be seen as Winnie Wiggles, in love with her prospects and Ella Snyder, as Dolly Wagner, the professor's daughter. There is, of course, the usual beauty chorus.

Alla Nazimova, the Americanized Russian actress, is still the pet of New York. The reviewers excuse themselves before intimating that the slightest fault could possibly be found with her and the public generally sends her bouquets and buys tickets to her performances. The other day she told something of the trouble she had learning to speak English, that she might acquire the vogue she enjoys.

"When I began to yam, yam, yam in English," said she, "I was so terribly discouraged that I almost gave up in despair." By yam, yam, yam, Miss Nazimova gave her original conception of the simple sound of English.

"Well, now, why is it that you do laugh at me?" she asked, "I said yam, yam, yam, yam, because that is exactly the way it sounded to me. When I arrived in this country I knew not one word of your language. If I had not persevered I would be back in Russia, but when the managers tell me I must learn if I wish to stay, then I listen well and I say to myself, 'It is funny, but I must do it.' And pretty soon before I really know it myself, I, too, am yam yaming. And now I am glad; but, oh! such a time as I have. But now I can talk all day.

"Oh, I made such awful mistakes in learning your language. I am often embarrassed, but, mon Dieu, what will you do? They tell me it is all right to say my God in French, but that it is wicked, to say the same thing in English. That seems so funny to me. All the Europeans say 'my God' just as you would say, 'oh, I am in despair.' In Russian we say 'O Bozhe,' and it is no more than 'mon Dieu,' but here if I want to call on God I must use some other language than English. I learned this one day when a woman friend of mine told me that I cursed too much. I did not curse, but I was mistaken. I am just speaking to my Creator.'

"Another thing I cannot understand is about that little word 'damn.' It seems to me for such a simple word it makes a great deal of trouble. In your plays if a man is mad he says 'damn.' If he talks about the weather he says 'damn.' If you want to make the audience laugh when the play is not funny enough to do so you just say a few 'damns' and they will laugh. A funy little word! I heard it so much in your plays that one day, just to make some people laugh—it was an afternoon tea and everybody was so solemn—I just said it. A man I know whispered to me that it was perfectly proper for me to say it, but ladies were not supposed to do so, except in private. 'But the stage is not private,' I said.

"'Oh that's different,' he answered.

"Whenever a man in the United States can't explain anything he just says, 'oh, that's different,' and that settles it.

The man in the box office at the Hackett theater was talking over the 'phone the other day when an elderly woman stepped up to the window and began to ask questions about Rose Stahl. Meantime the man at the far end of the wire was asking how many rows back his seats for last night would be.

At that moment the elderly person asked sweetly: "How old is Miss Stahl?"

"Nineteen!" shouted the box office man to the one on the wire.

"I don't believe it," said the woman at the window, angrily swishing her skirt. Then she marched away.

With the horizon clouded with signs of the coming vaudeville war, there is a feature of that business now developing rapidly that has been overlooked by the scramblers for the biggest game. This is the wonderful chain of houses that is fast being welded together in what is known as the Sullivan and Considine circuit of cheaper priced vaudeville theaters. They now stretch from New York to San Francisco, and only the other day seven aditional houses, at a cost of $3,000,000, were taken over and made a part and parcel of this new group without as much as stirring up an excitement worth commenting on, it would seem.

A few years ago these men, then strangers to show business, in the sense that it is generally used, began getting together here and there small houses not much bigger than "store shows," and in them giving a few acts and a moving picture program. From the smaller towns they have climbed into the cities and particularly through the West have they flourished like the proverbial green bay tree. Houses in Omaha, Kansas City, Seattle, Sioux City, Los Angeles, Denver and Salt Lake have been built within this present season, and now they are contracting for a number of stellar vaudeville acts that will be worked over that circuit. It has grown until it is an institution, and clean but reasonable vaudeville as put forth on these circuits has become immensely popular.

It is likely that a coincidence, but simultaneous with the starting of Richard Mansfield for Europe Emma Dunn, whose physicial and artistic personality had received rude jolts at the hand of the actor during the New York run of "Peer Gynt," came to life and is well enough to take a stock engagement with a summer company being organized for a run in Kansas City.

Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon have put themselves under the management of Ernest Shipman for the next five years. They started this week in Detroit with a production of G. B. Shaw's "Widowers' Houses." Later next season they will bring out a new play.

George Primrose has been drawn into the vaudeville mill again. Following on the close of his minstrel tour he has booked for a few weeks in the varieties with his big dancing act, seen as a feature of the minstrel show at the Walnut recently. It is said the veteran burnt-cork star gets $1,000 a week for this act.

Arnold Daly sailed this week for Europe and has abandoned his American plans. It is said that Jack Barrymore will take his place as the star of the new play, "The Boys of Company B." This is a new comedy from the pen of Ilda Young, who wrote "Brown of Harvard" for Henry Woodruff. Daly's special matinees of three one-act plays will be discontinued. It is said that Vincent Serrane has secured one of these, "The Flag Station," and will go into vaudeville with it.

That Gibbs Mansfield, the 8-year-old son of Richard Mansfield, will ultimately be found upon the stage has been for a number of years the bete noir of his parents, who until the New York production of "Peter Pan" kept their son from all parts of all theaters. But the Barrie play proved so attractive to children that they could not resist the temptation. On the day that Gibbs was in the audience Maude Adams' appeal for a manifestation of a belief in fairies did not go unanswered.

"I do, I do," exclaimed Gibbs when the question was asked by Peter Pan.

Notwithstanding the care of his parents in keeping him from the theater, the everyday play of the Mansfield heir has not been reassuring. If they take him to church he returns announcing, "Now I am a preacher."

Then he gathers such audience as he may about him and preaches to them in intelligible words. Whether it is butcher's shop or department store, the play result is the same, until his parents have been forced to the belief that if they would keep him from the stage they must also keep him from life.

At the conclusion of her season with Joe Weber's company Mme. Lillian Blauvelt, the proma donna, will go abroad to resume her vocal studies.

Although he has a good singing voice, William Hodge of Joe Weber's company in "Dream City," prefers to recite his song "The Volunteer Fireman" because, he says, it is more in keeping with his character of the "Rube" chief of the suburban fire-fighting corps. His rendition of the song is one of the most amusing features of the performance. Notwithstanding that it is all uttered in the jesting spirit of the play, there were a few volunteer firemen in the vicinity of New York, who wrote serious letters of objection to Mr. Hodge and begged him to cut out the song saying it was a serious reflection upon the courage and abilities of volunteer firemen in general.

AT THE LONDON THEATERS

New York, May 25.—A London cable to The Times says: The Sothern-Marlowe company has been playing all week "When Knighthood Was in Flower," with Miss Marlowe as Mary Tudor and Mr. Sothern as Charles Brandon. The play seems to be a popular success, but it made the critics very miserable when they saw it on the opening night. It saddened them, they said, to see actors of so high an order as Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe, drop their Shakespeare and talk up with Paul Kester.

"It is just a pinchbeck romantic drama of the commonest order," one disconsolate critic remarked. Another, William Archer, just back from America, expressed regret that he had missed Miss Marlowe's Viola and Jeanne D'Arc, and arrived home only to see her wasting her talents on pillow fights and buffoonery. Mr. Walkley follows up his quarter column in the Times thus:

"Why players of repute who have given Londoners proof of exceptional intelligence and brilliant talents should choose to waste their powers upon such unspeakably silly stuff baffles conjecture."

But the play draws well and the Waldorf theater will probably continue to pander to the popular taste in spite of the rebukes of the critics.

Mr. Frohman will undoubtedly pursue a similar policy with "Stronghearts," in which he is presenting Robert Edeson to delighted audiences, notwithstanding almost every dramatic critic has denounced the play as weak and unassured. It seems to be the judgment of intelligent people who see the play that the critics are quite right, but in spite of this fact everybody who has spoken to me about his night with Edeson has come away pleased to enjoying it immensely. It is the American life in the play that makes it go, just as the American life in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" makes that play successful. By the way, one of the most pleasing messages that Mr. Edeson received on the opening night read:

"All the big and little Wiggses of the Cabbage Patch wish their compatriot success."

Another interesting message was this from Israel Zangwill:

"Welcome; and I hope your stay will be longer than last time."

Mr. Zangwill's reference was to Edeson's appearance in "The Children of the Ghetto," which ran just one week.

So the sandwich men, instead of riding about London smoking big cigars at Worm's expense, have gone back to their weary old life work. He is very sorry for them, but cannot defy the law and the police.

FASCINATION OF PLAY WRITING

Why Go Up Against a Game With the Chances a Thousand to One Against Winning?

Why, asks William Griffith in the Theater Magazine, has playwriting such an irresistible attraction—such a fatal fascination—for the average person who, in other directions, is governed, or at least, influenced, by common sense? No such pentup Utica curbs his abundant optimism and really pathetic ignorance with respect to the craft he views so lightly. Doctors and lawyers in legion; players themselves and professors by the thousand; bankers, brokers and bishops by the hundred; soldiers and sailors by the score; civil engineers and those who are not so civil when their dramatic aspirations are dampened, nurses, society women, take his seat and hold it until the next restaurateurs, cooks and conductors, brakemen, clerks, and clergymen in shoals; dowages, dentists and draymen, magnates and missionaries—no trade or profession but is grotesquely misrepresented in the curious category. And, what is equally remarkable, a fair majority of them are quite as clever in the conduct of their own callings as they are remiss and reckless in the professions to which they arbitrarily elect themselves.

Of course, the answer to the foregoing query is obvious, in that the average successful play is so much more profitable than the average best-selling novel—that one can get rich no quicker in Wall street than by writing a dramatic success—that seven in ten authors, to mention them exclusively, are obsessed by the long, green vistas of reward radiating from the box office.

And undeniably, the stage is a golden treasury for those who have the open sesame. Nearly a dozen contemporary playwrights are making, or have made, between $60,000 and $120,000 a year as Aladdins in this country of illusion—as playwrights. But what of the writers of plays?

What are the chances that an unsolicited manuscript will be accepted and the play eventually produced? A dozen leading American playreaders and producers, to whom the question was broached, unanimously agreed that the chances were one in a hundred—and even at that the playgoing public inverts its thumb with a frequency which spells death to 60 per cent of the plays brought out annually under the most approved directions, and despair, if not disaster, to the luckless producer.

Nothing, in homely phrasing, other than the rear quarters of a mule, is more uncertain than the success of a play. "I have been reading and writing plays for twenty-three unlucky and lucky years," admitted the candid playreader, "and yet today even my presumption forbids my claiming the successful qualities of a production, that is, of course, a debatable one.

"I have brought out plays that have netted us and the author from $100,000 to $125,000 annually, real money in the bargain, and yet I do not trust my own judgment, as a court of last resort, in gauging the appealing, and see plot. Efforts are being made to secure a farm for a permanent agricultural school to be affiliated with Euphrates college. Only $5,000 has been raised and it will need at least $15,000 for furnishings, stock and implements in addition to the land. There is no better investment for one's money, because there is training in character along with the manual instruction.

In connection with Euphrates college, which has a total enrollment of 948, of whom 437 are girls, there is an industrial department which serves an excellent purpose in providing work for the poor boys. There is a cabinet shop, a tin and canning shop, a locksmith and stove shop, and a bindery. All this is made possible by the gift of $7,000 for the purpose by a far-sighted American, who has a sharp eye for good investments. In one or another of these shops seventy-three boys work an hour or two each day, for the munificent sum of from one to three cents per hour. The college reaches a large number of homes with its uplifting and Christianizing influence, but the field is large and the moral and social darkness all around is something we know nothing about in our privileged country. No wonder that pupils flock to the college. This last year the increase is so great as almost to endanger the safety and health of those who live in the crowded buildings.

The American board is practically the only missionary force at work in the Turkish empire north of Syria. It has established five colleges, two of them for women, and hundreds of schools in which more than 24,000 young men and women are being educated and fitted for life as Christian citizens. It is impossible to measure their influence upon that misgoverned country, where a political revolution is liable to occur at any time.

The way in which commercial interests are related to foreign missions finds a striking illustration in the attitude of the Pacific Phosphate company, a new concern which has lately opened business on the island of Nauru in the Pacific. In olden times the trader had no earthly use for the missionary or the things for which he stood. The modern capitalist takes a different view, for he sees that the more civilized a people becomes, the more wants they will have. This Phosphate company is an English firm employing more than 1,000 hands. From the outset it has taken a friendly interest in the work of the mission and sometimes asks for boys from their school when they want extra help. One such pupil is a bandy-legged little fellow, who is a picturesque object clad in nothing but a red lawa-lawa, but he uses a Remington typewriter and writes both German and Roman characters. His work is as good as that of a white typist, clothed in conventional Yankee garments. Another little chap, also in the occasional employ of the Phosphate company, is the American board mission printer though only 15 years old. When he first applied for admission to the training school his outfit consisted of a mat, a short fringe and a wooden pillow. Yet out of such uncompromising material come young men who readily learn to set type and master two languages on the typewriter. This shows that something can be done with the South Sea Islanders and business men are quick to see their superiority over the untrained human specimen.

Nauru, once one of the poorest among the Islands of the sea, is now one of the richest, because of its vast deposits of phosphate of lime. It is estimated that there are about 40,000,000 tons of it on the island, and this wealth has not escaped the notice of the thrifty Englishman. Thanks to the Christian men who have preceded him, he does not find the place as barren as it was originally because they have introduced the culture of breadfruit, limes, bananas and other articles of food. Nothing but the cocoanut palm and the pandamus tree were there at first. The early traders furnished the natives with bad gin and worse tobacco, with such results as may easily be imagined. What sane man would not prefer to see them equipped with books, and other tools of civilization? Especially if one has business dealings with the natives he will be ready to call down blessings on the missionaries, who have uprooted certai ingrafted vices and ideas. On Nauru, for instance, only five years ago, heathen priests were doing a rushing business selling charms, chanting incantations over the sick, and telling fortunes. Now their trade is a thing of the past. The Islanders, though not cannibals, were once very vicious, but are rapidly becoming law-abiding and peaceful. This transformation on Nauru is typical of what is going on elsewhere among the Islands of the Pacific, which are destined to become centers of commerce in the future.

THE FOREIGN MAIL-BAG

Overturning in China Due Largely to American Schools and Colleges---Industrial Religion ---The Business Point of View.

The most stirring events on the face of the globe are taking place in the Orient. The editor of the London Times said recently, "The coming question will be Asiatic. It belongs to the new generation. I should advise my younger friends to bend their thoughts in that direction. It may come with the youngest and the oldest civilizations—the United States and China—face to face!" Even more significant is the remark of a Chinese prince to one of the foreign representatives. He said: "You complain that China moves too slowly; the time will come when you will say that she is going too rapidly." Both these prophecies seem to be in process of fulfilment. What has wrought the change? Students of the nineteenth century admit that one of the strongest formative influences in the East during the last hundred years is Christian missions. Commerce and diplomacy have conferred some benefits, but neither has ever built a single church, school or hospital on foreign soil. Thees agents of civilization are the gifts of Christian men and women.

The overturnings in China today are due, in large measure, to principles and ideals implanted by American schools and colleges. It fairly takes one's breath away to run over the subjects of essays, orations and addresses at the commencements just held there. Here are a few of them: "The Boycott of American Goods; Is China Ready for a Parliament? Moral Education the First Step in the Reformation of China; Ideals of the New Scholars for New China." Will Harvard students be likely to discuss themes of equal pertinence to our own national life at their coming commencement? The topics quoted, which show the trend of thought in the higher institutions of learning in China, are in accord with what one of her educated men said not long ago in a public address. He was speaking of the surprising awakening of his country from the sleep of centuries and of the new things which she is demanding, and added, "We need to build railroads and open up mines. But the thing we need most, just now, is Christianity. The Christian religion is the only hope and salvation of China."

The force of this sentiment is fully realized by the large body of missionaries, about 4,000 in number and representing seventy societies who live among the Chinese and see that this is a critical time in their national history. It is they who have introduced Western ideas of morals and education and they have recently held a great conference at Shanghai which has attracted world-wide attention. Foremost among the delegates were those representing the American board, the oldest foreign missionary organization in the United States with headquarters in Boston. Its two splendid colleges, one in Tung-chou and the other the Peking university, are doing for Chinese young men precisely what Yale, Amherst, Chicago university and others here at home are doing for American youth. Its schools, too, which have been numbered by the hundreds, are vastly superior to those belonging to the government. This is true of all the mission schools throughout the empire, and no doubt this superiority influenced the emperor to make those radical changes in native educational methods which have recently astonished the world. It must have required some nerve to abolish a system of examinations which had been in use for 1300 years! The Chinese may be slow, but they are by no means stupid. An editorial in "The World Today" says there is not an American in a hundred thousand who can think of the Chinese as other than curiosities or laundrymen, and added that "the day will come when we shall be thanking our lucky stars that some men and women were far-sighted enough to send school teachers and foreign missionaries to China along with drill sergeants and civil engineers." One of the best ways to avert a possible "yellow peril" in the future is to strengthen such work as the American Board is doing in the Orient. Of the commercial value of its work Hon. F. S. Stratton, collector of the port at San Francisco, says: "The missionaries are advance agents for the American commercial enterprises. If business men only understood this better they would assist rather than discourage evangelistic work in the East."

One of the most interesting objects in the department of state at Washington is an Oriental silk rug worth several hundred dollars, presented to our government last year by the Armenian orphans of Harpoot, Turkey. The pattern of the rug is the American flag, and the gift is an expression of gratitude on the part of those who were left orphans, without home or friends, after the terrible massacre in Armenia. The stars and stripes which they had seen floating over the mission buildings, to which they fled for shelter and protection, was a symbol of freedom and hope, so it was fitting that the rug should be woven in that form.

Rug weaving is only one of the industries carried on by the American board at Harpoot. Many persons still suppose that foreign mission work is simply teaching the Bible. On the contrary some part of an industrial plant is a regular part of the equipment of nearly all the stations. At Husenik, not far from Harpoot, is a farm experiment where thirty boys, this last year, gained $100 above the rent of the house and land. Besides general work each boy has a garden patch of his own to look after, and each is enthusiastic to get the most out of his See that the boys have the chance to be Kept off the fishes by rushing movements and by making a noise and moaning. And he remains by the eggs with so much of natural affection that the fishermen, when the eggs adhere to deep roots, bring them up to the shallowest place they can; but he does not even then leave his offspring, but if he chance to be a young fish, he is easily taken by the hook, because he snaps at all the fishes that approach him; but if he is already accustomed to this, and has swallowed hooks before, he does not even then desert his young, but breaks the hook by a very strong bite."

Because none of the fishes of Northern Europe have habits similar to those attributed to the Glanis, the description was long regarded with scepticism. In 1839 two of the greatest fish experts of the last century, Cuvier and Valenciennes, wrote: "What Aristotle relates in detail, and in two passages, of the care which the male Silurus takes of the eggs of his female, borders a little on the marvelous. According to him, the large Siluri deposit them in deep waters; the smaller among the roots of willows and other trees, among the reeds or even the mosses. The female, having laid them, leaves them, but the male guards and defends them, and, as these eggs are long in hatching, he continues this care forty or fifty days."

It was reserved for Prof. Louis Agassiz, the 100th anniversary of whose birth is about to be celebrated at Harvard university, to discover the real facts about the Grecian fish. In 1856, through President Felton of Harvard, who was an enthusiastic Greek student, the great naturalist received a Glanis from the very same river where Aristotle had made his observations. Agassiz's trained eye at once discovered that the fish had been wrongly identified with the Silurus family of Northern Europe. A new name, Glanis Aristotilis, was given to the species. A new interest was aroused, which resulted in the naturalists noticing that the care-taking habits of the Glanis are similar to those of the American catfishes, which are not of the same family or sub-family. Dr. Gill has now brought together in his contribution to the George Washington university series the known facts regarding this particular fish.

In another publication he has recently developed many other facts which tend to remove the impression that all fishes are indifferent to their eggs and young, leaving them entirely to the care of Mother Nature. "Oliver Goldsmith in 1774 told his readers that fishes seem, all except the whale kind, entirely divested of those parental solicitudes which so strogly mark the manners of the more perfect terrestrial animals," but Goldsmith was no naturalist. The studies of the George Washington university expert have, in fact, shown that this notion is far from the truth, and that although, of course, greater parental watchfulness is exercised among the higher animals, evidences of the same instinct are to be found among many of the fishes.

The most common or frequent form of care is very simple. It consists simply of the selection of a site for the deposit of the female's eggs and the subsequent guardianship of these eggs by the male. The spot chosen is usually cleared of stones and weeds and in the cleared spaces the eggs are laid.

In some instances, however, a much more intelligent co-operation with Nature's processes is to be noted. One of the catfishes of Queensland invariably noses and splashes and swishes up stones from the river by piling them in a heap over her eggs. Many American and African fishes, instead of laying their eggs in a particular spot and watching them while they hatch, actually carry them around in their mouths for weeks at a time. Again in South American streams a distant cousin to our catfish has a unique habit of attaching eggs in a mass to its skin. The cuticle of the fish then grows around them—"like the cups of acorns around the nut." In this way the eggs are carried and protected until they hatch.

Some fishes' eggs, Dr. Gill states, are deposited in floating nests which involve rather skilful preparation. One of the most elementary forms is that of the colored fish-of-Paradise which by means of a sticky substance secreted in his mouth makes a floating nest out of a mere conglomeration of air bubbles. Twigs and fallen leaves are employed by other fishes, producing a nest which looks like a mere bundle of river waste but which safely contains the precious eggs. A single species, the stickleback, is equipped with special web making organs to weave a binding thread for the materials selected for the nest.

In discussing the philosophy of this rudimentary parental instinct among fish, Dr. Gill does not attribute its origin to a very high motive, however exalted it may become in its development among higher forms of life. At the outset, he says—"the attitude of parental care must be regarded as an outcome of selfishness, or if you will, self love, a result of the sense of proprietorship. The eggs are the fishes' own and therefore, they and the resulting larvae are to be cared for as such."

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION FINDS IT HARD TO GET MEN TO WORK FOR UNCLE SAM

In Former Years Men Scrambled for the Positions.

Applicants at Examinations Few and Far Between.

Chance for Promotion Probably Better Now Than Ever Before.

For many years most people considered themselves lucky if they could get any kind of a position under the civil service rules of the United States. In such a position, they would be working for the government and any kind of a government job has always been considered by those outside as being more or less of a soft snap. On account of this desire to get into the government employ there was formerly no scarcity of applicants for civil service examinations, no matter what the position was to be.

But this has all been changed during the last few years of prosperity in this country. The civil service commission can advertise the examinations and send out notices galore, but the applicants are few and far between. People seem to have concluded that they can do better in business for themselves or else in the employ of a big private company than working for Uncle Sam.

Most of the so-called snaps offered by the government civil service commission are now going begging and the authorities are finding it a difficult task to keep enough men in the service.

Many reasons there are for this change and the greatest in all probability is the great prosperity of the country and the fact that men of all classes have plenty of money or good positions which bring them more than those which the government offers. Another reason is that the majority of people who would be eligible for the civil service positions keep out of it because they think there is so little chance of promotion.

The civil service rules and regulations were first placed in force in the United States about twenty-three years ago. Since that time they have been continually extended and improved until now they cover practically all of the government positions except those open to common laborers.

It was the first intention of the lawmakers who passed the civil service act that the rules should give an equal chance for all men to obtain lucrative positions in the government service and it was supposed that it would put an end to a great extent to the famous spoils system of appointing government employes. Since it has been tried for the last quarter of a century, it is generally admitted that it has been a great success.

Is a Merit System.

The civil service system is a merit system and the people all over the country have always favored this and have welcomed its extension in every part of the country. Politics have never figured much in the civil service since the civil service commission was instituted and only such applicants as are able to pass a satisfactory examination stand a chance of getting a position. The act and rule relating to politics and religion makes it practically impossible for any person in the executive civil service to use his official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with an election or affecting its results. An appointing officer who appoints or refuses to appoint an applicant because the latter does not entertain certain political opinions, or who removes or reduces an employe because that employe refuses to render political service, to be coerced in political action, or to contribute money for political purposes, violates the law, and is treated accordingly.

Pay Is Not Large.

For the amount of work done in the civil service positions, the pay is not very large in comparison to positions with private concerns and corporations. It is for this reason that young men and women now hesitate and finally let the chance to get into the service slip by, without making an application for the examination. They think there is little use in going through the trouble of taking the examination when a better position can be had outside the government service.

And, furthermore, young people are now dodging the civil service because of the fact that there is not enough chance of promotion. Once in the government service they think they will get into a rut and will never be able to get out of it or get much higher in the service. They think they spoil their chances of getting ahead in any other line of employment.

A department clerk at Washington, for insance, may work at the same job, from the time that he is a young man until he is grayhaired and worn out with the monotony. Finally when he gets too old for the service he cannot adapt himself to any other kind of work and, as his salary has not enabled him to save anything to speak of, he must depend upon his relatives.

Chance of Promotion Better.

The chance of promotion, however, is probably better in the civil service at the present time than ever before. The work in the various government departments has been systemized and the merit system of making appointments is used throughout. In the postal service the men are now classified according to their ability and length of service. The pay is increased accordingly and the promotion in this branch of the service is better than it was formerly.

The rules of the civil service are much more strict now than they were formerly and may be more strict than ever soon. The necessary qualifications are being added to continually, but at the same time, the classification of the postal clerks and carriers is better at this time than it has ever been.

At the last session of congress an attempt was made to establish the pension system for civil service employes over a certain age limit, but so far, nothing has been accomplished toward this end.

SOME FISH STORIES SCIENCE CALLS TRUE

Nursery Tales From Homes Under Water---Modern Research Confirms Story Originally Told Twenty-Two Centuries Ago by Aristotle.

Washington, May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some good fish stories are being told by Dr. Theodore N. Gill, professor of zoology in the George Washington university of this city and internationally famous through his work for the Smithsonian institution. Dr. Gill has been making a special study of the habits of fish in caring for their young. Affection is not supposed to be a fishy characteristic, but this expert has found that some of the finny tribes asknowledge some of the responsibilities of parenthood.

In the course of his investigation Dr. Gill has had occasion to look into the manners and morals of a very celebrated Greek fish, the Glanis, and to verify an antique description which for centuries was regarded as damaging to the veracity of the Greek philosopher Aristotle. The results of this study have been published in the natural and physical science series of the George Washington university publications, in one of those pamphlets which serve to call attention to the unique opportunities for special research which are offered by the national capital. The odd little fish is the Glanis and one that has been the subject of much scientific discussion. Centuries ago Aristotle wrote this interesting paragraph which for many centuries was regarded as distinctly a "fish story."

"Of the river fishes, the male Glanis takes great care of its young. For the female, having brought forth, departs, but the male, where the greatest deposit of eggs has been formed, remains by them watching, rendering no other service except keeping off other fishes from destroying the young. He does this for forty of fifty days, until the young are sufficiently grown to escape from the other fishes. And he is known to the fishermen wherever he may chance to be watching his eggs; for he Keeps off the fishes by rushing movements and by making a noise and moaning. And he remains by the eggs with so much of natural affection that the fishermen, when the eggs adhere to deep roots, bring them up to the shallowest place they can; but he does not even then leave his offspring, but if he chance to be a young fish, he is easily taken by the hook, because he snaps at all the fishes that approach him; but if he is already accustomed to this, and has swallowed hooks before, he does not even then desert his young, but breaks the hook by a very strong bite."

Twigs and fallen leaves are employed by other fishes, producing a nest which looks like a mere bundle of river waste but which safely contains the precious eggs. A single species, the stickleback, is equipped with special web making organs to weave a binding thread for the materials selected for the nest.

In discussing the philosophy of this rudimentary parental instinct among fish, Dr. Gill does not attribute its origin to a very high motive, however exalted it may become in its development among higher forms of life. At the outset, he says—"the attitude of parental care must be regarded as an outcome of selfishness, or if you will, self love, a result of the sense of proprietorship. The eggs are the fishes' own and therefore, they and the resulting larvae are to be cared for as such."

LIVING GENERALS OF THE CIVIL WAR

There Will be Fewer of Them Next Thursday Than on Any Memorial Day in the Forty-Two Years Since Appomattox---The Five Oldest Are French, Against Whom Corse "Held the Fort" at Allatoona; Pettus, Stewart, Buckner and Morgan, all Confederates; the Youngest on Either Side is Pennypacker, Federal, Retired Nearly a Quarter Century Ago Because of Desperate Wounds, Who Got His Commission Before He Was 21 Years Old.

Six Noted Indian Fighters Among the Survivors---Miles, Merritt, Howard, Brooke, Grierson and Dodge; "Dan" Sickles, Who Lost a Leg at Gettysburg and Became the So-Called "Yankee King of Spain"; James H. Wilson, Who Built British Fortifications at Alexandria After the War and Fought in China; Simon B. Buckner, Who Ran for Vice-President in 1896---Great Work Done in Peace by the Generals of Both Armies.

NELSON A. MILES, THE BOSTON CLERK WHO BECAME A LIEUTENANT GENERAL.

By DEXTER MARSHALL.

(Copyright, 1907, by Dexter Marshall.)

For years after the close of the Civil war there were hundreds of living general officers, who served in that great struggle; enough to lead the Memorial day parade and make the leading Memorial day address in every great center, North and South.

Today the living Civil war generals may be counted by the score, and their number is lessening rapidly every year.

In the forty-two years since Appomattox, practically every one of them on both sides has lived up to his exceptional reputation won by fighting for the right as he saw it in the sixties. The nation is proud of them, and should be. All honor to the gallant dead! All honor, also, to the gallant federal survivors, general officers, lesser officers and privates alike, who, next Thursday, will pay tribute to their comrades gone before. All honor to the Confederate survivors in the South, who have already done so.

Retired from active life only a year less than a quarter of a century ago because of desperate wounds, Galusha Pennypacker, Union veteran and youngest man on either side to reach the rank of general officer in the great dispute, is now living quietly in Philadelphia.

Writer and cotton planter by occupation, the oldest surviving general of the contest, Samuel G. French, Confederate, is now living at Pensacola, Fla., aged 89, hale and hearty and active for one of his age.

Pennypacker was born June 1, 1844, and was over three years less than 20 when the first call for troops was issued on April 15, 1861, three days after Sumter was fired upon. He hastened to enlist, was made a non-commissioned staff officer of the Ninth Pennsylvania volunteers, and was at the front soon after his 17th birthday.

He was five days less than twenty-one and a full brigadier general of volunteers when Kirby Smith, last of the Confederate commanders to hold out, surrendered on May 26, just forty-two years ago. Pettus was 40 when he went in, a major in the Twentieth regiment of Alabama. He was a brigadier general at the war's close.

Pennypacker first enlisted for three months only, serving in the Shenandoah valley; he re-enlisted "for the war" on Aug. 22, 1861, having won his commission as captain two days before. In the next three years and a half he served in many actions. He was brevetted brigadier general at Fort Fisher on Jan. 15, 1865, where he was well shot to pieces, and his rank was confirmed a month later.

Battered and worn as he was, young Pennypacker—not a West Point man—joined the regular army as a colonel, and planned a long military career. But he had to give up to his wounds in 1883, retiring as brevet major general, United States army. In 1904 he was made a full brigadier general, U. S. A., retired.

French went into the war at 43. He showed desperate bravery, too, and his career was one of the most noteworthy in the war. He was a New Jersey man by birth, and was graduated from West Point in 1843, in time to serve in the Mexican war, which he did with distinction. He resigned and settled down in 1856 at Greenville, Miss., which was his home when not in the field until 1878.

He was chief of ordnance in the Mississippi state army for a while; after joining the Confederate forces he served in Virginia, North Carolina, Mississippi and the Atlanta and Dalton campaign, shelled McClellan's army at Harrison's landing and was one of the principals in the noteworthy fight at Allatoona, on Kenesaw Mountain.

The fame of this action has been perpetuated in "Hold the Fort," one of the most widely sung gospel hymns ever written. On October 4, 1864, Gen. John M. Corse, in command of one of Sherman's divisions on the march to the sea, was in possession of Allatoona Pass. French was headed this way with a strong force. From a distance on the mountainside Sherman himself saw the situation before Corse perceived it, and wigwagged this message: "Hold the pass; I am coming." This encouraged Corse, who withstood the assault. French's most important book is entitled "Two Wars."

Second and fourth in age come the two famous Alabama senators, Edward W. Pettus, 86, and John T. Morgan, three years younger, both of whom live at Selma. Pettus, like French, was in the Mexican war, though he modestly says he didn't work much at it. But he was a great fighter in the Civil war. He went in a major, at 40, and came out a brigadier general. One of his promotions was won in a certain fierce fight when the superior officers of his command lost control and he, rallying the forces, saved the day. At Vicksburg he led a lot of Texans so gallantly in a desperate sortie that they unanimously elected him a Texan. He is a lawyer, has been in the United States senate ten years and will serve another term. One of the wisest, wittiest, most interesting men of the upper house, he is noted for his quaintness and his fondness for plug tobacco, which he uses like a gentleman. Most folk forget that he was ever a general and address him "Senator," but old-timers from his beloved Alabama call him "General," and that warms his heart.

Morgan went in a private and came out a brigadier. He has been in the senate thirty years and will serve six years more. He championed the Nicaraugua canal from the first and was its strongest supporter until the day of its death, his greatest political grief.

He was a lawyer before the war, but was forbidden to practice by the Federal authorities immediately after the close of hostilities. Accordingly he went to farming. One day he met Col. Arthur MacArthur, now a major general, U. S. A., but then colonel commanding at Morgan's home town, Selma. Morgan told the Yankee officer that if called to Washington on certain charges, as he expected to be, Federal troops must guard his smoke house.

"You won't be called," said MacArthur. "Go home and guard your own smoke house. Don't mind the order against your practicing law. You'll never hear of it again."

And he didn't. Morgan's ability to talk measures to death is marvelous. He says he can speak three or four days on a subject he knows all about. On one he knows little of he can speak three or four weeks.

These Generals Indian Fighters.

Several of the surviving Civil war generals on the Union side—among them being Nelson A. Miles, Wesley Merritt, O. O. Howard, John R. Brooke, Bejamin H. Grierson and Grenville M. Dodge—were famous Indian fighters in the seventies and eighties. Only two were West Point men. Merritt was graduated from the military academy in 1860, Howard in 1854.

Miles was a clerk in a Boston store in 1861. He raised a company, spent $2,500—$1,500 borrowed—in equipment, went with it to the front, and, by hard fighting, became a major general of volunteers. Then he entered the regular army as colonel, and again won the major general's rank and more. He commanded an army corps at 25, was in every battle of the Army of the Potomac save one, was thrice wounded, and, at Chancellorsville, was supposed to be hurt mortally. He had charge of Jefferson Davis at Fortress Monroe and Mrs. Davis always held that Miles treated her husband badly.

The legislatures of five states and territories voted thanks to Miles because of his successful campaigns against Chief Joseph, the Bannocks, the Geronimo Apaches and the Indians of Pine Ridge in the '70s, the '80s and '90s. He was at the seat of war while the Greco-Turkish trouble was on and at Queen Victoria's jubilee. His retirement came in 1903, three years after he had been made a lieutenant general. He is now 68.

Retired seven years ago as major general, U. S. A., Merritt, now 71, was one of the so-called "boy generals," Custer, McPherson and Sheridan being the other three. Born in New York, Merritt was brought up in Illinois, where he worked on the farm, set type, wrote articles and prepared to study law, when, without his knowledge, his father got him an appointment at West Point. He won six brevets, from major to major general, for bravery at Gettysburg, Yellow Tavern, Hawes's Shop, Winchester, Fisher's Hill and Five Forks. He commanded the cavalry in the Appomattox campaign and was present under the famous apple tree with Grant and Sheridan when Lee's surrender was received. Merritt was the hero of two or three sensational rides while figthing the Indians, his rescue of Major Thornburg's command, after the White River massacre and the major's death, being most thrilling. In 1898 he was designated by President McKinley, who fought under him as a major, to take charge of the forces in the Philippines, and later was sur summoned to ald the Paris commission in making the treaty of peace.

Now 68, and on his retirement, five years ago, a major general, U. S. A., Brooke went to the front in 1861, when 23, from his father's farm, near Philadelphia, a captain in the Fourth Pennsylvania and won the rank of brigadier of volunteers by way of Fair Oaks, Chickahominy, Gaines Mills, Peach Orchard, Gettysburg, Round Top, Chancellorship, Spottsylvania and Petersburg. After the war he joined the regulars. His best known Indian fighting was in the Big Horn and Yellowstone campaign of 186. He had charge of the troops at Chickamauga in 1898, and later was sent to Porto Rico, of which he was made military governor, still later serving in like capacity in Cuba.

Dodge, now 76, better known for his work since than during the Civil war, although his deeds in the Southwest made him a brigadier general by 1865. He still carries a scar from a wound received at Atlanta. Although of Massachusetts birth, he entered the army from Council Bluffs, Iowa, which had been headquarters of his ante-bellum, trans-Missouri railroad surveys and explorations. He remained in the army awhile after the war, and did some lively Indian fighting in 1866. Then he resigned to pick up railroad work again.

His construction of the Union Pacific as chief engineer gave him worldwide fame. He has done a good deal of railroad building since finishing the Union Pacific. Although he has maintained his home at Council Bluffs he has been a prominent figure in New York most of the time.

Grierson's Indian fighting was done in the Southwest mainly, and extended over twenty years. He was a major general of volunteers when the war closed, having won that rank by raids in Mississippi. He is 81, was retired as brigadier general, U. S. A., in 1890. He lives at Jacksonville, Ill.

Howard, best remembered as the head of the Freedman's bureau in the nine years following the war, is living out his old age at Burlington, Vt. He is 76. After leaving West Point he was sent to fight the Seminoles in Florida. He was present at the first battle of Bull Run; he commanded a division at Antietam and Fredericksburg, an army corps at Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Missionary Ridge and Chattanooga; led the right wing of Sherman's army in its march to the sea and became commander of the army and department of Tennessee in 1864, when he was made a full brigadier general.

In 1875 he was stationed in the Pacific northwest, where, in 1877, he commanded the Nez Perce campaign and the Bannock war in 1878. He was retired a major general in 1894, but gave much time and attention to the camps at Tampa, Mobile and Chicamague in 1898. He has written as well as fought, and is strongly religious.

"The Yankee King of Spain."

Now living in New York as he did before the war, Daniel E. Sickles, 82, was a major general in 1869, when retired. Educated at the University of New York, he became a journeyman printer, then a lawyer, and then a politician, holding various state offices. Soon after his marriage to Teresa Baglioli, a young Italian girl, he was appointed secretary of legation at London, under Buchanan, then minister.

Buchanan ran for the presidency in 1856. Sickles returned to this country, and, next year, went to Washington, a member of the lower house. Philip Barton Key, whose father wrote the "Star Spangled Banner," became Mrs. Sickles lover. Sickles shot him to death, was tried for murder, and acquitted under "the high law," Edwin M. Stanton being his chief counsel.

At the beginning of the war Sickles raised a brigade, was commissioned colonel and fought desperately. He was corps comander at Gettysburg, where he covered himself with glory and lost his right leg, yet remained in active service. In 1869 President Grant made him minister to Spain, which place he filed till 1873. Isabella had been dethroned in 1868 and Spain was in a turmoil. Amadeus, the Italian duke of Aosta, and father of the present duke of Abruzzi—explorer and mountain climber—was king from 1870 to 1873. Meanwhile Sickles had taken a Spanish woman for his second wife, and was a man of such prominence that the prime minister, Castelar, often appealed to him for support.

In return Castelar followed his advice so closely that Sickles was nicknamed "The Yankee King of Spain." He returned home when Amadeus abdicated to make way for the republic. Sickles's recall was caused by his attitude on the "Virginius affair." He wanted to send an army to Cuba and force the fight which finally came in 1898.

The career of James H. Wilson, 70 next September, and now a resident of Wilmington, Del., has been full of big romances. He was graduated from West Point as an engineer in 1860. Soon after Sumter was fired on he attracted Grant's attention and laid out lines for the sieges of Corinth and Vicksburg for which he got his brigadier's commission when only a little past 23. He did things continually after that until Appomattox, and "closed the war" by the race through Alabama and Georgia which ended in Jefferson Davis' capture.

In 1870 he was stationed in the Pacific northwest, where, in 1877, he commanded the Nez Perce campaign and the Bannock war in 1878. He was retired a major general in 1894, but gave much time and attention to the camps at Tampa, Mobile and Chicamague in 1898. He has written as well as fought, and is strongly religious.

In 1870, he left the army and on Grant's recommendation went to Egypt. There he laid out some of the permanent fortifications around Alexandria and Cairo that saved the British when Arabi Pasha revolted. Wilson then returned home to build railroads.

When the Spanish war came he reentered the army as a major general of volunteers, commanding a corps in the occupation of Cuba and in the Porto Rico campaign. When the expedition to Pekin for the relief of the legations was organized he went as commander, headed the combined American and British forces in the capture of eight temples, and was placed in control of the Imperial City's entrances. When King Edward was crowned Wilson attended the coronation officially, and, in 1901, because of distinguished services, was placed on the army retired list. He helped Charles A. Dana write his "Life of Grant," has just publish- a "Life of Dana," and has written several important books besides.

ing in peace at $4, at Rio, Hart county, Kentucky, where he was born.

He left the Military academy in 1844, at 21, and entered the Mexican war as lieutenant. He was wounded at Cherubusco, and won his captain's rank at Molino del Rey. He resigned from the army in 1855, and organized the Kentucky State guards. President Lincoln tried to get him to join with the North, but he would not, although Kentucky did not secede. He performed great services for the Confederate cause.

He was one of the three generals—Floyd and Pillow being the others, in charge at Fort Donelson in February, 1862, when it was invested by Grant. Floyd and Pillow, with part of the command, withdrew, leaving Buckner, against his judgment, to defend the fortification. On the 16th, when Grant demanded "unconditional surrender," Buckner yielded, rather than sacrifice his men uselessly. This was so obviously the right thing that it added much to his fame. Taken prisoner of war, he was exchanged in 1863. After that he showed exceptional qualities at Stone Hill, Murfreesboro and Chickamauga, and was made a lieutenant general.

After the war Buckner was a newspaper editor, first in New Orleans and then in Louisville; then he went into business. He called on Gen. Grant when the latter lay dying at Mount McGregor, and this caused the latter to declare that he was at last convinced of reconciliation between the North and the South.

Gen. Buckner was governor of his state in 1887-91, and ran for vice president on the gold Democratic ticket in 1896. His hobby is road making.

Francis Marion Cockrell, better known to the present generation as United States senator from Missouri for thirty years than as a soldier, and now a member of the interstate commerce commission, was one of the best known fighters on the Confederate side. He is a native of Missouri, 73 years old, and entered the Confederate army in 1861, serving till the end, when he was a brigadier general. He was retired as senator by the Republican tidal wave of 1904.

At 75, George W. C. Lee, son of Gen. Robert E. Lee, and West Pointer of 1854, who served as aide de camp on Jefferson Davis' staff, and rose to be a major general, is now living in retirement at Burke, Va. He succeeded his famous father as president of Washington and Lee university in 1871, serving till 1897.

The only living Civil war general who holds high ecclesiastical place today is Ellison Capers, Episcopal bishop of the diocese of South Carolina, now 70. He was twice wounded—at Chickamauga in 1863, and at Franklin, Tenn., in 1864—and came out a brigadier. He did not enter the ministry until he was 30. He lives at Columbia.

Big Confederates in Civil Life.

Gen. Francis T. Nicholas, West Pointer of 1855, native Louisianan, now 72, who lost an arm at Winchester, where he was captured, and a foot at Chancellorsville, has been one of his state's most prominent citizens ever since the Civil war. He saw active service in the Seminole war before the great struggle, but when it broke out was practicing law. After the awr he took up law again at Assumption, and went into politics. In 1876 he was declared elected governor, but the Hayes returning board declared declared otherwise. However, he took his seat and served out his term. He was also governor in 1888, and vetoed a bill renewing the charter of the Louisiana state lottery, thus dealing the death blow to that institution. He was made chief justice of his state in 1892, and is still at the head of Louisiana's judiciary.

Three noted Confederates are now commissioners of national parks—Lieut. Gen. Stephen D. Lee, Vicksburg; Maj. Gen. Lunsford L. Lomax, Gettysburg; Alexander P. Stewart, Chickamauga. All these are West Point men of 1842, 1856 and 1854, respectively. Lee was prominent in the defense of Vicksburg. He was made general commander of the United Confederate Veterans in 1904. He is 74. Lomax is 72. Stewart will be 86 next November.

Three other big Confederate generals, Edward P. Alexander—"E. P."—West Point, 1857; Thomas L. Rosser, West Point, 1861, and Robert F. Hoke, have made fame as railroad men since the war, Alexander as president of the Georgia Central and Rosser is chief engineer of the Northern Pacific and Canadian Pacific railroads. Rosser was a brigadier general, U. S. V., in the Spanish war. He retired to his estate, near Charlottesville, Va., after it was over. Alexander lives in Augusta, Ga., but has a big rice plantation in South Carolina. He was a college professor from 1866 to 1870. Hoke, who was a major general, lived at Raleigh, N. C., is 71, surrendered with Johnston on as presidentthreknnar Theajshrdlu ,. April 26, 1865, and is best known as president of the Seaboard Aair Line system.

Maj. Gen. Matthew C. Butler, who lost a leg at Brandy Station, was a senator from South Carolina in 1877-79. He is a lawyer, and at 71 is living at Washington. He was made a major general, U. S. V., in the Spanish war.

"The Brains of John H. Morgan," as Brig. Gen. Basil W. Duke was often termed, who took part in Morgan's famous thousand-mile raid and has published much Confederate literature, has spent most of his later life in Louisville, where he is still living and practicing law.

The youngest Confederate general officer, George P. Harrison, prominent in law, business and politics in his state ever since the Civil war, is now living at Opelika, Ala. He became a soldier at 20 and is now 66. Brig. Gen. Eppa Hunton, who was a representative in congress from 1873 to 1881, and a United States senator from 1892 to 1895, is practicing law at Richmond, Va., at 85. Ten years younger, Brig. Gen. George D. Johnston, a United States civil service commissioner in 1892, is a lawyer at Tuscaloose, Ala.

Brig. Gen. Clement A. Evans of Atlanta, who surrendered with Lee, and Maj. Gen. vander M. Law of Bartow, Fla., who has written much on the war, are lawyers. Eighty years old, a West Point graduate of 1850, engaged in building forts in the Comanche and Kiowa Indian country in 1861, Brig. Gen. William L. Cabell is now practicing law at Dallas, Tex. He has been mayor of the city four times.

The Hero of Fort Fisher.

"The Hero of Fort Fisher," Brig. Gen. N. M. Custis, who led the attack on that Confederate stronghold, near Wilmington, N. C., Jan. 13-15, 1865, where "Bob" Evans did great fighting and Pennypacker, "the youngest general," won his commission, has made Ogdenburg, N. Y., his home since the war, but spends much time in New York and is often in Washington. He is 6 feet 6 inches, hale and hearty at 71, and was postmaster at De Peyster, N. Y., his birthplace, when the Civil war broke out. He was made captain in the Sixteenth New York infantry and rose steadily, being a brigadier general in 1865. Thrice he was wounded and once was supposed to be dead. Since the war he has been prominent in public life, serving awhile in congress and has done some writing, mostly on Civil war topics.

At 74, Gen. Thomas H. Ruger, who suppressed the New York draft riots in 1863, is a resident of Stamford, Conn. He went to West Paint from Wisconsin, though born in New York state, and was graduated in 1854, but in 1861 was practicing law at Janesville. He raised a regiment, went to the front as lieutenant colonel and won rank after rank by bravery at Franklin, Tenn.; Gettysburg, and on various other battlefields. After the war he joined the regulars, was military governor of Georgia, held other important posts, and was retired a major general, U. S. A., in 1897.

Maine's Most Active Citizen.

Brig. Gen. Joshua L. Chamberlain, only a year less than 80, has been active in more ways since the war, perhaps, than any other of Maine's citizens. He lives at Brunswick, is a Bowdoin graduate, and didn't go to war until until 1862, when he was commissioned a lieutenant colonel. He made up for lost time by fighting with the zeal of half a dozen. He was wounded repeatedly, once near to death, and was conspicuous at Petersburg and the surrender of Lee. Since 1865 he has been governor, major general of militia, a professor at Bowdoin college, author of many important books and actively interested in public affairs generally.

Brig. Gen. Cyrus Bussey, now a lawyer, but chief of cavalry at Vicksburg, not a West Pointer, is living at Washington, aged 74. Ohioan by birth, Iowan by adoption, Democratic in politics, he was a member of the Baltimore convention that nominated Douglass. He raised the Third Iowa Volunteer cavalry regiment and became its colonel. He defeated Stonewall Jaeckon at Canton on July 18, 1863, and the last year of the war commanded the third division of the Seventh army corps. In 1889 he was made assistant secretary of the interior and served four years through Harrison's administration.

Elected United States senator from Mississippi in 1870 and governor of the state in 1873, from which office he resigned in 1876, Brig. Gen. Adelbert Ames is now living at Lowell, Mass., at 72. He was a West Point graduate in 1861, advanced rapidly to the brigadier's rank in the war and remained in the army as lieutenant colonel, serving in Mississippi until 1868, when he was appointed provincial governor. He rejoined the army in 1898 to serve in the Spanish war.

These are the surviving Civil war generals who were best known in the contest and have been most prominent since; but there are others, not to mention those who were generals by brevet when Lee surrendered, but did not receive commissions as general officers until the contest was over, such as Gen. Horace Porter. Gen. Joseph W. Keifer, Gen. Alexander C. Pennington and a score or more besides. A braver, truer, more soldierly lot of men is not to be found in any land today.

DEDICATION CEREMONIES FOR NEW TRINITY PRO-CATHEDRAL

Will Mark Successful End of Most Energetic Campaign.

Services Will be Held by Bishop and His Assistants.

One of the most beautiful services ever held in Duluth will take place tomorrow morning, when the new Trinity Pro-cathedral of the Episcopal church will be dedicated. The dedication ceremonies will be most impressive and the combined vested choirs of two Episcopal churches of Duluth and Superior will assist in the musical program.

The dedication address will be delivered by Bishop J. D. Morrison, and besides the dedication ceremony there will be confirmation services and the ordaining of two deacons and one priest. The two deacons are Thomas R. Elleeson, well known in Duluth on account of his connection with the St. John's church at Lakeside, and William Wolner. Rev. G. Otis Wright, who is now in charge of the Episcopal church at Staples, Minn., will be ordained.

The service will begin at 10:30 a. m., and the combined choirs of St. John's church at Lakeside, and at St. Alban's at Superior, will sing. The members of these two choirs will march into the church at 10:30, preceded by the crucifer and the bishop and chaplain, with the pastoral staff bringing up the rear. The music for the service is under the direction of Mrs. Stevan H. Jones, Mrs. Woodward and A. H. Deeks, organist. The choir will sing two anthems appropriate to the occasion.

The new pro-cathedral is one of the most handsome church edifices at the Head of the Lakes, and its total cost amounts to about $30,000. Theodore Nauffts of this city was the builder, while the architect was William Sutcliffe of Chicago, a man who has a national reputation as a planner of ecclesiastical buildings. His plans were revised by the firm of Bray & Nystrom of Duluth.

It is a very imposing church from an exterior point of view, and is situated on the hill at the corner of Twentieth avenue east and Superior street. It is constructed of red pressed brick. Inside there is a commodious auditorium and offices of a comfortable size for the bishop and the dean on the main floor. In the crypt, or basement, there is a large Sunday school room, well equipped choir room, kitchen, guild room, diocesan library and chapel.

The interior is finnished throughout with the mission style of architecture and finishings. There is an open woodwork roof, rood screen and mission furniture. The wainscoting is something unusual, being built of Roman-shaped pressed brick. Half of the block upon which the church is situated is owned by the members of the institution, and when improved it will be one of the most beautiful spots in the city.

The history of the building up of this church and the erecting of this splendid edifice is not a long one. The first mission at the East end was started by a number of the people of that district in the year 1901. A Sunday school was organized and meetings were held in the old car barns of the street car company. Soon afterward six lots at the corner of Twentieth avenue and Superior street were purchased by Bishop Morrison, but services were still held in the building which stood at the corner for two years. The mission was under the direction of St. John's church, Lakeside, until 1905 when it had gained enough in membership to be self supporting.

At that time a call was extended to Rev. Arthur Wurtele of New York and he came to take charge of the work. Rev. Wurtele was formally inducted on June 25, 1905, and at once began a vigorous campaign to strengthen the parish. It was soon discovered that the chapel facilities were far too small. The car barns were not large enough to accommodate the growing congregations and an appeal was made to East end people and Duluthians in general for assistance and funds with which to erect a pro-cathedral.

A campaign for subscriptions was started and soon resulted in getting a fair sized sum to start the building of the new church with. This sum kept on growing, subscriptions coming in from all parts of the city, and fianally the plans for the new church and the contract for its construction were accepted. On Sept. 29 of last year the corner stone of the building was laid by Bishop Morrison.

The building committee, which was in direct charge of the work, was composed of Sheldon L. Frazer, John W. Lyder, Jr., and R. B. Knox. This committee was, of course, assisted by Bishop Morrison, Rev. Wurtelo and other members of the chapter.

The acoustic properties of the church are said to be excellent. A pin dropped at the altar can be plainly heard when all is quiet, at the rear end of the church. A number of memorial gifts have been presented and are displayed in the church, including a handsome altar cross, candelabra and processional cross. None of the pews of the church will be sold or rented, but regular worshippers may occupy the same pews if they wish.

THE POPE'S SIMPLE HABITS

Rome, May 25.—The pope has just dismissed two more cooks who were employed in the Vatican since the time of Leo XIII. As soon as he was elected the pope noticed that seven cooks were employed in the kitchens of the Vatican palace, and is quoted as having said: "What is the use of having seven cooks to make a little broth for a poor man?" Forthwith five of the cooks were dismissed, and Pius X, who is very fond of eating the same viands to which he was accustomed in his youth, obtained from Venice the two cooks who served him when he was patriarch of Venice and who knew his tastes. The Venetian chef is in full charge, assisted only by three persons who attend to minor details.

The desire of the pope to obtain a Venetian chef is not at all an indication that he wishes elaborate meals. The only thing he takes before noon is a cup of coffee and milk. At noon he indulges in the heaviest meal of the day, with his private secretaries, with whom he engages always in constant conversation as long as he is at the table.

Pius X, following in part the ancient custom which does not allow a pope to sit at the same table with any one but a sovereign, has a table of his own standing on a small platform about six inches from the floor and facing the table at which his secretaries are seated. Thus he is able to conform to ceremonials and to have company at dinner.

The most enjoyable meal for the pope is supper about 8 in the evening, because the business of the day is over and the pope is able to discuss matters with his intimate prelates. His meal is not much to speak of, frequently consisting of a little salad and a couple of hard boiled eggs, notwithstanding the fact that the Vatican larder is generally furnished with everything that is best and most desirable. To have an idea of the resources of the Vatican kitchen it is enough to remember that nearly every sovereign of Europe sends every year to the pope some of the best delicacies to be found in his realm, the emperor of Austria having for over thirty years made a habit of furnishing the Vatican with the celebrated Tokay wine and with cigars of the best quality. Even non-Catholic sovereigns, such as the king of England and Sweden and the emperor of Russia, never forget to send some sort of offering in the shape of food or drink. It is very seldom that the pope drinks wine.

After supper the pope generally stops to converse with his intimate prelates, but has made it a rule to go to bed before 10:30, unless the cares of his position should require him to stay up longer.

The late Pope Leo XIII. had quite different habits regarding sleep, and many times his attendants found him reading books or newspapers as late as 2 in the morning. In fact, one night, Cardinal Rampolla, the former secretary of state, who had received an important message from abroad, went to the papal apartment at 1 o'clock in the morning and asked the attendant to awaken the pope, as the matter was important. All he got for his zeal was a halberd thrust on the chest from the Swiss guard, who had been instructed by the pope himself not to allow anyone to enter his apartment. The screams of the cardinal aroused the pope, who was deep in his reading, and he opened the door to find his chief assistant nearly murdered.

When Pius X. retires at 10:30 o'clock, every one in the Vatican palace knows that no business is important enough to justify disturbing him. At 5 o'clock in the morning his personal attendants, of whom there are four, and who place the cots on which they sleep across the door of the pope's bedroom, in order to protect him from possible danger, enter and awaken him. At 6 o'clock the pope is ready to say mass in his private chapel and two of his most intimate prelates, Mgr. Bressan and Mgr. Pescini, attend him and serve the mass. After a short prayer the pope partakes of his scanty breakfast and then is ready for a walk in the gardens, which he considers his principal enjoyment.

At 9 o'clock the pope is back in his apartments and there he meets the secretary of state, Cardinal Merry del Val, with his mail and papers. Notwithstanding the system of furnishing the pope with only important clippings of all papers, pasted in a scrap book, Pius X. has always insisted on seeing some of the papers in their entirety and these are brought to him every morning.

The hard work of the pope really begins when the cardinal secretary of state leaves him at about 10 o'clock in the morning. Then the secretaries of the Roman congregation must be received. Sometimes their audiences only lasts a few minutes, sometimes hours, but it is necessary that the pope shall see them, no matter how busy he is.

After the prelates have all had their interviews with the pope, there comes Mgr. Bisleti, the papel major domo, and tells who is waiting for a public or private audience.

When the Angelus bell rings at noon from the towers of St. Peter's, the pope kneels to say his prayers and is ready for his dinner and a little recreation and rest.

WHEN SOUTH MEETS SOUTH.

At the dinner of a Southern society of New York two women met who had not seen each other for twelve years. Both were married, but each addressed the other with the prefix of "Miss," says the New York Sun.

This caused a New York woman who was present to put on an inquisitive look. Later in the evening the New Yorker heard an explanation about like this:

"We were both single when we saw each other last in the Palmetto state. It was the custom in the South for women to be called by their given name instead of by the family name.

"So general was the custom that women observed it, one toward the other, and of course, the servants always addressed the mistress of the house as 'Miss,' adding the given name. While it was not a universal custom for one woman to address another who was married as 'Miss,' it was so frequently done that no umbrage was ever taken thereat."

The New York woman in repeating this explanation to a friend from Connecticut, said:

"I must say that the custom seemed refreshing. It had a flavor of the simon pure aristocracy of the South. When these people came together, as I saw them at that dinner, their conversations are interesting to me where I am only a listener.

"However high spirited a genuine Southern woman may be when the social parade is on, she is sweet simplicity and charmingly unaffected when off guard and communicating with one from her own part of the country. I recall some snatches of talk I heard that evening.

"For example: One elaborately gowned creature said to another:

"'Ma couldn't come as I had hoped, 'cause, you know, it was about time to turn the carpets. She adheres to that dear old custom. They call it housecleaning up here. You know the rug has not yet invaded the South as it has the North. Nearly every Southern home still has carpets, and twice a year they are taken up, renovated, and unless they are the Brussels or Axminster make, they are turned when they are replaced. Hence the term, turnin' the carpet. The darkies understand it.'

"'You don't know how that bit of home talk made me yearn to take the woman who said it by the hand. Equally interesting, but a little more amusing, was a colloquy between a man and woman. He grabbed her hand as a man would grab a pump handle and said:

"'Why, howdy, Miss ——,' and she was a married woman, too. And then he continued: 'It makes my mouth water to see you again. I do declare, for it makes me think of the last time when I was at your house on the old plantation, when your ma was superintending the darkies that were puttin' up preserves. And your ma would insist on my eating some of the preserves before I left.'

"'What did the lofty lady reply?

'You must come down again right soon, for ma still has some of the same in the pantry, and always has.'

"During the entire evening while I was there never a word about literature, music, art or tennis. Not because such subjects are foreign to those dear, delightful folks, but because when they come together they like to talk as they talked at home. But maybe I am a bit partial to this sort of thing because I married a Southerner."

SCANDINAVIA AND SCOTLAND

Once Joined Together by Land, North Channel Not Being in Existence---Important Conclusions Reached by Dr. Stejneger.

Dr. Leonhard Stejneger, a curator of the United States National museum, as a result of thorough studies into the animal and plant life of Norway and Sweden, he brought forward strong evidence that not very long ago, as geologists reckon time, there must have been land connection between the Scandinavian peninsula and the British isles. The idea, for a number of years a possibility in the mind of Dr. Stejneger, led him recently to look into this theory from the point of view of a student of biology. His conclusions, which are important in their scope to the scientific world, are just published by the Smithsonian institution.

If the proposition that there was land between Scandinavia and Scotland is true, and Dr. Stejneger goes far towards establishing it, a vital step in the geologic history of Europe has been proven. Many problems of the migrations of prehistoric man and animals which have puzzled students ever since people began to wonder about their remote ancestors, are now solved. The botanist, too, can account for the presence of what he calls the "Atlantic" and "Arctatlantic" plants in western Norway—the holy, liverwort, anemone, and kindred species. Even the ornithologist may now conjure up the past history of a number of families of birds which he knows did not begin their existence upon the rocky shores of Norway. The former habitats of insects—bumble-bees and moths—and in fact of very many sorts of animals and plants, in the light of this well-grounded suggestion, may be much more acurately plotted.

As the future of plants and animal life can be pudged only by its past, any conclusions that may be drawn from a study of the history of flora and fauna before man began his observations, may prove essential to the welfare of the people who come after us. This in a nutshell is the phase of Dr. Stejneger's work which is imediately of practical importance.

Dr. Stejneger is very guarded in his statements. He refers frequently in support of his views to the opinions of eminent geologists and explorers who have held that at some time the continent of Europe extended much farther into the Atlantic than it does today.

The observations which led Dr. Stejneger to conclude that the north channel between Scotland and the continent at one time was not in existence, are those of a biologist and a botanist. His principal arguiment, though by no means his only one, is based upon studies of the peculiarities of the Celtic horse. Its presence in that portion of Europe both on the mainland and on the islands, is presumptive of land conections over which the animals in days past were enabled to travel.

But his observations, of course, are not limited to this one species of horse, for the springing up, in the early days of the advent of man's ingenuity, of sea transportation may have furnished means for unnatural migrations. Specimens of red and Atlantic deer, of reindeer, of squirrels and red-backed mice, and even of the extinct mammoth, have been studied in this connection. These animals would not have been influenced by the construction of any ancient boats, however, crude.

The regions of the air have been searched for evidence. Several kinds of birds whose habits do not lead them across bodies of water as wide as the north channel are the result of this search. The mountain linnet, or twite, the rock pipit, the ptarmigan, and the rock dove, Scotch and Norwegian species almost exclusively, give material support to this view.

In turning from the animal kingdom to the realms of plants, Dr. Stejneger was greatly aided by an axiom of scientific research—that certain animals and certain plants are seldom found apart. In other words, if kind of plant is essential for the food of a kind of animal, the presence of the animal is prima facie evidence of the presence of the plant. Climatic conditions, too, serve to determine the presence of both animals and plants.

Similarly from the beds of insects, and even earth-worms, the investigator has drawn material to show that at some time portions of that part of Europe now weighted down by tons of ocean water, were once the grassy ranges of many forms of animals and perhaps of man.

By referring to the conclusions of geologists, Dr. Stejenger suggests that a great mass of ice, one of the glacial invasions known to students of the earth's make-up, swept over these fields, pressed them down by its weight, and receding, left them far below the surface of the ocean. Such birds and beasts and plants as survived the Arctic onslaught still live to perpetuate their kind upon shores now separated by 170 miles of water.

NOT FOR POOR BOYS.

Macmillan's Magazine: The parents of Eton boys are mainly of easy fortune, and the education for those who will be financially independent is probably the best given; for a youth so unfortunate as to seek immediate employment after it, it may be the worst. To make it answer both purposes is to require it to fulfil some mutually exclusive conditions, and the moral seems to be that until it ceases to be a suitable place of education for the rich, the poor should avoid it. For just as an excellent duellist with the pistol does not find his skill available when he has suddenly to descend unarmed into a street brawl, so must Eton under present conditions inevitably be an unsuitable school for direct hand-to-hand competition in the making of money, a fact which parents and other critics will do well to realize.

DEEP ENGLISH COLLIERIES.

Westminster Gazette: Colliers employed in certain pits in the Manchester district are now working half a mile below ground. There are collieries in Ashton, Bradford (Manchester) and Pendleton which are more than half a mile in depth, and others are about to be sunk in other parts of Southern Lancashire which will be 2,000 yards down. The men working at these great depths have to take huge quantities of liquid with them, owing to the great heat which prevails, many of them taking two quarts of cold tea in big tin cans. The Pendleton pit of Messrs. A. Knowles is more than 1,100 yards in depth.

UNAPPRECIATED GIFT.

South China Post: A story which to Western minds may savor of ingratitude reaches us from one of the northern ports. It appears that among a large quantity of foodstuff consigned to the famine-stricken people in China by American sympathizers were thousands of cheeses. It is asserted that the Chinese as a race abhor cheese, and the result is that in some of the northern places there is a glut of this commodity at present. Big cheeses—once so rare—are now procurable for 60 cents each.

BRITISH BUSINESS MORALITY.

Drapers' Record: It is not to be denied that our commercial ethics need bracing up. The secret commission, the direct bribe, the many-headed monster "treating," the masked present, all these form an obstacle in the path of honest and direct business. They may seem harmless little practices enough carried out on a small scale, but in the bulk they represent a formidable element which has a perceptible effect on business generally.

WHATS WHAT IN THE SPORTING WORLD

By Naughton and Ye Sporting Scribe.

They're Off.

Well, they're off in the pennant race, and the Sox have a nice running start. They have made good "Smiley" Smith's assertion that one can never tell what a ball team will do, judging by their performances in exhibition games. The Wisconsin State leaguers walked all over the Sox and effaced their snow-white purity by a covering of mud and mire in the exhibition games. The knockers knocked and then hammered some more, and Smiley Smith just smiled and said he was trying out the men and didn't care whether the team won or lost. Then those same Sox came home, took Houghton out to Athletic park, and beat their heads off, figuratively speaking. Four out of five was the portion of the boys under Smith's wing. They didn't play brilliant ball, but they played just good enough ball to win.

The members of the tuneful anvil chorus, who were gleefully swinging the weights over their heads in preparation for an active campaign when the league season opened, dropped their hammers in surprise when the Sox carried away the first game. They gasped when Smiley's boys made it two, and incontinently took to fight when it was three straight. They smiled some when Houghton took one, but they have been in deep, dark, dismal dismay since.

Smith's men have certainly started well, and every man who claims to know baseball and wants to see a Duluth team win should be out and yell for them. Stay with them, for they are playing the game. They will lose—there never was a ball team which didn't, for if one team won all of the games there would be no use for a pennant race. Boosting encourages ball players, and the heartier the boost the harder they will play to merit more of its kind. While the boys are playing the right kind of ball there will be no change in the team. It's all right as it is at present, for the pitchers are working well and every man on the team is backing them up. Some of the men will have an off day, but look for them to come back strong the next day, and perhaps you'll not be disappointed.

Knocking the League.

That blow, which Third Baseman Sundheim of the Houghton team, dealt to Umpire Nolan Tuesday did more than send the handler of the indicator to the gravel. It was a blow dealt to the entire league and the officials will have heaps of trouble smoothing it over so that it will not hurt the attendance. When people go to ball games, they pay to see baseball, not prize fights. Fortunately, the crowd at Tuesday's game was small, but such an incident would be just as likely to happen with the park filled to its capacity.

It was an unfortunate incident all around. Of course the blow was struck in the heat of passion and Sundheim regretted it afterwards. But the settlement of disputes by blows on the ball field is entirely out of place. A man who has played ball for years, taking abuse from spectators and unfairness from umpires, should be able to curb his temper and check himself from doing anything which will hurt himself, his club and the league. Players ought to know that kicking on decisions doesn't get them anything. They may kick until they end their shoes over into the next township, but a good umpire will seldom change his decision. If the point at issue is one of baseball law, well and good. Get the book and show the umpire. If he is wrong, he is bound to change his decision, but a man umpiring in an organized league is supposed to know the rules so well that any such occasion should not arise. But rowdyism and physical attacks on the umpire are only outbreaks of the primeval spirit of revenge and are not in keeping with the standard, which the national game has attained.

It is within the power of the managers of the teams to prevent a recurrence of the Sundheim incident. Let the league officials, in the first place, furnish competent men. Pay them enough, and get men who know the game and can maintain discipline on the field. Then let the manager instruct his men not to dispute decisions under penalty. Give the captain the right to dispute decisions which he thinks contrary to the rules, but if the umpire can't see he's wrong, protest the game and resume play. Cut out all long arguments and altercations and the league will be more certain of success than if the people fear to attend, lest they be treated to a disgraceful spectacle. The teams will be just as far ahead if they forget their rowdy tactics and the fans will be much more pleased.

Kick Out Rowdyism.

The English and Baseball.

W'y bline me b'eyes, but the Lunnon Daily News is rippin' roarin' mad. In the most severe language, which the staid and sedate gentleman who follows the doings of the cricket players and association footballists can bring to his command, Nelson P. Cooke, the American, who introduced baseball into the United Kingdom is branded as the "arch instigator of baseball" an enemy of English sports and a proselytizer, whose activities threaten to disrupt the ranks of English sportsmen.

Mr. Cooke mildly admits the impeachment. But, he says, he doesn't want to turn Englishmen from their own games altogether, to adopt the American national sport. He wishes to introduce it into England and let it do its own work toward making converts. He doesn't look for football to die, but he wants baseball to thrive across the water.

And he will probably be successful. The British Baseball league, with six clubs, was organized last year and a tournament held as a sort of an experiment. The English people seemed to take to the game and it wil be promoted on a more extensive scale this year. The English will not be able to save themselves. Baseball grips with a fascination, which no true lover of clean sport can resist. The English like wholesome sport and there is no better game played in any country than our own national game. The English will adopt it just as other countries have and soon "Break 'is blawsted neck," "Kill the bloomin' robber," "E's a thief," and like cries will be hurled at the umpire from the bleachers in dear old Lunnontown.

The English Fan.

The Padded Mits.

The following by Gym Bagley, a New York sporting writer, should go down in the history of the prize ring as a classic. It has a ring to it, which will be appreciated by those who follow the fighting game. Bagley knows whereof he speaks and his defense of the game is well taken:

"Dear Mr. Bagley: What I want to know is: One good reason why boxing, or prize fighting, should exist as a pastime or form of amusement. To be explicit, why the American public should pay a great sum of money annually to see two almost naked near-humans pummel each other until one or the other is rendered helpless, or made unconscious. Why the victor is regarded as a sort of popular hero, and many thousands of other humans, more clever and intelligent than he, are allowed to pass into oblivion without a chance to 'make good.' Why other and more manly, clever and intelligence-requiring games are allowed to stand behind this more vulgar and animal-like practice (not game, or sport).

"I'm not one of these Spring Reformers, nor am I in any way antagonistic to a good, manly game. I myself am one of them. I have often sat at a ring-side and yelled my head off at the sight of two untrained youngsters striving to kill each other. I have seen some 'champions' fight, and, to make a confession, have taken a momentary delight in watching a man reel about the ring, his face cut and bruised and bleeding, his hands helpless at his sides, and have often cheered at such an animal exhibition of human endurance, called 'gameness.'

"But I am getting older. I am seeing the world through the dignified eyes of Assistant Bookkeeper, and it seems to me that the public is being imposed upon by a crowd of Larry Artists who are imposing upon that animal part of man that craves excitement, and are pushing at them a game that should have passed away with the passing away of barbarianism. Very respectfully yours,

"JAMES S. BRADY."

"Mr. Brady has placed me somewhat in the position of Mark Antony, who, standing over the murdered body of his pal, Julius Caesar, was compelled to go on record with the murderers—'Either one of two things you must account me, a coward or a flatterer.'

"I have continually and consistently advocated fighting as a sport. I use the term 'fighting' instead of 'boxing' because I mean fighting. And there is a distinction. A boxing match may be a game for babies to play at, but a fight is a fight, and for men.

"And yet I entirely agree with Mr. Brady.

"This is not a retraction. I am still in the ring.

"That two men, or boys, should strike each other with their fists and inflict hurts, either for hire, amusement or glory, is one of the absurdities of our civilization. But that whole civilization is absurd. Ridiculous custom puts a hard cloth pot on our heads to make us bald. It chokes us with a starched collar. It coops us up in darkened walls where sun and air are strangers. It makes the man who has nothing pay the man who has everything.

"Fighting is a necessity of this absurd civilization because you can't get your bone unless you fight for it. The time may come when we will reason with logic instead of a club, but it isn't here yet. And if, as it is, fighting is the art preservative of our daily portion, then the art must have a school wherein it's taught.

"The boxing bouts form that school, and the teachers are worthy of their hire.

"We have progressed. Civilization is not so absurd as it used to be. We don't get that bone now by physical force, per se, but it is the same old fight in our natures that acts as the moving spirit, contention is the visible expression of that fight germ. And we pay to see two men contend with their fists because the germ is in our soul. We would like to be in the ring ourselves mussing up God's handiwork, but circumstances prevent and we explode our wish in looking on.

"I said we had progressed. Yes, from the knife and the pistol to the lesser hurts of the fist. And that is progression. Sometime, perhaps, when Mr. Brady and the rest of us are growing white whiskers in the regions of the blest, this foolish world will have progressed further and instead of the fist, will work off its fight germ over a struggle at checkers.

"But that time won't come till the pilgrim from Troy and the Pompey on Broadway and Forty-second street go to bed together without worrying who will wake up first in the morning."

The Saliva Sphere.

The spit ball is doomed. Everywhere the cry is going up against the use of the moistened sphere by pitchers and players and spectators are clamoring for the abolishment of it from the repertoire of the twirlers. Manager Jones of the White Sox comes out against it and other managers are following his lead regardless of how many pitchers they may have on their own staffs, who use the ball.

pitcher in the box slobbering all over the ball every time it reaches his hands. The spit ball doesn't improve the game. It is hard to handle and fielders' averages go down behind pitchers who use it. It cuts down batting and good fielding and, from a spectator's point of view, those are the times when we will reason with logic instead of a club, but it isn't here yet. And if, as it is, fighting is the art preservative of our daily portion, then the art must have a school wherein it's taught.

"The boxing bouts form that school, and the teachers are worthy of their hire.

We don't get that bone now by physical force, per se, but it is the same old fight in our natures that acts as the moving spirit, contention is the visible expression of that fight germ. And we pay to see two men contend with their fists because the germ is in our soul. We would like to be in the ring ourselves mussing up God's handiwork, but circumstances prevent and we explode our wish in looking on.

"I said we had progressed. Yes, from the knife and the pistol to the lesser hurts of the fist. And that is progression. Sometime, perhaps, when Mr. Brady and the rest of us are growing white whiskers in the regions of the blest, this foolish world will have progressed further and instead of the fist, will work off its fight germ over a struggle at checkers.

"But that time won't come till the pilgrim from Troy and the Pompey on Broadway and Forty-second street go to bed together without worrying who will wake up first in the morning."

AMATEURS ORGANIZE

Interstate Ball League Will Probably be Formed.

Five Teams Represented at Meeting Held Last Night.

The initial steps in the organization of an Interstate Amateur Baseball league were taken last night at a meeting held in the Northern Hardware company's store. The Northern Hardware company, Columbias, Fitwells, Universal Millers and Larson Druggists were represented and decided to organize the league, with a membership of eight or ten clubs. Besides the five Duluth teams named, it is planned to secure one or two other Duluth teams and as many Superior teams as may care to join. The Clippers, the Duluth colored team, the Sons of Rest, Happy Hooligans and Rangers of Superior are possibilities.

Next Monday evening, another meeting of those interested will be held at the Northern Hardware company's store, when an effort will be made to perfect the organization and take steps to draw up a schedule. The schedule will hinge on the number of clubs in the league and all those wishing to join in the movement are requested to hand in their names to Ray Johns at the Northern Hardware company before Monday evening and to have a representative at the meeting that night.

It is not thought any trouble will be experienced in securing the desired number of teams as there are many number of amateur aggregations in Duluth and Superior, putting up a quality of ball suitable for the league. Those that are weak might be strengthened, so as to keep the standard as even as possible and a good season is in prospect for the league.

Outside the pale of the proposed league are the Kelley Hardware and Duluth teams. The Kelley Hardware team is an out-and-out semi-professional aggregation, while the Big Duluths, while wholly an amateur nine, are stronger than most of the commercial clubs of the city. They intend to play the different semi-professional teams in Northern Minnesota, so will not tie themselves up with a league schedule.

The prospects for amateur ball tomorrow are not of the best, as the rain to-day has wet down most of the corner-lot diamonds to such an extent that playing on them tomorrow will be a hardship, even if there is no rain.

PITCHING HAND OF MORDECAI BROWN

MORDECAI BROWN'S FIGHT HAND

Particularly disagreeable animosity on the part of a corn cutter is responsible for the pitching hand of Mordecai Brown, who throws the ball so well for the Chicagos. The above cut shows how his hand appears when the fingers are outstretched. St. Louis traded Brown to Chicago because the Missourians didn't think much of him. Then Brown proceeded to win a championship for the "Cubs" by good work in the box.

ATTELL WON EASILY.

Featherweight Champion Pounded Kid Solomon Terribly.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 25.—Abe Attell, feather weight champion of the world, won in twenty rounds from Kid Solomon last night with the greatest ease. Solomon's face was cut and pounded into a mass of bruises and he was covered with gore. Attell had not a mark on him. Solomon landed scarcely a blow throughout the fight. Attell landed all over Solomon and from every quarter. The champion was a master of every blow, his footwork was superb, and his defense at all times was absolutely perfect.

TRACK MEET POSTPONED

New Date for the Meet Is Still in the Air.

The rain today put the track at the driving park in a condition which rendered it out of the question to try to pull off the track meet between the Duluth and Blaine of Superior high school teams, this afternoon. The track at the driving park is soft at best and a couple of days of warm weather will be necessary to put it in good condition again.

Just when the meet will now be held is a question. Next Saturday, the interscholastic school meet is to be held, and it is doubtful if the boys would care to postpone their meet in order to accommodate the high school boys. June 7 school closes for the year, and it is not likely the students would car to hold the meet the day after the close of school. Memorial day, next Thursday, is a possibility, and the boys might hold the meet then, if the school authorities did not enter an objection to the use of the day for that purpose. On account of the number of events, the meet could not be pulled off on one afternoon after school hours, so if that plan is adopted, it may be necessary to split the program. As it is at present, all arrangements are in the air.

The Duluth boys were in fine shape for the meet today, although they did not have as much of an opportunity to train as they had in former years. The cold weather, which has prevailed all spring has made work on the track and in the field almost unbearable, and the boys have had to contend themselves with work in the gymnasium and a little work outdoors. Starkey being disqualified has also injured Duluth's chances, but the boys were in hopes of making a good showing.

The entries for the different events will stand for the meet, whenever it may be held. They are as follows:

DULUTH CENTRALS.

50-yard dash—McGonagle, Jefferson and Ryan.
100-yard dash — McGonagle, Ryan and McDevitt.

GOOD OFFICIALS ARE SECURED

New York, May 25.—The services of a very capable set of officials has been secured by Chairman Johnston for the 200-mil endurance run of the New York Motor club on June 6. F. J. Waxner is to act as starter and Oliver A. Quayle, president of the New York State Association of the A. A. A., will check the cars in at Albany. Mr. Hakes, secretary of the New York State association, is to act as checker at Chatham. Charles Diegas of the Pioneers club of New York will hold the watch at one of the checking stations and others to serve in this capacity will be N. C. Reeves, E. L. Ferguson and C. A. Woolson, the latter being an active member of the Quaker City Motor club.

A number of prominent out of town motorists are acting as the representatives of the committee in other cities. E. C. Johnson, chairman of the contest committee of the Quaker City Boat club, is looking after the interests of the tour in Philadelphia; W. R. Douglass, who holds a similar position in den, Rodebaugh and Sugden and Lindsay's error, put three runs over the plate for St. Paul. CHILLY WEATHER FOR OARSMEN

Training a crew with the thermometer hovering about the freezing point, and with 40-mile gales blowing in from the lake, has its drawbacks.

Every night this week, however, in spite of weather conditions that would be more adapted to polar bears than to oarsmen clad in rowing trunks, the crews have gone out, and from twelve to twenty men have shown up for practice.

The crews are beginning to round into shape, and if they could have a week or two of fine warm weather they would improve wonderfully.

The first scheduled race of the season will be held next Wednesday evening, preceding the smoker which will mark the opening of the club house for the season. The regular junior crew will be sent against the eight composed of the seniors and the "bantam" four.

MUST PLAY ANOTHER GAME.

Blaine Cannot Take Possession of Baseball Trophy.

The Blaine high school baseball team of Superior must play the Duluth Centrals another game before they can gain possession of the Northern Hardware company trophy, for which the high school teams are contesting. W. H. Wells, head of the company, made the announcement, after the protest of the Duluth team had been filed with him. When the Duluth boys played in Superior, the spectators crowded over the field, and it is claimed that three runs were scored by Blaine on account of the crowd surrounding McDevitt, while a ball had gone by and into the crowd. The date for the game has not yet been set, but it will probably be played during the coming week.

Amateur Game.

The Nineteenth avenue ball team defeated the Lower Fifteenth avenues yesterday by a score of 20 to 21. The game was played at Twentieth avenue east and London road.

NEWS OF THE WEEK AT THE CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL

Debating Club Brings Most Successful Year to Close.

Great Preparations for the Faculty-Senior Ball Game.

The Debating club celebrated the close of the most successful year since its organization by a banquet, which was held at the high school Tuesday night. About thirty were present, including several members of the faculty.

The party was strictly a "stag" affair, as the membership of the club is limited to the sterner sex, but the boys managed to have a pretty lively time among themselves. The dinner was prepared by Charlie Colby, the high school chef, and it spoke well for his culinary abilities.

After the close of the spread, speeches were made by the officers of the club and the members of the faculty who were present. Oscar Helam, president of the society, acted as toastmaster, and made the opening speech. He spoke of the progress which the club has made during the season, thanks to the aid of Mr. Lambert, its leader, and also took occasion to thank Mr. Neal for the interest which he has taken in the affairs of the club.

Frank Boerner, the vice president spoke of the "History of the Club," and handled his topic in an entertaining manner. He told of the birth of the society, the early debates, and dealt with the steady progress which it has made since its inception. One of the noticeable things of the past season, he said, was the defeat of the seniors at the hands of the juniors, and he argued that this was a good thing for the club, as it showed that the best debaters will remain in the organization next year.

David Fiedman, who acts as secretary for the club, spoke on "The Purpose of the Society." He outlined the policy of the club, and said that it is the desire of those who are at the head of it to interest more students in the work. The most effective manner in which this can be done, he said, is to bring the club before the public of the whole school. He remarked that the society has already laid a good foundation, and that it is up to it to keep it up.

Prof. Neal talked to the company on the educational advantages of the club. He divided his topic into three parts, dealing with the ability to work which is derived from debating, the training which the student receives before an audience, and the aid which debating is to quick and logical thinking. He elaborated on all three points and spoke of the system which is taught by the club. He said that one of the most important features of the club work is that it is entirely voluntary. Furthermore, he brought out the point that it brings the students and faculty into closer touch, and this, he said, is something that is to be desired.

Principal Smith spoke on "Getting Into Touch With Other Institutions." He remarked that there is a great need to keep in touch with others and also great benefit in it since rivalry appeals to all mankind, and tends to stimulate everyone to the greatest efforts. He also said that the way of the club may not be the best and that this point may be decided by coming up against others. Mr. Smith said that the club was very dear to his heart and that he hoped that it might become the acme of expression in the school.

Prof. Phillips talked briefly to the company, urging the members of the club to make the high school as well known for debating as it is already for its athletic excellence.

Mr. Townsend spoke on the advantages of knowing how to argue, citing as examples the aid which it is to an employer, or employe or to any kind of a salesman. He also said that it often comes in handy in domestic life when a man wishes to express certain absences in a satisfactory manner.

The speaking was closed by Prof. Lambert who talked on the possibilities of the club. He said that the club may be all that any organization of its kind can be if the members will only work hard enough to this end. If they will not do this, he said, they ought to take a back seat. There is need, he said, for more system. A constitution should be provided and there should be a better division of labor. Mr. Lambert closed his speech with a clever characterization which was very laughable.

After the banquet the students went to the Bijou in a body where they succeeded in amusing themselves pretty thoroughly.

Faculty-Senior Game.

The annual game between the seniors and the faculty baseball team will either be played next Tuesday or the following Monday, according to Prof. Phillips who is the playing manager for the athletic educators.

The last named gentleman is billed to do the pitching and has been limbering up for several days in one of the corner lots in the vicinity of the high school. Mr. Foster, who was doing the catching the last time claims that Mr. Phillips placed the ball squarely over the plat for two consective throws, but this claim could not be verified. Mr. Phillips, however, as is well known, is a professor of physical, and a past master in the laws of gravitation, and it is stated on good authority that he can put over a drop shoot that would make Rube Waddell sit up and take notice.

The game is quite an event in school society, as all the girls, as well as the boys, enjoy seeing their tutors engaged in the dignified occupation of "swatting it out for a two bagger" or "sliding for first."

The seniors are reported to be losing a good deal of sleep worrying over the outcome of the game, and with the approach of the impending examinations it may cause a collapse on their part.

The senior team has not been fully selected, but Capt. Cole will have the lineup picked in a few days.

Prof. Crull, a former star, will not participate in the exhibition this year.

No More Basketball.

The deciding game in the girls' basketball series has again been called off, and this time for good. The sophomore team was not in condition to play the juniors and the latter were not entitled to play the seniors for the championship until they had defeated the lower class girls.

For this reason the two games were called off and there will be no more basketball this year. The seniors, having won all their games, claim the championship, as they have defeated both of their rivals. This is undisputed by the other teams.

In spite of the fizzle which has just taken place the girls feel that the year has been a most successful one and the sport will be continued with greater zeal next year. All the girls who have joined the Y. W. C. A. have been helped greatly by the exercises and it is thought that next year will see several more basketball teams ready for action.

The freshmen have not had enough members for a team, but Miss Wells will endeavor to interest them more in the sport next season. With four teams among the girls and as many of boys, basketball should prove to be a popular sport next year.

Agassiz Club.

The last regular meeting of the Agassiz club was held Monday and unless there is some social meeting the society will not meet again this year. The annual excursion will be held on the Saturday before the close of school, the weather man permitting.

If the condition of the atmosphere is not favorable to outdoor expeditions, the members of the clug will give a banquet in the afternoon at the high school building.

It is planned to go to Fond du Lac by launch early in the morning and spend the greater part of the day tramping through the woods. The modern Linnaeuses will hunt diligently for new species of the botanical world and will also examine several varieties of bugs and insects, which are common to these localities.

At the meeting a paper was read by Borkhild Hoff on the "Parental Care of Fishes." It was greatly enjoyed by all those present.

High School Notes.

A meeting of the junior class was billed to take place last Wednesday, but failed to materialize. When President Poirier arrived he found a number of girls and two boys. The president decided that he had business elsewhere, and the meeting was disbanded without being called to order.

The programs for the junior-senior dance are out, and may be secured from the junior president. The dance will be held Wednesday, June 6.

The seniors will not have to take any examination in trigonometry. The two tests which were recently given on that subject will count in place of the examination. It is probable that all the students in the trigonometry classes will be given the state examination in advanced algebra, although they will not be required to pass in it.

The senior graduation invitations are ready and may be had by applying to the president of the class. The price of the invitations is 7 cents apiece.

Principal Smith spoke to the students Monday morning on Ian McLaren. He said that with most men the glamour of the material overshadows the brilliancy of the spiritual, but that Ian McLaren was a refreshing example of the man in whom the spiritual predominated.

On last Thursday examinations were given in United States history for all those who flunked in that subject last semester.

On Wednesday Principal Smith spoke to the students about the ambassadors which are sent by one nation to other countries. He dealt more particularly with James Bryce, the British ambassador, to this country.

All the books of the school library must be returned by next Monday, in order that they may all be put in order by the close of school.

The examinations in advanced algebra, trigonometry, plane and solid geometry, which must be taken for entrance to the university, will be held at the high school the first of next week.

The examinations of the senior class will be given next Wednesday and Friday. There will be no school Thursday, and the students will improve their time studying for the exams.

NORMAL NOTES

The fifth annual publication of the Bulletin of the Duluth Normal School has been published and is ready for distribution. This is the catalogue number and is devoted to a discussion of the courses offered, studies pursued and the membership of the school. The subject matter includes forty pages including cuts of the exterior of the normal school and Washburn hall, main entrance, main stairway, chemical laboratory, biological laboratory, a corner of the library, manual training room and corner of the drawing room. There are two Lester Park scenes and the aerial bridge and ship canal and a park scene are also included.

The first pages are devoted to the calendar of 1907-08; state normal board; Faculty of Duluth normal school; general statement of work; summer sessions; building and equipment; purpose and plan of the school. Then follows the list of courses and work included in them. In speaking of the graduate course, the advance graduate of two year course is more heartily recommended than the elementary graduate or the one year course. The academic, professional, elementary and kindergarten training course are also given in detail. The greater part of the publication is a description outline of the work in the different courses.

General information as to normal school diplomas and state certificates, conditions of endorsement, expenses, student's loan fund, sessions and admission to state university and colleges follows. The list of students enrolled for 1906-07 completes the information included in the Bulletin.

The total enrollment of the Duluth normal is 367 students. This shows an improvement over last year's list, and next year a greater number is looked for.

The senior domestic science classes had very instructive and enjoyable lessons this week. The cooking portion of the lessons was a culmination of that work—a four course dinner. Instruction was given in planning, cooking and serving a meal. The students were divided into groups of two for the cooking part, as eight dishes were prepared. Divisions of four ate, while others served the dinner.

Monday morning Mr. Bohannon made the announcements for the summer session, as follows: Enrollmen of students, Tuesday, June 18; class work begins, Wednesday, June 19; term ends, Friday, Sept. 6. He urged that all in or out of school who desired announcements to hand in their names.

Tuesday, before conferences, the senior class held a very important class meeting. Class morning exercises were discussed, and the committee reported their work. Wednesday a second meeting was held with regard to the same entertainment, and final votes were taken.

Wednesday the junior committee met for discussion of the plans for the entertainment to be given June 11.

The Glee club had a short meeting on Wednesday to make plans for the day's outing at Wrenshall, today. Those who went to Wrenshall to spend the day were: Miss Mason, director; Etta Roberts, Agnes Kinkle, Bessie Turnbull, Gertrude Brown, Opal Wiltse, Catherine McIntyre, Clara Hanson, Grace Aikin, Gertrude Knapp, Mildred Wiltse and Ruby Harris.

A large meeting of the club was held on Friday afternoon.

Tuesday Mr. Bohannon left the city for a business trip. He will not return until the middle of next week. Dr. Kilno has taken charge of chapel exercise during the week. He read to the students on Wednesday.

The geography division, composed of third-year students, with the instructor, Mr. Hubbard, have been making a tour of the industrial portion of the city. The barrel and match factory, blast furnace and lime kilns, freighters, ship yards and elevators have been visited. Saturday Mr. Hubbard took the class to Thomson, where they viewed the falls, dam and engine house. Mr. Hubbard gave explanation of the generation of the electric power. Other members of the school went with the regular class.

The work of tinting the walls at Washburn hall has been an arduous and a tiresome one for the occupants, but the results are very pleasing. The halls have been tinted in a reddish brown. The reception room in an olive green, the dining room in a tan and the students' rooms in light green and yellow.

Friday morning the students welcomed M. F. Bates and F. A. Barnard of the Culver post, G. A. R. Both gentlemen spoke of war reminiscences and were greatly enjoyed. From each the appeal was made to the student body that, as many would become teachers, they had a great duty to obey, that of instructing the children and instilling love for nation and flag. Mr. Bates and Mr. Barnard spoke to the children in the model department.

MUST CALL DERBY "DARBY."

Louisville Courier Journal: In the betting sheds, the paddock and the field it is pronounced "derby," but in the boxes and at the clubhouse, upon the tops of tallyhos and upon motor cars it is called "darby," and the ignorant person who pronounces the word as it is spelled is but two grades above the unfortunate who confuses the functions of his knife and fork at a fashionable dinner party. The contempt of the clubhouse for the betting shed pronunciation is equaled only by the contempt of the betting shed for the clubhouse affectation. Although there is a fair exchange of sneers between the "darby" and the "derby" advocates one seems to be about as correct as the other, if we assume that it is good form to pronounce an isolated word in the English fashion when using plain "United States" throughout the rest of the vocabulary. If this is assuming too much the betting sheds seem to have the best of it.

The derby takes its name from the twelfth early of Derby, who established it in 1780. In England the race is called "darby," but even in England, it seems, the pronunciation has varied and the literal pronunciation has been favored by the most highly educated or at least the smartest Britons. In Earle's Philology of the English Tongue, for example, there appears the following paragraph:

• • • The word derby, clerk, in which the er sounds as ar, but which many persons especially of that class which is beginning to claim educated rank, now pronounce literally.

This indicates that in England "darby" was at one time the preference of the betting sheds and "derby" the preference of the clubhouse.

At present it is as correct to pronounce the word literally at Churchill Downs as to pronounce it "darby" at Epsom.

AMATEURS ORGANIZE

Interstate Ball League Will Probably be Formed.

Five Teams Represented at Meeting Held Last Night.

The initial steps in the organization of an Interstate Amateur Baseball league were taken last night at a meeting held in the Northern Hardware company's store. The Northern Hardware company, Columbias, Fitwells, Universal Millers and Larson Druggists were represented and decided to organize the league, with a membership of eight or ten clubs. Besides the five Duluth teams named, it is planned to secure one or two other Duluth teams and as many Superior teams as may care to join. The Clippers, the Duluth colored team, the Sons of Rest, Happy Hooligans and Rangers of Superior are possibilities.

Next Monday evening, another meeting of those interested will be held at the Northern Hardware company's store, when an effort will be made to perfect the organization and take steps to draw up a schedule. The schedule will hinge on the number of clubs in the league and all those wishing to join in the movement are requested to hand in their names to Ray Johns at the Northern Hardware company before Monday evening and to have a representative at the meeting that night.

It is not thought any trouble will be experienced in securing the desired number of teams as there are any number of amateur aggregations in Duluth and Superior, putting up a quality of ball suitable for the league. Those that are weak might be strengthened, so as to keep the standard as even as possible and a good season is in prospect for the league.

Outside the pale of the proposed league are the Kelley Hardware and Big Duluth teams. The Kelley Hardware team is an out-and-out semi-professional aggregation, while the Big Duluths, while wholly an amateur nine, are stronger than most of the commercial clubs of the city. They intend to play the different semi-professional teams in Northern Minnesota, so will not tie themselves up with a league schedule.

The prospects for amateur ball tomorrow are not of the best, as the rain today has wet down most of the corner-lot diamonds to such an extent that playing on them tomorrow will be a hardship, even if there is no rain.

ATTELL WON EASILY.

Featherweight Champion Pounded Kid Solomon Terribly.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 25.—Abe Attell, feather weight champion of the world, won in twenty rounds from Kid Solomon last night with the greatest ease. Solomon's face was cut and pounded into a mass of bruises and he was covered with gore. Attell had not a mark on him. Solomon landed scarcely a blow throughout the fight. Attell landed all over Solomon and from every quarter. The champion was a master of every blow, his footwork was superb, and his defense at all times was absolutely perfect.

MORDECAI BROWN'S RIGHT HAND

Particularly disagreeable animosity on the part of a corn cutter is responsible for the pitching hand of Mordecai Brown, who throws the ball so well for the Chicagos. The above cut shows how this hand appears when the fingers are outstretched. St. Louis traded Brown to Chicago because the Missourians didn't think much of him. Then Brown proceeded to win a championship for the "Cubs" by good work in the box.

GOOD OFFICIALS ARE SECURED

New York, May 25.—The services of a very capable set of officials has been secured by Chairman Johnston for the 200-mil endurance run of the New York Motor club on June 6. F. J. Wagner is to act as starter and Oliver A. Quayle, president of the New York State Association of the A. A. A., will check the cars in at Albany. Mr. Hakes, secretary of the New York State association, is to act as checker at Chatham. Charles Dieges of the Pioneers club of New York will hold the watch at one of the checking stations and others to serve in this capacity will be N. C. Reeves, E. L. Ferguson and C. A. Woolson, the latter being an active member of the Quaker City Motor club.

A number of prominent out of town motorists are acting as the representatives of the committee in other cities. E. C. Johnson, chairman of the contest committee of the Quaker City Boat club, is looking after the interests of the tour in Philadelphia; W. R. Douglass, who holds a similar position in the motor club of Harrisburg, is looking after the tour in his city. J. C. Kerrison is the Boston representative of the tour and is also to act as checker at Pittsfield, and President Quayle is the Albany representative. The local endurance run committee has been strengthened by the addition of "Senator" W. J. Morgan.

CHILLY WEATHER FOR OARSMEN

Training a crew with the thermometer hovering about the freezing point, and with 40-mile gales blowing in from the lake, has its drawbacks.

Every night this week, however, in spite of weather conditions that would be more adapted to polar bears than to oarsmen clad in rowing trunks, the crews have gone out, and from twelve to twenty men have shown up for practice.

The crews are beginning to round into shape, and if they could have a week or two of fine warm weather they would improve wonderfully.

The first scheduled race of the season will be held next Wednesday evening, preceding the smoker which will mark the opening of the club house for the season. The regular junior crew will be sent against the eight composed of the seniors and the "bantam" four.

MUST PLAY ANOTHER GAME.

Blaine Cannot Take Possession of Baseball Trophy.

The Blaine high school baseball team of Superior must play the Duluth Centrals another game before they can gain possession of the Northern Hardware company trophy, for which the high school teams are contesting. W. H. Wells, head of the company, made the announcement, after the protest of the Duluth team had been filed with him. When the Duluth boys played in Superior, the spectators crowded over the field, and it is claimed that three runs were scored by Blaine on account of the crowd surrounding McDevitt, while a ball had gone by and into the crowd. The date for the game has not yet been set, but it will probably be played during the coming week.

Amateur Game.

The Nineteenth avenue ball team defeated the Lower Fifteenth avenues yesterday by a score of 20 to 21. The game was played at Twentieth avenue east and London road.

TRACK MEET POSTPONED

New Date for the Meet Is Still in the Air.

The rain today put the track at the driving park in a condition which rendered it out of the question to try to pull off the track meet between the Duluth and Blaine of Superior high school teams, this afternoon. The track at the driving park is soft at best and a couple of days of warm weather will be necessary to put it in good condition again.

Just when the meet will now be held is a question. Next Saturday, the interscholastic school meet is to be held, and it is doubtful if the boys would care to postpone their meet in order to accommodate the high school boys. June 7 school closes for the year, and it is not likely the students would car to hold the meet the day after the close of school. Memorial day, next Thursday, is a possibility, and the boys might hold the meet then, if the school authorities did not enter an objection to the use of the track for that purpose. On account of the number of events, the meet could not be pulled off on one afternoon after school hours, so if that plan is adopted, it may be necessary to split the program. As it is at present, all arrangements are in the air.

The Duluth boys were in fine shape for the meet today, although they did not have as much of an opportunity to train as they had in former years. The cold weather, which has prevailed all spring has made work on the track and in the field almost unbearable, and the boys have had to contend themselves with work in the gymnasium and a little work outdoors. Starkey being disqualified has also injured Duluth's chances, but the boys were in hopes of making a good showing.

The entries for the different events will stand for the meet, whenever it may be held. They are as follows:

DULUTH CENTRALS.

50-yard dash—McGonagle, Jefferson and Ryan.

100-yard dash -- McGonagle, Ryan and McDevitt.

220-yard dash -- McGonagle, Ryan and Feetham.

SPORTSMEN ORGANIZE.

North Dakota Game and Fish Protective Association is Formed.

Fargo, N. D., May 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the better protection of the game and fish in this state, the North Dakota Game & Fish Protective association was organized at a meeting in this city. Officers were elected as follows: President, W. W. Cook, Fargo; vice president, A. D. Baughman, Grand Forks; secretary-treasurer, Prof. Bell, Fargo. Executive committee and committee on constitution and by-laws chosen by the president as follows: C. A. Hale of Grand Forks, C. E. Robbins of Fargo, F. H. Sprague of Grafton, Dr. A. L. Kershaw of Bismarck and Capt. Main of Cando.

It was decided to have the executive committee select a vice president from each county.

The president and secretary were authorized to appoint persons in various towns to solicit members for the organization. The membership fee was fixed at $1.00 and annual dues $1.

WOMEN AS PRISONERS.

Nineteenth Century: Women in prison are often restless and excitable, and their charge is far from an easy one to those to whom the duty is confided. New rules and different treatment have brought about a great improvement in these respects, and an infraction of prison discipline is now infinitely more rare than it was thirty years ago.

It is, to be sure, a recognized fact that the women give more trouble than the men, yet under a wise and efficacious system they can be just as easily disciplined. The means employed are of necessity different, but the same general principles determine the control of both sexes.

It is a fallacy to suppose th women cannot be subjected to order and discipline. On the contrary, they fall into habits of cleanliness and neatness much more rapidly than do men, and by tact and patience they can be induced to conform to prudent and wholesome regulations. There are always, of course, certain "irreconcilables" who rebel against control of any kind. Much of the deliberate misbehavior of such prisoners proceeds from vanity and the desire to win notoriety. Even in the motley company that assembles in a prison yard they want to pose as "heroines."

NEWS OF THE WEEK AT THE CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL

Debating Club Brings Most Successful Year to Close.

Great Preparations for the Faculty-Senior Ball Game.

The Debating club celebrated the close of the most successful year since its organization by a banquet, which was held at the high school Tuesday night. About thirty were present, including several members of the faculty.

The party was strictly a "stag" affair, as the membership of the club is limited to the sterner sex, but the boys managed to have a pretty lively time among themselves. The dinner was prepared by Charlie Colby, the high school chef, and it spoke well for his culinary abilities.

After the close of the spread, speeches were made by the officers of the club and the members of the faculty who were present. Oscar Helam, president of the society, acted as toastmaster, and made the opening speech. He spoke of the progress which the club has made during the season, thanks to the aid of Mr. Lambert, its leader, and also took occasion to thank Mr. Neal for the interest which he has taken in the affairs of the club.

Frank Boerner, the vice president spoke of the "History of the Club," and handled his topic in an entertaining manner. He told of the birth of the society, the early debates, and dealt with the steady progress which it has made since its inception. One of the noticeable things of the past season, he said, was the defeat of the seniors at the hands of the juniors, and he argued that this was a good thing for the club, as it showed that the best debaters will remain in the organization next year.

David Fleishman, who acts as secretary for the club, spoke on "The Purpose of the Society." He outlined the policy of the club, and said that it is the desire of those who are at the head of it to interest more students in the work. The most effective manner in which this can be done, he said, is to bring the club before the notice of the whole school. He remarked that the society has already laid a good foundation, and that it is up to it to keep it up.

Prof. Neal talked to the company on the educational advantages of the club. He divided his topic into three parts, dealing with the ability to work which is derived from debating, the training which the student receives before an audience, and the aid which debating is to quick and logical thinking. He elaborated on all three points and spoke of the system which is taught by the club. He said that one of the most important features of the club work is that it is entirely voluntary. Furthermore, he brought out the point that it brings the students and faculty into closer touch, and this, he said, is something that is to be desired.

Principal Smith spoke on "Getting Into Touch With Other Institutions." He remarked that there is a great need to keep in touch with others and also great benefit in it since rivalry appeals to all mankind, and tends to stimulate everyone to the greatest efforts. He also said that the way of the club may not be the best and that this point may be decided by coming up against others. Mr. Smith said that the club was very dear to his heart and that he hoped that it might become the acme of expression in the school.

Prof. Phillips talked briefly to the company, urging the members of the club to make the high school as well known for debating as it is already for its athletic excellence.

Mr. Townsend spoke on the advantages of knowing how to argue, citing as examples the aid which it is to an employer, or employe or to any kind of a salesman. He also said that it often comes in handy in domestic life when a man wishes to express certain absences in a satisfactory manner.

The speaking was closed by Prof. Lambert who talked on the possibilities of the club. He said that the club may be all that any organization of its kind can be if the members will only work hard enough to this end. If they will not do this, he said, they ought to take a back seat. There is need, he said, for more system. A constitution should be provided and there should be a better division of labor. Mr. Lambert closed his speech with a clever characterization which was very laughable.

After the banquet the students went to the Bijou in a body where they succeeded in amusing themselves pretty thoroughly.

Faculty-Senior Game.

The annual game between the seniors and the faculty baseball team will either be played next Tuesday or the following Monday, according to Prof. Phillips who is the playing manager for the athletic educators.

The last named gentleman is billed to do the pitching and has been limbering up for several days in one of the corner lots in the vicinity of the high school. Mr. Foster, who was doing the catching the last time claims that Mr. Phillips placed the ball squarely over the plat for two consective throws, but this claim could not be verified. Mr. Phillips, however, as is well known, is a professor of physical, and a past master in the laws of gravitation, and it is stated on good authority that he can put over a drop shoot that would make Rube Waddell sit up and take notice.

The game is quite an event in school society, as all the girls, as well as the boys, enjoy seeing their tutors engaged in the dignified occupation of "swatting it out for a two bagger" or "sliding for first."

The seniors are reported to be losing a good deal of sleep worrying over the outcome of the game, and with the approach of the impending examinations it may cause a collapse on their part.

The senior team has not been fully selected, but Capt. Cole wil lhave the lineup picked in a few days.

Prof. Crull, a former star, will not participate in the exhibition this year.

No More Basketball.

The deciding game in the girls' basketball series has again been called off, and this time for good. The sophomore team was not in condition to play the juniors and the latter were not entitled to play the seniors for the championship until they had defeated the lower class girls.

For this reason the two games were called off and there will be no more basketball this year. The seniors, having won all their games, claim the championship, as they have defeated both of their rivals. This is undisputed by the other teams.

In spite of the fizzle which has just taken place the girls feel that the year has been a most successful one and the sport will be continued with greater zeal next year. All the girls who have joined the Y. W. C. A. have been helped greatly by the exercises and it is thought that next year will see several more basketball teams ready for action.

The freshmen have not had enough members for a team, but Miss Wells will endeavor to interest them more in the sport next season. With four teams among the girls and as many of boys, basketball should prove to be a popular sport next year.

Agassiz Club.

The last regular meeting of the Agassiz club was held Monday and unless there is some social meeting the society will not meet again this year. The annual excursion will be held on the Saturday before the close of school, the weather man permitting.

If the condition of the atmosphere is not favorable to outdoor expeditions, the members of the clug will give a banquet in the afternoon at the high school building.

It is planned to go to Fond du Lac by launch early in the morning and spend the greater part of the day tramping through the woods. The modern Linnaeuses will hunt diligently for new species of the botanical world and will also examine several varieties of bugs and insects, which are common to these localities.

At the meeting a paper was read by Borkhild Hoff on the "Parental Care of Fishes." It was greatly enjoyed by all those present.

High School Notes.

A meeting of the junior class was billed to take place last Wednesday, but failed to materialize. When President Polrier arrived he found a number of girls and two boys. The president decided that he had business elsewhere, and the meeting was disbanded without being called to order.

The programs for the junior-senior dance are out, and may be secured from the junior president. The dance will be held Wednesday, June 6.

The seniors will not have to take any examination in trigonometry. The two tests which were recently given on that subject will count in place of the examination. It is probable that all the students in the trigonometry classes will be given the state examination in advanced algebra, although they will not be required to pass in it.

The senior graduation invitations are ready and may be had by applying to the president of the class. The price of the invitations is 7 cents apiece.

Principal Smith spoke to the students Monday morning on Ian McLaren. He said that with most men the glamour of the material overshadows the brilliancy of the spiritual, but that Ian McLaren was a refreshing example of the man in whom the spiritual predominated.

On last Thursday examinations were given in United States history for all those who flunked in that subject last semester.

On Wednesday Principal Smith spoke to the students about the ambassadors which are sent by one nation to other countries. He dealt more particularly with James Bryce, the British ambassador to this country.

All the books of the school library must be returned by next Monday, in order that they may all be put in order by the close of school.

The examinations in advanced algebra, trigonometry, plane and solid geometry, which must be taken for entrance to the university, will be held at the high school the first of next week.

The examinations of the senior class will be given next Wednesday and Friday. There will be no school Thursday, and the students will improve their time studying for the exams.

NORMAL NOTES

The fifth annual publication of the Bulletin of the Duluth Normal School has been published and is ready for distribution. This is the catalogue number and is devoted to a discussion of the courses offered, studies pursued and the membership of the school. The subject matter includes forty pages including cuts of the exterior of the normal school and Washburn hall, main entrance, main stairway, chemical laboratory, biological laboratory, a corner of the library, manual training room and corner of the drawing room. There are two Lester Park scenes and the aerial bridge and ship canal and a park scene are also included.

The first pages are devoted to the calendar of 1907-08; state normal board; Faculty of Duluth normal school; general statement of work; summer sessions; building and equipment; purpose and plan of the school. Then follows the list of courses and work, included in them. In speaking of the graduate course, the advance graduate of two year course is more heartily recommended than the elementary graduate or the one year course. The academic, professional, elementary and kindergarten training course are also given in detail. The greater part of the publication is a description outlino of the work in the different courses.

General information as to normal school diplomas and state certificates, conditions of endorsement, expenses, student's loan fund, sessions and admission to state university and colleges follows. The list of students enrolled for 1906-07 completes the information included in the Bulletin.

The total enrollment of the Duluth normal is 367 students. This shows an improvement over last year's list, and next year a greater number is looked for.

The senior domestic science classes had very instructive and enjoyable lessons this week. The cooking portion of the lessons was a culmination of that work—a four course dinner. Instruction was given in planning, cooking and serving a meal. The students were divided into groups of two for the cooking part, as eight dishes were prepared. Divisions of four ate, while others served the dinner.

Monday morning Mr. Bohannon made the announcements for the summer session, as follows: Enrollmen of students, Tuesday, June 18; class work begins, Wednesday, June 19; term ends, Friday, Sept. 6. He urged that all in or out of school who desired announcements to hand in their names.

Tuesday, before conferences, the senior class held a very important class meeting. Class morning exercises were discussed, and the committee reported their work. Wednesday a second meeting was held with regard to the same entertainment, and final votes were taken.

Wednesday the junior committee met for discussion of the plans for the entertainment to be given June 11.

The Glee club had a short meeting on Wednesday to make plans for the day's outing at Wrenshall, today. Those who went to Wrenshall to spend the day were: Miss Mason, director; Etta Roberts, Agnes Kinkle, Bessie Turnbull, Gertrude Brown, Opal Wiltse, Catherine McIntyre, Clara Hanson, Grace Aikin, Gertrude Knapp, Mildred Wiltse and Ruby Harris.

A large meeting of the club was held on Friday afternoon.

Tuesday Mr. Bohannon left the city for a business trip. He will not return until the middle of next week. Dr. Kilne has taken charge of chapel exercise during the week. He read to the students on Wednesday.

The geography division, composed of third-year students, with the instructor, Mr. Hubbard, have been making a tour of the industrial portion of the city. The barrel and match factory, blast furnace and lime kilns, freighters, ship yards and elevators have been visited. Saturday Mr. Hubbard took the class to Thomson, where they viewed the falls, dam and engine house. Mr. Hubbard gave explanation of the generation of the electric power. Other members of the school went with the regular class.

The work of tinting the walls at Washburn hall has been an arduous and a tiresome one for the occupants, but the results are very pleasing. The halls have been tinted in a reddish brown. The reception room in an olive green, the dining room in a tan and the students' rooms in light green and yellow.

Friday morning the students welcomed M. F. Bates and F. A. Barnard of the Culver post, G. A. R. Both gentlemen spoke of war reminiscences and were greatly enjoyed. From each the appeal was made to the student body that, as many would become teachers, they had a great duty to obey, that of instructing the children and instilling love for nation and flag. Mr. Bates and Mr. Barnard spoke to the children in the model department.

MUST CALL DERBY "DARBY."

Louisville Courier Journal: In the betting sheds, the paddock and the field it is pronounced "derby," but in the boxes and at the clubhouse, upon the tops of tallyhos and upon motor cars it is called "darby," and the ignorant person who pronounces the word as it is spelled is but two grades above the unfortunate who confuses the functions of his knife and fork at a fashionable dinner party. The contempt of the clubhouse for the betting shed pronunciation is equaled only by the contempt of the betting shed for the clubhouse affectation. Although there is a fair exchange of sneers between the "darby" and the "derby" advocates one seems to be about as correct as the other, if we assume that it is good form to pronounce an isolated word in the English fashion when using plain "United States" throughout the rest of the vocabulary. If this is assuming too much the betting sheds seem to have the best of it.

The derby takes its name from the twelfth early of Derby, who established it in 1780. In England the race is called "darby," but even in England, it seems, the pronunciation has varied and the literal pronunciation has been favored by the most highly educated or at least the smartest Britons. In Earle's Philology of the English Tongue, for example, there appears the following paragraph:

• • • The word derby, clerk, in which the er sounds as ar, but which many persons especially of that class which is beginning to claim educated rank, now pronounce literally.

This indicates that in England "darby" was at one time the preference of the betting sheds and "derby" the preference of the clubhouse.

At present it is as correct to pronounce the word literally at Churchill Downs as to pronounce it "darby" at Epsom.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Work Begun on Mill on Saginaw Ground---Invanhoe Company Resumes Operations---Scheme to Reduce Cost of Treating Ores.

Custer, S. D., May 25.—Work was begun for building a mill of 100 tons capacity on the Saginaw ground, seven miles northwest of this city. It will be so equipped that it can treat all the different kinds of ore which are found in the mine and will employ the systems of concentrating, amalgamating and cyanidation. The mine has been well developed and opened up to the 300-foot level and there is in sight a supply of milling ore of more than average grade sufficient to supply the mill for from two to three years. A force of men is now employed in taking out ore from two different shafts.

The Ivanhoe company, which suspended operations for a short time, has paid up the men and resumed work on May 1 with a small force. The company has opened up some excellent ore and has made a good record with its little two stamp mill which was erected for test purposes.

Deadwood, S. D., May 25.—F. R. Baldwin, manager of the North Homestake Mining company, formerly known as the Maitland, has been examining the oil deposits of Wyoming with a view to using oil as a fuel if it can be secured cheaply enough. A difficulty in treating the low grade ore deposits of the hills has been the cost of fuel. The Gilt Edge Maid held a meeting of its stockholders at which it was decided to issue bonds to the amount of $200,000. This amount will be used to pay outstanding debts and to develop the ground in Strawberry gulch. It is thought that there will be difficulty in disposing of the bonds.

The Hercules Mining company, operating near Galena, is working thirty-five men. It has now 5,000 tons of ore in the bins in readiness for the mill which will be built this season. This ore will average beter than $30 a ton, and there is sufficient of it in sight to justify the erection of a mill. It can be handled profitably by cyanidation.

Rochford, S. D., May 25.—The Gordelia company has been so successful in operating its ten-stamp mill that work will be continued throughout the summer. The work is under the direction of L. M. Kearney of Rochford and the property is located on Silver creek.

The test run in the five stamp mill on the Montezuma is proving satisfactory and if it continues as well as it has started the company will make arrangements shortly for the building of a large and complete plant.

THE COLORADO DISTRICTS

Eighteen Stamp Mills in Operation in Gilpin County---Option Taken on La Sal Copper Mine in Paradox Valley.

Central City, Colo., May 25. — Eighteen stamp mills are said to be in operation in Gilpin county, their output during April amounting to $106,000. The bullion output of the county during the month was $146,000 in gold. As another evidence of the tremendous activity of Gilpin county mines it is stated that there are twenty-five air compressors at work in various parts of the country. The pneumatic hammer drills are coming into more general favor, as they can be handled by one man, and in drilling work easily perform the work of six. From the Gold Rock mine in the Russell district sample shipments are going forward; an dthe Hampton group is making excellent progress in shaft and tunnel operations with a view to developing its enormous ore reserves at depth. The drainage of the various mines in this district effected by the Newhouse tunnel is already yielding its fruit.

Breckenridge, Colo., May 25. — The Wellington lead and zinc mine continues to report new and rich strikes as developments work progresses. The management reports that in all nine ore bodies have been opened up in the mine. One of these, encountered a few days since, gives indications of extending at least 1,000 feet through the property, with a width of two feet at the original point of exposure; and it is widening under development. This vein is in a locality of big shoots of from seven to fifteen feet in width, where the ore is unusually rich in lead and silver. The ore in all these veins is of a marketable grade; and largely increased shipments are contemplated at an early date.

Colorado Springs, May 25.—Colorado Springs capitalists, representing the Colorado Fuel & Iron company, it is rumored, have taken a lease and option on the La Sal copper mine in Paradox valley, Montrose county, Colo. This mine was worked extensively several years ago.

The Ironclad Mill company, operating the smaller of the two plants on Ironclad Hill, Cripple Creek, constructed by the Cripple Crtek Homestake company, cleaned up Friday from a two weeks' run. The ore averaged $2 per ton on 1,000 tons.

Experts in the employ of the Portland and Stratton's Independence properties, Cripple Creek, are preparing for a suit in whic hthe Portland claims $400,000 damages for ore wrongfully extracted.

The Consolidated Copper Creek Mining company has been sinking its Delmonico workings on Bull Hill, Cripple Creek, to water level, owing to the Gatch Park drainage tunnel, the depth will be 1,000 feet; now it is 600.

Work has been resumed on the Golden Cycle mine, Cripple Creek. The mine shut down several weeks ago to await completion of the company's mill at Colorado City. A force of 150 miners is employed.

Prospecting in Colorado has been delayed by snow in the mountains.

Operations have been resumed at the 1,000 foot level of the Smiley shaft of the Mountain Beauty company, Cripple Creek. At this depth an ore body twenty-five feet wide has been uncovered. The ore runs $50 per ton.

The annual meeting of the Argentum-Juniata Mining company, operating in the Aspen Colo., district, has been called for Council Bluffs, Iowa, June 11. An indebtedness of $20,000 has been canceled during the last year. Ore sales during the year were $7,862.32.

The Revenue mill, Ouray, Colo., will start work June 1 with a full force. Ore from the Revenue and adjacent mines will keep the mill running all summer.

The prospect of the Saratoga smelter at Ironton, Colo., starting up again after a long idleness, has quickened work among the forty-seven mines in this vicinity. Thousands of tons of ore are in sight.

Otto Stalmann, A. P. S. Macquisten and Otto Germer, officials of the American Direct Concentrating company, have selected a site for a contracting mill and zinc smelter just north of Rico, Colo. Ores of the Atlantic Cable group of mines will be treated. The plant will be built on the unit principle—50 tons to the unit. The methods employed are credited with 80 per cent savings. The iron is run off with the tailings. Fife years' supply of ore is in sight.

FOSTER MINE NOT SHUT DOWN

Property Lacks Development and the Ore Enrichments Are Irregular---Cobalt's Season Opens and Prospectors Are Active.

Cobalt, Can., May 25.—The Foster mine is not shut down and is not gutted, as has been reported. It lacks development and its ore enrichments are irregular. The mine would not sell for $1,000,000 today upon its merits as a mine. A new superintendent has been put in charge of the property and better things are expected of it soon.

The snow is off the ground in the Cobalt region and the summer season so far as mining is concerned is at hand. Visitors are coming in and on the mining areas trenching operators are in full swing. The Nipissing management has stated that active prospecting is to be carried on all over its property and a good start is being made in that direction.

The City of Cobalt Mining company, which owns the mining rights under a large portion of the townsite of Cobalt, have men at work trenching in the town itself.

While trade in stocks is dull mining operations are getting on a more solid basis right along. The frame of the Courages concentrator is going up and when this is completed it will make the Courages the most complete plant in the district and marke a new era in Cobalt's mining history.

This season will see thousands of men exploring the valley of the Montreal River for over 100 miles, while thousands will hunt for quartz in the Abitibi Lake region, which embraces the district of Larder Lake. Larder Lake itself continues to give birth to stories of finds of gold which boiled down and sorted out indicate that several promising prospects have been found. The Montreal River district in the townships of James Smythe, etc., is producing native silver after the character of Cobalt's deposits and great things are looked for this coming summer.

500,000 in 100,000 shares. Of this number 40,000 shares remain in the treasury, 50,000 shares wil be paid to the Wheal-kate Mining company for land, and 10,000 shares were sold at $2 a share, the balance being subject to call.

It is proposed to expend the $20,000 in exploratory work this summer.

The new concern is controlled by practically the same people who own the Lake Mining company, who recently secured control of the Indiana company, and who originally opened and developed the Superior mine, now controlled by the Calumet & Hecla.

Within a week the Mohawk management expects to have a third head compounded at the stamp mill, and with its completion the fourth head will next be altered.

For the first four months of the present year Mohawk has produced about 2,858,600 pounds of copper, which is at the rate of 8,500,000 pounds per annum, against $9,250,000 last year, but with four stamp heads running and an addition to the compressor plant combined with a general bettering of the rock, the production from now out should show marked increases and the output for the year should exceed that of 1906.

If the present wise policy of development and extension of openings is followed at the Isle Royale that mine may yet establish itself on a permanent remunerative basis. The management is now opening up the Isle Royale on a plan, which, if it had been followed years age, would have furnished a mine which would be now producing a much larger copper output, and consequently making good money for the shareholders, for the Isle Royale is running along now at a profit, to say nothing of the disaldvantages of maintaining a stamp mill to handle the limited supply of rock which goes down from the mine, and the large expense account, by reason of the exploratory operations which have been under way for the past year and a half.

The reports about the showing at No. 5 shaft are not overestimating the real situation at all. The shaft is now following the incline of the formation, and is on the lode for a distance of forty feet. The copper showing is just as good, if not better, than when first the lode was encountered after the men went through fifty feet of overburden. There are large quantities of mass stuff, but the general character of the lode formation is certainly excellent. The permanent shaft will be started very soon ,and then the sinking on the formation can continue at greater speed and to better advantage.

At No. 6 shaft the showing of high class stamp rock improves as the work reaches out to the south, and the openings here are in better condition, as far as the quality of rock is concerned, than they are at No. 2, the oldest shaft, which, with No. 6, is supplying the stamp mill. Recently the shipments from No. 6 have been increased slightly. No work has as yet been started at No. 4, although the diamond drill cores showed good copper. It is only a question of time before this shaft will be opened up, and there is every reason to believe that it will present a showing equal to that seen in No. 5 shaft. In the meantime the openings on No. 6 are being extended. When the time comes that these three shafts, Nos. 4, 5 and 6, are well opened, the Isle Royale lode may demonstrate that it has the quality that counts for results.

of ten acres lying between the McCallister and Cherokee Lead & Zinc company mines, to G. A. Pierson, Theo F. Morrow of Nevada, Mo.; O. C. Roberts, J. V. Roberts of Vinita, I. T., who will at once begin operations by sinking a shaft. The consideration was $4,000.

E. G. Lawley and H. E. Kline of Birmingham, Ala., bought the ten acres south of the Cherokee Lead & Zinc company's land, on which they have two drill holes with an 18-foot face of lead and jack, and are now sinking a shaft, having it down at this writing twenty feet. This property will be known as the Alabama mine.

A strike of rich lead was made by the "Little Four" mine at a depth of ninety feet, and at this writing they are still in it at ninety-six feet. G. T. McGrath of Pittsburg, Kan., is the manager of this mine.

The "Three Queens" struck the largest face of lead yet opened up in the camp, twelve feet, at a depth of seventy-four feet, and are still in it at eighty-six feet. This property is owned and operated by J. H. Gurley, Charles Gregory, John Bask, P. T. Golder, W. W. Witaker and B. Caldwell. Up till now they have used hand jigs and horse hoister, but are now preparing to install boilers and build a derrick.

In making the rounds of the mills in the camp, found 150 tons of ore in the bins ready for the market. The new people coming into the camp are bringing more capital, which will make the development here multiply many fold in the months to come.

Mineral Agent Padilla in the Cananea office and the getting about of report of returns of sixty ounces gold to the ton secured from assays of samples of ore brought in by Genaro Perez, Mr. Perez has been in the district in which the find was located for some time, having during last summer denounced his original property on the formation, this being in the vicinity of the Juerigo mine of Col. W. C. Greene in the Ajos, about twenty-five miles out of the city. In the last few months Mr. Perez has been engaged prospecting on a continuation of the formation, and the first of the week filed three denouncements in the city covering about seventy pertenencias.

The ore supply promises to exceed the capacity of the smelter even after the two new furnaces have been installed, as important ore bodies will be opened up within the next few months.

Operations are now on a larger scale at the Copper Hill mine of the Arizona Commercial company and ore shipments have been increased to 200 tons per day. Of this amount 130 tons are sulphides, which go to the Old Dominion, and seventy tons of silicious ore is shipped to the Douglas smelters. Only three cars of ore have been shipped from the Black Hawk mine thus far. The sulphide ore bodies in the Copper Hill look well and considerable work is being carried on. Two new boilers for the mine has been shipped from the East.

At the Black Hawk sinking is progressing rather slowly at a depth of about 550 feet. The pumps are raising 275,000 gallons of water perminute. A Prescott pump of 500,000 gallons capacity has been ordered. The Arizona Commercial railroad is hauling all the the company's ores and supplies, as well as for the Globe Consolidated, the Iron Cap and Superior & Boston, taxing its present capacity. Another and larger engine has been ordered.

When a small vein, carrying a quantity of hematite was recently encountered in the north crosscut of the Gem Shaft of the Globe Consolidated, for a time it was thought that the ore strike which had been anticipated with considerable eagerness had been made. On account of the flattening of the vein from a dip of 80 degrees on the surface to 60 degrees on the 500 foot level, it was at first supposed that the vein was much wider that it really is. The day following the cutting of the vein it was feared that it had actually been penetrated in the upper part of the crosscut before it was encountred in the lower part. It is very possible, however, that this is not the vein which has a strong surface showing.

Work in both crosscuts on the 500 level was hampered during the latter part of last week by the flow of water, which necessitated using the buckets for the hoistining of water much of the time. However, the water has subsided somewhat and after some timbering is done work will be prosecuted with the same vigor as past operations. Pumps and pipe were installed at once to cope with the water. The formation in the south crosscut is improving and shows signs of strong mineralization, while the north crosscut is now in a porphyritic formation, with some traces of iron. Sinking in the shaft is still progressing favorably with no change in the formation.

nearing completion on paper, which is a very essential detail in the construction of a reduction plant. Something in the nature of substantial building, it is expected, will materialize soon.

For the month of April the output of the Arizona Copper company was 1,316 tons of Bessemer copper, being a slight decrease from the month of March. The entire plant is in good running order and it is probable that May will ishow a slight increase. However, the A. C. company has reached the stage where the average tonnage of nearly 1,400 tons of Bessemer copper can be relied upon. At the present rate, unles uncontrollable circumstances take place, the showing for 1907 ought to be much in excess of the past few years.

The output of the Shannon Copper company for the month of April amounted to 627 tons of Besemer copper, a slight decrease from last month. The Shannon is preparing to increase its output at an early date, when it is expected that it will reach far above the present tonnage. When the new railroad is built the Shannon company will be in a position to handle more ore, although it will be necessary to have more blower capacity added before the output can be materially increased.

Mansfield Ariz., May 25.—One of the largest copper bearing veins on record has been demonstrated at this place, the width being over 200 feet. A tunnel has been run in about 175 feet, having cut numerous strata of high grade ores, some assays showing as high as 35 per cent copper, forty ounces of silver, and $4 gold, or a total of $209 to the ton. The ore now being encountered is of a good concentrating quality, and it is stated that it occurs in sufficient quantities in the various workings of the Mansfield company to keep a large mill running for years to come. The installation of a reduction plant is now contemplated at an early date in view of the large quantities of ore that will be available from the single vein referred to. New and rich stakes are of frequent occurrence on the Mansfield property; and development operations are being energetically pushed.

were entirely fruitless, there not only being a thick belt of quicksand to contend with, but huge boulders as well. Much money was expended in endeavoring to penetrate the treacherous overburden, and finally contracts for the work were given the New York Foundation company, which went about the task in a manner well known in sub-aquatic construction in the East, but entirely unique in the Lake Superior iron region. The procedure adopted has now been demonstrated just the thing to meet the situation, and it is the expectation that some ore will be shipped from both mines this season. A similar strata of quicksand has caused like trouble at the New York State Steel company's new Kellogg property, in the same field.

Another new town is shortly to be established on the Mesaba range. It will occupy a site adjoining the Gilbert mine, and will as well have the advantage of a location in close proxtinity to a number of other properties, among them the Mariska, Hobart, Pettit and LaBelle, with the Elba and others of the Pickands-Mather group nearer to it than any other community. Senator P. H. Vail and associates interested with him in the exploration of a 240-acre tract in the district between Chisholm and Bihl are meeting with excellent results in the work. Five drills are in commission, and it is the understanding that on one forty not yet thoroughly tested something like 2,500,000 tons of ore have already been found. The overburden averages seventy or eighty feet. The Niles Land company is the owner of the acreage, and according to the terms of the options it will realize a royalty of 25 cents per ton for all ore taken out.

The Delphic mine, in the Crystal Falls district of the Menominee range, has been taken under option by independent interests who will explore it with a diamond drill. It is an old-time property, in which the late ex-Governor Samuel J. Tilden of New York once was interested, and has been abandoned for years. A few thousand tons were taken out in the early days. Not that it has been demonstrated that both properties will develop into mines of no little importance, Corrigan, McKinney & Co., are equipping the Kimball and Fairbanks, at Crystal Falls, with permanent machinery. A fine new hoisting plant is being installed at each, also a battery of three 150-horse power boilers, and there will be ample air available for the drills, the compressor at the Fairbanks having a capacity of 2,500 cubic feet per minute, and that at the Kimball a capacity of 1,000. A row of dwelling houses for occupancy by miners and their families are in course of erection at the Kimball.

The Brule Mining company, which is the name under which Oglebay, Norton & Co., are operating in the Iron River field, is getting its several properties in condition to yield important outputs. Much new machinery has lately been received and installed. The properties will ship about 35,000 tons of ore this season, which will be no mean record when it is considered that a year ago the lands were practically undeveloped. Work at the Kinney pproperty, in Spring Valley, under option to the Zimmerman interests, is progressing very satisfactorily. A new and larger camp has recently been erected which will adequately handle the flow of water. Day and night shifts are being worked. The Huron Iron Mining company has taken over the so-called Wild-Cat exploration in Section 19 and will give the tract a systematic test. High grade ore has been encountered.

The Buffalo & Susquehanna people are unwatering the Munro open pit mine, west of Norway city, and will soon be taking out ore again. A larger force of men will be employed than last season, and the largest output in the history of the property will be made. Windows in St. Mary's church and parsonage, in Norway, were broken one day this week by chunks of ore hurled from the stockpile at No. 3 shaft at the Sicel Corporation's Aragon mine. The ore is so frozen that it requires considerable dynamite to loosen the dirt so that it can be handled by the steam shovel. A chunk from the Norway mine landed in one of the rooms of the Wisconsin & Michigan railroad depot.

The Cleveland Cliffs Iron company's crusher plant at the South Jackson mine at Negaunee, Marquette range, has been put in commission on the ore being mined from the old open pit, where operations were recently resumed. It is from this property that the first ore mined in the Lake Superior region was taken more than sixty years ago. At its Princeton mine in the Swanzey district, the company is building a big coal trestle similar to the structure recently constructed at its Maas mine at Negaunee. The trestle will be 300 feet long and of a width sufficient to accomodate three railroad tracks. Enough coal will be stocked here each summer to last the mine a year.

that has ore in paying quantities, but it is not copper ore, and it may be said that the Ida-Montana is another, but is not making a great effort to invade the pay shoot, as it desires to go deeper and tap the ore below.

All in all, the new companies are doing well, and within six months, and possibly less, some of them will be shipping ore to smelting plants. With others the time will be longer, for many of them have not been operating long enough to accomplish results in this direction. Several others are to begin development in the near future, provided everything goes right. Among them are the Pilot-Butte, which owns a valuable claim near the property of the North Butte company; the Butte & Balaklava, which owns two fractional claims in a good location around the point of the hill toward Meaderville; the North Butte Mountain, which owns a group of undeveloped claims northwest of Butte & Bacorn ground; the Butte Exemption Copper, which owns a group in the Park canyon district; the Butte-Knickerbocker, which owns a good group west of the Lexington, or La France Copper, and Butte Hill Copper, which owns a large tract of mineral ground west of the Butte & Bacorn.

The new hoisting engine ordered for the Tramway nine by the Butte Coalition and Butte & Boston companies last year is arriving, several carloads having been received, with more on the way from the East. The engine is a duplicate of the new one going up at the Pennsylvania mine, its weight being 500,000 pounds. It will work to a depth of 3,500 feet. The foundation for it has been finished two months and the iron building under which it will operate is almost finished.

The two companies are developing the Tramway and equipping it jointly, each bearing the cost in proportion to its holdings in the property. Butte & Boston owns two-thirds and Butte Coalition the other third, having bought it from F. A. Heinze along with Mr. Heinze's other properties. The development and operation of the Tramway will include the development and operation of the Snohomish, which adjoins the Tramway. The two companies own this property also, each holding a half interest in it.

The shaft on the Tramway is now more than 1,000 feet deep. To the 1,000 it is two-compartment, but a third compartment will be made, the work of raising have begun several days ago.

While this work is in progress the Boston & Montana company is raising from the 1,300 directly under the shaft and will soon finish 100 feet of the job. This company is also driving a cross-cut from the 1,400 of its Leonard mine to a point directly beneath the bottom of the Tramway and will raise when it reaches the perpendicular of the latter. In this way the shaft on the Tramway will soon be 1,400 feet deep, for the 100 feet between the 1,400 and 1,300 will be cut out in a short time.

The shaft on the property of the Butte-Milwaukee property is nearing the 300-foot mark, but no stop will be made when it reaches that point. It will be continued to the 1,000, and probably deeper, but the 1,000 is sure. The opening is of three compartments, and is as true as a die from top to bottom.

The North Butte Extension company has begun sinking on its group north of the North Butte property, and is getting its surface equipment in first-class shape. The work is progressing rapidly. North Butte Extension is one of the new companies, but notwithstanding this fact, it is not losing any time.

The Tuolumne Copper company, which is developing the Tuolumne claim, adjoining the Speculator, is crosscutting north and south of the 600-foot station, and has struck some fine copper-silver ore in the south opening. The face of the north crosscut is in about 60 feet, and that of the south about 50. Some of the ore struck was brought into the city yesterday and taken to the company's office. It is sulphide. No particular information as to the quantity in sight has been given out, but the lead on the surface, which was uncovered while the company was excavating for the engine foundation, is about 20 feet wide. It is supposed that this vein is the one from which the ore was taken at the 600, for its pitch south would just about land it 40 or 50 feet south of the shaft at this depth. It is reported that the vein at the 600 is 24 feet wide. There is no seepage water worth mentioning.

It is the intention of the company to resume sinking the shaft in about a week and carry the opening to the 1,000-foot mark as rapidly as possible. The exploration work on the 600 is more for prospective purposes than anything else, the company desiring to keep track of its veins and catch any blind leads that might traverse the claim.

The Ida-Montana company, operating on the north slope of the hill of the first canyon south of the one in which Columbia gardens is located, has struck its large vein at a depth of 250 feet and is now driving across it. The foot wall was encountered 54 feet south of the shaft. About 14 inches of commercial copper ore was found on the foot wall, and while the remainder of the material is mineralized, it is not commercial. In the workings above, where the vein was cut, the bulk of the good ore was found on the hanging wall, and it is thought the same condition will prevail at the 250.

The board of directors of the Raven company authorized John Berkin, who had charge of development work up to the time operations were suspended, to resume work on the property as soon as he could conveniently do so, and also directed him to buy additional boilers for power purposes and a larger hoisting engine than the one owned by the company. Charles Schmidt having resigned as a member of the board, Dr. D. Campbell was elected to succeed him.

Mr. Berkin will resume work in the old shaft on the Raven claim, which is 700 feet deep, using the old engine until the purposed new one is ready for operation. He will sink the shaft, with the 1,000-foot mark as the goal, but in all probability the opening will be eventually carried to the 1,500 or 1,800. It was at the 1,500 of the Buffalo that the company had so much good copper ore when work was suspended.

and is of two compartments. With the new hoist in use, the work of raising the third compartment will be commenced. This work will be prosecuted simultaneously from the 150, 300, 450, 600 and 700-foot levels; the sets having been completed the work of sinking the shaft to the 1,500-foot level will be resumed. A pump station will be cut in at the 700-foot level, and a large pump will be installed. Up to the present time the water has been taken care of by the sinking pumps.

The Black Rock group consists of Black Rock, Four Johns, Niagara, Raymond, Jersey Blue and Constitution. The company owns all the interests which were involved in the Black Rock and Niagara open controversy, which was decided in the United States court fourteen years ago. During the trial of the case it was shown that the rich veins could be reached by a shaft 800 feet deep. However, the shaft will probably be carried to a depth of at least 1,000 feet before any crosscutting is attempted.

At the Sign of the Star

Something over three centuries ago in Munich, Germany, there stood a little dingy tavern, with a bush or broom over the door, the sign of the only place in Germany where the Royal Brew of Munich could be had. Men of high and low degree, of all ages and all nations, have stood in line waiting their turn to taste that famous brew.

The Royal Brew of the 20th Century is marked by the sign of the star—the official trademark of which is the direct descendant of that Royal Brew of Munich. In brilliancy of color, delicacy of flavor, and in its clear, sparkling appearance it fascinates both eye and palate.

Every home that seeks the best will boast a case of Fitger's Beer.

LOVE'S VICTORY

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Vivia was a mystery to the whole seashore party—the butterfly "set" who had come down to the sea to rest and recuperate after their winter's dissipation. They had been there but a few days when Vivia Marchwell appeared among them. Who she was, from whence she came, none knew.

The man loved her. Richard Howe's artist-soul blossomed out suddenly in the passion flower of love after one glance from those haunting eyes. And Carl Neville, poet and dreamer, was fostering a passion, too mighty for that frail frame. Nor artist nor poet were destined to stir the slumbering depths of Vivia Marchwell's heart.

"Oh!" she said over and over again, "these men love me, and they want an answering love from me. I wish I could, oh! I wish I could love some good man. But I never can, I never can. I think my heart is dead, and its ashes are over the sea."

They were just down upon the beach one night just at sunset. The whole party were down, walking in groups or singly. Carlton Neville watched the figure of a man striding rapidly down the path from the town.

"Dick!" he said, "look yonder."

"Herbert Bell!" cried Dick in joyful surprise, while he grasped one hand and Carl the other. "Where did you hail from?"

"From home," laughed Herbert. "I found the city intolerable after you all left, so packed up and followed you."

Down the beach the three friends sauntered, asking questions and answering.

Herbert Bell paused suddenly.

"Who is that, Carl?" he whispered.—glancing toward a group of girls a few feet distant.

"Vivia Marchwell," he said. "You shall be presented this evening—and prepare to lose your heart. But be warned in time, for Miss Marchwell has no heart to give in return. She cannot love, she says."

"You seem to know the state of the lady's mind," laughed Herbert; "I think I understand. Oh, well, I shall not trespass."

But a nameless thrill shot through Herbert Bell's heart that evening as he met the fathomless eyes "with dreams in them."

That same night Vivia Marchwell lay awake and questioned her heart. "Why does the face of this man haunt me so?" she asked. "I cannot close my eyes, but his face glows in the mists before me, and my heart is thrilled at the sound of his voice like a harp to the touch of a master hand."

Ah, Vivia Marchwell! there are mysteries in life that can never be explained this side of the grave, and we cannot conquer Fate.

There was a grand piano in the drawing room, and Herbert Bell sought it the following morning. You would know, to see him touch the keys, even before the sound came forth, that he was king and master there. Heaven endowed him with great musical talent, and all that education could add had been added. You knew this when the sound rolled out beneath his masterly touch. Vivia Marchwell knew it, sitting hidden there in the bay window. It touched her soul and opened the fountains of her heart as they had not been opened in years.

She was weeping, her face upon her hands, when the music ceased. Herbert Bell sought the window and stood amazed at the sight.

"Come," he said, and folded his arms about her.

The shrill whistle of an approaching train, a few miles distant, broke suddenly upon the silence, and Vivia shuddered as in an ague chill.

"What is it," she said, looking in her lover's eyes, "that chilled me so then? The shriek of that engine cut my heart like a knife."

Two hours afterward she knew. Standing in the bay window, through the early twilight she saw the tall figure of a man coming up the pathway—a tall, foreign figure, with a Spanish cloak thrown over the shoulders and a wide-brimmed hat slouched over the eyes.

She clutched Herbert Bell's arm with hands like ice and her face grew ghastly. As the stranger passed the bay window he lifted two fierce, black eyes—eyes that Herbert Bell saw in his dream—and touched his hat with a mocking smile.

A moment later he entered the room, and Vivia Marshall dropped down at Herbert Bell's feet. He stooped to lift her, but the swarthy stranger was in advance.

"My wife has fainted, I think," he said, calmly. "Will you please bring a glass of water?"

And Herbert Bell, as one in a dream, obeyed and waited until the dark eyes unclosed.

"Oh, God pity me," she moaned, as the dark face of the stranger bent over her. "Paul! Paul Inerzo, I thought you were dead. I saw you go down—down into the sea. Must you haunt me even after you are dead?"

Paul Inerzo laughed and stroked his face with one long, deathly-white hand, and again Herbert Bell thought of his dream and shuddered. He bent over the woman who was dearer than life to him, and would have taken her in his arms, but she put up her hands.

"No, no," she said, slowly. "That can never be, Herbert. I am his wife. Oh, God! pity me. But I thought him dead. Oh, Herbert, I thought him dead until this moment."

Again the stranger laughed. "I am sorry I was so selfish as to live," he said, "but that being the case, what more natural than that I should follow my wife. I am glad to find her so faithful," and the fierce eyes like coals of fire, were lifted to Herbert Bell's face.

"And now," he continued, "having found her, I shall hasten with her over the sea, where her numerous friends are anxiously waiting. We will start early in the morning, my love. The house is full, I understand, but I will accommodate myself with the sofa and my cloak during the night, and tomorrow morning, remember, we will go."

"Yes," she said, slowly, I will go."

But in the morning, while Paul Inerzo lay in a sound sleep upon the sofa, Vivia Marchwell was many leagues distant, and under the door of Herbert Bell's room she had slipped this note:

"Dear Herbert: Yes, dearer to me than any other man was, is, or ever will be. I am going away and you may never see me again, but I want to tell you who and what I am. My real name is Viviance Markweller. I am an Italian, and was born in Florence. In my infancy I was betrothed to Paul Inerzo, a Spanish nobleman's son. As soon as we grew older the thought of the union became more and more distasteful to me, and when at 18 my parents commanded the nuptials to be celebrated, my whole soul abhorred it. He was vicious, wild, bad, unprincipled. But they forced me to it. Herbert, they made me marry him. He was very wealthy, and one of a noble race, and I was married to him, and then when the whole terrible truth rushed over me, that I was chained for life to this man, I fled from him—from the very altar—ere the words were scarcely said which made us one. Out into the night I sped through streets and by-alleys until I reached home. Then swiftly covering my bridal robes with a thick, dark cloak, I sped out again—on, on, I knew not whither. I was dumb, I think, and I never paused until the morning light broke upon me. Then I sank exhausted at a peasant's threshold and begged for food and shelter. I drew off one of my rings and gave it to her, asking, imploring protection. For one day I rested here, and then on again, anywhere only to flee from this man; sometimes resting a few days with the peasants and buying their protection, for I had gold and jewels—oh, beautiful, priceless jewels on neck and arms and hands. At last, through one kind good man's aid I was on board a ship bound for America. I had purchased clothing and all things ready for the life upon the ocean and in the unknown land to which I was going. We were rocking upon the waves almost within an hour of sailing when suddenly, as I sat upon the deck, a hand was laid upon my shoulder, and turning, I met the dark, evil eyes of Paul Inerzo. 'My dear,' he said, 'I have concluded to accompany you on your trip to the New World. How pleasant it will be to spend our honeymoon thus!' And then he leaned upon the rail and looked mockingly in my face. The boat rocked suddenly just then, and I saw him reel and fall down—down. 'Man overboard,' the cry rang out, and the boats were lowered, but he was not found. A few moments later and we were out at sea. 'Free, free,' I cried, with a great joy in my heart. I came to America, entered an academy as teacher of Italian, living much secluded and retired. I have been in America two years and I never knew what subtle instinct led me down to the seashore for a season of rest and recuperation. I had thought, after I met you, it was of divine origin. I think now my evil genius told me to go. But for this he would not have found me, I sometimes think. But I am going to flee from him even if it is to the utmost extremity of the earth. And now, dear Herbert, farewell.

"V. M."

Two days afterward Carlton Neville unlocked his boat from the shore and rowed out into the calm sea. He never came back.

Richard Howe laid down the pallet and the brush, and went out a wanderer upon the face of the earth.

And Herbert Bell, he went back to his old home, and every Sabbath the grand organ rolled out its wonderful symphonies beneath his touch, only with a new and added beauty and volume, and the great love and grief of his life found utterance thus, and so he lived until two years passed away.

Then one morning a note was handed him by a boy. "A lady from the White Inn, sir, sent this," he said. It was only this—

"He is dead and I am free. V. M."

But Herbert Bell understood, and with a great joy in his heart he went to her. She was alone and without one word he took her in his arms. "I have been very patient," he said, at length, "for I felt sure God would send you to me at last, and He has."

"Yes," she whispered, "but oh, Herbert, it has been so long. I have fled from place to place, and each time Paul Inerzo tracked me, and each time, thank God, I escaped him. He was crushed between the cars and instantly killed, three days past, in trying to spring upon the moving train where I had a moment before entered. I come to you ever as I left you."

"And nothing shall ever part us, my darling," he said: "nothing but death."

"Nothing but death," she echoed.

LOVE'S VICTORY

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Vivia was a mystery to the whole seashore party—the butterfly "set" who had come down to the sea to rest and recuperate after their winter's dissipation. They had been there but a few days when Vivia Marchwell appeared among them. Who she was, from whence she came, none knew.

The new arrival took her. Richard Howe's artist-soul blossomed out suddenly in the passion flower of love after one glance from those haunting eyes. And Carl Neville, poet and dreamer, was fostering a passion too mighty for that frail frame. Nor artist nor poet were destined to stir the slumbering depths of Vivia Marchwell's heart.

"Oh!" she said over and over again, "these men love me, and they want an answering love from me. I wish I could, oh! I wish I could love some good man. But I never can, I never can. I think my heart is dead, and its ashes are over the sea."

They were just down upon the beach one night just at sunset. The whole party were down, walking in groups or singly. Carlton Neville watched the figure of a man striding rapidly down the path from the hostal.

"Dick," he said, "look yonder."

"Herbert Bell!" cried Dick in joyful surprise, while he grasped one hand and Carl the other. "Where did you hail from?"

"From home," laughed Herbert. "I found the city intolerable after you all left, so packed up and followed you."

Dick led the three friends stunned, asking questions and answering.

Herbert Bell paused suddenly.

"Who is that, Carl?" he whispered,—glancing forward a group of girls a few feet distant.

"Which?"

"The girl with dreams in her eyes."

Carl Neville understood, indefinite as the words were.

"Vivia Marchwell," he said. "You shall be presented this evening—and prepare to lose your heart. But be warned in time, for Miss Marchwell has no heart to give in return. She cannot love, she says."

"You seem to know the state of the lady's mind," laughed Herbert; "I think I understand. Oh, well, I shall not trespass."

But a nameless thrill shot through Herbert Bell's heart that evening as he met the fathomless eyes "with dreams in them."

That same night Vivia Marchwell lay awake and questioned her heart. "Why does the face of this man haunt me so?" she asked. "I cannot close my eyes, but his face glows in the mists before me, and my heart thrilled at the sound of the voice like a harp to the touch of a master hand."

Ah, Vivia Marchwell! there are mysteries in life that can never be explained this side of the grave, and we cannot conquer Fate.

There was a grand piano in the drawing room, and Herbert Bell sought it the following morning. You would know, to see him touch the keys, even before the sound came forth, that he was king and master there. Heaven endowed him with great musical talent, and all that education could add had been added. You knew this when the sound rolled out beneath his masterly touch

Dogs cant abide Cats, and I dont blame em for cats are such vishous animals and spit so. And cats have such sharp klaws and scratch like the mischief. A fite between a dog and a Cat is most tremendus to behold.

Most dogs have tales, although Ive seen some that had just stumps where their tales ought to grow. Every dog can Snarl and Groul when he gits riled, and he is shore to git riled 2 for he is like plain People and has a temper of his Own. But dogs are never kowerds. Ive seen a dog no Biggern my 2 fists what run right out and barked like all pozessed at the worst looking tramp I ever set Eyes on. I run and hid under the Bed I was so skared. The little dog was more of a soldier than I was. That is saying a good deel for him, for inc no kowerd when it comes to holding my Own.

Dogs are necessary animules. boys couldent git On without em. And they are pleasant to have round in the back yard for they eat up the scraps and keep the tramps and Cats Away. Dogs also git fleas which keeps em Biting very Much and is a Great torment. Ticks also git on dogs and suck much of their Blud away. So you See dogs has their trubbles as well as Folks do. There is always the Bitter with the Sweet.

Binny and Joe Observe Memorial Day.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

"Oh, mama, what are you going to do with so many beautiful flowers?" cried Binny, as she ran into her mother's room the evening before Memorial Day.

"Tomorrow is Decoration Day, dearie," replied her mama, "and we shall all go to the cemetery, as usual, and help to decorate the graves of our friends and the soldiers who are buried there. See, these little wreaths of white blossoms are for you and Joe. And you shall also have a basket of loose roses and ferns to scatter over the graves."

"Oh, yes, just like we did last Memorial Day," said Binny. "I remember how many flowers you got, mama dear, for brother and me to take to the cemetery. And shall we decorate the same graves this year that we did last?"

"Of course, child, our dear dead ones are lying in the same places and are as dear in our memories now as a year ago. But why should you ask such a question, Binny?"

"Oh, I've seen so many, many graves down at one corner of the big cemetery that never have any flowers on them at all, and they are not nicely kept nor have they stones. Last year I wondered why they were forgotten, while all the other graves—those inside the high wall—were covered with flowers," explained Binny.

"That is the paupers' graveyard," said mama, in a low tone. "The poor unfortunates buried there have no families nor friends to look after their last resting place. Of course, the sexton keeps the weeds cut and the trees trimmed, but, otherwise, they go neglected and forgotten."

"That isn't right," declared Binny, a look of tender reproach coming into her heavenly blue eyes. "Everyone should spare a few flowers for the paupers, for if they were unfortunates they should be remembered kindly. I think it was hard enough to die so poor and have to be buried by strangers, and it is worse to be neglected and forgotten on Memorial Day. Oh, I hope none of us shall ever become paupers."

"Dear, dear child!" said Binny's mama, putting an arm about the slim little form and drawing it to her. "Of course, dearie, none of us will ever become so unfortunate. Heaven forbid."

Then mama kissed her little sunny haired girlie and told her to run and call Joe, for there were some more flowers to be gathered before nightfall, and Binny and Joe should take the basket and scissors and perform the delightful task. "Cut all the full-blown roses," mama instructed, as the two children ran toward the garden. "Also get plenty of green to go with them. And maybe there are a few more pansies, too, that may be stolen from the bed to weave into a wreath."

Joe and Binny, laughing and singing, began their work of cutting great, drooping roses and branches of leaves. Their rose garden was a delight to the eye, and few persons passed that way without stopping to admire it. As the children worked they were too much preoccupied to hear the slow and soft footfall of an old woman who came along the sidewalk, that was separated from the flower garden by a high paling fence. She paused under a tall tree, in whose shade she was almost lost, her garments being somber like the shadows about her. An aged and careworn face looked from under a shabby bonnet that almost hid her thin gray hair, which was smooth and tidy. Everything about the old woman's attire pronounced neatness and poverty. She stood looking through the fence palings at the profusion of flowers. Then Binny and Joe came from out a clump of rose bushes, their happy voices filling her ears. "Ah, beautiful flowers and children," the aged lips whispered softly, "and a home of happiness and plenty." Tears dimmed the faded blue eyes and a trembling hand was raised to wipe them away. Just at that moment Binny looked toward the fence and saw the bent and solemn form standing there, half leaning against the tree for support. Instantly the little heart beat responsive to the sadness depicted in the aged face and bent form, and, throwing down her scissors, she ran to the fence, smiling kindly into the old woman's face. "Are you tired?" Binny asked, in her sweet, sympathetic voice.

"Yes, a bit so," came the feeble answer. "I am far away from—from the place where I am going to live," she went on. "I caught a glimpse of your garden and stopped to admire it a moment. Then your voice, mingled with that of the little boys', came to my ears, and roused recollections. Oh, sweet child, it is sad to be old—and—poor."

Instantly Binny had opened a gate a few feet away and had gone to the aged woman's side. "Yes, I understand, grandmama," she said, her own little voice quiver with emotion. "But come into the garden and sit down on a bench and rest a bit. I'll send to the house and have mama make you a cup of tea before you go on to your home."

"Dear little girl," murmured the old woman, "I have no—home."

Binny could not reply to this for a moment, there was such a lump in her throat. She gently insisted on the old woman's entering the garden to rest a minute or so. Once she had prevailed upon her doing this she sent Joe post-haste to the house for a cup of tea, although the old woman begged her to not do so, saying she did not want to put anyone to so much trouble.

Binny forgot her task and also that to-morrow was Decoration Day. She sat down on the bench beside the old woman and said:

"You say you are a long way from your place where you live? Well, mama will have our coachman take you in the carriage. It is getting late and you are tired. You must not walk."

"I am going to a new stopping place," the old woman admitted somewhat reluctantly. And a flush as of shame came into her wrinkled cheek. "You see, child, I am getting very old and feeble and cannot work as I used to do. Well, last week it came to an end with me—the trying to live alone and make my living. So I've given up and am—am—going to ask for admittance to the——"

But she did not finish the sentence. Her voice sunk to a whisper, dying away in a deep, muffled sob that shook her frame.

Binny batted her eyes very hard to keep back two great, big tears that made her blue eyes ache dreadfully. But she was a brave little soul and mastered her emotion enough to comfort the miserable old woman beside her. "Come, dear, old grandmama," she said softly, "you must go into my own house and stay till you are stronger. Come with me."

"You are a dear little angel," sobbed the old woman, caressing the child's sunny hair. "Although I never had a grandchild I love to hear you call me by that precious name, grandmama. But I had two boys—dear, good boys. One was delicate and died when a little lad. The other was killed in a mine. He was my only support. My husband had been called away soon after my first—my baby's—death. All this has been hard to bear. And tomorrow the graves of the rich will be shrouded with flowers. The graves of my dear ones will not get a single blossom. I've been to the cemetery to look at their graves, for tomorrow I can't stand to be there when the crowd comes with so many flowers. Also, tomorrow I must be at the—poorhouse. It is not my wish to be on the county—to live on charity, but I'm old now and am not strong enough to work. But, child, I must be going. I'm quite rested now, and feel so much better since having talked to you. God bless you, dear, and protect you from so sad a fate as my own." The old woman rose to go, kissing Binny's fair hair. But Binny was on her feet, her arms about the frail form, holding her. "No, no, grandmama," she whispered, "you shall not go to—to—that dreadful place to live, not while Binny Day has a voice to plead for you."

Joe came at this moment, carrying a napkin tray that held a pot of steaming tea, a cup, a mug of cream and a bowl of sugar. "I thought I'd never get cook to fix this," he explained, excusing his delay. "Mama has gone out on an errand, and won't be back till after ten. So I had to beg cook to fix this for me. Mama would have done it so much quicker, though."

The old woman sat down again and sipped the refreshing tea, Binny on the bench beside her holding the tray, and Joe sitting on the ground at her feet looking inquiringly into her face. Very tactfully Binny told her brother the poor old woman's sad story, taking pains to speak in a manner that could not possibly wound the breaking heart. "It might happen to any of us," Binny wound up with, "to papa or mama or you and me. We'll all grow old some time."

"Sure," said Joe, his own sympathy enlisted with his sister's. "But, say, sis, we'll take all our flowers to—to—her folkses' graves, won't we?"

* * * * * * * *

The next morning the carriage of Mr. and Mrs. Day was filled with people and flowers as it was drawn by a fine span of horses to the cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Day sat in the front seat, and in the back were Binny and Joe, with "grandmama" between them. The previous evening the children had refused to allow the poor old woman to depart from their garden until their mother came home. And as soon as Binny and Joe—in their different ways—had whispered the case into the mother's ears she said fervently: "God bless my darling children. What hearts of gold! Indeed, the dear old grandmama shall not enter the poorhouse while we have so comfortable a home—and with room and food to spare. She shall take her place at our fireside, as well as in our sympathies. Your two blood grandmothers have good homes of their own, and this, your adopted grandmother, shall fare as well as they. She has not many years to live, but those few years shall be filled with kindness and affection."

"And on each Decoration Day we'll take dead loads of flowers to the graves of her folks, won't we?" broke in Joe.

"And to the graves of the paupers," said Binny in a low voice. "For, just think, this dear old new grandmother would have been in a pauper's grave if—if—"

"If the best little girl in the world had not rescued her," said Binny's mother with a hearty kiss on her little daughter's rosy cheek.

And that is how it came to pass that all the flowers carried to the cemetery by Binny, Joe and "grandmama" went to glorify the last resting places of "grandmama's" beloved dead and the unknown unfortunates that slept in the "paupers' graveyard."

And as the Day family drove homeward from the morning's ceremony there were five happy hearts beating in their carriage instead of four. "Grandmama's" face wore a look of quiet peace and thankfulness.

MEMORIAL DAY.

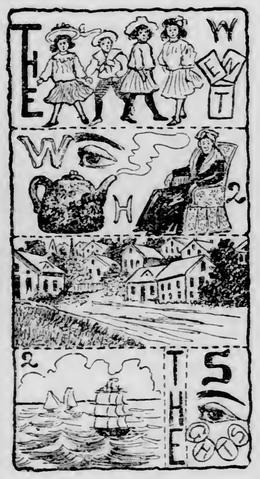
With June's first fair touch
Felt through last breaths of May;
With the world bloom-aglow,
Comes Memorial Day.

A Day, when with flowers,
And slow, solemn tread,
We go to the graves of
Our dear precious dead.

We whisper above them;
Their souls surely hear!
And they feel that their loved ones
Are lingering near.

The fairest of blossoms,
All pink, white and red,
Form soft, fragrant coverlets
To spread o'er our dead.

Then gently and sweetly
A farewell we say
To those loved who are sleeping
On Memorial Day.



When Ben Saw a Ghost.

BY MAUD WALKER.

Ben was the bravest boy in town. Nothing, however scary, ever frightened him or made him turn a hair. And there had been plenty of times when things "most unnatural"—to use Ben's own way of expressing certain happenings that remained unexplained"—had been witnessed by him; but to no avail. He had kept his head when other boys had become white through fear and had found difficulty in running fast enough to take them out of the way of danger. And still Ben, the brave, had stood his ground.

One evening when several of Ben's young friends were calling upon him the conversation turned to the subject of ghosts and spooks. "There 're no such things," Ben declared vehemently. "People who believe in such phenomena are a bit weak in their upper story." And Ben looked important as he delivered himself of the big and high-sounding word "phenomena," the real meaning of which few of those present understood. Indeed, it was the familiar use of such unusual words that made Ben stand so high in the estimation of his comrades. "He's a mighty deep feller," declared Nixey to Snipe in a whisper. "He reads the consarndest big books that's filled with words a yard long. And he understands what he's reading, too. There's the rub."

"Yep; but all that don't signify that there's no such things as ghosts," whispered back Snipe. "I, for one, have heard people who have seen 'em say that there are plenty of spooks—and to spare."

"Say, you fellers over there, quit your whispering," commanded Ben. "Say what you've got to say in a loud voice, so that all present may have the benefit of your weighty observations."

"Snipe says 'at there are spooks—and to spare," explained Nixey. "Now, let's ask him to give us some proofs of this." And Nixey looked about on the faces of the assembled boys with a certain "show-offness" of expression, meaning to convey the idea that he—like Ben—scoffed at the sheer notion of spooks or ghosts.

"Well, I say there is—is—such phenomeny," asserted Snipe, determined to forward the debate and to use some of Ben's own large words as weapons, although his pronunciation was a bit at fault. But boys are not particular about trifles, and Snipe's "phenomeny" went uncorrected, though a smile played about Ben's mouth for a moment.

"Well, let's have some proof that there are ghosts," said Ben. "I've read of 'em, I've heard of 'em; but, be ginger! I've never seen one nor heard one. Now, honest Injun, have you, Snipe?"

"N—o—o, I can't say I've really ever seen one," admitted Snipe. "But onct I heard one—I'm quite certain. It was one night when I was going to granny's house. I cut through one corner of the graveyard to make the road shorter. Well, 'pon my word an' honor an' hope to die nex' month, if I didn't hear a funny sound comin' from old man Perkins' tombstone. It made cold shivers run all over me—so it did. I told granny, and she said maby it was the bad man after some sinner. But you bet I didn't go home that way."

"And I'll bet you stayed at your granny's all night, too," laughed Ben. "Now, if it had been yours truly there in that graveyard, that spook—or bad man—or whatever it was that made such a funny noise, would have been invited to step forth and give an account of himself."

Silence greeted Ben's brave speech, for none present wished to boast too much about his own bravery, fearing lest he might be challenged to go to the graveyard at night to prove his words.

After a little, Snipe pursued: "I bet you don't want to go to the graveyard tonight an' wait near old man Perkins' tombstone to hear if that funny noise is made. I'll bet you won't."

"Oh, I'm not anxious to stay out in a graveyard half a night," said Ben easily, looking about on the faces of his friends; "but if anyone present makes me a dare—well, I never take a dare."

"I dare you," spoke up Snipe. "I dare you to go to the graveyard at 11 o'clock and to sit under the trees that are around old man Perkins' tombstone. Do you take it?"

"I certainly do," declared Ben, rising and stretching his arms and yawning. "And to satisfy you kids that I really go, I shall appoint Snipe as a committee of one to bear me company. He shall see whether or not I am there at the time and the place mentioned in the dare."

Snipe's face went white and he felt a peculiar sensation on top of his head, just as though his hair were straightening up. But, fearing to call forth his companions' ridicule by refusing outright to accompany Ben to the uncanny place mentioned, he said:

"I'd go with you, of course, Ben, but mother—she always—always— wants me in bed at—at—half past eight."

"Then you're due in bed half an hour ago," smiled Ben. "It's now 9 o'clock. Why, you should be dreaming about that spook at this minute, instead of sitting here talking about him." And Ben pointed to the clock in his room as he spoke.

"Oh, since you made the dare you've got to be the committee to watch and see that Ben does as he's dared to do," exclaimed Frank, Nixey's especial chum. "If you don't go with him how are we to know that he really stays in the graveyard more than a minute?"

"Why don't you go?" asked Snipe. "I'll believe you fellers as quick as I'd believe myself."

"But we didn't make the dare," explained Frank.

Seeing that the laugh was going to be on him Snipe was forced to consent to accompany Ben to the graveyard that night at 11 o'clock. Frank and Nixey promised to call at Snipe's home and tell his mother that he was remaining all night with Ben Rogers. But if she was unwilling to consent to this they would return and notify Snipe, so that he might call off the dare and go home to "his own 'little bed."

Before the boys departed Ben promised to see them all in the morning at 8 o'clock and report his experience and discovery—if there should be any DISCOVERY. Snipe was a bit uneasy, and gave the boys many messages to his mother, one of them being, "If I never see mother any more I leave her my bank that's got three dollars in it, and I leave my marbles and skates to Cousin Joe." Of course, this message was not given to Snipe's mother. Frank and Nixey only laughed over it as they went along the street. On knocking at the door of Snipe's home they merely told his mother—who answered their knock—that Snipe was going to spend the night with Ben, as they—Ben and Snipe—were busy studying "phenomeny." Snipe's mother, making no objection to her son's remaining with Ben, there was no message to carry back to Snipe, so after a hopeful half hour was passed by that young coward he realized that he must give himself up to fate and—the SPOOKS. He was very quiet as he sat with Ben waiting for the hour when they should start to the graveyard. Ben told many ghost stories of a character to curl poor Snipe's hair and freeze the blood in his veins. Of course, after each horrifying tale Ben would smile and say: "But I've my doubts about the truth of that story."

After what seemed a month the hands of the clock pointed to a quarter of 11. Ben put on his coat and hat and said it was time to go. Snipe rose reluctantly and went creeping out of the house with the big, brave Ben. When they had reached the gate leading into the cemetery Snipe halted and said in low tones that he felt a bit ill. "Ah, you're just scared," laughed Ben. "Come on."

"Say," said Snipe, "if you want me to I'll call that dare off."

"Not on your tintype," emphasized Ben. "I'm in for finding a spook. In other words, I want to make an investigation in the world of phenomena."

Snipe straightened up and determined to follow the brave Ben into the cemetery regardless of consequences. They followed a winding path that took them close to the grave of "Old Man Perkins." Here Ben signaled Snipe to be seated on the moss beneath a tall and thickly leaved tree that cast its dark shade about for many feet. Snipe, too weak to stand, did as his companion ordered. Ben remained standing, leaning against the tree. They spoke not a whisper, and both strained their ears for unusual sounds. The wind swept through the boughs of trees and rose bushes, making a low, solemn wail.

Just as the last stroke of the courthouse clock struck the hour of 12 Snipe was on the point of declaring to Ben that the test satisfied him, and that he would admit that there was no such things as spooks, and would willingly go home, when from an adjacent tree top came the most horrifying hiss, a hiss that made even Ben straighten up and turn his ear attentively, while Snipe jumped to his feet with the agility of a frightened cat. Then by the stray shafts of moonlight that filtered through the tree branches Ben could see that Snipe's face was as pale as white cloth. "Oh, don't be afraid," advised Ben. But Snipe trembled till his teeth chattered. "Say," he whispered stutteringly beneath his breath, "that's the noise I heard the night I went through here to granny's. It's a spook and no mistake. Let's git away, Ben, for the love of our mothers and fathers." While he spoke Snipe was tugging at Ben's sleeve trying to persuade him to go away with him.

"Listen!" said Ben in a severe tone. "I want to make a mental note of that sound. If it's superhuman it is worth recording. Oh, for a phonograph cylinder! Then I'd capture it and turn it over to those interested in strange phenomena."

"Hang phenomeny!" wailed Snipe under his breath. "Come, take me away from here before we are both killed. It's an evil spirit."

"See up there?" And Ben pointed to the top of the tree from which the hissing sound came. As Snipe looked the hiss turned into a strange sort of snore. Snipe, trembling till he was on the point of falling, looked up and beheld a sight that caused him to almost faint. There, perched on a limb in plain sight, was something white and small from which two great luminous eyes shone forth. "Oh, Lord, save me!" began Snipe. "Save me and take me home to mamma."

Snipe's condition of mind was almost pitiful, and Ben being a good-hearted fellow could not let his companion suffer longer. "Say, Snipey, see here," he said in so loud a voice that Snipe nudged him as a warning to be more quiet, "I must advise you to read a bit more in natural history, and prove to you by my boldness that the thing we see and hear is no more than a plain white owl. In fact, I'm going to climb the tree and before your eyes frighten away the owl." Against Snipe's wish, Ben was as good as his word and went up the tree like a squirrel. As he neared the limb on which the white thing sat there was a quick flutter of wings, and away through the night went the owl, flying to another tree near by. Ben came down and asked Snipe if he were satisfied that his spook could fly, but not vanish into thin air."

Snipe shuddered and wished he was at home with his mother and father.

"Yes, I've learned enough 'bout phenomeny to know that spooks are snoring owls if you wait long enough in a graveyard to find 'em out," admitted Snipe. "And now let's go home. The joke is on me and tomorrow you can tell all the boys and have it over at once. I don't like jokes coming up in yer face long after they ought to be dead and buried."

"I'll keep this one for my own special property to laugh over by myself," promised Ben, as they wand-ered homeward. "But, Snipey, I'm glad you got a lesson on the snoring white owl tonight. I think you'll remember it, too."

TOMMY'S DILEMMA.

A Sunday-school teacher was trying to make clear to his class of small boys the fundamental doctrines of the Declaration of Independence. "Now, class," he said, "I will give to each of you three buttons. Here they are. You must think of the first one as Life; of the second one as Liberty; of the third one as the Pursuit of Happiness. Next Sunday I shall ask you each to produce your three buttons and tell me what they represent." The following Sunday the teacher said to one of the boys: "Tommy, produce your three buttons and tell me what they stand for."

"I ain't got 'em all," sobbed Tommy, holding out two of the buttons. "There's Life and Liberty, but maw sewed Pursuit of Happiness on my pants."

GIGANTIC MERGER OF BIG EASTERN RAILROADS WILL FAR OUTRIVAL HARRIMAN

Greater Pennsylvania System With Capital of $1,000,000,000.

Taps the Great Freight Territory From Maine to Gulf.

Charles S. Mellen, Master Mind of Colossal Combine.

Chicago, May 27.—A dispatch to the Inter Ocean from Washington, says: While the eyes of the whole country have been centered on E. H. Harriman, as the master manipulator of the railroad world, a greater and more extensive combination of railroad interests has been in process of perfection, until now the plans are matured for the public declaration of this gigantic merger.

More than $1,000,000,000 of capital is involved and the mileage of the new system will extend practically from the most northern point of the Atlantic coast to the gulf ports, with a network of tracks gridironing New England, the East and Middle West and tapping the greatest freight producing territory in the world.

This colossal merger, when perfected, will be known as the Greater Pennsylvania system. It will embrace practically all the railroad mileage in New England, together with the present Pennsylvania lines east and west of Pittsburg, with through connections to New Orleans and the gulf.

Instead of projecting a trans-continental line from ocean to ocean the keystone of the new system will be the Panama canal. Traversing, as it does, the most congested sections of the Commerce Commission to Adopt More Radical Policy.

Proposed to Put Some Law Violator Behind the Bars.

Chicago, May 27.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Washington, D. C., says: The interstate commerce commission has entered upon a more radical policy in the treatment of corporations which persist in violating the law. Possessed of authority to investigate every phase of railroad business and having the power to bring about the punishment of individuals as well as corporations, the commission is pushing its work with determination.

Commissioner Judson C. Clements of Georgia, who has had fifteen years' service yesterday said: "One of the wholesome things that could happen would be the putting in jail of some man of prominence in the railroad world. It would do more than anything else to bring about better conditions.

FORTY MILLION TONS OF ORE TO MOVE ON LAKES

Cleveland, May 27.—In order to move the forty million tons of ore scheduled for this season on the Great Lakes, the shipments during the remainder of the season will have to approximate six million tons for each month. Compared with last year, there has been a slight decrease in this traffic, owing to the cold weather and late opening of navigation. With the exception of coal, the movement of freight in general is not as heavy as it was last year at this time. Those in a position to know believe that the freights handled last year will be increased by several million tons this season.

For this season, seventy-one vessels are scheduled for launching, of which forty-five are bulk freighters. Great interest attaches to these in marine circles, because of the influence the increased tonnage is expected to wield in freight rates.

THE MYSTERY IS UNSOLVED

Police Unable, So Far, to Trace Murderers of Priest.

New York, May 27.—Up to an early hour today, although they had thoroughly searched the Armenian districts of the city, the police had failed to make any arrests in connection with the murder of the Armenian priest, identified as Father Kasper, whose body, doubled up in a trunk, was found Sunday in an apartment at 335 West Thirty-seventh street.

The police search revealed that the murder of the priest might have been due to exposure a few months ago of an attempt to usurp the throne of Servia by a pretender who is now supposed to be in Jersey City. A story was given out, supposedly by the Armenian priest, that a prince of Servia was in Jersey City organizing a movement to put him on the throne. It was rumored that the loyal adherents to the pretender had vowed vengeance upon the man who had given out the story, as the publication would hinder the plans which the prince and his supporters had on foot.

There is, however, no direct evidence in the hands of the police at prove that Father Kasper was the priest that gave out the story.

Providence, R. I., May 27.—According to Dr. Arskag Margossian of 509 Westminster street, this city, an Armenian priest named Kaspar, and answering the general description of the murdered man whose body was found in a trunk in a house in Hoboken, N. J., lived for a short time in this city and East Providence, but left here several months ago. The man was a native of Mousk, Turkey. He had no regular pastorate here, but preached occasionally in various churches.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND ON LAKE SHORE IS IDENTIFIED AS CHICAGO PHYSICIAN

Had Left Home in Chicago Several Days Ago.

Brother in Duluth Returns After Searching for Her.

The woman whose body was found yesterday afternoon on the lake shore at the foot of Seventeenth avenue east was Dr. Mary Crosby of Chicago, sister of J. Q. A. Crosby of 2608 East Superior street. The mysterious trouble to which she alluded in the letter which was found in her satchel, the "suspicions" of her friends and relatives, and the watch which she refers to in the letter were all the hallucinations of a disordered mind.

These facts were established when Mr. Crosby arrived in Duluth shortly after 11 o'clock this morning, after a frenzied search for his sister in Chicago, Milwaukee, and finally to its fatal ending here. The identification was partially assured by Daniel Waite of the Blake & Waite company this morning, who is a friend of the family, but he would not be positive until Mr. Crosby arrived.

Upon arriving in Duluth Mr. Crosby was at once met by Mr. Waite, and they proceeded to Durkan & Crawford's morgue, where the remains were taken after the discovery.

Mr. Crosby first identified the satchel and its contents and the handwriting of the pathetic, incoherent letter.

"She was crazy, that's all," he exclaimed.

TALESMEN ABOUT GONE

Another Special Venire Must be Summoned at Boise.

Little Interest Taken by Public in the Proceedings.

Boise, Idaho, May 27.—With twenty-six people, including twelve talesmen, seated inside the bar as spectators, the trial of William D. Haywood, charged with the murder of Former Governor Frank Steunenberg, opened today for the thirteenth day. It is probable that the court will adjourn some time today and that a special venire will be summoned. It is doubtful if this venire can be brought together in time for a session of court on Wednesday. If this cannot be done, no session can be held until next Friday, as Thursday is a legal holiday and no court can be held on that day.

After the preliminaries of the opening of court, the state took up the examination of S. M. Joplin, who was called to the seventh chair just as

LIEUT-GOVERNOR HAS CLOSE CALL

Dunsmuir of British Columbia Escapes From Burning Boat.

Victoria, B. C., May 27.—Lieutenant Governor James Dunsmuir of British Columbia and party, who left here some weeks ago on a bear hunting expedition to Gardiner Inlet, arrived home yesterday by the steamer Queen City, which picked them up after all narrowly escaped death as a result of the burning of the governor's steamer, Thistle, Friday, in Queen Charlotte sound.

The fire followed an explosion in the bunkers, due to spontaneous combustion, and in five minutes an alarm was given and the engineers ran up leaving the vessel racing ahead with red hot engines. The lieutenant governor and party and ship's crew escaped in the governor's launch and boats.

They left the burning ship at noon, and after 8 p. m., reached Hardy Bay exhausted. The Queen City called next day and brought them to Victoria.

MEATS MAY GO SOARING

Prices Likely to Advance Owing to Move of "Beef Trust."

Shippers of Cattle Are Advised to Hold Them Back.

Chicago, May 27.—Meat prices in Chicago may jump skyward this week unless the "beef trust" recedes from its recently announced intention to delay payment on certain of its live stock purchases until they have passed the government post mortem examination.

The packers notified the commission firms that beginning today they no longer would stand the loss on condemned cattle, and in order to protect themselves they had found it necessary to refuse payment on "cow stuff" until it has passed the government inspectors.

During the latter part of last week thousands of letters and telegrams were sent out by the commission men to their customers, notifying them of the action that had been taken by the packers and advising them to withhold all shipments of cattle controlled by the big trust until the difficulty is adjusted. It is expected to cut the meat supply tremendously before the week is over, and prices are expected to go up correspondingly.

Commission men declare it is the intention of the packers to enforce the rule with regard to cow stuff now, in the hope that similar action may be taken later with reference to their purchases of sheep and hogs.

"Cow stuff" is a minor item in pack-

HINDU UNREST

Undoubtedly Caused by Victory of Japanese Over the Russians.

Lahore, British India, May 27.—Those who have been attributing unrest in India to the victory of the Japanese over the Russians find confirmation of their belief in documents found in the possession of a Hindu lawyer and a companion arrested here in connection with the recent riot at Rawalpindi. The documents show that the men taken into custody were on their way to Tokio to solicit Japanese intervention in behalf of a native revolt against British rule.

A NEW REBELLION BREAKS OUT IN CHINA.

Swatow, Province of Kwatung, China, May 27.—A rebellion has broken out at Wongkong, in the Uping district of the Chinchu perfecture. All the civil and military officials at Wongkong have been assassinated and their yamens burned.

IMPROVE TORPEDO SERVICE.

London, May 27.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Berlin states that the torpedo service of the German navy is about to undergo an improvement which experts believe will make that branch the most powerful in the world. All the new battleships will be fitted with torpedo tubes of a diameter of 19¾ instead of 17¾, which are now used in most navies, the velocity being increased fully five knots.

RIOTOUS CHINESE

Destroy the German Mission Station at Lienchow, China.

The Property Sacked But the Missionaries All Escape.

Berlin, May 27.—According to dispatches received here from Shanghai and Hongkong, native rioters have destroyed the German mission station at Lienchow, near Pakhoi. Two missionaries escaped. The German gunboat Iltis, reinforced by twenty marines from the gunboat Tsingtau, has left Hongkong for Pakhoi and it is expected that a British gunboat will also be sent to that port.

Five American missionaries were killed in Lienchow, Oct. 28, 1905, and a hospital and other missionary property were destroyed. Indemnity for the loss of life and property was paid by the Chinese government early in January of the present year.

New York, May 27.—Four missionaries of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions are now stationed at Lienchow, according to a statement made at the offices of the board in this city today. They are the Rev. John S. Cuinkle, who lately returned to Lienchow after a furlough in England; Rev. Rees F. Edwards and his wife and Miss Elda Patterson. They have been in the mission field so long that their home addresses are not accessible at the office of the board in this city.

Since the outbreak of 1905 the Presbyterian missions at Lienchow have been re-established, but are not connected in any way with the German mission, the destruction of which is reported at Berlin.

No information of the trouble at Lienchow has been received from the Presbyterian missionaries.

IRON AND STEEL EXPORTATIONS

For Fiscal Year Will Aggregate $175,000,000 in Value.

Washington, May 27.—Iron and steel exports from the United States in the fiscal year, which ends with next month, will aggregate, approximately, $175,000,000 in value, against $57,000,000 a decade earlier and $16,000,000 two decades earlier. Figures issued by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor show the value of iron and steel manufactures exported in the ten months ending with April, 1907, at about $150,000,000, and these figures seem to justify the estimate of $175,000,000, speaking in round terms, as the value of iron and steel exports for the fiscal year 1907. In the fiscal year 1895 the total value of iron and steel manufactures exported was only $57,000,000, and in 1887, a decade earlier, the total was a little less than $16,000,000.

A TERRIFIC SNOW STORM RAGES ON GREAT LAKES

May Blizzard, Worst in History, Ties Up All Boats in Vicinity of Soo.

Steamer Beilman and Barge McLachlan Go Ashore at Port Austin.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—A northwest gale, with blinding snow, prevails today. All steamers which arrived during the night are here awaiting the storm to abate. At noon the storm showed no signs of ending.

Mackinaw City, May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—No one can remember a worse May day at the straits than today. At noon the wind had increased to forty miles an hour, and the thick snow which started in last evening continued to fall, or to be rather driven, by the gale. There is no sign that the storm will come to an end this afternoon. Vessels are staying in shelter whenever possible. Not one passed here during the forenoon.

Chicago, May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The snowstorm accompanying the northwest gale on the Upper Lakes has brought navigation to a practical standstill. Up to noon today the only wrecks reported were the C. F. Bielman and consort, McLachland, which went on Port Austin reef, Lake Huron, last night. Underwriters consider that if they escape with only these two wrecks they will be fortunate.

Harbor Beach, Mich., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The life saving station here received notice today that the wooden steamer, B. F. Bielman, and the barge, McLachlan, bound from Escanaba to Lake Erie, loaded with ore, went hard aground at Port Austin, at 2 a. m. It is understood here that the crews were taken off by the Port Austin life savers. There is a heavy sea running, and a bad northwest wind, which, unless it moderates soon, will work havoc with the vessels.

East Tawas, Mich., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—A heavy snowstorm is making navigation on this shore of Lake Huron dangerous today.

OPERATIVES GET INCREASE

Wages of New England Mill Workers Substantially Advanced.

Boston, May 27.—The general upward movement in the wages of New England cotton mill operatives today affected about 85,000 operatives in Rhode Island, Southeastern and Western Massachusetts. Amesbury, Mass., Pownavale and other places in Southern New England. The advance in the sections named amounts to about 10 per cent. Early next month it is expected an increase of 5 per cent will be given in many mills in other manufacturing district. The cotton mills of New England employ upwards of 200,000 hands when the machinery is fully manned.

In Lowell the operatives have requested an advance of 10 per cent, and yesterday, through the textile council declined an offer of a 5 per cent increase made by the manufacturers. Aside from this effect upon the 20,000 operatives in Lowell, the situation in that city is of interest because the mills of Maine and New Hampshire have usually followed the lead of Lowell in regard to wages.

MURDER SUSPECT SHOWS SIGNS OF INSANITY

Daniel P. Mahoney Attempts to Make Speech in Courtroom.

Tears Up His Clothing and Prays for Jury to Bring in Verdict.

Daniel P. Mahoney, who is being held for trial for the murder of the Mitchell boy, near Burnett station, last fall, on a "John Doe" indictment, is either insane or else he is shamming insanity in a most realistic manner.

Ever since Mahoney was apprehended in Minneapolis and brought back to Duluth he has shown evidences of great nervousness, and yesterday, while confined in his cell at the county jail he tore his clothes in ribbons and began to pray that the jury would come in with a verdict. Mahoney has refused to eat anything since Thursday last, and when arraigned in the district court this morning his attitude and actions bore strong evidence that there is a possibility of his being insane.

To one of the officers who talked with Mahoney, this morning, before he was taken to the court room, the accused declared that he had just been talking to his sister, Lottie, who died seventeen years ago. Mahoney told the officer that if he was a Catholic, that he would understand how the communication was held.

Wild Statements.

During the conversation, Mahoney stated that he has "eleven hundred thousand dollars," and that his father attempted to get it away from him, but was shot by the chief of police.

"He was buried near here, perhaps you can see the grave," said Mahoney with a wave of his hand toward the court yard.

The jail officials fitted Mahoney out with some overalls and an overcoat, and he was taken to the court room for arraignment before Judge Cant.

The court was busy with some other matters when the officers entered with the accused, and Sheriff Bates seated Mahoney close to the railing, taking a seat at his side.

Mahoney was restless, his eyes were shifting constantly, and he had been in the courtroom but a few moments when he sprang to his feet and started to make some statement to the people congregated, most of whom were talesmen, awaiting examination as to their qualifications to sit in the Argyle trial.

Wanted to Talk.

He got no further than to say "Gentlemen, fellow citizens——" when Sheriff Bates pulled him down in his chair.

A few minutes later Mahoney got up and walked toward the water pitcher on the bailiff's stand with the apparent intention of getting a drink. Instead of doing so he sprang up in the witness stand and was about to make another statement, when the officers seized him and took him back to his seat.

Young Men's Suits

That we take as great pride and painstaking care in the selection of our lines of Youths' Suits as we do in that of our men's is plainly evidenced by the splendid stock now here. A superior line of suits, or even a bigger line, will not be found, we dare say, in the largest clothing establishments of our biggest cities. That it is fully twice the size of any other young men's stock in this city is a conservative estimate. We've got the young men coming our way, because we've educated them to the fact that our styles are smarter and snappier than those of others. And our prices are especially modest. An excellent suit of clothes may be had at $12, $15, or $18

We've suits as low as $10.00 and as high as $25.00.

TO DROP INQUIRY AGAINST GRAFTERS.

Chicago, May 27.—An investigation begun by States Attorney John J. Healy of charges of "graft" in connection with the alleged protection of private hospitals, midwives and certain classes of physicians, came to an end today. The grand jury inquiry developed evidence tending to show that protection had been paid for immunity from criminal prosecution, but to whom was not made clear, and nothing was brought out to show that this practice had been continued within the last seven years, the statute of limitations therefore preventing prosecution. It has been decided to drop the inquiry.

TOOK CHILD "FOR FUN"

Woman Wanted by Minneapolis Police, Caught in Superior.

Child is Also Found in the Children's Home.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Giuque of Minneapolis, that was kidnaped by its nurse, a young Polish woman, named Mrs. Steus Jemuzek, last week, was recovered Saturday in the Children's home at Billing's Park, where Mrs. Jemuzek had placed it.

Saturday evening the Superior police department received a long distance telephone message from Minneapolis, and within a half hour Lieut. Scoon and Detective Dill located the child in the Children's home. The reward of $250 offered by the father of the child, will be divided between the officers.

Mrs. Jemuzek, who was located by the police in a room over 1217 Tower avenue, admitted she had taken the baby and said she intended to return it to its parents in a week or two. She took the child out for an airing last Thursday, but instead of returning it to the parents she boarded a train for Superior, arriving here Friday morning, when she placed the child in the Children's home, and started out to find employment as a domestic.

Mrs. Jemuzek was formerly known as Miss Annie Ouslowski. Her parents, who reside in Little Falls, Minn., formerly lived in Superior. The woman preferred a statutory charge against Jemuzek last August, but the case was quashed when he married her. They lived together for six months, since which time Mrs Jemuzek claims she has not seen her husband. Her own child died some months ago. Mrs. Jemuzek is 22 years of age.

Her only explanation for taking the child is that she did it for fun. There is no doubt in the minds of the Superior police of her insanity.

To Discuss Bonds.

A meeting has been called for Wednesday afternoon of the mayor, city attorney, city controller and finance committee of the city council for the purpose of discussing the outstanding bonds of the city. The meeting will be held at the office of Judge Luse. The Dewel case, recently decided in Chicago and deciding some important points in relation to the outstanding bonds of city may also be given consideration.

Alleged Blind Pig.

Albert Piefke of Wentworth was arrested by Douglas county authorities Saturday, on a warrant charging him with running a blind pig. He was arraigned in the municipal court at Superior, and will be tried next Wednesday. Piefke, so the authorities claim, has been running a saloon in the town of Amnicon without a license, and a warrant was issued on information furnished by a resident of that town.

CHIEF SAYS HE HAS CLUE

Says That With Financial Help He Can Get Murderer.

Council Authorizes $500 Reward for Slayer of Walter O'Neil.

"I have a possible clue to the identity of the murderer of the O'Neil boy," said Chief of Police McKinnon, at the special meeting of the city council, held Saturday evening, "and with financial assistance I may be able to secure my man. He has already left the city."

After listening to the advice of the chief, the council proceeded to authorize the offering of $500 reward for the apprehension of the slayer of the boy, and also directed Chief McKinnon to secure whatever aid in the way of special service might be necessary in ferreting out the crime. Mayor Linley was delegated to confer with Walter Philbrooks, chairman of the county board, in an effort to get them to still further increase the price on the murderer's head.

The total reward now offered is $600, Chief McKinnon having offered $100 the day following the crime.

The coroner's inquest, which was held Saturday afternoon, brought out no startling features. County Physician Obrien said that, while there was no indisputable evidence of the fact, there were decided indications that the O'Neil boy had been the victim of a fiendish crime prior to the murder. The boy's right wrist was broken, and the knuckles of both hands were bruised, said Dr. Obrien, and he argued that these injuries might have been received while defending himself. P. J. Foley, a drayman, testified that the murdered boy rode on his dray as far as Twentieth street, on Tower avenue, about 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Seven boys, who were absent from the Howe school on the afternoon of the crime, were put on the stand, but all of them said that they had not seen Walter O'Neil on that day.

Has a Narrow Escape.

John A. Gallagher, engineer at the No. 3 dock of the Northwestern Fuel company in Superior, tripped over a line running to the steamer Joseph Butler and fell into the bay, early Saturday morning. He had a narrow escape from drowning, and managed to hold on to a piling until James Holman, a night watchman at the Globe elevator, and First Mate Depew of the steamer Butler heard his cries and went to his assistance. Mr. Gallagher was almost exhausted when taken from the water.

Superior Briefs.

The seniors of Blaine high school will give their annual class play this evening.

John Soterlund was arraigned in municipal court this morning on a charge of keeping his saloon open after hours Saturday night. He pleaded guilty to the technical charge and was released on the payment of a fine of $5 and costs. The saloon was open about a half hour over time, the proprietor being unable to clear the place immediately on closing time.

BOYS FALL INTO LINE

Hold Mass Meeting and Plan a Permanent Organization.

A large mass meeting of the high school was held this morning for the purpose of making arrangements for the big parade in which the boys will participate on Memorial day. Mr. Bates of the G. A. R. was present at the gathering and addressed the students. He explained that the Citizens' league, which has charge of the exercises, suggested that a detachment of the high school boys should join the parade as a fitting means of showing their patriotism. He said that this would be considered as a great favor by the old veterans and would be greatly appreciated by them.

Principal Smith then spoke to the students, telling them that it was up to them to help ou the old soldiers, as there will not be many more years when they will have the opportunity to do this. He said that all the boys should be willing to do this much for the soldiers who had risked their lives in defense of this great country.

All the boys who were willing to take part were requested to pledge themselves to show up for the parade in order that an idea of their number might be gained. More than 200 of the students promised to take part unless they were prevented by something unavoidable. The boys will assemble at the armory Thursday morning at 9 o'clock sharp where they will be given badges and will form in line for the march to the Lyceum, where the patriotic exercises will be held. The badges of the Citizens' league will be red, those of the high school students blue, and those of the grade pupils white, forming the national colors. The old soldiers and the high school boys will go to the Lyceum, while the grade students will march on to the Metropolitan where special exercises will be held. Mr. Bates has promised to fill them so full of patriotism that they will not forget it soon.

At the Lyceum all the old veterans will be seated upon the stage, and the high school will occupy the parquet. The dress circle will be reserved for the parents of the students and the high school girls.

The parade will be under the direction of Maj. Eva, but the detachment of high school boys will have a separate captain for each class, and possibly a lieutenant. A large high school banner will be carried at the head of the column.

In addition to this program, the president of the senior class suggested that a regular organization be formed by the high school students for the purpose of taking charge of such exercises every year. He said that this would promote the spirit of patriotism in the school and would be a help to the G. A. R. This suggestion was cordially seconded by Mr. Bates, and the matter will be taken up with the Citizens' league by the presidents of the high school classes.

TWO MEN TRY TO ENTER CAR OF GEN. KUROKI.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., May 27.—Two men attempted to force their way into the private car of Gen. Kuroki before it left for Buffalo last night. The porter heard them at the door and opened it partly, when the men asked for something to drink. The porter attempted to close the door, but one of the men put his foot against it and called to his companion to come on. The porter grappled with the intruder and finally ejected him. As the man was thrown out he turned and smashed the glass in the door.

It is said today that the authorities know the persons an dtheir arrest is expected. It is believed the men were intoxicated.

Buffalo, May 27.—Gen. Kuroki and party, after spending the night in their cars in the Lake Shore railroad yards, left today for Chicago, where they are due to arrive at 9:30 tonight.

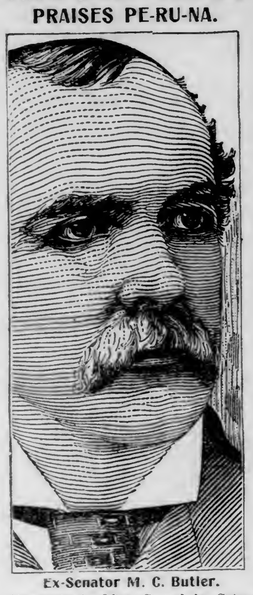
UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA PRAISES PE-RU-NA.



Ex-Senator M. C. Butler.

Dyspepsia is Often Caused by Catarrh of the stomach—Peruna Relieves Catarrh of the Stomach and is Therefore a remedy for Dyspepsia.

Hon. M. C. Butler, Ex-U. S. Senator from South Carolina for two terms, in a letter from Washington, D. C., writes to the Peruna Medicine Co., as follows:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, besides a good tonic."

CATARRH of the stomach is the correct name for most cases of dyspepsia. In order to relieve catarrh of the stomach the catarrh must be eradicated.

Only an internal catarrh remedy, such as Peruna, is available.

Peruna exactly meets the indications.

IN FAVOR OF SUPERIOR

Supreme Court Decides Case of Rhode Island Bank.

Question Was on Bonds for Street Improvement.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chief Justice Fuller today denied the petition for a writ of certiorari in the case of the National Exchange bank of Providence, R. I., petitioner, against the City of Superior, Wis. The question at issue was whether the street improvement bonds of Superior were a general obligation of the city. The court below held that they were not, and the decision of the supreme court has the effect of affirming the decision of the lower court.

PROGRAM NOT EXTENSIVE

Council Meeting Tonight Will Probably be Quiet One.

There is not a very extended program to come before the city council this evening, as far as could be ascertained this afternoon. It was expected that the joint committee on finance and on harbors, parks and roads, to which was referred the mayor's park communication, would report in favor of the issuing of the first installment of $50,000 of park bonds this evening, but this has been deferred by the fact that the park board did not get their request for the money in, in time for the committee to act. A formal request from the park board is necessary before action can be taken, so the issue will not be authorized until a week from tonight. It is understood that the council will be practically unanimous for the issue.

The council this evening will order sidewalks to be constructed, aggregating an expenditure of almost $20,000. The sidewalks on the avenues were ordered last week and the resolution ordering sidewalks on the streets of the city is the one which will come up tonight.

Alderman Foubister last week introduced a resolution calling for an opinion by the city attorney, as to whether or not the city could revoke the Volk street car franchise, and it was laid over one week, in order that Mr. Foubister might look it up further. This will probably come up again this evening and may be productive of some very lively discussion.

MAROONS DROP TWO.

Pitcher Willis and Catcher Voss Let Out by Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The axe fell in the Maroon camp today, and Willis and Voss were the victims. Willis goes to Gilbert Plains, Man., where he will be up against Henderson, late of Calumet. Voss has signed with Saskatoon, Sask., where he expects to catch Harold Bond. JUDGE REFUSES TO TRY HARGIS Cases Against Cox Murderers May Go Over Until Fall.

Sandy Hook, Ky., May 27.—Special Judge Redwine, today, refused to preside in the trials of Judge Hargis and his alleged co-conspirators for the murder of Dr. Cox, and Governor Beckham therefore must appoint another special judge. Judge Redwine said on the bench that the cases had been transferred here without his knowledge or consent and because of certain statements in the press of the state he felt that it would be impossible for him to preside. Redwine's action necessitates the continuance of the trials until October, but if the new special judge requests he can call a special term during the summer. Judge Redwine ordered the clerk to certify the fact of his vacating the bench to Governor Beckham at the earliest possible moment, so that a special judge can be named.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Young Man Shoots His Sweetheart and Then Kills Himself.

Chicago, May 27.—T. J. Eckman of La Grange, a suburb of Chicago, last night, shot and killed Leah Tiny, at a resort at 47 Carpenter street, and then committed suicide by shooting himself in the temple. Nobody heard the shots fired, and the bodies were not found until today. The girl was the daughter of a former minister and her home was in Grand Rapids, Mich.

According to a number of letters in Eckman's possession, the murder and suicide were caused by unrequited affections. Eckman signed himself in a letter to his sister as "the black sheep of the family."

OUSTED MEMBERS ASK INJUNCTION

To Prevent Mayor Busse From Filling Places on Board.

Chicago, May 27.—Eight members of the board of education, who were summarily dismissed by Mayor Busse last week, after they had refused to comply with his request for their resignations, today filed a bill before Judge Windes of the circuit court, asking an injunction restraining the mayor from appointing other persons to fill their places before their terms expire, and against the remaining members of the board and other officials, restraining them from preventing the ousted members from taking their seats as members of the board. The bill is signed by former trustees, Robins, Post, De Bey, Mills, Angster, Sonsteby, Hayes and Harding, and is directed against Mayor Busse, the board of education of Chicago, Attorney General W. H. Stead, and the members and officials of the board of education that still retain their positions.

Arguments on the bill will be heard this afternoon. This marks the beginning of the fight to be made by the ousted members to hold their positions on the board.

Omaha Neb., May 27.—United States weather bureau reports heavy frosts over Nebraska last night. Wheat is not probably injured. Corn is injured, in most fields, not having even sprouted.

STORES WILL OBSERVE DAY

All Principal Shops Will be Closed on Holiday.

Practically all of the Duluth merchants are planning to close up their establishments on Memorial day. All the dry goods department stores will be closed all day, and while some of the grocers are planning to accommodate their customers by an early morning opening, by far the greater portion of the Duluth mercantile establishments will be closed all day, and nearly every class of store will be closed in the afternoon.

The banks will not open their doors at all during the day, and the schools will, of course, also be closed during the day. The school faculties have shut down strongly on all forms of athletic sports, however, and the holiday promises to be a quiet one.

WILL OPEN A DULUTH BRANCH

McClellan Paper Company of Minneapolis to Have Branch Here.

The McClellan Paper company of Minneapolis is arranging to start a branch wholesale house in Duluth. It is planned to have the institution a thoroughly-up-to-date jobbing house, with a complete line of everything to satisfy the paper trade, and several traveling salesmen on the road, with headquarters in Duluth.

To begin with the company will not occupy a building of its own, but will rent one. They will need considerable floor space, but have two or three sites in view, which will meet the requirements. One of these will probably be decided upon next week, and the firm will be ready for business early in the summer.

BIG PERMIT IS ISSUED

What will probably be one of the biggest building permits of the year was issued this morning to the Clyde Iron Works, for the big new plant at Thirtieth avenue west. The permit provides for the seven buildings, which will be located on the property and amounts in all to $125,000, which is supposed to be as near the exact cost of the new plant, outside of the machinery, as can be estimated.

Plans were filed with the building inspector this morning for the new big candy factory which John Wall is erecting in the West end. The building is located at the corner of Superior street and Eighteenth avenue west, and will be three stories in height, and with a seventy-five foot frontage on Superior street and sixty-five feet on Eighteenth avenue. The building will be of brick, ordinary construction, and the plans are by J. J. Wangenstein.

TYPEWRITER DETECTIVE.

New York Sun: It seems that stenographers may help along the divorce industry if they want to. This is a new departure in the business of shorthand and typewriting, but it is not very flourishing yet.

A detective agency recently advertised for a stenographer and promised to pay $20 a week to the right girl. The advertisement stated that an established business sought the service of a typewriter but refrained from going into details or mentioning that the advertiser was a detective concern.

When the applicant called at the business office she was ushered into a darkened room and the door was closed. She was struck with the air of mystery about the place.

The girl is a refined New Yorker who received her training in a Massachusetts college and whose bringing up could scarcely have been stricter. Consequently the offer she received a few moments later fell upon astounded ears.

A door opened shortly and a young man bustled in. His air was one of good natured familiarity. He sat down beside the applicant and plunged into the subject in hand without the ordinary business preliminaries.

It seemed that the place to be offered was a very good one indeed. The company needed a shrewd, observant girl whom it could trust absolutely.

It would pay a salary of $18 a week and there would be a great many other sources of income attached to the post. The company, admitted the young man cheerfully, was a private detective agency, and it had been commissioned to obtain a divorce for the wife of a New Yorker.

"A prominent New Yorker," was the way the detective put it. The girl was urged to accept the place, inasmuch as she was very good looking and seemed to possess more than ordinary intelligence. In addition to $18 a week from the detective agency she would also receive $18 or $20 a week from the business firm for which she would act as stenographer.

Gradually the entire proposition was explained to the girl, who had begun to regard it as a joke. She was to report for duty, in case she accepted the offer, at any time the detective agency summoned her. She would then be sent to the office of the man from whom a divorce was being sought by the client of the detective agency and it would be the pleasant duty of the stenographer to obtain evidence upon which the suit could be based.

The detective presented the case in its most alluring light. He said it was an opportunity hundreds of New York girls would be glad to jump at.

Of course, continued the detective, it was first necessary for the detective agency to bribe a certain girl and by means of money and a better place persuade her to resign and thus create a vacancy. When this had been accomplished, the applicant would be ready to step into the vacated place and the good work would proceed.

The girl began to reject the proposition as soon as the full significance of it struck her, but the detective detained her until the entire proposition was laid out in all its attractiveness in detail.

EXPLOSION OF GASOLINE.

Scientific American: A gasoline tank rarely explodes. It cannot unless it contains gasoline vapor and air in explosive proportions, which latter condition is almost never present.

It does not explode because it contains too little air or too much gasoline. Even if a tank of gasolene were to burst from heat applied to its exterior the confined heavy gas would not explode if in contact with flame or fire, but would burn instead.

True, a tank of gasolene with no vent could do considerable damage were it to burst and throw burning oil and flaming gas about, but 1,000 gallons of gasolene in a vessel's bilges would not be so dangerous from explosion as a hundredth of that amount. The larger quantity would burn rapidly, while the smaller would be sufficient, if mixed with the proper amount of air, to utterly demolish almost any boat.

YESTERDAY IN THE CHURCHES

BEGINS HIS WORK HERE

New Pastor of Second Presbyterian Church Couducts Services.

Rev. J. L. McBride Makes a Favorable Impression.

Rev. J. L. McBride, formerly of Quincy, Ill., began his pastorate of the Second Presbyterian church in the West end yesterday morning, when he preached to a large congregation on "The Minister and the Church."

Another strong talk was given at the evening services, when also the church was filled.

Rev. Mr. McBride has made a most favorable impression among the members of the Second Presbyterian church. The pulpit there has been vacant since Jan. 1, when Rev. S. F. Sharpless resigned as pastor to become pastor-at-large of the Red River presbytery.

REV. J. LLOYD McBRIDE, New Pastor Second Presbyterian Church.

Several different preachers conducted services at the Second church, and shortly after Rev. Mr. McBride was here, a call was extended to him. He is a young man, having just recently graduated from McCormick seminary, Chicago. Members of the church feel that during his pastorate the organization will prosper.

A movement has already been started to raise money for a new church. It will likely be located in the neighborhood of Twenty-second avenue west and will cost $15,000 or $20,000.

The missionary property on Garfield avenue was recently sold, and the money derived from the sale placed in the building fund. The different auxiliary organizations of the church will go ahead, under the leadership of the new pastor, and give some little affairs calculated to increase the fund.

SPEAKS TO SOLDIERS

Rev. Campbell Coyle Delivers Annual Memorial Day Sermon.

Says Manhood is Needed for the Battles of Today.

The large auditorium of the First Presbyterian church was filled yesterday morning, in spite of the disagreeable weather, when the old soldiers attended by an escort of the National guard and naval militia, marched to the church in a body for the annual Memorial day sermon.

The sermon was delivered by Rev. Campbell Coyle, who chose for his text, "Present Day Battles and the Heroism Needed to Wage Them." The sermon was based upon Ephesians vii. 12: "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principailties, against powers, against the ruler of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places, wherefore take unto ye the whole armour of God."

Mr. Coyle referred to the wonderful growth and progress made by science, art and religion. "Standing on the highest peak of a mountain range of time, man is also walking in the highest intellectual and moral plateaus thus far attained," he said. Art is touched with a glory supernal, history and poetry and biography and romance breathe forth the fragrance of celestial altitudes. Science, characterized by abyssmal knowledge is facing God, and bows reverently before His altar. And religion, offspring of Heaven, although it has walked in a devious pathway since the tragedy of sin in ancient Eden, is clad in fairer and more fragrant garments, walks with firmer footsteps, has a holier look upon its face and is bringing riches and more abundant fruitage to men and women.

"But the serpent of evil did not remain within the precincts of Paradise limiting its operations. Crawling forth he has slimed and is sliming the sons and daughters of men. What is the remedy? It is not more wealth and power and territory. What we need to safeguard us against the shocks from within and without is manhood—straight up and down manhood. The manhood that never wears a collar and that is as plumb as the walls of the city of God. He who goes down town in the morning to his office, shop or store, and resolves that he will be absolutely honest, cost what it may, is fighting a bitter fight and is as deserving of praise than the man who faces a cannon's mouth.

"I do not belittle the bravery of those men who fought for civil and religious liberty. I cherish the memory of those men, and laud and magnify their many noble deeds. But those battles are over, thank God, and new battles confront us. We must all be soldiers on one side or the other. By all means let us be soldiers on the right side, and the side of Him who made us, and may He grant us all the heroism necessary to carry on such a warfare."

NEW CHURCH DEDICATED

Bishop Morrison Conducts Services at Trinity Pro-Cathedral.

Beautiful New Structure as Forerunner of a Greater.

The dedication of the new Trinity Pro-Cathedral of the Episcopal church took place yesterday morning, amid impressive ceremonies and a delightful song service. A large number of people attended the service in spite of the unfavorable weather and practically every seat in the large auditorium was occupied. The ceremoy occurred on Trinity Sunday and was doubly appropriate for this reason.

Right Rev. James D. Morrison, bishop of the Duluth diocese, delivered the sermon and was in charge of the dedication, asisted by Dean Arthur H. Wurtele and other Episcopal clergymen of the city. A grand chorus, made up of the combined choirs of St. John's church at Lakeside and St. Alban's of Superior sang several anthems and choruses. The members of these choirs marched into the church at 10:30 preceded by the cruifer, the bishop, and chaplain, with the pastoral staff following.

A ceremony which added to the impressiveness of the service was the confirmation of a class of young people, the ordination of A. Wolner as a deacon, and Rev. C. Otis Wright as a priest, and the administration of holy communion. Rev. Wright is now in charge of the Episcopal church at Staples, Minn.

While dedicatory in its nature Bishop Morrison's sermon was also particularly appropriate for the Sunday preceding Memorial day.

In beginning his address the bishop stated that it was his inclination to speak on one subject and his duty to speak on another and that the situation was, therefore, somewhat peculiar. He then reviewed the history of the building up of the church in this city and in Minnesota and in the whole country. The Pro-Cathedral gives hopes of the building of a greater building in the future.

"This is the day when we crown the hopes of many days by the dedication of this beautiful edifice for which we have so long planned and wlated," said the bishop. "Not that this will eventually be the cathedral, but the fact that it is a step in the advancement of the church. As we have hopes for the great state of Minnesota, so have we hopes for the great future of our church. In our day these hopes may not be filled, but I have a sure and certain faith that the fulfillment will come some day. We are glad to have this for a pro-cathedral, or building that goes before, for we have hopes of the greater building.

"This church stands here to tell Americans to do what—Their duty No higher message could be given it to tell. Statistics show a marvelous change in this and since those old days and America has become a potentiality. We cannot measure its greatness. We are told that there are some 90,000,000 of people in this country. You could put them all in the magnificent state of Minnesota and even then it would not be as populous as some parts of Southern Europe.

"What will the condition be when it fills up? There is something of a mystery in the enormous growth of this nation. It seems step by step to have come to its greatness. The center of power has always moved with the sun. It has never moved in the opposite direction. Why? I cannot tell."

Epochs in history were cited to show the truth of these statements and the bishop stated that little of the growing greatness of the United States had been felt or realized by the citizens. People all over the world have begun to listen to what the United States will say or do. Since the United States stamped out oppression in Cuba, all nations have taken notice of the greatness of this nation and gaze in wonder and awe. Patriotism beats strong in every man's heart, when he thinks of what the soldiers of this great nation have done.

Bishop Morrison called attention to the fact that there was a time when it was believed patriotism did not exist in the North, but when the time came, the seemingly cold-hearted people were ready to respond to the summons and everywhere men left their occupations and their families and friends to go to the help of the nation.

Instead of being merely of Santiago or of Manila bay, duty falls on the individual man, said Bishop Morrison. If each man does his duty then the nation's duty will be readily done, and righteousness is a keynote to all. This great republic has had its hardships and difficulties and now faces a yellow peril, not from the great millions of people on the eastern shores of Asia, for this country he said, if they invade, can take care of them with one hand, but it is the rotten hearts which are to be feared.

No nation ever died of old age, maintained the bishop, but from covetous spirit. Man should learn his duty to God and humanity and if he follows it, state and nation will be safe, pure and strong.

SERMON ON PATRIOTISM

Beautiful Memorial Service at the Trinity Pro-Cathedral.

Rev. Wurtele Talks on Soldiers of War and Peace.

A very pretty and impressive service was held at Trinity Pro-Cathedral yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Members of the Culver Post G. A. R., were present, together with members of the G. A. R. auxiliary societies and numerous other people. "Patriotism" was the subject of a beautiful sermon delivered by Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele who, with Right Rev. J. D. Morrison, D. D., bishop of Duluth, had charge of the service.

Rev. Wurtele dwelt on the splendid courage and unswerving loyalty of the soldiers who fought in the Civil war, both North and South. He paid as high a tribute to the bravery and honesty of purpose of the Southern fighters as he did to the men of the North. The passion of the battle is long since passed, but the spirit of courage and loyalty shown by the soldiers will never die, although it is manifested in nobler things than war today, he said. Love rules, said the speaker.

The rebellion gave one generation an opportunity to show its patriotism, he continued, but now, in the days of peace, there are opportunities just as great to display the sterling qualities of American manhood. Taught by the example set during the war, men of today should be true, loyal and patriotic citizens. In time of war and in time of peace all should be soldiers of Jesus Christ. A man who endeavors to lead a Christian life, with all that the word implies, often is in need of as much courage as the soldier in war, so great are the temptations and obstacles he at times has to contend with.

Gen. Grant was spoken of as one of the world's greatest warriors. His remarkable feats were dwelt upon. The world at large was compelled to open its eyes in astonishment at what he was able to accomplish in the face of ermendous obstacles. Grant never knew when he was defeated. He pounded along until victory was his, regardless of cost, said the speaker. His life showed that he was not only a soldier of war, but that he was also a soldier of Christ and a Christian gentleman.

He displyed even more courge in the ranks of peaceful citizenship than when actually engaged in fighting, asserted the speaker. His life after the war was reviewed. Through the trickery of a partner in bushuss, Grant was bankrupted, and found himself unable to repay large sums of money he had borrowed from wealthy friends. Even though they were willing the debts should be cancelled, he sold the medals he had won by his valor, and the gifts bestowed upon him by grateful people, that he might in part pay these debts.

"The last year of his life is spoken of as the most heroic year in a heroic life," said Rev. Wurtele. "Broken in health, but not in spirit, he started to write his autobiography, that his wife might be provided for after his own death, and that his debts might be paid. He became afflicted with cancer of the tongue, but worked on and on, though suffering great physical pain. Even after speech deserted him, he continued working. He died a hero in peace as well as in war."

The speaker asserted that there was need of true patriots today, who are willing to place love of country before love of self. "One child rightly brought up in better than 100 dead on a Confederate battle field," he said. "A true and helpful life and a happy home, is worth more than victories of war. No one ever appreciates the value of peace more than the old soldiers. They all love peace. Universal peace would be a perfect condition, but man is an imperfect being, and as long as he is imperfect, war must be expected to a certain degree. As long as you find two newsboys fighting for the privilege of selling The Evening Herald on the street corner, you will find a disposition to fight among nations," said the speaker.

Rev. Wurtele dwelt upon the beautiful sentiment expressed by the observance of Memorial day, and said this observance originated with the women of the South.

"Every man who is successful in the battle of life is as great a hero as the successful soldier of war," he concluded.

TELLS STORY OF HIS CONVERSION

Maurice Ruben, Converted Jew, Gives Thrilling Life History.

In a thrilling story of his sufferings and final conversion to Christianity, Maurice Ruben of Pittsburg, Pa., interested a large audience at the Lyceum theater, yesterday afternoon. The lecture was given for men only, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Ruben was a Jew; born and bred, but was converted to Christianity about twelve years ago.

His relatives disowned him as a result of this, and he lost his prosperous mercantile business. His wife left him and obtained a divorce, and at the instigation of former friends he was incarcerated in a Pennsylvania insane asylum for a period of several weeks. He was finally released through legal procedure taken by Christian friends.

The audience seemed greatly impressed by Mr. Ruben's story, which was related in a realistic manner, and when at the conclusion of the lecture Mr. Ruben made a plea for those present who wished to make a confession of faith to arise, a large number in the audience responded by standing.

Mr. Ruben has retired from business pursuits since becoming a Christian, and now devotes his entire time to religious work, having charge of several missions in Pennsylvania, where he carries on his work almost exclusively among the Jews.

Mr. Ruben finally succeeded in winning over his former wife to the Christian faith after seven years, and they were remarried. He also became reconciled to most of his relatives. The speaker was introduced by H. H. Hanford, and J. T. Moody, superintendent of the Bethel, delivered the prayer.

It was announced by Phil Bevis, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., that on next Sunday, June 9, a lecture will be given at the Lyceum by B. A. Shuman, formerly superintendent of the Y. M. C. A. in Duluth, and for the past six years in charge of the work in Buenos Ayres, South America.

CONFESSES TO MURDER

Henry Becker Says That He Killed the Staffeldt Girl.

New York, May 27.—Henry Becker, under arrest in connection with the slaying of Amelia Staffedlt, in Elmhurst, last Wednesday, is alleged to have made another confession to detectives, describing with minuteness how the crime was committed.

His first statement, in which he saw a companion assault the girl, was subsequently retracted. Yesterday he was taken to the scene of the crime, and was identified by Mrs. Emily Simonson as one of the men who washed at the pump in her yard on the day of the murder.

Becker was asked about the second man that had been talked about in connection with the case, and for the first time admitted that he never saw this man before he was about to get into Simonson's yard.

Becker was then taken back to the jail, and during the ride from Elmhurst to Long Island City, he told detectives, it is alleged, the most shocking part of the story. He said that he would feel better if he told the whole truth. He described how he had been sleeping in the fields, and saw the girl enter the lot in search of dandelions.

"I went up to her," it is asserted, he said, "and tried to get up a flirtation, but she told me to go away. 'If you don't leave me,' she said, 'I will call a policeman.' I can't remember somehow just all that happened, but I know I took hold of her, then I hit her in the back of the head with a stone. After that I struck her once or twice with the knife."

OLD RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

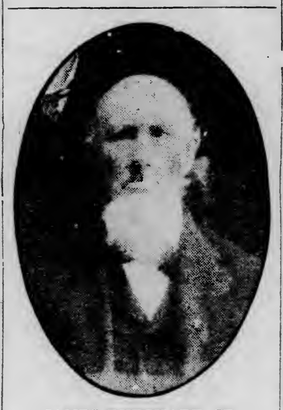
James Butchart, Sr., for twenty-five years a well-known resident of Duluth, passed away at the home of his son, Peter Butchart, 2529 West Second street, Saturday evening. Mr. Butchart was taken with a stroke of paralysis, about three weeks ago, and has been gradually sinking since, his age counting heavily against any chance of recovery from the stroke. He was just one week over 87 years of age when he died, his 87th birthday having occurred a week ago Saturday.



JAMES BUTCHART, SR.

Mr. Butchart was the father of the late sheriff, W. W. Butchart, and he has three other sons in this city, John R., David and Peter. Daniel and James Butchart of Hibbing are also sons of the deceased, and he has a daughter, Mrs. Henry Smith, who is located at Sandstone, Minn.

Mr. Butchart came to Duluth in 1882. He was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and was one of a family of twelve children. Two sisters are still living in Canada.

DEATH CAME IN SLEEP.

Sudden Summons of Joseph W. Farrington, Well Known Ashland Man.

Ashland, Wis., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Death came to Joseph W. Farrington, a well-known citizen of Ashland, as he slept Friday night. He died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. George McLeod, where he lived. Mr. Farrington had not felt well for several days, but Friday night he retired as usual, and at 3:30 Saturday morning Judge McCloud and his wife entered his room and found him sleeping quietly. Shortly afterwards it was discovered that he was dead, having simply gone to sleep, from which there was no awakening. Six daughters and one son, in addition to Mrs. Farrington, survive. Mr. Farrington was an old resident of Green county, Wis., having resided for several years at Berlin and at Harrisville.

Mr. Farrington was born at Monroe, Mich., Dec. 25, 1821, and was 85 years of age last Christmas. Death was due to natural causes and advancing years.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

METROPOLITAN—Long Stock company. "Elected to Congress."
BIJOU—New Vaudeville Bill.

"ELECTED TO CONGRESS."

Frank E. Long Company Makes a Hit in the Comedy.

Frank E. Long and his splendid stock company made a very favorable impression on two audiences at the Metropolitan yesterday, when they presented a laughable political comedy, "Elected to Congress." This play will be the bill until Thursday afternoon, when "From Rags to Riches" will be given, for the remainder of the week. "Elected to Congress" offers ample opportunities for fun making and one of the members of the company overlook any. F. C. Cummings puts plenty his life into his work, as Leopold Bunyon, Republican, and Mock Sad Alli does excellent work in the opposite role of Porter Vane, Democrat.

The fun is rampant at all times and among those who serve the honors are Miss Nana Sullivan, Frank E. Long, Ben J. Landers, Erin Lacey, May Treat Rella and C. T. Jackson.

The specialties given between the acts are by Mock Sad Alli, who has completely changed his act from last week; Erin Lacey, Ben J. Landers, and George Solden. Thursday afternoon and for the rest of the week, different specialties will be given.

"Elected to Congress" is well worth the money and the Long company should play to good houses during the week. There will be a bargain matineo tomorrow.

TWO GOOD ATTRACTIONS.

The Lyceum has two excellent attractions billed for the latter part of the week. Raymond Hitchcock in "The Yankee Tourist," will be seen Wednesday and Thursday evenings with a Thursday matinee and Roselle Knott in "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire," the charming Barrie drama, will be seen on Friday and Saturday, with a Saturday matinee.

NEW BILL AT BIJOU.

The new bill which will open at the Bijou this evening, includes: Al Johnson, the Three Keltons, Grace Orma, Ellsworth and Burt, Cavana, the Mnning Trio, Isadore Silver, Motion Pictures, illustrated songs—"In the Wildwood."

They remained in Winter for two hours and said they would make frequent visits hereafter. They talked freely with citizens and members of the sheriff's posse organized to capture Dietz, who maintained that he was sane and had plenty of rifles and ammunition at home for the protection of himself and family.

Purity is Supreme

The materials we use are the best we can buy. And a partner in our business selects them.

The goodness of Schlitz is due largely to them.

But the supremacy of Schlitz as a home beer has been gained by the fact of its absolute purity.

Purity is not so conspicuous as some qualities in beer, yet it is very expensive. That is why it is rare.

But what does it matter how good a beer is if it is not a pure beer? If its use is unhealthful? If its result is biliousness?

Ask for the Brewery Bottling.
Common beer is sometimes substituted for Schlitz.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND

two days after a hysterical spell which was quite alarming to her friends. She left no word as to where she was going except a letter to her step-sister, Miss Gertrude Pierce, in which she said that she was "going away until she felt better." Mr. Crosby was at once sent for, and after interviewing a Chicago specialist, who assured him that the attack was simply a temporary one, a sort of nervous prostration which would pass off in two weeks, he at once started to trace her. By means of the postmark on the letter is was found that it was mailed near the Milwaukee depot in Chicago, and when questioned the conductor remembered a woman of Miss Crosby's description riding with him to Milwaukee.

Arrived Too Late.

From Milwaukee Mr. Crosby came to Duluth, arriving here a day or two too late to prevent the tragedy.

Miss Crosby was very evidently distracted when she wrote the letter and when she ended her life in the icy waters of Lake Superior. The letter is at once one of the wildest and most indefinite, and still one of the most pathetic and touching farewell messages ever penned. It is as follows:

"Gertrude: I simply cannot go having you think I have done wrong. I have not. If any has been done, I did not know it. Satisfy yourself that the only night I was away I was at the hospital with Dr. Acres. I have gone almost crazy trying to think things out. I cannot! I cannot! I feel queer all over. I have nothing to confess, for I simply don't know. I have seen your suspicions and they have crushed me. Going away was all I could do in any case for those I love. Be very good to poor little mother—Mary.

"P. S.—You have all watched me closely and I could not see why."

Before Mr. Waite called up the police this morning and told them of his suspicions as to the identity of the dead girl they had managed to decipher the blurred address sufficiently to know that it was Chicago and had figured out the street address as 5633 Grand avenue, instead of Prairie avenue, which is Miss Pierce's correct address. The motive which she could have had to blurr the address on the envelope and still leave the name intact, is a strange one and was a puzzle until Mr. Crosby made known the condition of the woman at the time of the suicide.

Finding of the Body.

The body was found on the lake shore, near the foot of Seventeenth avenue east by George B. Le Grange, a letter carrier, living at Lakeside, about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He reported the matter to the police at once, and as the right side of the dead girl's face was bruised and discolored, they set to work on the theory that the girl had met her death at the hands of a murderer.

This theory of her death was soon dispelled, however, when a satchel was found in the shallow water, a few feet from where the body lay, containing, besides some feminine wearing apparel, a morphine outfit, and the above letter.

In order to thoroughly dispose of the theory that the girl had met with foul play, an autopsy was held by Drs. McCuen and Twohy last night at Durkan & Crawford's morgue. The examination revealed no fracture under the bruises, and it is thought that they were caused by the body striking rocks or other obstructions while drifting in the water.

Was a Physician.

Miss Crosby has been practicing medicine in Chicago and the Dr. Acres who was referred to in the letter found in her medicine case, is also a lady practitioner. Besides her step-sister, Gertrude Pierce, to whom the letter is addressed, she leaves a mother, referred to in the letter, who is living at Cedar Falls, Iowa. Interment will be made at that place and Mr. Crosby left this afternoon with the body.

him if he attempted another outbreak, but he stood erect with his body as tense as a steel spring, raising himself on the balls of his feet while the court was reading the indictment, glancing restlessly about while the pupils of his eyes seemed to continually dilate and contract.

Asked if he had an attorney Mahoney declared that he had. He said his attorney's name was Hoar and that he lives in Boston, Mass. It is surmised that Mahoney meant Senator Hoar who hase been dead for some time. Mahoney also declared that he had local counsel by the name of "Mitchell," by some peculiar fancy or by coincidence giving the name of the boy he is accused of murdering.

Attorney Appointed.

His statement concerning counsel was so vague that Judge Cant told Mahoney that he would have to plead tomorrow and that he must talk to an attorney before that time. A little later the court appointed W. E. Whipple to defend him.

Mahoney is tall and of slim but muscular build. Despite his evident weakened condition from lack of food, he has the appearance of a man who would be dangerous in a mix-up if he should start out to make trouble.

Mahoney's record, as far as the authorities have traced it, shows that he was a member of Company K, Ninth Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry during the Spanish-American war, and was with the troops in Camp Alger and Camp Mead. While away on a furlough, on account of typhoid fever, in 1898, he developed signs of insanity and was sent to an asylum in Massachusetts. Mahoney told the authorities that he was in the hospital only nine weeks when he was discharged.

McKINLEY FUNERAL

Will be Attended by President and Cabinet Members.

Special Precautions Will be Taken for Their Safety.

Canton, Ohio, May 27.—Official announcement of the plans for the funeral of Mrs. McKinley will be made probably this afternoon. To Justice William R. Day, the life-long neighbor and intimate friend and trusted adviser of McKinley, and Secretary Cortelyou, the details have been left. The wishes of Mrs. M. G. Barber, the only surviving sister of Mrs. McKinley, have been carefully considered in every respect.

It is the hope of all Canton people that the body may lie in state some time Tuesday or Wednesday. This, however, has not been determined.

Official steps are being taken to have a suspension of business during the funeral Wednesday. The public schools will probably be dismissed.

During the short stay of the president and cabinet members and Vice President and Mrs. Fairbanks, while not at the McKinley funeral, will be provided for at the residence of Justice and Mrs. William R. Day, whose residence is but three doors from the McKinley home.

Special precautions will be taken for their safety. President Roosevelt and members of his cabinet, who will arrive in Canton Wednesday morning, will be the guests of Justice and Mrs. William R. Day.

RAILROADS

VACATE BY JULY FIRST

Wisconsin Central Will Serve Notice on Property Owners.

Does Not Include Property East of Seventh Avenue.

Property along the Wisconsin Central railroad right-of-way, from Grassy Point to Seventh avenue west, must be vacated by the first of July. Notices conveying this intelligence to the occupants of the property were today being prepared at the local offices of the Wisconsin Central. They will be served this week.

The block between Sixth and Seventh avenue west, where the new depot of the road is to be located, will remain unmolested for a time yet. Local officials have as yet received no orders concerning the vacation of this property. It is expected that buildings between Sixth and Seventh avenues, below Superior street, will be left as they are until work of tunnelling through the rock at Twelfth avenue west, is begun. The plan of the company, it is understood, is to have the depot completed about the same time as the tunnel, and if this is true it may be a few weeks yet before the Bowery property is vacated.

Probably the work of removing and demolishing buildings along the right-of-way, west of Seventh avenue, will be started early in July. Work of grading in the West end, begun last week, is being pushed, and will be carried on as fast as weather conditions will permit. The weather of the last few days has not been conducive to rapid construction work, because of the rain. The construction work in Northern Wisconsin is said to be progressing satisfactorily.

ANNUAL EXCURSION.

St. Anne de Beaupre Plans---South Shore Sleeping Car Change.

The annual excursion to the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, given under the supervision of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road, will leave Duluth this year on July 1. Conditions governing the event will be practically the same as in previous years. The same stop-over privileges will be allowed. The return limit of tickets will be thirty days.

June and July will be busy months with the South Shore in the matter of excursions. Low rates to all points in the East will be effective June 1, and the excursion rates to lower lake ports, via the South Shore and D. & C. line of steamers, will be in effect.

The South Shore will rearrange its sleeping car service the first of the month. The cars that formerly ran to Calumet will go only as far as Houghton, and there will be a new service between Calumet and Mackinaw City. Under the new arrangement better satisfaction will be given patrons, and it will be unnecessary to transfer passengers going to and from the Copper country, as heretofore.

Special to St. Paul.

Catholic societies at the Head of the Lakes are planning on securing the services of a special train, to run from Duluth to the Twin Cities, in order that Duluth and Superior Catholics may have the best possible opportunity to attend the laying of the corner stone of the new $1,000,000 cathedral, in St. Paul, next Sunday. Arrangements are practically completed for the train, and it is expected there will be a large crowd from the Head of the Lakes who will attend the ceremonies.

INCRIMINATING

St. Petersburg, May 27.—Searches of the lodgings of the Social Democratis deputies are now of almost daily occurrence here. The authorities have clues to several branches of the Social Democratic organizations which have been conducting the special propaganda.

Officials of the secret police yesterday visited the offices of Deputy Prikhodke, Constitutional Democrat of Tchernigoff, and found documents showing that a railroad men's organization is making preparations for another general transportation strike. As soon as the investigation is completed the public prosecutor will demand the suspension of M. Prikhodko, who is a railroad workman, in order to place him on trial.

A number of Social Democratic deputies, who have been holding a congress in London, have arrived at Helsingfors to prepare for the return of the other deputies to Russia by way of Finland. They found that the Finnish police, under instructions from the senate, were everywhere demanding the passports of those bound for the Russian frontier, making the reparriation of the deputies most difficult.

DR. TALKS OF FOOD.

Pres. of Board of Health.

"What shall I eat?" is the daily inquiry the physician is met with. I do not hesitate to say that in my judgment a large percentage of disease is caused by poorly selected and improperly prepared food. My personal experience with the fully-cooked food, known as Grape-Nuts, enables me to speak freely of its merits.

"From overwork I suffered several years with malnutrition, palpitation of the heart, and loss of sleep. Last summer I was led to experiment personally with the new food, which I used in conjunction with good rich cow's milk. In a short time after I commenced its use, the disagreeable symptoms disappeared, my heart's action became steady and normal, the functions of the stomach were properly carried out, and I again slept as soundly and as well as in my youth.

"I look upon Grape-Nuts as a perfect food, and no one can gainsay but that it has a most prominent place in a rational, scientific system of feeding. Any one who uses this food will soon be convinced of the soundness of the principle upon which it is manufactured, and may thereby know the facts as to its true worth." Duluth Concern After Important Grand Forks City Contract.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is no little interest evinced in the result of the award to be made by the city for repaving paving district No. 8. Paris, May 27.—The funeral services over the body of the late Theodore Tilton took place today in the little chapel of the American church on the Rue de Berri and were very pathetic. Less than thirty persons were present, principally members of the American colony, including the Duchess de la Rochefoucould and her mother, Mrs. Mitchell, wife of former Senator Mitchell of Oregon. Dr. Gedrich, the pastor, officiated. The service was very simple, consisting of a prayer and the reading of the office for the dead according to the Episcopal rite. Only two carriages followed the body to the Mont Parnasse cemetery, where the interment occurred.

THE STOCKS HAVE SLUMP

Copper Shares Go Off Heavily During the Session.

Listed Issues Lead and the Unlisted Ones Follow.

Copper stocks took a tumble today and closed at prices considerably under those of Saturday.

Right after the opening, the decline began and down they went, down, down, down. The listed shares were off and after holding fairly firm for a time, the unlisted ones followed suit.

North Butte declined two and one-quarter points from the opening price of the day. It opened at $85, advanced to $85.25, declined to $82.75 and closed at $82.50 bid and $82.75 asked. Amalgamated opened at $88, advanced to $88.12½, went off to $85.25 and closed at $85.75 bid.

Anaconda opened at $59, declined to $57.12½ and closed at $57.12½ bid. Butte Coalition opened at $25, went off to $23.75 and closed at $24 bid and $24.25 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $167, went off seven points to $160 and closed at $163 bid and $164 asked.

Greene-Cananea was steady during the day. It sold at $14.25 went off to $14, rallied to $14.25, closing at $14 bid and $14.25 asked.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial says:

"Copper is dull, and, so far as positive information can be secured, there is no change in price. Lake is held at 26 cents by the largest producers, and electrolytic at 25¼ cents per pound. Consumers are holding aloof and waiting. They are not fully satisfied that they will be obliged to pay quoted prices for their July and August copper. The expected strong demand from abroad has so far failed to put in its appearance. It seems that consumers must come into the market soon, however, and it is known that there is no accumulated surplus which can be used to depress prices.

"Three important producing interests who were seen this week stated that the market was inactive. They were holding their copper for future deliveries at 25¼ and 26 cents for electrolytic and lake; they are all sold ahead well into next month and are delivering their production to consumers as rapidly as it is refined; but they admitted that they were getting no bids for copper; that they were not even having inquiries from consumers.

"The situation is not a difficult one to understand. All the important consumers were buyer two or three months ago and they bought their May and June supplies of copper at that time. The metal is coming to them now as rapidly as they need it, and because of the unsettlement in the financial world, they evidently have determined that for a while, at least, they will adopt what is known as the hand-to-mouth practice of buying. This means that they will not contract for copper except for immediate or nearby delivery, and will take no chance of being caught in a declining market with large stocks of metal on hand.

"One important copper producing interest says he does not expect to see any material increase in production this year. He declares that the present generation will not live to see another 15-cent copper market.

"A representative of the interests who are charged with being responsible for the low quotations that are being put out by a certain New York trade paper says: 'I see no change in conditions. Some large round lots of electrolytic copper can be had at 24 cents in this country, and copper can be bought at the equivalent of this price on the London metal exchange. I hear that wire makers are less active, and in some few cases consumers have asked to have deliveries of copper deferred a month. Consumers will have to come into the market within the next ten days for their July copper, and it is hard to make predictions on the future of the market until they reveal their attitude on future contracts.'

"The unfavorable crop reports, declining security markets and the practicable impossibility to sell bonds and raise new money for railroad and industrial expansion, are factors that must be reckoned with. If we are to have a considerable reaction in general business the prices of all commodities, including copper, will undoubtedly decline somewhat. There is unlikely to be anything of the nature of a break in copper prices. If consumers adopt the hand-to-mouth practice of buying, prices will probably remain at their present level for two or three months and then recede gradually to about 22 cents, and possibly to 20 cents at the end of the year. It must not be forgotten, however, that some of the highest authorities in the trade express the strongest confidence that the market will not drop below 25 cents this year."

The success of the new rule which has gone into effect among the copper stock brokers on the local curb, to the effect that one-half the amount of the purchase must be planked down with every buying order, will be watched with interest. There are those who declare the scheme will not work. The chances are that the brokers will continue to buy for their regular customers, upon a nod of the head, or a word, as in the past.

TAR MACADAM WILL BE USED

Owners Want Cheapest Pavement on Sixteenth Avenue East.

Straight-tar macadam will be used in paving Sixteenth avenue east. This was decided at a meeting of the board of public works which was held this morning and at which a hearing was granted for the benefit of the owners that they might express their opinion in regard to the kind of paving used. They were unanimous for tar macadam, though the parties who would be benefitted by a sandstone, or part sandstone paving made a fight for its use.

SOUTHWEST LOOKS WELL

Globe is Destined to be Greatest Copper Camp.

Fred H. Merritt and George W. Waite have returned from the Southwest, where they spent the past three weeks looking over the mining camps of Globe and Bisbee, Arizona.

Martin Rosendahl started out from here with them, but gave it up and returned before Globe was reached. He was indisposed and concluded that home was the best place for a sick man, so he came back forthwith.

"Things are looking well at the Globe and Bisbee camps," said Mr. Merritt this morning. "The mines at Bisbee are shipping just about as much ore now as they were before the strike. The miners have not given up their strike but most of them have left the camp and new men have come in and gone to work.

"Miners are not plentiful, however, so that development work is being retarded somewhat. The companies are placing all of their men at work at the shipping mines and only carrying on development when they have engaged in the actual mining.

"Shattuck-Arizona is a corking good mine. They are shipping about 200 tons a day now. Penn-Arizona looks well although of course, they have not started shipping there lately.

"The town of Bisbee looked a great deal better now than it did the last time I was there. The streets have been paved and other improvements made in the general appearance of the city. Globe is a coming city, too. They have a population of about 9,000 there now and it is growing all the time. Real estate is away up.

"I was under the impression that Old Dominion, Arizona Commercial, National, Globe Consolidated and Superior & Boston constituted the Globe district but these really comprise the northeast corner of what will in time be the largest copper camp in the country.

"The mineralized zone is from one to ten miles wide. There are several producing properties about which we hear nothing in Duluth. The Gibson mine is hauling about fifty tons of high grade ore a day, sixteen miles to Globe. Much low grade ore is developed in the mining. The same is true of Black Warrior, Continental and several other properties, which are shipping enough high grade ore to pay the development expenses.

"Globe Consolidated has a vein known as the Bird vein from which sufficient ore could be extracted to nearly pay for the sinking of both the Gem and Mallory shafts.

"The National Mining company's property is located on the strike of two distinct faults, both of which cross the entire property. Superior & Boston is well located too.

"All of this talk about poor crops in the Southwest may be true but the crops certainly looked all right to me, as I passed on the train.

"The weather was pretty warm in the Southwest while we were there and Duluth certainly looked good to us when we got back, as it always does after an absence."

ATTEMPT MADE TO WRECK TRAIN

Buffalo, N. Y., May 27.—An attempt was made to wreck Erie passenger train, No. 6, Saturday night, at a point a mile and a half east of Alden. This is the Erie's fast night train from Buffalo to New York, and on Sunday it had a full load of passengers. The spot chosen for the work was just east of what is known as Sullivan's crossing. The tracks are laid on a deep fill, over a long ravine, and at a point in the middle of the curve a heavy 40-foot rail was placed across the eastbound track, and bolstered up by huge stones. Several farm houses are visible from the spot. The train was composed of Pullman sleeping cars and heavy day coaches, and could not have been going more than twenty-five or thirty miles an hour, when the headlight showed the rail laying directly across the tracks. Engineer Wolfe shut off steam and applied the emergency brakes. An instant later the locomotive struck the rail. One rock being smaller than the one on the opposite side, the loose rail was shoved over and thrown into the ditch. The engine pilot was smashed to splinters. The train crew got out and carefully examined the ground. It was raining, and footprints were discernible around the spot. A messenger was immediately started back to Alden, and a telephone message sent into Buffalo, giving particulars of the attempt to ditch the train. The train continued on its way to Hornell.

No effort is being spared by the Erie officials to apprehend the wreckers.

CALLS FOR AN APOLOGY

Mayor Writes to Lieutenant Dockery Demanding an Explanation.

Charges Against Duluth's Patriotism Arouse Widespread Indignation.

Lieut. Oliver H. Dockery stirred up other citizens besides Chief of Police C. H. Troyer by the expression of his sentiments in regard to Duluth patriotism and her treatment of men in uniform, which appeared in yesterday morning's Tribune. The indignation is widespread and has found voice in a number of strongly expressed sentiments.

Mayor Cullum was extremely indignant, and this morning sent the following letter to the lieutenant:

"Lieut. Oliver H. Dockery, Duluth, Minn.—Dear Sir: My attention was called to an article appearing in yesterday morning's Tribune, in which you were quoted extensively. Now I cannot say that I am familiar with the code of ethics or regulations governing officers of the United States army. My association with a number of them, however, led me to think and I have been proud to believe, that their standard of honor and courtesy was of a very high order—hence I was naturally amazed to read the article referred to. For an officer of the army, at this time, immediately preceding Memorial day, to make such an outrageous attack on the patriotism of the people of this community, and reflect not only on the citizens but on the administration, is so surprising that I cannot let it pass.

"Had the things that you have quoted in relation to the administration been true, it occurs to me that an officer at least would have come to those in authority for his remedy. That would have been the courteous thing to do. To hold either the community or the administration responsible for the action of several individuals and condemn the public generally, seems to me so unfair and uncalled for that I am not surprised at the indignation expressed on all sides. I should therefore like to know whether you have been correctly quoted in the Tribune. If so, a prompt apology to the public at least will to a very slight extent remedy the mistake you have evidently made."

The mayor says that unless the apology referred to in the letter, or a sufficient explanation is forthcoming in the immediate future, he will see that the facts of the case, together with copies of Chief Troyer's and his own communications in regard to the matter, are referred to Dockery's superior officers.

It is, of course, very possible that the lieutenant may have been misquoted, or a wrong impression been conveyed by his words. The sentiment of the majority of Duluthians seems to be with the mayor in saying that the week of Memorial day was a very poor time to make such statements as Lieut. Dockery is quoted as making.

BRANDED AS A DESERTER.

London Evening Standard: An army pension has just been granted to J. Tomlin of Nottingham, who is now 81, and his medals, granted for Sevastopol, have been replaced.

It seems that he was invalided home from the Crimea and granted a month's furlough. While enjoying his rest he was stricken with typhoid fever, but, being unable to read or write, did not acquaint the officers of his regiment with his misfortune or ask a friend to do so. The consequence was that when his furlough expired he was posted as a deserter, and while on his way to rejoin was arrested.

At Aldershot he was tried by court-martial and sentenced to be branded with the letter "D."

SMOKED IN CHURCH.

London Chronicle: Although the present universal habit of smoking is of comparatively recent date, the use of tobacco was carried to a great excess when it was first introduced. Our ancestors smoked even in church.

All such offenders were solemnly excommunicated by Urban VIII in 1624, and again by Innocent XII in 1650, when the practice seemed to have extended to Rome itself. There was William Breedon, too, vicar of Thornton, "a profound divine, and absolutely the most polite person for nativities in that age," of whom the astrologer Lilly says that "when he had no tobacco he would cut the bell ropes and smoke them."

SERVICES FOR BOYS

Every Boy in City Invited to March in the Parade.

One of the most interesting features of the Memorial day program is the part which the boys of Duluth are going to take in the parade and exercises. The committee on arrangements expects to have over 500 boys in line Thursday for the parade and special services will be held for them at the Metropolitan theater.

In having the boys attend a special memorial service and take part in the exercises the committee is attempting something which is an innovation in this city although it has been tried in other cities with great success. Already a large number of boys have promised to take part and more are expected to come forward during the next two days.

Boys from the high school to the number of 150 have already pledged themselves to take part in the parade Thursday and attend the services and Bishop McGolrick has given his promise that every boy in the parochial schools will take part. Another large squad of boys will come from the Sunday schools and the boy's department of the Y. M. C. A.

The committee in charge wants every boy in the city to take part; if possible and notices have been sent to the newspaper carriers to be on hand Thursday morning. All boys are requested to march in the parade and it is thought that an impressive showing will be made. The boys will meet at nine o'clock Thursday morning and form in line with the rest of the parade at that time. They will march with the others until the Lyceum theater is reached where the band will wait until the boys reach them and will then accompany them to the Metropolitan theater while the older ones participating in the parade will attend the service at the Lyceum.

At the Armory before the parade starts each boy will be given a badge and a small flag to wave and which they may keep after the exercises. The boys from the high school have chosen officers who will be in command on Decoration day during the march from the Armory to the Metropolitan.

At the Metropolitan theater a band concert will be given by one of the bands of this city and Dr. M. S. Rice will deliver a Memorial day address especially for the boys, and there will be several patriotic songs by the boys.

The committee is making a great effort to make the number of boys in the parade and at the exercises as large as possible and every boy in the city who can do so should be present at the Armory Thursday.

THAT BACKWARD COURTHOUSE.

Those who have been standing on the corner of Fourth avenue west and First street, watching the courthouse site for evidence of work upon the construction of the new courthouse, are beginning to suffer from eye-strain. There appears to be "nothing doing," and the public is not even given the assurance that there will be "something doing" in the immediate future.

Though the need of a new courthouse has been present for years and is growing more acute every day; though a site that could not be improved upon has been bought and paid for; though taxes are being set aside in the county treasury to be used in constructing the new building; and though a law has been enacted by the legislature providing for a courthouse commission to handle the work, matters are about where they were many weeks ago.

There is not even a courthouse commission, in reality. After the new law made necessary by the discovery that the old one was invalid had been adopted, Chairman Patterson of the county board appointed a new commission, the same as the old one with the exception of one member. That was a long time ago, but up to date only one member of that commission has qualified. There is, therefore, no courthouse commission, and nothing can be done until there is one.

The public has not been guilty of urging any undue haste in this matter, but under the circumstances it can easily be forgiven for beginning to lose its patience, and for wondering whether anything is ever going to be done or not.

If St. Louis county is ever going to have a suitable and creditable courthouse, it must make a start. That start should be made as soon as it possibly can be, consistent with the exercise of proper judgment. But it cannot be made until there is a courthouse commission.

THE OIL TRUST'S METHODS.

The public is pretty familiar, in a general way, with the methods of the Standard Oil company, but Herbert Knox Smith, federal commissioner of corporations, has been examining it under the official microscope, and has presented a report which shows it to be even worse than had been suspected. Worse, because it shows it in an attitude of defiance to law and justice which cannot be tolerated by the American people unless they want to acknowledge their serfdom to this great and grasping corporation.

Friends of the oil octopus claim for it that it has revolutionized the oil trade, and that it deserves large profits for its ingenuity and enterprise. Analyzed, about all there is left of these claims is a skillful use of discriminatory railroad tariffs, upon which the monopoly has been built, so that the trust, producing only one-sixth of the country's crude oil, produced in 1904 more than 86 per cent of its refined oil, and maintained a similar proportion of the export trade.

Commissioner Smith says:

> It cannot be too strongly emphasized that its growth and present power rest primarily on the control of transportation facilities. Additional means of domination have been found in local price discrimination and other unfair competitive methods in the sale of products, as well as in the elimination of the jobber; but throughout its entire history the factor of transportation has been the keystone of its success.

The first step was a secret railroad rebate from Cleveland to tidewater, and now that it uses pipe lines very largely, it maintains its power by discriminating against independents, and by blocking attempts to build competing pipe lines by means of "vexatious litigation and pre-empting of rights of way, by the aid of railroads which refused rights of way across their lines and adjusted their rates so as to injure competing pipe lines, and by paying local discriminating premiums for crude oil in the limited areas reached by rival lines."

Commissioner Smith finds that the oil trust is defying the government and maintaining its discriminatory practices in the following ways:

> By failing to file tariffs; by refusing to transport oil for others; by filing misleading and useless tariffs, such as to Unionville, N. Y., instead of to New York harbor; by insisting upon unreasonably large shipments; by suppressing statistical information; by maintaining rate agreements with railroads at prices greatly above the legitimate pipe line cost.

The duty of the government now is, besides prosecuting the pending suits under the anti-trust law, to compel the company to submit to the common-carrier obligations of the 1906 rate law, which it has so far refused to do.

The question of whether the oil trust is greater than the government is to be decided, therefore, shortly.

MISTAKEN SYMPATHIES.

San Francisco is a perpetually interesting exhibit, and as it has been on the front pages of the newspapers of the country for some time, the public has had ample chance to study it.

It will be a mystery to most people how such a shameless reign of graft could have continued so long without interruption. Revelations now being made, as lower depths are probed, indicate that crime pervaded, more or less, a large proportion of the business and official life of the city. Not only were there public officials ready to receive bribe money and to return services for it, but there was Ruef to engineer the deals, Schmitz to look on complacently and accept his share, and, worst of all, prominent business men to provide the graft funds.

Then when the collapse came, when Ruef broke down and confessed his guilt in tears, while seeking pitifully to justify his conduct, the very newspaper men that had hounded him to that position viewed his shame with pity, and in their reports even appealed to the public for sympathy for him. Ruef reported that after he had been before the grand jury every member kindly shook him by the hand as he went out after giving his evidence.

Neither of these things show San Francisco in a right light. Those grand jurors should have heard his story in shame and disgust, and instead of "kindly grasping him by the hand" and assuring him of their consideration, should have let him slink out with faces averted.

One of the newspapers, in reporting his confession, describes Ruef as being very different from the "ordinary gross and calloused political heeler," and paints him as being entitled to public commiseration because he is an "educated man and exceptionally able," a graduate of the state university at the age of 18, and familiar with "history and language, literature and art, as well as politics."

If the San Francisco view is that these are reasons for giving him special consideration, it is small wonder that San Francisco is corrupt. They are the very reasons why his punishment should be greater. He knew better. If he did not, his education was wasted.

There might be some excuse for a low, coarse-grained and thin-skinned heeler who rose from the streets and who received his education there, though his personality is less pleasant, perhaps, than that of Ruef. But there is no excuse for the "educated and exceptionally able graduate who is familiar with history and language, literature and art, as well as politics."

The brutal heeler might commit crime because he was bred up to it, but the educated villain becomes a villain because he chooses to do so, unless perhaps he can blame it upon heredity, and as to that, Ruef's relatives appear to be the best thing about him.

SOWING PREJUDICE.

If the Minneapolis Journal has ever overlooked a chance to create and perpetuate prejudice, and to gain its own ends by unfair and dishonest argument, it would be interesting to know when it was.

During the recent session of the legislature the Journal was strong for a tonnage tax on iron ore. At first it demanded a tax of about 25 cents a ton, to be used for the benefit of the state, and insisted that nothing else would do. Then, when somebody else looked into it and found that it wouldn't do at all, because it was so obviously confiscatory and so unjust to the mining localities—of course the Journal did not think of looking into it itself before taking so strong a stand—it took up as eagerly the next proposition. When that, too, was abandoned, the Journal sailed complacently on to the next, and, in short, showed itself to be strongly in favor of any tax, no matter how absurd or unjust, that promised to relieve the tax dodgers of its own territory from a very large share of state taxes.

That the spirit of fair play and equality in taxation finally won the day in the legislature is no fault of the Journal's. The tonnage tax seemed to be a good thing to talk about, because it was likely to be popular in the territory in which the Journal circulates, so from the depths of its ignorance and with no regard whatever for fairness, it talked about it, in season and out, and presented arguments in its behalf that could have originated only in one of two things—dishonesty or ignorance.

Now, because several Northern Minnesota papers, including not a single one in St. Louis county, have talked state division, and because The Herald opposed the talk and suggested that a better way for Northern Minnesota to gain its just deserts is to get together and present a united front in behalf of the things Northern Minnesota needs, the Journal, with characteristic bad faith and dishonesty, charges that the plan of division originated with the iron interests, and that the "game" to be played by a united Northern Minnesota is to relieve those interests from their just share of taxation.

Both of these charges are absolutely false, and nobody knows it better than the Journal. The division idea was broached by the Cass Lake Times, which has no iron interest affiliations, and it will be time for the Journal to talk about the iron interests evading their share of taxation when they make such an attempt. They never have yet, and they are not likely to.

The amount of taxes to be paid the state by the iron interests was never in issue at St. Paul last winter, the only dispute being over the method of taxation. Because it is unjust, impracticable and dangerous to the mining localities, the tonnage tax idea was defeated, and the Minneapolis Journal's dishonest and unfair appeals to sectional prejudice will not suffice to resurrect it from the tomb in which the legislature very properly placed it.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"With dreams of pike fishing such as I had never enjoyed before, I paid a visit to my brother down in Wisconsin last year, intending to spend the day after my arrival," said P. C. Dennison of Madison, Wis., at the Lennox. "Minnows are usually considered necessary in the catching of pike, and the afternoon of my arrival Tom caught several hundred minnows, and was then confronted by the problem of how to keep them alive until the following day.

"In order to keep the bait alive for the necessary time, he deposited them in his bath tub, turned on the water, and while waiting for the bath tub to fill, threw himself across a couch and soon was deep in slumber. In less than half an hour the tub had overflowed, and the minnows were flopping around on the bathroom floor. The water soon reached the hall, and the steps leading down to the first floor and parlor. It looked like a miniature Niagara, and never did a body of minnows have such sport jumping the rapids.

"About two hours after the water was turned on Tom's wife returned, and was naturally appalled at the sight which met her gaze when she opened the front door. After an investigation, which disclosed that the kitchen ceiling, and part of the ceiling of the dining room, had fallen down, she located the source and cause of the trouble. Tom was awakened, and then started out catching fish in his own house. It took him some little time to round up all the escaped prisoners, and when they were all corraled they were too far gone to be any use for bait the next day. When I arrived on the scene the household was in a state of collapse, and relations between poor Tom and his wife were sadly strained."

"It doesn't look much like summer in the woods back of Lutsen," said C. A. Nelson of Lutsen, Minn., at the New England. He arrived from the north shore on the steamer America yesterday, with a tale that would freeze the blood of a man from the South. "Snow is to be seen in abundance in the north shore woods. I suppose I am safe in saying that in spots it is still three and four feet deep.

"This spring reminds me very much of the spring of 1888, which was very backward. There was even more snow that winter than there has been during the past winter. I remember planting potatoes July 3 at Lutsen that year. They matured and I had a good crop.

"Logging is being greatly interfered with by the amount of snow in the woods. J. P. Rossman has a camp on Poplar river and his men quit a short time ago because it was impossible to get provisions into camp. Mr. Rossman has a lot of logs cut and ready to be skidded, but the great amount of snow makes it impossible to do anything with them. Timber cruisers on Isle Royale, I understand, are using snowshoes in their work."

President's Real Trust-Busters.

Washington Herald: Frank B. Kellogg and Cordenie A. Severance continue to be the president's real trust-busters. They have been law partners at St. Paul many years, and up to the time of his death Senator Cushman K. Davis was a member of their firm. Their practice has been mainly for corporations, their biggest client for several years having been the great steel trust, whose interests in Minnesota are potentially more vast than even in the Pittsburg district. Messrs. Severance and Kellogg were brought into the trust-busting business for the government by Senator Knox when he was attorney general, and they have been retained by his successors. They do their work quietly. They have no official title or standing. They are merely lawyers employed by the government to prepare cases against designated trusts under the forms and regulations of the department of justice. They are paid from the extraordinary grant of a half million dollars made by congress three years ago upon the recommendation of President Roosevelt. The government is their client, just as the steel trust was in Minnesota. What fees they are paid by the government is no more known than was the compensation they used to draw from the steel trust. As, however, they are high-priced lawyers, it is believed that the government is paying them for their services more than any of the big trusts in the country pay their lawyers. One suggestion is that they are to receive $50,000 each for this year's work.

Mr. Kellogg, by the way, has political ambitions. It is said that in the event of Attorney General Bonaparte's retirement the president would put the Minnesotan at the head of the department of justice. From this office Mr. Kellogg might be able to go to the senate as Senator Clapp's successor. It is known that the senate is his goal.

The Hero.

The veteran of many scars
Saluted passing by,
And gazed on that undaunted man
With envy in his eye.

The bare-hands catcher of the wolf,
With hair upon his breast,
Uncovered to his thrilling deed
And lesser nerve confessed.

The man who scaled the Alpen peak,
Or did the dip of death,
Would gaze on him in wonderment
And, halting, hold his breath.

All mollycoddles, high and low,
Kowtowed to him thereat;
He was the hero bold who wore
The First
Straw Hat.

THE WEATHER.

The mixture of weather that ran from Saturday over to Sunday forenoon was composed of some very evil elements. Saturday a very wet northeaster prevailed, and Sunday morning a mixture of rain and snowflakes made a most unseasonable and unpleasant condition. This morning, however, though the wind was cool and fresh, the sky was as clear as a bell, the sun shone effectively, and matters were vastly improved. Last night's lowest temperature was 39 degs. and yesterday's highest was 42 degs. The weather man expects it to be fair and warmer, with variable winds tonight and tomorrow.

A year ago today, after a three days' northeaster, it was breezy, cool and clear.

The sun rose this morning at 4:19 and sets tonight at 7:51, making 15 hours and 31 minutes of sunshine.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The lake region storm is central over Eastern Lake Erie. During the past twenty-four hours it caused rain or snow in all districts east of the 95th meridian and strong northerly winds in the lake region. An area of high pressure has moved from Montana to Kansas, causing light to killing frosts this morning in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Western Missouri. Pressures are falling throughout the west with disturbances developing over Saskatchewan and Arizona. Generally fair weather and higher temperature may be expected in this locality during tonight and Tuesday."

LAUGHING GAS.

Baltimore American: "At least," mused the philosophic motorist, as he lay under his upturned machine, waiting for the rest of the party to pry him out, "no funny guy can come along and say that this is a horse on me."

Philadelphia Ledger: "You can't get on this car; you're drunk," said the conductor.

"D'ye s'pose a sober man'd want to get on your old car?" replied the rejected, not without spirit.

Cleveland Leader: Mr. Jawback—How well Kipling has described this plate of hash!

Mrs. Jawback—How?

Philadelphia Press: "Really," remarked Miss Passay, "I don't see why any woman should try to conceal her age. Now I'm willing all the time to let people know I'm 25."

"But," replied Miss Knox, "does it do any good? You know Lincoln said: 'You can't fool all the people all the time.'"

Yonkers Statesman: Footo Lighte—I have a wonderful memory. I can learn a new play in a day.

Miss Sue Brette—Well, to have a memory like that must be bad if the play is one you want to forget!

New York Sun: The Sphinx had just propounded a riddle.

"Why does a plain girl understand a ball game better than a pretty one?"

Herewith they were fain to give it up.

Baltimore American: "Father, I am thinking of getting married."

"All right, my son, but remember that love is not everything. Take care to select a wife who will support you in the style to which you have always been accustomed, or you run the risk of being very unhappy and maybe of having to go to work yourself."

Pointed Paragraphs.

Must Have Tried It Himself.

New York Globe: Making faces at Wilhelm, II is a dangerous method of beguiling one's time in Germany. The kaiser and his police take themselves very seriously. Herr Bruning of Berlin has just been sent to jail for nine months as a result of "sticking his tongue out," so say the despatches, at the head of the state. The accused protested that the protrusion of his tongue was incidental to the hurrahing in which he indulged as the kaiser drove by; that he was, in fact, cheering, not slighting, royalty. The courts would accept no such lame excuse and declared him guilty of lese majeste. The explanation is, in fact, absurd on its face. Let any one try to say hurrah with his tongue out! The resulting noise is distinctly disrespectful, if not insulting, and more irritating than a frank, outspoken curse. In truth, the oftener one tries this experiment the more he wonders—admitting, of course, the right of the kaiser to discipline people who make faces at him—over the leniency of the courts toward Herr Bruning. His offense would have justified an official appointment in German East Africa or as a German delegate to the Hague conference.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Madison Independent Press: Minnesota has been placed in the Taft column. Well, why not? He seems to be doing the whole public business while he of the big stick is doing all the talking.

Fergus Falls Wheelock's Weekly: England is hovering on the brink of the single tax—meaning a tax on land values and nothing else—and if she takes the plunge, England will become the country of most general prosperity in the world.

Sauk Center Herald: If the big city dailies were to abolish their colored Sunday supplement horrors, there would be few to mourn.

Pine City Pioneer: It is really astonishing how many honest men are dishonest in their business relations with the state and county in which they live. Many a truthful man lies about his property when the assessor comes around, and many a man who would arrest a starving beggar who stole a 5-cent loaf of bread would beat a street car company out of a 5-cent fare and chuckle over it. Strange what a difference there is in types of honesty, isn't it?

Rush City Post: It seems that President Roosevelt has just become aware of the fact that a few capable canal diggers in Northern Minnesota. Long ago the Post named Thomas F. McGilvray, city engineer of Duluth, as the most capable man in the United States for superintendent of that work, and we stick to that opinion still.

Lake Crystal Union: If the wind blows from the northeast, the price of coal goes up, and if it blows from the south, the railroads raise the rates.

Big Falls Compass: The Cass Lake Times is out for secession—it wants Northern Minnesota divorced from its southern "better half." True, our great state is big enough for amputation, and that portion north of the 46th parallel is rich enough to start housekeeping on its own account. But we cannot see that the plaintiff can show sufficient grounds for divorce. If Northern Minnesota wants any favors, it must learn to unite its people to demand their rights.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: If the government could draw upon the energies that are developing the Mesaba iron range, the digging of the Panama canal would not look so big. The difference between the government and the operating companies on the range is that one is controlled by politicians, while the other is controlled by hard-headed business men who employ brains, rather than pull, in conducting their work.

Sauk Center Herald: The Minnesota legislature dodged the primary election extension proposition. That law should either have been extended to include all state officers, or else it should have been repealed. The politicians don't like the primary idea, and they will never give the public a square deal unless they have to. Some of them will be lost in the shuffle next election.

Mankato Free Press: Dr. William Osler declares that physicians are using too many drugs. A number of them are pretty free with the knife also.

"IDA."

Henry Watterson in Louisville Courier-Journal: If ever a star fell from Heaven into the arms of man—if ever a flower grew into a woman—that star and that flower was Ida Saxton McKinley. There was an aroma of sweetness and grace in the very name. Her husband never addressed her, never referred to her, except as "Ida." By an interposition little short of divine the full knowledge of the supreme tragedy which descended into a life yet in its noon, was spared her; the angels drew a veil as of tears between her and its full realization.

God had given it to Ida Saxton to be fitly mated. There were many beauties and virtues in the character of William McKinley; his career was abundantly fulfilled, and the crown of glory he wore with such consuming modesty was studded with jewels both rich and radiant; the soldier, the civilian, the man of affairs and the party leader; but the rarest of all that shone in that priceless diadem was his devotion—single, constant, unerring—to "Ida."

He came to power during moving times. Immense responsibilities descended upon him. War, which he had religiously opposed, and for which the country was ill-prepared, was suddenly thrust upon him. The White House became an armed camp. There was not an hour of the day or night, which the president could call his own. But, night or day, there came never a moment when that sweet voice might not summon him to the side of the wife whose peculiar affliction had imposed upon him the care of a nurse for a child—none other nurse than he. It was the knowledge of this in those who personally knew and loved them which gave to the awful finality at Buffalo an added and inexpressible poignancy of grief.

Let the winged spirit take its way to the immortal spirit waiting for its mate. Much shortened is the distance to Heaven from earth between these two. Around the seraphs stand in robes of light. The gates are flung open wide. But, be sure a single voice will alone be heard, just only the one word, "Ida."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The prettier a girl is the more you'd better tell her so.

A woman doesn't have to mind what her neighbors say if her husband is a millionaire.

Anyway, people who have the devil for a landlord don't have to be robbed by ice trusts.

The harder a man tries to dodge his duty the more he brags afterward about how he likes to do it.

A woman enjoys a play unless it's so interesting she can't study what everybody in the house is wearing.

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Virginia Virginian: There is a wait for "owl cars" in Duluth. They ought not be tolerated. Twelve o'clock is long enough for any man to stay out. After that he usually is so mellow that he won't ride in a street car anyway.

Moorhead Independent: The Duluth Evening Herald, one of the best dailies printed at the Head of the Lakes, is taking a few editorial falls out of the railroad companies of the Northwest as to the attitude taken by them since the 2-cent passenger fare went into effect. The Herald regards the action in removing the special landseekers' rates as a piece of shortsightedness. So do we.

Worthington Herald: Duluth is the coming city of the Northwest and there is not a better newspaper in the state than the Duluth Herald. All Heralds as a rule are good papers.

Minnesota Mascot: The Duluth Herald does not miss it very far when it says: "It is a blot upon the name of religion in this country that ministers are not better paid, and it looks as though it were up to the church-goers to contribute a little more freely and fully to the support of their churches."

Barnum Star-Gazette: The Duluth builders' strike has been peacefully settled and operations by the labor unions resumed. This is most fortunate at the present time when all indications point to the biggest year in the history of the Zenith City.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Duluth has a beautiful dream. It proposes to hold a tri-county fair, embracing St. Louis and Lake counties of Minnesota, and Douglas county of Wisconsin. Duluth is just now beginning to realize what it lost when it allowed Hibbing to capture the legitimate county fair association. The fair proposition, however, has lost nothing, and will lose nothing so long as it remains in Hibbing hands.

Ely Miner: The Duluth steel plant will mean prosperity for the entire state and not alone for the Northwestern part.

Superior Telegram: The Minneapolis Tribune says that "Duluth is suffering from unsatisfied yearnings for the higher and better things of life." If the Minneapolis paper is correct, Duluth has her yearnings headed in the right direction anyhow.

Stillwater Gazette: Some people assert that it is easier sailing for a launch at Duluth than it is for an automobile, on account of the large expanse of beautiful water.

Mankato Free Press: The Duluth Herald, as fair-minded a newspaper as ever was turned out of a perfecting press, acknowledges that the northern part of the state was well treated by the Southern Minnesota representatives in the last legislature. Northern Minnesota should be given full representation in the legislature. It should not be deprived of one representative that it is entitled to. That's where the Free Press stands on that proposition. A square deal will harm neither the northern nor southern sections of this state. But why speak of sections? Minnesota is all one, the brightest of all stars in the grand galaxy of states.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

DAY OF HITS FOR THE SOX

Thirteen Bingles Made Off Calumet Pitchers Yesterday Afternoon.

Sox Won Game on Muddy Field by 10 to 2 Score.

Smiley Smith's little band of White Sox yesterday afternoon gave their first exhibition of real good, head-of-percentage-column baseball, when they slaughtered the innocent champs from Calumet by a score of 10 to 2. It was a battle of mud-balls with the Sox the more effective mudders. The diamond was covered with rich red clay mud to a depth of several inches and the base-runners were forced to wallow through pools of murky water to reach the pillows. The outfield was a treacherous morass, with pitfalls at every turn. But there were about 1,200 people out and, rather than disappoint them, the teams decided to play the game on the wretched field.

The Sox picked out a rather inauspicious day for their first exhibition of championship ball, as to do it, they had to put aside their personal feelings and take things as they came. The "things" were divers and sundry dives into mud-holes, and scrambles through muddy pools but they got away with everything nicely. One slip, by "Smiley," who was filling in at second in place of Mullane, was the only shadow of an error. As Smith doesn't pretend to be a star infielder, his work yesterday was great. He pulled off a couple of hard chances and was all to the good with the stick. Father Jim Haney out in center field was a whole show by himself. Not water, nor mud, nor slippery spots deterred him. He grabbed off everything fast came in his direction and did it with the finish of a veteran outfielder. Bill McCormick in left field pulled off the grand catch of the day. It was in the eighth inning. Ball leaned heavily against one and it went, seemingly for a clean two bagger. McCormick started after it and made good time, though it was hard going in the heavy field. From the stands it looked as though an inner fair, but in a last desperate effort, he lunged forward, grabbed the ball, rolled over and came up with it in his hand.

It was a fine field that the Sox so pleased the fans, though. They have put up good work on the defensive before. It was at bat. Since the season opened, they hadn't had any more than scratch hits in a game and the fans were beginning to think that they would follow in the foot-steps of that other team of the same, "The Hapless Wonders." Thirteen beautiful singles were their portion yesterday and they came in such clusters that Calumet's chances were spoiled early in the game. McGovern was the Grand High Knight of the Club, with four lively bingles, one a two earner, in five times up.

Koopman, the man from the Chicago owner pets, who came touted as something of a wonder, was given a rough reception on his first appearance in "Grasshopper" league company. The Sox took a couple of hits as a feeler in the first and in the third they jumped on him with all fours and then some. Five bingles came in such quick succession that Koopman was bewildered and the sox chased four across the rubber. In the fourth they did it some more and seemed to enjoy it immensely. After the fourth, Mullane wouldn't trust his prize to their tender mercies any more, and a substitute was sent in. Just to show they could do it, they landed on him for two doubles and a single in two innings. Scroeder was relieved by Jack Corrigan in the fourth, that he might be saved for future sacrifice. The Sox were kind to Corrigan and there were no more hits.

Josie Krick, "the heaviest hitting pitcher in the league," was the big noise on the Sox outfit. Josie was flinging them over with pary a care for the mud underfoot, nor the chill air which enveloped him. He was as wild as the proverbial hare, handing out seven bases on balls and letting one man, but he allowed the Aristocrats but four hits and but for a chance two-bagger by Koopman, which looked as though it fell foul and was treated so by McLaughlin, would have had a shut-out. Josie kept up his hitting, which has come to be no joke. He took two singles in his first two times up and then declined to exert himself further with the stick, reserving future troubles, which might be in his system for some future occasion.

The Sox started the scoring in the first inning. Smith singled and went out at second, when Tracey attempted to sacrifice. The big fellow landed on second however, Oriet shooting the ball over Dolan's head in an effort to compete a double. Tracey went to third on Haney's out and scored on McCormick's single, Leighty fanned.

The Aristocrats scored their runs in the second. Newcombe walked after one was away and went to second on Smith's error on Oriet's grounder after one more had died. Mullane walked and the bases were full. Koopman hit to right field and it looked as though the ball landed foul. Nolan called it fair and while McLaughlin tried to how Nolan it was foul, Newcombe and Oriet scored. Mullane was nabbed at the plate.

The Sox broke Koopman's heart in the third. Singles by Krick, Smith, Tracey, McCormick and Roy, with an out, gave the home team four runs. In the fourth, they got the final touches on Koopman's finish. Olmstead walked, Krick, Haney and McCormick singled and two runs were scored.

Schroeder went in in the fifth. Olmstead walked after McLaughlin was out and then Krick fanned. Mullane missed a pop-up in the infield and then Newcombe dropped Tracey's high fly. Haney singled and McCormick cracked out a double. In the sixth, Roy took a double, but died on second and the Sox didn't touch Corrigan in the remaining two innings.

Chicago, May 27.—Chicago and New York managed to play a little less than five innings between showers yesterday, the locals winning, 5 to 1. When the first shower was over Manager Griffith took Orth's place and tried to prolong the play so that "no game" would be declared until Umpire Sheridan admonished him. The game was a farce after the third inning. Elberfeld scored in the first on a base on balls, stolen base, passed ball and wild pitch. Chicago's runs were the result of hard hitting. Score:

Thank goodness they've started hitting.

Kind of thought it was in them, but wasn't sure.

Ten runs and thirteen hits isn't so bad for a team, which has been pulling off five and six hits a day and collectively batting about .150.

Goldsmith and Summers were out of the game yesterday. Haney and Smith made good substitutes.

McCormick's catch was a great one, the best on the field this year. He did things with the big club too.

Jack Corrigan was a joke in the box the last two innings, but the boys were easy on him.

Koopman didn't have a thing yesterday, although he may show something better later. He lobbed them over like balloons, and the Sox did all the clouting was needed.

Krick is doing some hitting this year. Batting average to date .364. Heaviest hitting pitcher in the league all right.

Wix Treadway was out in uniform yesterday. He will probably not pitch in the Calumet series, as he has been doing little work lately.

Jack Burns was not out in a Calumet uniform yesterday. He had some differences with the management on the salary question and is out of it for the present. Frank Corrigan, who caught for Fargo once in the Northern league, joined Calumet yesterday. He is a brother of Jack Corrigan.

Roy caught a nice game behind the bat yesterday. His leg is still in bad shape, and he has trouble in getting around. He took a nice single and a two-bagger, which was a long one, for it gave him ample time to get to second, bum leg and all.

BIG DULUTHS EASY.

Hibbing Independents Defeated Semi-Profs Yesterday.

Hibbing, May 27.—Judge Brady's Colts defeated the Big Duluths of Duluth yesterday afternoon on a heavy field by a score of 8 to 3. Grogan gave the Big Duluths but three badly scattered hits and errors by the locals helped them to their three runs. The locals bunched on Murphy in the third and fourth. Score:

Hibbing	0	0	4	4	0	0	0	0	0	8	9	4
Big Duluth	0	0	0	1	0	2	0	0	0	3	3	3

Batteries—Grogan and Carroll; Murphy and Dourmouth.

EGAN WILL COMPETE.

Former National Golf Champion to Enter at Cleveland.

Chicago, May 26.—Chandler Egan, national amateur golf champion of 1904 and 1905, will again try for that honor this year. The young Harvard graduate said last fall that the Englewood tournament, in which he was put out of the running by George Lyon, the veteran Canadian golfer, was his last try for national honors, as he intended in future to devote his time to business. But when the medal play for the qualifying round starts at the Euclid Country club in Cleveland on July 6, Egan will be there with the rest of the strong Chicago contingent.

CREWS WILL COME WEST

Syracuse Will Send Eight and Four to Madison.

The Elder Ten Eyck Will Match His Skill Against His Son's.

Madison, Wis., May 27.—Next Friday, for the first time in boating history, an Eastern university crew will race a Western crew in Western waters, when the eight and four oared crews of Syracuse will measure strength and skill against the crews of the University of Wisconsin on the waters of Lake Mendota. With one of the most beautiful little inland lakes of the country on which to race, the Wisconsin 'varsity crews heretofore have been compelled to go away from home for their races. But this year Coach Ten Eyck has succeeded not only in rounding into form what is claimed to be the best crew Wisconsin ever had, but also of getting an Eastern crew to come west and race.

It is to be Ten Eyck against Ten Eyck. Ten Eyck, the elder, is coach of the Syracuse crews, his son the coach of the Wisconsin crews, and the rivalry between father and son adds not little to the interest which is being taken in the race. Madison this week will be the mecca of Wisconsin graduates, and already thousands have started for Madison, or are preparing to come here and swell the crowds of spectators that will line the bluffs along the two-mile course.

Cold weather has retarded the work of the Wisconsin crew this spring, and Ten Eyck says he is not confident of the result with Syracuse for that reason. Nevertheless, those who have watched the 'varsity four and have observed the improved form they display under their new coach's teaching, do not share in this lack of confidence. Their stroke is more finished than that taught by O'Dea. Whether more speed will develop remains to be seen, as only Ten Eyck knows and he will not tell.

For those who are familiar with the course, it may be said that the start will be a little beyond the old malt house, to the northeast of the stream connecting Lakes Mendota and Mono, thence along the lake shore to the finish in front of the university boat house.

WINNIPEG WON AGAIN.

Giants Defeated Saturday by 2 to 1, in Ten Innings.

Winnipeg, Man., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Maroons and Giants played great ball Saturday, Winnipeg winning out in the tenth inning by a score of 2 to 1. Winnipeg scored in the fifth and Houghton in the sixth and from then on it was a battle for the deciding run. Both pitchers worked will and their support was excellent. Score:

Batteries—Willis and Crisp; Kaiser and Gibson. Umpire—McGraw.

ICE WAGON BACKED INTO THE DEEP WATER.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—An ice wagon belonging to the Barbeau Ice company of Fergus Falls is in Lake Alice. One of the drivers left the team and wagon in front of a residence which faces the lake while he delivered some ice. While he was in the house the team started to back the wagon and before the driver could interfere the animals backed to the steep bank which borders the lake at this point, and team, wagon and all went down the bank about fifteen feet into deep water. The team was saved.

END COMES PEACEFULLY

Mrs. William McKinley Passes Away on Sunday Afternoon.

Widow of Martyred President Dead After Eventful Life.

Canton, Ohio, May 27.—Mrs. William McKinley died yesterday afternoon at 1:05 o'clock. The transition from life to death was so peaceful and gradual that it was with difficulty that the attending physicians noted when dissolution came.

There was no struggle, no pain. Mrs. McKinley never knew of the efforts made for days to prolong her life, nor of the solicitous hope against hope of her sister and other relatives for her recovery.

At the McKinley home when death came there were present Secretary Cortelyou, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Barber, Mrs. Sarah Duncan, Mrs. Luther Day, Justice and Mrs. William Day, Doctors Portmann and Rixey and the nurses.

Dr. Buxton will have charge of the funeral services, which are to be simple. They will be held at the McKinley home at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Secretary Cortelyou is directing the arrangements and will remain here until after the funeral. Dr. Rixey left here at 5:33 last evening for Washington. It was announced last night that President Roosevelt and Secretary Loeb would arrive in Canton Wednesday morning to attend the funeral. Vice President Fairbanks who had often been a guest of the McKinleys, is expected to reach here in time to attend the services.

The body of Mrs. McKinley will be placed in the vault in Westlawn cemetery, which holds the body of her husband, until the completion of the national mausoleum on Monument Hill, when both caskets will be transferred to receptacles in that tomb.

From numerous friends of the deceased Mrs. Barber this evening received telegrams of condolence on the death of her sister. Among them were telegrams from President Roosevelt and Vice President Fairbanks.

Mrs. McKinley's life of almost 60 years had been made familiar to the nation by the fact that for over thirty years she was an invalid. Through all this, however, she showed an unwavering faith in the career of her husband and, by her cheering words encouraged when darkness was at hand.

She believed that his star of destiny would never set until he had become president, and for more than a quarter of a century cherished that belief.

After President McKinley's death she expressed a desire to join him, and prayed day by day that she might die. Later, however, she frequently told friends that she desired to live until the completion of the McKinley mausoleum, which is the gift of the nation, and which is to be dedicated on Monument Hill, Sept. 30 next.

Mrs. Ida Sexton McKinley was born at Canton, Ohio, June 8, 1847, the daughter of James A. and Catherine Demalt Sexton. She was educated at Cleveland and at Brook Hall seminary, Media, Penn., but because of her delicate health she retired from the seminary at the age of 17 years.

In Canton Ida Sexton was, at the close of the Civil war, the most sought after woman in town. She was beautiful and charming. She had been well educated. She had traveled abroad, and to all these means of culture she had added by the command of her father, James Sexton, a wealthy banker of Canton, an experience of three years as cashier in her father's bank, an experience so unusual for a young woman of her wealth and social position as to lend piquancy to her other attractions.

It was when he returned from the war, in 1866, a penniless soldier in spite of his honors, that Maj. McKinley first met her. Although their romance did not culminate in marriage until five years afterward, Mr. McKinley was a struggling young lawyer then, but he was so plainly marked for success that Mr. Sexton gladly gave his daughter to his keeping.

They were married Jan. 25, 1871, in the Presbyterian church, which had been erected by Miss Sexton's grandmother.

The McKinley's, after their marriage, lived unpretentiously and were very happy and congenial in every way. They were both religious in character. Before her marriage Mrs. McKinley had been a Presbyterian Sunday school teacher, and Mr. McKinley superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school. It is said that one Sunday afternoon, when they were about to be separated to go to their respective posts of duty, Mr. McKinley said: "I don't like this parting every Sunday. Suppose we don't part after this?"

Mrs. McKinley joined his church, since which time she has been a devout Methodist.

The first child—a girl—which came to the McKinley home on Christmas day, was christened Kate. Three years after, just before the birth of the second child, Ida, Mrs. McKinley's mother died. This shock was a very dreadful one to Mrs. McKinley, and the baby, Ida, died in infancy.

The first child, Kate, died six months afterward, and from this dates the invalidism from which Mrs. McKinley has never recovered.

Though she regretted her husband's entrance into the political arena she laid aside her wishes and with faith in his ultimate great success added him in every way. In Washington, during his long service as a congressman, her life was uneventful, but though her health and disposition tended toward the retiring, when Mr. McKinley became president, she bravely took part in all the functions in which the first lady of the land is expected to participate. This devotion the president touchingly rewarded by steadfastly refusing all invitations which his invalid wife could not also accept. The only concession she demanded was that at state dinners she should sit next her husband instead of opposite him at the table, and many stories are told of the tender solicitude which Mr. McKinley displayed for her when she became faint or depressed during the function.

After the crushing blow which came to her when the assassin's bullet struck down her husband, friends despaired of her life for a month or more. She rallied, however, and for several years enjoyed better health than usual. She would not consent to leave her Canton home.

Bereft of children early in her married life, Mrs. McKinley showed her intense affection for children until the end. It was a common thing for her to stop her carriage when driving along the street and call to her some child and kiss it.

The McKinley estate which was left by the president was appraised at $215,000 when the inventory was made. It has increased in value since that time. By the terms of the will of Mr. McKinley the estate at the death of Mrs. McKinley was to be divided equally among his brother, Abner McKinley, now deceased, and his sisters, Mrs. Duncan and Miss Helen McKinley of Cleveland.

Do You Like Honest, Square Dealing?

Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines are put out under the belief that publicity is the best possible guaranty of merit, and that the most intelligent people generally want to know what they take into their stomachs, whether it be as food, drink or medicine. Although it was a bold step to take, and quite out of the usual practice of makers of proprietary medicines, yet Dr. Pierce, some time ago, decided to publish broadcast and on all his bottle-wrappers all the ingredients entering into the composition, or make-up, of his celebrated family medicines. A square deal is therefore assured every one using his medicines, for one knows exactly what he or she is paying for when purchasing them, since every ingredient is published in plain English on the bottle-wrappers and the correctness of the same attested under solemn oath. These several ingredients are selected from among the very best known to medical science for the cure of the various diseases for which these medicines are recommended.

The most eminent and leading medical teachers and writers of all the several schools of practice have endorsed each of the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines in the strongest possible terms. The makers of Dr. Pierce's medicines believe that intelligent people do not wish to open their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulp down whatever is presented to them, either in the way of food, drink or medicine, without knowing something of the properties and harmless character of the agents employed. They believe that health is too sacred a heritage to be experimented with, and that people should not take medicines of the composition of which they are kept in ignorance. Dr. Pierce's medicines are made wholly from the roots of plants found growing in the depths of our American forests. They are so compounded that they cannot do harm in any case, even to the most delicate woman or child. By open publicity Dr. Pierce has taken his medicines out of the list of secret nostrums, of doubtful merit, and made them REMEDIES OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. They are therefore, in a class all by themselves, being absolutely and in every sense non-secret.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

There is a badge of honesty on every bottle of Dr. Pierce's medicines in the full list of its ingredients duly attested as correct under solemn oath.

No other medicines put up for general use through druggists can make claim to any such distinction, and none other than Dr. Pierce's medicines have any such professional endorsement of their ingredients. Such professional endorsement should have far more weight with the afflicted than any amount of lay, or non-professional, endorsement, or testimonials.

Of course, the exact proportion of each ingredient used in Dr. Pierce's medicines as well as the working formula or manner of preparing the same, and the specially devised apparatus and appliances employed in their manufacture, are withheld from publicity that Dr. Pierce's proprietary rights may be fully protected from such unprincipled imitators as might be piratically inclined.

The preparation of these medicines without the use of a drop of alcohol, so generally employed and yet so harmful, in the long run, to most invalids when its use is long continued, even in small doses, cost Dr. Pierce several years of careful study and labor, with the aid of skilled pharmacists and chemists to assist him. Naturally, he does not care to give away his scientific and exact processes for preparing these medicines, but he does want to deal in the most open manner with all his patrons and patients, and under this frank, open and honest way of dealing, they may know exactly what they are taking when using his medicines.

What Do They Cure? This question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative and healing way upon all the mucous lining surfaces as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous diarrhea), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections, it is often successful in effecting cures.

The "Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of one class of diseases only—those peculiar weaknesses, derangements and irregularities Incident to women. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine. For weak, worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Doctor Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A little group of men stood uncovered in Woodlawn cemetery, New York, Sunday afternoon, while a bugler sounded "taps" and wreaths were placed on six mounds of earth beneath which are buried the bodies of Commander George W. De Long, U. S. N., and five of his comrades, who lost their lives in the Jeannette exploring expedition in the Arctic.

R. L. Brown, a prominent business man of Charlton, Iowa, after partaking of a hearty breakfast Sunday morning, went to his room and put a bullet through his brain. It is rumored that a sudden financial worry caused him to take his life.

The great machinery supply and hardware house of Fogarty & Dickinson, at San Louis Potosi, one of the largest dealers in Northern Mexico, was completely destroyed by fire Sunday, causing a loss of about $500,000, much of which is covered by insurance.

Beneath leaden skies from which fell a misty rain, 15,000 armed men knelt in the sodden grass of the parade ground at the Brooklyn navy yard Sunday, participating in the fifth military field mass in memory of the soldiers and sailors who lost their lives in the war with Spain.

Just before the close of a great memorial meeting in Memorial hall at Columbus, Ohio, Sunday afternoon, the news of the death of Mrs. McKinley at Canton was received and was announced from the stage. The vast audience was deeply moved, and at the request of the presiding officer, united in singing "Nearer, My God to Thee."

S.S.S. REMOVES BLOOD HUMORS

When the blood is pure and healthy the skin will be soft, smooth and free from eruptions, but when the blood becomes infected with some unhealthy humor the effect is shown by rashes, eruptions, boils and pimples, or other disfiguring and annoying skin disease. The skin is provided with countless pores and glands which act as a drainage system to rid the body of impurities through the perspiration that is constantly passing through these little tubes. There are other glands that pour out on the skin an oily substance to keep it soft and pliable. When the blood becomes filled with humors and acids these are thrown off through the pores and glands, burning and irritating the skin and drying up the natural oils so that we have not only Acne, Eczema, Salt Rheum, etc., but such dry, scaly skin affections as Tetter, Psoriasis, and kindred troubles. The treatment of skin troubles with salves, washes, lotions, etc. is not along the right line. True, such treatment relieves some of the itching and discomfort and aids in keeping the skin clear, but it does not reach the real cause of the trouble, which are humors in the blood, and it can therefore have no real curative effect on these skin affections. S. S. S., a gentle acting and perfect blood purifier, is the best and quickest treatment. It goes down into the blood and removes the humors, fiery acids and poisons from the circulation, cools the overheated blood, and by sending a fresh stream of nourishing blood to the skin permanently cures skin diseases of every character. S. S. S. is made entirely of health producing roots, herbs and barks, and is an absolutely safe remedy for young or old. S. S. S. cures Eczema, Acne, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Psoriasis, and all other disagreeable and unsightly eruptions of the skin. Special book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice desired furnished free to all who write. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

WILL ERECT TWO TANKS

Tanks Will Have a Total Capacity of 360,000 Gallons.

The board of water and light commissioners has decided to erect two large wooden tanks, each with a capacity of 180,000 gallons, or a two-days' water supply, for the hillside, or middle system, instead of the projected reservoir.

This action was taken by the board as the result of recommendations by the manager, after a thorough investigation had been made of the feasibility and the advisability of the construction of a reservoir at this time.

The investigation showed that there is no place on the hillside, east of Twenty-sixth avenue west, at the right elevation, but where a great deal of rock excavation would be necessary, and the lower sides of the embankment would have to be very high. Two probable reservoir sites were selected, and estimates were made of the cost of construction. It was found that the cost of a reservoir on one location would be about $50,000, and on the other it would be $75,000. The board decided that after the cost of the reservoir were paid for out of the funds that will be available for the hillside system, there would be little money left for the laying of pipes. For that reason it was thought impracticable to build a reservoir at this time.

After obtaining the estimates of the reservoir construction the manager of the water and light department investigated the proposition of erecting large wooden tanks, the principle worked out being the same as that employed for the water supply in the normal and the Hunter's Park systems. It is estimated that the cost of the tanks will not exceed $4,000, a small expense as compared with the reservoir construction. It is figured that the tanks will be sufficient to keep up the water supply for some years to come and, when the city is better able to construct a reservoir, they can be torn down or put to some other use.

The board decided to locate the tanks on the southwest corner of block 198, at Fourteenth street, between Third and Fourth avenues east. The city owns the east half of the block, and the board will recommend to the council that it acquire the west half of the block. The east half of the block was one of the properties turned over to the city when the old water plant was purchased. It is said that the location was evidently selected by the company's engineer, years ago, for the purpose for which it is now intended. The new tanks will have an elevation of 525 feet above the lake level, and will give ample water pressure for teh entire district that it is to supply.

The board considered the resolution of the council that it investigate the matter of replacing the six inch water main on Garfield avenue with a twelve inch main, and get an estimate of the cost. The matter was brought up in the council by the report that, by reason of the small main, there was not sufficient water pressure when the Madison school burned down a few days ago. About three years ago the six inch main was replaced with a twelve inch main from Michigan street to a point near the gas plant. This left about 4,500 feet of the six inch main to the lumber yeard at the foot of the avenue. It is estimated that the cost of replacing this 4,500 feet of main with twelve inch main will be about $12,000. The board investigated the advisibility of the proposed work and found that at the present time the income from water consumers on Garfield avenue is less than $700 per year. It is claimed that there are other portions of the city where mains are being demanded and where the income from consumers would far exceed the total income paid on Garfield avenue, that it would hardly seem the right thing to spend $12,000 in replacing the Garfield avenue main for the benefit of one school building, when there are so many other portions of the city that should have new mains because of the demand by consumers.

In the matter of the council resolution referrink to some plan whereby the use of the fire hydrants for any other use can be prevented, the board considered two plans submitted by the manager.

One of the plans was to have a crane post such as in use by railroads, where the street sprinklers could obtain their water supply. The second plan was to have small iron boxes set in the ground just inside the curb, in a concrete bed, a rod being provided to operate the valves, and the street sprinkling contractors to carry the keys to the boxes. The latter plan is said to be by far the cheapest and the best. The boxes are estimated to cost about $37.50 each, whene the crane posts would cost about $50.

The board of public works would require ninety of these boxes, for sprinkling purposes, at an aggregate cost of $3,375.

The board instructed the manager to communicate with the council regarding the two plans submitted.

A. E. Carlson has been awarded the contract for hauling the water and gas mains on nine extensions, his bid being $171.44. The Duluth Van & Storage company bid $196.69 for the same work.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have immediate assistance.

How many women do you know who are perfectly well and strong?

The cause may be easily traced to some feminine derangement which manifests itself in depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere or do anything, backache, dragging sensations, flatulency, nervousness, and sleeplessness.

These symptoms are but warnings that there is danger ahead, and unless heeded, a life of suffering or a serious operation is the inevitable result. The best remedy for all these symptoms is

STARTLING DISCOVERY

Made on Opening Trunk Left in New York Rooming House.

Decomposed Body of Greek Priest Found Strapped Therein.

New York, May 27.—Rev. Father Kasper of the Armenian Apostolic church of Hoboken, N. J., was murdered in this city some time last week. The body was found yesterday in a trunk which had been left as security for their rent by two Greeks, who three weeks ago engaded a furnished room of Mrs. Henry Sherer, who occupies the third floor of a tenement at 333 West Thirty-seventh street.

New York, May 27.—Three weeks ago Mrs. Annie Sherer rented one of her six rooms in a tenement at 333 West Thirty-seventh street, to two unknown men. When last Wednesday the rent was not forthcoming her lodgers, both Greeks, told her that she was amply secured by their well filled trunk. The following morning the men disappeared and yesterday the trunk was broken open. To the horror of Mrs. Sherer, it was found to contain the badly decomposed body of a man, believed to have been a priest of the Greek church.

The body was in a kneeling posture with the head bound against the knees by a heavy strap that passed over the back of the neck and was buckled under the shins. The murdered man must have been about 60 years of age.

A flowing beard twelve inches long was streaked with gray, but the long and bushy hair was black. An undershirt of balbriggan and a cuff on the right wrist were all the body wore, but on top of it had been thrown three coats of a clerical cut, a white laundered shirt, two pairs of black lace shoes, and soft felt hat, two Roman collars and a detached cuff.

The police think it possible that the body was shipped here by express from Chicago and the authorities of that city have been asked to follow a clue, based on a meal ticket also found in the trunk. This ticket was issued by a restaurant at 1222 Halsted street, West Pullman, Chicago. Because of the condition of the body the manner of death was not immediately apparent. Following an autopsy at the morgue, two men were arrested on suspicion.

Mrs. Sherer told the coroner that when the two men engaged the room in her home they described themselves as John and Paul Sarkis, each about 35 years of age. The men had been visited, she said, by a man wearing a clerical garb, who looked not unlike the murdered man. She thought this man called at 8 o'clock last Wednesday morning.

Late Wednesday afternoon, an express wagon brought to the house the trunk, which later was found to contain the body. That night, Mrs. Sherer asked her roomers for the rent due. They pointed to the trunk and said it would be found to contain ample security for what they owed. Later the men said that the trunk delivered to them was not theirs and that a mistake had been made. It remained in the house, however, and was there the next morning, though the roomers had left before Mrs. Sherer was up. She did not see them again. The next day, unpleasant odors were detected coming from the room the strangers had occupied, and Mrs. Sherer appealed to the police and the trunk was forced open.

The autopsy developed that the neck had been broken as had one arm. Coroners Physician declared, however, that death was due to suffocation. The internal organs were congested and Dr. Lahane gave it as his opinion that the man was thrust into the trunk while alive, and the cover of the trunk held down until death ensued. The condition of the organs was found to be similar to those in cases of asphyxiation.

On the left wrist the date 1894 was tattooed with little stars and on the right wrist was a wreath with a cross. There were two little tattoo circles on the back of the right hand, each about the size of a dime.

Wonderful Eczema Cure.

"Our little boy had eczema for five years" writes N. A. Adams, Henrietta, Pa. "Five of our home doctors said the case was hopeless, his lungs being affected. We then employed other doctors, but no benefit resulted. By chance we read about Eclectric Bitters; bought a bottle and soon noticed improvement. We continued this medicine until several bottles were used, when our boy was completely cured." Best of all blood medicines and body building health tonics. Guaranteed at all drug stores. 50c.

SPLENDID EXAMPLE

Of Working of "Cash Basis" System in City Affairs.

Situation Would Result in Big Debt Under Old Charter.

The "cash basis" system on which Duluth has been running since the adoption of the present charter and its extreme effectiveness in keeping the city from running up a big floating debt such as was incurred prior to 1898 and necessitated the issuance of $560,000 bonds in 1899, was never better illustrated than it is today.

The present improvement fund, as shown by a report of the finance committee last Monday night is empty. There will in fact be a difficulty in clearing it of debt when the time for the "June settlement" arrives.

On the other hand there are some much needed improvements which keep being brought to the notice of the council aggregating many thousands of dollars. They are improvements which might almost be regarded as necessities and which, were the council permitted to let contracts without having the wherewithall in the fund to pay for them, would doubtless have been ordered.

The result would be practically what was experienced in 1898 when several suits were commenced against the city, and floating indebtedness of $514,735.50 was outstanding, drawing interest at the rate of 6 and 6½ per cent.

Under present conditions, however, the council is forced to make only the more necessary of the improvements, and the city is managing to get along without the others very well.

Some of the improvements which have been considered by the council and rejected because of lack of funds are: Resurfacing London road, $7,750; resurfacing Mesaba avenue, $6,750; resurfacing Grand avenue west, $9,350; a $10,000 appropriation for the Point of Rocks; bridge over Lester river on London road, $10,000; fire hall for Sixth street district, $7,000; fire hall for Lakeside, $7,000; Hunter's Park fire hall, $5,000; Jenswold street bridge, $9,500; additional stories on city hall, $25,000; repairing badly decayed wooden bridges throughout the city, $75,000.

As will be seen, most of these improvements, were there sufficient funds on hand, would be considered absolutely imperative. Were the council permitted to authorize the letting of contracts without first having sufficient funds in reserve to pay for them, the pressure in favor of these improvements would doubtless be so strong as to cause them to be ordered, and the result would be a big floating debt at high interest as before.

The reason for this shortage of funds for seemingly imperative improvements is the unwillingness of the conference committee to make an assessment which will raise the tax rate of the city. Each mill of tax rate means about $30,000 or $32,000 in taxes so that an increase of $50,000 for instance would mean a boost of 1½ mills in the rate.

The sum of $50,000 would have helped very materially in carrying out the more important of the above list of much needed and unassessable improvements, but the conference committee decided that the raise in the tax rate was not necessary.

AUTO SMASHED BY AN ENGINE

Los Angeles, May 27.—As a result of a collision between a heavy touring car and the engine of the Santa Fe limited just before 7 o'clock Saturday evening, Walter Foster of Minneapolis, a guest of the Alexandria, is dead; Miss Genevieve Hart, his companion on the ride, is unconscious and seriously injured, and Carl Weld, the chauffeur, is in a Pasadena hospital with a broken arm and other severe injuries. The accident occurred at Lamanda park, four miles east of Pasadena. Foster and his companion had visited Monrovia and reached the Santa Fe crossing. The approaching train was invisible to the chauffeur because of intervening trees and houses. When almost on the track Weld saw the train and apparently became confused. He turned the automobile almost directly toward the engine, which was running about forty miles an hour. As the machine was struck, all occupants were thrown out and the automobile was ground to fragments. The three victims were taken to a Pasadena hospital, where Foster died shortly after midnight. Foster arrived in this city two days ago, and little can be learned of his connections. The young woman is a resident of Los Angeles.

SHORT TORONTO ROUTE BY CANADIAN NORTHERN.

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., May 27.—D. D. Mann of the firm of Mackenzie & Mann, is authority for the statement that the Canadian Northern railroad will be completed as far north as Sudbury by September, thus opening a new and shorter route through to Toronto. The operations are well under way at the present time. In fact, only fifty miles of track remain to be laid, this stretch lying about half way from Parry sound.

The ballasting and grading work has been pretty well completed in some sections, and will be through in time for the opening of the line at the time set. The branch from Sudbury to the Moose iron mines, in Hutton township, will be ready at the same time. In fact, the tracks on this line will be completed this week, and all that will remain to be done will be some additional ballasting. The line to Key inlet to connect with steamship service on the Great Lakes will also be put into active operation this summer.

WILL ERECT TWO TANKS

Tanks Will Have a Total Capacity of 360,000 Gallons.

The board of water and light commissioners has decided to erect two large wooden tanks, each with a capacity of 180,000 gallons, or a two-days' water supply, for the hillside, or middle system, instead of the projected reservoir.

This action was taken by the board as the result of recommendations by the manager, after a thorough investigation had been made of the feasibility and the advisability of the construction of a reservoir at this time.

The investigation showed that there is no place on the hillside, east of Twenty-sixth avenue west, at the right elevation, but where a great deal of rock excavation would be necessary, and the lower sides of the embankment would have to be very high. Two probable reservoir sites were selected, and estimates were made of the cost of construction. It was found that the cost of a reservoir on one location would be about $50,000, and on the other it would be $75,000. The board decided that after the cost of the reservoir were paid for out of the funds that will be available for the hillside system, there would be little money left for the laying of pipes. For that reason it was thought impracticable to build a reservoir at this time.

After obtaining the estimates of the reservoir construction the manager of the water and light department investigated the proposition of erecting large wooden tanks, the principle worked out being the same as that employed for the water supply in the normal and the Hunter's Park systems. It is estimated that the cost of the tanks will not exceed $4,000, a small expense as compared with the reservoir construction. It is figured that the tanks will be sufficient to keep up the water supply for some years to come and, when the city is better able to construct a reservoir, they can be torn down or put to some other use.

The board decided to locate the tanks on the southwest corner of block 198, at Fourteenth street, between Third and Fourth avenues east. The city owns the east half of the block, and the board will recommend to the council that it acquire the west half of the block. The east half of the block was one of the properties turned over to the city when the old water plant was purchased. It is said that the location was evidently selected by the company's engineer, years ago, for the purpose for which it is now intended. The new tanks will have an elevation of 525 feet above the lake level, and will give ample water pressure for teh entire district that it is to supply.

The board considered the resolution of the council that it investigate the matter of replacing the six inch water main on Garfield avenue with a twelve inch main, and get an estimate of the cost. The matter was brought up in the council by the report that, by reason of the small main, there was not sufficient water pressure when the Madison school burned down a few days ago. About three years ago the six inch main was replaced with a twelve inch main from Michigan street to a point near the gas plant. This left about 4,500 feet of the six inch main to the lumber yeard at the foot of the avenue. It is estimated that the cost of replacing this 4,500 feet of main with twelve inch main will be about $12,000. The board investigated the advisibility of the proposed work and found that at the present time the income from water consumers on Garfield avenue is less than $700 per year. It is claimed that there are other portions of the city where mains are being demanded and where the income from consumers would far exceed the total income paid on Garfield avenue, that it would hardly seem the right thing to spend $12,000 in replacing the Garfield avenue main for the benefit of one school building, when there are so many other portions of the city that should have new mains because of the demand by consumers.

In the matter of the council resolution referring to some plan whereby the use of the fire hydrants for any other use can be prevented, the board considered two plans submitted by the manager.

One of the plans was to have a crane post such as in use by railroads, where the street sprinklers could obtain their water supply. The second plan was to have small iron boxes set in the ground just inside the curb, in a concrete bed, a rod being provided to operate the valves, and the street sprinkling contractors to carry the keys to the boxes. The latter plan is said to be by far the cheapest and the best. The boxes are estimated to cost about $37.50 each, where the crane posts would cost about $50.

The board of public works would require ninety of these boxes, for sprinkling purposes, at an aggregate cost of $3,375.

The board instructed the manager to communicate with the council regarding the two plans submitted.

A. E. Carlson has been awarded the contract for hauling the water and gas mains on nine extensions, his bid being $171.44. The Duluth Van & Storage company bid $196.69 for the same work.

WOMEN SUFFER

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have immediate assistance.

How many women do you know who are perfectly well and strong?

The cause may be easily traced to some feminine derangement which manifests itself in depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere or do anything, backache, dragging sensations, flatulency, nervousness, and sleeplessness.

These symptoms are but warnings that there is danger ahead, and unless heeded, a life of suffering or a serious operation is the inevitable result. The best remedy for all these symptoms is made from native roots and herbs. No other medicine in the country has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female ills.

Miss J. F. Walsh, of 328 W. 36th St., New York City, writes:—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been of inestimable value in restoring my health. I suffered from female illness which caused dreadful headaches, dizziness, and dull pains in my back, but your medicine soon brought about a change in my general condition, built me up and made me perfectly well."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures Female Complaints, such as Backache, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and organic diseases. It is invaluable in preparing for child-birth and during the Change of Life. It cures Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility, and invigorates the whole system.

STARTLING DISCOVERY

New York, May 27.—Rev. Father Kasper of the Armenian Apostolic church of Hoboken, N. J., was murdered in this city some time last week. The body was found yesterday in a trunk which had been left as security for their rent by two Greeks, who three weeks ago engaded a furnished room of Mrs. Henry Sherer, who occupies the third floor of a tenement at 333 West Thirty-seventh street.

New York, May 27.—Three weeks ago Mrs. Annie Sherer rented one of her six rooms in a tenement at 333 West Thirty-seventh street, to two unknown men. When last Wednesday the rent was not forthcoming her lodgers, both Greeks, told her that she was amply secured by their well filled trunk. The following morning the men disappeared and yesterday the trunk was broken open. To the horror of Mrs. Sherer, it was found to contain the badly decomposed body of a man, believed to have been a priest of the Greek church.

The body was in a kneeling posture with the head bound against the knees by a heavy strap that passed over the back of the neck and was buckled under the shins. The murdered man must have been about 60 years of age.

A flowing beard twelve inches long was streaked with gray, but the long and bushy hair was black. An undershirt of balbriggan and a cuff on the right wrist were all the body wore, but on top of it had been thrown three coats of a clerical cut, a white laundered shirt, two pairs of black lace shoes, and soft felt hat, two Roman collars and a detached cuff.

The police think it possible that the body was shipped here by express from Chicago and the authorities of that city have been asked to follow a clue, based on a meal ticket also found in the trunk. This ticket was issued by a restaurant at 1222 Halsted street, West Pullman, Chicago. Because of the condition of the body the manner of death was not immediately apparent. Following an autopsy at the morgue, two men were arrested on suspicion.

Mrs. Sherer told the coroner that when the two men engaged the room in her home they described themselves as John and Paul Sarkis, each about 35 years of age. The men had been visited, she said, by a man wearing a clerical garb, who looked not unlike the murdered man. She thought this man called at 8 o'clock last Wednesday morning.

Late Wednesday afternoon, an express wagon brought to the house the trunk, which later was found to contain the body. That night, Mrs. Sherer asked her roomers for the rent due. They pointed to the trunk and said it would be found to contain ample security for what they owed. Later the men said that the trunk delivered to them was not theirs and that a mistake had been made. It remained in the house, however, and was there the next morning, though the roomers had left before Mrs. Sherer was up. She did not see them again. The next day, unpleasant odors were detected coming from the room the strangers had occupied, and Mrs. Sherer appealed to the police and the trunk was forced open.

The autopsy developed that the neck had been broken as had one arm. Coroners Physician declared, however, that death was due to suffocation. The internal organs were congested and Dr. Lahane gave it as his opinion that the man was thrust into the trunk while alive, and the cover of the trunk held down until death ensued. The condition of the organs was found to be similar to those in cases of asphyxiation.

On the left wrist the date 1894 was tattooed with little stars and on the right wrist was a wreath with a cross. There were two little tattoo circles on the back of the right hand, each about the size of a dime.

Wonderful Eczema Cure.

"Our little boy had eczema for five years" writes N. A. Adams, Henrietta, Pa. "Two of our home doctors said the case was hopeless, his lungs being affected. We then employed other doctors, but no benefit resulted. By chance we read about Eclectric Bitters; bought a bottle and soon noticed improvement. We continued this medicine until several bottles were used, when our boy was completely cured." Best of all blood medicines and body building health tonics. Guaranteed at all drug stores. 50c.

SPLENDID EXAMPLE

Of Working of "Cash Basis" System in City Affairs.

Situation Would Result in Big Debt Under Old Charter.

The "cash basis" system on which Duluth has been running since the adoption of the present charter and its extreme effectiveness in keeping the city from running up a big floating debt such as was incurred prior to 1898 and necessitated the issuance of $500,000 bonds in 1899, was never better illustrated than it is today.

The present improvement fund, as shown by a report of the finance committee last Monday night is empty. There will in fact be a difficulty in clearing it of debt when the time for the "June settlement" arrives.

On the other hand there are some much needed improvements which keep being brought to the notice of the council aggregating many thousands of dollars. They are improvements which might almost be regarded as necessities and which, were the council permitted to let contracts without having the wherewithall in the fund to pay for them, would doubtless have been ordered.

The result would be practically what was experienced in 1898 when several suits were commenced against the city, and floating indebtedness of $514,735.50 was outstanding, drawing interest at the rate of 6 and 6½ per cent.

Under present conditions, however, the council is forced to make only the more necessary of the improvements, and the city is managing to get along without the others very well.

Some of the improvements which have been considered by the council and rejected because of lack of funds are: Resurfacing London road, $7,750; resurfacing Mesaba avenue, $6,750; resurfacing Grand avenue west, $9,350; a $10,000 appropriation for the Point of Rocks; bridge over Lester river on London road, $10,000; fire hall for Sixth street district, $7,000; fire hall for Lakeside, $7,000; Hunter's Park fire hall, $5,000; Jenswold street bridge, $9,500; additional stories on city hall, $25,000; repairing badly decayed wooden bridges throughout the city, $75,000.

As will be seen, most of these improvements, were there sufficient funds on hand, would be considered absolutely imperative. Were the council permitted to authorize the letting of contracts without first having sufficient funds in reserve to pay for them, the pressure in favor of these improvements would doubtless be so strong as to cause them to be ordered, and the result would be a big floating debt at high interest as before.

The reason for this shortage of funds for seemingly imperative improvements is the unwillingness of the conference committee to make an assessment which will raise the tax rate of the city. Each mill of tax rate means about $30,000 or $32,000 in taxes so that an increase of $50,000 for instance would mean a boost of 1½ mills in the rate.

The sum of $50,000 would have helped very materially in carrying out the more important of the above list of much needed and unassessable improvements, but the conference committee decided that the raise in the tax rate was not necessary.

AUTO SMASHED BY AN ENGINE

Los Angeles, May 27.—As a result of a collision between a heavy touring car and the engine of the Santa Fe limited just before 7 o'clock Saturday evening, Walter Foster of Minneapolis, a guest of the Alexandria, is dead; Miss Genevieve Hart, his companion on the ride, is unconscious and seriously injured, and Carl Wold, the chauffeur, is in a Pasadena hospital with a broken arm and other severe injuries. The accident occurred at Lamanda park, four miles east of Pasadena. Foster and his companion had visited Monrovia and reached the Santa Fe crossing. The approaching train was invisible to the chauffeur because of intervening trees and houses. When almost on the track Wold saw the train and apparently became confused. He turned the automobile almost directly toward the engine, which was running about forty miles an hour. As the machine was struck, all occupants were thrown out and the automobile was ground to fragments. The three victims were taken to a Pasadena hospital, where Foster died shortly after midnight. Foster arrived in this city two days ago, and little can be learned of his connections. The young woman is a resident of Los Angeles.

SHORT TORONTO ROUTE BY CANADIAN NORTHERN.

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., May 27.—D. D. Mann of the firm of Mackenzie & Mann, is authority for the statement that the Canadian Northern railroad will be completed as far north as Sudbury by September, thus opening a new and shorter route through to Toronto. The operations are well under way at the present time. In fact, only fifty miles of track remain to be laid, this stretch lying about half way from Parry sound.

The ballasting and grading work has been pretty well completed in some sections, and will be through in time for the opening of the line at the time set. The branch from Sudbury to the Moose iron mines, in Hutton township, will be ready at the same time. In fact, the tracks on this line will be completed this week, and all that will remain to be done will be some additional ballasting. The line to Key inlet to connect with steamship service on the Great Lakes will also be put into active operation this summer.

YOUNG MAN TAKES LIFE

No Apparent Reason is Discovered for His Action.

Benson, Minn., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cashier Bert Stone of the Swift County bank made a horrible discovery when he entered the back room of the bank Saturday. Lying on the floor he saw the dead body of Thomas Penn, the bank stenographer. Near by lay a 32-caliber revolver. A bullet hole in the right temple told the story of suicide. The leaden missile had passed through the brain and could be felt under the skin on the left side.

Penn was a young musician of fine ability and a church member. His habits were good and no cause is known for his dead. The coroner searched his letters to find the address of a relative, but without success. It is thought his father works for the Putnam Stove company of Minneapolis and lives somewhere on Lake street.

BEMIDJI DESIRES STATE ELK MEET

Delegation to Stillwater to Work Hard for the Prize.

Bemidji, Minn., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bemidji lodge No. 1052 B. P. O. E. will attend in force the state convention of Minnesota Elks, which will be held at Stillwater Aug. 5, and an effort will be made to secure the 1908 annual convention of the order for Bemidji. To this end every effort will be put forth by the Bemidji Elks and their friends, and it is confidently believed that the meet can be secured for this city.

Bemidji lodge has elected as delegates to the state convention Exalted Ruler Charles L. Decker, F. S. Lycan, A. H. Jester, J. C. Covington, John C.

CHARLES L. DECKER,
Exalted Ruler of Bemidji Lodge of Elks, Who Has Been Elected a Life Member of the Lodge.

Parker and E. H. Ives. These gentlemen are all hustlers, and backed by a substantial delegation of Elks and their friends of this city, will make a strong showing before the Stillwater gathering.

The Bemidji Elks have about decided that they must have a home. It is planned to erect a combination building, with an opera house on the ground floor and club and lodge rooms on the second floor. Preliminary plans are to the effect that the building will cost $75,000.

The members of the Bemidji lodge have paid a graceful compliment to Charles L. Decker, exalted ruler of the lodge, for his services in organizing the lodge and assisting in making it what it is. During the meeting on the evening of March 7, without a dissenting vote, the lodge voted him a life membership.

WISCONSIN

FALLS OFF, IS KILLED

Tragic Death of William Johnson Near City of Ashland.

Life Crushed Out by Wheels of His Wagon.

Ashland, Wis., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Death came in a sudden and tragic manner on the streets of Ashland to William Johnson, a farm hand in the employ of John Hedman, who was killed on the Bessar avenue road as he was returning from the city. Johnson had driven to the city for a load of feed and lime, and was sitting on the sacks, which were piled high in the wagon. Just after passing the Andrus farm residence, one wheel dropped into a rut, throwing him off, the hind wheel passing over his head, crushing the skull, and killing him instantly. The team ran about 600 feet when the lines became entangled in the wheel, running the team into the fence. The only witness to the accident was a boy by the name of Bloom. Undertaker Hoppenayn took charge of the body, and the funeral was held from the undertaking rooms at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Mr. Hedman has never been able to learn of the existence of any relatives of the deceased. He was a single man, aged about 50 years.

THEY VIOLATED FISHING LAWS

Spooner, Wis., May 27.—Game Warden J. G. Stone arrested David Edwards and A. O'Connor on the charge of catching trout less than six inches long and they were arraigned before Judge Ryan of Shell Lake. In all, the men had eight trout, and with very few exceptions they were under six inches, in fact they were catching trout minnows too small to spawn, which is directly against the first laws. The men pleaded guilty, and Judge Ryan imposed a fine of $10 and costs in each case, making $14.50 each had to pay.

JAM SAVES LOGS.

Loss by Haywood Dam Break is Less Than Expected.

Hayward, Wis., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The loss of logs resulting from the dam going out here was not as large as was at first feared. After the city bridge at the city water plant collapsed, the logs immediately jammed beneath it. No sooner had the jam formed than a number of cables were extended across the river, thus saving about 15,000,000 feet of logs. About 3,500,000 feet went out with the dam and jammed three miles below. They will be driven down to Stimett, loaded in cars and brought back here. The mill, which was damaged by high water, will need little repair.

Eagle River, Wis., May 27.—Peter Corn, an Indian residing in the town of Flambeau, has been arrested for a murder committed nine years ago. Henry Taresh, a white man, formerly of Crystal Falls, Mich., was supposed to have been murdered nine years ago this month, but his body was not found until a few days ago, when District Attorney O'Connor, accompanied by Sheriff Murphy, who has been working on the case some time, found it buried at a depth of two feet in a swamp near Lac du Flambeau.

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Marinette—Parties have purchased a section of timber land in Central Marinette county and are preparing to clear the land as fast as possible with the expectation of making sheep grazing land. Much land in the state is suited well for this purpose, and as sheep do well naturally this kind of farming will no doubt be more common soon.

La Crosse—G. A. Hundredmark, who owns a farm a mile south of Caledonia, is under the impression that a copper mine exists on his place. On different occasions he has found pieces of copper in the crops of chickens raised on his place, and recently he removed a large piece from a chicken which he killed for his own use.

UPPER MICHIGAN

LOG DRIVING IS SUCCESS

Conditions Are Very Favorable for Upper Michigan Lumbermen.

Backward Season Has Kept Rivers Running Bank Full.

Marquette, Mich., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lumbermen of Upper Michigan have no complaint to offer against weather conditions as affecting their business of log driving. The circumstances under which the work is being prosecuted are said to be all that could be expected.

Because of the unusually heavy snows in the woods, and the backward season which prevented a sudden thaw, the rivers have at least been bankfull, and have maintained this condition, the task of getting the timber down to the mills thus aided materially.

The big log drive on the Menominee and its tributaries has made excellent progress, as has the smaller drive on the Ontonagon river and its branches, most all the timber banked on these latter waters, in fact, having already been boomed near the Lake Superior shore, and in much shorter time than usual.

On the Escanaba river, the drive of the Stephenson Lumber company was completed this week. It contained 7,000,000 feet of timber, much of which had been held up for a year because of the low stage of the water last spring.

FISHERMAN HOOKS HUMAN BODY

Pulls Corpse of Missing Man to Surface and Secures Reward.

Sandstone, Minn., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of H. G. Westman, who was drowned in the Kettle river at this place April 9, was found Sunday by John Bodeen, one mile below, while trolling for fish.

The hook became fastened in the dead man's clothing and the body was brought to the surface. Bodeen will get the reward of $150 offered for the recovery of the body.

MOTHER'S RASH ACT.

HIS WEAPON EXPLODES.

Farmer Living Near St. Peter Has Very Close Call.

St. Peter, Minn., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Lauder, a farmer living near here, came near losing his life while trying to kill a dog with a shotgun. Without the farmer's knowledge, one of his sons charged the weapon with three drams of giant powder and a handful of buckshot. When the gun was discharged it exploded. The barrel was shattered into a thousand pieces, several of which struck Mr. Lauder in the forehead. They inflicted a number of bad but not dangerous wounds.

CASS LAKE WEDDING.

John Culhane and Miss Mae McKinnon Are Married.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Mae McKinnon and John Culhane were united in marriage at 8 o'clock Saturday evening at St. Michael's hospital, Rev. Mr. Buechler officiating.

Both have resided in Cass Lake for a number of years. Mr. Culhane has held the position of foreman of the roundhouse here for the past four years, while Miss McKinnon has had the management of the local telephone service for some time. The young couple left Sunday on an extended wedding trip.

SETTLERS MAY FORM A LUMBER COMPANY.

Northome, Minn., May 27.—An agitation is on for the formation by the settlers owning timber lands near Bergville, six miles south of here, of a stock company to engage in the manufacture of lumber, by which, it is claimed, they will be able to realize considerable more money from their timber than if sold direct to the lumber concerns.

An effort is being made to have all the settlers in that vicinity become members of the company, which will be incorporated, and after the organization has been perfected outside parties will be induced to put in a sawmill and do the sawing of the timber under contract. It is the intention to get control of sufficient timber to keep the mill in operation for a considerable number of years, and the lumber manufactured will be disposed of to the retail lumber yards.

Accidents will happen, but the best-regulated families keep Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil for such emergencies. It subdues the pain and heals the hurts.

DAKOTAS

RED RIVER CROPS SAFE

Present Season Said to be Best Experienced in Years.

The Farmers in Famous Wheat Valley in Optimistic Mood.

Fargo, May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The pessimists who have been indulging in gloomy predictions about the crop outlook in the Red River valley will have to give away to the optimists for the reports received here daily are that all conditions indicate a very fine yield of grain. It is the consensus of opinion that this is the best crop season the valley has experienced in years. Reports made by travelers who have visited various parts of the valley, indicate that the farmers are in an unusually optimistic mood. C. B. Hull, traveling representative for the Fosston Wind Stacker company, who recently made an automobile trip through Cass and Richland counties reports that seeding through this territory was completed some time ago, and much of the wheat is already up. He visited Wild Rice, Hickson, Abercrombie, Wahpeton and several other places, and everywhere he heard the same reports.

A. E. Landblom, one of the prominent farmers residing in the vicinity of Casselton, is equally optimistic. He reports that the lands all through this county are in fine condition. Although a little late the spring has been just about right for valley lands. The weather was dry during the seeding period so that practically all the land could be utilized for this purpose. Since then just enough moisture has fallen to make the crops grow, so that farms all through this section are in splendid condition.

With the high price of wheat a good crop will bring large returns to the farmers of the valley, and many of them are already beginning to imagine how it feels to have pockets filled to overflowing with coin of the realm.

GRAFTON WOMAN GOES TO AFRICA

On Her Third Trip to Dark Continent as Missionary.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is a long journey that Mrs. M. M. Webster of Grafton, this state, has mapped out for herself. She is here for a short farewell with friends before departing for far away Africa, where she is engaged in missionary work.

She first went to Africa twenty years ago, and this is her third trip. It will take some time to make the journey. She will sail on June 25 and reach her destination, or rather the seaport, Aug. 18. The inland journey of 200 miles takes two weeks. There are no stopping places along the way and the party is obliged to camp out nights and carry their own provisions. Travelers are carried in a kind of hammock contrivance, two men carrying one person. There are six to each hammock and they take regular turns during theday. they take regular turns during the day. sleeping tent, food and baggage. The hammock carriers receive $5 for the trip and the load carriers $4. They are paid in checks—calico checks, cloth being used instead of money in that country. Wild animals are seen along the road; leopards and hyenas, and the hippoptamus is often heard if not seen. Mrs. Webster will be accompanied on the trip by Mr. and Mrs. Currie. Mrs. Webster has accomplished much good in her work among the black children and men and women. It is not the pleasantest thing in the world to be set down in the wilds of a foreign country, thousands of miles away from home and friends, but Mrs. Webster considers this her work and she doesn't shrink from doing her duty.

PREDICTS CAR SHORTAGE.

Crookston Man Takes a Rather Gloomy View of the Outlook.

Crookston, Minn., May 27.—A car shortage greater than that of last fall is predicted by a well known Crookston dealer in fuel and grain. His conclusion is reached as a result of failure to secure cars for shipments he desires to make to this city. A letter from a firm at Warroad tells of the absolute impossibility to secure cars for the shipment of wood, lumber and other goods. The letter states that between Warroad and Indus on the Canadian Northern road there are 7,000 carloads of products of the forest awaiting shipment. Canadian Northern officials state that cars are promised for six months ahead and they will make no further promises.

A dealer who recently visited Blackduck and other towns on th Minnesota & International railway states that, as viewed from the cars, the line looks like a continuous log, wood or lumber yard. Cedar posts, telegraph poles and other products of the forest are piled high awaiting shipment and the owners are very much discouraged.

The matter of building a road across the Muskeg, east of the village, was discussed, and it was agreed that they aid the move as much as possible. The club has a membership of twenty members, and it is expected that it will reach thirty-five at the next meeting.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

"There is no one thing doing more to retard the progress of Christian education in India than the appalling ignorance of America in regard to the work of uplifting humanity which is being carried forward there," said Mrs. Abby Snell Burnell this morning in speaking of the womanhood of India. Mrs. Burnell appeared yesterday at two of the loca churches as "Menarchee," impersonating a high caste Hindu woman. Mrs. Burnell's presentation of the story of Menarchee is of absorbing interest. Dressed in one of the bright, graceful costumes, and speaking in the first person, she weaves together, in form of a continuous story, such facts and conditions as she became familiar with.

As "Menarchee" she tells of her childhood, marriage, and of the shame and disgarce which fell upon her because for a long time she bore her husband no sons; then her great joy on becoming the mother of a boy.

The climax of the story is reached when this boy, grown to manhood, graduates from college and breaks his caste.

The fascinating story is told by Mrs. Burnell with unusual personal and dramatic power. Mrs. Burnell spoke of the life of India womanhood this morning and regretted keenly the almost phenomenal ignorance of Americans. "It is this indifference, ignorant indifference of America that makes the condition of work in India so much more difficult. American women will plan their social teas, their carriages and gowns, the soloists of their church, their seats at the matinee in accordance with their social position, but their contribution toward the uplifting of humanity, a great work that is going on and should be known about will be allowed to pass with a contribution of perhaps a dollar a year. If only the leakages in the American purse could go toward Christian education all over the world a marvelous amount of good could be accomplished in a single year. We would not need to give up our comforts nor the things that go to make our lives richer, but simply the enormous quantities that are spent annually on gum and candy and such things.

"American women do not appreciate the glory of American womanhood. Living in a country where the underlying principles are a universal educational system, a loving respect for womanhood and Christianity, they are utterly unable to realize the conditions that must exist in a country where perpetual widowhood, degradation of womanhood and no girlhood for the Indian woman are the underlying principles and where immorality and religion are combined. There are no more religious people than those of India. Everything they do, eating, bathing, dressing, is a religious ceremony, but the priests of their temples and the foundations of their religion itself are thoroughly immoral. In India there is no sweet and pure wooing and being wooed, no tender conjugal companionship, there is no girlhood, and people familiar with conditions cannot but realize with Kipling that India is rotten to the core. The evil conditions of our own country are only apparent in places. The underlying principles are sure and true."

Mrs. Burnell lived in India, although when in the costume of the Hindoo woman presenting an effective portrayal of character, many think she is a native woman. She has presented her recital nearly 1,000 times during the eight years she has been before the public. She wears a native costume of soft, hard woven silk of wonderful rich purple, shaded with a border of gold thread. With this she wears interesting necklaces and chains and bracelets of Indian silver. Mrs. Burnell will be heard tomorrow evening at the Glen Avon Presbyterian church and later in the week at other meetings which will be announced later. She spoke yesterday morning at Lakeside Presbyterian church and last evening at Pilgrim Congregational church.

PRESENTS PICTURE.

Saturday Club Formally Gives Koehler Picture to Library.

A special business meeting of the Saturday club was held Saturday afternoon at the club rooms of the library at which time the original painting of Robert Koehler's called "The End of the Day's Work," which was purchased by the club last winter for presentation to the library was formally given to the library. The presentation speech was made by Mrs. H. S. Ely, and the picture was accepted by Miss Poirier in behalf of the library board. Robert Koehler, president of the State Art society, was in the city last December with an exhibit of his painting, and the picture presented to the library Saturday was purchased by the club at that time. A frame will be provided and the picture will be on exhibition at the time of the arts and crafts exhibit next month.

Acknowledgment of the $25 subscription given by the Saturday club toward the building fund for the Young Women's Christian association was read.

What Retail Markets Offer.

New potatoes, 50 cents a peck.

Old potatoes, 90 cents a bushel.

Spinach, 50 cents a peck.

Arkansas strawberries, 18 cents a box.

Ham, 25 and 30 cents a lb.

Bacon, 25 and 30 cents a lb.

Jellied tongue, 30 cents a lb.

Frogs' legs, 20 cents a doenz.

Now for picnics!

With such invigorating air urging people on, it is inevitable that thoughts of otherwise sane people will turn toward picnics, that later day invention of torture. Provided that a planked whitefish, or a broiled porter house, or frizzled ham or bacon, over a glowing fire, constitutes the chief reason for the picnic, then there is some reason in it. Then if after the fire has died down somwhat, the moon comes out and does its duty, and there aren't too many people around, the picnic may be a success.

New potatoes are getting cheaper, and spinach remains rather expensive. Dandelion greens, than which there are none nicer, according to some people, are not in the market. There is no trouble in getting children, your own or the neighbors', to dig them for about 1 cent a peck.

JOE'S RETURN

By Frank Hazelwood Rowe.

(Copyright, 1907, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"Joseph, I have decided to get on alone this winter."

There, it was out! The lines became a little more rigid, if anything, and the old woman's rocker increased the cadence of its creaking by ten rocks to the minute, but still she kept her eyes intent upon her work, which, for a knitted stocking, seemed to need an unusual amount of attention.

As for Joseph, the look of astonishment, then consternation, that came over his face was pitiful to see. He brought down his feet from their place of ease, half turned in his chair till he could see his aunt's rigid expression, and exclaimed in a voice in which all the trouble of his face was reproduced:

"Alone! Why, aunt, what's the matter? What have I done? Ain't I 'tended to the wood, and ain't I helped you wash, and ain't I done everything for yer that I could? Be yer sick of seein' me 'round? Why, aunt," his voice broke as his eyes filled, "why, aunt, I didn't know I wasn't a-pleasin' yer."

The cadence of the chair increased yet again (the only outward evidence of the inward disturbance), and Mary waited a moment before answering.

"Tain't you, Joe," she said finally; "it's me. I guess. But I'm yer, Joe. I've been thinkin' it over all summer, and if I am an old woman, I ain't quite laid on the shelf yet, and I ain't a-goin' to be, neither."

As she talked, her feelings overcame her timidity of speech, and now she set forth her views with the force of ten months of pent-up feelings, while poor Joe listened and looked as though the end of the world had come.

"No, sir! I ain't quite bedridden yet," she went on. "Here I've been a-runnin' this house for forty years, and never a day but what I was glad there wa'n't no man botherin' 'round. Who dug the garding and planted it, year in an' year out, before you came? I did. Who threw in the wood an' piled it up in the shed every fall? I did. Who's drawed the water a pail at a time all these years, and who even laid the shingles on the ell an' barn ten years ago? I did. I did, Joe Gerrish, and you know it. Now do you think I'm a-goin' to see my home taken right out of my hands, an' me a-dependin' on somebody else? Well, I ain't."

"But the 'rangement, auntie, the 'rangement," said poor Joe, grasping like a drowning man at the only straw in sight; "you know the 'rangement was that I do the work around and make my home here the rest of my days, and that sometime when you get through, aunt, I was a-goin' to have the place. Wa'n't that the understandin', Aunt Mary?"

"Providin', Joe, providin' that at the end of a year everything was satisfactory. Wa'n't that what I said? Didn't you agree to that, now? Tell me, now, didn't you agree to that?"

"Yes, I agreed to it, aunt, I agreed to it, but I never once 'spected yer wa'n't satisfied with me. I've tried awful hard to please yer, aunt; I've tried awful hard."

Turned out! Joe looked around at the homely, old-fashioned furniture of the kitchen. Around the kitchen his eyes traveled and into the sitting room, and everywhere was to be seen evidences of his handiness with hammer and saw.

Oh but it was hard to be turned out now! Not but that he could continue to do odd jobs and so earn a living from the more pretentious neighbors; his services were always in demand. But the old house had become home to him. To sit down at night and draw off his heavy boots and don his warm, roomy slippers, and after supper, with Dick on his knees or close beside him, think over his thoughts all by himself, was joy enough and to spare. He little realized the inner emotions of his aunt. He little imagined as he sat thus in pleasant and peaceful thought that though outwardly calm, she was saying that he "made her nervous with his sulky ways."

Joe was a silent man; a man of many experiences, most of them bitter, some of them tragic, who could have had much to say of the world had he been given to talk. But years of submission to a shrewish wife, to whom silence was the only succesful opposition, and many more recent experiences when loneliness had been his invariable lot, had taught him, the happy art of making friends with one's self, and with himself he had traveled many a pleasant mental journey.

A year before he had come home from Indiana, a man 62 years old, with nothing but a pair of willing hands and a clean name. His aunt, ill at the time, was nearly twenty years older, and feeling that she had lived alone long enough, had proposed that Joe make his home with her, with the understanding that sometime the house should be his. Thus had the place become home to the old man, and so happy had he been in this haven of refuge, that he failed to see the storm that was rising, and when at last it broke, he felt for the while that his spirit broke as well. So, with only the stars to see, he cried like a child that night before tired Nature at last gave way and sleep claimed her own.

December came and went. It was a hard month. Great storms plied the streets, and country, city and shipping suffered. Joe Gerrish in his one little room kept his diminutive stove fiercely going, and before it he rubbed his hands gleefully. "A snug little harbor, a snug little harbor," he repeated over and over again, as if to make up with human cheer for the cracked walls, the bare, rough floor and the scanty furniture.

To see this room without its occupant was to see a room, habitable to be sure, but very cheerless. But to see it with the gray-headed man sitting contentedly before the glowing stove, was to see it transformed. The peaceful patience of that face was more than the touch of art to any room, and in its presence the bare walls and floor, the cracked window glass and the poor furniture were forgotten.

Weeks passed. Once he had gone to the old house in the early morning after a big storm and begun to shovel away the snow, hoping to have it done and get away unobserved by his aunt, but scarcely had he shoveled a foot before a window went up and a familiar voice invited him to "Get out and let her alone." Well, he "got out," and ever since had stayed away. Neighbors noticed the forlorn-looking old woman shoveling away alone and wondered much, in a passive sort of way, but no one knew the battle that proud spirit was fighting against bodily weakness, and on one, much less Joe, realized how in her heart she longed for the strong arm of him who had been the only helper she had known in 40 years. It wasn't quite as she thought it would be—not quite what it was before Joe came.

So the weeks passed. The 27th of January was clear and bitter, and that night, down in the house of Hose 4, a group of firemen was clustered about the stove idly talking when suddenly an alarm came in that called them to the suburbs.

The fire was in a large costly stable attached to a fine house on the corner, and even now its case was hopeless and the house itself ablaze. Never had that ward seen such a fire, not for many years at least. In half an hour three houses had gone and the fire was still spreading. At last the fire was known to be under control.

All eyes were on the men at the pipes and on the ladders, but in the next street no one saw the desperate battle for a home, for a little, old, weather-beaten house that would have hardly received mention in the morning papers. Yet a fight there was, and who shall say that those who fought waged a battle less brave than did the finely equipped heroes in the next street?

The cry of fire and the bright blaze had brought Joe from his bed into the street with all the speed that he could muster. The fire was near and Mary's house might be in danger. This was his one thought. No remembrance had he that he had been told to "get out," and hurrying along through one street and another he reached the corner just in time to see Hose 4 come dashing up.

Millions of sparks were joining the myriad stars in the heavens and floating swiftly off, bright and beautiful agents of terror and destruction. There had been no storm for a month and the "January thaw" had melted all snow from the roofs. Upon these the brands and sparks were falling fast. In her little yard over in Dutton street old Mary Stover was alternately drawing pail after pail of water, throwing it as high as she could (hardly above the window), and wringing her hands in misery and despair, when around the corner of the house burst Joe, his hat gone and coat open to the wind.

Without a minute's hesitation he forced in the shed door, pulled out the old ladder and mounted to the roof. Already the shingles were burning in a dozen places, and as Mary drew the water and passed it up, Joe threw it right and left. Few roofs caught, for nearly all in the neighborhood were slated, and the wind seemed to single out the little old house with its dry cedar shingles for its especial prey.

Faster and faster fell the glowing embers, and where they touched, tiny, swiftly-spreading flames sprang up. The old man's knees were growing lame and weak; his soaking clothes froze and his hands blistered, as with them, while waiting for water, he smothered the fire here and there.

At last the water ceased to come, and, looking down he saw Mary sitting exhausted by the well. Her strength had failed at last and now she could do no more.

Not a word had passed between them since he first came, and of their past differences neither had a thought. Clambering quickly down he took the exhausted woman in his arms and carried her into the house, then hurrying out again, drew each pail of water himself, and, climbing up the ladder, threw it about.

But, thank heaven! the worst was over. The fire had eaten its way along the next street and the dear old house was no longer in the way of flying sparks. The old man wet the last glowing shingle, then slowly and painfully felt his way down from round to round and stood painfully shivering in the snow, looking at the door in indecision. Then he tottered into the kitchen and lay down, and soon Joe knew no more.

It was morning. The gorgeous flush of dawn turned the thick white frost on the kitchen window to crimson, and Joe opened his eyes to find himself on the familiar horsehair sofa, with blankets tucked in about him and a savory smell of pennyroyal tea hanging over the room. What a blessed sense of rest and peace stole over him. He closed his eyes and when he opened them again Mary was kneeling beside him, the tears streaming down her wrinkled cheeks.

"Oh, Joe! will you stay now? I'm so sorry! Will you stay now, Joe? I'm only an old woman, Joe; will you stay now?"

Poor Mary's lesson was learned.

"Why aunt," said he, "why aunt, it's good of you to take me in. 'Course I'll stay."

And he did.

Foods Young Babies Should Eat and How to Cook Them.

By MRS. MARY E. HOOD.

One of the questions I find most frequently in my daily mail is "How shall I feed my baby who is a year old," or "eleven months?"—that is to say when the time has come for him to take solid food. I have repeatedly answered this in the query column, but today I am going to devote a talk to it, to see if I cannot help more than one woman at a time with this problem.

Understand then, to begin with, that an infant requires nitrogen to make bone tissue, fruit to furnish phosphates that the blood needs, cereals for fat forming and muscle, and a small quantity of sweats for digestion, and to supply other needs of the system.

There is no necessity for going into the scientific explanation of nitrogen, but under that head is included meat and eggs. Other food belonging to it are not such as babies eat. Fruits, while important, must be most carefully selected and given. Cereals should be taken as meaning grains and not some patent breakfast foods good for adults but unsuited to babies because of the food's lack of grain. Sweets are not for an instant to be confounded with candy. A young child should have none of this, not even the simplest, until he is at least three years old. Generally speaking, enough sweet is supplied in the fruits given and the sugar added to cereals. Of course, milk continues to be baby's standby even after he is twelve months old, and at this age one who is strong and healthy should be able to take it undiluted.

Of meats, beef is the most important, and should be given in the form of juice. That cut from the round is best for this, and is prepared by putting through a chopper, and then making into small cakes with the addition of a little salt that causes the juice to run. Heat a frying pan, but use no fat of any kind. Place the cakes in this and heat through, but do not cook. While hot press through a potato squeezer. Reject the pulp. No more salt should be added, and the juice should be given the instant that is is prepared. If it stands on the stove at all it will curdle.

Next to beef, lamb and mutton are most nutritious. Pork and veal should never be given to babies. Chicken makes a variety but is not as nourishing as the first three.

Under the head of meats must be included broths. These are important as taking the place of solid meats and giving variety from beef juice. They should always be made of lean cuts put on in cold water and allowed slowly to come to the boiling point. Simmer for two or three hours, taking care not to boil hard. It is best to make a small quantity at a time. Rice or barley may be cooked in them, putting in at the last hour. In that way the grain starch is preserved.

The best cereal is oatmeal thoroughly cooked and strained. I do not think it is good for baby to have this in grains, no matter how well it is cooked. If the cereal is boiled down thick and rubbed through a puree selve he still gets it all. Rice, that is excellent r an infant, does not need this, but cannot be too carefully washed. I would like to say as emphatically as the statement can be made, that no cereal can be cooked too much for baby, and that there is grave danger in its being underdone. Hominy, farina, and tapioca should be on this list.

When it comes to fruit, I want to say at once that the only ones uncooked that he may ever have are oranges strained, and once in a long time during the season juicy peach rubbed through a sieve and given at once. Sometimes a baby can take a teaspoonful of scraped raw apple, but the experiment should be made carefully, for apple baked or in sauce in small quantities is as good if not better.

The list of cooked fruits is short, including only apples and prunes, the first to be baked or made into sauce, the peel always being rejected. Prunes are best given as a jelly, made by boiling down slowly to extreme thickness and then straining.

I had meant to tell something today of the quantity that baby might have, but I have used up all my space. This is so important, however, that next time I will give a menu for his day.

MR. KILLBLOSSOM'S AUTO.

New York Sun: "Of course I have always wanted an auto," said Mr. Killblossom, "but I have never really worried over not having one, because I have not yet been able to make up my mind what color I'h have mine painted.

"I don't know, really, whether I'd rather have a drab devil or a blue devil, or a red devil or a green devil, or a devil in white or one in black; and as long as I haven't been able to make up my mind about that, why, I haven't permitted myself to be bothered by the fact that I haven't yet actually come into possession of a gas wagon.

"But lately, now, I have about made up my mind that I'll have my kerosene cart painted blue; and having all but come to the conclusion, I have been looking around a little to get my mind fixed on the particular sort of machine I'll get when I come to buy. I can't say that my exchequer has risen, meanwhile, in accordance with my expectations; just between ourselves, as friends, I couldn't raise, at the present moment, much more than enough to buy, say, a spark plug, or maybe a small sized carburetor, or perhaps a nice set of second hand mud guards, or something like that.

"But I want an auto, and I expect to buy one some day, and so when I had about decided on the color and had begun to look over the machines themselves I sent to the agent of one machine that I thought would about suit me, for some literature bearing on his car. The literature came along promptly, with excellent pictures and drawings beautifully printed on fine paper and with letterpress most convincing, and I read it all and found it most interesting and then I laid it away, more or less forgetting, until a day or two later when something happened that was more or less surprising; when an energetic young man from the automobile concern dropped into see me.

"'Mr. Killblossom,' he said, 'we want to sell you one of our cars. It's the car you ought to have—' and he went on to tell me why, in all of which I readily agreed with him; and then I told him why, much as I admired his car, I couldn't buy one, that is, not just at the present moment, which I thought was no more than right for me to do.

"So we both said it was a fine day and he went away; but I am satisfied that his is the car I want to buy, when I do; and I've practically completely made up my mind to have her painted blue."

Once in a year you may find a good tenant by chance—through "happenstance." But a Herald want ad. will find him for you at the time you want him.

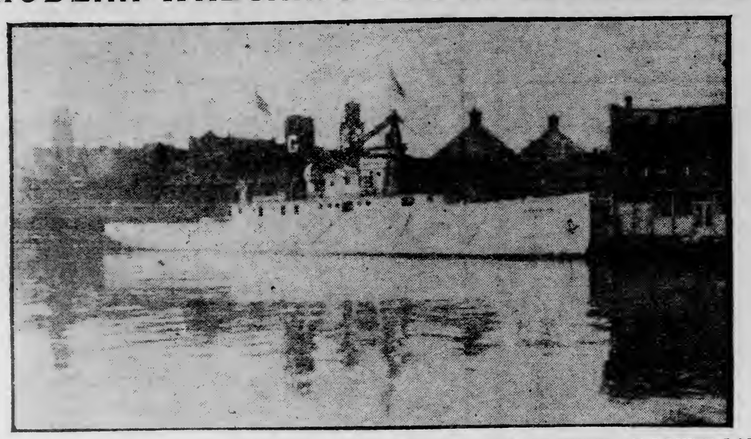
MARINE NEWS

MODERN WRECKING TUG IN COMMISSION



THE NEW WRECKER FAVORITE, WHICH MADE ITS FIRST TRIP LAST WEEK ON LOWER LAKES.

ACTION ON DEADLIGHTS

Law Making Larger Ones Necessary Should be Passed.

Death of Seamen on Naomi Has Aroused Marine Men.

It is the opinion of most marine men on the Great Lakes that there should be a law providing that no boat should have a port which is not large enough to permit passage of the body of a member of the crew or a passenger in case of emergency and the terrible fate of the four deck-hands on the steamer Naomi last week bears out this opinion.

President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association has given it as his opinion that such a law should be enacted, and it will not be surprising if some action is taken by the board of supervising inspectors of steamboats at their next annual meeting in Washington, or possibly at the meeting of the executive committee in Philadelphia during the next few days.

The four deck hands on the Naomi lost their lives simply because they were unable to escape through the port holes or deadlights. The fact that they were rescued alive in plain view of those trying to rescue them has aroused marine men all over the lakes and something will undoubtedly be done sooner or later to make the life of the seamen safer.

Some attention has been given the matter of safer quarters for the ships' crew by the International Seamen's union and efforts have been made to secure passage of a law which would afford adequate protection for sailors. The recent occurrences are likely to give fresh impetus to this movement.

The big side wheel steamer City of Cleveland, now under construction at Detroit, has oblong ports especially designed to allow egress if necessity arises. The openings are similar to the manholes on marine boilers, measuring about 12 by 16 inches or larger.

Lumber Boats Leave.

The wind bound fleet of lumber boats got under way all right yesterday afternoon after the wind had shifted around to the north and the sea had quieted down. A number of the vessels which left the harbor early Saturday morning came back to port during the afternoon on account of the severity of the storm.

Back on South Shore.

After making one special trip to Port Arthur last week the steamer Easton of the Booth line has resumed her regular trips down the south shore. The Easton went to Port Arthur last week to help out at the beginning of the season as there was a large quantity of freight which had been waiting to be taken to that port. The America is making regular north shore trips and on Saturday the Bon Ami left with freight for Port Arthur, but on account of the heavy sea laid over at Two Harbors until Sunday morning.

Huronic Soon Due.

The steamer Huronic of the Northern Navigation company which left Sarnia for Duluth the middle of last week, has reached Port Arthur and will arrive in Duluth for the first time this season either this evening or tomorrow. She is now running on schedule and is bringing passengers and freight up from the lower lakes. Her first departure from Duluth is scheduled to take place tomorrow evening.

Steamer for Range Lake.

The work of loading the steamer Mary Bell on to a flat car is in progress today at the foot of the Northern Pacific dock at Sixth avenue. The Mary Bell is a small excursion steamer which will be taken to Tower to be used on Vermilion lake.

Wisconsin Being Repaired.

The tug Wisconsin was placed in Grignon's floating drydock today and is being repaired and overhauled. A new wheel was attached to the vessel and her hull was gone over carefully and the small leaks calked up. She is one of the tugs of the Union Towing company.

Will Strictly Enforce Rules.

President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association has notified lake vesselmen that all upbound boats will have to use the easterly channel at the Limekiln crossing and that they should not load deeper than 18½ feet. The patrol boat is in charge of the channel and boats that load deeper may be forced to lighter. The draft of 18½ feet can pass through the easterly channel without trouble. Downbound boats should use the westerly channel and most of the ore carriers are loading 19 feet 2 inches. President Livingstone says this rule will be rigidly enforced.

New Boat Leaves Detroit.

Detroit, May 27.—The new steamer Thomas F. Cole, the longest ship on the Great Lakes, left the Ecorse ship yards today on her first trip. She goes to Duluth light to load ore. President Harry Coulby of the Pittsburg Steamship company, President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association, and other well known marine men, were aboard the Cole. The new boat was given a noisy reception by all steam craft in the river as she passed. The Cole is 605 feet 5 inches long.

Will Have Power Boats.

Within a few months all of the life saving stations on the lakes will have been supplied with the new power boats. The government has decided upon this course and the boats will be installed before the present season of navigation is over. Already several of the stations in the East have been supplied with the power boats including those at Oswego, Buffalo, Erie and Cleveland and those at Harbor Beach, Duluth, Marquette, Thunder Bay Island and Middle Island will soon be supplied. At the latter two stations the keepers own power boats personally but they will soon have boats supplied by the government.

SOMEONE TO BE JAILED

jail all men who ought to be there. Just let one or two who hold high positions in the social and business world be put behind bars. This would act as a powerful deterrent, for men then would hesitate to jeopardize their positions and safety."

Questions of criminal prosecution by the commission have been delegated to Franklin K. Lane of California, one of the most energetic and conservative members. When Mr. Lane was asked, "Are you going to send somebody in the railroad world to jail?" he said:

"I hope that will not be necessary. If the railroads comply with the law we will get on most harmoniously, but if the law is broken, then there will be trouble."

"Do you intend to have Edward H. Harriman prosecuted?"

"That whole subject is under consideration by the commission. If Harriman has been guilty of any infraction of the act to regulate commerce, he will, of course, be prosecuted—not at all because he is Harriman, but because he is an offender against the law."

GIGANTIC MERGER

United States and reaching every great industrial and manufacturing center as to the Mississippi, it will afford an outlet to the products of this vast section to all the ports of the Atlantic north of the Potomac, and also give them a direct route to the Orient via the gulf and the new isthmian canal, when completed.

Charles S. Mellen is credited with being the master mind that conceived this vast project, although it is understood that this consolidation was under consideration before the death of the late A. J. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania.

Mellen and his associates in this great project feel assured, according to the best information at their command, that there will be no opposition to or criticism of the administration, as no competing parallel lines will be merged, except in the cases of a few branches.

The present Pennsylvania is the nucleus of the merger, though it is understood President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, will head the new greater system. A board of control will be elected representing interests which dominate at present not only the Pensylvania system, but the consolidated roads of New England and the newly acquired Southern connections.

The main properties to be merged, as learned here, are: The Pennsylvania railroad, controlling all the lines east of Pittsburg. The Pennsylvania company, controlling the lines west of Pittsburg. The New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, controlling practically all the mileage of New England outside of the Boston & Maine system, the Louisville & Nashiville railroad and connecting lines.

ACTRESS ENDS LIFE.

Columbus, Ohio, May 27.—Edna Wilson, wife of George M. Wilson, and leader of the Kiralfy's "Babes in the Woods" company, which came here to play a week's engagement, committed suicide yesterday at the Bryden hotel by drowning herself in a bath tub. The coroner was unable to disclose any motive for the suicide. Wilson and his wife are said to have come from Pittsburg.

FLY TO PIECES.

The Effect of Coffee on Highly Organized People.

"I have been a coffee user for years, and about two years ago got into a very serious condition of dyspepsia and indigestion. It seemed to me I would fly to pieces. I was so nervous that at the least noise I was distressed, and many times could not straighten myself up because of the pain.

"My physician told me I must not eat any heavy or strong food and ordered a diet, giving me some medicine. I followed directions carefully, but kept on using coffee and did not get any better. Last winter my husband, who was away on business, had Postum Food Coffee served to him in the family where he boarded.

"He liked it so well that when he came home he brought some with him. We began using it and found it most excellent. While I drank it my stomach never bothered me in the least, and I got over my nervous troubles. When the Postum was all gone we returned to coffee, and then my stomach began to hurt me as before and the nervous conditions came on again.

"That showed me exactly what was the cause of the whole trouble, so I quit drinking coffee altogether and kept on using Postum. The old troubles left again and I have never had any trouble since." "There's a Reason." Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

ON THE IRON RANGES

GOOD TIMES AT EVELETH

Range Town Has Every Assurance of a Very Prosperous Year.

New and Valuable Iron Ore Deposits Have Been Found.

Eveleth, Minn., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Along with most of the range towns this spring, this city is in a very prosperous condition and the future seems to presage a continuous growth and increasing prosperity. The diamond drill operations this spring have disclosed several new and valuable ore deposits near the city and have served to make mining men increase rather than decrease their estimates of the extent of the ore bodies already opened.

The stripping which is being done west of the Adams mine on section 36, is showing up especially well and many are prophesying that this will be one of the largest, if not the largest producers on the range.

The new ore which is being uncovered at the Fayal stripping is proving to be as good both in extent and quality as has been expected and this mine is bound to be a large producer for years.

But what will, perhaps, mean more than anything else to the future of Eveleth is the settlement of the disputed land claims in the Ely Lake district. It has long been known that valuable ore was to be found under these claims, but owing to uncertainty of ownership it has up to the present time been impossible to start mining operations. However, all but two of these settlers have now sold their interests, and it seems likely that these two will do likewise in a short time, so that a new mining area of about 700 acres will shortly be opened up for active work. This acreage is as large as that of the Fayal, Adams and Spruce combined and will no doubt mean much for the future growth and prosperity of the city.

As Eveleth is the nearest large town to the new town to be built near the Gilbert mine, the city will no doubt derive much benefit from this enterprise, both during the time of building and after it is finished, as the people will always do a large part of their business in the larger nearby town.

In view of these facts, there are many who think that Eveleth will have a population of 12,000 before five years have elapsed.

THIRTY-TWO TRAIN CREWS HAUL IRON

Two Harbors, Minn., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The iron shipping season from the range to this point is certainly at its height. The Duluth & Iron Range road has thirty-two crews of trainmen working. During the past week the crews averaged eleven hours a day. The rush of work will probably necessitate many of them working extra time from now on.

Besides the large number of crews hauling iron ore, the company has the usual number at work on the regular business of the company.

WILL BUILD SPUR.

Duluth & Iron Range Proposes to Reach Another Property.

Aurora, Minn., May 27.—In order to reach the St. James mine, located about one-fourth of a mile north of Aurora, the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company will soon begin building a spur from the track leading to the Meadows mine.

The St. James is owned by Corrigan & McKinley, and the development upon the property is recent. Work upon the new shaft was started Jan. 2. The shaft has been sunk to a depth of 210 feet. The shaft house is under construction. Ore may be shipped from the mine this year. If the developing company were in a hurry about it ore could readily be shipped this season, provided the Iron Range hastened the construction of its spur, as the shaft has been sunk sixty feet into the ore body.

In the sinking of the shaft, gravel, hardpan, clay and some quicksand were encountered. No trouble of consequence resulted from the latter. The ore body was encountered at a depth of 150 feet. Just how much ore is on the property is not known, as the development is in its infancy.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

William Kivora Loses His Life in Mine at Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., May 27.—Caught between a post and an ore car at the Winifred mine, William Kivora, a mine laborer, was crushed to death. He was so badly injured that he died before medical aid could arrive.

BUHL ORE-CARRIER PROVES A SUCCESS.

Buhl, Minn., May 27.—The success of the overhead ore carrier, installed by the Interstate Mining company at the stripping carried on half a mile west of Buhl, proves to be a success, after an expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars, and the overcoming of innumerable obstacles, owing to the rock formation, unusual obstacles are being met with in prosecuting the stripping, but these are being surmounted and the work is progressing satisfactorily.

The two steel towers of the ore carrier are 170 feet from base to top, and are 1,150 feet apart. Suspended from a series of steel cables is the huge clamshell scoop, which can be pulled from tower to tower as occasion demands. It is dropped into the stripping and, having sized its load, it is hoisted and carried to a point over the spot where the waste is dumped. The great jaws open, and the load falls. The machinery is operated by electricity. The power is furnished by a power house on the company's property.

The members of the society will meet in this city Sunday morning and will march to the lake, where addresses will be made by noted speakers and a day of recreation will be enjoyed.

In the evening a play entitled "Sylvia" will be given in Urania hall in this city. This organization is very strong on the ranges and it is expected that from 2,000 to 3,000 people will be in attendance.

State Continues to Look Into Killing of Allan Witt.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 27.—The preliminary hearing of David Cochrane, charged with participating in the killing of Allan Witt, was not concluded Saturday, as expected.

Mrs. Witt, the wife of the dead man was cross-examined by George A Spear, attorney for Cochrane, but little new evidence was brought out.

The hearing was resumed today, and at its conclusion it is expected the preliminary hearing of William Anderson, at whose homestead the alleged murder took place, will be called, as he is jointly accused with Cochrane of being implicated in the crime.

MRS. MARY MITCHELL DEAD.

Well Known Ely Woman Succumbs to Attack of Tuberculosis.

Ely, Minn., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Mary Mitchell of this city, mother of William Mitchell of the light and water plant, John Mitchell of Eveleth, and two daughters, Beatrice of Ely and Mrs. Trudell of Worcester, Mass., died Saturday afternoon of tuberculosis. TALESMEN ABOUT GONE court adjourned on Saturday afternoon.

In the course of the examination Joplin said he was opposed to capital punishment.

"I presume the state will pay no attention to that disqualification," said Clarence S. Darrow, counsel for the defense amid laughter. The state, however, challenged and Joplin was excused.

C. J. Northrop, a prominent business man of Boise, was excused after a few questions that showed prejudice. W. C. Williamson, a rancher, and at one time a miner and a member of the Western Federation of Miners, was next called. Williamson worked in a mine at Silver City some nine years ago. He later gave up mining and severed his connection with the Western Federation of Miners because, as he said, "they told me I was getting too old for the mine, so I gave it up and went to farming." The state was progressing splendidly along the line of qualification for cause and, when about to pass the talesman, Williamson caused much amusement by quietly interjecting he remark: "I want to say that I am opposed to capital punishment." He was quickly disposed of and Jake Bingham, a farmer of Boise, was disposed of for the same reason.

W. S. Bruce, a bank cashier of Boise, was the fifty talesman called inside the first half hour. Bruce said: "I would not, under any circumstances convict a man where the penalty is death on circumstantial evidence." He was challenged by the state and excused.

ing house business, and commission men say it is for this reason that the packers selected it as the objective in the new ruling.

Some of the leading commission firms and shippers have communicated with the secretary of agriculture at Washington with regard to the new action on the part of the packers, and it is said assurances have been given that any attempt to delay payments on live stock as threatened by the packers, would result in the withdrawal of the inspection service.

Decoration Day, on Thursday of this week, and the end of May on Friday—here's hope it'll be also the end of Winter. Decoration Day has often been a delightful Spring Day in Duluth and the welcome sunshine of today presages that your suit will now be allowed to come out in the open. No more concealment under an old winter overcoat.

If you have hesitated getting that new suit, come to The Columbia and try on what these little local tailors in their advertisement call a "hand-me-down." Be modern and progressive and study the wonderful strides made by some wholesale tailors during the past few years. No more of the trials, tribulations and disappointments with your tailor for you if you do. Columbia Suits, made for us by the "Stein-Bloch" and "Sincerity" shops, cannot be excelled in smartness—still they can be bought at all current prices from $35 down. And no fit no sale.

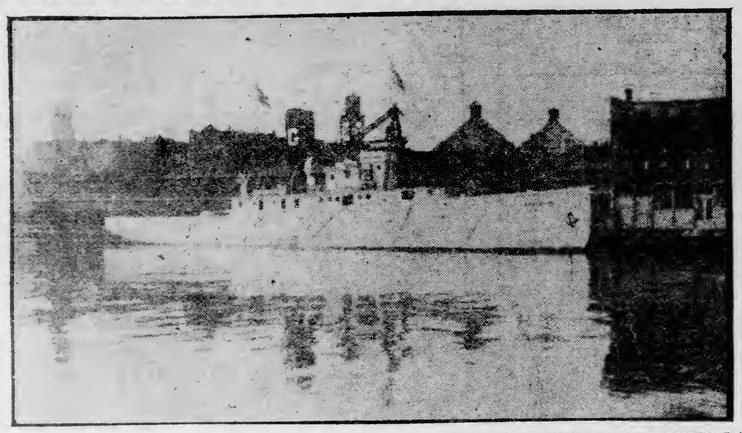
MARINE NEWS

MODERN WRECKING TUG IN COMMISSION



THE NEW WRECKER FAVORITE, WHICH MADE ITS FIRST TRIP LAST WEEK ON LOWER LAKES.

ACTION ON DEADLIGHTS

Law Making Larger Ones Necessary Should be Passed.

Death of Seamen on Naomi Has Aroused Marine Men.

It is the opinion of most marine men on the Great Lakes that there should be a law providing that no boat should have a port which is not large enough to permit passage of the body of a member of the crew or a passenger in case of emergency and the terrible fate of the four deck-hands on the steamer Naomi last week bears out this opinion.

President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association has given it as his opinion that such a law should be enacted, and it will not be surprising if some action is taken by the board of supervising inspectors of steamboats at their next annual meeting in Washington, or possibly at the meeting of the executive committee in Philadelphia during the next few days.

The four deck hands on the Naomi lost their lives simply because they were unable to escape through the port holes or deadlights. The fact that they were penned alive in plain view of those trying to rescue them has aroused marine men all over the lakes and something will undoubtedly be done sooner or later to make the life of the seamen safer.

Some attention has been given the matter of safer quarters for the ships' crew by the International Seamen's union and efforts have been made to secure passage of a law which would afford adequate protection for sailors. The recent occurrences are likely to give fresh impetus to this movement.

The big side wheel steamer City of Cleveland, now under construction at Detroit, has oblong ports especially designed to allow egress if necessity arises. The openings are similar to the manholes on marine boilers, measuring about 12 by 16 inches or larger.

Sheltered in Lily Pond.

Houghton, May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheltered in Lily Pond: McNeil. Cleared Lily Pond: Up: Neeshoto, Beatty, Easton, Warren and two consorts, 8:30 Monday morning. Down: 1, coming and two consorts, 10.

Lumber Boats Leave.

The wind bound fleet of lumber boats got under way all right yesterday afternoon after the wind had shifted around to the north and the sea had quieted down. A number of the vessels which left the harbor early Saturday morning came back to port during the afternoon on account of the severity of the storm.

Back on South Shore.

After making one special trip to Port Arthur last week the steamer Easton of the Booth line has resumed her regular trips down the south shore. The Easton went to Port Arthur last week to help out at the beginning of the season as there was a large quantity of freight which had been waiting to be taken to that port. The America is making regular north shore trips and on Saturday the Bon Ami left with freight for Port Arthur, but on account of the heavy sea laid over at Two Harbors until Sunday morning.

Huronic Soon Due.

The steamer Huronic of the Northern Navigation company which left Sarnia for Duluth the middle of last week, has reached Port Arthur and will arrive in Duluth for the first time this season either this evening or tomorrow. She is now running on schedule and is bringing passengers and freight up from the lower lakes. Her first departure from Duluth is scheduled to take place tomorrow evening.

Steamer for Range Lake.

The work of loading the steamer Mary Bell on to a flat car is in progress today at the foot of the Northern Pacific dock at Sixth avenue. The Mary Bell is a small excursion steamer which will be taken to Tower to be used on Vermilion lake.

Wisconsin Being Repaired.

The tug Wisconsin was placed in Grignon's floating drydock today and is being repaired and overhauled. A new wheel was attached to the vessel and her hull was gone over carefully and the small leaks calked up. She is one of the tugs of the Union Towing company.

Will Strictly Enforce Rules.

President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association has notified lake vesselmen that all upbound boats will have to use the easterly channel at the Limekiln crossing and that they should not load deeper than 18½ feet. The patrol boat is in charge of the channel and boats that load deeper may be forced to lighter. The draft of 18½ feet can pass through the easterly channel without trouble. Downbound boats should use the westerly channel and most of the ore carriers are loading 19 feet 2 inches. President Livingstone says this rule will be rigidly enforced.

New Boat Leaves Detroit.

Detroit, May 27.—The new steamer Thomas F. Cole, the longest ship on the Great Lakes, left the Ecorse ship yards today on her first trip. She goes to Duluth light to load ore. President Harry Coulby of the Pittsburg Steamship company, President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association, and other well known marine men, were aboard the Cole. The new boat was given a noisy reception by all steam craft in the river as she passed. The Cole is 605 feet 5 inches long.

Will Have Power Boats.

Within a few months all of the life saving stations on the lakes will have been supplied with the new power boats. The government has decided upon this course and the boats will be installed before the present season of navigation is over. Already several of the stations in the East have been supplied with the power boats including those at Oswego, Buffalo, Erie and Cleveland and those at Harbor Beach, Duluth, Marquette, Thunder Bay Island and Middle Island will soon be supplied. At the latter two stations the keepers own power boats personally but they will soon have boats supplied by the government.

jail all men who ought to be there. Just let one or two who hold high positions in the social and business world be put behind bars. This would act as a powerful deterrent, for men then would hesitate to jeopardize their positions and safety."

Questions of criminal prosecution by the commission have been delegated to Franklin K. Lane of California, one of the most energetic and conservative members. When Mr. Lane was asked, "Are you going to send somebody in the railroad world to jail?" he said:

"I hope that will not be necessary. If the roads comply with the law we will get on most harmoniously, but if the law is broken, then there will be trouble."

"Do you intend to have Edward H. Harriman prosecuted?"

"That whole subject is under consideration by the commission. If Harriman has been guilty of any infraction of the act to regulate commerce, he will, of course, be prosecuted—not at all because he is Harriman, but because he is an offender against the law."

United States and reaching every great industrial and manufacturing center eas tof the Mississippi, it will afford an outlet to the products of this vast section to all the ports of the Atlantic north of the Potomac, and also give them a direct route to the Orient via the gulf and the new isthmian canal, when completed.

Charles S. Mellen is credited with being the master mind that conceived this vast project, although it is understood that this consolidation was under consideration before the death of the late A. J. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania.

Mellen and his associates in this great project feel assured, according to the best information at their command, that there will be no opposition to or criticism of the administration, as no competing parallel lines will be merged, except in the cases of a few branches.

The present Pennsylvania is the nucleus of the merger, though it is understood President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, will head the new greater system. A board of control will be elected representing interests which dominate at present not only the Pensylvania system, but the consolidated roads of New England and the newly acquired Southern connections.

The main properties to be merged, as learned here, are: The Pennsylvania railroad, controlling all the lines east of Pittsburg. The Pennsylvania company, controlling the lines west of Pittsburg. The New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, controlling practically all the mileage of New England outside of the Boston & Maine system, the Louisville & Nashville railroad and connecting lines.

ACTRESS ENDS LIFE.

Columbus, Ohio, May 27.—Edna Wilson, wife of George M. Wilson, and leader of the Kiralfy's "Babes in the Woods" company, which came here to play a week's engagement, committed suicide yesterday at the Bryden hotel by drowning herself in a bath tub. The coroner was unable to disclose any motive for the suicide. Wilson and his wife are said to have come from Pittsburg.

FLY TO PIECES.

"I have been a coffee user for years, and about two years ago got into a very serious condition of dyspepsia and indigestion. It seemed to me I would fly to pieces. I was so nervous that at the least noise I was distressed, and many times could not straighten myself up because of the pain.

"My physician told me I must not eat any heavy or strong food and ordered a diet, giving me some medicine. I followed directions carefully, but kept on using coffee and did not get any better. Last winter my husband, who was away on business, had Postum Food Coffee served to him in the family where he boarded.

"He liked it so well that when he came home he brought some with him. We began using it and found it most excellent. While I drank it my stomach never bothered me in the least, and I got over my nervous troubles. When the Postum was all gone we returned to coffee, and then my stomach began to hurt me as before and the nervous conditions came on again.

"That showed me exactly what was the cause of the whole trouble, so I quit drinking coffee altogether and kept on using Postum. The old troubles left again and I have never had any trouble since." "There's a Reason." Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

ON THE IRON RANGES

GOOD TIMES AT EVELETH

Range Town Has Every Assurance of a Very Prosperous Year.

New and Valuable Iron Ore Deposits Have Been Found.

Eveleth, Minn., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Along with most of the range towns this spring, this city is in a very prosperous condition and the future seems to presage a continuous growth and increasing prosperity. The diamond drill operations this spring have disclosed several new and valuable ore deposits near the city and have served to make mining men increase rather than decrease their estimates of the extent of the ore bodies already opened.

The stripping which is being done west of the Adams mine on section 36, is showing up especially well and many are prophesying that this will be one of the largest, if not the largest producers on the range.

The new ore which is being uncovered at the Fayal stripping is proving to be as good both in extent and quality as has been expected and this mine is bound to be a large producer for years.

But what will, perhaps, mean more than anything else to the future of Eveleth is the settlement of the disputed land claims in the Ely Lake district. It has long been known that valuable ore was to be found under these claims, but owing to uncertainty of ownership it has up to the present time been impossible to start mining operations. However, all but two of these settlers have now sold their interests, and it seems likely that these two will do likewise in a short time, so that a new mining area of about 700 acres will shortly be opened up for active work. This acreage is as large as that of the Fayal, Adams and Spruce combined and will no doubt mean much for the future growth and prosperity of the city.

As Eveleth is the nearest large town to the new town to be built near the Gilbert mine, the city will no doubt derive much benefit from this enterprise, both during the time of building and after it is finished, as the people will always do a large part of their business in the larger nearby town.

In view of these facts, there are many who think that Eveleth will have a population of 12,000 before five years have elapsed.

THIRTY-TWO TRAIN CREWS HAUL IRON

Two Harbors, Minn., May 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The iron shipping season from the range to this point is certainly at its height. The Duluth & Iron Range road has thirty-two crews of trainmen working. During the past week the crews averaged eleven hours a day. The rush of work will probably necessitate many of them working extra time from now on.

Besides the large number of crews hauling iron ore, the company has the usual number at work on the regular business of the company.

WILL BUILD SPUR.

Duluth & Iron Range Proposes to Reach Another Property.

Aurora, Minn., May 27.—In order to reach the St. James mine, located about one-fourth of a mile north of Aurora, the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company will soon begin building a spur from the track leading to the Meadows mine.

The St. James is owned by Corrigan & McKinley, and the development upon the property is recent. Work upon the new shaft was started Jan. 2. The shaft has been sunk to a depth of 210 feet. The shaft house is under construction. Ore may be shipped from the mine this year. If the developing company were in a hurry about it ore could readily be shipped this season, provided the Iron Range hastened the construction of its spur, as the shaft has been sunk sixty feet into the ore body.

In the sinking of the shaft, gravel, hardpan, clay and some quicksand were encountered. No trouble of consequence resulted from the latter. The ore body was encountered at a depth of 150 feet. Just how much ore is on the property is not known, as the development is in its infancy.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

William Kivora Loses His Life in Mine at Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., May 27.—Caught between a post and an ore car at the Winifred mine, William Kivora, a mine laborer, was crushed to death. He was so badly injured that he died before medical aid could arrive.

BUHL ORE-CARRIER PROVES A SUCCESS.

Buhl, Minn., May 27.—The success of the overhead ore carrier, installed by the Interstate Mining company at the stripping carried on half a mile west of Buhl, proves to be a success, after an expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars, and the overcoming of innumerable obstacles. Owing to the rock formation, unusual obstacles are being met with in prosecuting the stripping, but these are being surmounted and the work is progressing satisfactorily.

The two steel towers of the ore carrier are 170 feet from base to top, and are 1,150 feet apart. Suspended from a series of steel cables is the huge clamshell scoop, which can be pulled from tower to tower as occasion demands. It is dropped into the stripping and, having sized its load, it is hoisted and carried to a point over the spot where the waste is dumped. The great jaws open, and the load falls. The machinery is operated by electricity. The power is furnished by a power house on the company's property.

The hearing was resumed today, and at its conclusion it is expected the preliminary hearing of William Anderson, at whose homestead the alleged murder took place, will be called, as he is jointly accused with Cochrane of being implicated in the crime.

MRS. MARY MITCHELL DEAD.

Well Known Ely Woman Succumbs to Attack of Tuberculosis.

TALESMEN ABOUT GONE

court adjourned on Saturday afternoon.

In the course of the examination Joplin said he was opposed to capital punishment.

"I presume the state will pay no attention to that disqualification," said Clarence S. Darrow, counsel for the defense amid laughter. The state, however, challenged and Joplin was excused.

C. J. Northrop, a prominent business man of Boise, was excused after a few questions that showed prejudice. W. C. Williamson, a rancher, and at one time a miner and a member of the Western Federation of Miners, was next called. Williamson worked in a mine at Silver City some nine years ago. He later gave up mining and severed his connection with the Western Federation of Miners because, as he said, "they told me I was getting too old for the mine, so I gave it up and went to farming." The state was progressing splendidly along the line of qualification for cause and, when about to pass the talesman, Williamson caused much amusement by quietly interjecting he remark: "I want to say that I am opposed to capital punishment." He was quickly disposed of and Jake Bingham, a farmer of Boise, was disposed of for the same reason.

W. S. Bruce, a bank cashier of Boise, was the fifty talesman called inside the first half hour. Bruce said: "I would not, under any circumstances convict a man where the penalty is death on circumstantial evidence." He was challenged by the state and excused.

Some of the leading commission firms and shippers have communicated with the secretary of agriculture at Washington with regard to the new action on the part of the packers, and it is said assurances have been given that any attempt to delay payments on live stock as threatened by the packers, would result in the withdrawal of the inspection service.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Makes New High Record for This Season's Crop.

Chicago, May 27.—New high records for this season's crop of wheat were made for the July and December options on the board of trade this morning, July reaching $1.03½ and December $1.01½. September tied its mark of $1.04½ made last Thursday. According to the weather bureau reports, killing frosts occurred last night at some points in Kansas, while heavy frosts were general over the states of Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa. There was an incentive for selling wheat in the reports from Liverpool, which showed a sharp decline there, due to more favorable crop reports from Russia, and heavy world's shipments to the United Kingdom, but this was lost sight of in the news from the Western wheat fields, and opening prices for the three leading options showed a wider range, the advances being from a shade to 3⅛@3¼c. After the first flurry trading quieted greatly, although the market continued to show signs of nervousness. July wheat opened ½c to 2½c higher at $1.01 to $1.03, sold at $1.03½ and declined to $1.01¾. Price changes were very broad between sales, being from ½c to ½c at a time. September opened a shade to 2½@2⅝c higher at $1.02½@1.04½ and sold around $1.02¾. December opened 1¾@2⅝c to 3¼-3½c higher at $1.04@1.05½ and dropped to $1.03. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 421 cars as compared with 089 last week and 288 a year ago.

Corn was strong and active on the frost reports. July opened ⅜@⅝c higher at 54½c and sold at 54¾c. Local receipts were 241 cars, 121 of contract grade.

Oats were strong and fairly active, the reports of frost in the West being the factor. July opened ⅝@⅝c to 1¼@1¼c higher at 45½@46c and dropped back to 48c. Local receipts were 155 cars.

Provisions slow and weak, due to a 10c decline in hogs. July pork opened 20c lower at $16.40. July lard 5c lower at $8.97½. July ribs 2½@5c lower at $8.75.

Close: Wheat—July, $1.01¼; September, $1.00⅝. Corn—May, 54⅜c; July, 52⅝c. Oats—May, 48⅛c; July, 45⅜c. Pork—May, $16.25; July, $16.42½. Lard—May, $9; July, $9.07½. Ribs—May, $8.75; July, $8.80. Rye—Cash, 84@87c. Barley—Cash, 76@78c.

Grain Gossip.

Broomhall, Liverpool, cables: The tone was steady at the opening, although values showed a decline of a ½. There was a general disposition to sell, although large buying orders from America checked the decline for a time during which the market broke sharply, prices losing 1¼c to 1⅝c, due to the heavy world's shipments to the United Kingdom and more favorable reports from Russia. Selling was also stimulated by the reports of rain in Roumania, which caused general liquidation.

Corn was steady at the start with values unchanged, due to the smaller shipments to the United Kingdom. After, however, prices eased ½d to ⅝d in sympathy with the weakness in wheat.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago, to Paine, Webber & Co.: Think the trade in wheat and the large public active interest in the market for weeks past took the right view of the situation this morning and bought in such a way as to give prices sharp advance regardless of the Liverpool cable which was 1¾c lower at the time of our opening. Late private cable says that the rains in Russia and Roumania are insufficient and that the situation is unchanged. The thing for us to look at in all grain markets at the moment is the very adverse weather prevailing over the entire West and Northwest. Minneapolis this morning reported another freeze; South Dakota had a regular blizzard, the Kansas temperature ranged 24 to 30 at many points where wheat is jointed and in some sections in bloom. This is another hard blow at the Kansas crop and many dispatches today concede that the promise now is not to exceed half a crop. Freezing weather is certainly not very favorable for the late seeded acreage of the Northwest. Think crop conditions both at home and abroad still justify buying wheat on any break.

The active months worked up to just about the high level of last week or 11 to 13 points net higher during the early session on covering of shorts in support of the near months by large spot interests and buying for long account which was encouraged by the unfavorable weather. There was rough realizing at the advance here to cause some irregularity during the middle of the morning but the undertone continued steady.

OPPOSED TO SLANG.

Boston Herald: While teaching the district school at Carolina, R. I., Miss Eva Matteson, now with a Providence school, received the following interesting instructions from a certain fond mother.

This lady was more remarkable for her egotism than for the old school gentility she professed to have.

She had moved into the village from the city and was most solicitous that the well-bred manners of her little doughter, Muriel, should not be contaminated by contact with the country children.

"Always see that she has your best attention," said she, "and be very careful that she associates with no little child that uses slang, which Muriel has never heard. Above all, do not have her sit near that Williams boy. I knew his father in Providence and (confidentially) they're a bum lot, the whole push of them."

American Smelting lost 2 and declines ran from 1 to 1½ in all of the Pacifics and transcontental stocks, Reading, Erie, Delaware & Hudson, Atlantic Coast line, Brooklyn Transit and United States Steel preferred. There were numerous declines elsewhere reaching large fractions. Brooklyn Gas sold at a decline of 5.

With the exception of a slight check at 10:30, the selling was unrestrained during the first hour, and resulted in driving the entire market a point or more below Saturday's closing. Selling orders were freely distributed among all of the active stocks, especially in the grain carriers, coolers and metal groups. Reading slumped 2½, Union Pacific, 3, Canadian Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Smelting and Brooklyn Rapid Transit 2⅛ to 2¾ and St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Atlantic Coast Line, Denver & Rio Grande, Northern Pacific, Amalgamated Copper, Great Northern ore certificates and Linseed preferred 1¾ to 2⅝.

Stocks continued to come on the market with only an occasional pause, when covering by bears would cause slight rallies followed by dullness. During the second hour Reading sold at a decline of 4½, Brooklyn Transit 5¼, American Sheffield Steel and Consolidated Gas 3½, Atlantic Coast Line, Rock Island preferred and National Lead 3, St. Paul, Southern Pacific, the Hill stocks, Illinois Central, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, Amalgamated Copper, Distillers securities and Interborough-Metropolitan preferred 2¾, and Shesapeake & Ohio, Erie second preferred, Northwestern, Locomotive and Pacific Mail 1 to 1½. Adams Express sold at a decline of 7. Bonds were weak.

Additional severe declines in Canadian Pacific and Consolidated Gas were ignored in the rest of the list, prices rising slowly. The recoveries, however, were limited to fractions except in Reading and Smelting, which were 1 to 1¼ better. Consolidated Gas sagged 5½ and Canadian Pacific 3¾.

Values melted away rapidly again under the influence of drastic liquidation of Canadian Pacific, Reading and Smelting, stocks in which the selling was not urgent did not get much lower than on the previous decline, but otherwise the losses were severe. Consolidated Gas slumped 7⅞, Canadian Pacific 7, Reading and Delaware & Hudson 6, Smelting 5, St. Paul and Illinois Central 4½, Union Pacific 4⅜, Southern Railway preferred, Atlantic Coast Line and Rock Island preferred 4, Louisville & Nashville 3⅝, Amalgamated Copper 3¾ and Northern Pacific 3.

The market closed quiet and irregular. The extent of the day's decline invited extensive profit-taking by the bears and their buying induced a rally which ran to 1 or 1½ in some active stocks. Amongst additional declines were Lackawanna, 18; New York Air Brake, 7; Consolidated Gas, 8½; United States Reduction preferred, 5; Southern Railway preferred, 4⅝; Colorado & Southern second preferred, 4½; Pullman, 4; Southern Pacific, 3¾; Northwestern, 3⅝; and Interborough-Metropolitan, 3¼.

Stock Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: London late cable says: "Stock exchange markets were rather demoralized on the curb today. It is developing that the Brunton failure is heavier than had previously been reported. It appears that the firm is largely involved in low priced copper shares. American closed weak."

Walker Bros., New York, to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market was very weak today and under a great deal of pressure. There were many stop orders reached and stocks were thrown over in quantity. It looks as if the liquidation would go further. The close was nervous and without support.

Logan & Bryan, New York, to Paine, Webber & Co.: Support seemed lost to the market throughout the session. Sentiment was decidedly bearish and the list was sold heavily. Reading led in the downward turn and every stock on the list shows weakness. The uncovering of stop orders did much to assist in depressing prices. There was no news and we look for still lower prices, as we see nothing in this market that would justify an upturn other than the covering by the shorts.

Copper Gossip.

Poston to Gay & Sturgis: This New York market is certainly getting to a pretty dangerous state. Even at this low level there is absolutely no support. If this keeps on these coppers will have to go sure.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The same old market. Steady liquidation and not even short covering to cause a rally. The big men are giving almost no support and in many cases are selling stocks. We still look for a long period of sagging prices and advise everyone to sell out speculative holdings and save interest charges. We understand the Mohawk dividend will be $5 to be declared soon.

The machine may be used either for digging a trench or filling.

It is expected that the machine will be given a trial on the canal work. Mr. Peterson gave it a trial in this city, and it proved to do all that was claimed for it. He expects to return to La Crosse about June 15.

WEST DULUTH

WOULD LAY TAR COATING

Suggestion That Tar Macadam be Laid on Central Avenue.

Business Man Thinks That the Street Should be Improved.

The condition of Central avenue, following the rains of last week, was the subject of considerable discussion in West Duluth this morning. A feeling of pronounced dissatisfaction prevails, for the street is in wretched condition, considering the fact that it is macadamized. There are mud holes in various spots, which are strong reminders of the condition of the street before it was macadamized, several years ago. People think that something should be done in the matter, and they are airing their views with no uncertainty.

"I m out of patience wit hthose who are continually complaining over the condition of Central avenue, and doing nothing," said a business man this morning. "What is the sense in kicking on the past, or on the present, which will soon be a past, and not doing anything for the future? There is not one man in West Duluth who knew Central avenue before it was macadamized but who will agree with me that its condition today is a vast improvement over that four or five years ago. Then, after a rain, it was a river of mud, which several days of warm sunshine would hardly clear up. When the macadam pavement was laid, it was the best thing which could be done under the circumstances. People were not willing to pay the money for a more expensive improvement, so the city went ahead and did the best it could. It did well with the means at hand.

"I do not say that Central avenue is not in poor condition now. It is in a shape which should not be tolerated in this part of the city. But I say, what is the use of complaining? The board of public works is powerless. It cannot defy the laws of nature and prevent the street from becoming muddy, when it is liberally sprinkled from above.

"As I said before, complaining over its condition will not improve Central avenue. We have a good foundation for a street there. What is the matter with laying a coating of tar macadam over that foundation? You could not ask any better bed for a street than Central avenue has at present, and a layer of tar macadam would remove all the surface difficulties. When the street was macadamized, the laying of tar macadam was out of the question. People would hardly consent to the expenditure of a sufficient sum to lay macadam, and tar macadam was higher then that it is now.

"But things have changed since then. West Duluth has a future before it, and we should prepare the town for the reception of new residents. We want them to get a proper impression of its progressiveness, and Central avenue in its present condition will not convey that impression. The city can do nothing unless the property owners act. If they do not take some steps to have this tar macadam coating laid on the street, they will make a mistake. There is no sense in being narrow or mercenary in this matter. The people who own property on Central avenue at present secured their holding at prices much lower than the property would bring now, for the most part, and they should be willing to pay a little more for further improvement to it.

"I want to issue a warning right now. Unless something is done to improve Central avenue very soon, it will lose its prestige as the main street of the town. Slowly, the axis on which West Duluth revolves is being shifted to Grand avenue, and unless the people on Central avenue awaken to the fact, they will find that they have lost sight of the drift of affairs. It is to the business interests of those holding property on Central avenue to improve the condition of the street and I know of no better method for bringing about the improvement than the one I suggest."

NINE MEN ACCEPTED

Two More Talesmen Are Selected on Argyle Jury.

State Exhausts Its Peremptory Challenges—Defense Has One Left.

Two jurors, making nine in all, were secured in the trial of the Argyle assault case, this morning. Eight men were examined during the forenoon, and when the court adjourned at noon it seemed very much as if the remaining three jurors would not be secured until this evening.

The case was called for trial Thursday afternoon last, and about two days have thus far been spent in the effort to select a jury from among the forty or fifty talesmen.

The state exhausted its last peremptory challenge when the seventh talesman examined this morning was excused. The defense has but one peremptory challeneg left.

The selection of jurors is proceeding slowly, and with the same degree of caution that was observed by Mr. Culkin, counsel for the defense, last week.

A great many of those who are examined for qualifications have read or heard considerable about Argyle's troubles, and have formed an opinion.

The talesmen accepted this morning were Hector Morrison, a shipwright, and Charles L. Harris, a logging foreman.

SHE CERTAINLY WAS.

Life: The philanthropical Fifth avenue lady was visiting a lower East end Sunday school. To test the aptness of a particular indigent cluster of pupils, she took the class in hand to question them.

"Children, which is the greatest of all virtues?"

No one answered.

"Think a little. What is it I am doing when I give up time and pleasure to come down among you for your moral good?"

A grimy fist went up.

"Well, what am I doing, little boy?"

"Buttin' in."

HOME What a wonderful institution is the home. What a wonderful power is the home newspaper. The Herald has long been the home newspaper of Duluth. The Herald reaches the home at the evening leisure hour. The Herald is not carried down town on the car. It stays home, is passed from one member of the family to the others. It is read from page to page, every night in nearly every home in Duluth and Northern Minnesota. The Herald is a vital force in the homes of its patrons. It is the one newspaper in nearly all homes, the only newspaper in thousands of homes.

EX-GOV. MERRIAM SAYS JOHNSON WOULD MAKE AN EXCELLENT CANDIDATE

He Is a Vote Getter, Which Party Badly Needs.

Says Roosevelt Cannot Possibly Accept the Nomination.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ex-Governor Merriam of Minnesota is in Washington today, and while he says he is out of politics altogether he still endeavors to keep in touch with events. Mr. Merriam said that he had just returned from Virginia where he has some considerable deals in real estate on hand. In speaking of the clamor which seems to be abroad for Theodore Roosevelt for a third term, so called, he said he did not believe that the president would for one single moment consent to a stampede in the next national Republican convention in his favor.

"Should such a thing mature," said Former Governor Merriam, "it is my belief that Mr. Roosevelt would decline the nomination, and thus force the adjournment of the national convention and the calling of a new one. He could scarce do otherwise in view of his repeated declarations that he is not a candidate for renomination and especially as he has permitted his right bower, Secretary

ROTHSCHILD IS NOT ENCOURAGED

By Any Present Prospect for Improvement in Stock Market.

London, May 28. — Lord Rothschild's views of the prospects of the stock market are not encouraging. In an interview this afternoon he said he could see no immediate prospect of improvement, adding:

"The best that can be said is that the markets are no worse today. Perhaps they are slightly better. But with President Roosevelt attacking the railways in one part of the world, the income tax question and other problems in France, and the Socialist movement in England, the public are killing the goose that laid the golden eggs, and we can expect nothing more than what the market positions reveal."

PACKERS WORSTED

Unable to Buy Head of "Cow Stuff" in Market.

Chicago, May 28.—Because of the enforcement by the big packers of their new rule requiring post mortem inspection of cows and heifers as a condition of purchase, only the high class grades of beef were sold at the stock yards yesterday for the Chicago trade.

It was the first day of the enforcement of the post mortem rule and the first skirmish between the packers and shippers of live stock and the commission men. The big packing firms did not succeed in buying a solitary cow or heifer, according to the return made to the commission men at the close of business. None of the 3,000 animals numbered in the list of the day's receipts as "cow stuff" remained unsold, however, all being sent to other cities, and on this showing the commission insisted that the big firms were routed in the first skirmish.

In this slump the big packers professed to find evidence of their power. They were not sanguine of the final outcome, however, the commission men's failure to get "stuck" on the day's receipts being an unlooked for development.

Causes that contributed to the success of the commission men in their efforts to sell out everything were the co-operation of the shippers in the country and the demands of the "independent" trade. Renewed appeals to the country buyers and shippers to "keep their cows and heifers" out of the Chicago market for the present were sent out over wires.

ELECTRICAL APPARATUS

Has Been Greatly Improved by Recent Manufacture.

Growth of the Industry Has Been Wonderful of Late.

Washington, May 28.—A bulletin issued today by the census bureau contains a report on the manufacture, according to the census of 1905, of electrical machinery, apparatus and supplies. It says that during the five year period from 1900 there have been extensive improvements in the utilization of electricity and electrical machinery and radical innovation in electrical devices for general use. In 1905 there were 784 establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of electrical machinery, apparatus and supplies with a capital of $174,066,026. There was a gain since 1900 of 34.9 per cent in the number of establishments

Wife and Mother of Harry Thaw Take a New Home.

New York, May 28.—Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, who has made the Hotel Lorraine her home during the many months her husband, Harry K. Thaw, has been in the Tombs for the murder of Stanford White, has left the hotel, according to an announcement published today, and with her mother-in-law, Mrs. William Thaw, has taken up her home in a house on Park avenue, near Fifty-ninth street. There the two women, whose devotion to the prisoner was a marked feature of this recent trial, will remain in seclusion for the summer, it is said, so as to be within call of the prisoner and to await events in his case. The second trial of Thaw will not be reached until fall.

DISSENSIONS

Among Armenians May Have Been Cause of Priest's Murder.

New York, May 28.—Notwithstanding that the motive for the murder of Father Kasper Variorian, the Armenian priest whose body was found on Sunday in a trunk in a West Thirty-seventh street house, is not yet clear, some facts have been learned which may dispel all doubts as to why the priest was slain. Father Kasper, according to some witnesses who have been found, was a politician as well as a clergyman, and was identified with an Armenian revolutionary society in this city. It appears that recently the revolutionaries in the local Armenian county split and much dissension arose.

THE COURT REFUSES TO ENJOIN MAYOR BUSSE.

Chicago, May 28.—The circuit court yesterday afternoon refused to interfere with Mayor Fred Busse in his efforts to secure a board of education of his own making. Eight of the trustees who last week were discharged by the mayor, went before Judge Thomas G. Windes yesterday afternoon and asked for an injunction restraining Mr. Busse from ousting them or appointing new members in their places before their terms expired.

After listening to four hours of argument, Judge Windes dismissed the petition for an injunction on the ground that Mayor Busse has the power to oust officials of the school board.

STRIKE IS SPREADING

Longshoremen's Troubles Taken Up by Clerks and Others.

Many Steamships Held at the Docks in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, May 28.—The strike inaugurated several days ago by the longshoremen employed by the Merchants & Miners Transportation company has spread to the men at work on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company's piers, and to the receiving clerks on the wharves of the Boston & Philadelphia line. The steamships Parthian for Boston, Indian for Providence and Fall River and Allegheny for Savannah, which were scheduled to leave yesterday, were unable to sail and may get away today.

More than 100 men who have taken the strikers' places are living on two lighters in the Delaware river. There is room on the lighters for 400 men and cots have been placed on them for that number.

The men here are not organized, but went out on the solicitation of the New York strikers. They have been receiving 20 cents an hour and 25 cents an hour overtime. They now ask 25 cents an hour and 30 cents overtime.

BIG CORPORATION.

Gilchrist-Fordney Company Incorporated With Capital of $1,200,000.

Saginaw, Mich., May 28.—Congressman J. W. Fordney and F. W. Gilchrist and three sons, Frank, Ralph and A. W., of Alpena, are the incorporators of a large lumber concern to be known as the Gilchrist-Fordney company, with a capital of $1,200,000. The company has purchased 50,000 acres of timber land near Laurel, Miss., estimated to contain 400,000,000 feet of logs, mostly pine, with some hard wood. The company has also purchased the Kingston Lumber company's plant at Laurel, with a capacity of 150,000 feet a day.

TRIAL OF T. W. HARVEY DRAWING TO A CLOSE.

Pittsburg, May 28.—The trial of Thomas W. Harvey, former teller of the Enterprise National bank, who is charged with falsifying the accounts and misappropriating the bank funds, is nearing the end.

When the United States court opened today counsel for Harvey said the testimony for the defense will all be in today, and he expected that the case would go to the jury some time tomorrow.

George L. Ralston, former bookkeeper of the individual ledger at the Enterprise bank, will be called for trial at the conclusion of the Harvey case.

Government Sleuths Preparing for Indictment of Big Men.

Revelations, It is Said, Will Startle the Country.

Denver, Colo., May 28.—The Rocky Mountain News today says: That the federal inquisition now in progress in Denver involves some of the largest corporations in America and that indictments will be returned against men who are rated as multi-millionaires and captains of industry, known as well in Wall street as in Colorado, is the latest development in connection with the probing of the grand jury. No less than 120 secret service men now make their headquarters in Denver, this small army of government sleuths having rented a large portion of the fifth floor of an office building, from where they are spreading the net that is tightening about victims in high places. L. C. Wheeler, in the service of the department of justice at Washington, is in charge of the secret service men and he expresses the belief that there will be some startling revelations in the near future.

DOUBTFUL

If Denmark Will Sell Danish West Indies to United States.

Copenhagen, May 28.—It is stated here that the question of acquisition of the Danish West Indies by the United States has been informally broached by the American minister, Mr. O'Brien, in conversation with the Danish foreign minister, Count Levetzau. It is considered, however, that political and other reasons will prevent Denmark from consenting to the sale. There is little probability that the government will be able to obtain a majority in the parliament in support of the proposition.

PRINTER FINDS WATCH.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 28.—E. N. Kirk of St. Paul has recovered his watch, lost Friday night at the Great Northern depot. Bernheimer-Converse Case Decided in Favor of Latter.

Bernheimer Estate Must Pay in Case of Thresher Failure.

Stockholders Are Liable for the Amount of Stock Held.

Washington, May 28.—In the case of Bernheimer vs. Converse, coming from the United States circuit court of the Southern district of New York, the supreme court of the United States yesterday rendered a decision favorable to Converse. Bernheimer is an executor under the will of the late Simon Bernheimer of New York, who was the owner of 200 shares of capital stock of the Minnesota Thresher company, whose place of business was at Stillwater, Minn. When that concern failed the estate was assessed $3,600 under the Minnesota law, making stockholders in corporations liable for the obligations of the company in an amount equal to the stock held by them. Payment was refused on the ground that the proceeding is contrary to the provision of the constitution, prohibiting the taking of property without due process of law. The opinion was by Justice Day, but was announced by Chief Justice Fuller.

TWO FATALLY STABBED

Huntington, W. Va., May 28.—Henry Wright, a wealthy contractor of this city, and his son, Claude Newman, were fatally stabbed by Clell Perkins and Thomas Lyons here last night. Wright and his nephew were driving to the Wright home, south of the city, and just before arriving there discovered Perkins and Lyons on Wright's premises.

Upon Wright censuring Perkins and Lyons for trespassing, they turned on him and made a deadly assault with knives. The assailants are still at large.

CHICAGO STREET CAR IS BLOWN FROM TRACK BY EXPLOSION OF TORPEDO

MISS FRANCES LAWTON, Eldest Daughter of Gen. Lawton, Hero of the Philippines, Who Will Unveil Monument to His Memory in Indianapolis, on Memorial Day.

Lifted From the Rails and Dumped Into Roadway.

Two Men Badly Injured and Others Somewhat Hurt.

Police Searching for the Perpetrators of the Outrage.

Chicago, May 28.—Two men were badly injured by broken glass, and a score of others sustained slight injuries today when a street car on the Calumet Electric railway was blown from the track by a torpedo at Ninety-third street and South Chicago avenue. The explosion lifted the car from the track and dumped it into the roadway. The car was crowded with men, and the panic that ensued, many were thrown down and trampled upon.

A rumor which found considerable credence was that the torpedo was planted with the original design of blowing up prospective passengers on the gambling boat City of Traverse, whose landing place is about a block away, the theory advanced being that it was planted either by religious fanatics or by rivals of the City of Traverse crowd. The police are investigating this report, but have found no evidence to substantiate it.

BONFIRES UTILIZED

To Prevent Damage by Frost in State of Ohio.

The Temperature Drops to Forty Degrees Above Zero.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 28.—The temperature dropped to 40 degs. above zero last night. This record has been equalled only twice before since the weather bureau was established in this city in 1871. Throughout the fruit belt along the south shore of Lake Erie huge bonfires were kept burning last night with a view to preventing damage by frost to young fruit. Owing to the fact that there was a strong wind blowing nearly all night it is not believed that the damage by frost will be heavy in this section. From other points in the state, however, reports indicate much destruction. A dispatch from Zanesvile says there was a killing frost throughout that county, and the entire Muskingum valley last night, and fruit has been damaged.

Lexington, Ky., May 28.—A heavy frost fell all over Eastern and Central Kentucky last night. It is feared that it killed all fruit and early vegetables. This is the coldest weather ever known in this section at this season of the year.

THE COST WOULD BE TOO GREAT

To Transform Cruiser Into Mine Ship Without Appropriation.

Washington, May 28.—The navy department has been obliged to abandon its plan to transform the cruiser San Francisco into a mine ship, because the change will involve the expenditure of more than $200,000, and consequently would require a congressional appropriation. The San Francisco is now at Norfolk, where the work was to have been undertaken. The plan was to equip this ship with a plant capable of handling rapidly and with reasonable safety what are known as floating and submerged mines, such as were used with great effect during the Russo-Japanese war. A properly equipped mine ship can place there elements of coast defense in any ordinary harbor in sufficient numbers to insure protection in the course of a day or two, whereas, many days and even weeks would be consumed by an ordinary vessel in the accomplishment of the same amount of work.

The conversion of the cruiser Baltimore, now at New York, into a mining ship, is also temporarily suspended for similar reasons.

COMMANDER BOOTH TENDERS SYMPATHY.

Canton, Ohio, May 28.—"My tenderest sympathy in the transition of your beloved sister. Your consolation will be the comforting of her long sorrow in everalsting reunion. Commander Evangeline Booth."

This expression of sorrow from Miss Booth, head of the Salvation Army posts, who visited the president's widow in her Canton home several times, was delivered to Mrs. M. C. Barber today by Adjt. Runcie.

Miss Booth instructed Adjt. Runcie to send a floral tribute to the McKinley home as the remembrance of herself and the army.

SUPPORT OF JAPANESE

Will be Given Armament Restriction If Introduced by Britain.

Victoria, B. C., May 28.—Japanese newspapers received by the steamer Empress of India from Yokohama contain an interview with Count Okauma, one of Japan's most prominent statesmen, regarding The Hague peace conference, in which he says:

"If Great Britain introduces an armament restriction proposal for debate, Japan will support it, and possibly also the United States. It would be difficult to speculate, though, upon the probable attitude of the European powers upon the proposal. With regard to the regulation of military and naval battles, rights and duties of neutrals, regulation of wireless telegraphy and contraband of war, Japan and Russia had a claim to advance their views in view of their practical experiences. As far as Japan is concerned, the conference affords the best opportunity of promoting her position in international politics."

USE HOUNDS IN SEARCH

Dogs May Discover Some Trace of Missing Shepherd Child.

Bemidji and Surrounding Towns Excited Over the Affair.

Bemidji, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—No trace can be found of the 3-year-old son of John S. Shepherd, who disappeared from his home two miles east of Solway last Friday. A party of searchers numbering 150 men has scoured the country for miles around the Shepherd home, but without result. Not even a piece of clothing has turned up to indicate the presence of the child or blood or other indications that the little fellow has been killed.

A big swamp almost entirely surrounds the Shepherd home and large searching parties have covered every foot of the swamp to no avail. The boy was in the care of his older brother last Friday and was seen but a few minutes before being missed. Search was at once made, but nothing whatever was found to indicate where the child had gone. Word was sent to Solway and many men hastened to the Shepherd house and searched diligently.

There were tracks of a bear near the house, and some believe the boy was carried off by the animal. Every foot of ground has been thoroughly inspected, but not even footprints can be found to indicate the child's presence. There is much excitement in Solway, Shevlin and Bagley over the mystery, and many from these towns have joined in the search for the missing boy. Last night word was sent to Bagley for assistance, and this noon William Wild arrived from Bagley with his blood hounds, which will be put on the track with the hope of locating the direction in which the child has gone or recovering his body if dead.

The parents of the little boy are almost crazed, as they believe that some wild animal has made away with their son. There is talk of a reward being offered for his recovery, dead or alive.

He Is a Vote Getter, Which Party Badly Needs.

Says Roosevelt Cannot Possibly Accept the Nomination.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ex-Governor Merriam of Minnesota is in Washington today, and while he says he is out of politics altogether he still endeavors to keep in touch with events. Mr. Merriam said that he had just returned from Virginia where he has some considerable deals in real estate on hand. In speaking of the clamor which, seems to be abroad for Theodore Roosevelt for a third term, so called, he said he did not believe that the president would for one single moment consent to a stampede in the next national Republican convention in his favor.

"Should such a thing mature," said Former Governor Merriam, "it is my belief that Mr. Roosevelt would decline the nomination, and thus force the adjournment of the national convention and the calling of a new one. He could scarce do otherwise in view of his repeated declarations that he is not a candidate for renomination and especially as he has permitted his right bower, Secretary

By Any Present Prospect for Improvement in Stock Market.

London, May 28. — Lord Rothschild's views of the prospects of the stock market are not encouraging. In an interview this afternoon he said he could see no immediate prospect of improvement, adding:

"The best that can be said is that the markets are no worse today. Perhaps they are slightly better. But with President Roosevelt attacking the railways in one part of the world, the income tax question and other problems in France, and the Socialist movement in England, the public are killing the goose that laid the golden eggs, and we can expect nothing more than what the market positions reveal."

PACKERS WORSTED

Chicago, May 28.—Because of the enforcement by the big packers of their new rule requiring post mortem inspection of cows and heifers as a condition of purchase, only the high class grades of beef were sold at the stock yards yesterday for the Chicago trade.

It was the first day of the enforcement of the post mortem rule and the first skirmish between the packers and shippers of live stock and the commission men. The big packing firms did not succeed in buying a solitary cow or heifer, according to the return made to the commission men at the close of business. None of the 3,000 animals numbered in the list of the day's receipts as "cow stuff" remained unsold, however, all being sent to other cities, and on this showing the commission insisted that the big firms were routed in the first skirmish.

In this slump the big packers professed to find evidence of their power. They were not sanguine of the final outcome, however, the commission men's failure to get "stuck" on the day's receipts being an unlooked for development.

Causes that contributed to the success of the commission men in their efforts to sell out everything were the co-operation of the shippers in the country and the demands of the "independent" trade. Renewed appeals to the country buyers and shippers to "keep their cows and heifers" out of the Chicago market for the present were sent out over wires.

ELECTRICAL APPARATUS

Has Been Greatly Improved by Recent Manufacture.

Growth of the Industry Has Been Wonderful of Late.

Washington, May 28.—A bulletin issued today by the census bureau contains a report on the manufacture, according to the census of 1905, of electrical machinery, apparatus and supplies. It says that during the five year period from 1900 there have been extensive improvements in the utilization of electricity and electrical machinery and radical innovation in electrical devices for general use. In 1905 there were 784 establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of electrical machinery, apparatus and supplies with a capital of $174,066,026. There was a gain since 1900 of 34.9 per cent in the number of establishments

Bemidji, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—No trace can be found of the 3-year-old son of Joan S. Shepherd, who disappeared from his home two miles east of Solway last Friday. Lizzie Brooks Arrested in Superior on Robbery Charge.

Dr. B. I. Bradford Also Arrested for Petty Larceny.

Lizzie Brooks, a half-breed Indian woman, who is well known in police circles at the Head of the Lakes, is in trouble again in Superior, having been arrested last night, accused of having "touched" Thomas Cook for the sum of $50 at the West hotel. Detective Dill made the arrest.

The woman was arraigned in municipal court this morning, and was bound over to the next term of circuit court. Her bond was fixed at $500. The woman claims to be the wife of Dr. B. I. Bradford of this city, and it is known that they have lived together for some time.

Bradford, who is a young man, at one time well to do, is also being held at police headquarters on a charge of petty larceny. Some years ago Bradford had quite a practice at the Head of the Lakes, but owes his downfall to the use of opium.

Lizzie Brooks has been arrested many times in Duluth and other cities in the vicinity, and it is generally the case that when she is arrested, B. I. Bradford is placed behind the bars on some charge or other.

RESTRAINING ORDER.

Robert Kelly Would Stop Work of Paving Third Street.

According to a temporary restraining order issued yesterday by Court Commissioner Perkins, the city of Superior and Contractor E. A. Dahl are restrained from paving Third street with brick, from Banks to Lamborn avenue, as contracted for. The complaint in the case was signed by Robert Kelly, president of the Land & River company.

The order served on city officials and Contractor Dahl by Deputy Sheriff Miller is returnable in the superior court within twenty days. There has been much dispute regarding the paving of Third street. The subject has been under discussion for the past year. The Land & River company and other property owners protested on the high cost of material when it finally was decided to pave the street, but the council ordered the board of public works to go ahead with the improvement, nevertheless. Numerous errors and irregularities are alleged by Mr. Kelly in the proceedings leading up to letting the contract.

J. F. CHAMBERLAIN DIES.

The death of J. F. Chamberlain of the firm of Chamberlain & Co., occurred at 12:15 this morning at his home in the Boardway flats. Bright's disease was the immediate cause of death.

It was then discovered that he was suffering from Bright's disease. He has been a resident of Superior for eleven years, during which time he conducted a book and stationery store. He was 55 years old.

His wife, mother and sister, Mrs. Anna Taylor of Duluth, survive Mr. Chamberlain. A short funeral service will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence after which the remains will be forwarded to Pontiac, Mich., where his mother is residing.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

CONCERNING WOMEN

Mrs. J. A. Watterworth entertained this afternoon at her home on East Superior strêt in honor of Miss L. L. Garvin, who will leave in a week for a year's rest at her home in Wheeling, W. Va. The guests were the members of the board of directors of the Young Women's Christian association of which Miss Garvin has been a member since its organization in this city. In her capacity as treasurer during the five years of the association's work, Miss Garvin has rendered invaluable service, and the regret at her departure is widespread. The members of the board, who understand better perhaps than others her untiring devotion to the association, presented her this afternoon with a beautiful seal leather shopping bag. Miss Garvin has resigned her position with the Oliver Iron Mining company, and will leave with her mother for their home in West Virginia the first of next week.

GYMNASIUM CLUB

Is Seen in Interesting Exhibition at Lyceum.

The exhibition by the members of the Duluth Gymnasium club which was given last evening at the Lyceum was a marked success, and a large audience witnessed the maneuvers of the members of the club in the various drills and dances with much interest.

MISS MARY D. McFADDEN,
President of Duluth Gymnasium Club.

The club members were assisted by local musicians in a musical program which constituted the first part of the entertainment. Selections were given by Flaten's orchestra, which is always heard with pleasure, and the soloists were Emily Ellis Woodward, Oliver Colbentson and Louis Dworshak. Mrs. Woodward was heard in three numbers which were charmingly sung. They were "Spring Song" by Del Riego, the exquisite Lang number "The Day Dawn" and "Morning Sweet" by Aylward. Mrs. Woodward responded to an encore with the dainty "The Lass with the Delicate Air." Mr. Dworshak sang two Roekel numbers with good effect and the violin solo by Oliver Colbentson was much enjoyed. The accompanists were Mrs. Fred G. Bradbury and Miss Elizabeth Morton.

Special interest was centered in the drills of the club members. The first number was a hoop drill by children. There were quite a few children, and they were dressed in bloomers and white blouses. Miss Ruth Roberts, physical director of the club, was also on the stage. The hoops with which the children performed were wound with blue and white ribbons, and they did several interesting little stunts with the hoops, such as going through them head first and then feet first, and other things. A dance of the poppies by the members of the evening class followed In this dance there were girls of several sizes. There were girls who bobbed with the serenity and ease of a very light rubber ball, and girls who had sat down in a dusty place before coming on the stage, but they all did the dance gracefully and with ease, and it was a pleasant number. Club swinging by three young girls was well done, and the other numbers by the advanced class, which appeared in a wand drill, the evening class in a dumb bell drill, and the advanced evening class in tambourine dance were pleasing. The game by the children in which they stood up Indian clubs and stepped with more or less agility between the standing clubs, trying with tightly clutched bloomers, not to knock them down was greatly enjoyed by the audience—and the players.

The accompanist for the drills and dances was Miss Myrtle Perry.

The most interesting feature of the evening closed the program. It was a fencing bout between Miss Roberts and Prof. J. Romieux. Prof. Romieux may have been able to fence a little better, but there wasn't a doubt in anybody's mind about who looked the nicer. Miss Roberts wore a short black, very full, circular skirt with a white blouse and black slippers and a big gauntlet. Miss Roberts and her antagonist both saluted each other and the audience, with the handle of their foil held at their chins and the blade straight up in the air. Then along in the course of events they stamped their feet and started to fence. It was very interesting. "Touchez" called out Prof. Romieux along about the last round, and then in another minute he said "Touchez second." One couldn't hear Miss Roberts, whether she lost count or didn't believe in letting the fact be known. She admitted later, however, that Prof Romieux could fence better, but then—

The friends of the Duluth Gymnasium club, of which Miss Mary McFadden is president, are most pleased at the progress of the club under Miss Roberts' efficient directorship, and it is hoped that after another year of its existence that another exhibition may be viewed. Last evening's affair was a most pleasing success.

A grand march will be the first feature of the program, and will be followed by an informal program. There will be several readings by members of the elocution classes to be followed by a spelling bee. The old fashioned songs sung by the chorus of members and their guests will be the final feature of the evening until the serving of refreshments which will be in keeping with the old time nature of the entertainment. All interested are invited to attend, provided they are not people who are eligible to membership in the Young Men's association.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Willow twig apples, $1 a peck.
Green beets, 15 cents a qt.
New beets, 8 cents a bunch.
Strawberries, 18 cents a basket.
Cucumbers, 15 cents each.
Calves' tongues, 15 cents each.
Calves' brains, 10 cents a set.
Pork tenderloin, 28 cents a lb.
Green pease, 18 cents a qt.

Willow twig apples. Caesar, or Marcus Aurelius, or Ruskin, or whoever it was that inquired about what was in a name, should have followed up his interrogation with a personal investigation. Maybe he did and arrived at a conclusion. Far be it from this column to suggest that he didn't but the fact remains that he is most often quoted with just the pithy question, "What's in a name." There is a haunting suggestion that he followed that up by the rather foolish statement that a rose by another name smells as sweet. Evidently this author of yester year was not a subscriber to "Suggestion" or "New Thought" or any magazines of advance thought. To return to the apples! At this time of year one does not care especially for apples. A sign on the barrel says that the apples within retail for $1 a peck. One doesn't care. They are fairly good looking apples, nicely spotted with red and green. "What kind of apples are these?" you casually inquire. "Willow twigs" announces the market man without once knowing of the poetry he is saying. Willow twig apples. Is there anything on earth you would rather have?

THE POLICE COURT GRIST

Duluth had quite a lively little kidnaping scare yesterday afternoon, which for a time was quite as exciting as the Marvin case or the Minneapolis affair, over which the Twin City papers have been raising such an excitement during the last few days. About 4:30 yesterday afternoon a call was received from Mrs. J. P. Rossman of Woodland, saying that her little daughter, Grace, had disappeared very suddenly and they could find no trace of her. The suddenness of the little girl's disappearance together with the fact that the cases of child kidnaping and murders have been so numerous lately, at once aroused the fears of Mrs. Rossman.

The police also got quite worked up over the affair and Detective Schulte was hurriedly sent to the scene, closely followed by Patrolmen Stewart and Wanwick, to assist in the search.

Mr. Schulte had just stepped off the car, however, and was talking to Mrs. Rossman, who by this time was quite distracted, when Mrs. Rossman exclaimed: "Why, there she comes now!" and the little girl was seen toddling down from the hill where she had gone "to look for berries."

A hat, a cuff and an umbrella are the clues upon which the police are working in an effort t olocate the man who assaulted Adolph Braff of 2105 West First street, Sunday night, near the Congregational church at Second street and Lake avenue. Braff says that his assailant jumped on him from behind and that when he had succeeded in putting him to ignominous flight, the hat, the cuff, and the umbrella were strewn about the scene of battle.

The affray was going in fine shape for a time, as the results testify, and, though Braff says he gave his opponent the worst of it, he is anxious for his arrest.

Braff says he thinks he knows the man who did it and the police are now looking for him.

ON THE IRON RANGES

MANY OPTIONS ON PROPERTIES

Oliver Mining Company Still Doing Lot of Prospecting.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—More evidence is furnished that the Oliver Mining company proposes to continue its activity in taking options west and south of Grand Rapids.

A large teritory will be thoroughly explored the next four months. On what is considered reliable authority it is said that not less than twenty-five drills will be in operation within a short time on land just southwest of this town. The work already done in that location indicates that the Oliver people are convinced that there is enough iron indication to justify a thorough tapping of a large tract of land. An option was taken this week on two forties near here, owned by J. A. McDonald of St. Cloud. This property is said to contain a heavy deposit of ore.

MR. GIFFIN HAS CHANGED MIND

Hibbing, Minn., May 28.—R. L. Giffin will continue to act as the secretary of the St. Louis County Fair association despite his announced intention of resigning and his letter to that effect to the executive committee.

At the earnest solicitation of the members of the committee and the appeals of business men generally, to say nothing of his host of friends, Mr. Griffin has reconsidered his action and has been persuaded to withdraw his resignation.

The executive committee held a meeting Monday afternoon and declined to accept Mr. Giffin's resignation. Later he consented to withdraw it and his action met with universal commendation as it is conceded his loss would be keenly felt by the association.

ANNUAL JUNIORS' BALL.

Social Event of Hibbing High School to be Large Affair.

Hibbing, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual ball to be given by the juniors of the Hibbing high school to the seniors promises to be a largely attended and very successful aair, as invitations have been issued to 250 couples, while extensive plans are being worked out by the committee on arrangements.

The ball will be given in Powers' theater on the evening of June 7. The hall will be appropriately decorated. La Brosse's orchestra will furnish the music.

The following have been appointed chaperons for the ball: Miss Rankin, Mrs. Jewitt, Mrs. Rood, Mrs. George Lerch and Mrs. Warren.

TEMPERANCE FINNS DECIDE ON A PICNIC.

Hibbing, Minn., May 28.—At a meeting held here of forty delegates, comprising the Northern Wisconsin & Minnesota Temperance league, it was decided to give a picnic at Eveleth, Aug. 18 and 19. There will be speaking, athletic games, singing and dancing.

The league, along with other similar organizations comprising the Finnish National Temperance League of America having 15,000 members, proposes to soon incorporate and as its name indicates, support the Prohibition idea.

SEWER CONTRACTORS BUSY.

Biwabik, Minn., May 28.—The camp of Pastoret & Lunz, who have the contract for the sewer work, has been established near the Iron Range depot and a large force of men is already at work. Work has been well started at the outlet to the sewer, southwest of the village limits.

RANGES IN BRIEF

Biwabik.—The Biwabik juniors defeated the Aurora Juniors at baseball here Sunday, by a score of 21 to 11.

Grand Rapids.—The village council will have the ravine on Third street filled in and replace the old wooden bridge with a stone culvert.

Ely.—T. F. Bearinger, who has had charge of the Sibley & Bearinger interests here for some time, has removed to Portland, Ore., to look after timber interests for the same concern. His family will remain here until he secures a suitable home for them in the Webfoot metropolis.

Hibbing.—Mrs. C. Donahue, who has gone to Duluth to live, was tendered a farewell party by the Modern Brotherhood Saturday night and presented with a hand painted china tea set.

Virginia.—The Virginia club has decided to move into the new Siegel building.

and of 108.1 per cent in capital, and in value of products 52.5 per cent.

In addition to the production by these establishments, there was an output of electrical machinery and supplies, valued at $18,742,033 from 128 establishments engaged primarily in other lines of manufactures.

New York, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Indiana and New Jersey reported 631 of the 784 establishments making electrical apparatus, their output being 90.1 per cent of the total. The increase in total capital was greatest in Pennsylvania, equaling 178.5 per cent, although the value of the products advanced only 37.4 per cent. The capital and value of products of the leading states follow:

	Capital.	Products.
New York	$30,643,167	$35,348,276
Illinois	21,644,783	16,700,027
Massachusetts	12,735,427	15,882,216
New Jersey	18,457,821	13,803,476
Ohio	10,408,134	11,019,235

The total value of telephone apparatus manufactured in 1905, was $15,963,698, as compared with $10,512,412 for 1900. Illinois is the great center of the telephone manufacturing industry and more than half of the total products was from this state.

An apparent falling off in the production of telegraph apparatus from $1,642,266 in 1900 to $1,111,194 in 1905 is accounted for in part by the growing custom among the larger telegraph systems of making and repairing their own apparatus.

EX-GOVERNOR MERRIAM

Taft, to enter the race, having declined at his suggestion a life position on the bench of the United States supreme court to make the running for the presidency.

"Undoubtedly President Roosevelt is very strong in all states west of the Mississippi and he has a considerable following in the South. But not withstanding all the flattering endorsements of state legislatures and other strong organizations endorsing him, I cannot conceive how he can conscientiously accept a nomination."

When questioned as to the suggestion of the name of Governor Johnson for first or second place on the ticket of the Democrats, Former Governor Merriam grew quite enthusiastic. "The Democrats could find no better man, at least for second place, and I reckon his ability is thoroughly up to a place at the head of the ticket. He is a comparatively unknown man, but he is a vote getter, and that is what our enemy, the Democracy, certainly needs. A man who carried a Republican state by the majority that Johnson did is a factor to be reckoned with, and his name is being heard quite frequently in the South."

BIJOU AUDIENCES PLEASED.

Bill Makes Big Hit With First Night Audiences.

Appreciative audiences at the Bijou last evening were regaled with a modern vaudeville bill quite as strong in many respects as the one given last week, which made a distinct hit.

Perhaps there are no acts which stand out as much as did one or two given last week but the bill as a whole is fully as strong and as entertaining as last week's program.

The Manning Trio has a merry skit, called "Troublesome Servants" which furnishes an interesting fifteen minutes. Eugene Ellsworth and Madge Burt also contribute a sketch. Theirs is based on that never-ending source of fun, married life, and is called "Home Sweet Home." It is very funny.

One of the Three Keltons is a very tiny person who accomplishes some truly remarkable dancing. The other members of the trio are agile and clever persons, and do not allow the audience to become bored while they are on the stage.

Grace Orma is a pleasing young woman and she works alone. Her singing is first class. Claire Schade, a Duluth youngster, is singing the illustrated song this week, vice Isadore Silver. Mr. Silver is suffering from a severe cold. She does very well indeed.

An amazing contortion act is accomplished this week by Cavana, who does stunts on the wire and makes a big hit with the audience. Al Johnson, contributes a monologue that pleases and the moving pictures are up to the standard.

"The Yankee Tourist."

Raymond Hitchcock in "The Yankee Tourist" will open an engagement of three performances at the Lyceum tomorrow evening, with a Memorial day matinee.

The production is under the direction of Henry W. Savage, which should be sufficient guarantee of its excellence. Mr. Hitchcock himself is very well and favorably known here from his work in "The Yankee Consul" and his new comic opera is said to fit him even better than the old.

Roselle Knott.

The story of "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire" which Roselle Knott and her associate players will present at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday, deals with a woman whose time has been devoted to other interests than those of her children, and who finds the attention of the children is given almost entirely to her husband. It is a story of heart interest which attracts the careful attention of society in general and deals with a condition of affairs that one can find in any city.

Comedy at Metropolitan.

The Frank E. Long stock company is certainly making its audiences at the Metropolitan this week laugh. Their play for the first half of this week—until Thursday afternoon—is "Elected to Congress," and it is described as one big laugh. Politics and love enter into the plot. Nat Goodwin at one time used this piece as a vehicle for exploiting his ability. The Long company will give another matinee Thursday, when the bill will be changed to "From Rags to Riches." This play will hold the boards all the rest of the week.

A Tired Stomach

Does not get much good for you out of what you eat, for it does not digest much—it is wasteful. It feels sore and lame and is easily distressed and often upset by food. The best treatment is a course of which is positively unequalled for all stomach troubles.

For testimonials of remarkable cures send for Book on Dyspepsia, No. 5.

NEW WARDEN IN THE CITY

He Advocates More Strict Enforcement of Game Laws.

Carlos Avery of Hutchinson, newly appointed chief state game warden to succeed S. F. Fullerton, is in the city today on official business connected with his position. This is Mr. Avery's first trip to Duluth and St. Louis county since he was appointed several months ago.

Northern Minnesota will get more fish fry of a choice kind this year than ever before, according to a statement made this morning by Mr. Avery. At least 100,000 trout alone will be planted in the various rivers and creeks in the northern section of the state, and Mr. Avery says that they are of far better and sturdier quality than have ever been sent out before. He says they are considerably larger, and more of them will survive than is usually the case.

In part, the purpose of Mr. Avery's visit to Duluth and Northern Minnesotaa at this time is to create and build up public opinion in favor of a more strict enforcement of the game laws. He expects to have several additional game wardens to assist him throughout the state this year, and the majority of these will be stationed in Northern Minnesota.

"It is in Northern Minnesota where most of the game remains," said Mr. Avery, "and it is in this section that we want to preserve it. This is especially true of the deer and moose, as the big game is absolutely extinct in most of the middle and southern parts of the state, whereas small game still abounds there in some districts.

"We have already secured a number of convictions this spring for shooting moose and deer out of season, and we will get more as fast as we hear of violations of the law."

Mr. Avery will return to the Twin Cities this evening.

The Weather.

A cravenette rain coat is a pretty handy garment to have these days. The "Fitwell" is selling their $15 coats at $11.75 this week. Don't miss this chance. 112 West Superior street. Store open Wednesday evening until 10 o'clock.

FAVOR TAR MACADAM.

Ironwood, Mich., May 28.—The special committee which visited Duluth to look over the paving in that city with a view to ascertaining which style was the best to use here, is unanimously in favor of tar macadam. They found seven different kinds of pavement in Duluth, but the people of that city were universally in favor of tar macadam, and the the committee thinks that it is by far the best pavement to put down here. It is not a very expensive pavement, and wears well and looks good. The members of the committee speak very highly of the manner in which they were used by the people in charge of the street work in Duluth, saying that every possible courtesy was shown them.

JAIL BIRD ESCAPES.

Inmate of Hansboro, N. D. Jail Makes Successful Getaway.

Hansboro, N. D., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Kerstein, bettter known as "Society Bill," made his escape from the county jail early Saturday morning. He dug a hole through the masonry large enough to admit his body, twisted aside the steel bars as if they were made of wax, pushed out the storm sash, and was gone.

To prove that he was no novice at the business, the manner in which he did the work disproves his theory.

Sheriff Taylor was away from the building the fore part of the evening, coming home at about 11:30. The other prisoners retired early. Being allowed the liberty of the corridor, the rest was easy. Placing a quilt on the floor to deaden all noise, the digger proceeded to dig out.

TOMAHAWK SHIVERED.

The Wisconsin Town Had an Unusually Cold Sunday.

Tomahawk, Wis., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomahawk experienced a May snow storm Sunday. Weather of the kind that surpasses the tales of the oldest inhabitants has prevailed here during the entire month of May, but all weather records of the present month went down before Sunday's storm. In fact, all May weather records for the past ten years were surpassed. Snow began falling at noon and continued until replaced by a cold rain about 6 p. m. Streets and buildings were covered with snow, but the snow melted rapidly upon the wet ground.

TOO MANY STUDENTS.

The University of Minnesota Must Limit Them in Certain Departments.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 28.—Because of limited accommodation at the Minnesota university, the number of students to be allowed to enroll in certain departments is to be limited. This course of action was inaugurated Monday, in an annunocement made at the university that only seventy-five of the class of over 100 freshmen in the dental college will be allowed to register for the sophomore year and the usual "first come first served" plan will be followed without regard to the class standings of the present freshmen.

GOVERNOR TO ATTEND.

Minnesota Executive Will Go to the Grand Forks Meeting.

Grand Forks, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson of Minnesota, has notified Secretary Fegan of the local U. C. T. council, that he will attend the session of the grand council of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Canada in Grand Forks, June 7 and 8. Governor Burke of North Dakota, will also be here. Preparations for the convention are about completed. A fine souvenir booklet is being issued.

HOLD MEET THURSDAY

The High School Athletes Again Make Change in Date.

Late this afternoon it was announced that the high school track and field meet between the Duluth Centrals and Blaine of Superior will be held Thursday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, at the West end driving park, instead of Friday afternoon, as announced on the sporting page today. The boys first intended to hold the meet Friday, but there being no valid objections to the holding of it Thursday afternoon, and the day being more favorable than a day on which school is in session, the date was changed.

WILL PAY FINES.

Prosecution of Honduras Lottery Cases Will Come to an Easy End.

Wilmington, Del., May 28.—Indications that the end of the government prosecution of the Honduras lottery cases will come soon by the easy process of pleas of guilty, and the imposition of fines were apparent today, in relation to the indictments against John N. Rogers, Jessie K. Bayliss and Lester R. Bayliss of this city. They were indicted by the federal grand jury at Mobile, Ala., the former for sending from one state to another the lottery tickets which were printed at Rogers' printing establishment in this city. In response to subpoenas issued by the United States district court at Mobile, Ala., citing them to appear there on June 4, they will start for Mobile on Saturday next. Their present intention is to plead guilty to the indictments, and the presumption is that the penalty will be a fine, without imprisonment. This fine, according to arrangements with high officials of the late Honduran lottery, will be paid out of the company's treasury.

BOLD ROBBERY UNDER NOSE OF THE BOBBIES.

London, May 28.—Almost under the noses of the police who were guarding the royal academy pictures now on exhibition in Burlington house, one of the private galleries in Bond street, just around the corner, was swept clean of its pictures during the night. The thieves got away with fifty-five canvasses without leaving a clue to their identity. The pictures belonged to an artist who was to have opened an exhibition of them today.

Berlin, May 28.—The foreign office regards the destruction of the German mission station at Lienchow near Pakhoi, China, as being without political significance and as only due to a local outbreak of mob violence.

Going Away?

Our new Third floor department is featuring a new and very strong line of trunks and suit cases.

We have lower priced trunks, but we call special attention to our $12.50 special, which is not shown elsewhere.

It's featherweight, yet strong—it can be carried up-stairs quite handily.

It is slatless—yet a baggage smasher can't do much damage to it—it's a three-ply veneer with fibre binding—has corner of malleable steel.

A steamer trunk like the above costs ten dollars here.

Other trunks $3.00 up.

Linen lined — best brass fittings.

Ladies' or men's sizes—"world beaters," our salesmen call them—at $5.

Strong? See the case and you'll believe it.

Women's or men's sizes at $8.50.

POLICEMEN INDISCREET

But No Criminal Evidence Found in Gould Investigation.

New York, May 28.—The investigation of the police department in connection with the Gould divorce case has disclosed no criminal evidence against any of the officers involved, according to a statement made today by Police Commissioner Bingham. The investigation did, however, develop the fact that some of the officers were guilty of indiscreet and improper work. The commissioner also said that some of the officers did not tell the truth when questioned and that they will be dealt with later on. It is the commissioner's intention not to permit the investigation to rest at this stage. "We shall continue to investigate along same lines we have followed," said Gen. Bingham, "and that will be an investigation of the police department and not an investigation of the 'Gould case.'"

WEST DULUTH

PROTEST IN DISFAVOR

West Duluth People Want to See Ramsey Street Paved.

Commercial Club May Take Up Objections to Plan.

By some means or other, the communication of Oneota street property owners, protesting against the paving of Oneota and Ramsey streets from Forty-sixth avenue west to Central avenue, was sidetracked and did not come up at the council last night. It is very probable that the instigators of the protest withheld it for the time being, wishing more time to lay their plans.

There is a strong sentiment in West Duluth in favor of the pavement of the street for the nine blocks proposed, and the efforts to block the improvement are frowned upon. The property owners on Ramsey street, who signed the petition, are very much in favor of having the work done, and they do not look kindly on the efforts of the Oneota street property holders to prevent it.

At the meeting of the Commercial club next Friday night it is probable that some action will be taken. The Commercial club originally conceived the plan of paving Ramsey street, and it was through the efforts of a committee from that body that the necessary number of signatures was secured to the petition. The club has the co-operation of the signers with them in the pushing of the preliminary plans for the improvement, and it is probable that every influence will be brought to bear on the council to take cognizance of the wishes of the Ramsey street property owners and have the street paved.

IRVING ALUMNI

Banquet to be Held at Wade's Hall Friday Evening.

The arrangements for the twelfth annual banquet of the Irving School Alumni association have been completed, and the affair promises to be the biggest ever held by the graduates of the school. Heretofore, the banquet has been held each year in the school building, but this year, realizing that the crowd would be too large for the limited quarters at the school, it was decided to hold it in Wade's hall next Friday evening.

There are a large number of alumni of Irving school in West Duluth, Duluth and surrounding places, and it is expected that every one who can possibly put in an appearance will do so. In addition, each member of the association has the privilege of inviting friends, and it is expected that the hall will be crowded. The program of musical numbers, speeches and toasts is an excellent one, and will add greatly to the evening's entertainment. Following the banquet there will be dancing.

Following is the program:

HOCKEY PLAYER PLEADS GUILTY

"Tuff" Admits to Court at Houghton He Attempted Burglary.

Houghton, Mich., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Theophile Bellefleuelle, better known as "Tuff," when arraigned in the circuit court here yesterday, pleaded guilty to the charge of attempted burglary. He will be sentenced later. Bellefleuelle came here as a hockey player from the Dominion, late last winter, but did not make good. The reason he did not make good with the Houghton team, it is claimed, was because he rifled the clothing of the rest of the players during a game in which he was not on the ice. "Tuff" was in some ugly scrapes in Western Canada, so the story goes, before he came here.

Frank X. Provost, who was once tried and found guilty and sentenced to the branch state's prison at Marquette, on the charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, less than the crime of murder, will never come up for trial again. His retrial was ordered by the supreme court, and it was continued from term to term till this spring. Yesterday the case was nolle prossed.

MAY WORK INJUSTICE

Council's Plan to Limit Saloons Might Cause Hardship.

Difficult to Draw Up Resolution Covering the Situation.

While the majority of Duluth people are with Alderman McEwen in his effort launched in the meeting of the city council last evening to prevent the growth of a new Bowery when the coming of the Wisconsin Central shall have wiped out the present congested saloon district, there promises to be some difficulty in formulating an ordinance or even a council policy which would be fair to all persons and would effectively bring about this end. This job is up to Alderman McEwen and City Clerk H. W. Cheadle and is to be completed before next Monday night.

"One of the worst features of the proposition to limit the number of saloons in a block is the monopoly chance it gives," said City Clerk Cheadle this morning. "And then when you forbid more than four saloons in a block and state it as a council policy not to grant any new licenses in that block, you give the landlords an awful hold on the saloonkeepers. They can't move anywhere in a good business district because all the blocks will be occupied to the extent allowed. All through the business section of the town we have at least four saloons to a block now. The landlord then could charge a very unfair rent for his building and the saloonkeeper would have to suffer unjustly.

"A new man coming in would have to seek an out-of-the-way place where there was but little business, in order to find a block where the numerical limit was not already reached. The move is a good one all right, but I think we are going to have a warm time getting any formal resolution into shape that will be fair to all parties."

With the consideration of the proposition the problem of where the new Bowery, were such an institution permitted, would locate, comes up. The general opinion seems to be that the district between Seventh avenue west and Fifteenth or Twelfth avenue west on Michigan street would lend itself very well for such a district, the rocks along the north side of the street being cut away to permit the establishment of buildings. This would be in fairly close proximity to the depots, the first requisite for a Bowery, and would in fact be almost as advantageous for the saloon men as their present locations.

While it is agreed that a Bowery anywhere is a decided detriment to a city, if ones were a necessity this is a place which could be best spared for the purpose. It is a district which would never lend itself very readily to any other branch of retail trade and which is almost untraveled even at present by women and children afoot. Police surveillance would be easier than on the present Bowery and it would be situated in a place where people coming from the stations would very seldom be compelled to travel on foot.

That the Bowery is still a detriment wherever placed is generally admitted, however, and Duluthians are backing the council in its effort to prevent the growth of another district such as at present exists.

COWBOY PEGG FAILS TO WIN HIS WAGER.

Washington, May 28.—President Roosevelt today made the following entry on a paper brought to the White House by Foyed Pegg, the cowboy, who left the mayor's office, Chicago, at noon, May 6, on a pony on a wager that he would get to Washington in three weeks:

"Theodore Roosevelt, the White House, Washington, 11:50 a. m., May 28."

Pegg was allowed until 7 o'clock last night to complete the trip, but missed it by just sixteen miles. He was compelled to leave his pony at Rocheville, because of the bad road, but reached Washington himself on time. He lost the wager.

SITE IS NOT KNOWN YET

Minneapolis Newspaper Prints Pipe Dream About Steel Plant.

J. B. Cotton Denies it, and Says "Not Yet."

With a somewhat tardy zeal, the Minneapolis Journal announced yesterday that the name of the arm of the United States Steel corporation which is to operate the new steel plant at Duluth, would be called the Minnesota Steel company, a fact which was made known more than a month ago by The Herald. The Minneapolis newspaper also announced that a site for the plant had been chosen and that it was located on the St. Louis river just beyond West Duluth.

J. B. Cotton of the Steel corporation's legal department, stated this morning that the article in the Journal, which was reprinted by the Duluth morning paper today, was premature and unofficial.

"No announcements concerning the location of a site for the steel plant have been made, nor can they be just now," said Mr. Cotton this morning.

As a matter of fact, there was nothing tangible in the tale from Minneapolis. That the name of the corporation will be the Minnesota Steel company is well known and was stated some time ago, and it is reasonably certain that the plant will be located somewhere on the St. Louis river, between West Duluth and Fond du Lac.

A site somewhere in the locality mentioned has been conceded to be the most likely one, but official confirmation of this supposition has yet to come.

The fact that Mr. Cotton's office called up the secretary of state the other day to ascertain for a certainty that there was not already a corporation in the state known as the Minnesota Steel company, probably led to the Minneapolis pipe-dreamer's effusion.

A Minneapolis man named Lyman is said to own large tracts along the St. Louis river and he may have given some inkling of what the plans of the Steel corporation are.

It is expected, however, that the location of the site for the steel plant will be made known officially in a short time.

NEW BACILLUS APPEARS IN MANCHESTER SUBURB.

London, May 28.—A new bacillus is responsible for an epidemic which has appeared at Preswich, a suburb of Manchester. Those attacked have a swelling of the throat, leading to loss of voice, inability to swallow, fever and weakness.

It was at first thought that the disease was diphtheretic, but the professor, after investigation, says that the bacillus of diphtheria is absent, and that the disease seems to be caused by a minute globular bacillus which is new and distinct.

THE UNIVERSITY SUMMER SCHOOL

Fifteenth Annual Session From June 17 to July 27.

Minneapolis, May 28.—The fifteenth annual session of the university summer school will be held at the university from June 17th to July 27th.

The school is especially planned for the needs of teachers, and courses will be offered in all the subjects required for the first grade and the professional teachers' certificates.

Teachers of music will be particularly interested in a course on professional methods for all grades, practice in advanced sight-singing, ear-training, and theory of school music, given by Miss Helen M. Trask, supervisor of music in the Minneapolis public schools.

Special facilities are afforded by a course in physical culture, under the direction of Miss Anna M. Butner of the university.

Miss Henrietta Clopath has been again engaged to conduct courses in composition and design and in decorative and industrial art work, supplemented by lectures on the principles of art teaching.

For the first time opportunity will be given in the school for those interested in domestic science to pursue a special course in cooking. This will be under the direction of Miss Shepperd of the college of agriculture.

A new line of work is announced also in the elements of nature study. More attention is being given to this study year by year and the need of more adequate preparation has been strongly felt by many teachers. Miss Florence E. Lillie of the Minneapolis public schools will conduct these classes.

The best opportunity for manual training teachers in Minnesota is found in the courses arranged for them in connection with the university summer school.

C. C. Curtiss, the well known expert and writer of texts, has been engaged to give courses in writing and in bookkeeping, throughout the six weeks session.

A special school for the training of librarians will be held during the six weeks and a course is offered in it adapted directly to the needs of the public school teacher and librarian.

The laboratories of botany, zoology, physics and chemistry will be open throughout the session, and students are now registered from many parts of Minnesota and adjoining states for work in geography and in other branches of elementary and high school science.

Other courses will be given in arithmetic, algebra, plane geometry, civil government, history, grammar, physics and physiology and advanced courses for high school teachers in French, German, Latin, English, history, literature, psychology, economics and education.

Teachers will be especially interested in the professional courses in the history and the theory of education, in school organization and in secondary education, and in metnod work adapted particularly to the primary and the grammar grades and to the conduct of rural schools.

Large Savings! For Whom?

The first obligation of an Insurance Company is to be safe; to be safe. This the Mutual Life has met from the first; for sixty-four years its solidity has been everywhere recognized. The next obligation is to be economical. This the Mutual Life has met in varying degrees. For most of its history its record in this respect was enviable, but a few years ago its management lost sight of this and became open to just criticism. Now this has been corrected and things are different.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company

is to-day under a new management that has done much and will do all to restore and surpass its early record as the best caretaker of the insured. Meanwhile, where are the very large savings resulting to go? To its policyholders, of course. To be or to become one means therefore to share in unusual savings as well as unusual security.

WEST END

LAYING OF THE TRACK

Marks Activity at Site for West End Iron Works.

Much Filling is Done to Get Spur Down.

Workmen are losing no time in preparing for the advent of the Clyde Iron works in the West end. For the past two weeks, a large force of men has been at work on the site of the new plant, near the brewery, laying a spur track from the Duluth, Missabe & Northern right-of-way.

There were two deep hollows which had to be filled in order that the tracks might be laid. The track laying is now about completed and materials for the new plant can be transferred from the railroad yards directly to the site of the foundry.

This will mean a great saving of time and labor, as the nature of the Clyde company's business means that in addition to the heavy materials to be used in the construction of the buildings themselves, much of the plant is of solid iron or steel, and very heavy.

The spur will be permanent, giving the Clyde company an opportunity to load finished products right at the foundry.

Actual work on the new buildings has not begun yet, but it will be in a very short time. The excavating is going on apace.

Part of the iron works plant is already there. It is a storehouse for material used at the works and resembles a grain elevator alongside the Great Northern track at some little way station.

For months, it has stood alone, surrounded by vacant lots, and many persons have wondered to what use is was to be put.

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT.

Young Women of St. Luke's Episcopal Church to be Hostesses.

St. Agnes' Guild, the young women's organization of St. Luke's Episcopal parish in the West end, will give a novel entertainment tomorrow evening at the church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street.

The function will begin with a short musical and literary program. Miss Ethelyn Abbott and Mr. Alexander will sing, and Miss Jacobson will be the accompanist. A dialogue will be given by Misses May and Katherine Wildey.

After the program, the people will be introduced to the art gallery and curio hall, said to be a very novel idea conceived by members of the guild. Everyone is furnished with catalogues and the idea is said to be instructive as well as amusing.

Refreshments will be served and it is expected that this social will be the most successful yet given by St. Agnes' Guild.

A LITERARY SESSION.

Norwegian-Danish Epworth Leaguers Are to Hold One Tonight.

The Epworth league of the First Norwegian-Danish Methodist church will hold a literary meeting this evening, when the chances are that it will be finally decided which of the two sides won in the literary contest that was held last winter.

The different sides gave literary and musical programs during the winter and each side was marked with certain points. At the end of the contest, the judges announced that Miss Millie Olsen's side had won. However, a member of A. B. Anderson's division protested and now each side has been protesting that to the other belonged the victory and the spoils—a banquet at the other's expense.

In these columns last week, it was stated that there was a likelihood of holding two banquets, and there is a strong suspicion abroad that one of them will be pulled off this evening.

FOURTEEN ARE CONFIRMED

At St. Luke's Episcopal Church by Bishop Morrison.

Fourteen persons were confirmed by Bishop Morrison Sunday evening, when he made his official visitation to St. Luke's Episcopal church. These make thirty-four confirmations in St. Luke's and Holy Apostles' parishes during the past year and the bishop paid a high tribute to the success and faithfulness of Rev. R. J. Mooney, who is rector of both churches. Since Rev. Mr. Mooney has taken hold of the parishes, there have been 118 confirmations.

The bishop delivered a very strong sermon Sunday evening and the church was crowded. He spoke of the confirmation vows and their significance. Other clergymen who took part in the services were the rector, Rev. R. J. Mooney, and Rev. Messrs. Wurtele of Trinity Pro-Cathedral and Wright of Staples, Minn.

Alderman R. D. Haven has returned from Rutland county, Vermont, where he has been visiting for the past six weeks.

J. D. Whitcomb of St. Cloud, was transacting business in the West end yesterday.

Jacob Harris, a peddler, was attacked by a number of young hoodlums on West Superior street yesterday afternoon. They threw pebbles at him and his poor old nag and when he entered a store, they crossed his lines, so that he started out in a new direction when he took them up again. This so angered him that he gave chase. He succeeded in catching one of the boys and boxed his ears, soundly.

"For weak lungs or lingering cough nothing equals the Norwegian Cod Liver oil sold at the Lion Drug store."

W. A. Toland has gone to Cloquet, Minn., to visit relatives.

R. F. Martine of 2214 West Fourth street, his wife and their children were painfully injured in a runaway accident at Fourth street and Twenty-sixth avenue west yesterday. The Martines were returning from Hermantown in their rig, when the horses became frightened at a milk wagon. They started to run and when they made a quick turn down hill, the occupants of the buggy were thrown out. Mrs. Martine sustained two fractured ribs and suffered internal injuries, while Mr. Martine and the children were cut and bruised.

George Larson, Arthur Sahlin and Elmer Bjorke have returned from their fishing shack back of Woodland, where they spent the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Casperson of 3623 Traverse street were delightfully surprised Sunday afternoon by a number of friends. It was in the nature of a farewell party as the Caspersons leave shortly for Norway, where they will make their home in the future.

DOG POISONER AT LAKESIDE

Residents Are Indignant and Will Probably Start Investigation.

Owners of dogs in the Lakeside district are very much incensed over the outrage which some unscrupulous persons have perpetrated there in poisoning four valuable pet dogs all of which have died during the last forty-eight hours. An investigation is being started by Lakesiders.

One man especially is under suspicion and it is believed that a case will be made against him. The owners of the dogs can not imagine why any person should kill a harmless dog, and they are so indignant that they will endeavor to bring the guilty persons to justice.

WARSHIP IS COMING.

Wolverine Will Visit Duluth in July on Recruiting Trip.

Duluth will be visited this summer by a traveling recruiting party which is making a trip on the Great Lakes in the ancient sloop-of-war Wolverine. The vessel will be in the Duluth harbor for a period of one week from July 23 to 30 during which time an attempt will be made to enlist as many new men as possible.

The Wolverine has already begun her trip and has visited several of the lake ports during the past month. At Alpena, Mich., it is reported that she stopped for a period of a few days and that the officers recruited quite a number of men for the navy. She is commanded by Commander H. Morrell and Lieut. Com. J. R. Y. Blakely is the executive and recruiting officer. Surgeon Alfred G. Grunwell is the examining surgeon and Assistant Paymaster James P. Helm is paymaster on the trip.

HAS SOLD HER HOME.

Mrs. Laura Cook Corey Cuts Loose From Old Ties.

Braddock, Pa., May 28.—The house in which William Ellis Corey and his wife who divorced him began housekeeping over twenty-three years ago has been sold. It was not a small, three-room, red frame "shanty" as has been pictured but was a commodious 12-room dwelling, which even now is "modern." It cost about $5,200, and was built with money which the bride had received as a legacy from the Rev. John J. Laucks, a pioneer Methodist Episcopal circuit rider of Old "Braddocksfield," who died shortly before Laura Cook's marriage with Ellis Corey.

The house stands on Hawkins avenue, North Braddock, one of the prettiest of the suburban residence districts of Braddock and adjoins the home of A. A. Corey, of similar style. After her divorced husband married Mabelle Gilman, Mrs. Laura Cook Corey cut loose from all the old associations, selling the pretty home to which she had gone as a bride, to William Dowling, a Braddock business man. The price is said to have been $5,600.

TROUBLE FOR COBRERA.

Should He Attempt to Execute Nineteen Prisoners as Proposed.

Mexico City, May 28.—Mexico has 8,000 men fully equipped and on a war footing now on the Guatemalan frontier. Distributed at strategic points to the south of this capital are 8,000 additional troops, which bodies of soldiers can be transported to the border on twenty-four hours' notice.

While there is a disposition in official circles to modify the height of the tension existing between President Cabrera and the Mexican government, it is admitted on both sides that should Cabrera carry out his intention of executing the nineteen men accused of complicity in the alleged attempt to assassinate him, Mexico would be forced to intervene.

Prices of Burial Lots Advance in the City of Pittsburg, Pa.

Pittsburg, May 28.—Following the recent investigation of the high cost of living expenses in this city by a special committee of the legislature which found Pittsburg to be the most expensive city in the country to live, is an announcement today by the Cemetery association that imposes even further burdens in the increase of the price of graves. Undertakers in the city received notice from the cemetery officials that, beginning June 1, the prices of single graves would be advanced $2 over the present rate. The burden will fall heaviest upon the poor, who are accustomed to buy single graves and the increase will not affect the lot holders in the cemeteries. The reason assigned for the advance is that the rapidity with which the local "cities of the dead" are filling up and the rapid advance in the valuation of land.

S.S.S. KILLS THE GERMS OF SCROFULA

Through the blood, diseases are carried from one generation to another. Parents transmit them to their children, and so it goes on down the family line for years and years unless the taint is removed from the blood. Especially is this true of Scrofula, for it is a disease that is "bred in the bone," and unless the blood is purified and every trace of the trouble removed the miserable disease will finally undermine the entire health and wreck the life of its victim. The usual symptoms of Scrofula are enlarged glands or tumors about the neck, which often burst and become discharging ulcers, weak eyes, Catarrh of the head and throat, skin diseases, etc. The trouble being so firmly intrenched in the blood often attacks the bones, resulting in White Swelling, or hip disease, while a waxy, pallid appearance of the skin, loss of strength and energy, and often lung affections, show that the disease is entirely destroying the bright red corpuscles and rich, nutritive qualities of the blood. Scrofula being a constitutional disease, one affecting the entire circulation, must be treated with a remedy that builds up and strengthens every part of the system, which has so long been denied the strength and nourishment it should have received from the blood. S. S. S. is the best of all blood purifiers and the greatest of all tonics, and is therefore the ideal remedy for Scrofula. S. S. S. searches out and destroys all germs, taints and poisons, gives strength, richness and vigor to the blood and cures Scrofula permanently. It so thoroughly removes the trouble from the blood that no signs of it are ever seen again, and posterity is started out in life with a clean, pure blood supply, which is their rightful inheritance. S. S. S. while thorough, is gentle in its action, and the healing vegetable ingredients which compose it build up every part of the system. Book on the blood and medical advice free. LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH

TO SUBSCRIBERS:

It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed to give both old and new addresses.

A HOPEFUL SIGN.

The most hopeful sign that there will be some consideration of tariff revision in the next congress is the fact that Senator Allison of Iowa has come right out in unequivocal terms, and said in so many words that it is going to be taken up.

This means a good deal from Senator Allison. He seldom makes positive statements. Indeed, if he ever made one before history has not recorded it.

It is related of him that he was standing at a window when a newly-sheared flock of sheep was driven by.

"Those sheep have just been sheared," observed the senator's companion.

Again, it was raining one day, and had been for many hours. An associate ventured the prediction that it would clear up soon.

"Well," admitted Senator Allison, "it always has."

And now he comes right out and says: "In the next campaign, and possibly in the next session of congress, the tariff is certain to be an important issue."

Now that wouldn't be a very positive statement from the average man, but it speaks volumes from Senator Allison. That word "possibly," relating to the next congress, would be depressing from anybody else, but it means little from him. And it is to be noted that he says it will be "an important issue," not that anything will be done with it. To expect him to say that anything would be done would be expecting too much.

As to his statement, the people don't care so very much how much of an issue it is in the campaign. Campaigns butter no parsnips, as a rule, and matters that are very important issues in campaigns very frequently slip into the most ignominous obscurity after the campaign is over. The tariff is an "important issue" right now, without waiting for the campaign, and what the people want is that congress should do something with it.

High prices are pressing the people sorely, and something must be done to lessen them. The most obvious thing to do along that line is to attack the chief cause for high prices, and that is the tariff. Nobody wants to cripple American industries, and there is small danger that any American industry will be crippled. But in the meantime the people are being crippled, very materially, by the pressure of high prices that are to a very large extent induced by the iniquitous schedules of the Dingley tariff, and the demand that these schedules be altered in the interests of the people is too loud and too plain to be safely ignored.

It is encouraging and significant that the National Association of Manufacturers, at its recent meeting, went on record in favor of tariff revision and more reciprocity treaties.

CHICAGO'S PRETTY SCHEME.

The Chicago cry for a practicable waterway connecting the Great Lakes, by way of Chicago, with the Mississippi river, by way of the drainage canal, is spreading over the country, and it is being taken up in quarters that indicate the need of alertness on the part of the lake states, if they do not want to see their own waterway, the greatest in the land, injured or destroyed.

The arguments for the construction of the proposed cana are good ones, or would be good if the canal could be built without lowering the lake levels, and seriously disturbing lake navigation. But experienced engineers have stated that such a diversion of water as is proposed would play havoc with the lakes.

It is good public policy to encourage every possible development of waterways in this country. They compete with the rail highways and compel them to keep their rates down to reasonable levels, and they handle much business that the railroads do not seem to be able to care for.

But it would be the height of folly to interfere with a great and profitable water highway like the Great Lakes, and more or less seriously injure it, in order to create a new highway which could never approach in volume of business the one that suffered that it might be created.

It is strange that the promoters of hte proposed canal should have overlooked the Canadian interest in the Great Lakes. Even if they can fool the lake states, it is highly improbable that Canada, which has a vital interest in the Great Lakes, would permit any interference with their levels that would hamper her lake commerce.

MARRIAGE OF THE UNFIT.

"The marriage of the unfit should be prohibited by law," was the doctrine laid down by a Minnesota physician at a recent medical gathering in St. Paul, and the thoughtful must agree with him and must believe that some day his idea will be carried out to a much greater extent than most people would now imagine to be possible.

It has always seemed strange to many people that though there is evidence on every hand of the advantages of careful selection of stock in raising horses, cattle and other domestic animals, there is almost no thought of such action so far as mankind is concerned, though man is certainly the most important animal that walks the globe.

It may be that it is impossible for the state to regulate marriages with a view to improving the human family, though it must be admitted that it would be a good thing if it could be done; but there are certain restrictions that can be enforced by the state, and it is a crime that they are not enforced more strictly than they are.

For instance, this state has a law against the marriage of persons that are epileptic, imbecile or insane. It had no such law until recent years, and it is not being enforced even now. It is true that when applications for marriage licenses are made, the applicant is required to state that neither himself nor his intended wife come within the prohibited classes. But the officials that issue the licenses have to take the word of the applicant for this, and no doubt the law has been violated many times since it was enacted. As a rule only one of the parties appears at the courthouse when the license is applied for, and as the officials that issue the licenses are not physicians, and are not empowered to cause any examination to be made, they cannot know whether the applicant is stating the truth or not.

It is a delicate question, and it is uncertain how far the state should go in this matter. Theorists will probably all agree that the state could not go too far, and that society would be far better off if there were in each state some provision requiring that marriages could only be contracted by those physically, mentally and morally fit to become parents and improve the race by doing so.

Yet one has only to let his imagination dwell for a moment on the possible results of such a provision to realize that it will be a long time before society reaches the stage where such regulations will be practicable, even though they may be eminently desirable right now.

But the law against the marriage of persons so constituted, mentally and physically, that their offspring is almost certain to be defective, can be and should be rigidly enforced. It is not only for the good of society, but it would be a mercy to those contemplating such ill-fated marriage contracts.

LARGER PORTHOLES NEEDED.

In view of the heart-breaking pathos of the death of four deckhands of the steamer Naomi, imprisoned in the hold of the burning vessel and getting their last breaths through portholes too small to permit of their escape, while agonized fellow-beings without talked with them, it is small wonder that a sentiment has developed that portholes in lake vessels should be made larger.

President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association has stated that it is his opinion that a law should be enacted requiring large deadlights, and surely there will be no vessel owner so hardhearted as to oppose the plan because, perchance, it might cost a little more to observe it.

Certainly the deadlights in that portion of the hold where the men's quarters are located should be large enough to let the men escape through them if penned in their quarters by fire, and as it would probably not be desirable to have portholes of different sizes on the same vessel, that would mean that all of them should be made larger.

It is said that already a number of the new vessels are equipped with portholes made larger than the old ones, with this purpose in view.

It will take a year or so to bring about such a regulation as this, and in the meantime vessel builders should not lose sight of the lesson of the Naomi, but should make their portholes large without waiting to be required to do so by law.

TAINTED NEWSPAPERS.

William Jennings Bryan and Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana have been conducting, for several months, a very diverting, entertaining and instructing joint debate on the trust problem in the pages of the Reader magazine. The views they take of the problem are characteristic, and each undoubtedly represents the viewpoint of a large mass of American citizens.

Senator Beveridge looks upon business combinations as a blessing to be placed in the same indispensable category as labor-saving machinery. Their admitted evils he would reach by regulation, and he thinks that it is possible to give the people their proper share of the benefits of consolidation, which consist of eliminating wasteful competition and useless expenses, by means of regulatory devices, some of which he discusses.

Mr. Bryan, on the other hand, holds private monopoly to be indefensible, and his remedy is to crush the trusts altogether and to restore competition, though he holds that this view is not inconsistent with the existence of large business enterprises that will eliminate "wasteful competition."

One point brought out by Mr. Bryan in one of his replies to Senator Beveridge is new and valuable. Both of these debaters agree that one of the modern evils is the newspaper that is a trust organ, that is owned, either through stockholding or mortgages, by those associated with "high finance," and whose news and opinions are colored by these associations. Such a newspaper, until it is found out, is capable of infinite harm, and such newspapers, by their prostitution of the noble capacity for good that the newspapers possess, have done grave injury to the honest newspapers of the country.

Mr. Bryan's remedy for this evil—and it must be admitted to be a great one—is that newspapers should be compelled to make public the names of their stockholders, and the names of those holding mortgages upon them.

The remedy is a good one, and would be effective. No free newspaper would fear such publicity, and the policy would put the public on its guard against newspapers that are controlled, either through direct ownership or through the influence of mortgages, by the interests.

The newspaper that is the organ of the interests, whether the great ones of Wall street or simply the little ones in a small town, is a dangerous element. Its opinions, and often its news, are colored to suit the purposes of those in control. Its politics, under whatever political designation it flourishes, is the business interests of its owners. Though many such newspapers are more or less commonly known by the public, others are not, and the operation of Mr. Bryan's remedy, crystallized into law, would inform the public as to what newspapers it may trust, and what newspapers it must beware of believing.

Says the Hibbing Mesaba Ore: "One of the cheerful, neighborly things about Duluth is that it wants everything coming from the iron range towns, but has no favors in return." Which is neither cheerful nor neighborly for the Ore to say without specifying wherein Duluth lacks in courtesy to its neighbors.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

John H. Langton's hundreds of Duluth friends will read with interest what he accomplished recently at the Belvidere, the Baltimore, Md., hotel of which he is manager, in handling the famous Vienna male chorus, as reported in the Baltimore News:

"The handling of the Vienna choir illustrates what can be done in a big hotel like the Belvedere when occasion requires. Manager Langton, who has been in the hotel business all his life and has had large houses, had made advance arrangements to cover every emergency, and when the affair was over the officers of the Harmonie Singing society backed him into a corner and told him forcibly that it was the best thing they had ever seen, and they had never believed that Baltimore could do it.

"'We ought to be proud of it,' said President Ferdinand Kaiser. 'We ought to be proud that we can handle things so quickly in Baltimore.'

"There were just 372 of the party, all of whom slept at the Belvedere with the exception of twenty-six, who were accommodated at the Stafford. They arrived with 815 pieces of baggage. When they walked into the hotel every key in the house was in the door, so that there should be no delay at the desk. On every floor there were two hallboys and one man who spoke German. The minute Herr Goetze left the train for the Belvedere, porters, in charge of their chief, were at the baggage. It was hustled to the hotel and taken up both freight and passenger elevators, having been previously numbered corresponding to a numbered list of names furnished in advance. Within twenty minutes every piece of baggage was in its room, including hand baggage. Before the party arrived the room board was filled with cards of both English and German, so that there could be no mistake.

"At night there were 710 guests at the two dinners, and 100 waiters were in attendance. The guests did not leave until 3 o'clock in the morning, when eighty waiters cleared the debris, and by 6:30 o'clock there were 250 breakfasts on the tables. An hour later every piece of baggage was at the union station for loading, and every member of the party was on hand excepting two who did not stay at the Belvedere and overslept. They had to take a later train."

"This will be one of the best years in the history of the Minnesota iron ranges, from the standpoint of the business man," said T. O. Cullen of Hibbing, Minn., at the St. Louis. "The ore shipments will be unusually large, and this means lots of work and a lot of money going to the workingmen. Most of the miners are fairly liberal when it comes to spending, and this means good times for the merchants.

"Some of the foreigners do not spend any more than they have to, however. It is remarkable how much money some fellows can save on a daily wage of $2. An Austrian who is of a saving disposition can, for example, lay aside more cash for a rainy day in three months than the average salaried man of the city can in a year, even though the city man is drawing four times the salary.

"Preparations are being made by the Steel corporation to carry on range operations on a large scale this season, and the work is now well under way. The lateness of the season delayed operations to some extent, but in spite of this fact, it is expected that the movement of ore from the range will be greater this year than last. Nearly all the range towns are now on a sound financial footing, and everything looks bright in a business way. Hibbing is rapidly coming to the front, and is as modern a little city as any one could wish to see."

That's All Beveridge Is.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The New York World is wrong in stating that Albert J. Beveridge is the constitution itself. Mr. Beveridge is merely the United States senate, American oratory and cosmic thought.

In a Minority.

Philadelphia Telegraph: Senator Platt of New York, is quoted as declaring he made a very great mistake in putting Theodore Roosevelt in the second place on the presidential ticket at the convention held in Philadelphia, June, 1900. This mistake, the senator holds, is much to be regretted. In this opinion among 85,000,000 people the New York senator stands in a class by himself as a minority of one.

THE WEATHER.

It was spring this morning. It was threatening, and showery at times, but the rain was warm, the wind blew softly and brought a hint of coming summer, and the temperature was milder than it has been for several days. The weather man expects it to be more or less cloudy, with local showers, tonight and tomorrow, and with slightly warmer weather tonight. Last night's lowest temperature was 44 degs. and yesterday's highest was 56 degs.

A year ago today it was clear and cool.

The sun rose at 4:19 this morning and sets at 7:51 tonight, making 15 hours and 32 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Barometric depressions overlie New England states, Rocky mountain districts and the eastern slopes. These low pressures caused light rain during Monday or last night in North Atlantic states, the eastern and northern lake region and the southwest. Temperatures are generally moderate. The barometer is high off the Oregon coast and in the Ohio valley, the latter causing cooler weather in Atlantic states. Indications favor some cloudiness in this section tonight and Wednesday and local showers are probable."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures, as recorded by the weather bureau:

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

Sauk Center Herald: If John A. Johnson doesn't watch out, Miss Democracy will catch him for her presidential candidate.

Austin Register: The presidential boom of Governor Johnson seems to be gaining strength. Many prominent Democratic organs in different sections of the country are referring to him as a man who would make a strong presidential candidate. While the mention of his name in connection with the Democratic nomination was at first regarded as simply complimentary and of no real significance, he is regarded now by many as a strong possibility.

Red Lake Falls Courier: Governor Johnson's name is still frequently mentioned by Eastern and Southern papers in connection with the Democratic presidential nomination. It is generally agreed that no man would be so satisfactory to the various factions of the party as the governor of Minnesota, and none has a better record as a public official or as a vote-getter.

Sandstone Courier: Governor John A. Johnson is being very favorably mentioned in different parts of the country as the next Democratic presidential candidate. He has honorably filled the governor's chair and would undoubtedly be a good choice, as he has demonstrated that he is a good vote-getter.

Madison Independent Press: Johnson for president on the Democratic ticket in 1908 is not so remote a contingency as it might be when looked at from a vote-getting and Democratic harmony viewpoint.

Cannon Falls Beacon: Though comparisons—especially between brethren—are odious, as between Bryan and Johnson, we admit we prefer Minnesota's favorite son.

Atkin Republican: The St. Cloud Journal-Press thinks Governor Johnson would come dangerously near capturing the electoral vote of Minnesota in case he were nominated. Anybody who has studied the last election returns cannot very well get over the impression that Governor John would not only come dangerously near, but would carry the state by a big majority in case the Republican candidate were not Roosevelt or a man who could be depended upon to carry out his policies. There is nothing the matter with Johnson. There is no denying the fact that he has made an excellent governor. He is a brilliant campaigner and orator, and has so conducted himself during his term of office as to disarm his critics.

Rush City Post: If the Democratic party of the nation is wise, it will select Governor John A. Johnson for its standard-bearer next year. Locality is all right, and he has won the confidence of the people outside of Minnesota by an honest, careful, conservative administration as governor. There is no mistake but what he possesses the statesmanlike ability that the people believe in, while there is a lingering doubt of Bryan's sincerity of purpose.

Ada Herald: The Governor Johnson presidential boom seems to be growing, and by the time the national convention meets the popular Minnesotan will be a mighty factor in national politics.

Quick Action.

Ladies' Home Journal: The proprietor of a large business house bought a number of signs reading, "Do It Now," and had them hung around the office, hoping to inspire his people with promptness and energy in their work. In his private office one day soon afterward a friend asked him how the scheme affected the staff. "Well, not just the way I thought it would," answered the proprietor. "The cashier skipped with $30,000, the head bookkeeper eloped with the private secretary, three clerks asked for an increase of salary, and the office boy lit out to become a highwayman."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Yesterday afternoon an exciting and disastrous runaway took place on Lake avenue. A little gray horse owned by John Morgan of Rice's Point, and attached to a buggy occupied by George W. Hathaway, chief of the fire department, and John Meining, became frightened at the corner of Second street. It dashed down the avenue. Chief Hathaway jumped out and escaped uninjured. The horse dashed through the plate glass window of Breeze & Hume's store at Superior street. The glass was smashed to pieces and the goods in the window badly mutilated, while Mr. Meining was painfully injured.

Andrew Godfrey, the 3-year-old son of Andrew Anderson of Twenty-fifth avenue west, was drowned yesterday by falling into a trench near his house, in which there was four feet of water.

New potatoes raised in St. Louis county have made their appearance on the Duluth market.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Lake Crystal Union: Until the Republican party of Minnesota weeds out a whole lot of bosses, people who are only members of the party for what there is in it for themselves, it will suffer defeat right along. Bossism won't go down. The people of the state, not those in office, must be consulted.

Hibbing Tribune: We can at least give Taft credit for making Mr. Foraker the busiest man in forty-six states.

Virginia Enterprise: "What the Republican party wants next time is a governor who can run; most anybody can hang on behind," philosophizes the Hibbing Tribune. What would be the matter with putting John A. Johnson on the Republican ticket; he seems to be having the "runner's" qualifications.

Minneota Mascot: If you expect other people to trade at home remember to set the proper example. If you are a merchant don't expect to convince your customers that trading at home is a virtue if you are pushing an outside brand of any article in preference to an article of the same kind manufactured in your home town and giving employment to home labor.

Bemidji Pioneer: Some crabbed people seem to think a good natured person is frequently imposed upon. But even if they are, the cheerful ones continue to get more happiness out of life than the others.

Warren Register: It was abuse of McKinley and McKinleyism in 1890 and 1892 that elected him president in 1896. Is it not possible that Foraker may profit from the senseless war that is being waged upon him? History now and then repeats itself.

Cannon Falls Beacon: We do not know whether Mr. Haywood is guilty or not, but if he has been putting into daily practice the religion preached daily by his friend Debs he will not get more than "his" should the worst transpire.

Virginia Enterprise: Many a man is unable to meet his expenses because he is headed the wrong way.

Pine City Pioneer: This season of the year makes a man wish he lived in a section of the country where the people were sufficiently aroused to insist on good roads. The exorbitant tax that the average farmer pays in horseflesh every year would put in a good system of roads in a few years and make life worth living, too.

Sleepy Eye Dispatch: Secretary of State Julius Schmahl does not propose to have the state become a party to what he considers organization in restraint of trade. He refused to issue a permit of incorporation to the Retail Lumber association. If Secretary Schmahl can tell us just what to do with our trusts now, he can probably have most anything he wants in Minnesota.

North Branch Review: Putting legislators on a salary and taking away passes ought to abbreviate legislative sessions considerably.

Flat.

The ancients thought the world was flat,
And right they were.
There's not a bit of doubt of that
I must aver.
They had no bridge, benighted dubs!—
No brainstorms then.
They had no cigarettes or clubs
Like modern men.

They had no chorus girls, no graft;
No car ahead.
They had no Foraker, no Taft;
No valiant Ted.
They had no mergers in their day,
No rye or kin.
They thought the world was flat, and say!
It must have been!

"Why, aren't they used to living on 'tick?'"

Chicago Tribune: President Lincoln laid down the newspaper he was reading and took a turn about the room. "I reckon," he said, with his whimsical smile, "they call me 'Honest Abe' to distinguish me from the other Abes."

Philadelphia Ledger: Hondurans were still fighting.

"What's the row about?" asked an observer. "Hasn't peace been declared?"

"Believe it has," replied a soldier, reaching for a cartridge; "but we thought then we were out of ammunition."

Philadelphia Press: "Well," said Cassidy, "'tis too bad that none av us kin iver be as good as some people think we sh'ud be."

TO SUBSCRIBERS:

It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed to give both old and new addresses.

A HOPEFUL SIGN.

The most hopeful sign that there will be some consideration of tariff revision in the next congress is the fact that Senator Allison of Iowa has come right out in unequivocal terms, and said in so many words that it is going to be taken up.

This means a good deal from Senator Allison. He seldom makes positive statements. Indeed, if he ever made one before history has not recorded it.

It is related of him that he was standing at a window when a newly-sheared flock of sheep was driven by.

"Those sheep have just been sheared," observed the senator's companion.

Again, it was raining one day, and had been for many hours. An associate ventured the prediction that it would clear up soon.

"Well," admitted Senator Allison, "it always has."

And now he comes right out and says: "In the next campaign, and possibly in the next session of congress, the tariff is certain to be an important issue."

Now that wouldn't be a very positive statement from the average man, but it speaks volumes from Senator Allison. That word "possibly," relating to the next congress, would be depressing from anybody else, but it means little from him. And it is to be noted that he says it will be "an important issue," not that anything will be done with it. To expect him to say that anything would be done would be expecting too much.

As to his statement, the people don't care so very much how much of an issue it is in the campaign. Campaigns butter no parsnips, as a rule, and matters that are very important issues in campaigns very frequently slip into the most ignominous obscurity after the campaign is over. The tariff is an "important issue" right now, without waiting for the campaign, and what the people want is that congress should do something with it.

High prices are pressing the people sorely, and something must be done to lessen them. The most obvious thing to do along that line is to attack the chief cause for high prices, and that is the tariff. Nobody wants to cripple American industries, and there is small danger that any American industry will be crippled. But in the meantime the people are being crippled, very materially, by the pressure of high prices that are to a very large extent induced by the iniquitous schedules of the Dingley tariff, and the demand that these schedules be altered in the interests of the people is too loud and too plain to be saicly ignored.

It is encouraging and significant that the National Association of Manufacturers, at its recent meeting, went on record in favor of tariff revision and more reciprocity treaties.

CHICAGO'S PRETTY SCHEME.

The Chicago cry for a practicable waterway connecting the Great Lakes, by way of Chicago, with the Mississippi river, by way of the drainage canal, is spreading over the country, and it is being taken up in quarters that indicate the need of alertness on the part of the lake states, if they do not want to see their own waterway, the greatest in the land, injured or destroyed.

The arguments for the construction of the proposed cana are good ones, or would be good if the canal could be built without lowering the lake levels, and seriously disturbing lake navigation. But experienced engineers have stated that such a diversion of water as is proposed would play havoc with the lakes.

It is good public policy to encourage every possible development of waterways in this country. They compete with the rail highways and compel them to keep their rates down to reasonable levels, and they handle much business that the railroads do not seem to be able to care for.

But it would be the height of folly to interfere with a great and profitable water highway like the Great Lakes, and more or less seriously injure it, in order to create a new highway which could never approach in volume of business the one that suffered that it might be created.

It is strange that the promoters of hte proposed canal should have overlooked the Canadian interest in the Great Lakes. Even if they can fool the lake states, it is highly improbable that Canada, which has a vital interest in the Great Lakes, would permit any interference with their levels that would hamper her lake commerce.

MARRIAGE OF THE UNFIT.

"The marriage of the unfit should be prohibited by law," was the doctrine laid down by a Minnesota physician at a recent medical gathering in St. Paul, and the thoughtful must agree with him and must believe that some day his idea will be carried out to a much greater extent than most people would now imagine to be possible.

It has always seemed strange to many people that though there is evidence on every hand of the advantages of careful selection of stock in raising horses, cattle and other domestic animals, there is almost no thought of such action so far as mankind is concerned, though man is certainly the most important animal that walks the globe.

It may be that it is impossible for the state to regulate marriages with a view to improving the human family, though it must be admitted that it would be a good thing if it could be done; but there are certain restrictions that can be enforced by the state, and it is a crime that they are not enforced more strictly than they are.

For instance, this state has a law against the marriage of persons that are epileptic, imbecile or insane. It had no such law until recent years, and it is not being enforced even now. It is true that when applications for marriage licenses are made, the applicant is required to state that neither himself nor his intended wife come within the prohibited classes. But the officials that issue the licenses have to take the word of the applicant for this, and no doubt the law has been violated many times since it was enacted. As a rule only one of the parties appears at the courthouse when the license is applied for, and as the officials that issue the licenses are not physicians, and are not empowered to cause any examination to be made, they cannot know whether the applicant is stating the truth or not.

It is a delicate question, and it is uncertain how far the state should go in this matter. Theorists will probably all agree that the state could not go too far, and that society would be far better off if there were in each state some provision requiring that marriages could only be contracted by those physically, mentally and morally fit to become parents and improve the race by doing so.

Yet one has only to let his imagination dwell for a moment on the possible results of such a provision to realize that it will be a long time before society reaches the stage where such regulations will be practicable, even though they may be eminently desirable right now.

But the law against the marriage of persons so constituted, mentally and physically, that their offspring is almost certain to be defective, can be and should be rigidly enforced. It is not only for the good of society, but it would be a mercy to those contemplating such ill-fated marriage contracts.

LARGER PORTHOLES NEEDED.

In view of the heart-breaking pathos of the death of four deckhands of the steamer Naomi, imprisoned in the hold of the burning vessel and getting their last breaths through portholes too small to permit of their escape, while agonized fellow-beings without talked with them, it is small wonder that a sentiment has developed that portholes in lake vessels should be made larger.

President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association has stated that it is his opinion that a law should be enacted requiring large deadlights, and surely there will be no vessel owner so hardhearted as to oppose the plan because, perchance, it might cost a little more to observe it.

Certainly the deadlights in that portion of the hold where the men's quarters are located should be large enough to let the men escape through them if penned in their quarters by fire, and as it would probably not be desirable to have portholes of different sizes on the same vessel, that would mean that all of them should be made larger.

It is said that already a number of the new vessels are equipped with portholes made larger than the old ones, with this purpose in view.

It will take a year or so to bring about such a regulation as this, and in the meantime vessel builders should not lose sight of the lesson of the Naomi, but should make their portholes large without waiting to be required to do so by law.

TAINTED NEWSPAPERS.

William Jennings Bryan and Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana have been conducting, for several months, a very diverting, entertaining and instructing joint debate on the trust problem in the pages of the Reader magazine. The views they take of the problem are characteristic, and each undoubtedly represents the viewpoint of a large mass of American citizens.

Senator Beveridge looks upon business combinations as a blessing to be placed in the same indispensable category as labor-saving machinery. Their admitted evils he would reach by regulation, and he thinks that it is possible to give the people their proper share of the benefits of consolidation, which consist of eliminating wasteful competition and useless expenses, by means of regulatory devices, some of which he discusses.

Mr. Bryan, on the other hand, holds private monopoly to be indefensible, and his remedy is to crush the trusts altogether and to restore competition, though he holds that this view is not inconsistent with the existence of large business enterprises that will eliminate "wasteful competition."

One point brought out by Mr. Bryan in one of his replies to Senator Beveridge is new and valuable. Both of these debaters agree that one of the modern evils is the newspaper that is a trust organ, that is owned, either through stockholding or mortgages, by those associated with "high finance," and whose news and opinions are colored by these associations. Such a newspaper, until it is found out, is capable of infinite harm, and such newspapers, by their prostitution of the noble capacity for good that the newspapers possess, have done grave injury to the honest newspapers of the country.

Mr. Bryan's remedy for this evil—and it must be admitted to be a great one—is that newspapers should be compelled to make public the names of their stockholders, and the names of those holding mortgages upon them.

The remedy is a good one, and would be effective. No free newspaper would fear such publicity, and the policy would put the public on its guard against newspapers that are controlled, either through direct ownership or through the influence of mortgages, by the interests.

The newspaper that is the organ of the interests, whether the great ones of Wall street or simply the little ones in a small town, is a dangerous element. Its opinions, and often its news, are colored to suit the purposes of those in control. Its politics, under whatever political designation it flourishes, is the business interests of its owners. Though many such newspapers are more or less commonly known by the public, others are not, and the operation of Mr. Bryan's remedy, crystallized into law, would inform the public as to what newspapers it may trust, and what newspapers it must beware of believing.

Says the Hibbing Mesaba Ore: "One of the cheerful, neighborly things about Duluth is that it wants everything coming from the iron range towns, but has no favors in return." Which is neither cheerful nor neighborly for the Ore to say without specifying wherein Duluth lacks in courtesy to its neighbors.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

John H. Langton's hundreds of Duluth friends will read with interest what he accomplished recently at the Belvidere, the Baltimore, Md., hotel of which he is manager, in handling the famous Vienna male chorus, as reported in the Baltimore News:

"The handling of the Vienna choir illustrates what can be done in a big hotel like the Belvedere when occasion requires. Manager Langton, who has been in the hotel business all his life and has had large houses, had made advance arrangements to cover every emergency, and when the affair was over the officers of the Harmonie Singing society backed him into a corner and told him forcibly that it was the best thing they had ever seen, and they had never believed that Baltimore could do it.

"'We ought to be proud of it,' said President Ferdinand Kaiser; 'we ought to be proud that we can handle things so quickly in Baltimore.'

"There were just 372 of the party, all of whom slept at the Belvedere with the exception of twenty-six, who were accommodated at the Stafford. They arrived with 815 pieces of baggage. When they walked into the hotel every key in the house was in the door, so that there should be no delay at the desk. On every floor there were two hallboys and one man who spoke German. The minute Herr Goetze left the train for the Belvedere, porters, in charge of their chief, were at the baggage. It was hustled to the hotel and taken up both freight and passenger elevators, having been previously numbered corresponding to a numbered list of names furnished in advance. Within twenty minutes every piece of baggage was in its room, including hand baggage. Before the party arrived the room board was filled with cards of both English and German, so that there could be no mistake.

"At night there were 710 guests at the two dinners, and 100 waiters were in attendance. The guests did not leave until 3 o'clock in the morning, when eighty waiters cleared the debris, and by 6:30 o'clock there were 350 breakfasts on the tables. An hour later every piece of baggage was at the union station for loading, and every member of the party was on hand excepting two who did not stay at the Belvedere and overslept. They had to take a later train."

"This will be one of the best years in the history of the Minnesota iron ranges, from the standpoint of the business man," said T. O. Cullen of Hibbing, Minn., at the St. Louis. "The ore shipments will be unusually large, and this means lots of work and a lot of money going to the workingmen. Most of the miners are fairly liberal when it comes to spending, and this means good times for the merchants.

"Some of the foreigners do not spend any more than they have to, however. It is remarkable how much money some fellows can save on a daily wage of $2. An Austrian who is of a saving disposition can, for example, lay aside more cash on a rainy day in three months than the average salaried man of the city can in a year, even though the city man is drawing four times the salary.

"Preparations are being made by the Steel corporation to carry on range operations on a large scale this season, and the work is now well under way. The lateness of the season delayed operations to some extent, but in spite of this fact, it is expected that the movement of ore from the range will be greater this year than last. Nearly all the range towns are now on a sound financial footing, and everything looks bright in a business way. Hibbing is rapidly coming to the front, and is as modern a little city as any one could wish to see."

That's All Beveridge Is.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The New York World is wrong in stating that Albert J. Beveridge is the constitution itself. Mr. Beveridge is merely the United States senate, American oratory and cosmic thought.

In a Minority.

Philadelphia Telegraph: Senator Platt of New York is quoted as declaring he made a very great mistake in putting Theodore Roosevelt in the second place on the presidential ticket at the convention held in Philadelphia, June, 1900. This mistake, the senator holds, is much to be regretted. In this opinion among 85,000,000 people the New York senator stands in a class by himself as a minority of one.

THE WEATHER.

It was spring this morning. It was threatening, and showery at times, but the rain was warm, the wind blew softly and brought a hint of coming summer, and the temperature was milder than it has been for several days. The weather man expects it to be more or less cloudy, with local showers, tonight and tomorrow, and with slightly warmer weather tonight. Last night's lowest temperature was 44 degs. and yesterday's highest was 56 degs.

A year ago today it was clear and cool.

The sun rose at 4:19 this morning and sets at 7:51 tonight, making 15 hours and 32 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Barometric depressions overlie New England states, Rocky mountain districts and the eastern slopes. These low pressures caused light rain during Monday or last night in North Atlantic states, the eastern and northern lake region and the southwest. Temperatures are generally moderate. The barometer is high off the Oregon coast and in the Ohio valley, the latter causing cooler weather in Atlantic states. Indications favor some cloudiness in this section tonight and Wednesday and local showers are probable."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures, as recorded by the weather bureau:

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

Austin Register: The presidential boom of Governor Johnson seems to be gaining strength. Many prominent Democratic organs in different sections of the country are referring to him as a man who would make a strong presidential candidate. While the mention of his name in connection with the Democratic nomination was at first regarded as simply complimentary and of no real significance, he is regarded now by many as a strong possibility.

Red Lake Falls Courier: Governor Johnson's name is still frequently mentioned by Eastern and Southern papers in connection with the Democratic presidential nomination. It is generally agreed that no man would be so satisfactory to the various factions of the party as the governor of Minnesota, and none has a better record as a public official or as a vote-getter.

Sandstone Courier: Governor John A. Johnson is being very favorably mentioned in different parts of the country as the next Democratic presidential candidate. He has honorably filled the governor's chair and would undoubtedly be a good choice, as he has demonstrated that he is a good vote-getter.

Madison Independent Press: Johnson for president on the Democratic ticket in 1908 is not so remote a contingency as it might be when looked at from a vote-getting and Democratic harmony viewpoint.

Cannon Falls Beacon: Though comparisons—especially between brethren—are odious, as between Bryan and Johnson, we admit we prefer Minnesota's favorite son.

Aitkin Republican: The St. Cloud Journal-Press thinks Governor Johnson would come dangerously near capturing the electoral vote of Minnesota in case he were nominated. Anybody who has studied the last election returns cannot very well get over the impression that Governor John would not only come dangerously near, but would carry the state by a big majority in case the Republican candidate were not Roosevelt or a man who could be depended upon to carry out his policies. There is nothing the matter with Johnson. There is no denying the fact that he has made an excellent governor. He is a brilliant campaigner and orator, and has so conducted himself during his term of office as to disarm his critics.

Rush City Post: If the Democratic party of the nation is wise, it will select Governor John A. Johnson for its standard-bearer next year. Locality is all right, and he has won the confidence of the people outside of Minnesota by an honest, careful, conservative administration as governor. There is no mistake but what he possesses the statesmanlike ability that the people believe in, while there is a lingering doubt of Bryan's sincerity of purpose.

Ada Herald: The Governor Johnson presidential boom seems to be growing, and by the time the national convention meets the popular Minnesotan will be a mighty factor in national politics.

Quick Action.

Ladies' Home Journal: The proprietor of a large business house bought a number of signs reading, "Do It Now," and had them hung around the office, hoping to inspire his people with promptness and energy in their work. In his private office one day soon afterward a friend asked him how the scheme affected the staff. "Well, not just the way I thought it would," answered the proprietor. "The cashier skipped with $30,000, the head bookkeeper eloped with the private secretary, three clerks asked for an increase of salary, and the office boy lit out to become a highwayman."

Yesterday afternoon an exciting and disastrous runaway took place on Lake avenue. A little gray horse owned by John Morgan of Rice's Point, and attached to a buggy occupied by George W. Hathaway, chief of the fire department, and John Meining, became frightened at the corner of Second street. It dashed down the avenue. Chief Hathaway jumped out and escaped uninjured. The horse dashed through the plate glass window of Breeze & Hume's store at Superior street. The glass was smashed to pieces and the goods in the window badly mutilated, while Mr. Meining was painfully injured.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Lake Crystal Union: Until the Republican party of Minnesota weeds out a whole lot of bosses, people who are only members of the party for what there is in it for themselves, it will suffer defeat right along. Bossism won't go down. The people of the state, not those in office, must be consulted.

Hibbing Tribune: We can at least give Taft credit for making Mr. Foraker the busiest man in forty-six states.

Virginia Enterprise: "What the Republican party wants next time is a governor who can run; most anybody can hang on behind," philosophizes the Hibbing Tribune. What would be the matter with putting John A. Johnson on the Republican ticket; he seems to be having the "runner's" qualifications.

Minneota Mascot: If you expect other people to trade at home remember to set the proper example. If you are a merchant don't expect to convince your customers that trading at home is a virtue if you are pushing an outside brand of any article in preference to an article of the same kind manufactured in your home town and giving employment to home labor.

Bemidji Pioneer: Some crabbed people seem to think a good natured person is frequently imposed upon. But even if they are, the cheerful ones continue to get more happiness out of life than the others.

Warren Register: It was abuse of McKinley and McKinleyism in 1890 and 1892 that elected him president in 1896. Is it not possible that Foraker may profit from the senseless war that is being waged upon him? History now and then repeats itself.

Cannon Falls Beacon: We do not know whether Mr. Haywood is guilty or not, but if he has been putting into daily practice the religion preached daily by his friend Debs he will not get more than "his" should the worst transpire.

Virginia Enterprise: Many a man is unable to meet his expenses because he is headed the wrong way.

Pine City Pioneer: This season of the year makes a man wish he lived in a section of the country where the people were sufficiently aroused to insist on good roads. The exorbitant tax that the average farmer pays in horseflesh every year would put in a good system of roads in a few years and make life worth living, too.

Sleepy Eye Dispatch: Secretary of State Julius Schmahl does not propose to have the state become a party to what he considers organization in restraint of trade. He refused to issue a permit of incorporation to the Retail Lumber association. If Secretary Schmahl can tell us just what to do with our trusts now, he can probably have most anything he wants in Minnesota.

North Branch Review: Putting legislators on a salary and taking away passes ought to abbreviate legislative sessions considerably.

Flat.

The ancients thought the world was flat,
And right they were.
There's not a bit of doubt of that
I must aver.
They had no bridge, benighted dubs!—
No brainstorms then.
They had no cigarettes or clubs
Like modern men.

They had no chorus girls, no graft;
No car ahead.
They had no Foraker, no Taft;
No valiant Ted.
They had no mergers in their day.
No rye or gin.
They thought the world was flat, and say!
It must have been!

PREVENT NEW BOWERY TAKING PLACE OF OLD

Council Takes Steps to Limit the Number of Saloons.

Wisconsin Central Depot Will Wipe Out Old Bowery.

The council last evening:

Started a movement to prevent the growth of a new "Bowery" when the present one shall have been wiped out.

Granted the Carpenter saloon license in the face of opposition by B. N. Wheeler of the Civic league.

Ordered the board of public works to reject bids for the Forty-eighth avenue approach to the Ramsey street dock and to readvertise for bids for the dock with a Ramsey street approach.

Called for an estimate of the cost of grading the streets and avenues covered by the Volk street car franchise.

Alderman W. E. McEwen and City Clerk H. W. Cheadle have a hard proposition to handle prior to the meeting of the council next Monday night. Alderman McEwen last evening started a movement to prevent the formation of another "Bowery" such as the one which is about to be wiped out by the Wisconsin Central, by introducing a motion defining the policy of the council as being opposed to the granting of more than two saloon license on one side of the street in one block in any portion of the city where there are not more than two saloons to the block already.

Some lively discussion developed as to the wording of the motion and its probable results, and the talkfest waxed so hot that it was thought best to lay the matter over for a week so that all the aldermen might have time to properly consider it. As a result Alderman Wilson moved that City Clerk Cheadle and Alderman McEwen be appointed as a committee to draw up either an amendment to the saloon license ordinance or a motion defining the policy of the council in this regard which is to be submitted to the city attorney during the week and to the council next Monday night.

Bert N. Wheeler, secretary of the Civic league, was present at the meeting of the council last evening in connection with the dog tax question. Chief Troyer had pointed out the insufficiency of his force to spare men to collect dog taxes at this season of the year, and suggested the appointment of collectors on a commission basis for this purpose.

The police and license committee submitted the following resolution: "Resolved, that the chief of police is hereby advised that in the opinion of this council a strict enforcement of the law against unlicensed dogs is preferable to the employment of collectors to go around and collect the dog tax."

"Did the police and license committee submit that report?" asked Alderman McEwen, suggestively, and a smile went round the council chamber.

"I can not consistently vote for that report in that form," said Mr. McEwen, "I do not feel that it is consistent with our former action. I should like to vote for a substitute motion, but I can not conscientiously vote for that resolution."

Alderman S. F. Staples pointed out that the situation was somewhat different from that at the time of the lid agitation, as the chief had simply asked for advice as to what he should do and it had been tendered. This was clearly within the jurisdiction of the council he maintained.

An amendment was offered whereby the city clerk was instructed to publish warning notices in both the papers instructing the public that arrests were likely to follow if the tax was not paid before June 10. Only about 500 of the 2,000 dogs in the city are registered as yet.

The motion was put to vote in its original form and Aldermen McEwen and Shartel were the only ones who did not go in for "law enforcement."

The much fought Carpenter saloon license, for a saloon at Thirty-eighth avenue west and Oneota street, the old "Myers House," was next in order. The police and licence committee recommended the granting of the license, and Mr. Wheeler, who occupied a front seat outside the railing, expressed a desire to be heard.

"I am glad to see that you gentlemen are not afraid of the law enforcement dog if it does growl a little," said Mr. Wheeler. "Now, in regard to this Carpenter license. When it was granted a year ago we had a petition with 300 names on it asking that the application be refused. A counter petition was submitted endorsing the saloon, and this had 140 names, these being scattered in many cases over districts widely separated from the saloon. We challenged your committee to show where there were more people in the immediate vicinity who favored the saloon than those who did not want it.

"This year the matter has been taken up a month ahead of time. I don't know why, unless they thought that we were asleep. But we have not been asleep. I will tell you why. Not long ago a man was held up under the ore docks. He met the men who held him up in the Carpenter saloon, on Sunday, when the saloon ought not to have been open. Men from the saloon have come to the back doors of our homes intoxicated until the women are afraid to stay at home alone at night.

"We have no police protection and we are forced to live near this saloon. I had intended to have a petition in here tonight but I am discouraged about petitions after my experience of last year. Let me say, too, gentlemen, that since the agitation over this license a year ago I have discovered that the building in which this saloon is located stands in the name of the Fred Miller Brewing company and not in that of a poor old man named Meyers as we were told at that time."

The question was then put and the council voted to grant the license by a 10 to 6 vote, Aldermen Getchell, Haven, Kennedy, Moore, Mork and Wilson voting in the negative.

Secretary George M. Cruikshank of the West Duluth Commercial club submitted a copy of a resolution passed by the club at its meeting Friday night, condemning the proposed Forty-eighth avenue approach to the Ramsey street dock and expressing the club's endorsement of the Ramsey street approach as at first planned.

The members of the committee appointed by the club to attend the meeting of the council were all present and spoke briefly. Col. Gillis, in charge of the construction work of the Wisconsin Central road, was also present and was called upon to talk. He said in part:

"The Oneota street outlet at Forty-eighth avenue is about twenty-one feet higher than the dock. The engineers planned, I believe, to make a 6 per cent grade for this distance. The north line of our trench is 150 feet south of Oneota street. This would bring the level of our tracks about nine feet below Oneota street and would necessitate an eight-foot fill in addition to what we had planned. Now our yards, as you know, are to be located at this point, starting at Ramsey street. They will be 150 feet wide and 2,000 feet long. It will be easy for you to see what that means in the way of filling in in order to elevate our track the additional eight feet which the Forty-eighth avenue approach would necessitate. We would have to haul the material from fifteen or sixteen miles back of Superior.

"We have property in this neighborhood which we are planning to use for yards which is worth between $125,000 and $150,000 and this will be practically destroyed for our purposes.

"The Ramsey street approach, however, would very nearly coincide with the grade we are planning for our yards, and we would adjust our grade so as to be coincident with this. If you adopt the Forty-eighth avenue approach now, the Ramsey street approach can never be used as our tracks will have to be elevated to such a height as to make this impractical."

Alderman Getchell pointed out that in all probability it would be possible to get sand from the dredging of the slip pumped onto the approach along the Ramsey street approach, greatly cutting down the cost.

After the arguments had been heard, the council directed the board of public works to reject all bids which had been submitted for the construction of the dock with the Forty-eighth avenue approach, to readvertise for bids for the Ramsey street approach, and to let the contract therefor, subject to the approval of the council.

When Alderman Foubister's resolution relative to the revocation of the street car franchise of A. C. Volk & Co. came up, Mr. Foubister submitted a substitute motion calling for an estimate on the cost of grading the streets and avenues along which the proposed extension would run, as provided in the franchise. The city attorney last week submitted an opinion saying that until this portion of the franchise had been lived up to by the city, there was but little hope of securing a revocation.

In order to defray the expenses of Chief of Police Troyer to the conference of police chiefs to be held this year at Jamestown, $125 was appropriated last evening by the council.

Manager L. N. Case of the water and light department submitted a report on the cost of supplying sprinkling "nuses," in order that the fire hydrants might be reserved for fires only. He stated that there were two forms of the so-called "uses," one a swinging stand pipe and the other a small iron box containing a valve which is placed just inside the curbing, the last being recommended. These would cost at least $75.50 each to install, however, and ninety of them would be necessary, a total expenditure of $8,375.

Alderman S. F. Staples introduced a resolution requesting the Duluth Street Railway company to run at least one car earlier in the morning and one car later at night on the West Duluth and Lakeside line.

C. E. Peters, secretary of the Federated Trades assembly, submitted a request asking the council to endeavor to secure extra service on the West Third street line to Fairmount park on days when the labor unions have affairs in progress there. The communication stated that considerable inconvenience had been experienced here before and that they would like to have an assurance of more satisfactory service in future.

Mayor Cullum submitted a report of his appointments to the committee to work with the commercial club in arranging to entertain the Minnesota Municipal and Commercial league, which will meet here in July. They are W. E. McEwen, Dr. D. D. Murray, Thomas F. McGilvray and Harry W. Cheadle.

On a request from Secretary H. C. Helm of the park board the mayor was authorized to appoint twelve park policemen for the parks of the city.

The mayor's appointment of Charles J. Berg as poundmaster for the Woodland district was affirmed.

The board of public works was authorized to proceed with the preparation of six blocks of London road to get them in shape to make a test of Travia, the new road binder. The total cost of repairing the work not to exceed $550.

P. McDonnell's contract for paving Sixteenth avenue and three small sewer contracts were approved.

The committee on finance submitted an additional report on the condition of the permanent improvement fund stating that $2,000 more might have to be paid from that already much depleted fund for the Jenswold street railroad bridge which the city contracted to build.

Not Another Like It In Our Broad Republic.

To give positive home testimony in every locality is of itself unanswerable proof of merit; but when we add to this the continued endorsement from people who testified years ago, no evidence can be stronger. A citizen gratefully acknowledges the good received from Doan's Kidney Pills, and when time has tested the cure we find the same hearty endorsement, with added enthusiasm and continued praise. Cases of this kind are plentiful in the work of Doan's Kidney Pills, and such a record is unique in the annals of medicine.

A. Ebmer of 231 Fifth street east, Duluth, Minn., says: "My experience has demonstrated the fact that Doan's Kidney Pills are a remedy of exceptional merit, and one that can be relied upon in treating different phases of kidney trouble. Six years ago I suffered from a most distressing dull, heavy pain in the small of my back and through the loins. It broke my sleep at night, and in spite of the various remedies I used from time to time I had obtained no relief. At length I got Doan's Kidney Pills, and began using them with the most gratifying results. In a short time I found a cure, and this has proved lasting and permanent. I am an earnest advocate of Doan's Kidney Pills, and have already recommended them in the local newspapers."

SHEET METAL MEN OUT IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Minneapolis, May 28.—All union sheet metal workers throughout Minneapolis were called out on a strike Monday to join the ranks of the few who are already out on a strike for increased wages. Otto Bachman, business agent of the union, asserts the move is for the purpose of "tying up the town." Some of the shops where men have been working up to today, were paying the advanced scale of 45 cents an hour. Bachman charges that these shops were doing work for the shops closed by the strikers and that thus the Master Sheet Metal Workers association was being permitted to get out important work and yet keep the men out of employment. The number of men now striking is 160.

LOOK OVER STREET PAVING IN CALUMET.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 28.—In order to better acquaint themselves with the Blome paving a committee consisting of Mayor Duis, City Engineer Smith and Aldermen Lynch, Davidson, Buckingham, Valelly, Sprague, Knudson, Ellestad, Sannes and Day, has gone to Calumet.

The aldermen are by no means agreed as to what paving shall be selected for the paving district. The big fight seems to be between granitoid or Blome paving and creosote. In a report made public Saturday, Mayor George E. Duis and Aldermen John Valelly, R. A. Sprague and G. W. Buckingham, composing a committee appointed to investigate paving in the East, reported that they were in favor of Blome paving, and gave reasons why.

TWO NORTH DAKOTA FARMERS INJURED.

Mandan, N. D., May 28.—John Ruzick and Joseph Svihla, two farmers, were severely injured by the premature explosion of a charge of dynamite in the Little Heart valley. They were using dynamite for the purpose of blasting rock, and Svihla had drilled a hole and placed the charge of dynamite therein, and was tamping the charge when it exploded. Mr. Ruzick's left hand was partly blown off, and it was necessary to amputate the member just above the wrist. Svihla had his jaw broken and sustained bruises all over his body and internal injuries by the concussion, which threw him a great number of feet. Ruzick was taken to the Bismarck hospital for treatment, and Svihla is lying at his home in a critical condition.

Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic is prized equally by men and women, particularly when the hair begins to weaken or fade. AT DULUTH FOR REPAIRS

Huronic Reaches Duluth for First Time This Season.

After her great work this spring in breaking up the ice at Port Arthur and Thunder Bay and thus opening up navigation at the Canadian Head of the Lakes, the tug James Whalen arrived in Duluth this afternoon to undergo repairs at the drydock before resuming her work for the rest of the season.

Capt. James Whalen and Mr. Bowman, M. P., of Wiarton, Ont., owners of the tug Whalen, came down from Port Arthur this morning, on the steamer Huronic to direct the work of repairing the ice breaker. The tug will be taken to the shipyards at Superior.

The work of the Whalen at Port Arthur was nothing short of wonderful and shipmasters and vessel agents all over the Great Lakes have been praising her and Capt. Whalen. For many miles the tug broke a channel through ice thirty-seven inches thick or more for the incoming fleet of freighters from the lower lakes.

It is not thought that much repair work will be necessary on the Whalen as she stood the attacks on the ice so well that she is not badly damaged. She will be thoroughly overhauled, however, and will be put in first-class shape for the remainder of the sason.

HURONIC AT DULUTH.

Arrives in Harbor for the First Time This Season.

For the first time this season the passenger steamer Huronic of the Northern Navigation company arrived in the Duluth harbor early this morning from Port Arthur. She carried a passenger list numbering about fifty and a big load of package freight from Sarnia. She will leave again for Sarnia this evening at 8 o'clock.

Capt. Foote reports that the ice is all out at Port Arthur and there will be no more trouble at that point. The Huronic is now on her regular passenger schedule and will make regular trips from Sarnia to Port Arthur and Duluth.

EARLING HITS BRIDGE.

Work of Raising Damaged Span is Again Delayed.

The work of raising the damaged span of the interstate bridge from the channel in the St. Louis river between Rice's and Connor's Points has been delayed again this week because of a collision between the steamer Earling and the piling driven about the span and upon which it is to be supported.

It was reported last night by Capt. Reid, who has the contract for raising the damaged span, and he says that it will now be necessary to drive some new piling and restore the equipment to its former position before work can be proceeded with. The Earling was coming down the river according to the report and hit the piling driven about the span.

Had the blow been a heavy one it would probably have put in span in worse condition than it was before. Capt. Reid will probably demand damages from the owners of the steamer Earling for the accident.

Schooner Onieda Stranded on Manitou Island in Bad Shape.

Traverse City, May 28.—The schooner Oneida, which stranded on North Manitou island in the storm yesterday, is in bad shape, and will be a total loss unless weather conditions are extremely favorable. The Oneida was bound from Cecil bay to Chicago with hardwood lumber.

Watchman Washed Overboard.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 28.—Bert Kable, a watchman on the steamer M. A. Hanna, was washed overboard and lost in the storm yesterday on Lake Huron, about five miles east of Thunday Bay light. He lived at New Baltimore, Mich.

WORSE THAN BEFORE.

Must Begin All Over Again on Stranded Steamers.

Buffalo, May 28.—The steamers Nottingham and Smith could not be floated during the storm of yesterday and last night, and now the steamers are worse off than they were before. The channel dredged for the two steamers was refilled, and the contractors must begin all over again. The steamers are literally on the beach, and a man could walk around them.

Lumber Boat Strands.

Glen Haven, May 28.—The schooner Oneida, bound from Cecil Bay to Chicago with a cargo of hardwood lumber, stranded during the gale last night on North Manitou island. The crew is safe. The vessel is on the beach between the light house and the life saving station. The life savers have worked on the boat all day but have been unable to release her.

Heavy Sea on Lake Erie.

Cleveland, May 28.—The northwest storm caused a heavy sea on Lake Erie and few vessels left port yesterday. The tow barges Nasymith, Sagamore, and Whaleback 131 are at anchor outside in the lake and will not be brought in until the sea goes down.

Cargoes Freely Offered.

Cleveland, May 28.—Ore and coal tonnage continues in good demand at unchanged rates. Cargoes are offered freely at both ends of the route and the feeling is firm. The Lake Superior grain rate is 2 cents, the steamer Pabst having been placed to load at Fort William at that figure today.

To Assist Steamer.

Detroit, May 28.—The new wrecking steamer Favorite, which has just been placed in commission at St. Ignace, is now on her way to assist the stranded steamer Bielman and barge McLachlan near Port Austin.

Lowered Water a Foot.

Detroit, May 28.—The storm on Lake Erie caused the water at Lime Kiln crossing to fall nearly a foot yesterday but last night it went back to 19 feet 5 inches and the delayed fleet proceeded.

Leaves for Isle Royale.

Houghton, May 28.—The steamer M. C. Neff left this afternoon for Isle Royale with fifty workmen on board who will start the work of erecting a lighthouse on the Rock of Ages.

Rang 789 Hours.

A submarine bell at the bottom of Boston harbor and over two miles from the shore is being operated by electricity as an experiment in submarine signaling. During an endurance test the clapper was kept going 789 hours without pause and the sound was heard five miles away by a lightship equipped with the system.

The United States and Canadian governments are equipping the dangerous harbors with the new bell and later six points in Lakes Michigan, Superior and Huron will be similarly equipped.

Buoy Displaced.

The steamer General Williams of the United States lake survey fleet reports the Gruhb Reef Gas buoy displaced. It now lies 1¾ miles north, 30 degrees west of its proper position as shown on lake survey charts.

Goes to the Atlantic.

The small steamer Ravenscraig a well known lake boat, which formerly made regular trips to the Head of the Lakes, is now on her way to the Atlantic coast, having been purchased by an ocean transportation company. She has already passed Montreal on her way down the St. Lawrence river.

Harbor Beach, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheltered: Sanilac, Commerce, U. S. Lake Survey No. 1, Wade, Mitchell, Douglass, Salvor, Ottawa. Departed: Wright, Runnel, Creswell.

Shovelers Demand Increase.

Buffalo, May 28.—Shovelers on the Lackawanna coal docks are on strike today, demanding an advance. They have been receiving 20 cents per hour and ask 25 cents. The company is loading the steamer Holden with new men, and is disinclined to grant the advance.

Plenty of Coal Tonnage.

Buffalo, May 28.—Coal is a trifle more liberal today, and there is some activity in the line of contracts. Charters reported were the Holden, Green Bay; Western Star, Superior, 30 cents; Wilkesbarre, Chicago, 40 cents; Badger State, Bailly, Gratwick, Duluth, 30 cents. There is all the tonnage offering that is required, and rates are firm.

RAILROADS

TO ENLARGE THE YARDS

Great Northern is Considering Several Improvement Plans.

W. W. Broughton Says Details Are Not Yet Arranged.

That the Great Northern contemplates making quite extensive improvements in its yard facilities at the Head of the Lakes was admitted this morning by officials of the road who are in the city, but they claimed that the plan of improvement had as yet taken on no definite form, although a number of projects for enlarging yard facilities are under consideration. Any one of several places may be adopted.

The story in the morning paper to the effect that James J. Hill of the Great Northern, together with President Louis W. Hill and other officials was to visit the Head of the Lakes in a special train today, appears to have been utterly without foundation. Superintendent D. M. Philbin, W. W. Broughton, general traffic manager, and H. A. Kimball, assistant general freight agent, all of whom are in Duluth today, were seen this morning, and all denied that these high officials of the road had any intention of coming to Duluth this week. The report that the Hills were coming up in a special, or any other way, was characterized by Mr. Broughton and Mr. Philbin as a pipe dream, pure and simple. The dispatcher's office of the Great Northern also denied that a special was on its way to Duluth, or was expected to arrive here today.

It is freely admitted by both the Great Northern and Northern Pacific that terminals in Duluth and Superior are inadequate to meet the demands made upon them during the busy fall and winter season, and the blame for the car congestion and delay in handling freight is laid entirely to this fact, and not to the inefficiency of the officials of the traffic department. Local railroad men who have kept in touch with the situation, whether they are employed by the Hill lines or other companies, are greatly amused at reports to the contrary, to the effect that the congestion was due to mismanagement.

It is generally considered rather remarkable that local business was handled as well as it was, in view of the limited terminal facilities and the tremendous volume of freight that was to be moved. The fact that A. L. Craig, formerly passenger traffic manager, was reduced to general passenger agent, was cited in these reports as evidence that the freight situation was handled poorly. Mr. Craig had no more to do with the freight end of the business than the section men employed along the tracks, and his change of position could therefore have little to do with the freight department.

"Business at the Head of the Lakes, and all along the line, has increased so rapidly and to such a great extent that the need of larger terminal facilities here is urgently felt," said Mr. Broughton this morning. "It is for the operating department to say just what form any improvements in the way of bigger yards shall take. We of the traffic department do not decide these things. It is a fact that improvements will be made in both Duluth and Superior, as The Herald reported on the occasion of President Hill's visit here recently, but it is also a fact that plans for such improvements have assumed no definite form as yet.

"Just when work on the new yards will be started I do not know. I am not even in a position to say that it will be started at all. I am not the one to be quoted on such matters, anyway. It is true that there has been considerable talk of a new freight house for Duluth. The increase in business doubtless will call for such a structure in time.

"If you could see all the blue prints of different plans of improvement for Duluth and Superior, you would think that something was going to be done. Numerous different plans are being given careful consideration, and some one of these will be selected in the near future. I cannot say whether yard extensions will be made before the fall rush begins. When the improvements come, both Superior and Duluth will be benefited. It is the policy of the road to provide additional freight facilities whenever and wherever they are needed."

While Mr. Broughton would not admit it, it is believed his visit here at this time is especially in regard to the location of a freight shed in Duluth. Probably a site for the proposed building will be selected at an early date. This improvement is badly needed, and it seems only reasonable to assume that it will be made this summer.

It is reported from the Twin Cities that the land being purchased along the Superior water front in the name of Mr. Hill is for the contemplated enlargement of the yard facilities. An official is quoted as saying that the Great Northern plans to have equipment there for 500 cars. From the same source comes the story that the establishment of the steel plant in Duluth will see the creation of a terminal railroad company with full equipment of tracks and rolling stock, to be entirely controlled by the steel corporation.

ENFORCING RULE.

The rule that a person must have a ticket to destination before boarding the train, is being strictly enforced now at the Union depot gate to the train sheds. In the past officials have not taken as much pains to see that this rule was enforced as they are displaying now, although usually passengers were asked to show tickets before passing through the gate.

But under the new 2-cent rate law, a good many people have shown a disposition to pass up buying tickets altogether, and pay their fare on the train, for the law reads that there can be no extra charge made by the conductor if cash fare is paid, which was not the case under the old system. The conductor would have to be a veritable walking bank if the public got in the habit of paying cash fares, and for that reason a more particular effort will be made to compel the buying of tickets.

WISCONSIN JUDGE HAS NOVEL THEORY.

Manitowoc, Wis., May 28.—That the establishment of the rural mail route has had a tendency to increase the proportion and number of insanity cases in the rural districts by preventing the social gatherings formerly common, and thereby causing lives on the farm to be more lonesome, is the assertion of County Judge John Chlopek of this city. During the last quarter there have been more insanity cases before the Manitowoc probate court than in any corresponding period since the establishment of the court.

Burglars Deceive Watchman and Rob Howard Lake Postoffice.

They Also Blow Waverly Office and Steal Many Stamps.

Waverly, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The postoffices here and at Howard Lake were broken into and robbed early Sunday by three burglars who appear to have been possessed of no little nerve and sunning. The first broke into and robbed the Waverly postoffice. They blew open the safe and secured about $200 in stamps.

Then they secured a handcar and rode to Howard Lake. On arriving there accosted the town's night watchman and told him that there was a bad piece of track about a mile down the line, and that he had better go and investigate.

Acting on their suggestion the night watchman journeyed down the track and left the three robbers practically in charge of the town. Their first move was toward the Howard postoffice, which they entered with apparent ease, and blew the safe, securing some booty.

No clue has been discovered.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.—R. M. Blood, aged about 39 years committed suicide Sunday afternoon by swallowing a mixture of carbolic acid and laudanum. He leaves a wife and one child. The dead man was a son of L. S. Blood, the president of the Blood Broom Manufacturing company of Fergus Falls. The following note he addressed to his brother, was found in Blood's pocket:

Stillwater, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—After deliberating sixteen hours the jury that considered the case of the Grand Forks Lumber company against the McClure Logging company returned a verdict for the plaintiff for $78,496.51.

The last of the jury cases for the present term of court is on trial, the damage case brought by Fred Brown against the Musser-Sauntry company for $2,000 for injuries alleged to have been sustained in a lumber camp of the defendant.

Robert O'Leary, who was sent to the county jail here from Chisago county for burglary in the third degree and criminal assault and later released on bail, was returned Monday from Rush City on a new charge, that of assault in the second degree, having, it is said, used a hammer on his victim. IOWAN PURCHASES LAND.

He Acquires Over Six Thousand Acres in Beltrami County.

Bemidji, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Six thousand, six hundred and nineteen acres of Beltrami county cut over lands were sold and transferred last week, the total consideration for the land being between $45,000 and $50,000, the owner of the lands and the buyer both being residents of Iowa.

G. R. Whitmer, a resident of Sioux Falls, S. D., sold the land to M. G. Towne, who lives in Polk county, Iowa.

All of the 6,619 acres lie in town 146, ranges 34 and 35, and is south and west of the village of Wilton, all being within a radius of fifteen miles of the city of Bemidji. The land is very desirable for farming purposes; considerable of it lies along the banks of the Mississippi river, and but little is of a swampy nature.

While he was here, Mr. Whitmer also sold to Mr. Towne eighty-four lots in the townsite of Wilton, (the plat of which is owned by the former) and about sixty acres adjoining the townsite. For this last transfer, Mr. Towne paid $2,000.

The deeds in the transaction, together with the other papers, have been filed with Register of Deeds Harris and recorded in the books of the office. Mr. Whitmer, in recording the mortgages, paid $107 into the county treasurer, as mortgage tax, as per the new tax law.

WISCONSIN

NO LICENSE; NO FISHING

Wisconsin Lawmakers May Legislate Against Non-Resident Nimrods.

Bill Requiring Residents of Other States to Pay License.

Madison, Wis., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—If a bill now before the legislature becomes a law, the Minnesota fishermen who are in the habit of angling for trout in the northwestern counties of this state will have to pay a license fee of $10 a year for the privilege of fishing. The bill proposes to exact such license from all non-residents who desire to fish for trout in the counties of Barron, Buffalo, Burnett, Chippewa, Dunn, Pepin, Polk and Rusk counties, in the northwestern part of the state to pay a license fee of $10 a season.

The blow is aimed at fishermen from Minnesota as well as the hotels and liverymen and summer resort proprietors of Wisconsin, though it is presumed that the author of the bill overlooked the fact that these would be affected by the imposing of a license on "trouters."

INDIANS OWN LANDS.

Washington, May 28.—In the case of the United States against the Paine Lumber company of Wisconsin, the supreme court of the United States has construed the long disputed problem of the land rights of the remnant of the Stockbridge and Munsie Indians that remain in Wisconsin favorably to the Indians.

The Indians have contended that the treaty of 1856 conferred on allottees under the right to dispose of the timber on their lands, while the government treated the lands as public domain. The lumber companies come into the case as defendants in proceedings charging them with violating the law against cutting the public timber. They pleaded purchase from the Indian occupants.

JURY LAW ATTACKED.

Madison, Wis., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court this week heard the Gubbins case, appealed from Milwaukee county, to test the validity of the jury commission law under which for many years the grand and petit juries of the state have been selected and drawn.

The defense of the law was conducted by District Attorney McGovern of Milwaukee and Mr. Trump; the attack upon it by Messrs. Turner and Cook, Charles Quarles and ex-District Attorney Bennett of Milwaukee and Sanborn, Lamoreux & Fray and H. B. Walmsley of Ashland.

Among other points it was contended that the law is unconstitutional and void because it requires a property qualification for a jury commissioner; also because the power of appointment of the commissioners cannot constitutionally be lodged in a circuit judge. Upon this last point counsel made much use of the late Minnesota case of the state vs. Brill, in which that court, in an elaborate opinion by Justice Elliot, held the Minnesota statute void, which attempted to lodge in the district judges the power to appoint the board of control of certain charitable institutions in Minnesota.

Mr. Byrns says that nothing has been left undone to make the affair a great success. Every door of the capitol building will be carefully guarded, under direction of the sergeants-at-arms of the house and senate, and no one will be admitted without a ticket issued by the committee, except representatives of the press and pages, who will come in on their badges. Each member of the house and senate will receive five tickets, and the governor will have twenty-five, the lieutenant governor, speaker of the house, secretary of state, auditor general, and other prominent officials, ten each. Each capitol employe will have one.

The president and his party are to arrive at Lansing shortly after 10 o'clock. They will be escorted directly to the capitol, Governor Warner and the lieutenant governor occupying seats in the president's carriage from the depot to the capitol. From the capitol to the industrial school, where the president is to be entertained, Mr. Byrns and Senator Smith are to ride in the president's carriage. Associated with Mr. Byrns on the arrangement committee are Senator Charles Smith of Hubbell and Representative James Knight of Norway.

The latest information received came in a telegram to Mr. Cashen to the effect that Dan was still missing and that it is believed that he is lost. He left his home to go into the woods hunting, advising his relatives before departing that he would be back in an hour or two, but nothing had been heard from him since. Cashen was born in Ishpeming about twenty-four years ago, remaining here until three years ago, when he moved to Hibbing, leaving there last year to locate at Taconite.

DAKOTAS

THEY SEIZE MORE BEER

Contraband Articles of Drink Falls Into Officer's Clutches.

Minot, N. D., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The authorities continue hot after the illegal importations of beer into this city. The police of the Ward county metropolis persist in their efforts to confiscate that contraband article of drink.

The latest seizure of the prohibited drink was made under the direction of Officer Hyland. The police captured a few dray loads of beer at the Great Northern freight depot, which was consigned to the Hamm Brewing company.

It appears that the beer had been shipped to Mondak and then reshipped to Minot, evidently in the hope that this would throw the sleuths off the trail, and the beer could be landed in the city without difficulty. But the police were on, and twenty barrels and eighteen cases were added to the choice collection of boozerine now on hand at the city jail.

"We are here to enforce the law," said a police officer, "and it will keep the brewing companies busy to get their goods into Minot without our knowing it. If that law will stick, there will be very little beer drank in Minot until a new law is made or local option carries."

The city authorities now have nearly two carloads of intoxicants in their possession and it is likely that as soon as the matter can be brought about, an order will be made to destroy all of it.

CROP OUTLOOK GOOD.

Grain Authority Gives His Views on North Dakota Prospect.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 28.—A. G. Tanton of Minneapolis, who is one of the officers of the Farmers' Grain company, owning fifteen elevators in North Dakota and two in Manitoba, was in Grand Forks last night on his return from a trip through North Dakota. Mr. Tanton stated that the prospects for a big wheat crop in North Dakota are excellent. The wheat is coming up in fine shape and the ground is just right for the growth of crops. Some of the farmers think a fall of rain would be beneficial, but Mr. Tanton believes there will be no need of rain for a week or so. He has had years of experience in North Dakota, formerly residing at Devils Lake, and says that as a rule there are big crops in North Dakota when the seeding is late. He is very optimistic over the outlook.

DEAD BODY IN RED RIVER.

Fargo, N. D., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—While fishing in the Red River of the north, a short distance above town, Sunday, two boys came across the dead body of a man.

The body showed evidence of having been in the water for a long period. It was well dressed in new clothing. A note book was found, but there was no address in it.

Officials believe the body had been in the ice for months, and probably is that of a man drowned last fall at some point up stream. There are two or three missing people in this vicinity.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

EIGHTS IN FIRST RACE

Boat Club Crews Will Settle Rivalry Tomorrow Night.

Interest in Contest Unprecedented for a Club Regatta.

Never has a club race aroused such interest among the Duluth Boat club members, and especially the rowing members, as the one scheduled for tomorrow evening between the two eight oared crews.

The conditions are as follows: The regular junior eight, meaning the eight oared crew composed of men who have never won in a regatta, and which will probably go to the regatta at White Bear lake in July will be opposed by a crew made up partly of seniors and of the "bantams." The three seniors are Church, Haroldson, and Skelton, who were in the eight which won at Minnetonka last year. Church also rowing in the four oared crew sent East. These three men hold the three stern positions, Church stroking. Behind them is Nealsund, a new man but one who is looked upon as a "find." The four bow positions are filled by the "bantam" four. These are men who will be entered in the four oared race at White Bear for crews averaging 145 pounds.

Junior Eight—		Senior Eight—
B. J. Pierce	Stroke	F. E. Church
J. E. Rockwell	Seven	A. R. Skelton
W. Crawford	Six	H. Haroldson
W. Totman	Five	S. Nealsund
J. Pierce	Four	J. Horak
A. E. Nelson	Three	J. W. Walker
H. Dinham	Two	Ed Mapp
H. A. McDowell	Bow	R. Higgins
R. Marshall	Coxswain	S. D. Glass

F. E. Church will captain the senior eight and J. E. Rockwell the junior. The men must report promptly at 7:30 and the race will begin at 7:45. It will be rowed with a turn, both the start and the finish taking place in front of the club house.

The club offers a prize of a pair of leather seated rowing trunks for each man in the winning boat.

The crews were sent over the course last week and the seniors won by a length. Both crews have showed much improved form since then, however, and the race tomorrow night will certainly be "for blood." Barring accidents it should be one of the closest ever seen in a club regatta.

The officials will be as follows: J. D. Mahoney, starter; H. H. Peyton, referee; F. H. White, time keeper; J. F. Killorin, M. Kelly and E. N. White, judges at the finish line.

After the race the two crews will be the guests of the club at a dinner in the cafe.

The smoker and entertainment planned as the formal opening of the season will also follow the race.

SOX TAKE SLOW GAME

Three Pitchers Were Wild in Yesterday's Contest.

Home Team Took Lead Early and Won Out 10 to 5.

The wildness of Evans and Koopman, before the latter settled down after being substituted for Evans, gave the home team a lead in the second and third innings yesterday, which Calumet couldn't overcome and Duluth won the third straight game from the champs by the score of 10 to 5. It was a listless exhibition, lasting over two hours, without a feature in sight.

Tredway pitched his first game of the season and held out well until the sixth. Cummings was substituted in the eighth.

The pitchers on both sides were wild and the fielders fell down an equal number of times, but Calumet never had a chance to win the game, just because they didn't fight. Instead of successors to last year's champions playing for another pennant, those Aristocrats played yesterday like hopeless tail-enders. If Mullane takes that outfit back to Calumet playing the lifeless ball they did yesterday, there will be a roar which will be heard up in the wilds of the north pole region. That's one thing the people in Calumet will not stand for. They may support an unfortunate losing team, but there will be a large shipping tag attached to the coat of a bonehead player. The Aristocrats had just as much chance to win yesterday as did the Sox. But they didn't seem to want their chance. While the Sox were playing hard in the field and taking advantage of everything handed them while at bat, the Aristocrats were playing as though they didn't know what good, live baseball was like. A catch by Ferring was a feature. Score:

Louisville	2	7	0
Toledo	1	6	2

Batteries—Puttmann and Peitz; Chech and Land. Umpire—Keren.

Game Began Well.

The game started out as though the fans were in for a fine exhibition of ball. Calumet had men on first and second in the first. Duluth had a man on second and in the next inning Calumet chased a man to third. No scoring. In the second, Evans began to make valiant efforts to throw his arm across the plate. Leighty hit safely, Smith walked, Evans fumbled McLaughlin's grounder and the bases were full. Doolan couldn't find the pan and Olmstead walked, Leighty being forced in. Treadway singled, scoring Smith and McLaughlin, Olmstead taking third. Evans hit Summers and the bases were full again. Koopman went to the hill and Evans was chased to the bench. Tracey and Haney fanned, but McCormick refused to fall a victim and poked out a long single, scoring Olmstead and Treadway. Leighty fanned to end the inning.

Sox Scored in Third.

Koopman handed the Sox a few in the third. Smith walked and went to second on a passed ball. McLaughlin popped to Koopman. Olmstead walked and Treadway again singled, filling the bases. Doolan fumbled Summers' grounder and Smith scored. Tracey drove one through Oriet and Olmstead scored. Haney was there with a single and Treadway and Summers tallied. McCormick walked, but Leighty went down on a grounder to Koopman.

The Aristocrats took their first run of the game in the fourth. Newcombe hit one to Leighty and the shortstop made his first error of the year. He went to second on a passed ball, while Oriet was fanning. Rognas singled and Newcombe scored. Koopman went down on a grounder to Olmstead and F. Corrigan went out to Tracey.

Treadway began to go bad in the sixth. He hit Newcombe, the first man up, Oriet fanned and Rognas singled. Newcombe scored on Koopmon's out. Treadway hit F. Corrigan, and on a short throw, when he tried to steal second, Summers heaved the ball back over Smith's head, Rognas scoring and Corrigan taking third. Jack Corrigan walked, but Summers brought the inning to an end by a fine stop of Taylor's grounder.

Treadway's weakness showed again in his wildness in the seventh. Ball started the inning with a two-sacker and stole third. Roy tried to head him off, threw wild and he scored. Doolan went out on a fly to Tracey. Newcombe and Oriet walked in succession. Rognas singled, filling the bases. Koopman hit to Tracey and Newcombe was headed off at the plate. F. Corrigan drove one through Olmstead and Oriet scored. J. Corrigan hit a grounder to Leighty and Calumet's scoring had ended. Cummings went in in the next inning, and in the two sessions the Aristocrats didn't get a look.

The Sox made it ten in the eighth. Tracey walked and Haney fanned. McCormick hit to Rognas, who tried to head Tracey off at second. Oriet dropped the ball and both men were safe. Leighty singled and Tracy scored, McCormick being caught at the place. Roy fanned.

TRACK MEET ON FRIDAY

Postponed Event Will be Pulled Off This Week.

Both Teams in Good Shape and Records May Go.

Announcement was made today that the track and field meet between the Duluth Centrals and Blaine high school, which was postponed last Saturday on account of rain, will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. It was feared for a time that the boys would be unable to hold the meet on account of there being no Saturday available. The interscholastic track meet will be held next Saturday, so that date would be secured and the following week, school closes. So it was decided to hold the meet during the week and Friday afternoon was chosen.

Both teams were in fine fettle for the meet last Saturday, and with the extra time by the postponement, they should both give a good account at the meet Friday. On account of the cold weather, the boys have not had as much of an opportunity for training as they would have liked, but they have made good progress, considering the time and none would be surprised to see some records go. The entries made for the meet last Saturday will hold good for Friday afternoon.

The Faculty-Senior game, which was set for tomorrow afternoon, will probably go over until Tuesday of next week. Examinations are on in the school this week and neither teachers nor pupils are free to give over their minds to the consideration of such a weighty question as the annual game. So it is probable they will clash next week.

TROPHY IS PRESENTED

"Duluth Evening Herald" Cup for Grade School Athletes.

Field Meet Will Boost Clean Sport Among Boys.

There will be an additional stimulus afforded to the school boy athletes who are to take part in the events of the grade interscholastic field meet which is to be held at the Driving park next Saturday. Besides the handsome pennant which has been offered to the school making the most points in the various events, as a trophy of their prowess, The Herald will offer a silver cup appropriately engraved, to the school which takes first place.

The cup stands nearly a foot in heighth and was designed by M. Henricksen of this city. It will be on exhibition in the window of the Henricksen store. On one side it bears the words "Duluth Evening Herald Trophy," and above them in skillfully raised work the picture of a runner in the regulation running clothes. The other side of the trophy is left bare and the names of the winning chools are to be engraved there.

The cup will have to be won three times before it becomes the property of any school, but each winner will have the honor of having the name of the school engraved on the blank side of the trophy and will keep the cup until the succeeding year at least.

Interest in the meet has been rapidly on the increase during the last week and the announcement that this new and handsome trophy, is to be won next Saturday, is sure to bring out a record breaking list of entries. The cup does not have to be won three successive times in order to insure permanent possession, any three victories counting.

Every game helps.

One more game today will make it stronger.

Winnipeg tomorrow. Then watch some baseball.

Calumet leaves for home tonight. Some of them will be lucky if they get to Michigan.

Treadway's first game for the year and he "done noble." Had all kinds of speed and breaks, and control will come.

There must be something in the Winnipeg climate which makes good ball. Houghton and Calumet played better ball there than in Duluth.

Evans was wilder than the proverbial hawk yesterday. Koopman wasn't much better for a time, but he did better than Sunday. The Sox didn't need to hit him yesterday, though.

The outfield seems to agree with Rognas. He hit safely four times in five times up yesterday.

Treadway was jealous of Krick's record yesterday and took two bingles in four times up. It is up to Josie to keep on slugging, or Tready will get him.

Frank Corrigan, who caught for Calumet yesterday, was about the slowest behind the bat ever seen here. He needs ginger with the rest of the team and an overdose wouldn't hurt him.

Mullane was on the bench yesterday, but he was in the game all the time with his coaching. He's a real live manager and if he can instill some of his spirit into his players he will have a live ball team.

Summers played great ball at second yesterday. He stabbed off a couple which meant runs had they gone by, and his two errors didn't turn the current of the game, so they can be overlooked.

Leighty broke his errorless streak yesterday and made a misplay on a hard ball. Before he made it he had forty-one chances without an error, playing eight full games without a slip.

The Houghton team was in the city last night on their way to the Copper country from Winnipeg. They lost four of their five games in the Canadian city, but played good ball at that, and drew large crowds.

CITY LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

Six Commercial Ball Teams Have Banded Together.

The Duluth Amateur Baseball league was organized at a meeting held in the Northern Hardware company's store last evening. Six teams comprise the league. They are the Universal Millers, Columbias, Larson Druggists, Scott-Graffs, Oak Halls and News-Tribune. The invitation to some Superior clubs to enter was declined, as there is a city league across the bay.

The league will play only Sunday ball, as that is the only day on which the members of the teams will be able to leave their work. An effort will be made to secure one ground in the East end another in the West end. A schedule committee was named and the schedule will probably be ready by the next meeting next Monday night. The officers selected last night are Sandy McDonald, president; Ray Fenton, secretary and treasurer.

WON ON MUDDY TRACK.

James R. Keene's Frizette Takes Lauretta Stakes at Belmont.

New York, May 28.—Over a track that was deep with slush and through a rainstorm that made it impossible to see the horses until the last furlong was reached, Frizette, a Hamburg filly from J. R. Keene's stable, added as a starter at the last moment, upheld the fame of her sire as a mudder by winning the Lauretta stakes at Belmont park yesterday.

STOPS SAND REMOVAL

Government Prohibits the Taking of Sand From Minnesota Point.

Major Fitch Says Practice Endangers Point and Harbor.

Maj. Graham D. Fitch United States engineer in charge of this distict, has given notice to dredgemen and others that, until further notice is given to the contrary, the excavations of sand from the lake in front of portions of Minnesota Point between the White City grounds and the wells of the Superior water works which includes the "Barrens," will be prohibited, because it endangers the point and the harbor.

The taking of sand between Superior entry and the old dismantled lighthouse is also forbidden.

Maj. Fitch says that the excavation of sand elsewhere in front of Minnesota Point must be subject to the property rights of the land owners and all responsibility for damage to property on Minnesita Point which may be caused by such excavation must be assumed by the party making the excavation.

The engineer's office has under consideration the prohibition of taking sand from the lake front for the entire length of Minnesota Point between the Duluth ship canal and Superior entry, to take effect not later than the end of the present season, on account of the danger of erosion of the lake shore of the point caused by excavations in the lake. Due notice of the prohibition will be given, the preliminary notice being given so that persons having any objections to the course proposed may have the opportunity of presenting them to the government engineer for consideration.

SETTLE STRIKE AT BRAINERD

The Men Go Back to Work for the Present.

The strike of the freighthandlers in the Northern Pacific shops at Brainerd has been temporarily settled and the men have gone back to work. The men had been on strike for about two weeks during which time they have organized a union with a membership of about 100.

Notice was received today by W. E. McEwen, secretary of the State Federation of Labor on the promise of the railroad officials that their demands will be taken up at the St. Paul headquarters of the company and a decision reached in thirty days. If the men are not satisfied in their demands by that time they will again go out on strike.

A raise of 25 cents is asked by the men, from $1.75 a day to $2 a day and they confidently expect that this will be granted them before the expiration of the stipulated thirty days.

Freight and material for the shops has been piled up and delayed badly during the last two weeks that the strike was in effect. The main result of the strike so far as concerning the labor standpoint was the successful organization of the freighthandlers into a union. They went into the strike unorganized but now have a strong union.

THE KING AND QUEEN OF NORWAY VISIT IN PARIS.

Paris, May 28.—Paris was in holiday attire yesterday in honor of the visit of King Haakon and Queen Maud of Norway, who arrived here on their way to England to visit the queen's parents. All the public buildings and hotels and many private residences flew the Norwegian flag into the wind with the color of France. A special mission, consisting of a personal representative of the president and high military officials, met the royal train at the frontier and accompanied their majesties to Paris. They were received in state at the Bois de Boulogne railroad station by President Fallieres, the presidents of the senate and of chambers of deputies, the cabinet ministers, the military governor of Paris Prefect of Police Lepine, and others, while massed bands played the Norwegian national anthem and the "Marseillaise."

WILL CALL FOR BIDS

Government is Ready to Begin Harbor Dredging Work.

Army Engineers Meeting Here June 18 Will be Important.

Maj. Graham D. Fitch is preparing the specifications with a view of calling for bids in the harbor dredging work to be paid for out of the last appropriation made for the purpose by congress.

The dredging work has been held up for some time awaiting the decision of the United States supreme court, recently rendered, to the effect that the eight-hour law does not affect government harbor improvement work. Until it was definitely known whether the law would affect government work, the dredging improvement could not be advertised, as the contractors would not have known on what working basis they could base their bids.

There will be about 1,000,000 cubic yards of dredging to be done inside the harbor and at the entrance to the Duluth ship canal.

One of the important improvements in connection with the work will be the deepening of the inner harbor off the ship canal. The vessel blockade which choked the inner harbor this spring emphasized the necessity of more anchorage room for the big boats.

Today the government is completing the work on the breakwater at Marquette, Mich. The repair work on the breakwater at Two Harbors will begin this week. J. W. Preston of this city has the contract.

The government is building an inner sea wall to protect the park on the north side of the Duluth ship canal. The sea wall was undermined and portions of the park were badly washed out by the big storm of November, 1905. The inner wall will be of concrete construction.

The park on the north side of the canal, in which the engineers' building is located, is being turfed. When the work is completed the grounds will be very attractive.

Great interest is being shown in the meeting of the army engineers which will be held at the Commercial club rooms June 18. At this meeting the engineers will hear all who are interested in the matter of a breakwater outside the Duluth ship canal, or a central canal. It is important that every person who has any interest in the matter should plan to be present at the meeting. The government engineers who will be present are some of the most prominent in army circles.

Relief from Rheumatic Pains.

"I suffered with rheumatism for over two years," says Mr. Rolland Curry, a patrolman, of Key West, Fla. "Sometimes it settled in my knees and lamed me so I could hardly walk, at other times it would be in my feet and hands so I was incapacitated for duty. One night when I was in severe pain, and lame from it, my wife went to the drug store here and came back with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I was rubbed with it and found the pain had nearly gone during the night. I kept on using it for a little more than two weeks and found that it drove the rheumatism away. I have not had any trouble from that disease for over three months." For sale by all druggists.

STRIKE SITUATION IN CUBA GROWS WORSE.

Santiago, Cuba, May 28.—The strike situation in this city became aggravated yesterday. There was considerable shooting throughout the day, and at one time yesterday afternoon a serious outbreak was threatened. The business district of the city is being guarded by 500 members of the rural guards. Many rifle shot were exchanged with rioters, but no one has been reported killed. It is supposed the firing was for the purpose of intimidation.

DOZENS ARE SUGGESTED

Bryan Said to be Contemplating Withdrawal From the Race.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although upwards of a year must elapse before the great political parties of this country meet in national convention for the selection of candidates for the presidency in 1908, the air is full of politics and dozens of men are suggested as likely standard bearers for their respective sides. There has been far more talk of the probable Republican nominee, recently than of the man most likely to oppose him. For months it was almost a foregone conclusion that Col. William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska would be the standard bearer of Democracy once more, and it is scarcely to be doubted today that Mr. Bryan can have a majority of delegates if he is really a candidate for the nomination.

One of the closest friends that Mr. Bryan has in Washington—and he has a host of them—is authority for the statement that Mr. Bryan is unlikely to be a candidate. This gentleman asserts positively that the eminent Nebraskan has reached the conclusion that the time has come when a Southern man should be selected as the standard bearer of the part, the majority of whose votes come from the Southern states. Referring to this matter today, Mr. Bryan's friend said:

"I have had correspondence and personal conversation with Mr. Bryan quite recently and he has led me to believe that he is seriously contemplating absolute and final withdrawal from the presidential race. He favors the selection of some Southern man who has been conspicuous in his fight against the railroads. There are several of these in the Southern states, among them the governor of Texas, the Democratic nominee for governor of Alabama and Governor Hoke Smith of Georgia. I violate no confidence when I assert that of the three mentioned Mr. Bryan is more inclined to favor Governor Hoke Smith than either of the others. He has the highest regard for Mr. Smith, politically and personally, and he looks upon him as the strongest man from a political standpoint that the South could advance for the honor of the nomination."

But, notwithstanding the prestige which the endorsement of Mr. Smith by Mr. Bryan would give, the governor of Georgia, there are serious doubts as to the ability of that gentleman to obtain a majority of the delegates even from the Southern states. As to the governor of Texas, it is far more likely that Senator Culberson will be the candidate of the Lone Star state than that the governor will be. It is peculiar in this connection that Governor Johnson of Minnesota has a very strong following among the politicians of the Southern states, and it must also be remembered that Judge Gray of Delaware has powerful friends scattered from one end of the country to the other.

If Mr. Bryan is really out of the race his influence will be of enormous value to some other candidate so fortunate as to secure it. But at the same time Mr. Bryan will be unable to control the votes of all the delegates whose first choice is the Nebraskan. Col. Henry Watterson of Kentucky has a dark horse candidate not yet named who may prove formidable enough to make a lively race for any one from the Southern states, and Col Watterson has already let it be known that his man is not a resident of the Atlantic seaboard.

Altogether, with Mr. Bryan out of the running, it would seem that the Democrats are no nearer the final selection of a candidate than are their opponents, and with Mr. Roosevelt scratched, there are at least a dozen "horses" more or less dark still, among the entries, and every one undergoing training in expert hands.

Roland P. Falkner of Porto Rico, who is the commissioner of education for the island, is in Washington to attend the Jamestown exposition. Mr. Falkner is enthusiastic in his description of the growth of the educational spirit in Porto Rico. During all the years that the Spaniards controlled the island, little attention was paid to the education of the masses. At the time of its cession to the United States, following the Spanish treaty, there was but one building in all of Porto Rico devoted exclusively to school purposes. Today there are upwards of 100 school buildings, erected by the board of education throughout the island, and each is crowded with pupils at every session. But until very recently little attention was paid to the English language. The teachers themselves spoke Spanish, and Spanish was the language in which the pupils were taught. Now, however, the English language has been adopted as the official tongue of the island. The teachers themselves have been educated up to the point where they are able to impart their teachings to the scholars in English. According to Mr. Falkner, it will not be more than fifteen years when English will have become the commercial, school and public, as well as the official language of the island. Mr. Falkner adds that the Porto Ricans are growing in material prosperity, and it will not be very many years before that Antillean gem of the Antilles will be filled with a population of prosperous, industrious people.

Brig. Gen. G. F. Elliott, commandant of the United States marine corps, at the annual wallow of the Washington Corral Military Order of the Caribou, in an exceedingly interesting talk to an exceedingly interesting talk to in an exceedingly interesting talk to officers and invited guests the other day at Marshall hall, told of the ups and downs, largely ups, of the organization which he commands. He presented in simple phrase a problem that the officers of the navy and war departments have not yet answered. Gen. Elliott, in discussing the order, recently issued, providing for but two years in foreign service for officers and men of both the military and naval arms of the service as well as for the marine corps, stated that he would like a professor of arithmetic to tell him how 67 per cent of the rank and file of the marine corps could be relieved by 33 per cent under the new rule of two years' service in the tropics. He said that 67 per cent of the men under his command were either on the sea or in the tropics performing service for their government, while 33 per cent were in the United States performing service incident to the work of the command.

The general further said that with six years of enlistment under the new regulations an officer or enlisted man would have four years of service out of six years, a fact not contemplated by those entrusted with the enlargement and building up of the marine corps. The conclusion which he desired to make was that the marine corps would have to be enlarged in order that half the command might be doing sea and shore duties in foreign countries, while the other half would have their service at home.

Incident to his speech, Gen. Elliott said that it did not matter to the men or the officers of the marine corps who they served, whether the army or navy, the regulations requiring that when on sea duty the corps is subject to the orders of the commanding officers of the navy, while on land they are subject to the orders of the commanding officers of the army. He said that the marine corps has less kickers in it, be believed, than in any branch of our military establishment and all that the marine corps asked was fair treatment and an opportunity to show their love for the flag. The marine corps today consists of 8,771 enlisted men and 278 officers under the command of Brig. Gen. Elliott, who is beloved by every man of the corps, and whose record as a soldier is of the highest.

ITCHING RASH LASTED 18 YEARS

Baby Girl Had Rash Behind Ears—Nothing Would Drive It Away—It Spread and Grew Worse Under Specialist's Care—Tried Everything Without Avail.

CUTICURA REMEDIES EFFECTED PERFECT CURE

"When my daughter was a baby she had a breaking out behind the ears. The doctor said that she would outgrow it, and it did get somewhat better until she was about fifteen years old, and after that we could get nothing that would drive it away. She was always applying something in the way of salves. It troubled her behind the knees, opposite the elbows, back of the neck and ears, under the chin, and then it got on the face. That was about three years ago. As we had tried everything that we could hear of without help she took treatment with a specialist and seemed to get worse all the time. We were then advised to try the Cuticura Remedies, and now I don't see any breaking out, and we are well pleased with the results, and I will cheerfully recommend the Cuticura Remedies to all that may need them. FUNERAL OF DR. JOHN WATSON

At Liverpool Attended by Remarkable Demonstration.

Liverpool, May 28.—The funeral at the Sefton Park Presbyterian church yesterday of Dr. John Watson (Ian MacLaren) was attended by an immense crowd and was signalized by a remarkable demonstration of respect.

Dr. Watson died at Mount Pleasant, Iowa, May 6, and since its arrival from the United States the body has lain in the Sefton Park church, where Dr. Watson was pastor for twenty-five years. The funeral services were impressive. The Rev. Alexander Cornell, the successor of Dr. Watson at Sefton Park; the bishop of Liverpool, Dr. Chavasse, Dr. Dykes, principal of Westminster college, and other distinguished clergymen took part in the services, which were attended by a notable congregation representing all denominations, as well as the lord mayor of Liverpool and other high municipal officials. Many Americans were present, including Consul John L. Griffiths.

Great crowds lined the route to the Smithdown road cemetery, where over 40,000 persons witnessed the interment. Four hundred members of the Liverpool Scottish volunteers, of which Dr. Watson was chaplain, paraded bareheaded and then formed in rollow square at the side of the grave.

After the committal prayers and the benediction, a remarkable hush fell over the multitude of mourners, and then the regimental bagpipes broke out with the sorrowful notes of the Scottish lament, "Lochaber No More."

Beer—FITGER'S Beer—

A Temperance Beverage

What was the attitude of "The Fathers" toward beer?

James Madison and Thomas Jefferson enthusiastically fathered the cause of malt as against distilled liquor, the former trusting "that the brewing industry would strike deep root in every State in the Union," and the latter stating that "no nation is sober when the dearness of fermented drinks substitutes ardent spirits as the common beverage."

The value and nourishment of

lies not in its percentage of alcohol (only 3½ per cent) but in the wholesome product of malted barley and well cured hops.

WILL CALL FOR BIDS

Government is Ready to Begin Harbor Dredging Work.

Army Engineers Meeting Here June 18 Will be Important.

Maj. Graham D. Fitch is preparing the specifications with a view of calling for bids on the harbor dredging work to be paid for out of the last appropriation made for the purpose by congress.

The dredging work has been held up for some time awaiting the decision of the United States supreme court, recently rendered to the effect that the eight-hour law does not affect government harbor improvement work. Until it was definitely known whether the law would affect government work, the dredging improvement could not be advertised, as the engineer would not have known on any reasonable basis they could base their bids.

There will be about 1,000,000 cubic yards of dredging to be done inside the harbor and at the entrance to the Duluth ship canal.

One of the important improvements in connection with the work will be the deepening of the inner harbor off the ship canal. The vessel blockade which choked the inner harbor this spring emphasized the necessity of more anchorage room for the boats.

To do the government is completing the work on the breakwater at Sharpstein. Minn. The repair work on the breakwater at Two Harbors will begin this week. J. W. Preston of this city has the contract.

The government is building an inner sea wall to protect the park on the south side of the Duluth ship canal. The sea wall was undermined and portions of the park were badly washed out by the big storm of November, 1905. The inner wall will be of concrete construction.

The park on the north side of the canal, in which the engineers' building is located, is being turfed. When the work is completed the grounds will be very attractive.

Great interest is being shown in the meeting of the army engineers which will be held at the Commercial club rooms June 18. At this meeting the engineers will hear all who are interested in the matter of a breakwater outside the Duluth ship canal, or a central canal. It is important that every person who has any interest in the matter should plan to be present at the meeting. The government engineers who will be present are some of the most prominent in army circles.

Relief from Rheumatic Pains.

"I suffered with rheumatism for over two years," says Mr. Rolland Curry, a postman, of Key West, Fla. "Sometimes it settled in my knees and lamed me so I could hardly walk, at other times it would be in my feet and hands so I was incapacitated for duty. One night when I was in severe pain, and lame from it, my wife went to the drug store here and came back with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I was rubbed with it and found the pain had nearly gone during the night. I kept on using it for a little more than two weeks and found that it drove the rheumatism away. I have not had any trouble from that disease for over three months." For sale by all druggists.

STRIKE SITUATION IN CUBA GROWS WORSE.

Santiago, Cuba, May 28.—The strike situation in this city became aggravated yesterday. There was considerable shooting throughout the day, and at one time yesterday afternoon a serious outbreak was threatened. The business district of the city is being guarded by 500 members of the rural guards. Many rifle shot were exchanged with rioters, but no one has been reported killed. It is supposed the firing was for the purpose of intimidation.

DOZENS ARE SUGGESTED

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although upwards of a year must elapse before the great political parties of this country meet in national convention for the selection of candidates for the presidency in 1908, the air is full of politics and dozens of men are suggested as likely standard bearers for their respective sides. There has been far more talk of the probable Republican nominee, recently than of the man most likely to oppose him. For months it was almost a foregone conclusion that Col. William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska would be the standard bearer of Democracy once more, and it is scarcely to be doubted today that Mr. Bryan can have a majority of delegates if he is really a candidate for the nomination.

One of the closest friends that Mr. Bryan has in Washington—and he has a host of them—is authority for the statement that Mr. Bryan is unlikely to be a candidate. This gentleman asserts positively that the eminent Nebraskan has reached the conclusion that the time has come when a Southern man should be selected as the standard bearer of the party, the majority of whose votes come from the Southern states. Referring to this matter today, Mr. Bryan's friend said:

"I have had correspondence and personal conversation with Mr. Bryan quite recently and he has led me to believe that he is seriously contemplating absolute and final withdrawal from the presidential race. He favors the selection of some Southern man who has been conspicuous in his fight against the railroads. There are several of these in the Southern states, among them the governor of Texas, the Democratic nominee for governor of Alabama and Governor Hoke Smith of Georgia. I violate no confidence when I assert that of the three mentioned Mr. Bryan is more inclined to favor Governor Hoke Smith than either of the others. He has the highest regard for Mr. Smith, politically and personally, and he looks upon him as the strongest man from a political standpoint that the South could advance for the honor of the nomination."

But, notwithstanding the prestige which the endorsement of Mr. Smith by Mr. Bryan would give, the governor of Georgia, there are serious doubts as to the ability of that gentleman to obtain a majority of the delegates even from the Southern states. As to the governor of Texas, it is far more likely that Senator Culberson will be the candidate of the Lone Star state than that the governor will be. It is peculiar in this connection that Governor Johnson of Minnesota has a very strong following among the politicians of the Southern states, and it must also be remembered that Judge Gray of Delaware has powerful friends scattered from one end of the country to the other.

If Mr. Bryan is really out of the race his influence will be of enormous value to some other candidate so fortunate as to secure it. But at the same time Mr. Bryan will be unable to control the votes of all the delegates whose first choice is the Nebraskan. Col. Henry Watterson of Kentucky has a dark horse candidate not yet named who may prove formidable enough to make a lively race for any one from the Southern states, and Col Watterson has already let it be known that his man is not a resident of the Atlantic seaboard.

Altogether, with Mr. Bryan out of the running, it would seem that the Democrats are no nearer the final selection of a candidate than are their opponents, and with Mr. Roosevelt scratched, there are at least a dozen "horses" more or less dark still, among the entries, and every one undergoing training in expert hands.

Roland P. Falkner of Porto Rico, who is the commissioner of education for the island, is in Washington to attend the Jamestown exposition. Mr. Falkner is enthusiastic in his description of the growth of the educational spirit in Porto Rico. During all the years that the Spaniards controlled the island, little attention was paid to the education of the masses. At the time of its cession to the United States, following the Spanish treaty, there was but one building in all of Porto Rico devoted exclusively to school purposes. Today there are upwards of 100 school buildings, erected by the board of education throughout the island, and each is crowded with pupils at every session. But until very recently little attention was paid to the English language. The teachers themselves spoke Spanish, and Spanish was the language in which the pupils were taught. Now, however, the English language has been adopted as the official tongue of the island. The teachers themselves have been educated up to the point where they are able to impart their teachings to the scholars in English. According to Mr. Falkner, it will not be more than fifteen years when English will have become the commercial, school and public, as well as the official language of the island. Mr. Falkner adds that the Porto Ricans are growing in material prosperity, and it will not be very many years before the entire chain of the Antilles will be filled with a population of prosperous, industrious people.

Brig. Gen. G. F. Elliott, commandant of the United States marine corps, at the annual walkow of the Caribou, Corral Military Order of the Caribou, in an exceedingly interesting talk to 200 officers and invited guests the other day at Marshall hall, told of the ups and downs, largely ups, of the organization which he commands. He presented in simple phrase a problem that the officers of the navy and war department have not yet answered. Gen. Elliott, in discussing the order, recently issued, providing for but two years in foreign service for officers and men of both the military and naval arms of the service as well as for the marine corps, stated that he would like a professor of arithmetic to tell him how 97 per cent of the rank and file of the marine corps could be relieved by 33 per cent under the new rule of two years' service in the tropics. He said that 67 per cent of the men under his command were either on the sea or in the tropics performing service for their government, while 33 per cent were in the United States performing service incident to the work of the command.

The general further said that with six years of enlistment under the new regulations an officer or enlisted man would have four years of service out of six years, a fact not contemplated by those entrusted with the enlargement and building up of the marine corps. The conclusion which he desired to make was that the marine corps would have to be enlarged in order that half the command might be doing sea and shore duties in foreign countries, while the other half would have their service at home.

Incident to his speech, Gen. Elliott said that it did not matter to the men or the officers of the marine corps who they served, whether the army or navy, the regulations requiring that when on sea duty the corps is subject to the orders of the commanding officers of the navy, while on land they are subject to the orders of the commanding officers of the army. He said that the marine corps has less kickers in it, he believed, than in any branch of our military establishment and all that the marine corps asked was fair treatment and an opportunity to show their love for the flag. The marine corps today consists of 9,771 enlisted men and 278 officers under the command of Brig. Gen. Elliott, who is beloved by every man of the corps and whose record as a soldier is of the highest.

"When my daughter was a baby she had a breaking out behind the ears. The doctor said that she would outgrow it, and it did get somewhat better until she was about fifteen years old, and after that we could get nothing that would drive it away. She was always applying something in the way of salves. It troubled her behind the knees, opposite the elbows, back of the neck and ears, under the chin, and then it got on the face. That was about three years ago. As we had tried everything that we could hear of without help she took treatment with a specialist and seemed to get worse all the time. We were then advised to try the Cuticura Remedies, and now I don't see any breaking out, and we are well pleased with the results, and I will cheerfully recommend the Cuticura Remedies to all that may need them. M. Curley, 11-19 Sixteenth St., Bay City, Mich., May 20, 1906."

FUNERAL OF DR. JOHN WATSON

At Liverpool Attended by Remarkable Demonstration.

Liverpool, May 28.—The funeral at the Sefton Park Presbyterian church yesterday of Dr. John Watson (Ian MacLaren) was attended by an immense crowd and was signalized by a remarkable demonstration of respect.

Dr. Watson died at Mount Pleasant, Iowa, May 6, and since its arrival from the United States the body has lain in the Sefton Park church, where Dr. Watson was pastor for twenty-five years. The funeral services were impressive. The Rev. Alexander Cornell, the successor of Dr. Watson at Sefton Park; the bishop of Liverpool, Dr. Chavasse, Dr. Dykes, principal of Westminster college, and other distinguished clergymen took part in the services, which were attended by a notable congregation representing all denominations, as well as the lord mayor of Liverpool and other high municipal officials. Many Americans were present, including Consul John L. Griffiths.

Great crowds lined the route to the Smithdown road cemetery, where over 40,000 persons witnessed the interment. Four hundred members of the Liverpool Scottish volunteers, of which Dr. Watson was chaplain, paraded bareheaded and then formed in rollow square at the side of the grave.

After the committal prayers and the benediction, a remarkable hush fell over the multitude of mourners, and then the regimental bagpipes broke out with the sorrowful notes of the Scottish lament, "Lochaber No More."

Beer—FITGER'S Beer—

A Temperance Beverage

What was the attitude of "The Fathers" toward beer?

James Madison and Thomas Jefferson enthusiastically fathered the cause of malt as against distilled liquor, the former trusting "that the brewing industry would strike deep root in every State in the Union," and the latter stating that "no nation is sober when the dearness of fermented drinks substitutes ardent spirits as the common beverage."

The value and nourishment of

lies not in its percentage of alcohol (only 3½ per cent) but in the wholesome product of malted barley and well cured hops.

WISCONSIN TO LOOK INTO LUMBER TRUST.

Madison, Wis., May 28.—The state senate concurred today in the assembly resolution for a legislative investigation of the operations of the lumber trust in Wisconsin.

A NEW CLUB IS FORMED

A new organization of railroad men, to be known as the Head of the Lakes Traffic association, was formed this morning at a meeting held in the local offices of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. C. W. Kieswetter, general agent of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, was elected president; W. H. Smith, general agent in Superior for the Northern Pacific, was elected vice president; C. L. Kennedy, commercial agent in Duluth for the Milwaukee, was selected secretary, and George M. Smith, general agent of the Omaha in Duluth, was elected treasurer.

The new organization is really a consolidation of the Head of the Lakes General Agents' association and the Head of the Lakes Passenger association, and will include as members the district freight and passenger agents, the general agents, commercial agents, general agents of boat lines in merchandise and passenger traffic, and general freight and passenger agents, the latter to be admitted as honorary members only.

C. L. Kennedy was president of the old General Agents' association, and A. Brosteđ, formerly Northern passenger agent for the Great Northern, was president of the passenger men's association. The new club will meet the second Tuesday of each month, and take up matters of business pertaining to the transportation of freight and passengers. The plan is to secure uniformity of action on matters of this kind, and have them considered by the whole body of men interested, instead of by individuals, as formerly. In this manner it is expected that both the railroads and the general public will be given better satisfaction.

Calumet & Arizona opened at $164, declined to $160, rallied to $163 and closed at $160 bid and $161 asked.

Greene-Cananea had a rally toward the close of the session. It sold at $14.12½, went off to $14 and rallied to $14.37½, closing at $14.12½ bid and $14.37½ asked.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $16, declined to $15.62½, rallied to $15.87½ and closed at $15.62½ bid and $15.87½ asked. Warren sold at $7.75 and $7.50 and closed at $7.37½ bid and $7.62½ asked. Globe Consolidated sold at $11.50 and $11 and closed at $10.75 bid and $11.12½ asked. Keweenaw was traded in at $9.50, went off to $9 and closed weaker at $8.62½ bid and $9 asked. Denn-Arizona sold at $9.25, declined to $9 and closed at $8.50 bid and $9 asked.

Butte & Superior sold at $3 and $2.87½ and closed at $2.87½ bid and $3 asked, Carman at $3.62½ and closed at $3.50 bid and $3.87½ asked and Cliff at $3.75 and closed at $3.62½ bid and $3.75 asked.

ANOTHER BIG POLICY WRITTEN

Chicago papers this morning announce that D. R. McLennan of the Manley-McLennan Insurance agency of Duluth and the Marsh-McLennan agency of Chicago has written policies covering the property of the Wisconsin Central railroad and its allied interests. The aggregate amount of the insurance placed is over $3,000,000.

These agencies now handle the insurance on practically all of the large Western roads. They have made a special feature of railroad insurance, and one road after another has placed its insurance with these two allied agencies. The list now includes the following roads: Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Burlington, Rock Island, Omaha, Soo, Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake, and many smaller roads. On all of these roads and also the Wisconsin Central, the two agencies carry the insurance for all property belonging to the road which is covered by insurance.

MINISTER IS INSANE

Tramp Preacher is Held to State Board of Control.

One of the most interesting cases in the probate court for some time past, came up this morning with the examination of Rev. Charles McLeod, an ordained Presbyterian minister, for insanity. The information against him was found to be true and the court has notified the state board of control, as McLeod has not been in this state long enough to gain a residence.

The examination developed the fact that McLeod is what might be termed a tramp preacher. Crazy on certain topics, he appears to be quite rational on others. He told a well connected story of his wanderings about the country after the mannar of a hobo.

McLeod is a discovery of Mr. Moody, who has charge of the Bethel. The unfortunate man made his appearance at the Bethel last Friday morning and asked for a private converstion with Mr. Moody. The conversation had not progressed far before Mr. Moody found out that McLeod is a regularly ordained minister, his last charge having been at Knox, N. D. He claimed that because of his activity in a crusade against intemperance, the saloon element had driven him from the place and that he had been forced to lose all his books and manuscripts and roam about the country a pauper.

McLeod claimed that his enemies have continued to persecute him, that they send telegrams to every town he visits. He admitted that he is not a telegraph operator, but claimed to have some power that enabled him to divine the messages right off the wires.

Mr. Moody questioned McLeod closely and was convinced from his answers that the man is a graduate of the McCormick Theological seminary at Chicago, and has had a college education. Mr. Moody desired to raise money by subscription to have McLeod cared for at a private sanitarium, but physicians who examined him said that McLeod was liable to become dangerous any moment and it would be better for him to be placed in an asylum.

McLeod, while being examined this morning, claimed that his enemies have shot at him frequently, that he he has heard the reports of the guns and has heard the bullets whiz by his head. He staed that he was born in Nova Scotia, that he is 41 years old and that his nearest relative is a brother residing in New Hampshire.

Fifteen dollar top coats now $11.75 at the "Fitwell." Store open Wednesday evening until 10 o'clock.

One Republican voted with seven Democrats against the bill, which is one of the measures specially urged for passage by Governor Hughes.

The recount of ballots must be made in the presence of the court and of the candidates or their counsel. Provision is made for appeal from the final decision of the appellate division.

STORY SAID TO BE GROUNDLESS

Committee Had Policies for Schools Written Last Week.

The story that the schools of Duluth are not covered by insurance is without foundation. At a meeting of the committee on administration and finance, which was held last week, the committee, which consists of Dr. Codding, J. J. LaTourneau and N. C. Hendricks, caused a five year policy to be written with the Manley-McLennan agency so that all the property in the district is now covered by insurance.

This policy was written as recommended by the committee at the last regular meeting of the board, when the matter of insurance for the schools was made the subject of a warm discussion, and Mr. Hendricks of the committee said that he was not in favor of writing the policy with the Manley-McLennan people. This meeting was adjourned with the understanding that a special meeting was to be called by the president. The policies were written on a vote of a majority of the committee over Mr. Hendricks' opposition.

The special meeting of the board was to have been held last evening but was unavoidably postponed on account of the absence from the city of President Codding. Besides the matter of insurance, the plans for the construction of the Madison school were to have been brought up for consideration. The administration and finance committee has full authority to cause policies to be written in this manner but their action is subject to the approval of the board, which will be given at the special meeting, which will be held in the near future.

VICTIMS OF TRACHOMA FLOCKING TO DULUTH

Camps Along G. T. P. Breeding Grounds for Dread Disease.

Only excessive vigilance on the part of the immigration authorities along the Canadian border will prevent the city of Duluth, the state of Minnesota, and all the Northern states from becoming flooded with aliens who are afflicted with trachoma, a contagious disease of the eye, which is considered sufficiently dangerous by the United States government to warrant refusing admission to the country of all persons bearing any signs of the dread affliction.

This alarming state of affairs was discovered today by United States Immigration Inspector William H. Dean, in his examination of the steamship America, which arrived this morning from Port Arthur, with thirty aliens on board.

Twenty-eight of these were Austrians and seven of this number had trachoma in its most violent form. In previous years only two or three trachoma cases a month were usually reported from Duluth, and the fact that there should be seven on one boat, and four on one boat last week, caused Inspector Dean to consider the matter worthy of investigation.

Number Is Growing.

A series of questions elicited the startling information that thousands of foreigners working along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific in Canada are housed in camps where the disease is a common occurrence, and where the occupants are daily exposed to the contagion, with the result that the number of diseased is growing daily at an alarming rate.

Austrians further questioned said that their countrymen were dissatisfied with conditions under which they are compelled to work in Canada, and that reports of good wages being paid their friends in the United States are drawing the aliens to this country from the North in numerous large gangs, of which the twenty-eight Austrians arriving in Duluth today were one.

Aside from the discontent of the workmen themselves, several of the big contractors have finished work on their respective jobs, and the men they have been employing are left to seek employment elsewhere. Scores of these, immediately upon being released, start for the United States, the diseased and healthy alike, and unless trachoma cases are caught by examining physicians, the foreigners mix freely with their countrymen and others in the United States, exposing all to the contagion.

Today's arrivals asserted that Austrians and other foreigners would be entering the United States from Canada all summer in ever-increasing numbers, and intimated that some gangs would arrive in which the majority instead of the minority would be afflicted with trachoma, because of the manner in which so many have been exposed to the disease in the Canadian camps.

Great Caution Used.

Inspector Dean and Dr. E. L. Cheney are exercising extreme caution in admitting aliens to the port of Duluth, and no power can save anyone bearing signs of trachoma from being returned to Canada. It is presumed that the same caution is being displayed at other border immigration stations. It is feared that as soon as news of the wholesale deportations on account of this disease reaches the Dominion camps, aliens afflicted with the disease will employ trickery to get into the country, and organize themselves into bands to be smuggled across the border at poorly guarded points.

There is so much territory to be covered along the boundary that the comparatively small force of men appointed to keep out undesirable citizens would find it very difficult to cope with the unusual conditions that would result from such methods of smuggling being adopted.

Last week was the heaviest in the history of the local immigration office. One hundred and one aliens were admitted at the port of Duluth, and five were rejected, and at that the boats from Canada did not begin arriving until the middle of the week. All of the aliens were on three boats. Already this week there have been sixty-three arrivals.

BUILDING OF DULUTH PLANT TO BE PUSHED

Steel Corporation Will Have Gary Plant Running in July.

Current Business Ahead of That of a Year Ago.

New York, May 28.—According to a representative of the United States Steel corporation, the Gary, Ind., plant is expected to produce open hearth steel rails in July of next year. It has been estimated that the Gary plant will have a steel rail capacity of between 700,000 and 1,000,000 tons a year.

Building of the Duluth plant will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible.

A representative of the Steel corporation says the new business booked since March 31 last, which closed the first quarter of the year, has been considerably in excess of the corresponding period of last year. Orders booked since the first of May have been unusually large for that period.

In view of the fact that the Steel corporation has been carrying a record breaking unfilled tonnage on its books, together with record breaking shipments and increased capacity, no increase is looked for, although this is pure guesswork.

Unfilled business usually shows a falling off in the first half of the year under normal conditions. For example, from Dec. 31, 1905, to March 31, 1906, there was a falling off of 600,000 tons in unfilled tonnage. From March 31, 1906, to June 30, 1906, there was a falling off of more than 200,000 tons.

Unfilled tonnage under normal conditions always runs larger in the last half of the year than in the first half.

Official denial is given to the persistent reports circulated over the last few days that the Steel corporation is considering putting out a huge issue of notes or bonds.

Rumor had it that the issue would reach $100,000,000, and the proceeds would be used for the purpose of meeting outlays in connection with the building of the $75,000,000 Gary plant and the $6,000,000 Duluth plant.

A representative of the corporation says an issue of bonds or notes has not been given consideration, that it is proposed to meet all expenditures for new construction out of earnings, and without increasing fixed charges of United States Steel.

The Steel official in question called attention to the vast cash resources and large earnings of the company, and suggested that as long as such conditions prevailed, a note, stock or bond issue was entirely out of the question.

The Steel corporation is better fortified in cash than any other corporation in the world. Its cash in hand and on deposit with banks and trust companies at present runs very close to $75,000,000. This does not include sundry marketable bonds and stocks, aggregating $7,720,000, or loans on collateral aggregating $7,600,000.

The Steel corporation on Dec. 31, 1906, had an unexpended balance on account of special construction for the Gary, Ind., plant of nearly $27,000,000 and an unexpended balance in connection with its general construction fund of more than $3,000,000, making a total of $30,000,000.

Since then there has been appropriated $14,500,00 on account of expenditures made and to be made on authorized appropriations for additional property, making a total of nearly $45,000,000. Naturally a percentage of this total was expended for new construction in the first quarter of this year, but the balance remaining, it is safe to assume, is sufficient to meet its entire expenditures for new construction this year.

If earnings continue as large as they have been since the first of the year, appropriations for new construction in 1907 will run very close to $50,000,000. From this it can be assumed that on Jan. 1, next, the balance for new construction will be as large if not larger than it was on Jan. 1 of this year.

In brief, the Steel corporation is making these vast appropriations for new construction, and at the same time crediting several million dollars each quarter to surplus. For example, in the first quarter of this year there was a balance of surplus of nearly $3,700,000 after appropriations of $14,500,000 for new construction.

Why the Steel corporation should consider the question of a bond or note issue in the face of the foregoing is a question that conservative financiers would be unable to understand.

QUEER LEGAL PHASES TO ARGYLE ASSAULT CASE

Jury Returns Novel Verdict on Instruction From Court.

Argyle Will Not Go Scot Free on Insanity Plea.

Some novel and interesting methods of procedure marked the progress of the Argyle trial this morning. After a ruling by the court denying the motion of Mr. Culkin for a dismissal of the case, the jury returned a directed verdict to the effect that the present trial of Frederick M. Argyle for assaulting Bessie Butchart is not identical with the case for assault on his wife, Lillie Argyle, and the trial was resumed along the customary lines of procedure.

The arguments on Mr. Culkin's motion for a dismissal of the case against Argyle, on the ground that he was being placed in jeopardy twice for practically the same offense, were begun yesterday afternoon after the twelfth juror had been accepted. Mr. Culkin argued that the last trial of Argyle for assaulting his wife and the present trial for assaulting Miss Butchart, are identical, that the alleged shooting happened at the same time, and that one jury has already found Argyle to be insane when the shooting was done. He claimed the verdict was a bar to another trial.

County Attorney Norton argued that the cases are not identical, that they are separate actions, and that the results of the first trial had no bearing on the present trial.

The Court Rules.

After hearing the arguments Judge Cant said in part, as he made his ruling: "That this is a novel point and a very interesting one need hardly be said. I think, however, what the law has in mind as to the former acquittal is to provide against a double punishment for the same offense.

"Confessedly here are two alleged offenses, one against Lillie M. Argyle and the other against Bessie Butchart.

"I think that the points argued by the defense cannot be held here as well taken.

"It is true that an essential element of both seems to have been tried in the former case. The principles applicable in a case in civil law ought to be sparingly applied here.

"If the court held with the defense it might have the effect of perpetuating error.

"I think that for the trial court the safer and the sounder course is to adopt a view opposed by the counsel for the defense."

Following his ruling against the motion for a dismissal, the court admitted in evidence, at Mr. Culkin's request, and in spite of the state's objections, the clerical record of the former trial, including the indictment for assault on Lillie M. Argyle, the proceedings of the trial, and the verdict of acquittal because of insanity.

The jury was then recalled and several stipulations by the state and the defendant concerning certain defenses in the former trial were read by the court reporter.

Mr. Culkin moved for a dismissal of the case, on the ground that the record showed Argyle to be placed in jeopardy twice for the same offense. The motion was denied.

Talks to Jury.

Judge Cant then addressed the jury, saying in part:

"You understand that at the present time there is before you the plea that the defendant has been acquitted at the former trial for an offense for which he is now on trial. That is a question for determination by the jury, but, like many questions of fact, there are questions of law closely related that it is your duty to abide by.

"For such a plea to be effective there must be evidence that the offense now charged is identical with the offense charged in the former trial in which the defendant was acquitted.

"On the indictments the offense, in the opinion of the court, is not the same as the offense charged in the previous indictment and the court must hold that the evidence claimed by the defendant is insufficient. Your duty, therefore, is to find against him.

"There must be in this case two verdicts. The one I will give you now, as directed. You will retire and select a foreman who will sign it. You will then return the verdict to this court and, upon the evidence which will afterward be given, you will find whether the defendant is guilty or not guilty."

The jury retired, selected Wesley T. Wilkie, foreman, signed the verdict and returned in the procedure taking but a few minutes. The verdict was as follows: "We the jury in the above entitled action find the defendant's plea of a former acquittal for the same offense to be not true."

County Attorney Norton outlined the state's case to the jury and the introduction of testimony in the state's behalf was begun shortly before the noon recess was taken.

Bigelow of Boston, to compel the Calumet & Hecla Copper Mining company to relinquish holdings it has obtained in other copper mining companies which was set for tomorrow before Federal Judge Knappen in this city, has been put over by stipulation of the attorneys until June 28.

THE WHEAT HAS TUMBLE

American and Foreign Markets Show a Big Decline.

Flax Has a Good Advance in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 28.—Wheat took a tumble in the American and foreign markets on improved crop conditions and predictions of better weather. Broomhall's report of European crop conditions was bearish and so was the forecast for the American wheat belt. Some rain fell in the Southwest last night and there are predictions of more. Warmer weather is scheduled for the Northwest. The opening prices were more than a cent lower than yesterday's close and the market kept declining throughout the session. Liverpool closed ¾d to 1d lower, Berlin ½c lower and Budapest 1c lower.

The July option closed 2½c lower in Duluth, 2⅝c in Chicago, 2⅝-2¾c in Minneapolis, 2½c in New York, 2⅜-½c in St. Louis, 2⅝c in Kansas City and 1½c lower in Winnipeg. The September option closed 2¾c lower in Duluth and Chicago, 2⅞-3c in Minneapolis and Kansas City, and 2c in New York and St. Louis. The October option closed 2¾c lower in Winnipeg.

July corn closed ½-⅝c lower in Chicago and was unchanged to ½d lower in Liverpool. July oats ⅝c lower in Chicago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 425,000 bus, last year 577,000 bus. Shipments 238,000 bus, last year 160,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 235,000 bus.

Bradstreet's reports a decrease of 6,288,000 bus in the world's visible supply of wheat. In the United States and Canada, there was a decrease of 2,000,000 bus, and in Europe a decrease of 2,000,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 736,000 bus, last year 197,000 bus. Shipments 428,00 bus, last year 538,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 97,000 bus.

The visible supply of corn decreased 2,284,000 bus.

Wheat was quiet in the Duluth market and the prices were off from the outset. May wheat was inactive and closed 2¾c lower than yesterday at $1.01. July wheat opened 1⅜c lower at $1.02⅜c asked, declined to $1.02⅛ by 9:35, rallied to $1.02⅝ by 9:36, went off to $1.02⅛ by 10:22, rallied to $1.02⅝ by 10:22, declined to $1.01 by 12:47 and closed at $1.01⅜, a loss of 2½c from yesterday. September wheat opened 1⅜c lower at $1.02⅝, declined to $1.02⅛, rallied to $1.02¾, declined to $1.02⅛, rallied to $1.02⅝, went off to $1.01⅞, rallied to $1.02⅛, ranging between that and $1.01⅝ until the close, which was $1.01¾, a loss of 2⅝c from yesterday.

Durum wheat was 1c lower and cash spring wheat was selling at the July price for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet, but the tone was stronger, the advance by the close being more than 1 cent. May flax opened ⅜c over yesterday. July flax opened ½c lower at $1.25, advanced to $1.26½ and closed at that price, a gain of 1⅜c over yesterday. October flax opened ½c lower at $1.24¾ and advanced by the close to $1.25⅞, a gain of 1¼ over yesterday.

The coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Comes Down With a Thud Owing to Weather Conditions.

Chicago, May 28.—Wheat came down with a thud this morning. Weather conditions in the West were too much for the bulls, and opening prices for all options showed a big recession from yesterday's closing figures. July opened 5⅝@5⅞c to 1⅞@2c lower at 95c to $1.00⅛, and sold around 99½@⅞c. September opened 1⅜@1⅝c lower at $1.00@⅛, and held fairly well around the top figure. December, in which there was almost no trading, opened 1¼@1½c lower at $1.01½@¾, and held around those figures. Higher temperatures were reported throughout the West, from the Canadian wheat fields to those of Southern Kansas. In addition, the weather bureau predicted further showers west, to be followed by warmer weather. Liverpool was off 1d, reflecting more favorable weather conditions in Europe. With these facts to encourage them, short sellers got busy, and the lack of demand resulted in prices sliding off easily. Trading was very quiet after the opening. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 521 cars, as compared with 483 last week and 218 a year ago.

Wheat continued weak all day, but the light volume of trading saved decided gains. July touched 98c and closed 2⅝@2¾c lower than yesterday's final price at 98½c. September sold to 99¼c and closed 2¾c off at 99⅝c. December touched the low point at $1.00 and closed 2⅝c lower at $1.00⅝@⅞.

Corn was weak on the favorable weather West. July opened ⅜@¾c lower at 53@53c and sold at 53½c. Local receipts were 469 cars, 223 of contract grade.

Oats were weak, influenced by the favorable weather West. July opened ½c to ⅝c lower at 45c and sold at 45⅛c. Local receipts were 310 cars.

Corn was also weak all day. July sold as low at 52⅝@53c and closed easy ½@⅝c lower at 53@54c.

Provisions were quiet but firm, influenced by a 5c advance in hogs. July pork opened 2½c higher at $16.45. July lard was 2½c higher at $9.10. July ribs 2½c lower at $8.77½.

Broomhall, cable from London: Wheat was quiet at the opening with values ½ lower, pressure to sell resulted from the weaker American cables yesterday and lack of supporting orders from America. Following the opening the market reacted some on shorts covering prompted by fears of manipulation at Chicago. Later, however, the market eased, prices losing an additional ½ on a poor demand for both cargo and parcels. The market was a nervous one with prices moving slowly.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago, to Palne, Webber & Co.: Prices are back where they were last Saturday. The selling was overdone then, and cold weather Monday morning made many of the shorts pay dear for pressing the market on the dip. There is no likelihood that such weather will again be experienced, but the pit conditions now are much the same as they were late in the week. The reaction is entirely the result of long wheat pressing on the market. The forecast for rising temperatures and showers over the West tonight had much to do with the bearish feeling of the local trade during today's session, and no doubt caused considerable short selling. The foreign crop review of the day was a little less bullish than heretofore. Jones makes the statement that he sees but a chance for half a crop in Kansas and 75 per cent of a yield for Nebraska. Should very fine weather with warm rains spread over the entire West, there may be further liquidation and short selling, but such tactics will very soon put the market in shape where the biggest buyers will be ready to take hold again.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Showed Strength Early But Closed Active and Weak.

Sold Off After Noon Hour and Became Very Soft.

New York, May 28.—The active opening dealings in stocks carried prices downwards with but few exceptions. The declines were Baltimore & Ohio 1¼, Union Pacific and Anaconda 1⅛, Sugar 1½, Canadian Pacific, Erie second preferred and Amalgamated Copper 1, and Great Northern preferred, Atchison, Reading, Interborough-Metropolitan and Northern Pacific large fractions.

After some highly irregular fluctuations in which several stocks sold well below their opening prices, the market began to rise vigorously on the indications of support and buying by the short interest. Recoveries from the lowest were quite pronounced in all cases and some stocks received handsome gains. Consolidated Gas rose 2½ over yesterday's closing, Reading 1⅝, Brooklyn Rapid Transit 1½ and Union Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Colorado & Southern, Kansas City Southern and Pressed Steel Car 1. Baltimore & Ohio extended its loss to 1¾ before the rally began and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie yielded 2½, the preferred 3½ and General Electric 2½.

Gains were extended by the gathering demand from the shorts, but profit-taking for the long account followed and caused reactions. Canadian Pacific was lifted 2¾, Reading 2⅜, American Smelting 2¼, United States Rubber first preferred and Northern Pacific 2, Southern Railway preferred, St. Paul and Delaware & Hudson 1⅝, Union Pacific 1½, Northwestern 1⅜ and Atchison, Chesapeake & Ohio, Pennsylvania, United States Rubber preferred and Great Northern ore certificates 1. Bonds were easy.

The market retained an undertone of firmness throughout the noon hour, although the demand for stocks was very small. Aside from the movements in a few obscure stocks, the changes in the list were unimportant. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred improved 3, Metropolitan Street Railway 2¾ and New York Air Brake 5¾. Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha sold off 6.

Traders who purchased stocks at the low price took profits in the afternoon when there were recessions of 1 to 1¼ in the Harriman and Hill stocks, Reading and Smelting. Business was restricted pretty much to those stocks.

The market closed weak and active. On a rally New York Central got up 1¼, Atchison, 1⅜; North American, 2, and Consolidated Gas, 3¾. The rally was not held, the demand dying out almost entirely. Delaware & Hudson reacted to 5¼ below last night, Interborough-Metropolitan preferred and Amalgamated Copper, 2. Prices relapse quite suddenly within 15 minutes of the close. Delaware & Hudson dropped 3 points between sales.

Stock Gossip.

London to Gay & Sturgis: When Baron Rothschild was interviewed today as to drop in consols he said he did not see any immediate prospect of improvement in market. Perhaps it was slightly better, but with President Roosevelt attacking railways in one part of the world the income tax question and other problems in France, and Socialistic movement in England, the public, the baron pointed out, was killing the goose that laid the golden egg and could expect nothing more than the position the money market now occupies.

New York to Gay & Sturgis: The general advance in the market after the noon hour was on report that President Roosevelt's speech to be delivered Decoration day is a very conciliatory document. In it, acording to report, he says he does not object to owning the stock of toher roads by railroads, so long as the other roads are not competing lines.

Walker Bros., to Palne, Webber & Co.: In the afternoon prices sold off and the market was very soft. There seemed to be little commission house business, and the traders were in control. We look for a nervous market tomorrow and one affected by news. Being the day easily affected by news. Being the day before a holiday it is not apt to be very active, and quick turns with small stops are about the safest way of trading in a market like this.

Logan & Bryan to Palne, Webber & Co.: There was a much better tone today. Standard issues were in demand from the start. There was no news on which to base the general good feeling, other than the continued favorable reports from the wheat belt. The grain roads assumed leadership and the rest of the list closely followed. The continued healthy tone would indicate that new and material support may be put in the list any time sufficient to cause a general and gratifying rally.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: An official of the Tonopah company of Nevada says that the conditions at the company's properties are satisfactory in every way. Shipments are now averaging 500 tons per day, as compared with 175 tons a year ago. When the mill has been thoroughly tested and seasoned with the low grade ores now being handled, high grade ore will be used and the value of the output materially increased.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: The New York Sun says: "A German copper consuming interest, which yesterday proffered 24½c per pond for a superior grade of lake copper, was informed by the producers that no such price will be acceptable during this year when the emands are running even, if not ahead of the output. A cabled proffer from Germany of 24½c for several million pounds of electrolytic for July was refused yesterday by producers. There is a record of any business at less than 25c for electrolytic and 25⅝c to 26c for lake."

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

The following prices, with the exception of those on hay, feed and meats, are the official quotations of the Duluth Produce exchange and shippers can rely upon them as being correct. The list is corrected daily by the secretary, and it shows accurately the market conditions up to 12 o'clock on the date of issue. The weekly market letter, published on Fridays, is not an official statement of the exchange, but the information is gathered personally from the different dealers:

STREET CARS.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point, and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.

The fare for a continuous ride in one direction between any two points on either one of these lines is 5c.

The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passenger safely between points on the above mentioned lines.

This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has no better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and, therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.

SORRY THAT HE TALKED

Mahoney Says He Was "Off" When Arraigned Monday.

Exercise and Food Seem to Have Improved His Condition.

After showing almost unmistakable signs of insanity for several days past, Daniel P. Mahoney, who is held under indictment for the murder of the Mitchell boy at Burnett, appears to be quite rational today. After his outbreak in the courtroom during his arraignment yesterday, and his refusal to eat for the preceding three or four days, the jail officials had two men at work in relays walking Mahoney backward and forward in the jail corridors until he seemed to be quite tired. Both the men detailed to give Mahoney the walk were pretty tired before he showed any signs of weariness. After his exercise Mahoney showed signs of hunger and ate heartily, following up the meal with a good sleep last evening. This morning his mind seemed to be quite clear and he recalled without any trouble the places where he has worked since leaving Duluth, giving quite a complete story of his travels.

Mahoney remembers, also, his actions in the courtroom yesterday. He says he is sorry he attempted to make a speech and declares that he does not know why he started to talk. He says that he was "off" when he appeared in court.

When arraigned before Judge Cant this morning Mahoney, through his attorney W. E. Whipple, entered a plea of not guilty and was remanded to jail to await trial.

The accused, although he talks rational enough, seems to have the same nervous affliction he had when first brought back to Duluth. He jumps at the slightest movement toward him by one of the officers and, when taken back to the jail he went up the stairs to the upper corridor about four steps at a time, with the agility of a cat.

Just as Mahoney was re-entering his cell this morning, after pleading, he remarked that his father is here.

It was thought possible that the excitement caused by his visit to the courtroom might have affected his mental powers again because the authorities claim that Mahoney's father is supposed to be dead.

HOME What a wonderful institution is the home. What a wonderful power is the home newspaper. The Herald has long been the home newspaper of Duluth. The Herald reaches the home at the evening leisure hour. The Herald is not carried down town on the car. It stays home, is passed from one member of the family to the others. It is read from page to page, every night in nearly every home in Duluth and Northern Minnesota. The Herald is a vital force in the homes of its patrons. It is the one newspaper in nearly all homes, the only newspaper in thousands of homes.
